The Leicester Daily Mail, Nov. 1, says:—

MRS. CHARLES SUGDEN AT THE THEATRE ROYAL.

Local lovers of good, wholesome drama who were at the Theatre Royal, Leicester, last night were decidedly fortunate to have the opportunity of witnessing the first performance of "The Ruin of Her Life." . . . . and the large audience which filled the auditorium, both in the popular parts and in the circle, showed, by its appreciation, that a really good work has been put on to the boards. "The Ruin of Her Life" possesses to the fullest extent those essential factors without which no drama can possibly hope for a LONG AND SUCCESSFUL RUN.
The play is from the pen of that well-known writer of drama, Mrs. Morton Powell, who has
ECLIPSED ALL HER PREVIOUS EFFORTS.
It is well balanced, all the scenes are carefully laid, there is no overlapping or a superabundance of material which so often mars the success of a drama; it constitutes a skein of intensely exciting episodes which grip the attention of the audience from
THE RISE TO THE FALL OF THE CURTAIN.
Perhaps the greatest feature of "The Ruin of Her Life" is that all-important fact that it centres round a delightful theme, and points out in a realistic manner much of the seamy side of child-life by exposing the many horrors and dangers which beset juveniles in the hands of unscrupulous people of the Father Fagin type. . . . One can imagine the tremendous possibilities of such a theme, especially when in the hands of a talented company, as that convened by Mrs. Charles Sugden. . . . .
THE AUDIENCE ARE HELD SPELLBOUND, the play was splendidly acted, and everything went off without the slightest hitch. Of course, the premier honours go to Mrs. Sugden in the part of Mary Macair, which was specially written for her by Mrs. Morton Powell. It is a triple rôle, and whether as the ticket-of-leave woman, Lady Selwyn, or a drunken hag, Mrs. Sugden acts with all customary skill. Upon the success of these characters the play hangs, and the heroine of "Zaza" and many other famous plays rises to all the demands placed upon her.

An Important Sale
by Public Auction.

To Roundabout Proprietors, Showmen, and Travellers in General.

WANTED, Known, Mr. Tom Norman having been favoured with Instructions from the owner, who is retiring from the Business, to Offer for Sale by Public Auction on Wednesday, Nov. 16, at 2 p.m., prompt,
on Market Ground, Crewe,
all that Beautiful Set of Three-abreast Gallopers as a going concern, which are undoubtedly Second to None in this country, Savage's make, comprising 40ft. centre truck, Savage's engine, splendid carved and gilt top centre and droppers, 14 carved and gilded rounding boards, cornice and droppers, over 5ft. deep; carved and gilded drum; large ornamental mirrors; 36 carved horses, by Spooner; 2 motor cars, altogether carrying 74 persons, twisted brass rods; magnificent Gavioli organ; 10 Excello lamps; the whole packs on four loads, road or rail (Savage's trucks). Also 8 h.p. Burrell traction engine and dynamo; 1 14ft. road Pullman living wagon, by Orton.
All the above are in condition as new, and can be seen running on day of sale.
The Proprietor having quite recently spent a very large amount of money on the concern, especially the organ and traction, it is now without doubt absolutely equal to a new concern and worth the consideration of those that require a really smart, up-to-date lot.

PLEASE NOTE.—NO DEPUTIES WILL BE ACCEPTED AT REHEARSALS.

Special provision has been made at each theatre for the exhibition of loose photographs. Artistes are requested to supply these to the Manager on reaching the theatre, and they will be returned in good condition at the end of the week.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.
EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

A CRITIC ON CRITICS.

Mr. E. F. Spence has collected a number of clever essays, which have appeared in the Westminster Gazette, of which he is the dramatic critic, and Messrs. Methuen and Co. have published the book, which has not a dull page in it. Mr. Spence is one of the ever-hopeful band of cultured enthusiasts who, while regarding the present condition of the drama in England unfavourably, are sanguine of improvement in the future. The charm of his articles is that they are sane, though cultured. He is not at all a bigoted admirer of modern French art, as the following extract proves:—

"Many of the present school of French dramatists write plays—unfortunately chosen for presentation in England—which assume the existence in society of a large class of people, otherwise amiable, who act upon the proposition that in Paris, as in heaven, there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage. Unmarried men and women live together, the males paying for the board and lodging, &c., of the females, without there being any pretence that the intimacy of their relations is radically immoral under normal circumstances. They do not even indulge in fireworks in such plays. You do not have parodies of the famous phrase 'Property is theft,' for the heroines fail to justify themselves by remarking that marriage is immorality. There is simply a business union and disunion, collage and décollage, coupled with what one may call cross-unions, all of them apparently free from the embarrassment of children, and none of them involving any of the more dignified of the human emotions. One of the worst of the number was L'Age d'Aimer, by M. Pierre Wolff—a piece so cynically immoral, and written with such an air of truth, that it might well cause some of us to shrink in horror from the idea of an entente cordiale with a people which, if truly represented by its fashionable dramatists, has no concept of cleanliness of life. . . . It is a great pity to use such a powerful vehicle as the stage for slandering a nation. . . . The great French nation is generally judged over here by flashy pictures of the fast section of Paris society, drawn, very often, if not always, from the outside, by clever people too indolent to know that the psychology of decent people is quite as interesting and dramatic as that of the gutter creatures of mere passion, who dignify their cynical desires with noble names, and, so far as the latest school is concerned, fail even to reach the humblest concept of free love."

There are over sixty articles in this amusing book, and not one of them is tiresome or unreadable. Selection is difficult amidst such an embarrassment of richness, but probably our readers will most cordially approve of Mr. Spence's defence of English acting against the attacks of "Max":

"Members of gesticulative races," writes Mr. Spence, "are apt to think English players very wooden, because, when representing British people, our actors and actresses are much restrained in movement. A French or Italian critic can hardly appreciate some of the splendid Stage Society or Court Theatre performances, such, for instance, as that of The Voysey Inheritance, which could not have been surpassed in any theatre or country.

"The offensive comparisons often, even generally, are based upon performances where our players are at a serious disadvantage.

". . . . English players do not represent certain foreign characters as well as do the foreigners. Is this surprising? They are handicapped, obviously.

"It is largely a question of geography; the Englishman expresses rapture by the phrase 'not half bad,' where the foreigner piles superlative on superlative of gush. It is our quality and our defect that we have a strange shyness, which prevent the exhibition of emotion for fear of ridicule. On our stage, as in our real life, the beloved son comes home from a long voyage, and, meeting his father, shakes hands a little warmly and says, 'Hallo, governor!' or something poetic like that, whilst abroad the two men kiss one another and utter highly-emotional phrases of rapture. Everyone knows that the feelings are equally deep in the two cases, but our cross-Channel critics doubt the depth of the English feeling, whilst our native players cannot do the kissing and hugging with an air of sincerity.

"Now, when taking these facts into account, we should be very careful in appraising the efforts of our own players. Not only ought we to avoid comparing select teams of foreign players with our own scratch companies, but also it is our duty to consider whether the strangers are appearing in plays better or worse than the average of our own, and we must take into account the fact that they are gaining from the advantage of novelty. Lastly, there remains the question how far they would appear to be better than ours if appearing on neutral ground."

There is much unconscious humour in the remark which Mr. Spence makes in his essay on "The Dramatic Critic: An Attack Upon Him." He is disinclined, he says, to attach importance to Philistine observations in theatrical papers. Mr. Spence certainly is not a Philistine, and his demonstration of the position of affairs as regards the English drama is identical with our own. The only difference is that we regard it with complacency, while he hopes and desires change.

MISS AMELIA BINGHAM was one of the speakers at a recent meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs in New York City, on which occasion the proposed legislative measure for the censoring of plays was emphatically condemned. It was said by one of the members that women were accused of being responsible for all the bad plays and books that were written.

ON being asked for her opinion, Miss Bingham confessed that she was "just scared to death" to address the Federation on such a weighty subject. She went on to say, however, that there wasn't much going on in the world for which women were not responsible, one way or another, but America was the most moral country in the world, and American women the most moral people in it. Miss Bingham denied that an immoral play could really succeed in New York, and pointed to the closing of several that had recently been condemned. "You don't go to the theatre to find religion," she said. "We're not supposed to preach. We must hold the mirror up to nature, and it is not all beautiful is it?"

MRS. THEODORE ROBERTS remarked that "if novels dealing with the sex question were immoral, then there were immoral novels, and that many of them were written by women." Mrs. Roberts thought the so-called protection of women by keeping them from contact with the world, was not for their benefit, but to keep them from "seeing what is going on." The one right that men give women without question, is the right to be good. "If a book, picture, or play, makes us hate vice and emulate virtue, it is moral. A play like Rip Van Winkle, where a drunken husband is made a popular hero, is immoral. If what the novelist writes is life, then it is right to depict it," she concluded.

MR. JAMES MORTIMER will deliver an address, entitled "Some Casual Remarks Concerning the Press and the Stage," to the members of the O.P. Club at the Criterion on Sunday, Nov. 13, Mr. F. McDonald Rendle in the chair.

RAYNE'S "Pocket Date Book." Price 1s. Address, THE PUBLISHER, "The Era" Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

ABERAMAN.—POOLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. John R. Poole; Manager, Mr. Robert Tebbitt.—The Musical Marvels are a remarkable quintette of vocalists and eccentric musicians; Harry Raymond is an artistic coon vocalist and dancer, and his little daughter Ivy is a graceful dancer. Gaertner and May are clever barrel jumpers. The latest pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. Dudley Bennett and Mr. T. C. Wray's company is presenting Miss Hook of Holland. Miss Margaret Paton as Miss Hook plays with much grace and charm; Mr. Edmund Russell in the rôle of Mr. Hook is excruciatingly funny; Miss Muff Carewe as Nina obtains many encores for her songs; Mr. Reginald Hunter as Simon Slinks wins much praise; Mr. Edward Booth is a suitable Captain Adrian Paap; Mr. Sam Lockridge as Bandmaster Van Vuyt scores with his songs; Mr. Wilson Blake is successful as Ludwig Schnapps; and Miss Olive Marshall is an excellent Gretchen.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Victor Rowe; Manager, Mr. Arthur Norton.—Lenaro is a clever and eccentric juggler; the Belmores are dainty comediennes and speciality dancers; Walter Wallis, comedian, causes much genuine laughter; and the Bioscopic pictures are highly appreciated.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatre Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Messrs. Bode and Hart's company are presenting this week the evergreen opera Les Cloches de Corneville. Mr. Cyril Thomson makes an excellent Marquis, alike in singing and declamation; Mr. E. St. Alban as Gaspard, the miser, is realistically attractive; Mr. Arthur Geary as Grenicheux sings and acts with tasteful power; whilst Mr. Fred Dark as the Bailie and Mr. Alfred Selby as Gobo, his clerk, are irresistibly funny in their impersonations. Miss Kitty Dale as Germaine sings tunefully and acts with lively grace; Miss Dolly Castles as Serpolette is bright and vivacious; the village girls are in the capable hands of Miss Jessie Hamilton, Miss Kitty Rawlinson, Miss Alice Hornsby, and Miss Mabel Rosa.

PALACE THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—One of the chief attractions at the Palace this week is The Electric Car Conductor, given by the Three Krakes; Bert Williams and his lay comrade Ted give a capital ventriloquial entertainment; Maude Mortimer sings with sprightly grace; the Newmans, a troupe of Australian unicycle riders, give a thrilling series of cycling tricks; Jenny and Willie Fordyce and Little Frankie entertain capitally; Edie King is a graceful dancer; the Paolias are athletic wonders; Marie Dream has a rich and powerful baritone voice; and Harry and Charlie Rich are comedians of mirth-provoking originality.

THE TIVOLI.—Proprietors, The Tivoli (Aberdeen), Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The principal feature of this week's entertainment at the Tivoli is A Black Mark. Miss Decima Moore takes the leading part of Miss Dora Talbot, and presents it with piquancy and grace; whilst the elderly military guardian and the dashing young lover are typically portrayed by Mr. Percy Francis and Mr. Charles Esdale. In addition, the Three Pirmans give a pleasing display of acrobatic agility; a troupe of five Japanese submit an interesting exhibition of gymnastic variety; Muriel Harding makes an attractive Anglo-French impressionist; Louis J. Seymour is a light comedian of amusing power; the Brothers Durrant exhibit their flying machine act with general acceptance; Tom E. Dean as "the morbid man of mirth" proves popular; and Miss Marie Kay gives a roller-skating dance of bold and original grace.

ABERTILLERY. — THE PAVILION. — Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Price.—Mr. Tom Watt's company is here this week with East Lynne. Archibald Carlyle is well played by Mr. Frank Beresford; Mr. Walter Dale is capital as P.C. Bullock; and Miss Ida Heron acts with charm as Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. E. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. and Mrs. O. Silverstone and H. Wright's company in The Nihilist is here this week. Mr. O. Silverstone as Prince Alexander sustains the rôle with consummate skill; Mr. Geo. Mitchell gives a powerful and manly study of Ivan Nowasky; and Mr. Cowell Clark is an excellent Karl Orloff. Mr. Henry Wright creates much merriment as Bobbie Smart; Mr. C. Newton Buckland ably impersonates Pierlree Petoff; and Mr. J. Brunelle Harvey enacts the part of Father Courko in an admirable manner. Miss Edna Clare is responsible for a faithful representation of the sympathetic character of Alexina; Miss Annie Hylton gives a creditable rendering of Princess Olga; and Mrs. O. Silverstone is a bright and vivacious Katrina.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Haley's Juveniles, in a vocal scena, are the premier attraction here, and prove themselves artists of decided ability; Fred Barnes appears in his latest successes, and has been enthusiastically received; the Mars Trio, in a clever speciality, prove clever gymnasts; and Gladys and Alber are an amusing comedy duo. Arthur Woodville, in song and dance, is greatly appreciated; Les Saldos give an excellent equilibristic turn; and Day and Queen, expert dancers, and the Bioscope pictures are also in the bill.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—A Thief in the Night is presented here by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company. Mr. Alfred Goddard gives a good impersonation of Alan; as the villainous Michael Mr. Leyton Cancellor is successful; Miss Florence Dalton's portrayal of Joan is clever; and Miss Beatrice Homer as Sonia is all that could be wished for.

ASHINGTON.—MINERS' THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Campbell Browne.—Mr. James Bell's company in The Idol of Paris occupies the boards here. As Flare-Flare Miss Annie Bell plays the leading part well; Mr. Chris. A. Olgar is good as Victor Cashet, as is also Mr. A. Sember as Philippe d'Esterre; Mr. Arthur McCullock does capital work as Prince Sergius; as Mme. Sancterre Miss Frances Bruce is excellent; and Mr. H. Vivian Thomas as Tatave and Miss Lottie Ray as Ann Sancterre cause much amusement.

PAVILION PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Hirst Pavilion; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Stoker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Curry.—The starring engagement here of the Five Musical Tritons is a most enjoyable entertainment. Pattie Bella, comedienne and dancer, is also good, and another excellent turn is Douglas and Clark, comedians and sand-dancers. The pictures are of the usual high standard.

BUFFALO PALACE.—Proprietors, J. and E. Lamb; Business-Manager, Mr. P. Adams.—The chief turn here is given by the Maximilian Trio, who give a fine entertainment with their marvellous juggling and balancing. Vic Verney gives a most refined whistling turn; and Boniar and Tess, quick-change artists, are very winsome as Japanese maidens in their Oriental splendour. There is the usual capital display of films.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. Leedham Bantock and company are here with Those Terrible Twins. Mr. Leedham Bantock as the wine-bibbing old butler, William, is the cause of continuous laughter. He is admirably seconded by Mr. Robert Rivers as Samuel Pringle and Miss Maud Adams as Mrs. Pringle. Miss Enid Baird and Miss Norah Walker as actresses at the Novelty Theatre are vivacious; and the efforts of Mrs. Watt Tanner as Maria, Mr. Archie McCaig as Minx, and Messrs. Cyril Delevanti and Martin Alwyne as lively medical students, together with Max and Climax as those Terrible Twins, form a diverting entertainment.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Bursiem.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is appearing in a new version, with hilarious results, of Mumming Birds, and in Skating. Dan Daly, the loud, yet sweet-voiced comedian, gives a very acceptable turn; Aggie Nolan is a dainty comedienne and a neat and dexterous buck and clog dancer; Gilbert Girard is a skilful animal and instrumental mimic; Zellini is a good comedy juggler; and Billie Melia a marvellous dancing comedian.

AYR.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—This week Mr. Frank Cellier produces a selection of Shakespearean plays:—Monday and Saturday matinée, Twelfth Night; Tuesday, Taming of the Shrew; Wednesday, Romeo and Juliet; Thursday, Merry Wives of Windsor; Friday, Richard III.; and Saturday, Hamlet. The company is a good one, and includes Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, Messrs. Frank Cellier, Gordon Philliott, Alfred Bristowe, Misses Madge Spencer, Gertrude Gilbert, and others.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Quite a welcome treat was provided here by Mr. Dudley Stuart's company in A Pair of Spectacles. Mr. Arthur Hare was eminently successful as the optimistic and tender-hearted Goldfinch, his efforts being admirably supported by Mr. James Harcourt, who handled the part of the tight-fisted Gregory with realistic effect; Mr. Ernest Deans and Mr. Guy Vivian showed a keen sense of the wayward character of young fellows; and Mr. Alfred Kingston and Mr. H. Sherwood Martin, in the respective parts of Joyce and Lorimer contributed to the general success. Miss Carmena Rivers carried through the rôle of Marion with flying colours; and Miss May de Launey charmingly portrayed the unsophisticated Lucy.

PICTUREDROME.—Proprietors, the Barnstaple Picturedrome Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr Lionel Prichard; Business-Manager, Mr. Francis A. Osborne.—This week a capital programme includes Mr. Wilmot Hastings, an exceedingly clever comedian, well known to local audiences, and Miss Daisie Cordelia, a charming comedienne and dancer.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in From Convent to Throne is here. Miss Valerie Crespin is a charming Princess Maritza, and Mr. William J. Miller is a strikingly impressive Baron Strelsau. Mr. Courtney Robinson is an imposing General Von Hapsburg, and Mr. Aidan Lovett a good Lieut. Ernesto Von Hapsburg.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company in The Midnight Mail is here. Miss Trissie Humphreys makes a sympathetic Mary Steyne, and Mr. George Harvard is an admirable Harry Steyne. Mr. H. W. Hatchman is a dignified Leonard Boyle, and Mr. F. G. Evison is a humorous Billy Brewer.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—A capital programme is presented here this week. Miss Annie Abbott gives an extraordinary exhibition of magnetic power which astonishes the audience. The Herald Comedy Four appear in a scena entitled The Hawkers, in which they are very successful; The Giles in Town, a comedy sketch, is capitally given by J. W. Darley and company; Hearn and Palmer are amusing comedy acrobats; Marie Coates is a very pleasing comedienne; Charlie Walker is a capital comedian; and Vernon's Bioscope concludes with some interesting pictures.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Fred Newman's British Empire picture and variety company are presenting an interesting programme here this week, and drawing good houses.

BATH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Miss Lillie Soutter's eccentric comedy gains great favour; Chris Baker has a prize-winner in his schoolmaster ditty; Bruce Green's "dame" creations and patter cause endless laughter; Flo Esdaile, a high soprano, essays the well-known Soldiers' Chorus from Faust with capital effect; Jack Hayworth sings a Scotch ditty successfully; acrobatic dancing is given by Dollie and Rosie; Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford are once again seen in their popular domestic comedy; a wonderful globe illusion and shadowgraph turn is that of the De Breans; and the pictures are of the latest and best.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—During the first part of the week Mr. Fred Mouillot's company in A Message from Mars occupied the boards here. Mr. Harry St. Barbe-West was an excellent Horace Parker; Mr. Wm. H. Broughton was well suited as the Messenger; Mr. Norman Clarke's portrayal of a Tramp was very clever; Miss Josephine Middleton acted gracefully and naturally as Minnie Templar; and the other members of a large cast were all good.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. George Edwardes's company opened here on Monday with Our Miss Gibbs. In the rôle of Mary Gibbs the charming actress, Miss Carrie Moore, achieved a gratifying success with her delightful vocalism and her vivacious interpretation; Mr. George Gregory fairly convulsed the audience with his inimitable impersonation of Timothy Gibbs; Miss Olive Moore was in every sense excellent as Lady Elizabeth; and Miss Nancy Hervyn appeared to advantage as Mme. Jeanne. Mr. Frank Hector was admirable as the Hon. Hughie Pierpoint, his dancing being very smart; and the rôle of the Earl of St. Ives was cleverly sustained by Mr. Myles Clifton. As the professional crook Slithers, Mr. Leslie Gaze is worthy of special praise; and the rôle of Mr. Toplady was in the safe hands of Mons. Ernest Mahar. Miss Grace Nixon as the Duchess of Minster acted with grace and charm; and Miss Kitty Cavendish appeared as the impecunious woman of fashion, Mrs. Farquhar. Mr. H. V. Crofton was good as Lord Eynsford; and Mr. C. Campbell Bishop was the family solicitor, Mr. Beavis, to the life. The remarkably clever solo dance in Act 2, by Miss Florence Phillips, created the utmost enthusiasm.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—His Dishonoured Wife is presented by Mr. Harry Tilbury and company. Mr. A. George Pry acquits himself with distinction as Frank Lindon; and Mabel Lindon is skilfully sustained by Miss Grace Stafford. Florence Lindon is cleverly enacted by Miss Belle Tilbury; and Mr. Fred Owen is a praiseworthy Niel Locksley. Mr. Alex. Alexander plays Lord Devant with much power; and Mr. George Walkley appears as Tom Redman. Mr. Eric Rees makes the most of his opportunities as Geoffrey Harvey; and Mr. A. S. Goring is a capable Arthur Cooper. The humour of the piece is in the hands of Mr. Harry Tilbury, who was inimitable as Micky Doolan; and Miss Etta Spalding a vivacious Araminta.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The star here is the famous comedian Little Tich, whose droll rendering of several songs has created quite a furore. The feats of equilibrism by the Two Lillys is aptly described as unparalleled; and Viviana and company, in their toyshop scene, furnish a talented exhibition of the terpsichorean art. A fine musical act has been provided by the Four Sisters Gilby, the manipulation of several musical instruments being exceptionally clever; and Miss Lilian Lowe's songs have been loudly and deservedly applauded. Miss Barry Eldon, musical comedy artist, Mr. Joe Belmont, vocalist and whistler, and the Hipposcope, complete a really good programme.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—Miss Florrie Gallimore tops the bill, and this accomplished comedienne easily secures unbounded success with her finished rendering of several good chorus songs; Verno and Voyce, who are always up to date, appear this visit in their musical scena, "John Bull's Cash Box," in which they make a great hit; and the King's College Boys appear in their scena, "The Students," their capital vocalism gaining encores. Miss Edith Heron Brown, the musical slavey, gains many admirers of her clever act; and Miss Chrissie Croft, a fascinating comedienne, is one of the best dancers that have appeared here for some time. Also appearing are Miss Lola Patey, comedienne, Mr. Ben Albert, comedian, and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White. — Many attractive pictures are presented here, and the variety element is sustained by Clarke and Clare, comedy duo, and Blarney and Bland, comedians and dancers.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers.—In addition to the films, Mr. Karl Stern, comedian and acrobatic dancer, appears.

BILSTON.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Tunstall.—Drama twice nightly forms the attraction here, A Life for a Life being presented by Mr. Charles H. Lester and company. The Josh Harker of Mr. Lester is a clever and vigorous piece of work; Mr. Hugh Travers is also good as Le Calci; Wee Winnie Warden wins all hearts as Vanetta, the "baby detective"; Miss Beatrice Anderson plays with feeling the trying part of Eulalie. Miss Nell Ingram is an amusing Nancy. The Sorrows of Satan is to be presented on Thursday.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Crowded houses are attracted by a return visit of Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in Brewster's Millions, which gives great satisfaction. Mr. Hutchison contributes a finished and highly-effective impersonation of the "Millionaire," Monty Brewster; Miss Dorothy Whitaker is an irreproachable Peggy; and Miss Lilias Earle invests the part of Mrs. Dande-Mille with peculiar charm and acceptance. Mr. Aubrey Mather as Joseph McLeod, Mr. Gordon Ash as Charlie Harrison, Mr. Henry Hampson as Archie Golding, Mr. A. P. Kaye as Monsieur Bargie, Mr. Robert Forsyth as Mr. Grant, and Mr. A. Andrews as Colonel Drew, all accord excellent service. Rawles the Butler is raised into prominence by that experienced actor Mr. Frank Hill; Miss Marian Ripley is an accomplished Janice Armstrong; Miss PhyHis Stuckey acquits herself well as Barbara Drew; and the remaining characters are adequately represented. The Yacht scene in Act III. is certainly a marvel of mechanical skill. Chalk and Cheese forms a suitable curtain-raiser.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—Jack and Evelyn are clever and entertaining; Bellew and Stocks's company, including Master Edward Garratt, are enthusiastically greeted in the sketch Mortimer Magnus, M.P.; and the Gothams are popular. Other excellent turns are given by Miss Kitty Kennedy Allen, comedienne; Mr. Phil Percival, comedian and pianist; Chorley and Connor, dancers and patterers; Miss Kitty Wager, comedienne; Mr. Fred Poplar, comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. Raynor's répertoire company are appearing twice each evening. During the week Moths and The Idler have been produced, with Mr. Raynor, Miss Dora Dench, Miss Cecilia Dare, and Mr. Jos. B. Montague in the principal rôles.

BIRMINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Monsieur Beaucaire is a very charming costume drama, and Mr. Lewis Waller gives one of his finest performances in the title-rôle. Miss Madge Titheradge is a charming Lady Mary Carlyle; Mr. Herbert Jarman is a commanding figure as Beau Nash, and his acting is excellent; the difficult part of the Duke of Winterset is cleverly undertaken by Mr. Frank Woolfe; and others who figure prominently are Mr. S. B. Brereton (Captain Badger), Miss Gabrielle de Wilden (Lucy Rellerton), Mr. Reginald Dane (Major Molyneux), and Mr. Leslie Rea (Lord Townbrake).

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnstone.—The D'Oyly Carte Company have an attractive répertoire, and the standard of the work is well maintained. The programme for the week comprised The Mikado, The Gondoliers, H.M.S. Pinafore, The Yeomen of the Guard, and Patience.

ALEXANDRA.—General-Manager, Mr. Fred Barnardo; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—The Eyes of the World is enjoying a successful week. The production is in the capable hands of Ethel Van Praagh and J. Edward Whitty's company. Miss Van Praagh provides a finished study in her original creation, Hélène de L'Orme, the wronged wife, and the house is roused to great enthusiasm in many effective situations. Mr. Miles Hodgson is excellent in the part of the husband, and Miss Edith Rutland also shows considerable ability. Other characters are well portrayed by Miss F. Hastings, Miss N. Garside, Miss B. Hulment, Mr. G. P. Ellis, and Mr. E. Onston.

BOURNSLEY PALACE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Miss Dot Stephens is adding to an already long list of successes in the drama A Child of the Streets, which is presented by Mr. George H. Hazlehurst's company. Miss Bessie Hazlewood ably sustains the part of Gertrude Graham; Mr. George Keene makes an admirable hero; Mr. Claude Gravelly is popular in the rôle of a Highland soldier; Mr. Leonard Clarke makes a success in the heavy character; and the humorous side of the piece is in capable hands.

METROPOLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr. Walter Melville's new play, The Shop-soiled Girl, is creating an excellent impression upon its first appearance in Birmingham. The company is one of the strongest out of London, and the principal parts are presented with realism. The story is built on popular lines, and rouses audiences to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Miss Georgina Wynter gives a good account of herself in the title-rôle; and Mr. H. E. Herbert as her Lancashire lover is perfectly at home in the part. Mr. Harvey Braban is clever as Mark Faulkner, a scamp; and other characters are capably presented by Miss Gladys Ford Howitt, Miss Winifred Pearson, Mr. Wilfred Lyndon, and Mr. Tom E. Sinclair.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis Chapman.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's romantic production The Apple of Eden is enjoying a successful visit. Miss Janet Alexander as the Queen of Slavonia is fully equal to all demands of a trying character; Mr. Lauderdale Maitland cleverly fills the character of Julian Homburg; and Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan is prominent as King Ferdinand. Mr. Percy Ballard, Mr. B. White, Miss Tessa Myers, Miss Hayden, and Miss Mycie Monte are also deserving of praise.

CARLTON.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. Percy Norman's company provides the attraction here in the diverting comedy-drama The Beginning and the End, and the popular drama Trilby. The company is a strong one, and the performances are thoroughly enjoyed by good houses. Mr. A. B. Mackay takes the chief character in both pieces, and scores a big success as Svengali in Trilby. Miss Ida Mackay is a versatile actress; and Miss Lillie Lewis, who takes the part of Trilby, gives a very creditable impersonation. Other prominent members of the company are Mr. Campbell Kelly, Mr. Fred Chester, Mr. Graham Hamlyn, Mr. Sydney Davis, and Miss Trixie Leiton.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—Fred Kitchen is appearing with Herbert Darnley's company in the military comedy Private Potts, and causing roars of laughter. A smart trio of gymnasts are the Emersons; Barney and Armstrong are well to the fore in diverting comedy; and Harvey's American Boys and Girls come in for appreciation in an effective song and dance act. The Five Vernons are talented performers on the xylophone; La Superbe is a popular dancer; Evelyn Bingham earns applause for good singing; and Frank Couch has entertaining patter.

THE GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—Miss Zena Dare is a big attraction in a one-act sketch, The Model and the Man. Miss Dare is well supported by Mr. Frank Wilson and Miss Ivy St. Helier. Sarkoezi and Monnier, "cymbals and violin virtuosi," provide an artistic musical turn; and Larola is applauded for smart acrobatic and juggling feats. The Brothers Redmond are strong favourites in a burlesque representation of two policemen; Leslie and Edgar Stevens score in a comedietta, Love Levels All; Ray Wallace entertains at the piano; Billie Marsden is a comedian and instrumentalist of note; and Rose Cabani completes the bill.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Excellent musical and comedy turns are a feature of a good programme presented here this week. Arthur Lennard, the popular actor-vocalist, receives a hearty welcome, and his emotional songs are as acceptable as ever. Miss Berry, a ballad vocalist of musical ability, is heard to advantage in the items "Queen of the Earth" and "Caller Herrin'." The Two Anartos combine good music and boisterous fun very acceptably; Wilson Hallet contributes humorous and pathetic child studies; Mona Vivian dances well and gives pleasing imitations; Ethel Dunford is a dainty soprano vocalist; the Forsyths are well received in a speciality, La Poupee; and Denby and Dent are popular comedians.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Barrasfords, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Dr. Wilmar's spirit paintings provide a sensational item in a good all-round programme. Arthur Prince is a smart ventriloquist; the Ansonia Trio are a capable combination of equilibrists; Arthur Reese is a vocal comedian of merit; and Harry Taft displays wanderful talent as a whistler. Billy Rex is a versatile entertainer; and other contributors are Damerell and Rutland, comedians; Sam Thompson, Scotch comedian; Mabel Mignon, comedienne and dancer; and A. E. Clifford, vocal comedian.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—The Six Brothers Luck are adding to their popularity in Aston by their sketch Lift 'Ems, Limited. The Three Langfords give a clever and original dancing act; Nightingale and Stigant extract a wonderful amount of mirth from a comedy duologue, Two Sides of a Wall; Little Joyce Barbour, a local juvenile of great promise, is encored for her singing and dancing; Jim Cheetham is a smart boy whistler and mimic; and A. W. Scott, coon delineator, is popular. Ralph and Nellie Howard, sketch artists, the Colombias, equilibrists, and Leolin, club manipulator, are also well received.

CURZON HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Walter Jeffs.—This week's programme is of good standard merit, being well varied and up to date. The entertainments hold a high position in the favour of Birmingham people because of their perennial freshness, and the attendances show no falling off. Pathé's Animated Gazette is eagerly looked forward to, and the events illustrated this week include the Walthamstow Election and the Kaiser's Visit to Brussels. Miss Ida York and Miss Olga Leipold provide excellent variety turns.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Dickie Clare and company are appearing here in Lucky 'Liza, this being a return visit. Mr. Clare is very good in the rôle of Silas Slim; and Mr. Leonard plays Paul Pettitoe with the desired effect. Mr. T. W. Benson is clever as Peter Pettitoe, as is Mr. Harry Feorge (Barnaby Blatherwick) and Mr. J. W. Forest (Biffins). Miss Rosie Coyne is a winning Vergina Blatherwick, her singing and dancing meeting with approval; Miss Vesta Brownie in the title-rôle works with decided cleverness; Miss Helen Douglas is a good Mary Pettitoe; and Sadie Potts is admirably handled by Miss Evelyn Wood, who possesses a good voice. The Jesmond Quartette are good in their dancing, and the chorus under the direction of Mr. T. A. Conner is capital.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, the Hippodrome (Bishop Auckland), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—Good houses are the order here. Nellie Wallace, comedienne, is received enthusiastically; the Brooklyn Comedy Four take well; Jones and Clare give a smart gymnastic display; and an able comedian is Tom Joy. The Two Units, comedy acrobats, are clever; Sisters Carelli are successful in providing a charming dancing turn; and Jack Warman is an immense mirth-maker. The Hipposcope films continue to be interesting.

BLACKBURN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Resident Managing-Director, Mr. Harry Yorke; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reg. Yorke.—The Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company opened their week here with a fine rendering of Goldmark's Queen of Sheba. Miss Doris Woodall's dramatic acting and splendid singing as the Queen of Sheba called forth tremendous applause; Mr. Walter Wheatley also sang well as Asad; Mr. Arthur Winckworth added to his laurels by his beautiful singing as King Solomon, his resonant voice admirably suiting the declamatory style of the music; Miss Beatrice Miranda soon established herself in popular favour; Mr. Alex. Richard acquitted himself well, both vocally and dramatically, as the High Priest. The smaller parts of Baal-Hanan and Astaroth were well sung by Mr. George M. Reid and Miss Annie Van Dyck respectively. The largely augmented orchestra played the difficult music without a hitch. Mr. Eugene Goossens conducted. Tannhäuser was billed for Tuesday, Carmen Wednesday, Lily of Killarney Thursday, Faust Friday, Saturday evening, Il Trovatore, and on Saturday afternoon a matinée performance will be given of The Queen of Sheba.

THE PALACE.—Sole Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—A high-class entertainment is given here by Mr. Ellerslie Pyne in the scena, The Actor's Dream, in which he introduces short scenes from well-known plays; a novel and interesting turn is that supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde, shadowgraphists; the Tom B. Davies Trio give a thrilling cycle performance; Messrs. Fergusson and Mack, as the Sisters Dimple, caused amusement; Metz and Metz are good comedians; Daisy Hurdle is a charming comedienne; the Quality Quartette sing acceptably; and a good turn is given by J. A. Wilson and his dog. Ernest Rees amuses his hearers immensely. Good pictures complete.

NEW PRINCES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; Manageress, Mrs. Clarkson.—A romantic play, by Mr. Walter Howard, A Life's Revenge, is being played here this week. Mr. Percy Brown plays Prince Storgoroff admirably; Miss Millie Ford is a capital Princess Ivylia; and Mr. E. E. Louis makes the most of his opportunities as Paul Starofvitch.

BLACKPOOL.—WINTER GARDENS PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Charles Windermere and company are meeting with success here with Where is William? Mr. Windermere has appeared here in many parts, but Sir William, which he is playing this visit, is undoubtedly the one to which he is most suited. He is well supported by Mr. Rule Pyott, who plays William, the butler, and Miss Belle Richardson, who very cleverly portrays Eliza; and Emily, the cook, is in the skilful hands of Mrs. A. Davis. Mr. Leslie Norman provides amusement as General Rubbub.

COPY OF TESTIMONIAL.

From J. A. Harrison Co., Ltd., Theatrical Costumiers, 29, Leicester Square, W.C.
27th October, 1910.

To T. Harris, Esq, Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 6, Argyll Street, W.

Dear Mr. Harris,—

I am very pleased with the cleaning of the Pantomime Wardrobe you have just sent back. It may interest you to know that some of the Costumes were made six years ago. They look almost as good as the first time they were used.

Yours truly, J. A. HARRISON,
Managing Director.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—A droll comedian is Paul Barnes, who tops the bill here. Annie Schubert contributes a fine song-scena; and the Rallis-Wilson Trio supply a clever acrobatic turn. Fred Curran is well received as a singer of quaint songs and parodies; Albert Letine shines as a female impersonator; the Rawsons are pleasing society entertainers; and Minnie Kirby is a dainty comedienne.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott, supported by an excellent company, have presented the under-mentioned popular plays with success: The Shraughan, The Octoroon, Colleen Bawn, The Heart of a Hero, The Ticket of Leave Man, and The Shadows of a Great City.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. Ernest Benham's company is presenting Old Heidelberg here. Mr. Owen Nares' portrayal of Prince Karl proves him an actor of exceptional ability; Miss Kitty Ricimer acts with piquancy as Kathie, and is good in the emotional scenes; Mr. Ernest Bodkin gives a fine study of the part of Dr. Juttner; Mr. Percy Crawford is very amusing as Ruder, the innkeeper; Mr. Jan Ogilvie Will gives a quaint impersonation of Kellermann; Mr. Frank Powell is excellent as Von Haugh; and Mr. Sydney Hamilton does well as the pompous Lutz. The remaining characters are all in capable hands, and the piece is suitably mounted.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—R. A. Roberts, protean actor, is the chief attraction here, where he is presenting this week two distinct dramatic sketches, Dick Turpin and Cruel Coppinger, to delighted houses. Turns are also given by Vena Valma, comedienne and dancer; Tom Drew, dancer; the Wedburns, comedians, burlesque instrumentalists, &c.; the Flying Hanlons, in their comedy throwing act; Dave Carter, Irish tenor vocalist; Frank Cass, vocal comedian; the Sisters Simms, in their vocal dancing scena; Phil Ree's Stable Lads, in their novel and original racing act, Not a Crook; and the Premier Imperial pictures.

Hippodrome, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—A good variety company here comprises Carl Hertz, the famous illusionist, assisted by Miss Emeline D'Alton, in a series of mysterious illusions; Fred Lindsay, stock-whip expert, in a novel and wonderful act; Will Lytton, eccentric comedian; Radie Stuart, comedienne and dancer; Orpheus, in a refined and artistic music entertainment; Joe Hunt, comedian and dancer; Nobby, juvenile comedian; the famous Joe Boganny's Troupe of Lunatic Bakers; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BOOTLE.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Boult.—At the Winter Gardens this week Messrs. Lyle and Yeomans present the merry musical absurdity The Girl from America. Mr. Robb Chynne as Professor Bumperina is amusing, as also is Miss Ethel Stanton as Mary. Miss Tina Romano as Alice Dixon, "the girl from America," and Miss Audrey Mason as Camille Dalvera are responsible for some clever singing.

Muncaster Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Pennington Estates Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Harry Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alf. D. Adams.—A powerful stock company is playing Mr. Barnes of New York here. The company is an exceptionally strong one.

Mouillot and Walter De Frece.—Francini Olloms and Page have a variety entertainment, including excellent concertina playing; Flora Cromer pays a return visit, and is much appreciated; Haley's Girls, in a vocal and dancing scena, The Garden of Girls, is well presented; Harry Luck, eccentric comedian, has some good songs; Evelyn Taylor as a chorus comedienne is successful; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, in a unique singing and dancing act, and the Keppels, in an operatic vocal scena, also contribute. The Hippo pictures conclude.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—A return visit is made here by Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company, in The Flag Lieutenant. Mr. Loring Fernie infuses much humour into the part of Richard Lascelles. Mr. A. V. Bramble wins the sympathy of the audience as Major Thesiger; Miss Dorothy Ripley realises the sweet character of Lady Hermoine; Miss Stella Leigh scores as Mrs. Gough-Bogle; and Mrs. Cameron is well played by Miss C. Selwynne. Mr. Lionel Isted and Mr. John Wheatman submit excellent studies; Mr. Geo. Robinson and Mr. A. J. Harris are admirable as the Midshipmen; as also is Mr. Jas. Coulsdon as the Quartermaster. Mr. Geo. Percy plays the Surgeon is a quiet and natural manner. The other parts are all well sustained.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—A return visit of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company in the bright and beautifully staged musical comedy The Arcadians forms the present attraction here. Mr. Walter Passmore is again delightfully humorous as James Smith (Simplicitas), and Mr. Oliver J. Round's quaint assumption of Peter Doody elicits hearty laughter. Miss Ethel Erskine as Sombra sings sweetly; as Eileen Cavanagh Miss Billie Sinclair is bright and dainty; Miss Veronica Brady is immensely diverting as Mrs. Smith. The charming concerted numbers are well rendered, the minor parts are again in excellent hands, and the comedy is greeted with hearty marks of appreciation.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—The Midnight Wedding again forms a strong attraction here for Mr. Laidler's patrons, and at the hands of Mr. Walter Howard's capable company the stirring drama receives skilful treatment. The part of Paul Valmar, expert swordsman of the Hussars, is filled with much excellence by Mr. A. E. Winnington; Miss Lilian Hallows displays much ability in a very charming performance of the Princess Astrea; the two villains of the story, Captain Von Scarsbruck and Lieut. Von Strelsburg, are represented with effect by Messrs. Malcolm Tearle and St. George Frere respectively; the Crown Prince Leopold is ably represented by Mr. F. H. Constable; and for the humour in the play Miss Phyllis Hume and Messrs. H. Paine, H. Richardson, and A. Spalding are responsible. The drama is again finely staged.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—Horace Goldin, the illusionist, who is assisted by Mlle. Jeanne Fransioli, in a series of clever and bewildering feats, is the recipient of great applause here again this week, and the Grassis, the delightfully entertaining musical acrobatic pierrots, are winning applause once more in their novel performance. Edward Lauri and May Beattie in their diverting sketch, Her Boudoir, are, as usual, eliciting hearty laughter. Little Zola, the comedian, is a lump of fun; Alf H. West gives a very brilliant performance as a solo pianist; Esta Stella is a smart and dainty comedienne and dancer; Daisy Martell, comedienne, and Will Johnson, comedian, submit acceptable turns; five juvenile entertainers as "Belles of the Kitchen" are amusing; and the Bioscope shows some entertaining pictures.

The Palace.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Billy Merson, the quaint comedian, is responsible for much laughter here this week, and Dorothy Dacey's chorus songs are appreciated. The Society Quartet sing and dance with considerable acceptance. In a comedy magic act Yettmah is both clever and amusing; Ida Kessanly introduces a troupe of very wonderfully trained fox terriers, and the performance they are put through is much applauded; Ernestine Desborough is a very acceptable comedienne. A thrilling and well-acted dramatic sketch, The Bottom Dog, in which Henry Bedford as a convict and Robert Purdie as a clergyman appear successfully, is a feature of the evening's entertainment, which concludes with the interesting Palace Perfection pictures.

BRIGHOUSE.—Albert Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Martin Manley, sen.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Martin Manley, jun.—Mr. Frank Lindo's Home, Sweet Home company in on a welcome return visit. Miss Marion Wakeford is an excellent Joan; Mr. Norton Shields a vigorous Stephen Armitage; Mr. Sydney Dench a dignified Duke of Ancaster; Mr. Leonard Laurence is very good as the unscrupulous Lucas Lyle; Mr. Bert Dench is most humorous as the Hon. Percy; Mr. Tom E. Lewis submits a clever reading of David Armitage; Mr. Arthur Trail is responsible for two clever character studies; Mr. Eric Growther deserves praise as Dick Redmayne; Miss Lisa Coleman is exceedingly good as Sybil Fay; and Little Queenie is also to be complimented on her rendering of Dora.

BRIGHTON.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Man to Man occupies the boards here. Mr. Arthur Robinson gives an admirable impersonation of the hero, George Gordon; Miss Beatrice Hone acts with much charm and sympathy as the heroine, Ethel Maythorne; Mr. Clifford Bown, under whose direction the play is presented, is very quaint as the convict, Bill Burkley; Mr. Charles Stirling is forcible as the villainous Richard Ellerton; Mr. Hartland Edwards submits an admirable representation of the Rev. Philip Ormond; Miss Frances May's Gipsy Madge and Miss Phyllis Oakley's Ned Doyle merit praise; and much amusement is afforded by Mr. Bruce Williams as Samuel Plumtree and Miss Eleanor Papera as Miss Lavina Dove. The play is excellently mounted.

Alhambra.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Roma and Romani, the classical musicians, win hearty applause; Oscar Mills and John Brown present My Friend the Count, in which Ernest Lawson is especially effective as Billy Sparkings; Zasma is a clever gymnast; the Nonentities are highly successful in their concert party programme; the Three Daisies are excellent in song and dance; J. H. Crew is an eccentric comedian and dancer; Flo Carlow acquits herself admirably in songs and sand dancing; Wade and Lilian are well received in the vocal scena, A Romany's Wooing; Hagar and Willie are effective in an acrobatic speciality; and the Alhambra Picturegraph is interesting and amusing. On Thursday Miss May Palfrey and Miss Lena Ashwell's company from the Kingsway Theatre, gave a matinée performance of Company for George and The Outcome of Agitation.

Barrasford's Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—Miss Ada Reeve is the great attraction here, and is enthusiastically applauded. Yamamoto and Koyoshi, Japanese equilibrists, achieve great success; La Noedia impersonations of French characters are warmly appreciated; the Scottish Meisters are excellent in the vocal extravaganza, Ancestral Spirits; Signor Torti, an accomplished tenor vocalist, is distinctly effective; Maggie Carr is a capital vocalist and dancer; Hinton and Wooton are skilful in their football match on bicycles; Joe and Hetty Waldron are good comedy artists; and Jack Hylton is a pleasing comedian.

West Pier.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Louis Meyers company is here with The Woman in the Case. Miss Florence Lloyd gives a telling and realistic impersonation of Claire Forster; and Mr. Leonard Pagden is highly successful as Thompson. Miss Mabel Trevor is a sympathetic Margaret Rolfe; Miss Sophie Lingwood is well placed as Mrs. Hughes; Mr. Clayton Greene displays polished acting as Julian Rolfe; Mr. F. Clive Ross is a capital Klauffsky; and able support is given by Mr. Richard Fielding, Mr. Lambert Plummer, and Mr. Reginald Maurice.

Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Maud Barrasford; Manager, Mr. F. J. Thompson.—The Events of the Week and other pictures are highly interesting. Ballads are charmingly rendered by Miss Emmie King.

BRISTOL.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—A special matinée was held here on Saturday afternoon, the 5th inst., organised by the Women's Social and Political Union, consisting of Cicely Hamilton's Pageant of Great Women, as at the Scala Theatre, London, the pageant being written by Miss Cicely Hamilton and arranged by Miss Edith Craig. Miss Olive Terry, Miss Homer Vesey, and Mr. Charles Thursby appeared in the principal parts, assisted by a company of seventy. Morris dances and Old English games, and a play, in one act, by Cicely Hamilton and Christopher St. John, entitled How the Vote Was Won, were also included in the entertainment. The theatre was packed in all parts. This week we have Messrs. Glenister and Ingram's company in The House of Temperley. Mr. Lionel Glenister acts in manly style as Captain Jack Temperley; Mr. Howard Rose presents a good study of Sir Charles Temperley; Miss Sheila O'More is pleasing as Ethel Morley; Mr. Fellows Bassett acts consistently as Sir John Hawker; Mr. John Detley makes a fine character-study of Jakes, a bookmaker; Mr. Charles Cleveland acts capitally as Ginger Stubbs; and the remaining parts are well played.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mrs. Emma Carpenter; Manager, Mr. Henry C. Alty.—Can a Woman be Good? is being played here by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. Miss Mabel Rose and Mr. Joseph Millaine both act admirably their respective parts of Esther Howarde and Manuel Errington; Mr. Harry C. Robinson presents a fine character-study of Herod Steinberg; Miss Florence Hunt displays considerable power as Naomi Merrick; Mr. W. H. Griffiths makes the most of his opportunities as Ralph Desmond; Mr. T. G. Maine and Mr. J. Archer do well as Cairns and Starman; and the comic parts of Curley Dabbs and Slithers are taken in excellent style by Mr. G. R. Tyrrill and Miss Winifred Barton.

Palace. — Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Treasurer and Assistant-Manager, Mr. P. J. V. Welchman.—Captain Fred Woodward's talking and juggling sea-lions and seals head the programme, their performance being both interesting and amusing; the Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of Bedouin Arab acrobats (ten in number) perform many difficult and wonderful feats; Clara Reid and John Power amuse with their sketch, The Chambermaid; Cestria does well as a comedian, acrobat, and juggler; the Brothers Herbert are smart eccentric dancers; Lily Edwards is a pleasing comedienne; the Brand Sisters are acceptable, both in song and dance; Fred Hallum, comedian, is appreciated; the Brothers Brooks amuse as comedians, &c.; and animated pictures conclude.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Manager, Mr. Sid. Macaire.—Cinquevalli, the incomparable juggler, is here for the week; Marquerite Broadfoote, comedienne, has some pretty songs; Mark Melford and company amuse with My Wife Won't Let Me; Jack and Lily Kendall are pleasing vocalists; Captain Ellis and Son do well with their comedy-musical act; Ardell and Odell do some smart tumbling; Mr. and Mrs. Rossi Ashton score with their speciality, The War Artist and Lady Conductor; Brothers Bass, comedians, are appreciated; Stan. and Stella Atkins are smart dancers; and Alexander Mee displays ability as an actor-vocalist. Interesting animated pictures conclude.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. J. P. Moore and Montague Beaudyn; General-Manager, Mr. Montague Beaudyn; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Collingwood.—A Collier's Daughter, with the clever actress, Miss Irene Munroe as Bess, had a good house on Monday. Mr. Montague Beaudyn ably portrayed Dick Silver; Jaspar Bargrave was well played by Mr. Charles D. Pitt; Miss Cora Patey presented Irene Gallimore effectively; Mr. A. A. Tomlin (Merkins Gentle) and Miss Phyllis Rae (Lady Kathleen Harland) were entrusted with the comedy business.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Sexton Blake is here on a return visit, and is meeting with a good reception. Mr. Murray Yorke appears with great success in the title-rôle, and Mr. Miller Wilson proves his powers as Tinker. Mr. Edward McLean fills the difficult rôle of Roger Blackburn; and good work is done by Miss Elizabeth Watkins as Marjorie Lovell. Much ability is shown by Mr. Paul Barry Lewers as Randolph Lovell, and the scenic effects are good.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—At the head of a pleasantly varied programme is Jan Rudenyi and his company, who present The Storm, introducing brilliant violin solos, which evoke much applause. Spissell Bros. and Mack are a diverting combination of knockabout artists, and Miss Ellen Sellars is a sweet mezzo-soprano who sings with excellent effect. J. H. Carney gives a novel performance as a mimic comedian, and Will Owen and George Morton provide good turns. The Empire Theatrescope concludes.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Rentoul.—Foremost in popularity here are Edward Crossland's Melody Makers in their scena The Burglar's Dream, in which excellent vocal and piano music predominates. Continuous laughter greets The Would-be Actors, presented by Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery; and Bert Woodward is a smart cycle trickster. Richard Wally, juggler, makes a welcome reappearance, and Miss Louie Tracey repeats former successes. The Bros. Rees give an interesting exhibition of heavy juggling, and Gwennie Morgan is a pleasant comedienne. The Three Sisters Silcott are a bright turn, and the Palace pictures conclude.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Ching Ling Soo is paying a return visit, and astounding the natives with his clever tricks; Geo. O. Doughty and Molly Laney, in a pleasing comedy entitled A Woman's Way, show considerable talent; the Calcotts shine in singing, dancing, and playing; Miss Annie Martin possesses a pleasant voice; Alma Correze, assisted by Droll Keith, does some marvellous juggling; and Kathleen Cogan, comedienne and dancer, and Burns and Bentley, artistic dancers, and the Operascope, also entertain.

BURY (Lancs).—Royal.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—Mr. Robert McDonald's company opened here on Monday with The Dairymaids. Miss Ethel Callanan makes a delightful Peggy, and Miss Marjorie Manners is equally successful as Winifred. Lieut. Sam Brudenell is capitally played by Mr. William Spray, and Mr. Edwin Dood's drolleries as Joe Mivens are highly diverting. Miss Edie Martin is most amusing as Eliza. Others prominent in the cast are Miss Marie Rignold as Lady Brudenell; Mr. Harry Clark as Lieut. Frank Meredith; Mr. Harry Scaddan as Dr. O'Bryne; Miss Shelia Hayes as Helen; and Miss Rose Edouin as Miss Pyechase.

Circus of Varieties.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—Pictures still hold the sway at this house, and some exceedingly excellent films are shown. The Sisters Dudley, novel duettists, and Blair and Allen, comedians and dancers, provide clever turns.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Jim Pullin is a quaint comedian with clever songs; Moon and Morris are to be congratulated upon their clever patter and smart simultaneous dancing. Other capital turns include the Three Warringtons in an expert equilibrist act; Marjorie and Maude, dainty dancers; the Dancing Paceys in vocal act; Lynn and Leslie in a smart vaudeville act; and Casey's Juveniles in Casey's Court.

CAMBRIDGE.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. Edward Compton and his talented company were welcomed here on Monday in The School for Scandal. Mr. Compton's Charles Surface is as dignified as ever; Peter Teazle was made a fine study by Mr. Henry Crocker; Miss Nell Compton played Lady Teazle artistically; Sir Oliver Surface was well portrayed by Mr. Chas. Stone; Joseph Surface was efficiently rendered by Mr. Frank Royde; and Miss Erita Sponti, Miss Maria Hassell, and Miss Agnes Williams also gave skilful support. On Tuesday She Stoops to Conquer was played, and Davy Garrick on Wednesday.

CANTERBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon.—The performance of Paul Cavalli, the well-known athlete and strong man, is much appreciated; Connie Ieca, a charming songstress; Stuart Paton, an amusing and versatile character impersonator; the Louberts, pantomimists, who have caused roars of laughter; Detil, with mystifying tricks; the Weimars, tightrope and musical artists; Billy Horley, comedian; and Bu-Val, the happy Dutchman, who performs very cleverly on the concertina, comprise a good programme.

CARDIFF. — Theatre Royal. — Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. E. Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Windsor Stevenson. The musical comedy The Cingalee is here. Enthusiastic audiences have crowded to see the play, which is presented by Mr. Haldane Crichton's company. Mr. Jack Crichton as Chambhuddy Ram is successful in keeping his house in peals of laughter; Mr. Cyril Dane, with a capital voice, makes an excellent Harry Vereker; Mr. Milroy Cooper does exceptionally well as Boobhamba; Mr. F. W. Ford is an amusing Sir Peter; and as Bobby Warren Mr. Scott Cullen scores considerably. Miss Pauline Hague, who has a pleasing voice, plays Lady Patricia Vane in lively style; Miss Ida Ernest is entitled to praise for her portrayal of Peggy Sabine; and Miss Molly Woolstenhulme in the rôle of Nanoya has ample opportunity for displaying her vocal ability.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Heading a capital bill this week at the popular Palace is Walter Bird's company in a comedy sketch, entitled Her Husband. Mr. Ernie Lotinga's clever skit of Jimmy is most amusing. Lively Lillie Langtry proves as popular as ever, her sprightly performance being always appreciated in this district; Edwin Garth is another successful artist; Kirk and Saraski are well described as "the girl aquatic marvels"; the Eedunn, operatic duettists, "go down" exceptionally well; and Will Rennie, the American roller-skate dancer, Lillian French, vocalist and mimic, and Scena Voces, in illustrated songs and ballads, are other additions to the programme.

CARLISLE.—H. M. Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Variety holds the boards here, the principal attraction being Rabottini's Band in some delightful selections. Alpho is a novel and clever ventriloquist; Leon and Tee, in a funny musical scena, The Musical Farm, evoke roars of laughter; Ben Jackson is an expert banjoist and humorist; Fame and Fortune do well in a comedy boxing act; Howard Ward and Louie Davis are amusing in a sketch, Wanted a Typist; and Will and Roze do well in an eccentric conjuring and acrobatic act.

The Palace.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. J. D. Askew.—Atlas and Vulcana top the bill here, and, with the Sisters Atlas and Little Gus, give an excellent exhibition of feats of strength. Rita and Roma, in a bright pot-pourri act, are much enjoyed; Belrose and De Velin are operatic duettists of a high order; Harry Taylor is a clever comedian; Tamamoto is a wonderful perpendicular rope performer; Dan Conroy is a bright comedian and raconteur; and good items are contributed by Gracie Hunt, chorus comedienne, and Newco and Sullo, comedians and dancers.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Coun. Hy. Masterman, J.P.—The Claudian Company is here. Mr. William Maclaren gives a highly-finished and artistic performance of Claudian; as Almida Miss Lily C. Bandman fills the part with subdued grace and charm; Mr. Frank L. Chambers' portrayal of the Tetrach is effective; Mr. Douglas Earle gives an interesting representation of Agazil; Alcares finds an able exponent in Mr. Weston Hubbard; Mr. Cecil Maynard makes a careful study of Rhamantes; Mr. Chal. T. Chalenor as Belos causes great amusement; and Miss Maud Garth as Edessa plays with care.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, The Castleford Queen's Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson.—Heading the bill here are the Bellong Bros., who perform feats as equilibrists on cycles. George Madigan's dogs go successfully through various tricks; A Society Sinner is effectively interpreted by the Forestiers; another welcome turn is given by the Esdale Bros.; Lilian Harvey sings descriptive and chorus songs; Tony, Hoppit, and Terry in an amusing comedy act The Coster's Derby Day are smart acrobats; Tom E. Roma is well to the fore as a comedian; and Wagner and Ward, in a vocal scena, The Blacksmith's Daughter, display considerable ability.

CHATHAM. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Smith is presented here, with Miss Jessica Thorne delighting all in the title-rôle. Mr. Montague Love gives a capital interpretation of Tom Freeman; Mr. Vivian Gilbert is admirably suited as Algie Peppercorn; Mr. Cecil Brooking does well as Mr. Dallas Baker; Miss Kathleen Collier is effective as Emily Chapman; and Miss Eleanor Delaporte is deservedly applauded for her able representation of Mrs. Dallas Baker. The piece is admirably staged.

Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Richard Braatz's canine actors make a hit with the dog drama, The Burglar's Fate. Martin and Gorney are excellent dancers; Baby Wolff adds to her admirers; Les Valdos amuse with their scena, The Eccentric Motor-Busmen; Sid Bandon scores with his chorus song. Edna Deno, comedienne, also appears. Burt Shepard was announced, but owing to indisposition his place is taken by the Mysterious Mystics.

CHELTENHAM.—Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company in The King of Cadonia had an enthusiastic reception on Monday. Mr. Bertram Wallis as the quixotic King has a distinguished and gallant bearing, and sings agreeably; Misses Alice Moffatt as the Princess is irresistible; and Mr. Arthur Staples as the nervous heir-presumptive is deliciously humorous. Mr. Alfred Clarke is exceedingly funny as Bran, with him being associated Miss Joan Penrose, the lively soubrette of the piece; Mr. Lawrence Robbins as Captain Laski and Miss Amy Preston as Stephanie are a pleasing pair; Mr. Robert Selby acts with due point as General Bonski; Mr. Alec Buchanan is a comical ducal secretary; Mr. C. B. Williams an effective Chief Conspirator; and Miss Queenie Preston a dignified Duchess. Mr. Julian Rutt is the able director of the large chorus and augmented orchestra.

Poole's Picture Palace.—Manager, Mr. E. B. Shenton.—The Flying Winskills give a thrilling performance on the trapeze; M. Jules Charmette gives evidence of his skill on the 'cello and sings comic songs capitally in French; and Fallows and Beaumont give a good comedy duo turn. The pictures are excellent.

Gillsmith's Electric Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Cecil Gill-Smith.—The move from the Winter Garden to new premises has not affected the popularity of this place of amusement. John Story is an excellent character impersonator; and Miss May Harper does well in illustrated songs.

CHESTER. — Royalty Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—George Dance's principal company, in Miss Hook of Holland is this week's attraction. Mr. Alfred Wellesley is a droll Hook; Mr. Mansell Stringer sings and acts well in the part of the Bandmaster; and the Schnapps of Mr. Chas. Ross is a praiseworthy performance; Captain Paap is well acted by Mr. A. Wood Mansey; and so is the Lieutenant de Coop of Mr. Lacey Mills; Mr. Harry Brayne is a mirth-provoking Slinks; Miss Maud Denny as Mina proves herself a capable actress; and Miss Nan Stuart, in the title-rôle, is the personification of grace and vivacity.

CHORLEY (Lancs).—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar Dereve.—A refined and acceptable variety company occupies these boards this week. The principal "turn" is Gates' Burlesque Band, an exceptionally fine and numerous company of musicians; the Whitworths are clever cyclists; Zaida presents a smart slack-wire turn; "Pongrila" gives a capital acrobatic performance; the Belmonts are smart dancers; and included in the strong bill are Arthur Milton, comedian; Violet Beatrice, comedienne and dancer; and the Matt Wilkinson Trio in a sketch.

CHORLTON-CUM-HARDY. — Theatre and Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, The Choriton Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Stott.—The pictures here maintain their high standard of excellence.

CLYDEBANK.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickhard; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Mitchell.—The Rowantrees (Bert and Edna), on a return visit, are well received; Rowan and Moore cause roars of merriment; Mlle. Bartinelli is a graceful contortionist; Carl Bennice is a successful singing ventriloquist; and excellent pictures are shown.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company, in Married to the Wrong Man, opened to a full house on Monday. Mr. Henry Lonsdale played the manly rôle of Jack Gladwin with great power; Miss Mary Pemberton, in the pitiful part of Ruth, was a great success; the despicable Captain Deering and Skinner were capably portrayed by Mr. Geo. Arthur and Mr. Leonard Thackeray respectively; Miss Clara Milvain looked charming and acted well as Rose; Mr. Walter Pemberton was capital as Sergeant Manners; and the large number of minor parts were suitably allotted.

HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Co-operative Varieties, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Leo King.—Jordan and Harvey, Hebrew impersonators, are the top line, and their show compels hilarity; Billy Keene and Jessie Adams, versatile entertainers, present a really artistic show; the Two Brilliants are expert xylophonists; Staffo, comedy talking juggler, is smart; Sylvene and Florence are good; E. W. Selman, comedian; Madie Burker, comedienne; and excellent films complete the bill.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarsance.—Maurin's Fountains are a beautiful exhibition; the Sisters Volbeque, in comedy act, score a success; Graham and Barron, dancers, &c., prove amusing; and George and Lilian do well as musical entertainers. Excellent films are shown.

DALY'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. J. Cottrell; General-Manager, Mr. W. D. Murray.—Good varieties fill the bill here, including the Bijou Juveniles, with songs and dances; and Preston Holmes, who submits a pleasing musical turn. Up-to-date pictures conclude.

NEW TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, The New Town Hall Co., Ltd.; Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Campbell.—Countess Bekoffska, lightning painter, holds premier place here, and other good turns include Hal and Lal, ventriloquists, and St. Vincent Ellesmere, baritone singer, Burly Bill and Cowboy Stratagem are two fine pictures.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's principal company, in The Naked Truth, is here this week. Mr. Stanley Logan as Bunny submitted an interpretation which received general approbation; Miss Kathleen Maude as Norah Creighton evinced sympathy and refinement; Miss Violet Ley as Mrs. Hayter played with fervour and conviction; Mr. Townsend Whiting as the touchy old uncle was capital; and the Mr. Hayter of Mr. Beasley Beltram fitted well into the picture. The piece was preceded by a comedietta, Protecting Mrs. Moxon.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Manager, Mr. Thos. F. O'Brien.—Charles R. Whittle's capitally-rendered humorous songs have been greatly appreciated; Barrington is an accomplished pianist, and he is ably assisted by Miss Isobel Dickens, who introduces classical dances; Joe Cookson, in vocal and ventriloquial entertainment, is amusing; Clare and Pastor, comedy and speciality artists, gain applause; Mlle. Tina, gymnast, gives a daring and clever turn; Dalvere and Wallace, in comedy act, entitled By the Sideboard, receive an ovation; Ada and Gert, juvenile duettists and dancers, and Beattie Sullivan, dainty comedienne, are pleasing; and the Palascope pictures capital.

COVENTRY. — THE OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Messrs. W. N. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company is here with Her Love Against the World. Mr. Fred Emery takes the leading rôle, that of Eric Earl of Strathmore, with ability; Mr. Ray Fortescue takes the character of Prince Ulric in a capable manner; Mr. W. H. Hallatt is an excellent Prince Othmar; and Miss Ellen Snow as Iris, Princess of Idalia, wins much favour.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—At the top of the bill is Tubby Edlin in The Cowboy Millionaire, a musical comedy in miniature. The music is extremely good. A good turn is provided by Carl Lynn, the wonderful animal mimic; Miss Winifred Ward (the immaculate boy) sings some clever and catchy songs; the Jannitos Troupe perform wonderful acrobatic feats; and other good turns are provided by Rolando Martin, an amusing waiter, the Lyric Mummers in a vocal and comedy speciality, Polo and Florence, herculean equilibrists, and Marie Blythe, contralto singer.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Manageress, Miss Davidson.—Mr. G. E. Gilmour's company is here with My Irish Molly. Mr. St. John Medley proves himself a capable actor in the part of Denis; a good character study of Father McGuire is given by Mr. Kenyon Gray; as Billy Glim Mr. Karl Edwards proves himself a genuine comedian; Miss May Warden makes a charming and graceful Molly; Miss Irene Carrington is to be commended for a capital impersonation of Lady Blanche; Miss Yoonie Lang provides a lively bit of acting as Kathleen; and Miss Carlton also does well. The staging and scenic effects are excellent.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Wood; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is appearing here in Don, in which Miss Hutchison is very successful in the rôle of Mrs. Bonington; Miss Celia Gordon is satisfactory as Mrs. Sinclair; Miss Viola Garland makes a charming Ann Sinclair; Miss Violet Harley gives an accomplished performance as Elizabeth Thompsett; and Miss Dorothy Gordon is adequate as Fanny. Mr. Arthur Willoughby gives a good rendering of Canon Bonington; Mr. Gordon Bailey is equal to the responsibilities of the rôle of Stephen Bonington; Mr. Charles Tyrel is capital as General Sinclair; and Mr. Charles Harley acts with force as Albert Thompsett. The first piece is Chalk and Cheese, admirably enacted by Mr. Lionel Bevans (Walter Raymond), Miss Viola Garland (Sybil Raymond), and Miss Mamie Mathews (Perkins).

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Mr. William Mollison's company is well received here in the powerful dramatic sketch, The Touch of the Child. G. H. Elliott, chocolate-coloured coon, brings down the house with his artistic methods; the Eight College Girls sing and dance capitally; Osborn and Brookes are an interesting musical comedy duo; the Seven Bramusas are remarkably good in musical act; Charles Norton is refreshing in monologue, Pro's at the Races; O'Malley and Brown submit an amusing comedy turn; Phil Parsons, comedian, is commendable; the Oakes Duo are very droll; Lena Wylie has a nice soprano voice; Madge Brownie is a pleasing comedy artist; and the bioscope pictures conclude.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—A decided sensation is being caused here by the important engagement of Mr. Raymond Phillips with his airship under wireless control. The turn is unique and entertaining. Miss Adrienne Augarde, assisted by Victor G. Huntley, is frolicsome and entrancing in duologue, Dick's Sister; Campbell and Barber give a marvellous cycle act; Clara Coverdale's Nine Dainty Dots deserve unstinted praise for a neat show, The Gipsies' Revels; Tom Jones is an amusing Welsh comedian; Les Romanis give a novel and brilliant musical act; Fred Lincoln is a funny comedian; Florence Dudley is a well-dressed burlesque artist; Horace Wheatley is a sterling Irish comedian; and the American Bioscope pictures interesting.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Messrs. Polini and Melford's company in The Silver King is drawing full houses here. Mr. Arthur Rooke gives a manly and earnest impression of Wilfred Denver; Miss Mildred Murray is a winning Nellie Denver; Mr. Edward J. George as Daniel Jaikes fills the part naturally; Mr. L. St. George Lowther's impersonation of the Spider is excellent; Mr. Ralph Leon shows to advantage as Henry Corket; Mr. Albert Bernard as Elijah Coombe does good work; and Mr. W. Leslie Ellis is excellent as Samuel Baxter. The piece is well staged.

PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Nicholls.—Two large houses on Monday night were strong in appreciation of a good programme, headed by Consul, the almost man monkey, a wonderful performance. Jack Pleasants got a good reception on his return visit; Benn's Dutch Boys and Girls go well; Amandus is a clever mimic; Bernard and Weston are good in song and dance; and other artists include Mlle. Rosina, instrumentalist, Sewell and Dudley, and the Bioscope.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Manager, Mr. J. Bollen.—In addition to the latest films on the Bioscope, Stave, the Indian eccentric artist, is applauded for his performance in mystery, mirth, and music.

ALBERT HALL.—Lessee, Mr. H. Holden; Manager, Mr. J. Morris.—Wyllie, the musical tramp, tops the bill; Brothers Drugan, duettists, are successful; and Gertie Macdonald is well received in her sketch The Jolly Dutch Girl and a Piano. Up-to-date pictures are shown.

PUBLIC HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson and Co.; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson.—The Days (Florence and Frederick) give an interesting exhibition of telepathy; Tim Carlisle is a versatile comedian; and Baby Myrtle Grove sings and dances well.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—An excellent top-line turn is T. Elder Hearn, with a quick-change sketch and highly amusing juggling act. He also produces a sketch depicting low life in Paris, in which he is capably assisted by a good company. The Royal Banzai Family of Japanese entertainers, who foot the bill, introduce some new business; an amusing domestic farce entitled My Friend the Enemy is very effectively produced by Edgar Forest and company; the Three Romas are to be congratulated upon their gladiatorial display, which includes some good feats of strength; Sam Redfern, the black philosopher, is very amusing, and makes as favourable an impression as ever; Little Sophie is a clever juvenile character impersonator; and the Bros. Carney are praiseworthy vocal comedians. The Bioscope concludes an excellent programme.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Moyes.—What a Man Made Her is being presented by Miss Glendower and company. Miss Glendower is entirely successful as Jane McAllister; Mr. Phil Harper gives a manly rendering of Mark Haven; Miss Beatrice Shirley and Mr. W. J. Butler are to be complimented upon their assumptions of the rôles of Lady Thora and Roger Danescombe. The other characters are all cleverly accounted for, and the play is well staged and dressed.

ROYAL DRILL HALL.—The Royal Italian Circus opened here on Monday to a crowded house. Signors Volpi, Cembrani, and Trufelli introduce various groups of animals, whose performances give evidence of long and careful training; an excellent trio of clowns, viz., Dan Gregory, Bishop, and Winkles, create any amount of merriment.

VICTORIA ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Proprietors, United Electric Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. T. Studd.—A capital bill of fare is provided in the way of humorous and dramatic pictures, and the vaudeville element is well sustained. Sidney Leighton, in song and sketch at the piano, keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Miss Marie Beresford, costume comedienne, delights with selections from musical comedy; and Frank L. Hearnshaw proves a pleasing tenor vocalist.

MIDLAND ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—The programme here is well up to the mark, and the pictures are agreeably assorted, kinemacolour studies being the foremost feature.

SPOT CINEMA THEATRE.—The excellent films here draw good houses.

DEVONPORT.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. G. Prance.—Horace Hunter's company, in an excellent dramatic tabloid entitled Under Suspicion, is the big letter turn for the week. The Harlequinaders are an admirable sextette of vocalists; Captain Roberts blends some wonderful feats of strength with indisputable musical ability; Harry Champion comes in for a first-rate reception; Diamond and Miss Beatrice provide a high-class musical number; Nellie Farrell entertains with some tuneful Irish songs and pretty dances; and Jean Wallace is a first-rate eccentric dancer.

METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Miss Hilda Beverley's company in A Woman of Two Lives is responsible for some exciting work, which is eagerly followed by large audiences; Miss Beverley cleverly undertakes the rôle of Ogarita and Cingela Fenton; and Miss Mary Brommer works hard as Drampardi Larcs. The other principals are Messrs. James Jarrett, Herbert Pearson, J. Armitage, and Miss Hetty Schular.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr. Frank Bertram and company occupy the boards here in the drama The Sailor's Wedding. Mr. Stanley Harrison as the hero, Gordon Drake, gives a highly-finished rendition; Mr. Cecil Klein is to be congratulated on his portrayal of Sir Victor Lascelles; as Mary Miss Madge Monte is successful; Miss Olive Warne plays Lenora de Gresac in an effective manner; Mr. J. H. Darnley as the villain, Giovanni Ferici, is capital; Mr. Alfred Fisher (Count Bellini) and Mr. Alfred Holles (Gracomo Ferrar) well sustain their parts; and Mr. Frank Bertram and Miss E. Giddens as Jack Hawkins and Polly Clarke introduce some excellent comedy.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler; Musical-Director, Mr. E. G. Summerfield.—At the head here is Boswell's Stage Circus; much laughter is evoked by the funniosities of the Columbia Comedy Trio; Shirley and Ransome, in a sketch, Jim's Pal, have a flattering reception; the Kebbles, in a smart singing and dancing act, win hearty recognition; the Ted Curtis Trio submit a pleasing vocal and dancing scena; the Gilberts prove themselves accomplished artists on the tight wire; and success also attends Reski and Reski, comedy gymnasts and Nella Peers, a good singer. There is the usual display of pictures.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager and Proprietor, Mr. George Weldon; Stage-Manager, Mr. P. Hogg.—George Hyam's humorous patter keeps the house in continuous laughter; the Tymes, in a novel song-scena, The Enchanted Clock, are deservedly applauded; Lillie Le Main submits some clever impersonations; and the Delroys are well received for excellent coon singing, so also is Nellie Rose, a dainty comedienne and dancer.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The Dairymaids had a cordial reception here on Monday. Miss Margaret Carter's assumption of Lady Brudenell was an artistic performance; Mr. Donald Price-Evans made a dashing and smart Lieutenant; Mr. Algernon W. Lee did well as Frank Meredith; Dr. O'Bryne was genially played by Mr. Bernard Vaughan; and the Tim Capus of Mr. Paul Smythe was humorous.

DUBLIN. — QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—King of the Wild West is drawing capital houses. Young Buffalo gives a forcible representation of the title-part; and Miss Caroline Mary Blayney supplies a clever portrayal of Wild Nell. Mr. George W. Cockburn successfully enacts John Bluffington; and Miss Agnes McCarthy makes a bright and attractive Kate. Mr. Edwin J. Collins does excellent work as Jack Morton; and Miss Lucy Murray is highly amusing as Mrs. Miles. Mr. Edmund Rich is admirably placed as Judge Gritt.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's New East Lynne company occupies the boards. Miss Violet Ellicott displays conspicuous ability in the dual rôle of Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine; and Mr. Frederick Victor gives a capital delineation of Archibald Carlyle. The part of Francis Levison has a fine exponent in Mr. Charles Levey; and Miss Sophy Shefton gives an acceptable reading of Cornelia Carlyle. Mr. James Cole does full justice to the part of Lord Mountsevern; Miss Alice Dorie makes an effective Barbara Hare; Mr. Paddy Dupres acts with much humour as Murty O'Flynn; and Miss Dorothy Douglas is particularly good as Willie Carlyle. Justice Hare has a good representative in Mr. George Bishop; and Mr. Byron Douglas is really excellent as Richard Hare.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Smith, presented for the first time here by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's excellent company, is being greatly enjoyed. Mr. Robert Minster fills the rôle of Tom Freeman in a highly commendable manner; and Miss Cicely Stuckey as Smith acquits herself creditably. Mr. F. G. Thurstans achieves success as Mr. Dallas Baker; and Miss Pauline Strauss depicts the part of Emily Chapman in admirable style. Algy Peppercorn is cleverly sustained by Mr. Douglas Greet; and Miss Ethel Hodgkins is acceptable as Mrs. Dallas Baker. Mr. George Gamble is a satisfactory Fletcher; and Miss Ethel Wellesley is seen to advantage as Mrs. Otto Rosenberg.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Harry Ford, "the interrogative one," is starring here; Drew and Alders, "Coastguardsmen," are very quaint; Miss Gladys Hooley's violin selections are warmly applauded; Ike Scott and Son are diverting comedians; Miss Kathleen McShane, comedienne and dancer, meets with a good reception; Charles Robinson is a clever and entertaining vocal comedian; Rose Sylvester, a pleasing comedienne and dancer, has many admirers; Jock Mills is a humorous Scotch comedian; and Ford Williamson an effective baritone singer. The pictures are very good.

TIVOLI. — General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Athas and Collins top the bill here, and meet with a cordial reception. The Three Stewarts submit a marvellous gymnastic performance; Barnard's Mannikins, presenting The Coons' Revelry, provide an amusing turn; Leo and Roland are remarkably clever equilibrists. Also in the bill are the Sarony Sisters, comediennes and wooden-shoe dancers; Phil Kaufman, "the new coon"; Madge Osmond, the ideal dandy; Harry Bickley, eccentric comedian; Leah Arden, operatic and chorus vocalist; and the Bioscope.

WORLD'S FAIR, WAXWORKS, AND VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sprengel Brothers.—Bell and Dernay are a clever pair of comedy duettists; Lieut. Uniquem is an excellent ventriloquist; and Miss Genie Glen a dainty comedienne. Miss Allie Fittoni, banjo queen, and Max Welton, comedian, also appear with success.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Lewis Gilbert and company are here this week in A Daughter of the Sea. Mr. Gilbert as actor-author played old Mark Glensdale with skill and force; Miss Florrie Green is pretty and pathetic in the part of Sunshine; Mr. H. C. Lanceley acts in manly style as Captain Ben Morrison; the comedy element is well sustained by Miss Allyce Williams as Mollie and Mr. Joe Monkhouse as Billy; Ken Morland is effectively rendered by Mr. Paul Neville.

EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Colin.—The following artists are appearing here this week: The Australian Bush Boys, in a song scena; Three Comedy Chanters, vocalists and instrumentalists; Bert Ward, whistling comedian; Whylie Fox, clever animal mimic; Harry Keeble, modern ventriloquist; Sisters Beckstein, duettists and dancers; and Gladys Wills, Yorkshire contralto. The Empire pictures complete.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. Hall Caine's new play The Bishop's Son was presented here on Monday. Mr. Derwent Hall Caine realises capitally the character of Dan Mylrea; a sweet and sympathetic Mona is found in Miss Helena Millais, who rises grandly to the pathetic situations of the play; Mr. Creagh Henry plays the Bishop with quiet dignity; Mr. Julian Cross's impersonation of the Deemster is full of passion; Mr. Norman Carn does well as Ewan Mylrea; Davy Fayle is amusingly and energetically played by Mr. George Mudie; Mr. E. W. Thomas presents a diverting study of Hommy-beg; Miss Agnes Knights is a commendable Kerry; and Father Dalby is admirably performed by Mr. Herbert Winton. The Eternal Question was staged the latter half of week.

KING'S THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Pride of place here is occupied by Florrie Forde, who is accorded a reception reserved for favourites, and her success is greater than ever, her new numbers completely bringing down the house. A fine dramatic sketch, The Cattle Thief, presented by George A. Street and Co., proves of absorbing interest; Clarke and Mostol elicit applause for their well-worked turn; the Rangers contribute a really clever and amusing trick cycle interlude; the Eight Frolics sing and dance themselves into favour; Fred Dunstone is versatile; Earle and Godfrey are bright and cheery; Cambo and Castelle, in a musical and acrobatic act, are decidedly smart; and pictures by Jury's Bioscope complete.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Edmund Tearle and Kate Clinton's company is fulfilling a week's engagement here this week. On Monday night The Merchant of Venice was produced, Mr. Tearle giving an admirable portrayal of Shylock. Miss Clinton appeared as Portia, and acquitted herself with credit; Mr. Edmund Grogan was a capital Duke of Venice; Mr. Ernest Lodge played the part of Antonio well; Mr. Bernhardt Turner gave a good performance as Bassanio; Messrs. Fawcett Lomax as Launcelot Gobbo and Samuel Seldet as Old Gobbo, Miss Mary Campbell as Nerissa, and Miss Ray Parry as Jessica gave able support; and the other parts were in equally good hands. Jeanie Deans, East Lynne, Macbeth, and The Octoroon completes the week's répertoire.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—On Monday Mr. F. Anstey's new comedy Vice-Versâ, founded by the author on his well-known book of the same name, was produced here with every sign of success, and repeated on Tuesday. The clever company was "called" many times during the evening, and in response to persistent cries for the author, Mr. Anstey bowed his acknowledgments from the stage. For Wednesday and the remainder of the week Mr. Arthur Hardy's company was billed to appear in The Man from Blankley's.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Fred Melville's company appeared here the first three evenings of the week in The Bad Girl of the Family. In the title-rôle Miss Violet Crossley, aided by a handsome presence and alluring charm, made Bess Moore a real and appealing character; Miss Dulcie O'Mull Conry was a capital foil as the hard-hearted sister, Honour Moore; Miss Daisy Cooke was a dainty and hard-working Gladys Erskine; Miss M. Green was a bright, vivacious Sally Smith; and Miss Saidie Southern gave good help as Mrs. Moore. Mr. Richard Lane was an earnest and manly Richard Marsh; Mr. Alexander Bradley did capable and individual work as Harry Gordon; Mr. James C. Taylor's impersonation of Lord Erskine was marked by refinement and dignity; Mr. Luke Forster gave an excellent character-study as the Jew, Barney Gordon; clever comedy work was done by Mr. Tom May as Sammy Snozzle; and Mr. George Belmore was a distinct success as Jerry.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. F. Woodward.—Heading the bill here is Mr. Willie Benn's company, which appears very successfully in a well-staged sketch, The New King. Miss Florence Cameron is a refined coloured Princess Kiorra, and sings with fine voice and effect; Mr. Alf. Donohue as Willie Pink is a clever comedian; and Mr. C. Maynard Brown is excellent as the Prime Minister of the island. The Martialo Trio of jugglers do smart, clever, and novel work; Miss Flo Cecil is a charming vocalist; the Arthur Lloyd Trio cause much fun with the sketch Little Charlie; Mr. Tom Clifford is an expert ventriloquist; Slow and Sure are funny acrobats and wrestlers; Essman is a very capable juggler; and Miss Neil Drury sings and dances well.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Mr. Lawrence Brough is here in The Cruise of the Saucy Sally. In the character of Herbert Jocelyn Mr. Brough acts throughout with verve and animation; he is well supported by Mr. Alfred Hemming as Jack Buncombe and Mr. Paul Wynter as Evan Evans; Mr. A. J. Murray as Ulysses Jeffson is all that can be desired; Miss Olga Esmo as Rosie Jocelyn is charming and graceful; and Miss Bessie Harrison as Mrs. Lambert is to be complimented on her capital impersonation.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr Geo. T. Minshull.—Mr. Jas. Welch and company are here this week with When Knights Were Bold. Mr. Welch's impersonation of Sir Guy De Vere remains an exceedingly clever and humorous performance; Miss Audrey Ford plays the part of Lady Rowena with elaborate romantic effect; and admirable work is contributed by Mr. Arthur Grenville. Mr. Guy Lane gives an excellent sketch of the Rev. Peter Pottleberry; and the remaining members of the cast, including Mr. Cecil Kinnaird, make the most of their parts. The piece is capitally mounted, and on Monday the actors had an enthusiastic reception, Mr. Welch being forced to acknowledge the appreciative applause in a short speech.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. Harold V. Neilson and company are here in The House Opposite. Mr. Neilson as Henry Rivers acts with much ability; Mr. Dickson Moffat, a clever comedian, is genuinely good in the character of Sir Edward Harrowby; and excellent performances are given by Mr. Lemmon Warde, Miss Dorothy Blackadder, and Miss Effie Leigh Hunt. Miss Amy Sangster's acting of the Hon. Mrs. Rivers is distinguished by sincerity, grace, and emotional expression. The play is preceded by Six and Eightpence.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The Brothers Egbert, happier and more mirth-provoking than ever in their sketch The Happy Dustman, head an excellent bill. Arden and Abel draw forth hearty applause and laughter by their clever acting in Three of a Kind; Webb and Branston approve themselves expressive singers in a selection of tuneful duets; Miss Edie Veno is a bright comedienne; and the Francoli Troupe give an excellent pantomimic and acrobatic sketch, The Billposter and the Terrible Children. The Six Manchester Lads submit an exhilarating exhibition of clog dancing; and other artists include Miss Kitty Fields, comedienne; Sam Kelly, Scotch comedian; and Seigel and Fields, vocal and instrumental entertainers.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Sammy Shields, the Scottish comedian, is greatly popular; Leo Stormont sings in entertaining fashion; and another Caledonian artist appeared with much success in the person of Dan Fraser. Alice Pierce gave remarkable imitations of favourite artists; and a good deal was made by Frank Danby and J. C. Piddock of a musical sketch entitled Cupid's Arms. The Manchester Mites danced smartly in an acceptable scena; Staley's Company effected a transformation from a cooperage to a drawing-room very expeditiously; the Bollingers presented their unique rag-painting act; Ugo Nap contributed a bright bit of comedy; Mike Nono was acceptable in his cowboy song and dance; and some very amusing pictures were shown on the American bioscope.

ELLESMERE PORT.—HIPPODROME AND PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Corelli and Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Corelli.—The comedy speciality act presented by the Cedrics tops the bill; Vela, the tramp on the clothes line, is entertaining; Doris Snowden sings in good style, and her dances are highly appreciated; Spry and Bentley, in their comedy sketch, attain well-earned popularity; and the remainder of the programme is taken up with interesting pictures.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—A crowded house welcomed Mr. Harry P. Towers' company on Monday, when Dear Little Denmark was presented. Miss Thelma Raye was a charming heroine, delightful in both her singing and acting; Mr. Tom Payne proved himself a smart comedian, and his fooling as Hans Hansen was very clever; Mr. Edward Thirlby as the eccentric Duke furnished a genuine character sketch; Miss Volt's Ophelia was a marked success; Mr. Cameron Carr's singing as Conrad was a musical treat; and Mr. George W. Ruff was smart and clever as Jonas Jenson.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—A popular attraction is the appearance of Reano's famous band of twenty-nine performers—the principal has the well-deserved distinction of being designated "the modern Svengali," and enjoyed an enthusiastic reception, due not only to the personality of the conductor, but also to the merits of the musicians. Other contributors to the bill are Mark Leslie, a clever coon artist and eccentric dancer; Irene and Morton, in a high-class comedy duo; Gus Harris, in his latest dramatic creations; Cummin and Seaham, smart and humorous acrobatic comedians; the Three Aza Boys, in their graceful singing and dancing act; and the Schmettans, in their extraordinary feats of equilibrium.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company with A Royal Divorce, which is admirably presented, both in staging and acting. Mr. Frank Bradley gives a dignified and impressive rendering of Napoleon, and the Empress Josephine of Miss Edith Cole leaves nothing to be desired in lofty conception and artistic finish. The other prominent parts are capably filled by Mr. Geo. Traill (Talleyrand), Mr. Charles Hartopp (Marquis de Beaumont), Mr. Ernest Plumpton (General Augerau), Mr. Thomas Barry (Marshal Murat), Mr. Geo. Hudson (Grimaud), Miss Winnie Tempest (Marie Louise), Miss Dorothy Garth (Stephanie de Beauharnais), and Miss Dorothy Hudson (the Little King of Rome). Good houses have been the rule.

FERNDALE.—NEW THEATRE.—Business-Manager, Mr. David Williams; Secretary, Mr. William James.—Occupying the boards for the first half of this week are Mr. W. J. Churchill's Happy Valley Minstrels, an exceptionally good troupe. The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, by Miss Inez Howard's company, is billed to appear the latter end of the week.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mrs. Lewis Waller's company in A Midnight Visitor and The Admiral's Lady is proving a strong attraction here. In the former play Mrs. Waller gives a delightful rendition of Margot; while Miss Josephine Colona is responsible for a clever study of Lucille de Voisel. Mr. Malcolm Cockerall is the possessor of a rich baritone voice; the Misses Aileen and Doris Woods are talented duettists; and Mr. Maurice Farkoa scores a success in new songs.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fredk. J. Reece.—Messrs. Fox and Leonard's company appeared here for three nights this week in Greed of Gold. Miss Mabel Phillips was an excellent Dora Hood; Mr. Warden showed himself a good character-actor in the part of Harry Hood; and Mr. B. M. Fox well sustained the part of the dumb man, Tom Wellstead.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Local Manager and Licensee, Mr. Sydney B. Stringer.—Miss Leonie de Lausanne, a champion rifle shot, is providing an engrossing turn; Frank Seeley is immensely amusing; Ernest Montefiore and his company once more present the dramatic episode The Little Colonel to an appreciative audience; Violet Romaine renders two ballads in charming manner; the ever-welcome Jimmy Danvers and Eva Rosslyn score again with the vocal absurdity A Pantomime Boy; Alice Beanford is an engaging soprano; Hattie Petro and Pete Leon score with a trapeze act; and the Kingscope depicts a dramatic episode.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. F. Douthwaite.—Mr. Stuart Lomath's company in Whom God Hath Joined provided the fare here. Mr. Lomath ably impersonates Jack Merritt, Mr. George Edwin Clive is an excellent Major Stevens, Digby Trant has an able exponent in Mr. Oswald Douglas, Mr. Frank Orchard is seen to advantage as Richard Manley, the comedy element is well sustained by Mr. Victor H. Crawford in the part of Watty Copper, Miss Mary Ainslie charmingly portrays Marian Merritt, Beatrice Trant is well impersonated by Miss Ambe Wyville, and the part of Kitty Crumpet affords Miss Daisy Stone an opportunity of showing ability.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and G. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Humphreys.—We are again enjoying the amusing situations of Charley's Aunt, as presented by Mr. Brandon Thomas's company. Mr. Evelyn Beerbohm as Lord Fancourt Babberley plays the part of the masquerading aunt with much humour; Mr. Sydney Compton as the fatuous Stephen Spettigue is very good; and Mr. Mr. C. F. Collings is a soldierly Sir Francis Chesney. Mr. Francis Drake is successful as Jack Chesney, as is Mr. Cecil Kerr in the rôle of Charles Wykeham; Miss Helen Palgrave realises Donna Lucia to the life; and the three girls are ingenuously and charmingly portrayed by Misses Bertha Northam, Gladys Storey, and Ruth Henton. Mr.

E. Christopher makes the most of Brassett. The comedy is preceded by The Lancashire Sailor.

KING'S.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—Mr. Gaston Mayer's company is presenting The Brass Bottle, and the hearty laughter of the huge audience is ample evidence of the success of the company. Mr. Holman Clark as the genie Fakrash acts with excellent effect, and his make-up is extremely good; Mr. Percy Marshall as Professor Futvoye is also well suited; and his wife and daughter are ably played by Misses Edith Hunter and Marjorie Chard. Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., as Horace Ventimore acts with much humour; Miss Mary Brough infuses a deal of rich humour into the part of the landlady, Mrs. Rapkin; and her bibulous husband is ably acted by Mr. Charles Barrett. Mr. Rudge Harding as the solemn Pringle and Mr. Robert Ayrton as a wealthy auctioneer also help the fun along. The stage effects are well arranged and cleverly managed.

ROYALTY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Wareing; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Humphreys.—The repertory company is appearing in The Two Mr. Wetherbys, the quiet humour of which is much enjoyed. Mr. Campbell Gullan as the "good" James Wetherby gives a finished and clever characterisation; and in fine contrast is the breezy acting of Mr. Norman McKeown as the "bad" Richard Wetherby. Miss Winifred Gunn acts with much charm as the wife of the first; and Miss Muriel Pope as Constantia, the strict and severe spouse of the second, infused a touch of grim humour into the part. Miss Gwynneth Galton as an old invalid and Mr. Perceval Clark as a young man with a mania for collecting funds for missions give clever touches of character; Miss Eve Tithoradge as Jane completes a clever cast. The play is preceded by that grim little tragedy Jean, excellently acted by Messrs. Campbell Gullan and Walter Roy.

GRAND. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—The Grand Répertoire Company, under the direction of Mr. Alex. Keith, is presenting a farce entitled Found in a Four-wheeler. Mr. Keith keeps his audiences in a continuous roar of laughter by his representation of Joe Capsize. Mr. David Stewart is a good tenor vocalist. The pictures are still a remarkable attraction.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey provide a capital night's amusement with Rollicking Rory. In the part of Rory O'Donohoe Mr. Mackey keeps the house in a constant ripple of laughter; and in the rôle of Rosie Miss May Livesey is bright and attractive. The parts of D'Arcy and Captain Ashleigh are well filled by Mr. Fred Charles and Mr. Charles M. Julian respectively; the thankless part of Shaun Brady is ably undertaken by Mr. Morley Carroll; Mr. J. P. McBride gives a fine representation of Fitzgerald; good character acting is seen in the Sergeant Callagan of Mr. Conway Hastings and in the Widow Callagan of Miss Jeanette Lyons; the parts of Mrs. Ashleigh and Queen of the Fairies are cleverly doubled by Miss Nellie de Lacy, the Rosalun of Mrs. Chalmers Mackey being also a good performance. Mr. Mackey took a benefit on Friday evening, when Arrah-Na-Pogue was played.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company, in Driven from Home, has had a cordial reception. Mr. Felix Pitt makes an excellent Anthony Raybrook; Mr. P. George Beresford acts well as Walter Hatherleigh; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes ably portrays the scheming Geoffrey Waring; Miss Emily Burnby acts with much vigour as Barbara Ashdown; Miss Violet Forbes is a sweet and engaging Laura Raybrook.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The Face at the Window receives capable treatment in the hands of Messrs. F. Marriott Watson and James Ussher's talented company. As Paul Gouffet Mr. T. W. Duncombe gives a clever portrayal; as the Chevalier Lucio Delgado Mr. W. Haughton Macaulay's representation of the calculating villain is very convincing; Mr. James Chippendale gives a clever conception of Le Blanc, the mad doctor; while as Henri de Brisson Mr. James Weston acts the haughty aristocrat with marked success. As Marie Brisson Miss Constance Glenaubyn gives a charming and effective representation; Mr. John A. Stimson as Peter Pottleberry and Miss Frances Day as Babette are responsible for much humour; Lucien Certier, M. Vernet, and Jean Barbelon are in the capable hands of Messrs. Richard Oliver, T. Johnson, and W. Marriott respectively. The drama is excellently staged.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—The top of the bill is allotted to Miss Gertie Gitana, the accomplished comedienne, who is a great attraction, and the audience on the opening night was large and appreciative. She sang four songs, and was repeatedly recalled. Another artistic and amusing contribution is that of Tom Edwards, the ventriloquial huntsman; Katie Butler is a clever comedy artist; and the dramatic sketch Blind, by Mr. Edmund Maurice's company, is a clever bit of acting. The other artists include Hans and Lux, comedians; Daunton-Shaw Troupe of trick cyclists; Three Belle Belles, comediennes and dancers; Harry Simms, light comedian; and Kitts and Windrum, in the military scena The Cuckoo.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest R. Foster.—Another excellent company here is headed by May Moore Duprez, who is a great favourite in Glasgow; Topsy Sinder, the clever dancer, again proves her sterling ability in several catchy songs and dances; Annie Hughes and company appear in a clever comedy sketch, Napoleon, introducing this excellent actress as Mme. Sans-Gene, in which she makes a pronounced hit; J. W. Rickaby as an eccentric comedian is in the front rank; Tom E. Hughes easily maintains his position as a comedian; Madge Temple sings several catchy chorus songs with fine effect; Odeyne Spark is another clever comedienne; and the Paxton Trio of head and hand balancers are wonderfully neat in all their feats.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—De Canty's illuminated water grotto, with its wonderful and ingenious lighting effects, occupies a leading place in the programme; the dancing of Billy French makes him a strong favourite; Rastus and Banks, the clever coloured duo, take well in their songs and dances; a smart acrobatic and knockabout turn is that of Talberto and Douglas; J. P. Ling's imitations are wonderfully good; Rose Cambey's three songs are heartily encored; Denard Bros., two clever juveniles, give a smart display of head and hand balancing; Sisters Gaye sing and dance with much dash and style; Flora Macdonald's Scotch turn is well received; and John Hall, Scotch comedian, ably fills the place of an absent turn.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. John M. Hay.—Mr. Wentworth Croke presents a tabloid version of East Lynne which meets with a capital reception, Miss Beth Elliott as Lady Isabel is worthy of mention for her realistic representation; as Sir Francis Levison Mr. Geo. R. Montford is admirable; Tom Clare sings a couple of catchy chorus songs; Geo. Goodfellow's and Jennie Gregson's comedy work is smart and breezy; Miss Alice Hollander, the Australian contralto, has a gratifying reception; Harold Montague and his Vagabond Players in their dancing and vocal efforts are alike good; Bugler Carr's work meets with appreciation; Stephens and Rennior are warmly received; the Channings are responsible for vocal and instrumental work of a refined character; the Sutcliffe family of Scottish acrobats, pipers, and dancers get through a lot of excellent work; and the Bioscope is up to the usual high standard.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—An attractive picture programme is presented here. Smart vaudeville turns are contributed by Nettie Hawthorne (comedienne and dancer) and Jock Carrells (Scotch comedian).

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Manager, Mr. W. Sinclair.—Ella Dean sings several songs in fine style; Bob Campbell proves a nimble one-legged comedian; Harry Bolden secures applause for his banjo playing; Lena Grant is a descriptive vocalist of ability; May Lawson, comedienne, is deserving of praise; and the Bioscope has an excellent series of pictures.

HENGLER'S.—Proprietor, Mr. A. Hengler; Manager, Mr. Harry Milne.—A first-class picture programme is provided. Madge Locke is a charming character impersonator; the Spiridion Trio, comic juggling specialists, are clever and amusing; and Oswald and Locke, burlesque artists, are much appreciated. The selections on the Auxelo-gramophone are also very good.

STAR, LTD. — Resident-Manager, Mr. George Chandos.—A first-class selection of films is again provided. Miss Dora Sefton is a clever song and dance artist; Miss Heather Belle is a vocalist of more than ordinary merit; and the Victor Brothers submit an excellent head and hand balancing performance.

ZOO AND CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock.—The joy wheel continues to provide unlimited excitement to participants and onlookers; the Prairie Girls are graceful and picturesque equestriennes; Comical Spuds dances on wooden stilts in a highly-amusing manner; the Two Walonells introduce comedy business into their performances on the triple bar; Miss Pinder's equestrian trick act is wonderfully clever, and Rabbit, the clown, accompanies her with sallies of wit; Mlle. Florence's combined globe-walking and juggling excite much admiration; the Janowsky Troupe are sensational acrobats; Mlle. Chloe and her cake-walking horse give entire satisfaction; Captain George's trained elephant and ponies show what educated animals can be made to do; Erneste Family are equestrians all quite at home on horseback; Funny Frisk's jokes keep the fun going merrily; and the strong youth, Abex, is still going strongly. The Bioscope winds up.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—At this theatre this week the boards were occupied by Mr. John F. Preston's répertoire company, and opened on Monday night with Jane Shore. Mr. John F. Preston ably portrayed the character of Richard, Duke of Gloucester; Mr. Alfred Wade well sustained the part of King Edward IV.; Miss Edith Leslie and Miss Ada Brett were good in the characters of the young princess; Mr. Walter Morton was an imposing Lord Chamberlain; Mr. Francis Everard an effective Matthew Shore; Mr. W. Howard Barlow a successful Matthew Yeast; Mr. John Richter is a fine Red Murdoch; Miss Lillie Pierce is a dignified and charming Queen of England; and Miss Mabelle F. Barlow an effective Jane Shore. For the remainder of the week The Man in the Iron Mask, Nell Gwynne, and Lady Godiva were performed.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. R. T. Roa.—Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Merry Widow is this week playing to good houses. Miss Dorothy Arliss as Sonia is a clever and pleasing artist; Mr. Robert Needham makes an excellent Prince Danilo; Baron Popoff is a comical personage in the hands of Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter; comedy is the forte of Mr. Harry Emeric as Nisch; Miss Mabel Hope is good as Natalie; the Vicomte de Jolidon is successfully enacted by Mr. Ronald Pomeroy; Miss Neste Laurel dances splendidly as Frou Frou; the Maxim Girls have able representatives in Mesdames Willis, Winnington, Steward, Bethell, and Allen; Mr. C. L. Steward is noticeable as Khadja, as is Mr. Clinton Reynald as the Waiter; and the remaining characters are in capable hands.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. Stewart.—Pathé's Animated Gazette is a capital idea and the other pictures are good. The varieties include Mr. George Prince, a favourite comedian; the Brothers Weyman, clever simultaneous dancers; the Dunvilles, refined musical act; and Miss Kitty Woodford, illustrated songster.

THEATRE DE LUXE.—Electric Theatres (1908), Ltd.—The lounge and tea rooms are a decided boon here, and this week the best pictures are The Axolotl and Among the Roses. The dramatic and comic pictures are well selected.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Hainsworth.—Good houses are the rule here. Witty and Wyse in comedy sketch keep the house in roars of laughter; the Sisters Volka are capital singers and dancers; Mr. Claude Boulby, light comedian, scores with his songs; Miss Connie Hicks is a charming comedienne; Miss Maud is a pleasing singer and dancer; Mr. Charles Orme, comedian, wins well-merited applause. The Monarch Pictures prove attractive.

GRAVESEND.—NEW PUBLIC HALL AND THEATRE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. R. Feaver Clarke.—Messrs Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's Miss Hook of Holland company, under the direction of Mr. Alan Adair, was here on Monday and Tuesday evenings. Mr. E. Russell's impersonation of Mr. Hook caused continual merriment; Mr. Vernon Booth as Capt. Paap sang well; the fine voice of Mr. Sam Lorkridge as the Bandmaster was heard to great advantage; the Slinks of Mr. Reginald Hunter was a capital performance; Mina was extremely well enacted by Miss Muff Carew; and as Miss Hook Miss Kathleen Starling charmed the audience with her delightful singing and acting. Other commendable performances were the Schnappe of Mr. Wilson Blake; the Hans Maas of Mr. Frank Smythe; the Gretchen of Miss Kitty Darnell; and the Old Market Woman of Miss Alice Sutton.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. G. Leslie.—The favourite comedienne, Lily Esplin, proves very diverting; Tom Connor, a quaint comedian, does well; Fred Bronte possesses a good voice; Morris and Marte are excellent comedians and dancers; La Valti, with her bevy of pretty girls in graceful dances, scores a success; Will Challiner is an ideal copper-coloured coon; At the Stroke of Twelve is excellently put on by Mrs. Royston Deane, and finds much favour. The Brascope has new films.

Cooke.—The dancing Melias give an appreciated vocal and song and dance speciality; the Voldras, with their canine novelty, do well; Phil Burt, talking comedian, Betsy and Hughes, in Cornered, and Laffan B. Jolly complete the varieties. The usual varied series of films are shown.

ILKLEY. — KING'S HALL.—Proprietors, the Urban District Council; Manager, Mr. Wardle S. Bellerby.—The Passing of the Third-Floor Back was played to a crowded house on the 4th inst. As the Stranger Mr. Hodgson Taylor greatly distinguished himself; Miss Jeannie Thomas as the landlady and Miss Katharine Morris as the slavey were the recipients of well-merited applause. Hibbert's Pictures occupy two nights each week.

IPSWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mr. H. A. Saintsbury and his company are giving a dramatic interlude entitled The Strolling Player, in which he impersonates a number of leading Shakespearian characters with much ability; Leick and Keith have a musical turn in which cornet playing is a speciality; The Toreadors have a very amusing mock bull-fight; Chinko gives a juggling entertainment of great merit; Ernie Myers is an old favourite here in patter and song, and is clever as ever; the Milstead Bell Trio in a sketch entitled Three Sharps in a Flat kept the audience in roars of laughter; Miss Lily Lonsdale contributes some good songs; and the Bioscope concludes.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Murray King, Clarke, and W. H. Savery. Mr. William Mollison's company is here with The Chorus Lady. Miss Rita Carlyle gives an excellent interpretation of the leading part of Patricia O'Brien; and is well supported by Miss Elsie Vron Neville as her sister Nora; Miss Josephine Woodward makes the most of the character of Mrs. O'Brien; Mr. James Sims Woolley is a manly exponent of Dan Mallory; Mr. Henry Ludlow plays excellently the difficult rôle of Dick Crawford; Patrick O'Brien is a good character study by Mr. Thos. Howes; Mr. F. R. Marshall plays the stable-boy Shrimp; Miss Mabel Durrant is a smart Silvia Simpson; and Miss Agnes D'Aragon is amusing as Georgie Cooke. The scenery and dresses are excellent. The Drums of Doom precedes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Evans.—Messrs. Howard and Paumier's company is here with The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Mr. Leonard Booker gives a powerful portrayal of Prince Hildred; Mr. Victor Rae is an effective Prince Michael; and Mr. Henry Hallatt makes an ideal Prince Olaf; Mr. Herbert Burton as Captain Hector looks the part well, and Mr. S. Dickens is suitably placed as Lieut. Karl Stromberg, and Mr. Oswald Waller gives a very good account of the part of Nathan, the dumb servant; Miss Viola Holland is charming as Monica; Miss Violette May makes the most of the rôle of Camiola, and Miss Mona Hall is neat as Viola.

JERSEY. — OPERA HOUSE, LTD. — Managing-Directors Messrs. Edward Marris and Albany Ward; Manager, Mr. Pan E. Draco.—Sabino, the Merry Musical Monarch, tops the bill here this week; Les Henris are clever gymnasts and equilibrists; the Sisters Lucretia and Josephine dance well. The pictures are up to the usual high standard.

KEIGHLEY. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Keighley Hippodrome Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. S. Holmes.—Miss Zerlina Harrington and company in Olga's Oath forms the principal attraction here, and is admirably staged and acted. Mr. F. V. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Messrs. Clifford Hamilton and Charles Locke's company is here in A Woman's Past. Mr. Percy Dawsone well portrays the part of David Heath; Mr. Chas. Locke and Mr. Victor Gordon are respectively good as Frank Dellannoy and Clement Harper; Uriah Craven is realistically played by Mr. Clifford Hamilton; Miss Dora Pass excels herself in the rôle of Bessie.

KIDWELLY.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, Sergeant W. James.—Miss May Hopkins' company in The Maid of Cefn Ydfa were here on Friday and Saturday last week, and met with unqualified success. Miss Gladys de Clifford made a sympathetic Maid; Miss Marian Richards as Mrs. Thomas was very good; Mr. Coult Griffiths was a manly Will Hopkins; Messrs. R. A. Hopkins and William Hopkins as the Maddox's, senior and junior, did well; Mr. Charles Cameron was very capable as Morgan the Seer; Miss May Hopkins as Gwenny and Dan Hopkins as Lewis created roars of laughter; and Mr. John Meecham as Mr. Price was commendable.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—Crowded houses have welcomed the presentation, by Mr. George Dance's company of Our Miss Gibbs. Miss Norah Dwyer is excellent in the title-rôle; Mr. Claude Cameron is an irresistible Timothy Gibbs; Mr. Reginald Relsie a satisfactory Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint; Mr. Arthur Collins Rolfe a dignified Earl of St. Ives; and Mr. Wilfred Norman an able Slithers.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Earl and the Girl occupied the boards the first three nights this week. Mr. Edward Lewis made an excellent Jim Cheese, and his performance was warmly appreciated. Mr. Herbert St. John worked hard as Dick Wargrave, and a like remark applies to Mr. Lionel Scott as the Hon. Crewe Boodle. Miss Lily Gallick was a pleasing Elphin Haye; Miss Lina Hicks was capital in the part of 'Liza; Miss Blanche Aefley did well as Daisy Fallowfield; and Miss Edith Blande gave an admirable representation of the strong lady. On Thursday Messrs. Glenville and Elliston's company in The Wicked City are billed.

HIPPODROME.—Jennie Johns, an old favourite; the Stowe Bros.; Joe Booth, comedian; the Sisters Brenton, dancers; Jack North, comedian; and Will Onda's animated pictures make up a capital programme here.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—Mr. George Dance's company presented Our Miss Gibbs to crowded houses the earlier part of the week. Mr. Vincent Erne gave a very droll performance of Timothy Gibbs; whilst in the title-rôle Miss Daisie Wallace played and sang in her most charming manner. As the amateur pickpocket, the Hon. Hughie Pierpoint, Mr. J. Herbert Willis was most amusing; Lord Eynsford was in the capable hands of Mr. Douglas; and Mr. J. S. Durant proved himself an admirable Slithers. Mr. A. Gordon Begg was a dignified Earl of St. Ives; whilst other characters ably interpreted were Lady Elizabeth Thanet, Mme. Jeane, and the Duchess of Minster, by Miss Dorothy Harris, Miss Louie Bechman, and Miss Madge Incar. A capable chorus and an excellent orchestra added to the success of the production, which was well staged and beautifully dressed. For the remainder of the week Mr. Murray King and company are appearing in Our Flat.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and company are drawing crowded houses in a series of plays, which includes The Winter's Tale, The Piper, Macbeth, The Taming of the Shrew, Julius Cæsar, and The Merchant of Venice.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The Fighting Chance is presented to the patrons of the above for the first time, and this military drama receives a magnificent reception. The company is a powerful one, included in which Miss Marie Duncan and Mr. Sidney Vautier both act with dramatic force. The soldier-servant of Mr. Charles Leverton is clever and amusing. Miss Annie Barclay creates diversion. The staging is worthy of special mention.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig; General-Manager, Mr. George Macleod.—Three capital star turns appearing here include Terry and Lambert, who give a most artistic performance; Lew Lake and company, in their new comedy-drama, King Nobbler, which is as good as a pantomime; and Dandy George's George I. The Villons, comedy cyclists and dancers, are big favourites; and My Fancy, the clever dancer, creates much applause for her unique dancing act in her new scena, "Winter, Spring and Summer." Ernie Mayne is a very droll comedian; and James Stewart creates amusement in his piano burlesque. Georgina Leno was unable to appear through illness, which was duly announced at the box-office.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Miss Beaumont Collins and company get a splendid reception in their clever playlet The House of Terror; Rosie Lloyd is chic in smart songs; Addie Adell, with a fine voice, gains much applause; Dale and O'Malley appear again after a short absence; Hazel Glade, a new turn here, meets with much favour; the Tofanos appear in a novel musical act; Revell Hall is a clever humorist; and the Whittington Trio and Master Harry Clark complete a good company.

Mr. Stanley Carlton is excellent as Richard Sefton; Mr. Bertram Dancer as Lionel Mildmay and Miss Ruby Maude as Alice Wylford are talented artists; and Miss Marain Holly as a drudge also makes herself popular.

VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Manager, Mr. Albert Whiteman; Assistant Manager, Mr. Bernard Armstrong.—Sandy MacNab and company are responsible for the laughing turn of the programme, in the comic sketch The Egyptian Mummy; the Four Royal Scots, in their novel musical and dancing scena, are a big success; Madge May, a favourite vocalist here, sings nicely; Karr and Kooney appear in comic songs; and Little Ganty also takes well. Clifford and White also appear in a vaudeville act.

LEEK.—GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Leek Theatre Co., Ltd.; Licensee and General-Manager, Mr. Barry Bond.—Mr. William Pardoe's company opened here on Monday in Dick Whittington to a crowded house. Miss Lottie Holland made an excellent principal boy, her songs being well received; Miss Cissy Lenore as Alice was a charming principal girl; Mr. Tom Hulme as Idle Jack was most amusing; Mr. Tom Griffith made an excellent King Rat; Mr. Frank Vant was exceedingly funny as Sarah Cook; and as the Cat Mons. Pauli was a decided success; Mr. Joe Verona as the Emperor, Mr. Harold Carlyle as Khan Tellum, and Mr. J. Sherwin as Jim are worthy of praise; and Miss Cissy Loveday as Fairy Bowbelle gave a pleasing portrayal. Specialities were admirably given by Paulletti, the Finnettie, and the Edondale Dancing Trio. The scenic effects are elaborate, and there is a most capable ballet, which completes a successful show.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Business-Manager, Mr. Trueman Towers.—Immense business is being done here by Mr. George Dance's company in The Whip, which is staged with marvellous elaboration and detail. The various parts are in the hands of a first-class company, the two leading characters of Captain Sartorys and Mrs. Beamish being very finely played by Mr. James Lindsay and Miss Simeta Marsden.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—The Melodrama Production Syndicate, Ltd., is presenting The Master of the Mill. Mr. Paul Beckett makes an excellent impression as Tom Bolton, and Miss Enid Edoni wins great favour as the mill lass, Nancy; Mr. Ernest B. Imeson play with his usual ability as Julian Croft, and others in the cast who also deserve commendation are Mr. Algernon Syms, Mr. Daniel Greene, Miss Valerie Russell, Miss Nair Jonghmans, Mr. Frank Kingsley, Mr. Frank Ward, and Mr. Ewart Drake. The play is well staged.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. L. Knight.—George Lashwood, in new songs, is scoring a big and well-deserved success; Minola Hurst, who introduces her miniature marvels, gives an entertaining show; Everhart, the expert hoop roller and juggler, is heartily appreciated; Tom Costello earns loud applause; Cole and Rags, the comedy jugglers, create endless merriment; May Mars, an excellent vocalist; the Kirbys, in their merry musical pot-pourri, raise hearty laughter; the Goltz Trio are smart in their globe and wire act; the Beautiful Lillian does some clever cycle feats; Little Keeno is a dancer of exceptional merit; and the Bioscope presents good films.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—The leading attraction here is the sensational sketch, The Midnight London Express, which is elaborately staged, and is played by a capable company. Lucy Lynd is a smart Lancashire dialect comedienne; the Falcons are both clever and amusing acrobatic comedians; La Vie is seen to advantage in her art-posing act; Charles Bradford is a capital and successful comedian; and others who entertain are Sam Williams, refined comedian; and the Singing Newsboys, harmonious vocalists. There is also the usual excellent picture programme.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—The outstanding pictures in a long list of finely-shown and entertaining films are Capital v. Labour and Taming a Grandfather. Charles Relph is a popular chorus vocalist.

LEIGH. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Gould; General-Manager, Mr. A. F. Beaton.—Messrs. Alban and Bernard Limpus' company, in The Thief, is proving a good attraction. Mr. Richard Limpus gives an excellent rendering of Richard Chilford; Mr. Carl W. Lindsay is seen to advantage as Harry Leyton; Mr. F. Morland undertakes the rôle of Raymond Leyton with success; Miss Diana Cloud deserves praise for her clever study of Marise; Mr. W. Somerset submits a good performance of Mr. Protheroe; Miss Mary Forrester is responsible for some charming acting as Isabel; and Mr. Leo Briggs is worthy of mention as the servant.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Woolstencroft.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company is here in The King and the Unknown Woman. Mr. Norman Partridge cuts a manly figure as the heroic Prince Loris; Mr. Walter T. Clifford does well as the villainous Prince Menski; the rôle of General Platz is well brought out by Mr. W. R. Winning; Miss Violet Carlyle gives a convincing and sympathetic portrayal of Zora (the unknown woman); Miss Adeline Raby is well placed as the scheming Countess Melvitch. The comedy is effectively supplied by Mr. J. Telby Dillsen as Corporal Stack, his efforts being well seconded by Miss Anena Walton as Schnapps.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS AND PICTURE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Barclay.—Amati's Band is the chief attraction here, each selection being greeted by applause; Gesta and Hoe, comedy duo, are also successful. The pictures are of a high standard.

LEITH. — NEW GAIETY THEATRE. — Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Mr. John Clyde and a good representative Scottish company have occupied the Leith playhouse this week with a most acceptable production of the ever-popular drama Jeanie Deans. Miss Lena Levenston appeared with excellent effect in the name-part, and Effie had a sympathetic representative in Miss Jean McIntosh, the rôle of old David Deans being capably sustained by Mr. George Hunter. Madge Wildfire was made outstanding by Miss Belle Cecil, and Miss Clara Hunt acted with characteristic vigour as the old hag, Marjory Murdochson. Mr. Clyde's Laird of Dumbiedykes, while following traditional lines, was not without original touches of quaint humour; Mr. Fred F. Lloyd put great force into his speeches as Counsel for the Defence; Mr. R. B. Drysdale figured effectively as John, Duke of Argyle; Mr. David Blair missed none of his opportunities as Jamie Ratcliffe; and the entire cast was otherwise very creditably filled.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—On Monday the Thomas Beecham Opera Comique Company, under the direction of Mr. Thomas Quinlan, opened here with Tales of Hoffmann, which was presented in admirable style. Offenbach's fantasy was interpreted by a talented chorus and a numerous and faultless orchestra. Miss Caroline Hatchard delighted everybody with her Olympia, her wonderful vocal powers provoking numerous demands for encores; whilst her amusing antics as a doll, very naturally presented, caused endless merriment. Mr. John Bardsley scored a big success as Hoffmann, his acting and singing being of a high order; Mr. Charles McGrath stood out prominently in the rôle of the scheming Dr. Mirakel; Miss Edith Evans as Guiletta and Antonia gave evidence of her versatility, and well deserved the recognition she earned for her delightful singing; and others who won favour were Messrs. M. R. Morand (the Scientist), H. Scott Russell, Frederick Ranalow, and W. J. Samuel, and Miss Ruby Gray, the last-named, along with Miss Evans, charming everybody with the duet, "Lovely Night." On Wednesday A Viennese Masquerade was given, the cast including Miss Caroline Hatchard, Miss Kate Anderson, Mr. Frederick Ranalow, Mr. Wilson Pembroke, Mr. Arthur Heather, and Mr. M. R. Morand.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—On Monday evening The Geisha opened here. Miss Aimée Grey as Mimosa San delighted everybody with her acting; Miss Renee Reel pleasingly presented Juliette Diamante; Miss Adela Crispin showed high talent with her singing and dancing in the rôle of Molly Seamour; Mr. Edward Carlton caused endless fun with his whimsical Wun Hi, a part which he has made his own; Mr. Colin Coop repeated his humorous Marquis Imari; as Captain Katana Mr. Herbert Uzielli sang to everybody's satisfaction; as did Mr. Edmund Sherras in the character of Reginald Fairfax. On Friday A Greek Slave was given, when Miss Renee Reel danced the Tarantella.

ROTUNDA THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Here this week we are having Mr. William Greet's company in The Sign of the Cross, which is finding much favour. Mr. W. Lawson Butt is the Marcus, a rôle which he plays with considerable dramatic strength; Mercia is sweetly given by Miss Evelyn Hope; and among the chief supporters are Messrs. Bernard Elliott (Nero), Charles Aldred (Tigellinus), Miss Dorothy Lart (Berenice), Miss Esme Lee (Dacia), and Miss Mabel Cook (Poppea).

STAR THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The Boy King is doing big business here this week, Messrs. Hallatt and Howard's combination presenting it in excellent style. As the ragged Prince Mr. Walter Howard displays his fine qualities as an actor to the utmost degree, and earns rounds of applause; a most flattering reception is also accorded to Miss Annie Saker for her really good playing of Camilla; Mr. F. G. Clifton makes a dignified King Camillo; Mr. Charles Weir acts the Duke of Savernac in robust style; a good Captain Fabian comes from Mr. W. Royce Carleton; and Miss Grey Logan sweetly presents Elaine.

KELLY'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—The patrons of this popular house are this week enjoying an excellent presentation of The Girls of Gottenberg, given by a capable company, under the control of Messrs. T. C. Wray and Austen Hurgon. The rôle of Mitzi is charmingly undertaken by Miss Dora Langham; Smith makes a diverting Max Muddlekopp; and others who are deserving of praise for clever efforts are Messrs. R. N. Cory (Otto), Eddie Foy (Britel), J. R. Timms (Colonel Finkansen), Tom Squire (Adolph), and Miss Beryl Vaudrey (Elsa).

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—The great Lafayette is putting in a second week to crowded houses. The remainder of the bill is occupied by Jack Lane, the Lancashire rustic at the piano; Bowden and Stoll, smart acrobatic eccentrics; Jean Clermont's burlesque circus, which is an excellent entertainment; Ouida Macdermott, vocalist; and the Eight Empire Girls, in song and dance.

LYRIC.—Lessees, Liverpool Lyric Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—The attraction here this week is Rogues and Vagabonds, played by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company. In the rôle of Nathan Baxter Mr. Mitchelson plays with much humour, being considerably helped by Mr. Willie Hicks as John Lamb. Mr. Stanley Healey makes an excellent Harry Stanford; and worthy support also comes from Messrs. Herbert Humber (Fernand Delair), Alfred Grenville (P.C. Clegg), Miss Constance Medwyn (Julia Keer), and Miss Ada Champion (Hilda Jefferies).

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Andreef's Russian Balalaika Court Orchestra, whose musical entertainment is received with manifestations of delight, is here this week. The audience are very enthusiastic over the fine show. Tom Stuart presents some smart dramatic and burlesque impressions; the Elite Harmony Boys have an excellent vocal act, Messmates Ashore; Max Waldon, an able female impersonator and clever dancer, has a cordial reception; Effie White pleases immensely with her kaleidoscope dancing in "The Spirit of the Cave"; the Zanonis submit a smart juggling scena; and also in the programme are Fred Lyndo, comedian; Vera Wootton, comedienne; and J. H. Ellis, comedian.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—By the Hand of a Woman is being played here twice nightly, among the principal artists of the stock company being Messrs. Harry Tresham (Roy Brockbank), Sydney Grant (Jose Silvarez), Leo Montgomery (Bert Crossland), Miss Gertrude Entwistle (Gwen), and Miss Lilian Radbourne (Kitty). Brown's Bioscope shows Bootle's Baby.

OLYMPIA.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. M. Slater.—Tom Foy, who made such a hit in Liverpool pantomime last year, is here, causing shouts of laughter with his First of April, in which he is supported by an able company; The Fun of the Fair is a diverting sketch, presented by Kate Carney and company; W. F. Frame, the pawky Scot, is as funny as ever; Chas. Lewis gives an acceptable ventriloquial turn; the Riogoku Family of Japanese jugglers go through a wonderful show; "The Page and the Maid" is a delightful vocal and comedy act, given by the Bensons; Kisgey, the calliboy, is diverting; as a mandolinist Signor Persichini shows talent; and Adey Spencer, comedienne, also appears.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—George Gilbey heads the programme here this week, and has a hearty greeting for his songs, among which is his latest, "Constable Duffy"; Marie Santoi and her Merry Japs please greatly with their musical scena, A Night in Japan; L'Incognita gains rounds of applause for her fine vocalism; Julian Mack causes a deal of laughter with his patter; Hampton and Bowman afforded satisfaction with their entertainment; and Cara Magda is an expert juggler and gymnast.

LLANELLY.—HAGGAR'S (late ROYALTY) THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Haggar, Sen.; Manager, Mr. James Haggar.—Capital pictures are shown on the two-houses a night system. Excellent turns are also given by Williams's Welsh Minstrels, instrumentalists and vocalists, and the Two Exceptions, clever singers and dancers.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Manager, Mr. R. E. Warton.—The attraction here is Nick Carter, Detective. The name-part is taken by Mr. J. Forbes Knowles, who sustained the rôle with power; Miss Helena Walkran as his wife also gave a capital study of the part; and little Hilda Vokes as their child was graceful and effective. Mr. Raymond Thomas, in the rôle of Eustace Lee, gave a good impersonation; Mr. Will Evelythorne played George Slade creditably.

ST. COLUMB'S HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. R. A. P. Williams; Manager, Mr. Dan Derry.—The O'Brien and Ireland company is here in a répertoire of drama.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—VINT'S ELECTRIC HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. H. Bowmaker.—As reported last week, Vint's entertainments are doing well, crowded houses being attracted twice nightly. An excellent lot of pictures this week includes The Emperor's Messenger, a stirring dramatic film; Hako's Romance, Native Lion Hunting, How the Squire was Captured, &c. Variety turns are given by Clarke's Nippers, speciality dancers, jugglers, and club throwers; and the Two Zetts, vocalists and wood-shoe dancers.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. S. Evanson.—The "World in Motion" entertainments maintain their high standard in the exhibition of pictures, the star films this week being The Dumb Half-breed's Defence, Little Mother at the Baby Show, His Chum, The Man to Beat Jack Johnson, Kill that Fly, &c. The artists are the Malbans, comedy sketch artists, and Emily Warren, soprano.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer.—His Indian Wife, a drama dealing with the Indian of the Far West, is playing to excellent business this week. Miss Leila Zillwood enacts the part of Wild Rose with wonderful realism; while Mr. Arthur Hinton is also well cast. They are supported by a strong all-round company.

"YOUR EYES HAVE TOLD ME SO"

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. W. Alvar.—Crowded business continues here, the current bill being warmly appreciated. Gulliver presents a smart "vento" act; the Desmonds score successfully in illustrated songs; Floria appears in a novel equilibrist act; and E. E. Howard's company present the dramatic sketch The Fight in the Lighthouse, in which some clever scenic effects are introduced. Some fine pictures are shown.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Morton Powell's company, in How Girls are Brought to Ruin, is paying a return visit. Mr. Harry Scott is a striking Harry Hailing, Mr. Richard Vane a powerful Philip Edge, and Solomon sleek is cleverly handled by Mr. Alaric Burton; Mr. Sydney Bryant successfully represents Jack Jostle; Mr. Julien Mitchell makes the most of Mr. Sterling; Mrs. Morton Powell depicts the character of Winnie Waters satisfactorily; Miss Alice Defoe makes a pathetic figure as Jessie Burton; and Miss Addie Adair submits a clever study of Mrs. Slutt.

MAIDSTONE.—PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Ewart C. Potter.—The popular immobile comedian, Sam Mayo, is being received here with great favour; Captain Spaulding amazes everyone by defying fire and heat; Sam Kee's Laundry, a good acrobatic comedy, is greatly appreciated; Vera Rochdale, in song and dance, does well; Russell Carr gives a clever ventriloquial turn; Medley Barrett, the "comedian in pyjamas," is very funny; and the Sisters London are successful with their singing and dancing. Capital pictures conclude.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Mr. George Edwardes's company, in The Dollar Princess, is the attraction here. Mr. Leonard Mackay as Freddy Fairfax uses his fine voice and good presence to the best possible advantage; Miss Norah Barry as Alice is an attractive and accomplished figure; Mr. W. H. Rawlins is, as usual, very good as Mr. Bulger; Mr. Leslie Stiles adds a capital delineation of Conder; while Miss Mabel Russell makes a charming Daisy, and Miss Madeline Seymour very agreeably fills the rôle of Olga. The whole performance is bright, tuneful, and admirably put on.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The Blue Bird is again drawing crowded houses here, extra matinées having to be put on to meet the great demand for seats.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Mr. C. Watson Mill presents here the romantic play The Love of the Princess. Mr. Frank Harvey cuts a fine figure as Prince Conrad, contrasting with the forcible depiction of Count Danilo, a traitor, by Mr. C. H. Matthews; Miss Maisie Hanbury plays the Princess Idalia with charming cleverness; Miss Josephine Lee is well placed as Constantia; and Miss Maud Steeple gives a good account of herself as Lady Irene Ramona. Among other clever impersonations are those of Josef, the king, by Mr. John Burton, and Duke Scarfe by Mr. W. Palliser Acock.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—J. A. and H. B. Jewel's comedy-drama Change is the big attraction in an excellent programme here; Ada Fawn, comedy and burlesque actress, is very entertaining; L. W. Harris is a popular light comedian; the Five M.P.'s are, as usual, successful in their musical act; and other smart items are contributed by Richard Finbury, in character studies; Will Sullivan, comedian; the Bros. Curran, in a comedy boxing act; and Tom Franks, ventriloquist.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Pearson.—Mr. Walter Melville's sensational drama The Beggar Girl's Wedding provides the entertainment here. Mr. Norman B. Cannon sustains the heroic part of Jack Cunningham in admirably vigorous fashion; and Miss Muriel Dean invests the title-rôle of Bessie Webster with the requisite sympathy and intelligence. Mr. Charles Barclay as the eccentric physician, Dr. Millbank, plays with unmistakable talent; Mr. Frank McClelland is good as Norman Marsh; and effective renderings on the side of evil are given by Mr. William T. Riley as Gilbert Linsay and Miss Ernestine Walter as Maud Villiers. Other smart impersonations are Mr. Herbert Goddard as Lawyer Grimshaw, Mr. George Virnon's P.-C. Phillips, Miss Sybil Hare's Elsie Cunningham (a very natural piece of work), Mr. Ellis D. Carlyle as the Dodger, and, in the light rôles, Mr. Fred Hobson as Dicky Storm, Miss Daisy Meynard as Tina Torkington, and Miss Linda Riley as Lizzie.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Jones.—Mr. Charles Gibbon and company are playing here in Alone in London. Mr. Gibbon plays the rascally Dick Redcliffe in good style; and is well supported by Mr. William Macready as John Biddlecombe and Mr. J. W. Wilkinson as Old Jenkinson. Miss Nellie Clyde makes Nan dramatically effective throughout. Other clever people in the cast are Miss Carrie Young as Liz Jenkinson, Miss Jessie Melville as Mrs. Maloney, Mr. Bruce Lindley as Charles Johnson, and Miss Hetty Hornsby as Little Paul.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—So popular has Justice proved here that its run has been extended over this week.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Carter is an exceptionally clever illusionist; Theo. C. Le Gar's company, including Señor Angel Blanco, Spanish violinist, present successfully a dramatic playlet, Music, the Conquerer; the Twelve Forget-Me-Nots give a delightful vocal and dancing scena; Little Dollie Bell has a wonderful voice, and is well received; Corinne Carter is smart in mental telepathy; whilst other good turns are Les Tell, the well-known mimic of sounds; George Collins, eccentric comedian; Lizzie Danilo, comedienne and dancer; and George Brooks, comedian. The Palace pictures are up to date.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W Meek.—Morny Cash, the Lancashire comedian, is a popular draw here; Pichel and Scale, comedy acrobats, are smart and amusing; Rob Rossi, tenor vocalist, is highly appreciated; and Fred S. Peake and Dora Davis play cleverly in The Swashbuckler. Other good turns are Silvo, novel gymnast; Marie Kay, singer and dancer; Selms, card and coin manipulator; and Eadie and Emmie, in the newspaper kiosk.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Jen Latona gives an excellent comedy turn at the piano; Harry Roxbury and a smart company appear in the funny mélange The Prince of Monte Carlo; Franco Piper is probably the most novel and accomplished of banjo experts; and Dick Tubb is a new grotesque comedian. The Borellis add their "cat-chy" act; Haig and Novel, in acrobatic comedy, are deservedly applauded; and other pleasing turns are Jessie Buckle, comedienne; the Celestas, in comedy, song, and mirth; and Ethel Beech, a smart soubrette.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Constantino Bernardi heads a first-class bill here, and his protean entertainment, with transparent scenery, is a smart and clever performance; Thora is loudly applauded for a novel ventriloquial act; the Farabonis, including Cristi Faraboni, give a dancing act of great merit; the Violas are well received for their mental-telepathy act; Barrett and Knowles score with humorous patter; Baby Boden, juvenile comedienne and dancer, is excellent; and George Rae, Scotch comedian, is a good dancer. Up-to-date pictures are shown.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Mme. De Vilmar, American soprano, is to the front here in a well-chosen selection of songs, rendered artistically; Scener and Fridkin's Russian Troupe of singers and expert dancers present a wonderfully clever act; Walter and Bailey are seen to advantage in a very sensational balancing act; Ben Lewin is an exceedingly clever and enjoyable character impersonator; Ruby Emerson, comedienne, makes a hit; Elsie Denby, comedienne, charms with her singing; the Sisters Allen are spirited dancers; Alice Lingard is a dainty comedienne; and Fred Horsfall, vocal comedian, with imitations, is well received. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope completes.

KING'S THEATRE, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Two popular star turns here are Carlton, the well-known eccentric card manipulator, and Arthur Aldridge, tenor singer; Adeline Yohle appears in a musical act; Forbes Guilbert, the American character actor, is well received; "The Mysterious Cross," a smart act by Carlton, is also a prominent and effective feature; while other good turns are Luis Hardt, the Sandow boy; Bros. Ashley, in their boxing speciality; W. B. Raby, comedian; and Harry Kirk, comedian.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Mike S. Whallen, who tops the bill here, keeps the audience in good humour; the Maories go through a remarkably clever acrobatic tumbling act; the Merrions, of local fame, are highly entertaining; Frances McNulty is well received in her latest American successes; Amy Anderson and company are particularly good in scena, The Banana Queen; Mima Kello is assisted by the Raphael Quartette in a dainty song-scena; and Fred Lloyd is a versatile comedian. The Bioscope proves entertaining.

MARCH.—PUBLIC HALL THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Jos. Collingwood, J.P.—A large audience greeted Messrs. Nichol, Rivington, and Howard's company in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch. Miss Cecile E. Anson brought down the house on several occasions with her excellent portrayal of the title-rôle, Mrs. Wiggs; as Miss Hazy Miss Muriel Locking was good; and Mr. Kenneth Rivington gave a droll rendering of Mr. Stubbins. Miss Clara Earle as Lovey Mary and Mr. George Howard as Mr. Wiggs deserve special commendation.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Edward Michael; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Weathersby; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Lake.—Under the Iron Heel was presented here on Monday by Mr. Wilson Howard and company. Rene de Maupassant has been played in a manly and convincing manner by Mr. Wilson Howard, who finds a sympathetic partner in Miss Carlotta Anson as Germaine Mirbeau, a rôle she imbues with much feeling; a finished piece of acting is contributed by Miss Marie Angus as Andre, the charbonnier's grandson; Mr. Henry Parr makes an ideal villain as Otto Marx; and the part of Sergeant Bleucher is amusingly played by Mr. Austin H. Longford. Mr. Dennis Clyde secures approbation by his presentment of the rôle of Major Schromberg; and Miss J. Douglass-Hicks is particularly good as Maman Gouffe.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Mayall.—Peggy Pryde tops the bill this week, and her quaint songs and amusing coster patter have caused great amusement and hearty laughter; the Vigoranto Trio give a smart gymnastic turn; and Charles S. Best, the eccentric, as McBunker the mountebank, is amusing. The Frantz Comedy Five have an up-to-date entertainment, which includes dancing, acrobatic feats, and a spice of comedy; the Bros. Wheeler, comedians, in their general fooling, are excellent; and Mildred Parr, entertainer at the piano, is a pleasing addition to the programme.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Sandon Perkins.—An Unwedded Wife is presented by Mr. Will Casey's company. Miss Chrissie Dunbar achieves success as Marion, and Napoleon is smartly played by Mr. Will Casey. Miss Edith Tempest, Mrs. Will Casey, Little Doris Sorsby, and Messrs. Walter H. Cheetham, L. Ernest, Dennis Kenton, Dicky Bird, and W. Fisher render valuable assistance.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Lessees, The Merthyr Entertainments Co.; Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The Breen Family present a novel juggling act; Dorma Morgan is a great favourite; the Lovelaces are meeting with hearty appreciation; Miss Alice Hamer, elocutionist; Jack Hayton, comedian and dancer; Chas. Stanton, vocalist; and pictures add to a successful programme.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is the attraction here with A Broken Heart. Mr. John S. Millward ably portrays the blacksmith, John Barnard; Miss Dorothy Haigh as Mary plays in sympathetic style; Mr. Denis Hogan makes the most of the part of Stephen Raylton; Mr. A. J. Bleasdale gives a realistic display of villainy as Gash Gills; a clever character study was given by Mr. Newton Pearce as Tony Tibbets; and the child-part of Little May is capably filled by Miss Dorothy Frances. Some fine films are shown on the Gaietyscope.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Goodison.—The Mexborough and District Teachers' Amateur Dramatic Society has given a capital representation of Gilbert and Sullivan's Gondoliers at the Prince of Wales' Theatre this week. The society of fifty-six voices is controlled and organised by Mr. W. Winstanley, who is the musical director and manager. Full houses each night are reported, and a substantial fund for the local charities will probably accrue. Mr. Walter Mead, an old D'Oyly Carte "boy" of many years' experience, has been coaching the society for the past month, and has succeeded in turning them out in capital trim. He took the part of Marco. Mr. Pritchard, another London artist of some distinction, appeared with credit as Luiz.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company is presenting Mr. Preedy and the Countess, and audiences are kept perpetually on the laugh. Miss Nella Powys very ably sustains the part of the countess, and Mr. A. W. Baskcomb as Hamilton Preedy is a pronounced success. The other characters have been placed with much care and discrimination.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Imeson.—Miss Ida Millais' company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Herne, is playing No Man's Land to appreciative patrons. Mr. Herne fills the exacting rôle of Harry Oaklands with much credit; and Mr. Edward Lockstone is very amusing as Thompson Poodle. The other characters are well sustained, and the play is admirably staged.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—Friend and Downing in their characters of Rosenthal and Harrigan are very funny; Kelly and Agnes, comedians, do well; Robins and Collier in Mrs. Bacon's Easter Egg are well received; and the Westbrooks in Two Little Maids from School; the three Comerfords, comedy acrobats; the Musical Keiths, in a refined entertainment; Clifton and Gibson, comedians; and the Empire pictures all meet with approval.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. S. T. Smurthwaite.—In addition to a capital picture show, Tom Child delights crowded audiences by his fine tenor contributions; the Musical Bentleys are well received; the Misses Lytton and De Silva, duettists, are enjoyed; and Rozel's daring performance is admired.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Licensee, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Business-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wright.—The Granvilles Production Co., Ltd., in A Hot Night, is proving a strong attraction. An excellent cast includes Frank Daleno, Edward Stream, Val Morgan, Austin Earl, Jackson Ollins, Chas. North, William Kent, Nellie Valentine, Mimi Fisher, Olive Sparke, and Jimmie Watson. The staging and dresses are also good.

MUSSELBURGH.—EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Ritchie; Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. W. J. Logan.—Arthur Gilrae, Fred Lynford, Cliffe and Kempton, and J. T. Dale all give turns this week, in addition to a monster picture programme.

NEATH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice.—Mr Percy Williams's company in The Fatal Wedding is here for six nights. Mr. C. A. Melton gives an excellent impersonation of Howard Wilson, and Mr. Alexander Willis does well as Robert Curtis. Messrs. Harry M. Vernon (Toto) and Watson Hume (Peter Schwartz) are very amusing. Miss Violet Keand is a sympathetic Mabel Wilson, and Miss Elaine Vanburgh acts well the part of Cora Williams. Miss Blanche Huber gives a clever study of Bridget; Miss Hilda May is a delightful Jessie; and Mr. Percy Williams is an able exponent of the part of the Rev. Dr. Lanceford.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice.—Good houses are attracted this week by Marquis and Truly, eccentric grotesques; Fame and Fortune are excellent comedians, dancers, and burlesque boxers; and some good pictures are shown.

NELSON.—PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. S. Livesey.—The Nelson and Colne Amateur Operatic Society has presented the comic opera Falka before large and enthusiastic audiences.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. C. Horner; Manager, Mr. Parker.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and his company of thirty-five artists are here this week in a répertoire of Shakespearean and standard plays. Mr. Wilkie is an exceedingly popular exponent of Shakespearean drama in Nelson, and large houses have assembled. On Monday night he appeared in Hamlet, his characterisation being as clever in conception as it was in forceful acting. Miss F. Hunter Watts made a charming Ophelia, whilst the company included Mr. Henry Hargreaves as Laertes, Mr. Sinclair Neill as Claudius, Mr. Houston Meharry as Polonius, and Mr. Frederick Harden as Horatio. The grave-digging scene was splendidly given by Mr. Philip Gordon and Mr. Rex. Barrington. Miss Mary Lovett appeared in the rôle of Gertrude, Queen of Denmark, with considerable success.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—High-class vaudeville is presented, and The Ideals, a smart company of nine ladies and gentlemen, are extremely good; Mr. Flockton-Foster, the proprietor of the company, is excellent in all he does, and Miss Ray Morgan sings most acceptably; Mr. James Craig and Mr. Donald Gilbert are both good, and Mr. E. Le Butt is a clever comedian; Miss Rita Vincent, Miss Enid Hamilton, and Miss D. Eals complete a versatile combination. The Attilla Bros. as Grecian gladiators make a success, and Renato, the wizard of the banjo, proves himself an able player. The sketch Watch the Chalk is smartly played by Mr. W. T. Thompson and company.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. George Edwardes's ever-popular production, The Merry Widow, is paying its fifth visit to this city, and on Monday night the large house was filled to its utmost capacity. Attractive, graceful, and charming as ever is Miss Gertrude Lester in the title-rôle; Prince Danilo has an apt exponent in Mr. W. Louis Bradfield, whose humorous rendition of the character is largely responsible for the success of the production; as Baron Popoff, Mr. Eric Thorne is highly amusing; Mr. Fred Kaye causes considerable mirth by his clever impersonation of General Novakovitch; Vicomte Camille de Jolidon is entrusted to Mr. W. Tailleur Andrews, who does the rôle ample justice; Miss Maggie May is a dainty Natalie; a sprightly dancer is found in Miss Vivien Tailleur, who ably fills the rôle of Frou-Frou; Mr. Robert Nainby scores by his impersonation of Nisch; Mr. George Miller makes the most of his opportunities as the Marquis de Cascada, and the same may be said of Mr. Robert Cranny as M. de St. Brioche, Mr. Jocelyn Hope as M. Khadja, Mr. Walter Champney as the waiter at Maxim's, Miss Eve Hornsby as Sylvaine, Miss Hylda Coward as Prascovia, and Miss Alice Cox as Olga. The orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Thomas M. Tunbridge, is quite adequate, and the chorus is well balanced.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. Gaston Mayer's company in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch is proving a capital attraction. The matchmaking and buoyant Mrs. Wiggs is played with tact and skill by Miss Lucy Beaumont; Miss Winifred Murray gives a pathetic rendition of Lovey Mary; as Miss Hazy, Miss Armine Grace gives a particularly fine character study; Miss Violet Vivian is excellent as the ponderous Mrs. Schultz; and Miss Sybil Brooke plays Mrs. Eichorn in just the right vein; whilst Miss Ethne O'Brien is a charming Lucy. Mr. Fred Forest's Stubbins is a droll character sketch, and Mr. Ernest Gray acts with convincing force as Mr. Wiggs. Mr. Robert Neilance is well placed as Bob, Mr. Harry G. Wright is seen to advantage as Jones, and the same may be said of Mr. Walter Hicks as Billy Wiggs and Mr. Alfred Fisher as Deacon Bagsby.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. Edwin B. Clark.—Mr. Morton Powell's play, entitled Driving a Girl to Destruction, is here. Miss Maud M. Powell gives a capital impersonation of the persecuted school teacher, and Miss Marie Robson fills the rôle of Ruth Wright in a capable fashion. Lucas List is played with considerable power by Mr. R. F. Stacey, and Mme. de Meral is in the able hands of Miss Kate Froude. Miss E. Norman gives a creditable rendition of the cripple Ned, and Miss Effie Macintosh is a bright and charming Bessie Betts. Mr. Henry T. Wood is a manly Robert Ray.

EMPIRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. W. Kilgour.—Mme. Ella Russell holds the place of honour here. King and Benson are paying another visit in their musical burlesque, Around the Town; Griff, the jesting juggler, entertains acceptably; Jackson and McLaren give an astonishing exhibition of tree felling; Frank Lynn, comedian, is highly amusing; Fred Elton scores heavily in a scena entitled On Board an Ocean Liner; the Elsa Satanella Trio of acrobatic dancers are responsible for much mirth; Clown Argo is a clever mimic of sounds; and Adam Tomlinson, Tyneside comedian, and the pictures complete the programme.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, The Pavilion, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Frank D. Todd.—Fred Karno's Perkins, M.P., the hilarious burlesque, is the chief item at this popular hall. Mr. Tom Nelson is excruciatingly funny in the title-rôle. Helen Charles proves herself to be a versatile entertainer as a pianist, vocalist, mimic, and siffleuse. Treachery is the title of an admirable Indian episode in which Mr. Frank Fenton gives a powerful rendition of Captain Alick Mainwaring; Syd Walker, comedian, scores in his entertaining items; Lloyd Morgan, light comedian, has some good songs; Elton and Elma appear in their original triple bar act; Zenary Bros. successfully present their acrobatic act, entitled A Meeting at the Club; Doris and Francis are comedians and dancers of considerable ability; the Three Gerlinis, acrobatic eccentrics, also appear; and an admirable show of pictures concludes.

GRAND.—General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Linney.—The variety items are contributed by the Brothers Carless, whose musical act is wonderfully clever; Maud Hughes is a soprano vocalist of more than usual ability; Wyotti delights the audience by his clever juggling display; and the pictures maintain their usual high standard.

RAIY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. G. Scott; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. M. Dalyell.—The films here are of a high order. Little Violette, male impersonator, is accorded a most hearty reception.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company opened here on Monday with Tantalizing Tommy. Mr. Ambrose Flower, particularly well placed as Harry Killick, makes good use of his opportunities; Miss Nellie Lonnen adds to the number of her admirers by the delightful manner in which she sustains the title-rôle. Special mention has to be made of the Bertha of Miss Eva Brickwell; Mr. Roy Byford does remarkably well as Thomas H. Pepper; Mr. Ernest Holloway figures as Eustace Tathem; Mr. Geoffrey Denys as Lord Enderby; and Elsie Tathem finds a capable representative in Miss Margaret Stuart.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Major Gallagher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Percy Wilde.—Heading a good all-round bill this week we have Eugene Stratton, who entertains with his accustomed charm; Hester's Mystery, a sketch by Sir A. W. Pinero, is capably presented by Horace Pollock and company; Lulu Williams, a clever juvenile comedienne, wins well-merited applause for two capitally rendered numbers; Laurence Barclay repeats with undiminished success the troubles and trials of a policeman; the New Macs have an abundant fund of topical patter and catch phrases, which cause roars of hearty laughter; as gymnasts and acrobats the Mezzettis give a smart performance; and Aida Martine, in song and dance, wins approbation. Bioscope pictures conclude.

NORTHAMPTON.—TEMPERANCE HALL.—Andrews' Pictures, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—The pictures are good, and Mr. F. Nettleton's illustrated songs are heartily enjoyed.

COUNTY ELECTRIC.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Lyle Edwards.—Miss Nellie Stevenson, soprano vocalist, sings popular songs, illustrated by coloured slides. Capital pictures are provided.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company with The Coal King is drawing good houses here. Grace Shirley receives a good rendering from Miss Winifred Love; Miss Emily Levettey submits a clever impersonation of Mad Ann; as Tom Roberts Mr. Cecil H. Woodhouse gives a fine interpretation of the part; Mr. A. W. Norman is well suited to the rôle of Sir Reginald Hartford; Mr. Frank Dalton as Dick Shirley proves himself to be a capable actor; Mr. Sydney C. Kearns ably represents Walter Hartford; and some excellent comedy is introduced by Mr. Frank Caffrey as Jim Williams and Miss Laurie O'Neill as Araminta Green.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—Corman's Juveniles, in their vocal-scena, head the bill here; the Three Moxons, in their speciality act, are clever; Lamb and Hands present an enjoyable vocal act; Marcos Marco bewilders the audience with his smart conjuring; Dale and Vale are an entertaining comedy duo; Master Stan Robinson, boy vocalist, is much appreciated; Billy Revell, eccentric comedian, is well received; and the Palace pictures conclude.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss S. Golden.—Miss Geraldine Montrose's company, in the drama A Woman and Two Men, is here this week. Jack Maxwell is a fine manly impersonation by Mr. Harold B. Lewis; Mr. Robert Faulkner makes a typical villain of Philip Collister; Mr. J. Ansdell Wilson does full justice to the part of Guy Maynard; Miss Winifred Rutland is a charming Sybil Maynard, Miss Anna Corri a clever Vivienne Verney, Miss Montrose a sympathetic Madeline Morden, and the blind girl, Elsie Warner, is prettily played by Miss Phyllis Spalding. On Friday the Ticket-of-Leave Man was played.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is presenting The Hand that Rocks the Cradle to large audiences nightly. As Derick Mason Mr. Guy Hastings makes an excellent impression; Mr. Douglas Tremayne is very good as Captain Henry Drummond; Mr. Gerald Jordan is successful as Lieutenant Philip Marchant; Mr. T. Lionel Ellis deserves praise as John Melrose, and Mr. Finn Doyle as Jerry Dale is humorous. Mr. Stanley Vine as Lieutenant Arthur Barclay, Mr. L. J. Lawrence as Edward Somerville, Mr. E. H. Clarke as Captain Hubert Sternroyd, and Mr. W. Webb as Sir Dennis Jermyn give admirable assistance. Miss Janice Deane is successful as Gabrielle d'Armand; Miss Babs Stuart acts well as Nanoya, and Miss Gertrude F. Godart pleasingly represents Audrey Melrose.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Mr. Austin Rudd heads, and maintains his popularity; the Warsaw Brothers are entertaining in their musical act; Violet Lloyd and Horace Lane create much amusement in their skit, The Girl in the Hobble Skirt; Regan and Ryan are droll comedians; Eileen Douglas is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; Arthur Slater, the "whistling man in white," gets a capital reception; Tom Gott, as the confiding comedian, is well received, and Patty Yole is a clever character comedienne and dainty dancer.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. Edward Terry and company are here in a répertoire of plays. Sweet Lavender was staged on Monday. In the part of Dick Phenyl, Mr. Terry was again delightful; Mr. Robert Pateman gave a vigorous rendering of Geoffrey Wedderburn; Mr. Percival Madgewick played Clement Hale on natural lines; Mr. Templer Powell did well as Horace Bream. The vivacity of Minnie Gilfillian was capitally shown by Miss Kathleen Leigh; Miss Christine Rayner made a sympathetic Lavender; Miss Ada Barton acted with care as Ruth Holt; and Miss Eugenie Vernie was well placed as Mrs. Gilfillian. During the week were also given The Magistrate, Liberty Hall, and Fiander's Widow.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry J. Crane.—Excellent houses show their approval of Mr. Frederick Melville's company in The Bad Girl of the Family. Miss Florrie Kelsey plays Bess Moore with ability and tact; Miss Alice Belmore imparts charm to her portrayal of Gladys Erskine; Mr. R. Marius St. John as Richard Marsh well suggests the hearty and vigorous sailor; Mr. Sydney Lynn invests the part of Harry Gordon with easy nonchalance; Mr. Percy Baverstock does excellently as Lord Erskine; Miss Edith Evans gives a fine interpretation of Honour Moore; and Miss Gladys Newcombe adds a touch of pathos as Mrs. Moore. The humorous relief is well shown by Mr. G. H. Asquin and Miss Nellie James.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Chanticlair, a well-dressed and excellent musical comedy, is capitally presented by a company including Messrs. Jack Martin, Leonard Russell, and Miss Madoline Rees; Lowenwirth and Cohen provide fun by their patter and oddities; the skill and daring of Andos' little Japs evoke an enthusiastic demonstration; Olga Dore sings with spirit and expression; Bonnie Goodwin's piccaninnies are expert dancers; Dacey and Lewis contribute a diverting item; Betty Green dances smartly; and Harry Squire Day is an amusing comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. W. Austin.—The heartiest of fun is found in the sketch Poor Beggar, ably presented by John le Hay, Charles Herbert, and Norah le Hay; a smart cycle balancing act by the Woodwards gains applause; some excellent fooling from Malcolm Scott and Tennyson and Wallis is thoroughly appreciated; a humorous musical scena by the Florodoras is capitally given; a novel turn is provided by Fred Evans; the Hargreaves Trio supply a fun-making act; Beatrice Allen sings well; and Claude Gardiner's comicalities are duly rewarded.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brown.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company is presenting Little Phil's Mother. Mr. Herbert Evelyn ably portrays Frank Towers; Mr. Dunlop Stewart acquits himself well as Geoffrey Dyne; Mr. David M'Farlane makes a callous Oscar Titherton; Mr. J. P. Marsden is good as Donald Taggerty; Miss Maud Russell gives a creditable performance as Ruth Towers; Miss Kate Blair puts in telling work as Elspeth; Daisy Rochefort acts well the pathetic part of Phil; and the humorous rôles of the play are ably presented by Mr. F. M. Thorne as Sam Perkels and Miss Leslie Warner as Julia Woorrilove.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. F. Elston.—The Seven Wulfrunas supply an amusing and clever acrobatic turn, "Fun in a Café"; Mr. W. H. Downs, the coloured vocalist, sings well; Mr. Alf Brooks creates plenty of amusement; Willie and Johnnie are a pair of smart equilibrists; and the Dorntons are pleasing duettists. The Bioscope pictures are well up to the usual standard.

OLDHAM.—GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Florodora is played here by Mr. Charles Constant's company. Mr. Johnnie Schofield in the part of Tweedlepunch keeps the house in roars of laughter; Miss Daisy Lake plays Dolores excellently; Miss Kate Leicester is a charming Lady Holyrood; Miss Florence Hersee is a dainty Angela, and her dancing of "La Danse des Apaches" with Mr. Johnnie Junior is admired; Mr. Martin D. Pitts as Frank Abercoed has a good reception for his singing; Mr. Stanley White makes an excellent Cyrus Gilfain; Mr. Johnnie Junior is a capital Capt. Donegal; and Mr. Jack Parker is a good Leandro.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—The Ruin of Her Life is here for the first time, and Mrs. Chas. Sugden and company had a good reception on Monday. The ability of Mrs. Sugden in the triple characters of Mary Macaire, Lady Selwyn, and the Duchess was early recognised, and she received hearty applause; Miss Mary Vane as Alice was also very good; Mr. F. Pennington-Gush as Dan Devel Macaire acted finely; Mr. J. E. Stevenson as Harry Heather and Mr. Henry C. Ward as Sir Philip filled their parts in a capital manner; Mr. Johnny Leoni as Curley Smiler was very amusing; Miss Kitty Roze as Fairy was satisfactory; and Mr. Sam Roberts acted cleverly as a Jew fence, receiving much assistance from Miss Constance Groves as Mother Blight.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—A Traitor Prince is staged here by Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company.

ROYAL THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Leach.—The principal film here is Love and Law, an adaptation from "David Copperfield."

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—The present term's engagements are proving most attractive. Last week the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company did a record week's business here, while on Monday this week Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company, in The Arcadians, opened a three nights' engagement to a house that packed the theatre in every part. The play was received with even more enthusiasm than on the last visit here. Mr. Gus Axley works hard, and with sterling success, as Simplicitas; Mr. G. Hestor's melancholy humour proved irresistible as Peter Doody; Mr. Nelson Hancock as Jack Meadows and Miss Mysie Devine as Eileen Cavanagh score heavily both in song and dance; Miss Madge Haines is highly diverting as Mrs. Smith; and Miss Maggie Jarvis quickly wins all hearts as Sombra, her delightful singing meeting with keen appreciation. The chorus is strong and tuneful, and splendidly mounted and staged, The Arcadians prove most attractive.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Temptation, as presented here this week by Miss Nora Carton's company, is attracting full and highly appreciative houses. The play is well acted, and the scenery and effects are much above the average. As Sir Charles Tremaine Mr. Charles H. Mortimer is a great success; whilst a practical and forcible performance is that of Mr. Norman A. Overton as the villain Hubert Thorne; some able renderings are given by Mr.

Girl to Millionaires, which is elaborately staged and powerfully acted.

WORKMEN'S HALL.—Manager, Mr. H. Salway.—The Leonas appear in a novel instrumental act; A Game for Two, given by the Custances causes hearty laughter.

PETERBOROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—A good audience witnessed Our Flat, presented by Mr. Murray King and company on Monday night. The principal characters were ably undertaken by Mr. Murray (Nathaniel Glover), Mr. Warburton Gamble (Reginald Sylvester), Mr. Bernard Stacey (Clarence Vane), Mr. Ardene Linden (McCullum), Florence Radcliffe (Marjory Sylvester), and Louie Tinsley (Bella).

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—The top line of an interesting programme is this week occupied by Duncan and Godfrey in The Coster's Courtship; F. E. Johnstone, character vocalist, gains applause; Maudie Olmar is a clever child dancer; Clifford Morgan, in a pot-pourri of operatic melodies, earns warm approval; Sergeant Mumford gives a clever performance on the wire; Billy Rhodes is a droll comedian; and Dion Wade is an amusing comedian who takes well. The Karnoscope shows new films.

PLYMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—A brilliant performance here of The Dollar Princess was thoroughly enjoyed on Monday. As Alice, the Dollar Princess, Miss Kathleen Courtney is responsible for some delightful acting; Miss Muriel Allen is a fascinating Olga; Miss Daisy Elleston an attractive Daisy; Mr. Horace Mills as Bulger is the life and soul of the humorous business; Mr. Hugh Henson as Dick renders material assistance; Mr. Alec. Worcester as Freddy Fairfax is exceedingly popular; and Mr. Fred Leslie maintains his well-established reputation with his rendering of the rôle of Harry Conder. The dressing and mounting are of the usual Edwardes magnificence.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. J. Field. — Mendel, the wonderful blind pianist, receives a rousing reception on making his re-appearance here after an extended Australian tour, and his subsequent efforts fully deserve the appreciation bestowed; the Zanfrellas, American novelty equilibrists, perform some daring and sensational work on a revolving pedestal; Dan Whitley is as amusing as ever; Josh Clifton's Six Ceylons in A Dream in an Opium Den use their sketch as a means of introducing some new and skilfully executed acrobatic and contortionist feats; Reginald Jecks is responsible for some popular ballads; and the Sisters Du Caine entertain with smart and attractive dancing. The remaining numbers are contributed by Fred Earle and Archie Pitt (comedians).

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Lessee, Mrs. George Tankard.—Frank Elliston and company occupy the premier position on the bill here this week in The Snowstorm; or, Jane Shore in a Hurry. Loch and Glen (Seth and Nellie) in a triple-bar act are both comical and sensational; the Lysando Bros. give a neat and clever hand-to-hand balancing act; Herman and Evelyn contribute a smart wire act; Edwards and Ward delight with their patter, &c.; and Cosselly, Witty Will Pearce, Harry King, and the Alexscope all contribute to the evening's enjoyment.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Chas. Trenchard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Willie Trenchard.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company play successfully to good houses The Gay Gordons. Miss May Yates is a big favourite as Peggy; and Mr. Alec S. Clunes is a successful Angus. Miss Beatrice Grosvenor is a capital Mary McLeod; and Miss Edie Adeson is an excellent Victoria Siddons. Mr. Harry Howe and Miss Kitty Kerwan are good as Nat and his wife Charlotte; Miss Mavis Clare is admirable as Mary McLeod; Mr. W. H. Desmond is a successful Edmund Siddons; and Mr. Charles Benson is excellent as Andrew Quainton; Mr. Stanley Maude is good as Corporal Smith; Messrs. Cyril Stowell, Eric Lester, Eric Ford, Clarence Gordon, and J. W. Harding are jolly officers of the Gordons; Mr. Alfred Lloyd is meritorious as Lawyer Speedy; and Mr. Alfred J. Gale is amusing and clever as Jock. The Misses Mabel Crough (Peasant Woman), Nina Goss (Lady Græme), and Marion Bradford (Lady Millicent) are also successful parts.

PORTH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. J. W. Bynorth.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company is presenting The Beggar Princess to crowded houses. Mr. J. Rice Cassidy as the Hon. Algernon Fitzhugh is very funny; Mr. Alf Boxhall makes a capital King Olga; Mr. Juan d'Albert as the villainous Duke Sergius Rubinoff does some effective work, skilfully aided by Miss Ada Roscoe as the Countess Olga; Michael Ichon is successfully interpreted by Mr. Henry Danson; Tonny Bostock is cleverly acted by Miss Isabel Hunt; and Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy gives a successful rendering of Seaweed.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur A. Horner.—Our Miss Gibbs, presented by Mr. George Dance's company, is here this week. Miss Jessie Lonnen admirably renders the name-part; Miss Lilian Birtles wins favour as Lady Elizabeth Thanet; Miss Emily Stevens shows to advantage as the impecunious Mrs. Farquhar; Miss Helen Langton impersonates the imperious Duchess of Minster; Mr. Theodore Leonard, Mary's Yorkshire cousin, Timothy, is the life and soul of the play, and is ably supported by Mr. Eustace Burnaby as Hughie; Mr. Hugh Weybrance renders good service as Lord Enysford; Mr. Ernest Darrell shows to advantage as the dignified Earl St. Ives; Mr. Toplady has a capable exponent in Mr. Campbell Browne; and the Misses Aylwin, Vining, and Terri make three pretty Irish colleens.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company present At Cripple Creek here this week. The part of Joe Mayfield, the hero, is in the capable hands of Mr. Wernham Ryott, and Miss Agnes Verity gives a clever rendering of Dynamite Ann. Mr. Charles E. Johnson is well suited as Martin Mason, the terror of Cripple Creek; Mr. Wilfred Jessop gives a clever impersonation of Wahketah, the faithful Indian; Belle Gordon, the luckiest girl in the Creek, is shown to advantage in Miss O'Neill; whilst Sarah Lively does not belie her name in the form of Miss Nora Dillon.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Captain E. Warren-Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Mr. Oswald Williams, assisted by Miss Winifred Barte and company, proves himself a clever illusionist. James Willard and company successfully present a military sketch, The Devil's Box of Bricks; Arthur Astill scores as a child mimic and ventriloquist; Ina Lorrimer is a smart Scotch comedienne; and others include Williams and Parker (vocal comedy duo), the Rhoderick Duo (Caledonian Girls), and Will Cornish, comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The popular George Mozart was unfortunately unable to appear on Monday night owing to illness, being substituted by Gilday and Fox, Hebrew comedians, whose songs and patter were very funny. Sensational feats on cycles were performed by Paulton and Dooley; a laughable sketch, Bink's Blunder, was capitally played by Harry Russell and company; a clever pair of American vaudeville entertainers are Montgomery and Moore; and also amusing are the Hyde and Cody Trio of acrobatic eccentrics, Stevens and Brett, W. G. Westley, and Ted Cowan.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—Herbert Lloyd, "the King of Diamonds," in his burlesque on "Variety," concluding with his Scotch Brigade, is one of the chief mirth-provokers this week. Lola Lee gracefully imitates French and Spanish dances and the Kate Vaughan Waltz; humour and music by the Four Quaint Q's are appreciated; Harry Tate's No. 1 Company raise many a laugh in Motoring; Smaun Sing Hpoo is an interesting miniature man and ring gymnast; 'Xmas Eve is a good sketch, well played by Irve Hayman and Little Girl; the Six White Boys sing and dance with precision; the Alaskas are clever comedy acrobats; the Bros. Bright excel as equilibrists and athletes; Nell Emerald is a pretty comedienne; and an amusing film, Mrs. Nosey, is depicted by the Kingscope.

CLARENCE PIER.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. Cuddy.—Mr. Joseph Brett, tenor, and Miss Agnes Christa, soprano, delighted a large audience on Saturday, while the string band of the R.M.L.I., under Lieut. Geo. Miller, performed with their accustomed skill.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Alban Newton.—Mr. H. C. Dudley Bennett's company in the musical comedy A Chinese Honeymoon is attracting good houses this week, and no dull moments are experienced while the curtain is up. Mr. Rudolf Kloss makes an impressive and humorous Emperor, Hang Chow, and Mr. Harry Spawton is a grotesque Lord Chancellor, Chippie Chop; Mr. Frank H. Crimp is a decided acquisition as Tom Hatherton, his song, "A passing cloud," being well received; Mr. Leonard May imbues the part of High Lung with much humour; Mr. Colin Bryce as Mr. Pineapple works hard, and is well rewarded for his efforts; Miss Gertrude Melville as Mrs. Pineapple is a great success, and scores with her song, "The à la girl"; Miss Dora Speakman has an excellent make-up as the official mother-in-law, Mrs. Brown; Miss Gladys Ivery is a bewitching Princess Soo Soo, and her singing and dancing bring her loud applause; Miss Gwennie Harcourt as Fo-Fo is inimitable, and brings down the house; she is certainly one of the cleverest low comediennes ever seen here; Miss Nance Langley is a capital Mi-Mi; and the Misses Renad, Beberley, Lisle and Green, as the bridesmaids, are equally good in their respective parts. The play is capitally mounted, and the chorus and augmented orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Clement Locknane, go with a swing.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Clarkson.—Frederick Melville's powerful drama, Her Forbidden Marriage, is a strong attraction here. Mr. Frank Denis is an excellent Sir George; Mr. H. B. Wilson is to be complimented on his clever portrayal of the hero, George Maddison; and in Miss Alice Bowes, as Lucy, he was strongly supported; Mr. Fred de Vere is inimitably funny as Timothy Tuttutt; Mr. W. H. Power comes out strong as the villain, Charles Devereux, and is ably supported in his stage villainy by Miss Vera Grafton, as Lady Lancaster, and Mr. T. Macdonald, as Geoffrey Broughton. The comedy element is ably presented by Miss Kitty Merrick, as Patty Lovejoy, and Mr. Vincent Lorraine as Joe Lambkin, Miss Rita Tomkins scores as the Mother Superior, and Little Lucy by "herself" plays capitally.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Arthur Roberts tops the bill again on his return visit, and this time displays his versatility in his sketch Till Sunday; J. W. Hall is a great favourite here; W. E. Gillin, the ventriloquial humourist, creates much mirth; the Four Athos, in addition to being exceedingly clever acrobats, give a wonderful turn in ball manipulation; the Derrington Family have a sensational cycling act; Clifford Stuart is a capital comedian; Ida Dorrie a pleasing comedienne; Arnold Richardson, supported by Miss Ethel Lonsdale and Mr. A. Gordon Laws, presents a clever sketch, Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, which elicits much applause.

RADCLIFFE (near Manchester).—GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Messrs. Brandon and Carlsen's company is here in Naughty Ninette. Miss Celestine Brandon in the title-rôle is smart and lively; Miss May Leslie deserves praise as the Countess of Mayfair; Miss Patty Hazel sings well as Millicent, and Miss Alice Chasemore deserves a word as Mrs. Moggs. Mr. Frank Cleo undertakes the rôle of Wraggs creditably; Mr. Edwin Lewis is good as Professor Moggs, and Mr. Herbert Waller is well placed as the Hon. Launcelot Ingoldsby. On Wednesday Miss Horniman's company gave a flying matinée of Candida.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee and Director, Mr. Charles Evans; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—C. W. Poole's myriorama has made a welcome reappearance here. In addition to the myriorama, there is a capital variety entertainment, contributed to by Amasis (the "Wizard of the Nile") Trio; the Ettenas, globe speciality artists; Vasey and Ramsey, comedy entertainers; Inez and Pim, gymnasts; Jerome Duo, eccentric novelty jugglers; and W. L. Rowland, fun furnisher.

MARINA THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Attack.—An interesting series of animated pictures is being given here. Leslie Race is a popular comedian.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. Hamilton Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Renshaw.—Mr. Harry Aynsleigh's company in The King of Diamonds is well received by appreciative audiences. Mr. Harry Aynsleigh as Sir Philip Garth gives a good impersonation; Mr. George Keene as Richard Fenton is most successful; Mr. Walter Warren is excellent as Herbert Selby; Mr. Aubrey Norton is a capable Sir Richard Steel; Miss Caroline Treherne makes an excellent Olive Vandell; and Miss Peggy Ross is a capable Muriel Lockwood.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is providing a rich treat this week, which is being greatly appreciated by lovers of good music. The répertoire for the week comprises: Faust on Monday, Samson and Delilah (the first performance in Reading) on Tuesday, Carmen at a special matinée on Wednesday, Maritana on Wednesday evening, Il Trovatore on Thursday, Tannhäuser on Friday, and The Bohemian Girl on Saturday. The operas are all splendidly mounted, special scenery and costumes for each being carried. On the opening night Faust was produced in admirable style, the principals being most ably impersonated by Mr. Albert Bowyer in the title-rôle, Mr. Harry Brindle as Mephistopheles, Mr. Graham Marr as Valentine, Mr. Moorhouse as Wagner, Miss Olive Westwood as Siebel, and Miss Rosa O'Farrell as Marguerite. Mr. Harrison Frewin is the conductor and musical-director.

THE PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Curline Baldry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Geo. Kedge.—Claude Anderson's Opera Company is giving condensed versions of Maritana, Faust, Il Trovatore, and The Bohemian Girl here this week, in excellent style. The principals are Mr. Claude Anderson, Miss Clara Addison, Mr. F. Hudson, Mr. A. Sedgley, Mr. Geo. Effing, and Miss Toni Seiter, all of whom act and sing with great ability. Mr. Hal Bert is an amusing acrobatic comedian-singer; Mr. Frank Melvin's songs are well received; Nellie Kollie is an accomplished vocalist; Grace Dalton, comedienne, and C. H. Charton, the phenomenal conjurer, provide good turns; the Macjans, Continental comedy gymnasts, give a clever performance; and the Ten Dixie Girls appear in a pretty vocal scena, The Silver Coon.

ROCHDALE.—ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company in The Private Secretary is having a very successful week. Mr. James Hussey is very clever as the Rev. Robert Spalding; Mr. W. Hargreaves is seen to advantage as Mr. Cattermole; Mr. William Carriden is good as Mr. Marsland; Mr. Horace George and Mr. Arthur Claremont are capital as Douglas Cattermole and Harry Marsland; Mr. Kendal Chalmers is an excellent Mr. Sydney Gibson; Miss Mary Mallalieu as Edith Marsland is attractive; and Miss Elsie Blythe as Eva Webster is charming.

HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson.—The chief item is Senorita Carmen Turia, the Spanish prima donna; Frank Hartley does some smart juggling; Mysterious Mysticus bewilders everyone with his tricks; and Wood, Wells, and Wilkins are most amusing in the comedy sketch The Piano Tuner. Maud Courtney and Mr. C. sing and patter effectively; Cumminger and Colonna, sand dancers, and Professor Thornbury, a lightning painter, also appear.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Ralph Pringle; Manager, Mr. James Pringle.—The variety turns added to the pictures are Mille and Arthur in their sketch Domestic Bliss; Will and Nell, juvenile vocalists and dancers; and Wyndham and Kitty, wire artists.

ROTHERHAM.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Rotherham Hippodrome, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur R. Holland.—Lockhart's wonderful group of trained elephants, under the direction of Captain Taylor, provide a novel entertainment here this week; The Days of Romance is capitally presented by Miss Margaret Ruby and Mr. Ernest Laws; Mastro and Oretta appear in a combination of juggling, balancing, and feats of strength; Dave O'Toole and Arthur Croxon provide the humour of the programme with success; Les Supriskis are a couple of clever gymnasts; Burnetti, as an original quick-change artist and musician, comes in for plenty of applause; and Stuart and Stuart are quaint comedy entertainers and smart dancers.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company in Her Nameless Child occupy the boards here this week. Mr. J. H. Evelyn gives a characteristic portrayal of the rôle of Anthony Ford; Miss Jean Wigney is a sympathetic Phyllis Ford, and the other parts are all admirably sustained.

RUNCORN.—PUBLIC HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—The Bros. Obo create much laughter; Clara Hastings submits choice songs; Lauteron is responsible for an entertaining act; the Welislands are seen to advantage; and the pictures are much enjoyed.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Sutton Vane is presenting Two Lancashire Lasses in London, with Miss Florence Zillwood as Constance and Miss Mabel Coleman as Nellie. Mr. R. Gilbert works well as John Edmunds; Mr. Edward M. Heanley as Jonas Dean, Mr. T. Dennis Byron as the Rev. Frank Selby, Mr. T. Newell as Samuel Hallett, Miss Geraldine Verner as Bessie Edmunds, Miss Rita Corri as Lucy, and Miss Doris Kelvey as Jane Adelaide Bloomfield give good studies of their several parts. The staging is good, and large audiences give evidence of their appreciation of the play.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. R. H. Lee.—John Lawson's company, including Mr. Rene W. Owen, Mr. Charles Stafford, Miss Maud Babbington, and Miss Rosamond Thompson give an effective representation of Humanity. Fred Land, comedian, keeps the house in hearty laughter; Rowland Hill is also very comical; Sterling and Love, in "Discord and Harmony," are much applauded; the Two Countees harmonise well, and are amusing; Ivey Aberdare is a pleasing comedienne and wooden shoe dancer; Cecile Shannon sings well; and the Bros. Milford, comedians, are very expert dancers.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Boyle.—Fred Karno's Mumming Birds and Skating are very amusing; Adela Masson sings well; Dix and Doc, eccentric musicians, Belle and Austin, in "A Fatal Rehearsal," Tom Collins, light comedian, Will E. Fall, eccentric comedian, and May de Rowse also give acceptable turns.

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Resident-Manager, Mr. Aubrey Allen.—A Trades and Inventions Exhibition is now being held here, and is proving very popular. The various attractions include illuminated fairy fountain, the Red Rose Orchestra (Manton-Myatt Family), Prince Ishmael (Hindoo magic), cinematograph, hall of laughter, &c.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. J. Orton Hayes.—Another successful week is being held, and a good programme is nightly presented. The following plays occupy the boards this week: Two Little Vagabonds, Hands Across the Sea, An Imperial Divorce, East Lynne, The Woman in Red, and Queen of Hearts.

SEACOMBE.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Messrs. Doddridge, Longden, and Livesey's company presents The Village Blacksmith here this week. The title-rôle is depicted in excellent fashion by Mr. Sam Livesey, his little son Harry being an interesting child study by little Gladys Brittain; Captain Leo receives able treatment at the hands of Mr. Joseph Carter; Lucas Marler is satisfactorily rendered by Mr. J. Milne Taylor; Mr. J. H. Langford does all that is required as St. John Harman; Jeremiah Parkins is a good study by Mr. J. H. Langford, his better half, Sal, being naturally played by Miss Nellie Graham; Mr. Joe Hodson creates much fun as Billy Twigg; Miss Nellie Sinclair is good as Martha Mopps; Ruth Parkins finds an able exponent in Miss Cassie le Grande; and Miss Maggie Edwards is an emotional Kate Strong.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Mr. J. W. Cordiner's company is paying a welcome return visit with Dare-Devil Dorothy. As Capt. George Fielding Mr. Walter Ashley leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. James Morath as the scheming Capt. Edward Dudley is effective; Silas Crump is invested with much humour by Mr. James Salter, and Mr. Geoffrey Berwick as the dude, Featherstone Haugh, is responsible for much merriment; Mr. Edward Aldworth is a capable Hawkins; Dorothy finds a charming exponent in Miss Dorothy Desmonde, a pleasing vocalist; Ruth is satisfactorily drawn by Miss Margaret S. Forbes; and as Judith Miss Florence Corri is popular. Several enjoyable speciality turns are introduced in Act 3.

SHEERNESS.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Willerby.—Mr. J. C. Lodge-Percy and company opened a three nights' engagement here with Mr. Barnes of New York and Moths. In the former play Mr. Lodge-Percy gave a fine exposition of the title-rôle; and Miss Henrietta Schrier was an admirable Marina Paoli. Variety fills the bill for the last three nights.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Miss Ethel Irving is appearing to appreciative audiences this week in Dame Nature, supported by Mr. Norman Forbes, Mr. Frank Cooper, and other well-known artists.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey Aldred.—A cleverly-constructed and well-written drama, full of unaffected pathos and domestic interest is It's Always the Woman, written by Riada, which was played for the first time in Sheffield on Monday by Mr. Frank Adair's specially selected company. All the characters were effectively played, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adair appearing with great success in leading parts. The play was carefully mounted, and its enthusiastic reception by a crowded house augurs well for a long and prosperous tour.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. C. W. Ramsey.—The Angel of His Dreams, a story of Cornwall, was acted to a large and interested audience on Monday by Messrs. Geo. A. de Gray and H. Masterman's company. Mr. de Gray was good as Christian Esdaile; Miss Amy Dalby acted gracefully as Milly, Miss Effie Bartlett made a handsome Hilda Revelle, and good work was done by Mr. W. Campbell as Major Ferrars, Mr. W. Kenion as Sir Francis Tregarthen, Mr. Robert Hall as Roy Ferrars, Mr. M. Clyde as Sam, Mr. W. Thornton as Frank Roberts, Mr. B. Carlton as Jackson, Mr. Chas. Wakefield as Smart, Little Doris Brereton as Lulu, and Miss Etta Turner as Bessie Sparkles. Some artistic scenery added local colour to a well-told tale. "The angel of my dreams," published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, was loudly applauded.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The old Sheffield favourite, the "idol of London" and of two hemispheres, Miss Vesta Tilley, is again starring here with new songs and favourite impersonations. Other clever performers this week are Mr. Tom Parker, humorist; the Hardini Trio, in a refined and novel act; Mr. Albert Rees, vocalist; Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas, whose clever and splendidly staged Scenes from Dickens have won them the esteem of the countless lovers of England's greatest author; Mr. Harry Gray, entertainer; the Du Gros Trio, acrobatic experts, &c.; Roze and Calvert, in Captain Kettle and the Lady Fair; the Bioscope; and Miss Mary Ambrose.

THE HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—A well-arranged programme this week is contributed to by Mlle. Medicis, a graceful and refined lady poseuse; Beattie and Babs, two remarkably clever young vocalists and mimetic entertainers; the Eight Saxones, in a smart display of terpsichorean agility; the Asras, novelty performers; Radford and Valentine, the juggling tramp and the pretty soubrette; Philips and Bristow, Miss Bertie Herron, Miss Eileen Northe, and the lively and diverting comedian of Cockaigne, Mr. Alec Hurley, with lively jokes, jocular ditties, and nimble "steps." The Bioscope pictures are, as usual, artistic.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baugh.—Mr. W. V. Garrod's capable and hard-working company was here on the first three nights of this week with the interesting and realistic drama A Country Girl in London. The part of Frank Gordon, the hero, was exceedingly well sustained by Mr. Charles Halling; Mr. Scott Leighton was admirable in his portrayal of the villainies of Godfrey Clinton, an adventurer; Mr. Frank Dallas gave a faithful delineation of the character part of Heinrich Oppenheim, a naturalised Englishman; Miss Maude Merrick was very successful and pleasing as Marjorie Hamilton; the rôle of Gwendoline Gordon was very cleverly taken by Miss Elsie Marriott Wilson; Mr. Fred Wilberforce proved efficient as Mr. John Hamilton, the squire; the part of Joe Button was capably undertaken by Mr. Edward Ashton; Job Smithers (a ne'er-do-well) was excellently depicted by Mr. Sutton Pateman; while Mr. Seymour Perry and Miss Alice Clarke caused much hilarity as Wilberforce and Adelaide Puddyphat. Mr. Churchill's jovial Happy Valley Minstrels gave entertaining performances during the remainder of the week.

SMETHWICK.—ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—A Criminal's Bride is cleverly interpreted by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. Mr. Frank Robertson, as Sir Harry Felstead, plays in a thoroughly artistic manner; Austin Deepdale is capitally portrayed by Mr. Annesley Hely; Archie Ravenscourt is well represented by Mr. Harry T. Butler; Mr. Herbert Belmore acquits himself creditably as Giuseppe Canova; Mr. J. Templar Ellis is a clever stage detective; Mr. George Brenewood as P.-C. Dumbleby, Miss Molly Hackett as Jenny Jenkins, and Miss Lillah Peltz provide plenty of light comedy; Miss Maud Tremaine as Kitty Felstead shows great histrionic ability; Miss Elizabeth Dundas plays Lavender Loseby in a sweet, tactful manner that earns for her a deal of favour; Miss Ella Willmer presents a sound study of Tessa Gianella; Mr. Alf. Rushen as P.-C. Barraby, and Mr. Teddy Leonard as Billy Tippit also give a good account of themselves.

EMPIRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Kennedy; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Adams; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Leslie.—The pictures at the Empire are of good quality and the subjects attractive, while the vaudeville turns are of more than average merit. Ray and Douglas, the popular comedy couple, are much appreciated; Belford and Mars, vocal comedy duo, are well received; Phinas and Aida are clever revolving equilibrists; the Brothers Yentoy; hand-to-hand balancers, are well to the fore; the original T. W. Barrett is warmly applauded for his songs; Renot, newsboy impersonator of music hall stars, pleased, and the same can be said of Fred Leslie, comedian. Lucie Prinello's dancing, dance, and music, provides a really excellent turn.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—This week Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds appear in their new romantic play The King's Romance, which is successfully presented. On Friday afternoon Mr. Cyril Maude and the Playhouse London company, including Miss Kate Rorke and Miss Margery Maude, presented The Toymaker of Nuremberg. This delightful play was enthusiastically received, and Mr. and Miss Maude, with the other members of the excellent company, received a cordial welcome.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—Topping the list here is Fred Karno's company in Mr. Justice Perkins, which is a screamer from start to finish. Mr. Albert Bruno, who has now succeeded Mr. Fred Kitchen as Mr. Karno's principal comedian, appears as Perkins, and keeps the house in roars of laughter. Marie Kendall scores with her latest songs, and others who appear are the Hesseys, Hillman and Russell, Phil Bransby, Archie Glen, Two Vestas, and Steve McCarthy.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—Herr Julius Walther, the celebrated tenor from the Carl Rosa Opera Company, sings delightfully; Mr. W. H. Benson's company score in a thrilling sketch Roguery; the Four Maisons excel in a musical act; the Three Michael Richardinis are sensational gymnasts; Toch and Tard create great merriment; and Miss Ada Reeve, Rose and Jeanette, and Milner and Storey also contribute their quota.

PHILHARMONIC HALL.—Proprietors, The Walturdaw Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Fred Boustead.—Delightful pictures are being shown here, and crowded houses twice nightly are the rule at this successful picture palace.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julian Graham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Archibald Pareezer.—On Monday Mr. T. Edward Ward's company presented the domestic play entitled His Real Wife. Miss Ward was an interesting Rose Avondale; Mr. J. C. Stewart as the blind farmer, Martin Avondale, was a masterly exponent, and shared honours with Mr. Clifford Rean for an able characterisation of Herbert Barton; Mr. Charles Yorke depicted villainy in creditable style; Messrs. Herbert Vere and John Waddington being also successful. Mr. T. Edward Ward provided comedy in an irresistible manner, and Miss Clarrie Yandell as Betty Tuttlebee was well received.

THE HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Lewis de Burgh.—A programme quite distinct from any of its predecessors is being presented to large audiences at the Hippodrome this week. The first item is provided by Natalea and Diana, a couple of gymnasts whose evolutions are particularly smart; Sam Fry, comedian, sings some good songs; Ethel Ra Leslie is as winsome as she is smart, and her Scotch songs are delightful; a touching little domestic story is unfolded by Mr. Herbert Heath's company in Mill; the Five Sidney Girls, picturesquely attired in black and yellow, contribute some catchy songs; and Harry Tate's company get plenty of fun out of a remarkable flying machine. David Poole, ventriloquist, with the assistance of a little messenger, creates roars of laughter; and Pasquali Bros. are two clever equilibrists.

PIER PAVILION.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Stanley Smith.—On Wednesday Mr. Finlay Dunn, who won much popularity during the summer season as the entrepreneur of the Pier Hill Bandstand, commenced on Monday a week's engagement with Mr. G. R. Beaumont's motion photos, and provided an instructive and highly entertaining programme. Miss Mora Hersee is the soloist.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Percy Hutchison; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Clarkson.—The House of Temperley was played here on Monday evening. Mr. Stratton Rodney sustains the rôle of Sir Charles Temperley with distinct success; Mr. Murray Carson is to be credited with a capital impersonation of Sir John Hawker; Mr. Claude King is a commendable exponent of Jack Temperley; Tom Spring had a realistic representative in Mr. A. F. Thorne; Miss Claire Pauncefort plays Lady Temperley creditably; Miss Una Venning is good as Ethel Morley; Mr. Blake-Adams submits a praiseworthy representation of Ginger Stubbs; Jakes the bookmaker was capitally portrayed by Mr. Leon M. Lion; whilst Tom Cribb and Lucy were efficiently sustained by Mr. Douglas Munro and Miss Polly Emery respectively.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Coulson. — Mr. Walter Melville's combination appears in A Girl's Cross Roads to good houses. Mr. Carl F. Kerso portrays Jack Livingstone in fine style; a good character study of John Meadows is submitted by Mr. Edward Valentine; the heavy parts are capably performed by Mr. Fred Rivers as Cuthbert Lumley and Mr. Leslie Nolan as Luke Ramsden; the Barbara Wade of Miss Nell Oliver is a striking representation; Miss Ada Rothwell as Nellie Meadows and Miss Florrie Lyndon as Constance Cornell are all that can be desired; the comedy element is strongly represented by Mr. Willie Scott as Toby Turvey and Miss Amy Rudd as Tilly Vane.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen.—The premier turn is Anzani, who performs the difficult feat of propelling a motor cycle round a sphere which is whirling in the opposite direction. The real McKays, talented juveniles, sing Scotch duets and dance delightfully; Rhoda Paul, male impersonator, comes in for a good share of approval; Fred Shepherd, comedy vocalist, sings well; Harry Dunco and Louie Langdon submit a comedy and dancing scena entitled The Railway Porter; and other good items are the Eisteddfod Prize Vocal Sextette, Russel Brandow, and the Bioscope.

GRAND ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Will Clark.—Chiko, the world's equilibrist, has an excellent reception; Geo. Hunter and Bob, acrobatic and eccentric dancers, are also successful, and the animated pictures complete the entertainment.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—The Prodigal Parson is the attraction here, presented by Mr. W. V. Garrod's company. Mr. W. V. Garrod gives a good delineation of the Rev. Tom Godley; Mr. Ernest Vaughan makes a capital Enoch Jaggins; Mr. Carthage Coldcleugh is equally successful as Ben Jaggins; and Mr. Owen Redmond as Phil Drive is very humorous. Miss Bertha Kingston as Fern Godley played with much effectiveness; Miss Madge Douglas gave a successful study of Gretcher Van Crans; Miss Amy Shaw as Fraulein Korale was admirable; and Miss Celia Barnard as Myrtle Godley acted well.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Mr. Arthur Sleep; Manager and Operator, Mr. Leslie Talmage.—A capital programme is submitted here. The Royal Diamonds are clever as one-legged equilibrists; Miss Violet Courtney is a popular vocalist; and Miss May Thorne comes in for applause for her favourite songs. Good films are also shown.

ARCADIA. — Proprietor, Mr. R. F. Gowland; Manager, Mr. George Cashey.—Will Athlone and Miss Cissie Sinclaire are good in an original drawing-room act; Kydd and Kydd are a couple of successful patter comedians; Daisy and Dot, duettists and dancers, are well received; and Rohde and Roche are pleasing chameleon artists. Pict

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"DIE SCHAUSPIELER DES KAISERS," Drama, in Three Acts, by Karl Wartenberg. Produced at the Neues Theatre, Oct. 29.

De Gaulaincourt ..... Herr Werckmeister
Didier ..... Herr Schwaiger
Maurice ..... Herr Storkel
Bernard ..... Herr Halden
Anatole ..... Herr Becker
Sansnom ..... Herr Bonn
Manon ..... Fraulein Veit
Thibaud ..... Herr Schmidthassler
Claude ..... Herr Parow
Diener ..... Herr Walter

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, Thursday, Nov. 3.—Among an abundance of new plays this week, Wartenberg's drama came also as a novelty, notwithstanding the fact that it was performed for the first time forty years ago. It ran then for a long time with extraordinary success, and has not been given in Berlin since. A good deal of grass has grown over it, but it still interests the average theatre-goer considerably, and the reception at the Neues was more than cordial. Its success, if the truth be told, largely depended upon Herr Bonn again. The play, indeed, contains but two characters to speak of—Urbain Sansnom and the girl he loves, Manon Ballier. Sansnom is, when we first see him, a poor rope-dancer, whose one ambition is to become a great actor. Unhappily, the seeds of consumption are in him; but, nothing daunted, he pursues his studies with the ardour of a fanatic, and he succeeds. The action passes in the reign of Napoleon, in whose company of Court actors at the Théâtre Français Sansnom is taken, and meets Manon, the leading actress. On the night when he makes his début, which is a triumph of art, applauded by the Emperor and the Court, poor Sansnom falls dead at the close of the performance. That Herr Bonn had a rôle to suit him to perfection is apparent to anyone who knows that eminent actor. He was called and re-called before the curtain times innumerable, the audience waxing more enthusiastic every moment. Fräulein Veit, a remarkably clever young actress, came in for her share of applause, and the minor characters were all well sustained. Thanks to Herr Bonn, the piece is certain of a renewed lease of life.

Dr. Ludwig Fulda's new three-act drama, Herr und Diener, acted and staged though it was at the Deutsches on Saturday with every possible pains, cannot be called a great success. The house was crowded with a well-disposed audience, who cheered the author feebly, and endeavoured, out of respect and admiration of his former works, to enter into the spirit of the tragic story; but it was very difficult, and at the most tragic parts a sound was heard as of suppressed giggling. The "master" is an enigmatical King of Persia at some distant period; the "servant" is his Grand Vizier. The former's mind is poisoned against the latter by a spiteful woman, wife of the said monarch, who, having tried to gain the ear of the Grand Vizier in vain, determines to ruin him. The King believes her when she tells him his servant is bent upon undermining the Sovereign and supplanting him. The infuriated potentate tries to subdue his enemy by the queerest means: he wrestles with him; he presents a dagger to the Grand Vizieress, makes a little love to her, and advocates that she stab her husband; he also, finally, condemns his chief "servant" to death. But in all these tricks and many others the King is worsted, and the Grand Vizier, like Sir Ernest Shackleton's microbes, always comes up smiling. He offers his wife—the most beautiful woman in the land, we are assured—to his master, and he is fully prepared to go to the scaffold whenever the King wishes, having no intention of begging for his life. Failing in humiliating his servant, the King goes into a frenzy, and when his wife tells him she has been fibbing all the time out of unrequited love, his Majesty has no better use for the dagger he had given to the other lady than to turn it against himself. This is a bare sketch of Dr. Fulda's latest play, which will hardly rival his former works. Herr Walden struggled manfully with the rôle of the very silly King. Herr Bassermann gave a fine reading of the "servant"; Fräulein Durieux and Fräulein Höflich were also excellent as the wives of the King and Vizier respectively.

Caruso had a splendid send-off on Sunday. The great tenor sang the part of Nemorino in Donizetti's charming and too-little-known opera, L'Elisir d'Amore (in German, Liebestrank). After cheering till they were hoarse and the ladies had waved their handkerchiefs till their arms ached, the packed house let the idol go, cries of "A rividerci" and "Auf Wiedersehen" following him into his dressing-room. The clever scoundrel who forged stall tickets, selling them at 50 marks each, has not yet been discovered.

"SCHERZO."

Dance-poem, in Three Acts, by MM. Hartmann and Huber. Produced at the Deutsches Chamber Plays, on Nov. 4.

Dame ..... Fraulein E. Wiesenthal
Page ..... Fraulein B. Wiesenthal
Duenna ..... Fraulein von Bulow
Don Balthazar ..... Herr Matray
Graf ..... Herr Plitschke
Torero ..... Herr Karchow

BERLIN, Thursday, Nov. 10.—The Sisters Wiesenthal are already known here as charming dancers, the grace and modesty of whom is perhaps unrivalled in this country and certainly not surpassed anywhere. They hail, I believe, from Vienna, but they are international in their art. The novelty, entitled Scherzo, is a play without words. Herr Huber is responsible for the plot, and Herr Hartmann has written extremely taking music round it. Altogether, we welcome the pantomime, whose cordial reception augurs well for its career. The plot is symbolical, and may be told in few words. A lovely woman—"die Dame"—has four suitors—a young page, a wealthy count, a strong toreador, and a diabolical, uncanny cavalier. She coquettes in turn with all four, then goes to supper with three of them, and sends the poor page, who is left outside in the cold, a sweetmeat to console him. For the mysterious cavalier we are to understand his Satanic Majesty, the page represents love and passion, the Count personifies wealth, and the toreador physical strength. All these encircle the woman in characteristic and most fascinating dances, and the music is grotesque, tender, and dramatic by turns. It would be hard to say whether Elsa or Berta was the most applauded; both sisters received their due measure, being called and recalled. The remaining parts were satisfactorily rendered, and the mounting was everything that could be desired. Following Scherzo came Schreker's "White Waltz," danced by the two pretty sisters, Strauss's "Dorfschwalben," in which Fräulein Elsa Wiesenthal excelled herself, and as the closing number of the delightful evening some Offenbach dances were executed by the two clever artists.

A four-act play, entitled Der scharfe Junker, by Georg Engel, was produced with distinct success at the Berliner Theatre last week. It is erroneously styled a drama; in reality, it is more of a comedy. The action passes in Pomerania among the gentlemen farmers of that agricultural district. The hero, the Junker von Bünzelwitz, is generally considered to be a hard-hearted, sharp landowner, with an overweening sense of his own importance, and a woman-hater into the bargain. In reality, of course, he is just the opposite, and the story of his falling in love is told with the author's wonted humour. The acting was very bright, and the piece was effectively staged.

The forthcoming production of Adela Maddison's four-act opera, Der Talisman, at the Leipzig Opera House, is being looked forward to with great eagerness both in German and English circles. The libretto is the famous versical drama, by Dr. Ludwig Fulda, which made such a sensation when it was produced at the Deutsches Theatre a number of years ago, and which had an unprecedented run. It has been somewhat curtailed by the composer, but is otherwise the original text. Of the music the best things are reported; the German character has been preserved throughout, despite the fact that Mrs. Maddison has studied many years in Paris and her songs bear visible traces of the French school. Der Talisman was accepted by the Leipzig Opera House management at once, and the management has taken the greatest pains with cast and mounting. The fine thirteenth-century costumes have been specially designed by Dr. Steiner-Prag, of the Leipzig Academy of Art. The artists are the best the theatre possesses, which is saying a good deal, and the conductor is Egon Pollak, one of the rising Kapellmeisters of Germany. The manager, by the way, is Dr. Hans Loewenfeld, who made a name for himself in Paris three years ago by his excellent productions of Richard Strauss's Salome. Mrs. Maddison organised in Berlin last season a series of French concerts with the assistance of M. Fauré; these were such a great artistic success that the French Government conferred upon her the order of an Officier d'Académie. Theatrical managers and Press men from far and wide will be present at the first performance on the 19th, and various members of the British Embassy at Berlin are going down to Leipsig for the event. The composer is well known in society of several nations, her grandfather having been the famous Lord Chief Justice, Sir Nicolas Tindal, and her father Admiral Tindal, who distinguished himself in the Chinese wars of 1845.

GERMAN NOTES.

The Overcrowded Profession.

As gradually, in the course of decades, popular prejudice against the actor's calling disappeared, so the influx of recruits to the profession increased by leaps and bounds, until it has now gained such unwieldy proportions that the German Actors' Association have seen themselves obliged to give the greatest publicity to the black facts connected with the unfavourable state of the profession, both as regards engagements and salaries. From figures published in the Association's official "Bühnenalmanach" it appears that of the 25,000 names given in that annual, quite 10,000 are those of actors, the rest being singers, choristers, leaders of orchestras, musicians, and technical staff. In the most favourable conditions only one-fifth of these can count upon employment yielding an adequate income; all the rest have to rely on the smaller or on touring theatres, which pay monthly salaries ranging from £4 up to at the most £12 10s., and that only during a six or seven months' season. After deducting travelling expenses, costumes, and agents' commissions, their average annual income is estimated at the alarmingly low figure of £30. In the whole of Germany and Austria there exist about twenty-five large theatrical concerns, the members of which have a regular income all the year round. In such towns as Berlin, Vienna, Munich, Dresden, Hamburg, Leipzig, and Frankfort-on-Main, these large theatres regularly employ about one thousand professionals, to which must be added two hundred regularly engaged actors at ten of the smaller Court theatres, such as those in Schwerin, Karlsruhe, Koburg, &c.

A Suggested Remedy.

In the larger theatres the salaries range from £200 to £750 per annum, which latter figure is rarely exceeded; indeed, the average salary paid, even by the largest concerns, only amounts to £250, and by the smaller Court theatres to £150. Of the 10,000 professionals enumerated by name in the German year-book, a tenth part are entirely without any income; and yet the supply of recruits is quite out of proportion with the vacancies occurring. In Berlin alone there are about twenty theatrical training colleges, in Vienna there are ten, in Dresden half-a-dozen, and two or three each in Leipzig, Düsseldorf, Wiesbaden, Graz, Nürnberg, Munich, &c.—some fifty such institutions in all. Added to this, most—or, at any rate, many—actors augment their income by giving private tuition to aspirants for stage honours, and the number of recruits applying increases annually by about 1,200 to 1,500 youngsters. Since neither these colleges nor the private tutors are under legal control and require no licence, the German Actors' Association has decided to appoint committees of impartial experts in all the principal towns, where aspirants can be gratuitously examined as to their capacities, and obtain sound advice as to their chances of success in an already overcrowded profession.

The Vienna Imperial Opera House.

Director Felix von Weingartner, the successor of Paul Schienther and Gustav Mahler in the management of the Hofoper, after three years' more or less uneventful office, has retired in favour of Director Hans Gregor, late of the Komische Oper in Berlin. His principal innovation, that of producing condensed Wagner operas, met with so much indignant opposition that the scheme was speedily dropped. He intends to retain the management of the Philharmonic Concerts in Vienna, which will necessitate his residence in the Austrian capital from November to March, while during the remaining part of the year he will be domiciled in Paris. On taking up his new duties Director Gregor has found himself face to face with a difficulty which almost borders upon a strike. Owing to the enormously increased cost of living the members of the chorus, and more especially those of the orchestra, are claiming higher salaries, as in the circumstances the present ones do not constitute a living wage. By way of a protest the latter, who also complain that they are overworked—it is stated that on Sunday, after a heavy morning's rehearsal, they had to attend two performances, from 2 to 5, and from 7 to 11.45—played their accompaniment to the ballet in Lakmé so pianissimo as to be almost inaudible. This gentle hint has had the desired effect, and the authorities have ordered an exhaustive inquiry into the entire system of salaries at the famous old theatre.

An Actors' Association "Ehrenrat."

The Dresden Local Branch of the German Actors' Association has forwarded a proposition for the consideration of the next general meeting of delegates of the Association, suggesting the formation of a so-called "Ehrenrat" (Council of Honour) within each local branch. These councils are to be elected by the branches themselves, only male members of unblemished character and not under thirty years of age being admissible. The names and addresses of the members so chosen must be notified to headquarters. To be valid, a judgment must be by a two-thirds majority out of six members of the council, the proceedings of which must be kept strictly secret. The cases, which are only such as affect the honour of some Association official, can be decided in one of three ways. Either the plaint is dismissed or the accused is relieved of his office.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers." How the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. By Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. Price 3s. 5d., post free 3s. 9d. Address: The Publisher, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

MR. LANDON RONALD.

Mr. Landon Ronald, who has succeeded Dr. W. H. Cummings as principal of the Guildhall School of Music, was born in London in 1873. His training was obtained at the Royal College of Music, where he studied with great success, leaving at the age of sixteen and a half. He made his début as solo pianist in L'Enfant Prodigue in 1890. Soon afterwards he turned his attention to conducting, and was engaged by Mr. William Greet to go to the provinces with various comic operas, thus gaining great experience.

The late Sir Augustus Harris engaged him as second conductor at Covent Garden in 1891. Afterwards he went on tour with Sir Augustus Harris's Italian Opera Company as conductor for two years consecutively, eventually assuming the direction of the English Opera seasons which were given at Drury Lane Theatre. In 1895 he conducted during the grand opera season at Covent Garden Theatre. Previous to that Mme. Melba had recognised his exceptional gifts, and engaged him to go to America in the capacity of conductor on a tour which she had arranged, and in which he visited all the most important cities in the United States.

About this time Sir Paolo Tosti arranged for Mr. Ronald to help him in his duties as accompanist at Court, and from then to the present time he was generally chosen to accompany the State concerts, either at Windsor, Balmoral, or Buckingham Palaces. The year after the death of Sir Augustus Harris Mr. Landon Ronald left Covent Garden and accepted an engagement to conduct musical comedy at the Lyric Theatre.

On the formation of the London Symphony Orchestra, his services became much more in demand for serious work, and he was invited to go to Berlin and conduct the famous Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, when he achieved one of the greatest successes ever gained by a foreigner and never before equalled by a Briton. He gained exceptional success also in Vienna, Amsterdam, Leipsig, and Brenmen, and last Christmas was specially invited by the Academy of Santa Cecilia to conduct one of their concerts at Rome.

As a composer of songs Mr. Landon Ronald is widely popular. He has also written several works for orchestra, including a suite de ballet, a symphonic poem, a Birthday Overture, two dramatic scenas for voice and orchestra, and two of the most successful ballets ever produced at the Alhambra Theatre—namely, Britannia's Realm and L'Entente Cordiale. The duties of principal at the Guildhall School will not sever Mr. Ronald's connection with the New Symphony Orchestra or the Sunday concerts at the Royal Albert Hall. In a school having over 3,000 pupils and a large staff of skilled professors, Mr. Ronald will be able to form one of the finest student orchestras in the world, and his great experience as conductor should be invaluable to the young performers. Great attention will also be given to choral and operatic matters, and the good work done by Dr. Cummings in this direction, carried on with increased vigour.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

In the performance of Tannhäuser at Covent Garden on Saturday night, Mme. Petzi-Perard doubled the rôles of Venus and Elizabeth. The experiment was interesting in this case, and with such a fine artist as Mme. Petzi-Perard, but the chief element in Tannhäuser lies in the opposite nature of these two characters. Venus, being entirely sensual, affords an artistic contrast to the gentle, spiritual nature of Elizabeth. Mme. Perard has before given us a splendid impersonation of Venus, and it was quite a special triumph for the gifted vocalist when she appeared capitally made up as Elizabeth in the second act. The greeting to the Hall of Song and the Prayers were both beautifully sung, and her acting throughout was gracefully expressive. Mr. Clarence Whitehill was excellent as Wolfram, and Herr Forchammer a superb Tannhäuser. In place of Mr. Murray Davey, Mr. Reynolds, said to be a member of the chorus, sang Hermann's music in English, and with most satisfactory results. There was a large audience, and Mr. Cuthbert Hawley again proved himself an able conductor.

Rigoletto was given on Monday, with Mr. Umberto Maenex in the part of the Duke. The newcomer has a pleasing voice when not forced, and he had a very hearty encore in "La donna e mobile." Miss Mignon Nevada was again a charming Gilda, and Signor de Luca once more gave his powerful assumption of the vengeful Jester. Signor Camilieri conducted, and the other characters were undertaken by the same artists as on a previous occasion.

Death and the Duellists.

When Mr. Courtice Pounds was touring in Germany with the D'Oyly Carte company, one of its members offended a gentleman, who afterwards turned out to be a German baron, and who, the next morning, astonished the Englishman by requesting him to name his second for the duel. The actor was at first inclined to laugh at the incident as absurd. He had never handled a pistol in his life, and the affair of the previous evening had seemed altogether too trivial to merit recourse to any such violent means of settlement. On inquiry, however, he found that the challenge was not to be lightly ignored, and naming Mr. Pounds as his second, he visited a local clothes shop and purchased a frock coat and silk hat, in order to be de rigeur according to the German etiquette of duels. When the fateful morning dawned he repaired to the rendezvous with a brave front but a sinking heart, and awaited his adversary's arrival. Presently came a messenger: "My master, Baron von ——, has fainted; will you please wait a few moments until he is fit to meet you?" They waited anxiously. Then came the message: "My master is dead; you must go home."

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

In Mrs. Skeffington, at the Queen's Theatre, Miss Gwladys Gaynor wears a very dainty frock of rose-coloured cashmere de soie, in the first act, the corsage with its aluminium embroidery having a little collarless vest of cream lace finished with a minute bow of dull blue satin. The skirt is buttoned right down the back, whilst the front, likewise the sleeves, are adorned with pattes of dull blue and aluminium broderie.

Miss Ellen O'Malley as Mrs. Thynne is first seen in a becoming dress of black ninon. It has a tablier of gold lace cut in peplum form and brought to a point over the bust; this is veiled with the ninon and finished with black velvet and satin buttons. The sleeves are also adorned with the lace and tiny black satin buttons, and finished with a ruche of the ninon. Miss Ellen O'Malley wears another gown of ivory tulle over satin, the corsage being fashioned of ivory and gold lace, supplemented with a wide band of gold lace over chiffon, and another of cream lace, both veiled with rose-pink chiffon. The skirt has a deep hem of this material, which also fashions the picturesque cloak with its very deep hem of satin finished with silk tassels. The costume is completed with a bronze beaver hat lined with black velvet, and trimmed with dull blue ostrich plumes.

Miss Beryl Faber wears two charming gowns, one of soft lemon-tinted charmeuse, with coat of embroidered grey chiffon and a little hat with upcurled brim covered with folded grey and yellow chiffon and trimmed with twists of chaudron-coloured ribbon caught at the side beneath a single rose. Her second and particularly graceful princess gown is of opalescent souple satin on which is painted branches of mauve lilac and pink blossoms. A loose coat of silver lace edged with bugle fringe partially conceals the satin under dress, whilst the chosen head-gear, a hat of lilac silk, is round, cut into points at the side, lined with rich purple velvet, and trimmed with a twist of shot blue and silver net.

Miss Gwladys Gaynor's frock of pale blue satin with its draped over dress of blue chiffon hemmed with white satin and prettily embroidered is a fascinating creation for a jeune fille, as is the pretty polichinelle bonnet of satin with its posy of pink roses on one side. It evidently makes a great impression on the two irrepressible subalterns, whose high spirits and witticisms introduce a comic note that is much appreciated.

The dressing of The Quaker Girl at the Adelphi is of the sumptuous character which is always associated with the productions of Mr. George Edwardes. One of the beautiful dresses worn by Miss Gertie Millar in the title-rôle is of white chiffon over white satin, with a little silver embroidered bodice and vivid sapphire blue sash, embroidered and fringed with gold. The double skirt is edged with deep silver fringe.

Among the pretty toilettes worn by Miss Elsie Spain is a dress of snow-white chiffon over the softest satin. The chiffon over-dress is edged with silk boules about the size of Morella cherries, and is looped up in front in a kind of square over a short petticoat of dewdrop lace trimmed with bands of crystal bugles in the Greek key pattern. At the back it falls to the hem of the skirt, the sparkle of the diamond dewdrops being seen fitfully through the filmy mesh of chiffon, while the corsage, which is made in kimono form, is scooped out over a vest of transparent chiffon edged with a little rivulet of silver bugles. The charm of the gown lies, however, in the short square tablier which covers part of the corsage and jupe, and which is made of cobweb lace glittering with dewdrops and bordered with the Greek key pattern in crystals. This is repeated at the back, and is caught in at the waist with a band of thick silver ribbon finished in front with a flat bow, while a cluster of pure white heather is tucked into its folds on one side.

Another exquisite gown which Miss Elsie Spain wears is of the softest silk crépon over satin in a rich tone of Cornish cream, veiled again with chiffon to match. The chiffon covers a trimming of pale blue rat-tail and bands of creamy lawn embroidery, while a little apron panel of lawn worked in a broderie Anglaise design falls over the front, and is bordered at the hem with a chain of pale blue satin leaves. The back of the gown is entirely covered with the broderie, which is drawn away on either side of the front in pannier folds. The same rich, deeply-tinted cream broderie provides the corsage and sleeves, while there is a little square bib of the insertion spliced into the front, the corsage being hollowed out round the column of the throat, where it is bordered with a chain of satin leaves in soft sunset blue. A deep, folded belt of blue satin clasps the waist, from which falls a short stole end embroidered in oxidised silver and blue satin.

Miss Legrand is seen in a wonderful design of pale daffodil satin, covered with a filmy chiffon veiling and partially buried under a coat-shaped garment of thick gold lace, patterned with Tudor roses and leaves, and bordered with bands of darned gold pois. The coat is cut into very long panels on either side, hung with mammoth gold bell-pull tassels, while it is cut away in front and a little gathered panel of chiffon edged with gold fringe inserted in its place. Below this panel the jupe is adorned with a chain of satin leaves and soft chiffon bouillonées, which give place to a transparent hem of creamy lace over a deep lace underfrill, likewise worked in a leaf design in shaded daffodil satin and finished with a strip of ermine. The back of the gown is of chiffon, while a heavy gold twisted cable cord encircles the waist, and a huge deep pink water-lily with a gold centre brings the only note of contrasting colour into the corsage.

A lovely gown worn by Mlle. Caumont is of pale mist-grey chiffon over soft satin, the gown being trimmed with thick aluminium lace, into the metal threads of which are woven such subtle shades of colour that the rose and green, blue and mauve, which form part of it, can hardly be distinguished as definite colours at all. The lace forms a heavily-tasselled panel down the front, while a band of the same runs all round the skirt, and the corsage and sleeves are hidden under it. The waist is defined by three rows of thick silver cord, the gown being cut into a little square at the neck, softened with pure white lace, which likewise forms a tiny vest half-hidden under it. With this is worn a coat of pewter-grey chiffon velvet, lined with begonia red satin, the huge, square sailor collar being piped with the same, while the loose kimono sleeves are turned back with wide velvet cuffs. The coat is closed with a twisted knot of aluminium cord.

"Charley's Aunt."

Mr. Brandon Thomas, the author of Charley's Aunt, was visiting Bayreuth some years ago, when the Wagner Festival was in progress. It may be mentioned that subscribers for seats at the Festival are allotted rooms in the houses of those burghers who have members of their families singing in the chorus, and the occupier of the house in which Mr. Thomas had apartments showed him round the town. He pointed out the Stadt Theatre—which belongs to the municipality—and remarked scornfully, "Wagner wanted to produce all his operas at that theatre, but the authorities would not hear of it. At last Wagner's beautiful theatre was built there, on the top of that hill by King Ludwig II., and all the world comes to his operas, whilst the poor Stadt is reduced, in order to make money, to the little English farce, Charley's Aunt." The author did not disclose his identity, but was naturally much amused.

CHURCH AND STAGE.

VICAR ADVISES CHRISTIANS TO GO TO THE THEATRE.

The Rev. A. J. Waldron, Vicar of Brixton, lectured at Bow Church, Cheapside, on Tuesday, on "Church and Stage," and his remarks were listened to with evident approval by a large crowd of City men. In the course of his address Mr. Waldron said: When I was a boy the question was asked, "Can a Christian go to the theatre?" As a lad I was taught that the theatre was as near hell as anything you could get on this earth; that it was a kind of suburb of the infernal regions. (Laughter.) I am thankful to say that idea has very largely gone. In the Church of England we have got a society called the Actors' Church Union, which does not exist to preach to actors or to patronise them, but to co-operate with them. I venture to suggest that it is the duty of the Christian man and woman to go to the theatre occasionally and support good plays. The tragedy in London, as well as in the provinces, is that some of the best plays fail not because of poor acting, but because they are not patronised as they should be. I witnessed two plays by that fine actor, Forbes Robertson, and they only ran a short time, being complete failures, yet some things which are not worth seeing are packed out. The Church and the Stage must be intimately connected. Some of the biggest moral lessons I have ever heard were taught on the stage. Look at a play like The Message from Mars, or that sweet play of Barrie's, What Every Woman Knows. Look at the grand lessons you can get from Shakespeare's plays. Can you go and see one of Shakespeare's plays at His Majesty's without being profoundly touched and affected by the art of the thing? We all need recreation, and it is absurd to condemn music halls and theatres when they give us a hearty laugh which makes us forget all our business worries. Speaking for myself, after bearing the responsibilities of a big parish, I am glad enough to go to the theatre and forget everything, and have a good laugh. I say the person who contributes to the joy of this world is engaged in a divine vocation. There are far too many sad faces about. Every actor who can amuse us—without leaving a nasty taste in the mouth—is a servant of the living God. Some good people condemn the Stage because they say its atmosphere is bad and the people connected with it are immoral. One of the weaknesses of the Church has been to overemphasise certain things as immoral. There are deacons and churchwardens who live selfish lives and break the first law of Christianity every day. Every profession has its temptations. The clergy have theirs; they are tempted to play the hypocrite and to preach what they do not believe, and to pose as examples of piety when they know they are not. Working men are tempted to be lazy and thriftless. I do not believe the Stage is any more immoral than other professions. Some of the finest examples of charity come from the Stage, and members of this profession are always ready to help each other. Other good people tell you actors live a false life because they are always acting. It is not true. Hundreds of them are real Christians, and I have seen many attending celebration of the Holy Communion at great sacrifice. When you get a chance to support a good play, I say support it. Do not play the hypocrite, like they do in the provinces. In a town like Plymouth, where I come from, I have known good people who were ashamed to be seen in the local theatre; but such people come up to London, and not only go to the theatre, but often to the worst music halls. If you are ashamed to be seen in the theatre do not go anywhere. Be honest about the thing. If you do go to the theatre and anything offends you, write to the profession about it; they are always most anxious to maintain a high standard. I say there is no profession that gives us more joy and happiness—and happiness is every man's birthright.

Mr. Fred Terry, in speaking of the reception accorded to Miss Neilson and himself on the opening night of their engagement in The Scarlet Pimpernel, at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, said that he had been advised to prepare a speech, but the idea did not appeal to him, and the burst of applause that came at the end of the third act found him quite unprepared. He was dressing for the next act, and the curtain was kept going up and down until he could get into his clothes. Then he came out, and it seemed to him that he only said about four words. He couldn't think of any more. He was not prepared for any sort of an outburst.

"It has taken me three years to come to that night," Mr. Terry went on. "I have been trying to get to America for that long, and have just succeeded. Do you blame me for being glad the people were so kind to Miss Neilson and me and to the play. And I have 'come on my own' and have travelled all my people over. Counting Miss Neilson and myself and Miss Neilson's companion, there are forty-seven of us. Three is a small number, so we'll say there are fifty. So even if we continue to do good business during the eight weeks we shall be in this country, the trip won't pay financially."

He continued: "When we first spoke of Sweet Nell they came to me with persuasions not to attempt it. A 'charade' they called it, and said that the people didn't want to see charades. Well, we borrowed all the money we could on our jewels and our house and our notes, and we put with it every ha'penny of our savings, and we leased a theatre for seven weeks. At the end of the seven weeks we had doubled our capital. So much for the 'charade.'

"When we were rehearsing The Scarlet Pimpernel they insisted that the play would never go as it stood. Parts of it must be rewritten, they said. I didn't think so, but finally I agreed to the rewriting of one scene, just to see how it would go. I had a member of the company read my part, and I watched the scene from the front of the house. Then we took the new manuscript, rolled it up very carefully, tied it with a bit of string, sealed the knot, and put it safely away. It hasn't been opened since, and the scene is being played as it was originally written."

MARTIN HARVEY AT MANCHESTER

The Manchester Committee of the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre movement held a meeting on the 3rd inst. at the Theatre Royal, at which Mr. Martin Harvey delivered a lecture on the National Theatre. The Lord Mayor (Mr. Charles Behrens) presided.

The LORD MAYOR said it was quite time that England showed in a more practical manner her appreciation of her great national poet. In America there was no city without its Shakespeare Society, and in Germany the text of Shakespeare was even more widely known than that of the Bible. But at last, after all these generations, a Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre was to be founded, and Manchester, which always placed art in so high a place, was looked upon to support the movement. It was a step in the right direction, and he looked forward to the day when not only London but every city of England would boast of its Shakespeare Theatre.

Mr. MARTIN HARVEY said he came before them in a new part—that of an earnest petitioner and beggar. And he had never taken up a part with more enthusiasm or greater conviction that his view of the part was the right one. He was there to plead for help to rear a noble and monumental institution to our greatest Englishman. It had taken us 300 years to rear a worthy memorial to our great hero of letters, and he wanted everyone in his audience to help. In 1916 it would be 300 years since there died in this country the most amazing giant in the literature of the world—an Englishman. What had we reared to honour him? A trivial and unregarded little figure above a fountain in Leicester-square and a small bust in the Poets' Corner. These were the sole monuments pointed out to the amazed foreigner when he visited the land of Shakespeare's birth and labour. But all that was going to be changed. It had been decided that the expression of the public enthusiasm should take the form of a Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre. £500,000 had to be raised; £100,000 had to be spent for a suitable site, though there was just a faint hope that the site might be given them; £150,000 to build and equip the theatre, and the remaining £250,000 permanently to endow it. This would yield an income of about £10,000 a year, the same sum, roughly, which the State allowed annually to the famous National Theatre of France—the Comédie Française. They were not far short now of possessing nearly a fifth of the entire amount required.

It must be a noble building, and must occupy a noble position in the heart of London. Its uses would be, firstly, to keep all the plays of Shakespeare in its repertory; secondly, to revive whatever was vital in English classical drama; thirdly, to prevent recent plays of great merit falling into oblivion; fourthly, to produce new plays and to develop the modern drama further; fifthly, to produce translations of representative works of foreign drama, ancient and modern; and, lastly, to stimulate the art of acting. Think of the practice a young actor would get in such a theatre. New parts to play every few days. They would forgive a certain wistful longing that he might share such a young actor's Elysium when he told them that for over 300 nights in succession he appeared in a certain play as "second soldier," with the sole exclamation, "'Tis Valentine! Our comrade Valentine," to appease his hunger for work.

It was said that Shakespeare needed no other monument than his own imperishable works, but Shakespeare wrote for the stage, and if his work alone was to be his monument how would they remember him when there came upon us those periods of vitiated public taste which degraded dramatic representation from time to time, when the true arena of his genius, the stage, was swamped beneath a wave of vulgarity and meretricious triviality? Such periods had come upon us, as every student of the history of our stage knew. Then it was said that the work was already done by private enterprise. We were fortunate in living in a day when it had been done by private enterprise, but it would be most unwise to count upon a continuance of this happy state of things. Long before Sir Henry Irving's later misfortunes deprived him of the theatre which he had single-handed reared into a national institution, he had realised that it was not for one man to bear upon his shoulders such a stupendous burden as the maintenance of a National Theatre. In no other European country was he expected to do it. The State, the municipality, or the wealthy art patron assisted him with his burden. They were not now asking for a State subsidy; they were not asking the State to do what they could do themselves. They were asking only for the subsidy which so many individuals of Shakespeare's race had it in their power to give. How were the provinces to benefit by a theatre which was to be situated in London? In one practical way they would certainly benefit, because it was proposed that at certain periods the company to be associated with the National Theatre would pay its regular visits to provincial centres. The memorial must be an accomplished fact in five years, and therefore there was no time to be lost.

The DEAN OF MANCHESTER (Bishop Welldon) expressed his deep sympathy with the cause of the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre.

Sir W. H. BAILEY, as president of the Manchester Shakespeare Society, moved a vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor for presiding, to Mr. Martin Harvey for his address, and to the proprietors of the Theatre Royal for the use of the building. The resolution was seconded by Mr. T. C. Horsfall, who said that when there was a Shakespeare Theatre in London they would be nearer the time when there would be one also in Manchester.

The resolution was carried.

Mr. MARTIN HARVEY, in reply to questions by the Lord Mayor, said it was proposed that Manchester should be one of the five great cities of England represented on the Board of Governors of the proposed theatre. It would be considered whether the University of Manchester should not also be given a representative with the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Edinburgh, Dublin, and Wales.

SPEECH AT CARDIFF.

Mr. Martin Harvey, who is appearing this week at the New Theatre, Cardiff, on Monday afternoon addressed an audience of sympathisers on the Memorial Movement. Professor H. Littledale, D.Litt., presided, and he was supported on the stage by Sir John Duncan, the Rev. Alick Henderson, the Rev. H. A. Coe, Mr. Edward England, and Mr. W. P. James.

Mr. HARVEY, who had a most cordial reception, said he came before them in a new part—the part of an earnest petitioner and beggar. He was there to plead for their help to rear a noble and monumental institution to Shakespeare, their greatest Englishman. It had taken them 300 years to begin to think of rearing a worthy memorial to their great hero of letters, but he did not now despair of playing his part to heedless ears. (Hear, hear.) It had been decided that the expression of the public enthusiasm should take the form of the Shakespeare National Theatre. £500,000 had to be raised, to be spent thus: £100,000 for a suitable site, £150,000 to build and equip the theatre, and the remaining £250,000 to permanently endow it. This would yield an income of about £10,000 a year, the same sum, roughly, which the State allowed annually to the famous national theatre of France—the Comédie Français. Donations began to come in at once, and a splendid stimulus was given to the movement by the princely gift of one generous donor of no less a sum than £70,000. The name of that donor he was not at present at liberty to disclose. Since then the amount had been steadily rising, and they were not far short now of possessing nearly a fifth of the entire amount needed. The National Memorial must be a noble building, planned by the foremost architect of our time, occupying a noble position in the heart of that London in which Shakespeare for the most part lived, laboured, and achieved his triumph. The first of its uses must be to keep the plays of Shakespeare in its repertory—not only the half a dozen Shakespearean plays which poor actor-managers found to be the only remunerative ones—for this National Theatre would be above commercial considerations—but all of them. The other objects would be to revive whatever was vital in English classical drama, to prevent recent plays of great merit falling into oblivion, to produce new plays, and to further develop the modern drama, to produce translations of representative works of foreign drama, ancient and modern, and to stimulate the art of acting. People living in the provinces might say, "How are we to benefit by this Memorial Theatre, which is to be situated in London?" In one practical way they would certainly benefit, for it was proposed that at certain periods the company to be associated with the National Theatre would pay its regular visits to provincial centres, and they would thus reap the advantage of having the great works of our national drama, of the drama of antiquity, and the chosen achievements of living dramatic authors presented in an elaborate and worthy manner by a carefully-chosen company of artists. He earnestly commended the scheme to all because their neglect of Shakespeare was a reproach throughout Europe, and because it would place our national drama upon its rightful pinnacle as the richest in the whole world. The memorial must be an accomplished fact in five years' time.

In the course of his lecture Mr. Martin Harvey made several references to his family associations with Cardiff and its neighbourhood. Remarking that up to the present the city of Hull held the record for the largest collection as the result of his lecture, Mr. Harvey added, "I want Cardiff to beat Hull. I have a great attachment to Hull, but I have the attachment of blood to Cardiff and its neighbourhood. My people on my mother's side—the Gwythers—all came from this neighbourhood originally, and I always feel when I come back to Cardiff that I am, in a measure, at home.

On the motion of the Rev. ALICK HENDERSON, seconded by Sir JOHN DUNCAN, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman, to the lecturer, to the members of his company for undertaking the work of collection, and to Mr. Robert Redford for the use of the theatre.

STEDMAN'S STUDENTS AT THE COURT.

The most enjoyable item in the programme of the third performance given by Stedman's Students' Stage Society at the Court Theatre on Wednesday evening was undoubtedly the ballet divertissement Perdita, founded on the pastoral scenes from The Winter's Tale. It will be remembered that this charming and dainty little ballet, the music of which is composed by Mr. Archibald Benwell, and the dances arranged by Mlle. Lilian Lecffeler, was successfully produced at the students' last performance on Saturday, Oct. 29, and the Misses Dorothy Edward, Edith Mansfield, Violet Denzil, Helen Hope, Hilda Boot, Hilda Munnings, and Phyllis Munro all repeated their former successes in their clever and delightful dances, Messrs. B. Leslie Howard, Chresta Freund, Kenneth Morrison, and Mackenzie Rogan also giving capital support. The charming maypole dance was again particularly admired, the enthusiastic and carefully-trained youngsters evidently taking a keen enjoyment in their work. At the conclusion floral offerings and boxes of chocolates were handed over the footlights to the principals, and Mlle. Leoffeler and all concerned in the pretty and capitally-arranged terpsichorean entertainment received encouraging plaudits.

The farce Courtship Under Difficulties, in which considerable hilarity is created by two young lovers shouting at one another, each under the impression the other is very deaf, was fairly well enacted by Mr. Stephen H. Heald, Mr. Charles Deane, and Miss Gladys Vivian; and the Duel scene from The Corsican Brothers enabled Mr. Charles Koop as Fabian dei Franchi and Professor Mortlake Mann as Château Renaud to give a clever exposition of fencing, and, incidentally, impressive portrayals. Mr. Stanley Hughes and Mr. S. H. Heald ably supporting. Miss Irene Gantner and Miss Marjorie Oliver, pupils of Mr. Mortlake Mann, also gave attractive and smart exhibitions of fencing. In the concert portion of the programme Miss Eileen Francis was loudly applauded for her admirable rendering of "If no one ever marries me," and for an encore feelingly sang "Two eyes of grey." Mr. G. Righenzi gave "Seven Fine Gallants" in capital style, and was recalled; Mr. Stuart Gantner failed to impress in Albert Chevalier's "A Fallen Star," an impersonation that only a clever and experienced artist can hope to do anything like justice to; Miss Phyllis Munro recited with much point and charm "My Rival"; and Miss Hilda Boot and Mr. H. Ford also vocalised with complete success. Messrs. Goodman, Howard, and Matto (pupils of Mr. Charles Sutton) were down for a step-dancing exhibition. Only two of the young gentlemen, however, faced the footlights, and their promising efforts were loudly acclaimed by the audience—keenly appreciative of the programme as a whole, which was of a most enjoyable and commendably brief nature. In the intervals Mr. Fred Welter's orchestra was responsible for some well chosen and admirably-played selections.

MRS. KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN, the author of Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, one of the most successful plays of the season in New York, and one that is generally referred to as "wholesome," was recently asked if it was her aim "to uplift the drama." She immediately replied that she had a sense of humour and did not regard herself as a Person with a Mission. "If you want to elevate the stage," she said, "don't approach it from some patronising height, I say, but from a humbler, human level; then, in some happy hour, if you chance to have more grace and wisdom than usual, you may be able to give a little push.

"THERE are pitfalls all along the way, however, for the artist must steer between the good and the goody-goody; between sentiment and sentimentality; between delicacy and refinement of treatment and silly juvenility. There is a kind of goodness in certain books and plays which is so colourless and mawkish, and insipid, that instead of appealing, it repels.

"PEOPLE are not going to the theatre for the mere purpose of being 'elevated'; they go for recreation, for entertainment, for delight, and mental refreshment, and they ought to get some of these things, in some degree, or demand their money back at the box office. The book or the play that wields an unconscious influence is the only one that wields any influence at all. The public does not want to be bored by any assumption of superior virtue, it wants a play to love, and when it finds it, it goes to see it, and the manager's problem is solved in the rational way, and in the only way that it ought to be, for a play that cannot earn its own living is never going to 'uplift' the stage, that is very sure.

"UNLESS morality can succeed in being attractive, it might as well resign its commission, for perfunctory, mechanical goodness is not half as interesting as clever, brilliant naughtiness. Deliver us from that stodgy, negative virtue that has no spice of wit in it, no spontaneity, no nonsense, no joy—it never works any miracles, that sort of virtue, and incidentally it bores everybody who is unwillingly exposed to it."

DEATH OF CHARLES E. STEVENS.

It is with regret we announce the death of Charles E. Stevens, a clever and versatile comedian, which occurred in Lambeth Infirmary on Saturday last, the 5th, after a long illness.

Born at Portsmouth in 1854, Mr. Charles E. Stevens was intended at the age of twelve to be brought up as a jockey, but, growing very tall, the idea was abandoned. He was then taught the grocery trade at Winchester, where he sang as a chorister in St. Michael's Church. He came to London in 1873, and found an engagement as prompter on tour with Henry Powell, playing small parts, and riding Black Bess in the play of Dick Turpin, he being an expert horseman.

He joined an opera company, Rose of Canton, as chorister, and toured for some time, and then played in stock companies at Newcastle, Manchester, and Liverpool, meeting such stars as T. C. King, Barry Sullivan, Miss Wallace, Miss Marriott, and others. He toured again in comic operas with Mme. Soldene, played in over twenty pantomimes in the London and principal provincial theatres, and toured two seasons with Mr. G. Edwardes's Circus Girl company, playing Drivelli.

He toured with Mr. Tom B. Davis's company in The Silver Slipper, playing the part of Twanks. Successful London engagements were the Uncle, in The Babes, at Toole's Theatre; Meridon, Lily of Leoville, Comedy Theatre; Pincher, Claude Duval, Prince of Wales's Theatre; Bowles, All Abroad, Criterion Theatre; Colefax, The Cuckoo, Avenue Theatre. The deceased actor, who was fifty-seven years of age, will best be remembered by Londoners in the musical comedy Florodora, in which he played the part of Cyrus Gilfain during the whole run of that very successful play.

By music hall goers of middle age and over he will also be remembered, as he, about a quarter of a century ago, was a very familiar figure in those excellent sketches that Mr. William Bailey was continually producing at the Metropolitan Music Hall and elsewhere. Later on, however, he joined Mr. Fred Williams, and later still Mr. Edwin Barwick's sketch company, playing in those well-known music hall successes of fifteen to seventeen years ago Sweedletop and Tittlemouse, Jossiter's Jubilee, and Whittington up to Dick.

Mr. Stevens was a pantomime artist of no mean repute, and Manchester, Bristol, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Liverpool, and many other principal panto towns could tell of more than one very big success of his.

He was discharged as incurable from the Hospital for Paralysis, Queen-square, W.C., but a few months ago, at a time that his wife—since dead—was dying of consumption, and this, in conjunction with the effects of a rather serious operation he was forced to undergo, undoubtedly hastened his end. His last appearance on the stage was in 1902 at the Savoy Theatre—then under the direction of Miss Kitty Loftus—in a musical piece called Naughty Nancy.

THE HOUSE.

By TOM CRAVEN.

I met a man with whom I'd held
  In past days some communion,
He ask'd if I would dine with him
  At "the Hotel de Union."
He promised me a gorgeous time,
  Tho' modest was his station;
And I accepted like a shot
  His genial invitation.
We sauntered up to Hammersmith,
  And pleasant moments filled in,
Until we reach'd a roomy street
  And quite palatial building.
Inside, a bowing porter took
  Our hats and umbrellas,
And we were tended just as if
  We both were titled "fellas."
He led me to a spacious room
  For smoking and for reading;
He rang the bell, and said we both
  A glass of wine were needing.
A liveried attendant brought
  Wine, choice and appetizing,
And cigarettes which really were
  Enchanting and surprising.
Then to a marble cloakroom we,
  Attended by a porter,
Had both our digits manicured
  And washed in perfumed water.
From thence unto the dining hall
  Of elegance and beauty:
Thinks I, "My friend does well his guests,
  As host he knows his duty."
The banquet served was quite superb;
  'Twould tax a king's resources:
The wines all of a costly brand,
  And limitless the courses.
The whole feast was quite worthy of
  An epicure of breeding;
And never had I, in my life,
  Enjoyed such dainty feeding.
The noble wine emboldened me,
  And so I soon inquired,
How was it that my poor friend had
  To such rich fare aspired.
"We have the best," my friend replied;
  "Our Guardians don't burke us."
"But what's this palace called?" I cried.
  He said, "This is 'The Work'us.'"

THE MELODRAMATIC SYNDICATE v. FORTESCUE.

VERDICT FOR THE DEFENDANT.

In the King's Bench Division on the 3rd inst., before the Lord Chief Justice and a Special Jury, in the action, The Melodrama Production Syndicate, Ltd., v. Fortescue, the plaintiffs claimed damages for wrongful detention of a bloodhound, and also damages for alleged libel and slander. The defendant denied the allegations, saying that the statements complained of were true, and counter-claimed for damages for wrongful dismissal and breach of contract.

Mr. Elliott explained that plaintiffs conducted provincial tours, and defendant was engaged by them to perform in certain pieces. Under an agreement of Jan. 16, 1909, he was engaged at a salary of £3 10s. a week, the engagement to be terminated, according to the contract, at a fortnight's notice. The action had really been brought owing to the necessity of plaintiffs recovering a bloodhound, named Pedro, which defendant had detained. Defendant had been engaged to play the part of Sexton Blake in the melodrama of that name, and the dog played an important part. The story of Sexton Blake was modelled, to some extent, on that of Sherlock Holmes, plus the bloodhound, which was specially trained. The play drew large audiences, and was extremely popular. The hound, which was plaintiffs' property, had been placed under defendant's care and control, and from Jan. 16, 1909, to May 12 of that year the piece was produced at a very large number of provincial theatres. Although he displayed great gifts in certain parts of the performance, defendant was of an extremely uncertain temper. There was not the least suggestion of anything improper against him, but he did not always get on with the management or the other actors, and his conduct had led the management to think it desirable to terminate his contract.

At Gateshead, where the piece was being performed, defendant was offered £7 in lieu of a fortnight's notice, and another actor, Mr. Murray Yorke, was engaged to take his place. Defendant refused the money, and retained the dog under his control, with the result that Mr. Yorke had to appear without him. This led to a falling off in business, as the miners flocked to see the dog. The company went from Gateshead to Bordesley, and there also defendant kept the dog. At both places he stood outside the theatres, distributing handbills which contained the alleged libels. These stated that defendant had been wrongfully dismissed by plaintiffs for no reason whatever, and stated that he was retaining the bloodhound Pedro, which remained in his charge, for debt. This had the effect, said Mr. Elliott, of inducing people not to witness the performances, and the absence of the dog also militated against its success. Eventually, on May 22, after an application to the courts, defendant returned the dog, which seemed to be half-starved, and it had to be treated by a veterinary.

Evidence was given by William Henry Graham, manager for plaintiffs, who said that the dog belonged to his company. It had been specially trained for eight months before going on the stage. Defendant arranged to look after the dog at 10s. a week. He believed that defendant had one or two little differences with the management, and, acting on instructions, witness went to Gateshead on May 11, to terminate defendant's engagement. Defendant refused to take £7 in lieu of notice, nor would he give up the dog. In the evening witness saw defendant distributing handbills outside the theatre. Another dog, also named Pedro, and belonging to plaintiffs, had to be sent down to take the other animal's place. Defendant returned the first dog on May 22, but it was in very poor condition, looked half-starved, and was unable to go on the stage again until Aug. 5.

Cross-examined: Defendant was a very good actor. Witness knew defendant was ill on the previous Saturday evening, and that, against his doctor's advice, he played his part at the theatre on the Monday and Tuesday evenings. On the Wednesday he was dismissed. Defendant had not been paid for those two evenings' work, in addition to the fortnight's notice.

Witness added that defendant wrote to him on one occasion that he had had a lot of trouble with the dog Pedro, and had missed his train in consequence. He said the dog jumped at a lady with a baby while crossing Putney Bridge, and there was quite a scene. Defendant said that he was put to a great deal of expense in keeping the dog and for his travel, but on the stage the animal was perfect, and cleared the window.

Mr. Leslie Fairfax, business manager of the company, in cross-examination, said that when defendant returned the dog it appeared to be all right, and he gave him a receipt for it. The company was only one night without a bloodhound, as another was obtained. Mr. Fortescue had claimed for some of the travelling expenses for the dog.

Mr. James Marks Brown, principal shareholder of the plaintiff company, said he purchased both the bloodhounds for the syndicate. He had instructed Mr. Graham to go to Gateshead and get rid of Fortescue.

In cross-examination witness said he had had complaints previously that Fortescue had thrown a dresser down the stairs of the theatre a few days before. He had been receiving complaints every day from every member of the company.

William Poole Stevens, the stage carpenter, said at Billeston, on Feb. 8, he saw defendant knock his dresser down the stairs. There was also a row, with high words, between defendant and another actor at Stockport. On one occasion witness had to go to defendant's dressing-room to fetch the dog. Defendant called another man, and they both rushed at witness, who took up a stick and shouted that he would knock down the first man who touched him.

Mr. Henry Nelson, stage manager for the Sexton Blake spring tour, said defendant was continually having quarrels with the members of the company.

For the defence, Mr. Emery submitted that plaintiffs had suffered no damage by the detention of the dog. As to the alleged libel, defendant contended that the statements contained therein were true. It was not suggested that defendant had done anything which, on the face of the agreement, would entitle plaintiffs to dismiss him. On their own showing, he had performed to the best of his skill and ability, and no one suggested that he did not take the part properly.

Defendant gave evidence, and said that a certain amount of the 10s. a week he was to have received for keeping the dog was still due to him. That was the reason he refused to hand the dog over when his agreement was cancelled. Plaintiffs also owed him money for travelling expenses incurred on the dog. He denied that there was anything libellous in the bills he had circulated. He had them printed after consulting a solicitor.

The hearing was adjourned till the 4th inst., when, after hearing further evidence from the defendant, who denied the allegations against him, the jury returned a verdict for Mr. Fortescue, on the question of the detention of the dog, and also on the alleged libel, and gave him also a verdict on the counterclaim for wrongful dismissal, awarding him £35 damages. Judgment was entered accordingly, with costs, a stay of execution being refused.

IN our notice of The Career of Henry Jones, at the Court Theatre last week, Miss Rose Moncrieff was erroneously named as playing Mrs. Jones. It should have been Miss Irene Moncrieff.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"L'HOMME MYSTERIEUX."

Play, in Three Acts, by André de Lorde and Alfred Binet, Produced at Sarah-Bernhardt's on Nov. 3.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Nov. 10.—This gruesome but clever play is a diatribe against the law which allows a man to be placed in an asylum when it is not always sufficiently proved he is a lunatic, and the equally loose way in which a mad person is set free before he is really cured. In France the Procureur de la République—who acts as Lunacy Commissioner—can, against the advice of the doctor, order a person to leave the asylum provided that person's family applies for his discharge and that the Procureur is convinced that the patient is cured. But this conviction is generally based on the fear of keeping a sane man locked up, and the authorities are apt to forget that a lunatic is a "man of mystery," whose thoughts none can read and whose actions nobody can foretell. Raymond Bercier, in partnership with his brother, has suddenly become mad; and Louise, his wife, whom he attempted to strangle, has had him removed to a lunatic asylum, whereupon, according to French law, the money he had invested in the business was taken out and handed to an official trustee. The withdrawal of his brother's money has placed Lionel in serious financial difficulties, and the latter, after a long and painful discussion with his sister-in-law, induces her to apply to the authorities for her husband's release. In the second act we are in the asylum where Raymond is detained, and the Procureur is there to investigate the case. Lionel insists on Raymond being set free. The doctor, however, protests against this. Raymond, he says, is a dangerous lunatic, suffering from the prosecution mania, and, therefore, unfit to be at large. Raymond is then sent for, but he replies so rationally to the doctor's questions, and his sanity is apparently so well established, that the Procureur decides to order his release. The doctor tries hard to dissuade him from taking that course; and we assist at an interesting and exciting discussion between these representatives of Science and Justice. But Science is worsted, and Raymond is allowed to return home. The doctor's prognostications unfortunately come true. Raymond has not long been in the house before he tries to assault his wife. He then vents his rage on his brother, who has rushed to her assistance, and strangles him, unconsciously meting out punishment to the man whose greed has brought about this catastrophe. The pit and gallery sided with the Procureur against the doctor, and applauded vigorously when Raymond was set free. The dénouement, therefore, took them by surprise, and they seemed astounded that Science was right after all. The work was beautifully acted. M. Jean Kemm proved himself a great actor; M. Darsay was convincing in the rôle of the Procureur; and Mlle. Albane gave a pathetic rendering of Louise, the madman's wife.

"L'AVENTURIER."

Play, in Four Acts, by M. Alfred Capus, Produced at the Porte-Saint-Martin on Nov. 4.

M. Capus is always amusing, but he is not observant. His personages, therefore, although diverting, lack truth; and as the play proceeded we realised more and more that his dramatis personæ were the children of his imagination instead of having been taken from life. The story, which lies in a nutshell, describes how a highly respectable family is saved from ruin by one of its members, the "black sheep"—in other words, the "adventurer." The Guéroys, father and son, are at the head of a large factory, but Jacques, the son, has entered upon some hazardous speculations, with the result that the Guéroys are on the brink of ruin. The position of the firm has become desperate, but nobody is aware of this fact except Marthe, Jacques's wife, and Framié, the confidential clerk. Whilst Jacques is trying to extricate himself from these difficulties, Etienne Ranson, one of their relatives, the "black sheep," who some ten years ago left the country under rather awkward circumstances, suddenly makes his appearance. The Guéroys, convinced that Etienne wants to borrow money from them, at first show him the cold shoulder. But they are mistaken. Etienne has made a fortune in the colonies, and starts by repaying Guéroy a sum he borrowed some ten years ago. Etienne thereupon is received with open arms, and Guéroy, senior, who is not aware of the disastrous position of his firm, offers him a partnership in the business. Etienne, however, soon drags the truth out of Jacques. He tells his relatives plainly that he is quite willing to assist them with his money, but on condition that Geneviève, Marthe's sister, to whom he has lost his heart, consents to become his wife. It is his ultimatum, and should Geneviève refuse he will not move a hand to save the Guéroys from bankruptcy. But Geneviève is engaged to André de Varèze, a Deputy, with whom she fancies herself in love, and it is Geneviève herself who acquaints Etienne with this fact. Geneviève refuses to become his wife, and Etienne, having given Jacques to understand that under these conditions he will not advance any money, the latter tells his father that all that remains for him is to commit suicide. Geneviève then tries to mollify Etienne, but the "adventurer," incensed at the girl refusing to accept him, declares that he will leave France the next morning. He happens, however, to overhear a conversation between Jacques and Marthe, wherein Jacques says that he intends to carry out his fatal resolution, whereupon he is so moved that he grasps Jacques' hand and promises to advance him the necessary capital without expecting any reward. For all that, Etienne will have his reward, for Geneviève is so touched with his generosity that she makes up her mind to throw over her Deputy and offer her hand to Etienne, who, from an "adventurer," becomes a respectable member of society. The work, devoid of dramatic interest, contains only two thrilling scenes, but the dialogue is so bright and pleasing that we are apt to overlook the unreality of the personages and the flimsiness of the plot. L'Aventurier was admirably interpreted by a first-class cast.

IT was stated that during the performance of The Rose of Sharon on Saturday last, at the Alexandra Palace, some of the lamps suspended from the roof broke, "due in all probability to the vibration of the air caused by the organ in the climaxes of the oratorio." That is an error. The trouble was occasioned by a rocket fired outside the grounds in the neighbourhood, which fell on the roof, breaking a pane of glass.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Musical Play entitled
"CAPTAIN KIDD."

In his adaptation of Mr. Richard Harding Davis's comedy, The Dictator, Mr. Seymour Hicks has adhered very closely to the original story, the humour of which, allied with Mr. Leslie Stuart's always melodious music both in song and dance, and with the gorgeous and many coloured costumes, and rich scenery make up a very pleasant entertainment. The comedy has the advantage of being admirably interpreted by the very capable performers engaged. As Viscount Albany (alias Captain Kidd) Mr. Roland Bottomley comes to the front as an excellent type of comedian as well as a most capable singer. The principal humour of the play is provided by Mr. Harry Benet, who as the frightened and timid valet Simpson (alias Jim Dodd) simply convulses the house by his amusing acting. The wireless operator, Dick Hyne, is drolly played by Mr. Harold Deacon, who proves himself the possessor of a very pleasing voice. Mr. Lister Morrah as Colonel John T. Bowie, the U.S. Consul, is distinctly good; and Duffy, the Secret Service detective is cleverly caricatured by Mr. Alfred Sandoe. Mr. Sydney Gavin ably personates the Rev. Arthur Bostick; and Mr. Frank Wolsey as Captain Samuel Codman is good. Mr. Harry Hardy makes a commanding figure of General Santos Campos; and Dr. Vasques, the Health Officer, finds a capable performer in Mr. Sydney Oliver. Mr. Dan Robson acts skilfully as Lieut. Perry. Lucy Sheridan is delightfully rendered by Miss Maie Ash, her animated acting, dainty manner, and pleasant singing being much appreciated. Exceedingly well played is the Senorita Juanita Arguilla by Miss Marjorie Maxwell, whose impassioned acting and really good singing win admiration. Miss Helen Holmes in the part of Aggie Shrub is so good that one regrets that she disappears after the first act. Mme. Ducrot is neatly interpreted by Miss Constance Grainger; and Miss Dorothy Eden is an adequate Mrs. John T. Bowie. The numerous minor parts are all in safe hands, and the chorus is of material assistance to the play's welfare. Mr. H. H. Shaw ably directs the augmented orchestra, and Mr. Joseph Harker's scenery is worthy of that gentleman's great reputation.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Nov. 7,
"THE SPECKLED BAND."

Mr. J. Murray Herriot, the popular manager of this theatre, has abundant reason to congratulate himself upon this week's engagement. Mr. Arthur Hardy's company are paying a first visit here in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's sensational and successful play The Speckled Band, and on Monday the house was packed. The piece is elaborately mounted and is admirably represented by an excellent company. Mr. Lyn Harding's impersonation of Dr. Grimesby Rylott, the murderous physician, is a wonderful performance, and a more forceful, convincing, and clever study of the character it would be hard to conceive. Miss Mary Forbes is admirably equipped for the impersonation of the much-tried Enid Stonor, her enactment being in every respect so well balanced and so pregnant with charm that the sympathy of the audience was enlisted from the start. As the austere and designing housekeeper Mrs. Staunton Miss Grace Edwin supplies an effective portrayal; Mr. F. Asheton Tonge introduces many clever touches into his embodiment of the faithful old butler Rodgers; and Mr. Frank G. Vyvyan is also satisfactory as Ali, the Indian valet to Dr. Rylott. Mr. Herbert Bradford plays with earnestness as Mr. Scott Wilson, and a clever and amusing characterisation is given by Mr. E. H. Brooke as Mr. Armitage, the village grocer. Mr. S. J. Warmington is satisfactory as Mr. Coroner Longbrace, and the same remark applies to Mr. Rupert Lumley as Mr. Brewer, foreman of the jury. Mr. C. P. Heggie has an ease of style which serves him well in the part of Sherlock Holmes, a part calling for the display of cynicism and subtlety. Mr. Talbot Homewood rendered valuable assistance as Dr. Watson, giving an excellent performance throughout. Master C. W. Lowrie is amusing and effective as Billy, the page, and Miss Lilian Rodgers (Mrs. Soames) and Messrs. Arthur Wyndham (Mr. Holt Loaming), Mr. Rupert Lumley (James B. Montague), and S. J. Warmington (Mr. Milverton) clients of Sherlock Holmes, were all powerful factors in the success of the piece. Mr. R. Jukes as inspector Downing and Mr. A. Bransgrove as Coroner's Officer, together with those forming the jury, all deserve credit for good work.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Comedy, by Brandon Thomas, entitled
"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Charley's Aunt has certainly found the elixir of perpetual success, for although many years have elapsed since she made her début, her amusing adventures are as laughable as ever, and at the Shakespeare Theatre this week hosts of admirers have testified to this fact in the most pronounced manner. Mr. Hugh Wakefield appears as Lord Fancourt Babberly, and his assumption of the rôle of Charley's Aunt keeps the audience in a continual state of uproarious merriment. Mr. Robert Burnett and Mr. Richard B. Mason as the two undergraduates, Jack Chesney and Charles Wykeham, are capable exponents of their respective parts; and Mr. Arthur Dennis as the college scout Bassett is amusing in a quiet but effective manner. Mr. Theo. McCausland Stewart as Col. Sir Francis Chesney is decidedly good; and the pompous Stephen Spettigue has an excellent representative in Mr. Henry Hare, who looks and acts the part capitally. Miss Audrey Stafford is seen to advantage as the real Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez, a part which she fills with distinction. Miss Grace Russell as Kitty Verdun, Miss Phyllis Back as Amy Spettigue, and Miss Janet Gillette as Ela Delahay play their respective rôles with charming grace and spirit. The comedy is preceded by a clever little play, The Lancashire Sailor, also from the pen of Mr. Thomas, in which Messrs. Hare, Burnett, and Stewart, and the Misses Back and Russell, appear with much success. The plays are presented by the author's London company, for whom Mr. Cecil Barth is general-manager.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Comedy, entitled
"LORD AND LADY ALGY."

Mr. Norman V. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson have hitherto appeared only in classical or romantic plays before Crystal Palace audiences, and the change to the above sporting comedy is much appreciated. Mr. Norman's easy style well suits the part of the Lord Algernon Chetland, his points being made in a quiet manner which greatly adds to their effect. Miss Beatrice Wilson's extremely natural acting, too, is eminently adapted to Lady Algy, the dashing society dame, who bets and smokes and yet is so genuine and generous withal. She appeared in many smart hats and costumes. The actress had numerous recalls. Mr. F. Lock Whittaker gave a finished study of the hypocritical Marquis of Quarmby. As the Duke of Droneborough Mr. Campbell Cargill was good in every way, and Mr. L. Meade made an excellent Hon. Crosby Jethro, the society lounger. Mr. Norman Leslie infused much force into his impersonation of the irascible parvenu Brabazon Tudway, his bursts of passion being most convincing. As his wife Miss Agnes Thornton was intense and effective, and Miss Madge Trenchard was very funny in the part of Mrs. Vokins at the fancy dress ball. Miss Helen Oliver looked and acted well as Lady Pamela Mallinson, and Miss Maisie Stuart was charming as her daughter, Ottiline. Mr. J. A. Snaith as Swepson had a lot to do, and did it well, and Mr. V. B. Glynn as Mawley Jemmet causes much amusement by his stolidity. Mr. R. Taylor made a neat little part out of slender materials as Lieut. Standige, and Mr. A. James as Kinch was efficient. Mr. G. Wynter was distinct in the small part of a newspaper reporter. Mr. Norman also includes David Garrick in his répertoire, this play being given on Friday and Saturday.

PAVILION THEATRE, E.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Drama, by Frederick Melville, entitled
"HER ROAD TO RUIN."

Mr. Frederick Melville's melodrama Her Road to Ruin has been playing to capital audiences this week. The cast is a strong one, and the scenery is deserving of praise. Mr. Charles Dickens as the hero embodies the character with much skill and vivacity; Mr. Albert Grenville's impersonation of Tom Wells is an easy one; Mr. Knox Orde is an admirable Philip Hardy; Mr. Dave Clarke played the part of the Bishop with power and dignity; Mr. R. Leigh Ellis's acting of Charles Cholmondeley, a ne'er-do-well, is an excellent example of histrionic art; as Sir John Lewis Mr. Guy Routh creates much hilarity; Miss Gertrude Tate is a fascinating May Willoughby, known as Brookby; Miss Grace Emery's impersonation of Jenny Crackling is creditable; and Miss Dorris Gilham plays Jess Willoughby with care.

FULHAM THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Play, by Ward Bailey, entitled
"FOR WIFE AND KINGDOM."

Fulham playgoers have been experiencing the delights of romantic melodrama, as presented by M. H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's London company. Mr. Reginald Fox plays Captain Max with a proper spirit of recklessness and daring; and Mr. Albert Guyon is an admirably suave and diplomatic villain as Baron Breslaw. Mr. F. Sutherland is satisfactory as General von Nestolde. Mr. Charles Gallier makes a fine figure as Sergeant Offenbeck, and with Mr. F. Osmond as Karl Ludhayr is responsible for much laughter. Mr. Lewis Gordon does well as the treacherous innkeeper; Miss Lillian Malvern is good and effective as Esther, the wise woman; Miss Alice Buckland plays smartly as Nita, the lady's maid; and Miss Audrey Canning displays much humour as Ottilie Schwarz, the cook with matrimonial aspirations. Miss Margaret Frame makes the most of the part of the false wife of General von Nestolde; and Miss Hettie Zillwood is a gracious and queenly representative of the Grand Duchess. The piece is well mounted, and the gorgeous uniforms and dresses help to form many fine stage pictures.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 7,
"THE GROTESQUES."

The Grotesques, who have been running with considerable success at the Savoy during the early autumn, commenced their suburban and provincial tour at Kennington Theatre on Monday. The company, which is being toured for Messrs. Chappell and company by Mr. Philip Cunningham, present a varied and attractive programme, which should not fail to draw good houses in the country. The entertainment on Monday consisted largely of burlesques and imitations, and some of these were well done. The impressions of a ballad concert, in which all the members of the company in turn gave extravagant caricatures of familiar types of public entertainers, created a good deal of merriment, and the "Village Concert," with which the programme concluded, was quite a merry burlesque. The male quartette in the "Village Concert" was quite a good number, and the same must be said of the song and dance by the two daughters of the Vicar. Another item which appealed to the audience was the Boy Scout's song. The remainder of the programme consisted of some excellent songs, dances, and concerted numbers. Mr. James Watts, who as an entertainer should go far, deserves the warmest praise for his song and dance, "Mr. Jollyboy," which was very smartly done. His other song, "Skerry Coons," was also finely rendered. Miss Dorothy Doria gave evidence of much talent by her treatment of the song and dance, "The Belle and the Beaux," in which the chorus effects were furnished by the gentlemen of the company. She also sang "I'll be your gal" earlier in the evening with considerable gusto. Mr. Sterndale-Bennett had a couple of songs, "Come with me to the sea" and "My bungalow in Bont-street," the lilting refrains of which appealed immensely to the audience. Miss Kathleen Severn and Mr. Hugh Bayly were very good in the duet "If ever I thought of marrying you"; whilst Miss Elsie English won an encore with her song "Mr. Nightingale." Another catchy song was "Mr. Sun," which was sympathetically treated by Miss Kathleen Severn. Mr. Harry Harmer had a rollicking chorus number, "The Uz-guz-goozle-um"; and Mr. Hugh Bayly should not be overlooked for his song, "Cosmopolitan Wives."

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Drama, entitled
"THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

Mr. Walter Howard's military drama is being admirably presented by the author's and Mr. Alfred Paumier's capital company. Mr. G. Mayor-Cooke as the black-hearted Hildred of Sylvania contrives to make this villainous prince quite acceptable by his humorous proclivities. Mr. Lionel Gadsden gives a very fine performance as the hunchback, Prince Michael, enlisting much sympathy for this sorrowing, misshapen creature. Mr. Ernest Cox makes a manly and handsome hero of "bonnie" Prince Olaf; Mr. Hugh Selwyn is a pathetic figure as the dumb servant, Nathan; Mr. J. Chamberlain plays well as the gruff old soldier, Colonel Wellenburg; Mr. Adam Alexander is very impressive as the crafty Bishop of Illyria; Mr. Fred D. Daviss has many opportunities to display his talents as Captain Hector; Mr. Charles V. Sandford raises many hearty laughs as the love-sick Lieut. Karl Stromberg; as the Princess Monica Miss Miriam Pritchett reveals real talent for acting, and is aided by a handsome presence; Miss Jessica Black is a pretty and engaging Viola; and Miss F. Hale Daviss is very successful as the singing beggar girl Camiola. Incidental music is well looked after by the orchestra under Mr. Wm. Stephenson's direction. The Bioscope, with pictures of recent events, is a permanent feature of the entertainment at this theatre.

NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Drama, entitled
"WHEN LONDON SLEEPS."

This powerful play has been a strong attraction this week at the Lyric. Mr. Kenneth Norbury as Captain Rodney Haynes makes an excellent heavy lead, his acting being strong and effective throughout. Much credit is due to Mr. George B. Daiper for his interpretation of David Engleheart; Mr. Harry Cooke, in the character of Sammy Blythe is irresistibly funny. The striking part of Mark Blackwood is well rendered by Mr. F. G. Kay. Miss Cissie St. Elmo is very good as Hilda Carode and Miss Mabel Scudamore is a charming Queenie Carruthers. Miss Lottie Lonsdale plays the character part of Mrs. Jonesio to perfection, and as Signor Jonesio Mr. Thomas is very good. Mr. Furnaby Fuller stands out well in the hands of Mr. Willis Collins; Miss Ida Lovett makes a very pretty Lelia; Mr. Richard Kirk is a good policeman; Mr. Otto Clayton does well as Stephano Mordicano; Mr. F. C. Pick plays Andrew Service, the bank messenger; Little Dudley is quite charming as Pierrot; Miss Christine Middleton is good as Maudie de Frere; and Mr. C. Clements undertakes the part of the servant Winkles. The members of the circus—Fearless Fernandez, Tumbling Thomas, and Rhoda Reckless—are portrayed by Mr. Fred Walters, Mr. George Paul, and Miss Vera Moncrieff respectively.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Musical Play,
"THE MERRY WIDOW."

A return visit of The Merry Widow to the Dalston Theatre is highly appreciated by residents of that part of North London, judging by the good attendance this week. The interesting and mirthful piece is admirably presented by members of Mr. George Edwardes's company, and the augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Harry Burton, renders the incidental and accompanying music with all requisite effect. Mr. Edward D'Arcy very quickly establishes himself a favourite with the audience by his amusing impersonation of Baron Popoff; Mr. Ripley Evans sings well as Vicomte Camille Jolidon, and his acting is on an equality with his vocalisation; Mr. Fred Fowler causes a good deal of amusement as Nisch; and another actor responsible for much hilarity is Mr. Clifford Selyer, whose eccentric fussiness as General Novikovitch arouses frequent bursts of laughter. Mr. Seyler is at the same time responsible for the stage-management. Mr. Warren Foster is a pronounced success as Prince Danilo, singing with good effect and imparting all the necessary energy to the character. His scenes with Miss Mary Ridley as Sonia are excellent, while Miss Ridley's acting is noteworthy for much vivacity and charm. Miss Ada Thomas scores as Natalie, and the dancing of Miss Kate May is much appreciated. The cast also includes Mr. Ernest Climpson, Mr. Adrian Beaumont, Mr. William Allison, Mr. H. Gordon Sherry, Miss Heather Featherstone, Miss Francis Midgley, and Miss Lucie Donati.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Drama, entitled
"RAFFLES."

Mr. Leonard Boyne's return—one might almost say his annual—visit with this popular drama is arousing great enthusiasm. This breezy, genial actor has seldom done anything better than the presentation he gives of the cool, insouciant Raffles. He is in excellent form, and seems to revel in the part. Admirable support is given by Miss Eva Killick, who is delightfully sympathetic and charming as Gwendoline Conran. Mr. Edward Irwin does admirable work as the Yankee ex-detective, Curtis Bedford; Mr. Carlaw Grand is effectively cast as the Earl of Amersteth; and Mr. Stephen Wentworth thoroughly realises the part of Viscount Crowley. "Bunny," the ever-faithful follower of Raffles, is well played by Mr. Harold West, and Mr. Buckstone Clair presents a bold and characteristic portrait of Crawshay. Mr. H. Armstrong is good as Merton; Miss May Brooke does well as the unsympathetic Mrs. Vidal; and Miss Blancka Stewart is good as Lady Melrose. Marie, the French maid, is capitally played by Miss Kathleen Grey, and Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald is a bright Lady Ethel. Raffles was well mounted and staged. Mr. Cecil Price is the genial business-manager for Mr. Leonard Boyne, and Mr. Newman Maurice was well to the fore in caring assiduously for the many patrons of Mr. Fred. Melville.

THE BROADWAY, NEW CROSS.

"A WHITE MAN."

Mr. Herbert Sleath's company is appearing with conspicuous success here in the above popular production, which is well staged and admirably acted. Mr. Frank Petley gives a fine rendering of the title-rôle, firmly holding the sympathy of his audience to the end. Mr. Charles Maunsell as Lord Kerhill gives a good performance of a somewhat thankless part, Mr. Harold Richardson does well as Sir John Applegate, Mr. V. T. Gerald is good as Mr. Chiswick, and the same remark applies to Mr. Wilson Alfred as Bates. Mr. Lewis Sealy plays Mr. Petrie capitally, Mr. Charles A. Foster is an excellent Dean of Trantham, Mr. John M. East as Big Bill gives a genial and enjoyable performance of an excellent part, Mr. Vernon Sansbury supplies a capital character study of Cash Hawkins, Mr. James E. Page is very good as Sheriff Hardy, Miss Nora Nagle is a clever Little Hal, Mr. Oswald Lingard makes a picturesque Tab-y-wana, Miss Enid Sass is a delightful Countess of Kerhill, Miss Dorothy Edwards a sympathetic and pleasing Nat-u-rich, Miss Elsie Buller an attractive Mabel, Miss Beatrice Martin is good as Mrs. Dolittle, and Miss Gertrude Price plays the Dowager Lady Kerth with ease and dignity. Mr. Arthur Bertram is the general-manager for Mr. Herbert Sleath, and Mr. Lewis Sealby the business-manager, while the stage is in the capable hands of Mr. John M. East. Mr. Bertram Iles's presence ensures comfort in front.

ROYAL ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 7,
"IL TROVATORE."

This week J. W. Turner's famous grand English Opera Company, now in the twenty-seventh year of its tour, is here on a return visit. On Monday Il Trovatore was staged and was received with rapturous applause. Miss Sarah Williams as Leonora and Mr. F. J. Hargrave as Manrico were in fine voice, and their articulation was perfect; Miss Beatrice Hill as Azucena and Mr. Frank Clarke as Count D'Luna gave admirable interpretations. On Tuesday Mr. Turner himself appeared as Don Jose in Carmen, and gave a capital representation; Miss Kitty Brownlees, in the title-rôle, had to repeat several numbers; Mr. Tom Griffiths as Escamillo received well-earned plaudits; and Miss Jessie Dennis did well as Mercedes. On Wednesday The Daughter of the Regiment; Thursday, Maritana; Friday, Tannhäuser; Saturday (matinée), Satanella, and (evening) Faust; are the other operas performed during the week. In addition to the aforementioned artists the following are appearing: Misses Ella Vane, L. Stock, Grace Parrish, and Carrie Rettur; Messrs. William Anderson, Sidney Clifford, Richard Cummings, Chas. Williams, T. Yates, Arthur Fisher, S. Appleby, and M. Le Noir. The chorus is a powerful one. Mr. T. Lawton, the musical director, must be complimented on his work, and the scenery and dresses are in keeping with the excellence of the productions.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Drama, entitled
"THE OLD HOME."

Mr. Evelyn A'Dell's company in The Old Home is the attraction here this week, the drama being admirably presented throughout. Mr. Charles Franmore as Daddy Dean, an old fisherman and captain of the lifeboat, acts with force and precision; Miss Violet Ingram as his devil-may-care daughter Hazel is decidedly good; Mr. Evelyn A'Dell makes a strong character study of the part of the village curate, Rev. Eric Armstrong; the villainous Lord of the Manor, Lord Avondale, is effectively portrayed by Mr. Edward Rawlinson; as Timothy Twaddle, the landlord of the Mariner's Rest, Mr. Fred Stone makes a typical publican; and his daughter Polly is capitally enacted by Miss Ethel Ashleigh. Miss Dick Seddon creates much hilarity by his interpretation of Sam Adams, who is continually reminding everyone that he is "the 'ero of Trafalgar." The remaining characters are all satisfactorily enacted. The scenery and properties are good, the oak room set in the third scene being especially worthy of mention.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Nov. 7, the Drama, by Dion Boucicault, entitled
"THE SHAUGHRAUN."

This evergreen Irish play has been drawing good houses to the Royal County Theatre. The drama, which has been sent out by Mr. Frank Weatherby, is presented by a strong company, who do it ample justice. Mr. Louis Palgrave makes a bright and breezy Conn; Mr. Frank Tennant a most acceptable Captain Molyneux; and Mr. Herbert Young presents a capital portraiture of Robert Ffoliot. Father Doolan is in the hands of Mr. Hy. W. Monte, who does it ample justice. Honours are also gained by Mr. Fred Terriss as Harvey Duff and by Mr. Edwin Bennett as Corrie Kinchela. Miss Cissie Clarke has won golden opinions by her presentation of the part of Moya; and Miss Mildred Gilbert as Arte O'Neill, Miss Lydia Busch as Clare Ffolliott, and Miss Amy Lorraine as Mrs. O'Kelly are deserving of mention. The play is admirably staged.

Mr. Frederick Wright, sen., one of our oldest actors, who has played the part of Dr. Manette more than 800 times, received on his last birthday the following letter and cheque from Miss Elaine Dickens, grand-daughter of the late Charles Dickens:—

"Villa des Mouettes, Cogspuer, Belgium.
"Aug. 8.

"Dear Mr. Wright,—I feel I must write and send you birthday wishes, as I see in The Era that your birthday is the same day as mine—Aug. 6. Will you accept the enclosed autograph of my grandfather, Charles Dickens? I have so often seen you play the part of Dr. Manette, and have met you several times on the stage after the play. I hope you have had a good holiday, and are well rested. Good luck to you on the coming tour.—Sincerely yours, "Elaine Dickens.

"SWEET SIMPLICITY."

An Opera, in One Act, by Kopski, Produced for the First Time on Any Stage at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, on Saturday, Nov. 5.

Though the audience was not numerous at the matinée at the Royal County Theatre on Saturday when Professor Kopski presented his little opera to the Kingston public, the reception which was given to the effort was of a cordial character. The scene is laid in a forest in England about the period 1500. In this wooded retreat live a hermit and his only daughter, "Sweet Simplicity," who has been so jealously guarded by her aged father that she had never seen the face of any other man. The little girl, who is beautiful, dreams of fairies and echoes. One day a huntsman's horn is heard in the forest, and the huntsman himself appears unexpectedly before her. She takes him for a fairy, and forthwith commences to fall in love with him—the first fairy she had ever seen. Their meeting takes place in the absence of the hermit, and the inevitable result follows, the two plighting their troth just as the aged parent returns and discovers with grief that his simple girl has met her fate. The music is not ambitious. It embraces a pretty song by "Sweet Simplicity" and one or two duets by her and the young huntsman. Miss Pansy Hooper in the title-rôle acquitted herself with charming naïveté. Mr. Ernest Penfold made a most acceptable young huntsman, his vocal efforts being much appreciated. Mr. Owens Claydon played and sang the part of the hermit with great credit. At the close of the performance all were called to the front.

A committee has been formed with the object of instituting in Oxford a library for students of music, which shall contain the complete works (as far as it is possible to procure them) of the composers of all times who have left their mark upon the development of music. The whole of the large and valuable music library of the late President of St. John's College (Dr. Bellamy) has generously been given by his sister, Mrs. Tylden. In addition, the complete works of Palestrina have been given, and the complete works of Orlando di Lasso, which are now being published, and the complete works of Schubert are promised. A sum of at least £300 is needed to complete the works of the great masters and to include many of the most important works up to the present day.

MR. ASCHE AND THE VAGABONDS.

Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton were the principal guests last Sunday at the New Vagabond Club's November dinner at the Hotel Cecil. Mr. Arthur Bourchier presided, and Miss Violet Vanbrugh was the hostess. The deputy chairmen were Mr. G. B. Burgin and Mr. Douglas Sladen, and others present were Sir Herbert Beerbohm and Lady Tree, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Irving, Mr. Laurence Irving, Mrs. G. B. Burgin, Mr. A. R. Ropes, and Mr. Haddon Chambers.

Mr. Bourchier, in proposing the healths of the principal guests, referred to the triumphal progress of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Asche in Australia, the land of Mr. Asche's birth. Vagabonds had no politics, but he believed the new interest of the Mother Country in the Dominions was largely due to the ambassadors of the various countries who exchanged visits—actors and cricketers—and when they could find an envoy such as Mr. Asche, a cricketer as well as an actor, accompanied by his wife, the success of the mission was assured, and the Secretary of State for the Colonies could sleep peacefully in his bed. The German Emperor had remarked, when Herbert Tree made his historic visit to Berlin, that actors were excellent ambassadors, and that their visits to foreign countries did much to cement international friendships. In this country all were for free trade in art, and welcomed the best that foreign neighbours sent us, at the same time giving a due measure of preference to kinsmen from "down under"—to a Melba as to an Oscar Asche, whose art had surely advanced Australia, just as the genius of a Bernhardt had done honour to France in the eyes of the civilised world. It was under his (Mr. Arthur Bourchier's) management that Oscar Asche had his first London chance, which came to him through the courtesy of Sir Herbert Tree, a chance of which he made the most. In the character of Maldonado in Sir Arthur Pinero's Iris Oscar Asche made a palpable hit. He has made a good many big hits since those days. Mr. and Mrs. Asche advanced Australia in their recent tour in bringing the people so much in touch with the Shakespeare that they loved.

Mr. Oscar Asche, in reply, said that he and his wife were glad to be back in London. It was two and a half years since they played in London, and it was with no little trepidation that they came back, and it was a great surprise to find that they had not been forgotten. In no walk in life had Australia lagged behind. The independence of thought which characterised Australians made them appreciate Shakespeare notwithstanding previous warnings. In every sport—which interested him more than the drama—to which Australians had applied their brains they had come out successful.

Mrs. Oscar Asche called upon Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, her stage godfather, to reply for her, and Sir Herbert said that he was proud to know that Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Asche were among the many people who had gone forth from the stage-door of His Majesty's Theatre and returned famous.

The health of Mr. H. B. Irving was cordially drunk, and the company wished Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Irving success in their forthcoming tour in Australia.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting held at 32, Regent-street, on Tuesday, Nov. 8. Present:—Mr. Robson Paige (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Misses Mildred Cottell, Rose Cazalet, Vita Spencer, and Beatrice Chester, and Messrs. C. A. Collins, Henry Pettitt, Frederick Annerley, F. J. Arlton, C. Hayden Coffin, Edward Morgan, Murri Moncrieff, and D. Young (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A letter was read from Miss Winifred Mayo, and the secretary was requested to compare the list of members of the Play Actors with the list of membership of the Association, and report at the next council meeting. The secretary read a letter from the Touring Managers' Association, and was instructed as to reply.

The hon. solicitor reported that he had written a letter on behalf of a member, and that he had given advice with reference to a claim. The secretary was instructed to file the letter for future reference.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Mr. Morgan, and adopted. Elections:—Trevor Sylvaine and Stanley H. Groome. Nominations:—Gladys A. Barnard, Eileen Guilbert, Edith Pither, and Ruth Heathcote.

The secretary was instructed to send a letter on behalf of the council to Miss Norah Mahone, regretting to hear of her late serious illness, thanking her for all her past work on behalf of the Association, and wishing her speedy convalescence.

Further progress was reported with regard to the "coming-of-age" dinner. As some doubt seems to exist as to the price of the tickets, the council desired it to be clearly stated that the charge is 5s. for members of the Association (every member of the A.A. being permitted to bring one guest at 5s.), 7s. 6d. for non-members of the Association, who are members of the profession, and a limited number of 10s. 6d. for the general public. Early application to the secretary for tickets was desired.

A MANAGER-POET.

Mr. Otto C. Culling, the popular General-Manager of the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd., who for a number of years has been a representative on the Bury Town Council, for private reasons did not seek re-election at the recent municipal contest. This has been a matter for regret, not only to his constituents, but also to his late confrères on the Council, as he has been prominent not only through his good work in the town's interests but also for his poetical effusions, which have caused endless amusement and gained for him in the district the title of "The Poetic Councillor." The following is an extract from the local Times:—

No more those mild melodious tones
Will rouse the faculties of mirth
By references to rags and bones—
Unless a "Second Time on Earth"
A tale doth tell.

When first he took to rhyming ways,
Providing pressmen pithy pars,
The bearded councillors did gaze
As if a "Messenger from Mars"
Weaved magic spell.

But even Civic dignity
Could not withstand his witty rhyme,
"Otto, the Outcast" now is he
Of his own will, while in his prime.
Culling, Farewell!

Mr. W. Somerset Maugham, who is in America, has said to an interviewer: "I always feel that the best place to begin writing a play is in the midst of an audience representative of the people for whom you are writing. I am sure that here I shall find what, to my mind, is the finest of all theatrical public, and that is one to which things of heart appeal primarily, whose feelings are still flexible, and which has a great zest for living as well as curiosity about life." Before he returns to England, Mr. Maugham will complete for Mr. Frohman a new comedy, the scenario of which has been approved of.

Princess Henry, Prince Leopold, and Prince Alexander of Battenberg witnessed the performance of Grace at the Duke of York's Theatre on Monday.

"THE OUTCOME OF AGITATION."

Play, in One Act, by James A. Douglas, Produced at the Kingsway on Saturday, Nov. 5.

Alec. Stern .....MR. HERBERT BUNSTON
Harcourt Stern .....MR. GUY CARY
Hickman .....MR. WINDHAM GUISE
Elsie Stern .....MISS CICELY CHARLTON

The purpose of the playlet, which was put on in front of Company for George at the Kingsway on Saturday is to emphasise the advantages of emigration. In drawing a sharp distinction between the poverty and misery of the mother country and the prosperity which awaits the prospector in the West the author is entirely successful, but he has failed to point the way to the many thousands eager to try their fortunes beyond the seas but lacking the means to take the first step. Otherwise, the little piece is acceptable, if only from the fact that it introduces us to a benevolent broker's man. That individual, Hickman by name, is quartered in the house of Alec Stern, an honest and hardworking mechanic, who has been thrown out of employment by trade union agitation for increased wages. His brother Harcourt, unexpectedly returning from Canada, learns from Hickman that Alec. and his wife are destitute, and are, in fact, dependent upon the charity of the man in possession for their daily bread. He gives Hickman money to buy food, and retires, leaving Hickman to break the news of his return. This the latter does in a comic scene, during which he produces the provisions and drink purchased with Harcourt's money. Alec. refuses to touch anything until he knows by what means it was obtained, and Hickman accordingly calls in the bountiful brother, who improves the occasion by enlisting them all as recruits for the colonies.

The trifle is rather crudely written, and much of the humour is weak, but it proved very amusing, due chiefly to the efforts of Mr. Windham Guise, who was very droll as the cheery and good-hearted man-in-possession, and secured hearty laughter. Mr. Herbert Bunston strongly depicted the despair and utter hopelessness of Alec. Stern; Mr. Guy Cary thoroughly realized the prosperous air of the well-to-do Canadian; and Miss Cicely Charlton invested the rôle of the faithful wife with dramatic feeling. The author had a hearty call.

Company for George has thoroughly established itself in favour, and seems unlikely to outstay its welcome for many months. A full house on Saturday received it with continual merriment, and repeated applause. Miss Eva Moore as the hospitable Mrs. Birch, Mr. Kenneth Douglas as the indolent but resourceful Claypole, and Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn as the much-harassed George having attained perfection.

"PRISCILLA'S" 150TH NIGHT.

A magnetic influence is exercised by Princess Priscilla, and when she leaves the Haymarket next month, in order to make way for Mr. Herbert Trench's revival of The Blue Bird, she is certain to take a numerous train of admirers. The 150th night of Priscilla Runs Away was reached on Wednesday, when a crowded house found renewed delight in the exquisite performance of Elizabeth Arnim's clever play, with its skilfully-contrasted pictures of Court magnificence and the quaintness of English rural life. Miss Neilson-Terry continues to hold the hearts of her audience captive throughout as the wayward Princess, ravishing the eye with her beauty and acting with refreshing girlishness and grace. Mr. Charles Maude assumes the elegance of the Prince and the romanticism of the chivalrous lover with equal facility, and his nicely-modulated voice is used to artistic purpose.

The dry drollery of Mr. Charles V. France finds a most acceptable outlet in his assumption of the Grand Duke of Lothen-Kunitz, the process in which the vain autocrat gives way to the doting father furnishing one of the chief delights of the evening. As a picture of the lone and ailing widow Miss Sydney Fairbrother's Mrs. Jones surely is unequalled. Her facial expression and vocal eccentricities are irresistible, and exact a hearty tribute of laughter. Another sterling performance is the Herr Fritzing of Mr. E. Lyall Swete, admirable in his fidelity to the Princess, diverting in his dealings with his debtors, but most impressive in the vigour of the gallant old man's determination to avenge the insult offered to his charge. Mr. Arthur Whitby remains the obsequious Court physician to the life, and the Baron Osterman of Mr. Allan Jeayes is another clearly-defined characterisation.

A true type of English youth is presented by Mr. Donald Calthrop as the impulsive Sir Augustus Shuttleworth, and as his less agreeable companion, Robin Morrison, Mr. Louis Goodrich is buoyant and amusing in all the scenes in which he shares. Miss Frances Ivor as the delightful Lady Shuttleworth adds to the fragrant air of the Cottage scene, and Mrs. Agnes Thomas makes the uncharitableness of the vicar's wife duly hard and unrelenting. Miss Helen Haye is still a regal Grand Duchess, and Miss Amy Lamborn makes the display of irritation by the Princess's maid very becoming. Neat studies from life are the querulous Carpenter of Mr. Laurance Hanray, and perspicacious Plumber of Mr. J. Fisher White, the local tradesman of Mr. Ernest Graham. Miss Victoria Addison is also conspicuous for a capital realisation of the slatternly and snuffling Emma Jones.

The German Theatres.

In Germany there are twenty subsidised Court theatres and nearly 100 theatres subsidised by the municipalities (writes Mr. Frederick Whelen in an interesting and informative article in the Chronicle). In many cases the theatre is granted to its director rent free, in others a subsidy is given in addition. In some cases the cost of the orchestra and the scenery and the costumes and the heating and lighting is borne by the town. There is a great variety in method and in degree, but the result is that throughout Germany the art of the drama is officially recognised, and the theatre is regarded as an essential factor in the town's life, with the result that there are splendid theatres giving varied repertories of classical and modern plays throughout the German Empire. But all the German theatres are not State supported or municipally supported. There are long-run theatres, the result of private enterprise, as there are in England; there are theatres for melodrama and musical comedy, and there are privately-supported repertory theatres in Berlin, in Munich, in Dusseldorf, and other towns. One of the most recent of these is a theatre of remarkable activities, the Dusseldorf Schauspielhaus (the Dusseldorf Playhouse) founded five years ago by Frau Dumont. Within two years of its foundation it had acquired a repertory of forty plays, including works by Shakespeare, Schiller, Oscar Wilde, Lessing, Bernard Shaw, Hauptmann, Sudermann, and Stephen Phillips. To-day, after five years of existence, it can point to a repertory representative of the drama of all European countries. I have been looking at the records of the last season. Thirty-three plays were added to the repertory. The modern European drama was represented by Schnitzler, Maeterlinck, Sudermann, Hauptmann, Heijermans, Bjornson, Von Hoffmannsthal, Ibsen, Strindberg, and many others. The English stage was represented by Shakespeare, Marlowe, and four plays by Bernard Shaw—Candida, The Doctor's Dilemma, The Showing up of Blanco Posnet, and Press Cuttings. Altogether, with new plays and revivals, fifty-one plays were given on the stage of the theatre during the season. This is achieved by private enterprise in a city of about 300,000 inhabitants which already possesses a subsidised municipal theatre. Its founder is a woman.

MR. H. A. JONES AND MR. CHURCHILL.

Mr. Henry Arthur Jones has written the following letter to the Home Secretary, in which the dramatist suggests a method of dealing with the Censorship question by the passage of a short, non-contentious Bill legalising the production of plays at music halls.

To the Right Hon. Winston Churchill, M.P.

Sir,—Mr. Robert Harcourt has announced that on the assembling of Parliament he will call your attention to the recent action of the Censor with regard to Mr. Laurence Housman's play, and to the fact that nothing has been done to carry into effect the recommendations of the Censorship Committee, although more than a year has passed since their report was issued. In the present state of public business it is perhaps likely that the question will be again dismissed to a more convenient season.

Legislators are too apt to regard the question of the amusements of the people as one of the smallest importance in our national economy. With due consideration for the time and convenience of Parliament, may I urge that few matters have a deeper social significance and relevancy to our general welfare?

Two or three generations ago every English man and woman, even those living in the largest cities, had an easy access all the year to country air and sports and amusements. To-day, in our huddled civilisation, these healthier open-air amusements are largely out of the reach of the vast majority of our population. The masses of our people are necessarily driven for the greater part of the year to take their relaxation chiefly in theatres, music halls, and kindred indoor resorts. Further, the daily occupations of our people are constantly tending to become more specialised, perfunctory, monotonous, mechanical. The immense majority of us are condemned to toil all day in towns, at engines, at typewriters, in mines, in shops, in warehouses, in offices, at some mere routine task which, instead of quickening the powers of our minds, rather clogs and stupefies and deadens them. Incessantly to shape the head of a pin, or to add up columns of figures, or to quote prices on the Stock Exchange, must surely tend to wither and deaden what, at the risk of provoking a smile or a sneer, I will call our spiritual nature—that power whereby we apprehend eternal things. Yet the vast majority of us spend our daily hours and market of our time in dull, lifeless, mechanical, uninspiring labour. It is only in their two or three evening hours that nine-tenths of our population can be said to live at all. Surely the quality and form of their amusements, of what occupies their evening hours of leisure, must be tremendously operative, not merely in forming their manners and guiding their tastes, but in shaping their views of life, and perhaps moulding their character and conduct. Surely it is a matter of supreme public importance that the amusements of the people shall be wisely and fairly supervised, and efficiently administered. Indeed, outside the great permanent concerns of government, the defence of the country, the guarding of the national finances, the enforcement of law—outside a few such great matters, I cannot see what question has more intrinsic importance, is more closely related, to the building up of a sound and vigorous national character, or could more fittingly engage the attention of our legislators. Compared with a living national drama, if we could but raise it, even the great arts of painting and sculpture, which rightly receive national recognition and honour, would seem to be the mere playthings of dilettanti and connoisseurs. In a dim way we already feel this in the homage we pay to Shakespeare; happily we seem to be preparing to give substantial expression to our feeling in building a National Theatre. Meantime, may I at the beginning of an autumn session that promises to be occupied with far different business, say this word to keep this matter in view of Parliament for its further remembrance and consideration when the time shall be convenient?

THE CENSORSHIP.

It will be asked how far the recent decisions of the Censor affect the general question I have raised. Sir, they have a very definite and lively, though indirect, connection, as I shall be prepared to establish when the occasion is ripe. But as the time of Parliament is mortgaged for the present to more important business, it will be advisable to hold over the discussion of the Censor's action until Parliament can deal with the report of the Censorship Committee. The matter is very intricate and complex, and is by no means to be dismissed by the short dictum that immoral plays must be stopped, and that the Censor is the man to do it. Those who hold this easy notion will find the whole matter exhaustively argued in my pamphlet on the Censorship Muddle.

Meanwhile it is allowed that the Censorship is likely to prove a contentious business, and that in any case the details of the final settlement will demand a somewhat lengthy discussion. Therefore it is obviously wise, if possible, to leave it until the attention of Parliament and the public can be more fully engaged to it. This course will be rendered possible if a short, non-contentious Bill is at once passed through Parliament, rendering legal the production of plays at music halls. Not a quarter of an hour of the time of Parliament need be taken up in passing this most just and necessary measure. It will at once ease the whole situation, and do away with the present disgraceful farcical confusion and law-breaking that attend the production of plays every night in every music hall throughout the country. What that confusion is I will try to describe.

Throughout the kingdom there are, it is estimated, 150,000 illegal performances of stage plays in music halls every year, and this number is rapidly increasing.

Every author, every manager, and every performer is liable to prosecution at the hands of the common informer.

There are thirteen different kinds of licences issued to the theatres and music halls of the United Kingdom, establishing the most galling and unfair differences between managers who should have equal rights to produce plays.

An absurd illegal agreement between the managers of theatres and music halls is enforced, limiting the music halls to the production of plays containing not more than six characters, and not lasting longer than half an hour. Thus, if one of the best London music-hall managers were to produce a fine original play lasting thirty-five minutes, he would be prosecuted, while the theatre-manager who prosecuted him might himself be producing the most witless vulgarity.

In this maddening and whimsical imbroglio there are other useless and harmful restrictions which I have not space to dwell upon; but the main of it is that the present state of the law everywhere tends to foster the production of the cheapest vulgarities and imbecilities, and to hinder the production of popular wholesome drama at music halls.

If it is questioned whether the music halls ought to be trusted with this power, I ask by what conceivable argument is it denied to them? Why should not a music-hall manager give scenes from Hamlet or The School for Scandal, if he thinks they would be appreciated by his public? That the music halls have shown themselves fit to be so far trusted is shown by the immense improvement in every way that has taken place in them during the past generation—an improvement that cannot be gainsaid, in spite of the gross indelicacies and scarcely veiled obscenities that are sometimes to be found in their entertainments. But the whole tendency is towards a higher level. Indeed, one of the strongest arguments against the Censorship is to be found in the fact that the music halls, without his supervision or interference, are voluntarily purging themselves of their more undesirable features. It is true that Mr. Bluewink, Mr. Leerit, Mr. Smallfilth, and Mr. Bawlrot are still unpleasantly present on our music-hall stage, but they are not quite absent from our regular theatre. And at the best-conducted present-day music halls they are practically banished. A generation or so ago the music-hall programmes were, for the most part, mere dishes of clotted imbecility and slimy feculence.

To show the importance of this question to the drama itself I may instance the Theatre Royal, Dublin. The Lord Chamberlain's licence does not run in Ireland. This lucky state of things enables the manager of the Theatre Royal, Dublin, to turn his house into a music hall or a hippodrome at certain times of the year, and thus to work it so economically and continuously that he is able to give a better season of drama at that time of the year when it is better suited to be a theatre. Thus in many towns the drama itself depends upon the opportunity of giving another kind of entertainment when the public demand it.

The substantial solidarity of the music hall and the theatre is already accomplished in England. Such great actresses as Sarah Bernhardt, to say nothing of our own leading actors and actresses, are appearing on our music-hall stage. Nothing can hinder a still closer rapprochement and fusion, though I think that the theatre and the music hall will still continue to provide a different class of entertainment, and, so far as the drama is concerned, a different class of play. But the continuance of the present restrictions on music-halls is most irritating, most senseless, most unjust, most scandalous.

The Censorship Committee in their report recommended "A simple licence for both classes of houses, giving them freedom to produce whatever entertainment may best conform to the tastes of the public which they serve."

Will you not, Sir, with the smallest trespass upon the valuable time of Parliament, immediately carry this recommendation into effect?

You have recently made provision that our prisoners and malefactors shall be cheered and amused at the public expense during the long and weary hours of their confinement. What have our patient, well-behaved, hard-working millions of well-conducted citizens done that they should be thwarted and baffled and denied in seeking legitimate amusement at their own expense?

It is to be noted that this matter can be easily and readily detached from the vexed question of the Censorship. The time of Parliament need not be wasted. Let it at once be made lawful for the music halls to do what they are already doing abundantly every night all over the kingdom, in defiance of the law—that is, to produce stage-plays. And let these stage-plays be of any length, and contain as many characters as may be necessary for their representation. This will relieve the entire situation, and the Censorship may be allowed to slide until such time as it may be carefully and fully considered.

I have, I hope, written temperately and without undue warmth. The mere presentation of the case should be sufficient to carry it through. I am persuaded that you will see your way to grant this reasonable request, backed as it is by the recommendation of the Committee appointed by your own Government, and also by the great majority of those names in literature whose judgment should carry weight. It cannot be wise to keep this thorny little question in a state of constant irritation and festering. It is not for the dignity of the Lord Chamberlain's office that it should be engaged in the continual broils and squabbles which the neglect of the precaution I have advocated will assuredly engender and aggravate.

With due submission to the wisdom it may be confidently expected the present Parliament will show in this matter—I am, your obedient servant,

HENRY ARTHUR JONES.

[illegible] BY E. KIMBELL, 26, STRAND.

Miss Henrietta Hodson, whose biography we have last week, played Celia in a matinée given under the auspices of Miss Helen Faucit for the benefit of the Royal General Theatrical Fund at the Haymarket Theatre on Saturday Dec. 20, 1873. There are now only three surviving members of this exceptional cast, namely, Mr. Chas. Wyndham (now Sir Charles), Mr. Howard Russell, and Miss Kate Bishop.

A MANAGER POET.

Mr. Herbert Trench has written a poem, which has appeared in the English Review for November. It is called "THE HORN OF THE MOON.

"I stood by the oak at the full of the Moon
When all the far country was clear, O!
And the bird of the forest kept singing a tune,
The word I would say to my dear, O!

"And I roofed my roof-tree at the wane of the Moon
That nothing might warp him or burn him,
And I wished a deep wish at the new of the Moon
And sealed him where no man should learn him.

"But she branded my heart at the new of the Moon
And my wound it grew deep beyond measure,
Till I sent her soft gallant, that begged for a boon,
A blade that was red, for his pleasure.

"O bright my love's tresses at full o' the Moon,
And nothing in beauty shone rarer,
Sleeping her fill in the face of the Moon—
Never a footfall to scare her!

"And these hands that slew her at rise of the Moon
Did mix him with night everlasting:
But the bird of the forest keeps singing a tune
That mine is a care there's no casting.

"Hang my powder-horn on the horn o' the Moon!
The deer of the bracken may flout me,
The hunt shall be up at the pale of the Moon
And the lordings go hunting without me!"

Hermann Sudermann and "Die Ehre."

HERMANN SUDERMANN says Ashley Dukes in the New Age, arrived at a critical point in the history of the German Theatre. In 1889 the revolutionary Freie Bühne (the Free Stage), discoverer of Hauptmann and pioneer of Ibsen, was established in Berlin. In November of the same year Sudermann's first play, Die Ehre, appeared at the Lessing Theater, and was received with an enthusiasm altogether beyond its merits. The early catchwords of Ibsenism and advanced drama had just reached the ears of the general public, and the audience, steeped in the demi-monde sentiment of Dumas and theatricality of Sardou, welcomed Sudermann as the prophet of a new era. He tempered the Scandinavian winds to these shorn lambs of the theatre. He nursed them tenderly, adding a cautious teaspoonful of modernity to their mother's milk in order to flatter their vanity and assist digestion. "Honour" was his theme—the honour of an officer and a gentleman. He attacked the conception with bourgeois bravado. He ridiculed the duel as a vehicle of personal satisfaction. But in place of honour he had nothing to offer but vague and pretentious sentiment, theatricality and falsehood. There is not one glimmer of reality in the whole play, and the hero, a young merchant, is a man of straw upon whose making no artist could conceivably have wasted an hour. All this may have appeared highly revolutionary to a Prussian Junker or an officer in a cavalry regiment, but after Ibsen it contributed less than nothing to drama. The production of Die Ehre, in short, was a landmark in theatrical history, but not in the history of the theatre. Sudermann, however, had displeased the military caste, and his next play, Sodoms Ende, was condemned as immoral, and suspended for a time by order of the Court. This was unfortunate, for there is nothing which stamps an author as "advanced" so distinctively as a conflict with the censorship, and nothing (in Germany) so likely to gain him popular respect as an artist. Sudermann was instantly classed with his betters, Ibsen, Hauptmann, and Strindberg, although in reality Sodoms Ende was as trivial a piece of work as Die Ehre.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR HERBERT TREE has kindly lent His Majesty's Theatre to the Royal College of Music for a performance of Schumann's opera Genoveva, to celebrate the centenary of the composer's birth, on Friday afternoon.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT is resuming his kindly efforts on behalf of hospital institutions, and on Dec. 14 next, at the Pleasure Gardens, Folkestone, will tell the story, as arranged by himself from the author's text, of Charles Dickens's "Christmas Carol," in aid of the Royal Victoria Hospital. The Countess of Radnor will preside.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER will produce Mr. R. C. Carton's new comedy, Eccentric Lord Comberdene, on Saturday evening next. Mr. Alexander will be supported by Messrs. Arthur Royston, Stuart Dennison, G. Trevor Roller, Athol Stewart, Fred Lewis, Lyston Lyle, Ashton Pearse, J. H. Barnes, T. Weguelin, E. Vivian Reynolds, Gerald Ames, James Standish, W. Pilling, Frank Rorke, and Frank Arundel, Miss Compton, Miss Rita Jolivet, Miss Ruth Maitland, and Miss Majorie. The play opens in the Lounge of the Imperial Hotel, Shingleford Bay. In the second act we are taken to Room No. 57 of the hotel, and Act III. passes to the Deck of The Morning Star.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES might readily be pardoned for giving himself a short rest. With so many theatres on his hands that, however, is just what he is unable to do. He will go to Vienna next week to see the new musical play, The Doll Girl, the libretto of which is by Mr. Victor Leon, and the music by Dr. Leo Fall. Mr. Edwardes obtained an option upon the piece both for England and America some time since.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY to-night concludes a highly successful visit to the New Theatre, Cardiff, where Mr. Redford has been hard pressed to find accommodation for all those who have been desirous of witnessing Mr. Harvey's various performances. The Only Way, A Cigarette Maker's Romance, and Richard III. have been the plays of the week, and it would be hard to say which has proved most attractive.

THE Prince's Theatre, Bristol, will be the scene of Mr. Harvey's artistic operations next week, and, judging by the advance booking, a highly successful visit is assured. On Monday week Mr. Harvey and his company will be at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, where the popular actor is arranging to repeat his lecture on the subject of the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre. Mr. Harvey is thoroughly delighted with the interest which is being taken in his various deliveries of this address.

MR. HENRY ARTHUR JONES sailed for New York on Wednesday to superintend rehearsals of his new play, which is to be produced there about Christmas. The principal character is a woman, who is at odds with society, and battles desperately with her fate. Mr. Jones, before leaving England, completed a one-act play, called Dolly's Little Bills, founded on the quarrel scene in Dolly Reforming Herself. It will be presented at the Hippodrome about Christmas.

MR. LAURENCE IRVING has a heavy cast for his new play, The Unwritten Law, which will be produced at the Garrick on Monday. In addition to himself and his clever wife, Miss Mabel Hackney, the list consists of Messrs. Frank Esmond, Rupert Harvey, James Skea, W. Barnett, Wentworth Fane, Charles Seymour, Montague Lane, A. Field Fisher, Dalziel Heron, C. Roberts, A. Dodd, P. Simmonds, J. Woodhouse, Clive Terrance, I. Jones, J. Arnold, and Henry Elmore, and Misses Leonora Oakford, Alice Inman, Mabel Nelson, May Ediss, Doris Vaile, Evie Stuart, Gertrude Bill, Beatrice Smith, and Dorothy Hill.

MISS LENA ASHWELL will sail for New York in December, to appear there in Mr. C. M. S. McLellan's drama Judith Zaraine, but will reappear at the Kingsway early in the coming year in a new play by Mr. H. V. Esmond, entitled The House of Ussher. It has only five characters and only one scene.

MISS ELLEN TERRY, who arrived in America last week, after an absence of three years, was to begin her ninth American tour at the Hudson Theatre, on the 3rd inst. Miss Terry will remain in America for twenty weeks, giving a series of Shakespearean discourses, with illustrative acting, in the principal cities. Miss Terry told the interviewers that she had come to America to pick up silver dollars to plant in her garden in Kent; that she was a suffragette, but would not march in any parades; and that she was strongly opposed to the movement which well-meaning people had started to keep children off the stage, which she characterised as "a great mistake."

THE distinguished actress carried a tiny pot of white heather, which Mr. Henry Dickens had given her for luck when she sailed. Her first lecture at the Hudson Theatre was devoted to "The Heroines of Shakespeare—Triumphant." This will be followed by another discourse called "The Heroines of Shakespeare—Pathetic." The third and final lecture will be on "The Letters in Shakespeare's Plays."

AT the close of the first lecture Mr. Percy Mackaye was to read the poem of greeting which he had written for the souvenir gift to be presented to Miss Terry. This is a vellum-bound volume containing the signatures of President Taft and of almost every person of prominence in literature and the drama in New York.

THE King and Queen have graciously given their patronage to the benefit concert to Sir Charles Santley, which is being arranged for May 12 next, under the auspices of the Lady Mayoress. Covent Garden has been promised for the occasion, and many famous artists have offered their services. Sir Herbert Tree has undertaken the organisation of the entertainment, and will himself appear in Julius Cæsar. Sir Charles Santley will appear in The Watermen; and a selection from grand opera will be included in the programme. Sir Homewood Crawford is to be the hon. treasurer.

AT the fancy dress ball at Covent Garden on Saturday morning Mr. Willie Clarkson was successful in obtaining first prize for a lady's domino, entitled "The Dawn of a Bright To-morrow."

MR. HERBERT TRENCH has definitely decided to revive for a season of six weeks Maeterlinck's fairy play, The Blue Bird, at the Haymarket, on Dec. 19. Two performances will be given daily, and the cast, with one or two exceptions, will be the same as last year. The new act, which has been specially written by M. Maeterlinck for this revival, is entitled The Palace of Happiness. Priscilla Runs Away will be transferred to another theatre.

MR. ARTHUR WILLIAMS has been engaged to take up Mr. Fred Emney's part of Cornelius Scrop in The Girl in the Train at the Vaudeville Theatre on the 19th inst. The character should suit Mr. Williams exactly.

IT is sometimes doubted if the romantic accidents which are represented as occurring to racehorses in dramas and novels are founded on fact, but several instances are given in Mr. Alfred E. T. Watson's article on Mr. George Edwardes's racing career, in the Badminton Magazine. The writer says of Santoi: "In the Cesarewitch Santoi carried 9st. 7lb., a burden with which, needless to say, the race has never been secured; and then came the Jockey Club Cup, about which I have to write with caution. The colt, usually so full of life, was dull and listless on the morning of the race, and many of those who saw him in the Birdcage would have nothing to do with him. Nevertheless he started at 11 to 8 on, and, in the circumstances, it is strange that he should have done as well as he did, running second to King's Courier, beaten only by a couple of lengths. Mr. Edwardes and his horse were, there can be no doubt, victims of a conspiracy. Someone who had access to Santoi did not wish him to win, and took care that he should not do so. The horse was never quite the same afterwards, though he ran well as a five-year-old." Another instance was that of Fairy Field, who "was probably injured to an extent which cannot be estimated by the iniquitous carelessness of a boy who brought him from Stockton after he had won his second race. This promising youth had won some money on the colt, and when he got to London thought he would enjoy himself. Fairy Field was left in his box at Clapham Junction without food or drink for twenty-four hours."

MR. LYN HARDING, at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, on Monday, reappeared in his masterly characterisation of Dr. Grimesby Rylott in The Speckled Band, and aroused remarkable enthusiasm. Mr. Harding continues his performances in this part next week at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, where, the other day, he was playing Sir Walter Ralegh, as companion start with Miss Winifred Emery in Mr. Devereux's drama of the same name.

MME. KATE FLINN gave a reception in the Clarence Rooms of the Brighton Hotel Metropole on Saturday. The programme was carried out (save for the instrumental part) entirely by Mme. Kate Flinn's Brighton and London pupils, who were entirely successful. Miss Gladys Nelson was heard to great advantage in "Heaps of lichens" and "In my garden"; Phyllis Weeks secured commendation in "Ombra mai fu"; Muriel Franlinski, a child prodigy with a voice of remarkable power, gave the Jewel Song and "Nymphs et sylvains."

AMONGST the London pupils Miss Golda Clarke and Miss Ruby Cobbell fully deserved the applause they received. Miss Golda Clarke, a beautiful soprano from Australia, did full justice to Batten's "April morn" and "Al Ballo," by Sconzin, and in response to a hearty recall, she gave "Mifanwy" and "I know a lovely garden." Miss Cobbell also won encores for "Che Farò" and "A lilt of tears," by Lady Garioch. Miss Freda Hogan gave an artistic rendering of "Solvieg's Lied." Miss Dorothy Fitzgerald was encored for her song and dance, "I'm a naughty girl," and Elsie Rowell's recitation, "The Round Tower of J'hansi," and her quaint song and dance gained deserved favour. Maud Violette sang with much grace "Les Belles Manières." The rooms were crowded, and among the guests were Lord and Lady George Loftus, Lady Wheeler, Lady Miéville, Mrs. Holman (Mayoress of Lewes), the Mayor and Mayoress of Brighton, Countess de Morel, and Lady Payne.

THE recent change in the directorate of the Guildhall School of Music calls to mind a distinguishing feature of its development. Although the school has been in existence but thirty years, its diplomas during that comparatively short period have reached not only every corner of the British Isles, but the most distant colonies; indeed, in India, Ceylon, Burmah, the Straits Settlements, and the Far East, are to be found an enormous number of its pupils. At the present moment there are 3,000 students studying singing, instrumental playing, and other branches of music, acting, and elocution at the Guildhall. The number constitutes a wonderful record, and is not reached by any other school in the world.

SINCE its inauguration the school has done invaluable work by reviving a number of exceedingly interesting operas, producing them on the stage which forms part of the building. Weber's melodious Oberon, which has not been heard in London since 1879, will shortly be given by the pupils of the opera class.

MISS N. DE SILVA (Mrs. Martin Harvey) has sustained a severe bereavement in the death of her mother, which occurred last week at Mr. Harvey's residence at Regent's Park after a long illness. The sympathy of Miss De Silva's many friends and admirers will be readily extended to her in her sad loss.

IT is with the deepest regret we announce the death of Mr. Frank Emery, the beloved father of Miss Pollie Emery, which sad event occurred at Southport on Tuesday. It will be remembered that for a number of years Mr. Emery was lessee and manager of the Amphitheatre and of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, and for some time stage-manager for the late Wilson Barrett upon his American tours. His record was a long and interesting one, and he died in harness. His last engagement was with the original House of Temperley company, at the Adelphi and also on tour. In this piece he played the part of George Maddocks, the coster. His death is greatly mourned by his brother and sister artists and by all who knew him, and the deepest sympathy is felt for his clever daughter, Miss Pollie Emery, in her sad bereavement. The funeral took place on Friday.

THE programme of the Actresses' Franchise League and the Women Writers' Suffrage League on Friday next at the Aldwych Theatre, includes the names of many theatrical celebrities. In the "Pageant of Great Women" Miss Lily Brayton will represent Justice, Miss Lillah McCarthy Woman, and Mr. Henry Ainley, Prejudice. Among those who will impersonate the historical characters are Misses Lena Ashwell, Evelyn D'Alroy, Amy Brandon Thomas, Helen Haye, Dora Barton, Eva Moore, Decima Moore, Doris Lytton, Edith Olive, Suzanne Sheldon, and Gertrude Kingston. Other Suffrage societies will also be represented in the persons of Mrs. Despard, Miss Frances Stirling, and Lady Constance Lytton. Two short plays by "George Paston" and Miss Cicely Hamilton respectively will present Miss Marion Terry, Mr. Arthur Chesney, Miss Clare Greet, Miss Agnes Thomas, and Miss Sydney Fairbrother in effective rôles. Special items of the programme will be furnished by Miss Gertie Millar. Miss Evie Greene. Miss Olive Walters, of The Blue Bird fame, and many other leading actresses who have never before been actively associated with the Suffrage movement. Programmes will be sold at sixpence, under the direction of Miss Lilian Braithwaite, and tea will be obtainable also at a modest price.

MR. FRANK BERESFORD has been approached by Mr. Leonard Rayne on behalf of Miss Ada Reeve's South African tour, to stage-manage and play lead in sketches.

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON, who was unable through indisposition to appear last year at Birkenhead, did not disappoint the New Theatre Royal patrons this time, and opened with his entire London company the production of Brewster's Millions to a full house last Monday evening. Judging by his reception at the rise and fall of the curtain there was no doubt with regard to the popularity of his performance as Monty Brewster, in which Mr. Hutchison has scored a great success.

MR. WEEDON GROSSMITH and his company began an engagement at the Belasco Theatre, Washington, on the 31st ult., presenting Mr. Preedy and the Countess for the first time in the United States. President and Mrs. Taft and several members of the Diplomatic Corps attended the performance. Mr. Grossmith and his play were very well received, the applause being frequent and hearty.

MISS KATE WALBRAN concludes a successful eleven months' engagement with the De Jong-Black company in South Africa at the end of November, and after perhaps a few weeks' holiday to visit some of the portions of the country that have not been included in her travels, will return to England. The excursion abroad has whetted Miss Walbran's appetite for fresh fields and pastures new, and she has the intention to attack other foreign managers, particularly American. The number of the parts she has played and the uniform success that she has achieved in all her rôles should augur well for the result of her quest.

AN exhibition of Miss Walbran's resourcefulness is placed on record by a South African paper. While she was playing Lady Dudley there came a slight pause, and another lady ought to have come on. She did not; and a voice from the O.P. side was heard in urgent whisper, "Say something!" And then for what seemed like five minutes—no doubt it was considerably less—to those who were in the know, Miss Walbran gave an exhibition of cool, resourceful gagging, with nothing in tone, matter, or delivery to suggest to those who did not know the piece that there was anything wrong.

THERE was a packed audience at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, on Thursday evening, the 3rd, when a complimentary benefit was given to Mr. Fred Erown, the acting-manager. The company playing Can a Woman be Good? which was last week's attraction, only presented one act, as the variety programme was too lengthy to admit of the whole drama being played. The curtain was raised at 7 p.m., and did not fall until past midnight.

THE following variety artists and many others contributed to the big and varied programme:—Winnie Barr, Jennie Claremont, Brothers Horne, Ruby Zethos, James Bendon, Florrie Brown, Nellie Tate, Marie Kendall, Steve McCarthy, Pinky Martini, Young and Evans, Johnny Cecil, Beattie Brothers, and Lottie Lennox.

DURING the evening Mr. Brown was brought forward by Mr. Steve McCarthy, chairman of the benefit committee. Mr. Brown, he said, deserved a successful benefit, as the last he had was seven years ago. He had been at the Pavilion Theatre for thirty-two years. Mr. Brown briefly returned thanks.

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN A. OVERTON (Anna Beaumont) have completed their 200th performance in the drama Temptation, Mr. Overton playing Hubert Thorne, the lading heavy part, and Miss Beaumont that of Mrs. Oxon, the comedy old lady.

MR. J. A. CAMPBELL'S new play, The Coastguard's Daughter, will be given its London production on Monday next at the Elephant and Castle Theatre. This fine, strong naval play was originally called The Hand that Rocks the Cradle. Such an allegorical title was found to be inappropriate to so stirring a naval drama, and under its new name the success already won by the play will be greatly enhanced.

MR. F. C. WHITNEY has made early arrangement for Christmas, and announces that there will be twelve performances of The Chocolate Soldier at the Lyric Theatre in Boxing Week.

A NEW one-act play, entitled The Menders of Nets, by Philip Gibbs, will be produced at the Queen's Theatre this (Saturday) evening. The cast will consist of Miss Beryl Faber, Miss Frances Wetherall, Mr. Frederick Worlock, and Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore. It may be added that a very similar title, A Mender of Nets, was used for a one-act play by Cosmo Hamilton, produced at the Court Theatre in the December of 1907.

MISS CLAIRE TOWNSHEND, who has been so successful in the part of Mrs. Frank Perry in Are You a Mason? has been specially re-engaged by General Productions, Ltd., to play all the leading parts in the Grand Theatre Répertoire Company, which starts a long tour at the Grand Theatre, Scarborough, on Jan. 23, 1911. Miss Townshend will also appear in the West End when General Productions produce their new piece, which will be as soon as a theatre is settled on.

A QUARTET of new plays—one of them in four acts—was produced for copyright purposes at the Assembly Rooms, Balham, on Saturday, by Mr. R. Malcolm Morley's company. The novelties consisted of Her Father's Wife; or, End It as You Will, a dramatisation by David and Astrid Kimball, of Maarten Maartens' story; The Mother or the Son, a dramatisation by David Kimball, of Prosper Merimée's Matteo Falcone; The Trial of Jeanne D'Arc, a play, in four acts, translated by Astrid Kimball, from Emile Moreau; and The God of His Fathers, a dramatisation, by David Kimball, of Jack Linden's story.

MISS GRACE DENBEIGH-RUSSELL has been engaged by Mr. Brandon Thomas to play Kitty Verdun in Charley's Aunt for three weeks, until she commences rehearsing with Mr. Auguste Van Biene for The Broken Melody, in which she is to enact the Duchesse de Vervier.

MR. H. G. DUDLEY-BENNETT has arranged that his fifteenth annual pantomime at the Shakespeare Theatre shall be produced by Mr. G. Brydon Phillips. A very strong company has been engaged. Mr. Phillips is also to repeat at the New Theatre, Oxford, for Mr. C. C. Dorrill, the experiment tried last season of producing a pantomime on Boxing Day in the University town, it having proved such an unqualified success.

EVERY possible success should attend Mr. Tom Watt in his next tour of East Lynne, which he starts at Christmas. With the aid of a well-known author, the old play will appear with a new lease of life, and from the prospective bookings, it should be a very successful one. Mr. Watt will keep up the high standard of general excellence with the aid of a first-class company of experienced artists, printing, &c. The many resident-managers with whom Mr. Watt has done business in the past, and who cherish a personal regard for his unswerving courtesy and strict business principles, will wish him every success in his venture. Miss Ida Heron will repeat her fine impersonation of Lady Isabel, and Mr. Frank Beresford will appear as Archibald Carlyle. The tour is under the personal direction of Mr. Tom Watt, and the production and stage management will be in the safe hands of Mr. Beresford.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN gave a somewhat novel performance of a selection of scenes from Shakespeare's tragedy of Romeo and Juliet at the Crystal Palace Theatre, before his special production of David Garrick, Miss Beatrice Wilson appearing as Romeo to the Juliet of Miss Kathleen Rind, a former member of Mr. Norman's company, who has now left the stage. The Mercutio was Mr. H. Lock Whittaker; and the Benvolio Mr. Campbell Cargill. Miss Wilson is one of the few actresses who has essayed the part of Romeo.

MISS ANNIE HUGHES closed last Saturday a successful tour of Miss Tommy at the Opera House, Blackpool, and resumed her music-hall engagements at the Pavilion, Glasgow, on Monday, Nov. 7, where she was greeted with a very flattering reception on her appearance as Mme. Sans Gêne, in her new sketch, Napoleon's Washerwoman, which scored a distinct and unqualified success. Miss Hughes is ably supported by Mr. Henry Deas as Napoleon and Mr. Mayne Lynton as Fouché.

ON Monday, Nov. 14, Miss Hughes will produce at Liverpool a new dramatic duologue, which she has acquired absolutely from the author, Mr. W. Douglas Newton, entitled The Fourth Kiss. In this Miss Hughes will have the assistance of Mr. Mayne Lynton. Liverpool is followed by Manchester for two weeks with the above-named sketches, and on Dec. 5 Miss Hughes will return to the Syndicate halls, opening at the Metropolitan.

MISS ALICE O'DEA, who recently made such a success as Madge Thomas, in Strife, in the provinces, has concluded a tour with Miss Annie Hughes, and has been specially engaged by Miss Horniman to play in Press Cuttings in special performances at Manchester and Oxford.

THE "Play Actors" will produce at the Court Theatre on the 20th inst. a new three-act play by Mr. Morley Roberts and "Henry Seton," entitled False Dawn. Mr. Hubert Druce will produce it, and in it will appear Mr. Norman Trevor, Mr. H. Nye Chart, Miss Marie Linden, Miss Esme Beringer, and Miss Gilian Scaife.

MR. ROBERT ARTHUR must withdraw Behind the Veil from the Coronet this evening to make room for Mr. George Edwardes's Merry Widow company, which includes Miss Louie Pounds and Mr. Basil Foster.

WE regret to announce the death of Mrs. Baines, the mother of Miss Florence Baines, proprietress of the Miss Lancashire, Limited, company, which occurred on Nov. 2. The funeral took place last Saturday. Including the number of friends who assembled round the graveside were some old theatrical identities, and all the members of Miss Baines's companies sent some beautiful floral tributes. In another column Miss Baines thanks her many friends for their letters of condolence and floral tributes.

ONE of the numerous presents highly treasured by the late Mr. Lester Collingwood, of the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, was a "Queen of Hearts" breast-pin, presented to him by Mr. George Robey. Mr. Collingwood's executors have given this pin to Mr. W. T. Guest, who was the late "Guv'nor's" "spic and span" acting-manager, and who is now working hard at the theatre.

MR. GEORGE R. J. AUSTIN will conclude his performances of the part of Pete on Nov. 26, after two successful tours, and with his wife, Miss Marie Florence, will join the Gaiety Theatre company at Manchester under Miss Horniman's management.

MR. WELTON DALE, the popular proprietor of the Tunbridge Wells Opera House, who is better known in private life as Major Eggerton, has just been elected a Town Councillor of this fashionable borough by a big majority.

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON has been correctly described in the Press recently as "the most energetic and enterprising actor-manager in the English provinces to-day." His future plans embrace the lesseeship of other theatres beyond the beautiful Opera House, Southport, the production of Arsène Lupin at Blackpool next month, acquiring the entire provincial rights of two recent London successes, and sending on tour early next spring four Hutchison comedies, all produced under his personal supervision.

MISS LILLIAN WILLIAMS has been specially engaged by Mr. Fredk. Mouillot for a tour of A Message from Mars.

THE pantomime at the Lyric, Hammersmith, will be Cinderella, and will be written by Fred S. Jennings, with music by Ashley Richards. Miss Kittee Rayburn will again be principal boy, Miss Marie Free will be Cinderella, Dandini will be played by Miss Maude Esmond, the Ugly Sisters by the Bros. Obo, the Baron by Mr. Templer Ellis, the Baroness by Miss Marie West, and the Page by Mr. Frank Hemming. A speciality will be supplied by the Monte Video Sextette of acrobatic dancers. The production will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Wentworth Croke.

CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Morgan on the birth of a daughter. Mr. Morgan is at present playing Captain Caversham in The Girl Who Lost Her Character.

MR. CHARLES HARTLEY and Miss Ethel Gordon Paull will start their fourth European tour with their own entertainment on Jan. 2 at Geneva. After visiting the Italian Riviera, they will embark for Egypt, where they will give several performances.

A DUEL with swords was fought at the Parc des Princes, near Paris, on Tuesday, between M. Marnold, a musical critic, and M. Mathot, Press correspondent, who took exception to an allusion to himself which appeared over M. Marnold's signature. Up to the sixth round, after fifty-five minutes of fencing, no advantage was obtained by either side, but then M. Marnold was pinked in the right thigh, and the doctors prevented any further bloodshed. The adversaries were not reconciled.

MR. H. K. AYLIFF, the well-known actor, was on Saturday presented by his wife with a daughter. Hearty congratulations!

THAT "merry and bright" musical absurdity Chasing Cynthia was staged at the Theatre Royal, Worthing, last week-end, and it created a very favourable impression. Mr. Frank Stanmore, Mr. Arthur Poole, and Mr. Mark Lester are well known at this popular seaside resort, and they met with a great reception at the various performances.

THE Theatre Royal, Worthing, which has been rebuilt, and which is now admittedly one of the best theatres on the South Coast, will for the next fortnight be given over to variety entertainments. After that Mr. C. Adolf Seebold, the courteous and obliging manager, has arranged for The Bad Girl of the Family to make her début locally. Another short season of variety will then be given, and in the meantime the preparation of the pantomime Aladdin will be gone on with. We hear that this year's pantomime, which will be undertaken by Mr. J. D. Hunter, will be on a gorgeous scale and that it is likely to surpass all previous efforts at Worthing.

MR. W. W. KELLY continues to appeal with success to Mersey-side playgoers at his Liverpool and Birkenhead theatres. Throughout the week Mr. Percy Hutchison, in Brewster's Millions, has drawn crowds of playgoers, and the engagement of Messrs. T. C. Wray and Austen Hurgon's company, in The Girls of Gottenberg, at Mr. Kelly's Liverpool theatre, has been a pronounced success, "Smith" and Miss Dora Langham winning the chief honours with very spirited performances.

AT Kelly's Theatre next week, Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company, in The Silver King, with Mr. Edward J. George as Jaikes, will be the attraction. The fare at the Birkenhead Theatre Royal will be Mr. Gaston Mayer's company, in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, with Miss Lucy Beaumont as the estimable heroine. Mr. Kelly has engaged Cavalière F. Castellano's company to appear in a round of Italian operas at Kelly's Theatre, commencing Nov. 21.

AT the Grand Theatre, Croydon, the George Edwardes Dollar Princess company last week broke all the records this season, the receipts for the seven performances being close on three figures. For Friday and Saturday the seats in the better parts of the house were entirely sold out days previously, and hundreds who 'phoned and called to book were doomed to disappointment. The pit and gallery were crowded out at early doors and hundreds turned away.

DECIDED successes have been made by Miss Gurney Delaporte, Miss Gladys Beech, Miss Adie Boyne, Mr. Mark Lester, Mr. Arthur Poole, and Mr. Frank Stanmore, in the new musical comedy Chasing Cynthia. According to the Hastings press, if the company were to appear in London they would take the town by storm. Never before, it is asserted, have so many genuine stars appeared at the local Gaiety in one company. Last Saturday night, moreover, at Worthing, the house was packed at early doors, hundred being unable to gain admittance.

MRS. CHASE, the mother of Miss Pauline Chase, was buried at Marlow, Bucks, on Thursday. The body of Mrs. Chase, who died in America, was brought from New York for interment.

THE Worshipful Company of Musicians are offering a prize of 50 guineas for a march for full orchestra suitable for performances at festivities held in celebration of the Coronation of King George V. The freedom of the company will also be conferred upon the successful composer. The competition is open only to British subjects, and the adjudicators include such famous musicians as Sir Hubert Parry and Sir Frederick Bridge.

AT the request of Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Mr. Brandon Thomas organised a special company to fulfil bookings with Charley's Aunt at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, this week, and the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, next week. The Grand Theatre, Hull, and Theatre Royal, Newcastle follow. Mr. Evelyn Beerbohm is playing the title-rôle, and the company also consists of Messrs. C. F. Collings, Sydney Compton, Francis Drake, Cecil Kerr, Edward Christopher, and George Seager. Miss Helen Palgrave, Miss Bertha Northam, Miss Gladys Storey, Miss Ruth Henton, and Miss Nancy Harding. Mr. Cecil Barth is the manager.

MR. WALTER HOWARD'S latest romantic play, The Boy King, produced at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester, on Oct. 3 last, ran twenty-four consecutive nights at the theatre, and all records for Walter Howard's plays were broken. The company is at the Court Theatre, Wigan, next week, with Miss Annie Saker and Mr. Walter Howard in their original parts. Such is the phenomenal success of the production that two companies of equal strength (North and South) will tour at Christmas. Arrangements are now in progress for its appearance at Christmas at a West End theatre.

ANOTHER romance of the stage occurred on the 29th ult., when Mr. Frank Jay Gould, a member of the American family of millionaires, was married at the Sheriff's Court House, Edinburgh, to Miss Edith Kelly, an English actress. The bride was for some time in the chorus at the Gaiety Theatre, and was one of the dancers in The Girls of Gottenberg when that piece was produced there in May, 1907. Later on she did more ambitious work in America, for at the Knickerbocker Theatre, when she was with Miss Gertie Millar, she took Miss Olive May's part of the maid in The Girls of Gottenberg; while, later, at the Casino, New York, where Mr. Gould first saw her and made her acquaintance, she performed a pretty dance in Havana.

THE Crystal Palace Theatre will have an important attraction next week, during which Mr. Leonard Boyne will appear as Raffles in the great West End success of that name. The company supporting will be Messrs. Carlaw Grand, Stephen Wentworth, Edward Irwin, Harold West, Buckstone Clair, Arthur Fitzgerald, Henry Armstrong, and Francis Drake, and Misses Blanka Stewart, Beatrice Fitzgerald, Eva Killick, Kathleen Grey, and May Brooke.

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT began her American tour on the 31st ult. at the Studebaker Theatre, Chicago, appearing as L'Aiglon in the play of that name, written especially for her by M. Rostand. The floral tributes were numerous and of extraordinary beauty, some of them being sent from a great distance. There were also telegrams and cablegrams by the score. There was a storm of applause after the first act, and Mme. Bernhardt was evidently delighted with the reception. A Chicago newspaper says that she "smiled as bewitchingly as a girl of twenty."

A MEETING of the Committee of the Touring Managers' Association was held at the Managers' Club, 5, Wardour-street, on the 4th inst. Present: Mr. Wentworth Croke (in the chair), Mr. H. Ralland, Mr. H. A. Langlois, Mr. G. Brydon-Phillips, Mr. Arthur Bertram, Mr. E. Graham Falcon, Mr. F. Weathersby, Mr. W. Muskerry-Tilson (hon. solicitor), and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). A member reported a baggage man who, after receiving his salary, ran away without warning, and it was decided to enter the name in the black list. A cheque was received for fees in a recent arbitration case, and the secretary was instructed to open a special charity account and pay the amount in. A flagrant case of breach of contract by two chorus ladies was brought before the committee by a manager, and it was decided that the penalty in the contract should be duly enforced against them and handed to a theatrical charity, as the breaking of chorus engagements in pantomimes is becoming a very serious question for managers.

A MEETING of the committee of the Managers' Club was held on the 4th inst. Present: Mr. M. V. Leveaux (in the chair), Mr. F. Weathersby, Mr. Arthur Bertram, Mr. H. Ralland, Mr. Wentworth Croke, Mr. W. Muskerry-Tilson (hon. solicitor), and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). The following gentlemen were duly elected members of the club: Mr. T. V. Walter, Mr. John B. Glover, Mr. W. A. Leishman, Mr. Albert Ward, Mr. Harry A. Spoor, Mr Medley Barrett, Mr. Hamilton Deane, Mr. Merlin Morgan, Mr. A. H. Majilton, Mr. W. F. Crowe, and Mr. William Clark. At a special meeting held on Oct. 7, the following gentlemen were elected: Mr. George Howard, Mr. Nevill Graham, Mr. Harry Barford, Mr. John Hyman, Mr. John Tiller, and Mr. Leslie Hughes.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Miss Terry as a Godmother.

It was Miss Ellen Terry's interest in the cowboy actor, Young Buffalo, which first led him to consider the advisability of visiting England. She was in Toronto when she first saw him play, and for three weeks her tour and his tour coincided. Five times she engaged boxes at matinées to see the production, and it grew upon her. She got to know the Indians and the squaws, as well as the other members of the company, and became the friend of all of them. When a little redskin baby was born she stood as godmother, while Young Buffalo acted as godfather. They named the child Terry Buffalo.

Her Hereditary Instinct.

"You know Mr. Maude has made his money out of things which have been absolutely stupid nonsense," remarked Miss Winifred Emery the other day to a representative of the Birmingham Daily Mail. "Of course, he has made it all seem very funny, and the public has enjoyed it; but I could not possibly attempt that sort of cleverness. Some people like to see you sit down and when you get up find your dress is covered with green paint. They will roar with laughter at a thing like that, but I couldn't do it. Perhaps that is due to my early training and to the influence of heredity."

So Very Bad.

"It certainly was a very indifferent melodrama which was being played by a very indifferent company at the Town Hall of Slocombe-on-the-Slush," says Mr. Pélissier in Tit-Bits. "As a result, business had been deplorably bad. For the Wednesday matinée several members of a musical comedy company, which was appearing at the Theatre Royal in the same town, came over to see the rival performance. As is generally known, the custom in the theatrical profession is for actors and actresses to be passed into the auditorium free, when possible, on presentation of their cards. That was done on this occasion. The show had been running for half an hour when the box-office man dashed up to the manager, crying, 'Guv'nor, there is a row in front.' 'What's up? Got a rush of patrons?' asked the boss, hoping against hope. 'No,' came the answer; 'one of the pros. says the show's so bad that he wants his card back!'"

The Wrong House.

"I recall an amusing happening which occurred during my first management at the Globe," says Mr. Charles Hawtrey in "My Reminiscences," in the Strand Magazine. "One evening a hatless man entered the theatre, explaining that his hat had fallen down from the gallery into the stalls and that the doorkeeper had told him to come to the front and ask for it. One of the attendants was sent down to fetch it, but after some little time, returned, saying that it could not be found. A second search proved equally fruitless, so at last the owner of the hat was asked to come downstairs to show exactly where it had fallen. He pointed out where he had been sitting in the gallery, and another search was made for the hat which, while it disturbed and annoyed several occupants of the stalls, was also unavailing.

"He was becoming very excited at the loss of his hat, when he was asked to show his pass-out check from the gallery, and, on his producing it my acting-manager at once saw that it was not ours. 'What theatre were you in?' he inquired. 'The Opera Comique,' replied the hatless one. 'Well, this is the Globe,' said he, 'so you had better go and look for your hat in the theatre where you dropped it.'

"Those who remember the respective positions of the two theatres will understand how the mistake arose. On being told by the gallery doorkeeper at the Opera Comique to 'go round to the front' he had turned into the front of the first theatre he came to, which was the Globe. The fact that at that time both theatres were upholstered in light blue added to the confusion. Even when told of his mistake he would, at first, hardly believe that he was in the wrong theatre."

Demoralising Drama.

"There was in the theatre," said Mr. Bernard Shaw in a lecture at the Repertory Theatre, Glasgow, the other day, "a complete domination of what he described as 'the romantic view of life.' And this led him to contrast the influence of the theatre with the influence of the church. He did not know if they had noticed that people now went to the theatre and did not go to the church. That might not be the case in Glasgow, but it was so in London. There before the doors of the theatre opened you would see long queues of people standing on the pavement. You did not see that outside the doors of churches. People nowadays got their mind formed in the theatre, and they were the more effectually formed because they did not go to the theatre for that purpose. People might go to the church with the greatest regularity on Sunday and spend the rest of the week acting directly contrary to what they had heard in church. On the other hand, you would find people acting in accordance with the standpoint and the sentiments learned in the theatre. The romantic view of life learned in the theatre was evidenced in various ways. It was manifest among the criminal classes in the frequent cases reported of the use of firearms, resulting often in murder. It was noticeable also in international relations such as those between this country and Germany. 'The demoralisation spread by the art of the theatre at the present time is monstrous. You find an Emperor acting like a hero in melodrama.'

"Paying" Drama.

"It was not for lack of a literary drama, the plays were there, but they were not performed. The reason such plays were not performed was because they did not pay. It had been pointed out in an intelligent Glasgow newspaper that any cause that required to be bolstered up—that is this Repertory Theatre did not pay, it had better cease. He instanced a number of civic enterprises, such as the paving and lighting of streets and sanitation, which did not pay in a commercial sense, and yet these were of prime importance. If they were ceased in Glasgow because they did not pay, all the wise people would leave Glasgow, and all the unwise people would soon cease to exist. He argued that the same principle applied to the theatre. At the present time our theatres were run for commercial profit because they paid, and there was an overwhelming supply of crude and superficial drama.

The Court Season.

"He related his own experience at the Court Theatre, London, along with Mr. Granville Barker and Mr. Vedrenne. They produced there great plays (he instanced The Trojan Women, by Professor Murray), but it was found that they proved unprofitable, and now and again You Never Can Tell (of which he was heartily tired) had to be put on as a draw. They extended the movement to the West End of London, and after spending as much as they could afford the enterprise had to be abandoned. Mr. Charles Frohman, 'the Napoleon of the theatre,' started a repertory theatre, but that enterprise also vanished with startling suddenness. People must absolutely put aside all commercial considerations in order to get into their midst a good theatre, doing the best work possible. The fact that such theatres were not commercially profitable did not alter the fact that they were vitally necessary. They were necessary for the good of our young and for the sake of general culture. Such theatres mere commercial speculation could not possibly supply."

"THE QUAKER GIRL."

Musical Play, in Three Acts, Book by James T. Tanner, Lyrics by Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank, Music by Lionel Monckton, Produced at the Adelphi Theatre on Saturday, Nov. 5.

Captain Charteris	MR. C. HAYDEN COFFIN
Jeremiah	MR. JAMES BLAKELEY
Monsieur Duhamel	MR. HERBERT ROSS
Prince Carlo	MR. G. CARVEY
Monsieur Larose	MR. D. J. WILLIAMS
William	MR. E. H. WYNNE
Nathaniel Pym	MR. HENRY KITTS
Jarge	MR. GEORGE BELLAMY
Tony Chute	MR. JOSEPH COYNE
Phœbe	MISS GRACIE LEIGH
Princess Mathilde	MISS ELSIE SPAIN
Diane	MISS PHYLLYS LE GRAND
Mme. Blum	MLLE. CAUMONT
Mrs. Lukin	MISS LUNA LOVE
Rachel Pym	MISS JENNIE RICHARDS
Toinette	MLLE. GINA PALERME
Gaby	MISS IRENE WARREN
Cleo	MISS KITTY MELROSE
Liane	MISS MABEL DUNCAN
Louise	MISS MARIE WEST
Prudence	MISS GERTIE MILLAR

When such an experienced craftsman as Mr. James T. Tanner prepares the book which is to be set before the patrons of a musical play, the result is sure to be appetising; and when his outline is embellished by the contributions of Messrs. Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank as lyricists, and by the melodious charms of Mr. Lionel Monckton's music, the success of the production can easily be prophesied. Mr. Tanner is too old a hand to waste much pains upon a complicated story. His theme is slight and simple. In old comedy, the Quakers were coarsely misunderstood, and treated with almost brutal ridicule. Their formalism was reckoned downright hypocrisy, and they were derided and reprobated severely. Nowadays, we do not go beyond gently objecting to their opposition to amusement. As the strict Quakers do not go to the theatres, and as the people who go to the theatre know nothing whatever about the modern Quakers, a playwright's hand is left pretty free, and Mr. Tanner has given full play to his fancy in the creation of his heroine. Prudence Pym, a pretty young Quakeress, who is bored and wearied with the restraints laid upon her by her parents and her sect, has quarrelled with them, and wishes to experience all the frivolous delights of freedom. While in this disposition she meets Mme. Blum, of the Maison Blum, Paris, who takes a fancy to Prudence, thinks she sees her way to starting a new Quaker costume craze, and asks the girl to come with her to la ville lumière. So Prudence, in the second act of the piece, appears as a mannequin or show-girl at the Blum establishment. Another lady who masquerades in the same way is the Princess Mathilde, an exiled Bonapartist, who, having married Captain Charteris, a King's Messenger, in the first act, is spending her honeymoon in Paris, and is wanted by the Parisian police, and who conceals her identity in the Blum establishment. Monsieur Larose, the Chief of Police, in his search after Mathilde, assumes various disguises. Others mixed up in the plot are Tony Chute, a dashing young American, who is in love with Prudence, and Jeremiah, a Quaker on the mother's side only, who is enamoured of Phœbe, the Princess's lively maid.

In the second act, Prudence, to save the Princess from being identified by the rather dissolute Prince Carlo, who is asked to assist the Chief of Police, consents to go to a ball which the Prince is giving, though much against her will, as she has previously given her promise to Tony Chute not to go. In the end, after many amusing incidents and adventures, the principal characters pair off properly, and the easy-going entertainment ends.

Mr. Lionel Monckton, who knows so well how to catch the ear of a musical play audience, has seldom been more happily inspired than in his score of The Quaker Girl, which is more musicianly and coherent than several of his previous achievements. The great musical hit of the piece is a waltz song, which bids fair to create a furore, and soon be absolutely familiar in our ears; but a pretty love-song, "Oh, time, time," the charming solo "A Quaker Girl," a delightful duet, "The bad boy and the good girl," a cleverly concerted number "Tip-toe," and an adroitly-set song "Just as father used to do" show that Mr. Monckton's inspiration is as melodious and agreeable as ever. In fact, the score is studded with highly successful items, and the composer may be warmly congratulated upon its excellence.

One of the most successful achievements of the evening was Miss Gracie Leigh's performance as Phœbe. The characterisation was really clever, the rustic accent being most adroitly assumed; and the humour of the creation was undeniable. Miss Leigh must be warmly praised for a representation which did her immense credit, and the audience warmly applauded her performance. Miss Gertie Millar's quaint and peculiar charm was never more vividly displayed than in her embodiment of Prudence Pym. She rendered her musical numbers in her usual original and artistic way, full of individuality and personal quality. There was something elusively fascinating about Miss Millar's rendering of the rôle, and her dancing was delightful. Miss Millar has seldom had a part in which her characteristic charm has appealed more strongly to her admirers. Mr. Joseph Coyne's engaging and very graceful and resourceful performance as the scapegrace lover, Tony Chute, won the hearts of the audience completely, so full was it of vitality, gaiety, and pleasant assurance. Mr. Hayden Coffin's part as Captain Charteris suited him exactly. In appearance, bearing, and manner, he realised the handsome King's Messenger extremely well, and his songs were rendered in the very best and most artistic style. That attractive and steadily-rising artist, Miss Elsie Spain, played the Princess Mathilde with full appreciation of the possibilities of the part, and her frank, free, and effective style, her agreeable appearance, and her excellent vocalism all helped to make her performance a complete success. It can easily be imagined how amusing Mr. James Blakeley was as Jeremiah. It is some time since a character of this class has been seen on the stage, and Mr. Blakeley may be congratulated upon having made the half Quaker a most comic and diverting personage. He evoked peal after peal of laughter, and his clever creation proved immensely popular. His songs, "Just as father used to do" and "Jeremiah, Esquire," were received with rapturous approval. As the typical Parisian dressmaker, Mme. Blum, Mlle. Caumont made a decided hit, acting with a vivacity and smartness which were keenly appreciated by the delighted audience. To Mr. G. Carvey, who played Prince Carlo, the song "Will you come to the ball?" was allotted, and this proved such a tremendous and instantaneous success, that for some time the progress of the performance was arrested, while the audience obstinately demanded an encore. Apart from this triumph, Mr. Carvey, aided by a powerful and pleasing voice, gave a well-considered and clever interpretation of the character. The typical formalist of old comedy was graphically represented by Mr. Henry Kitts, who duly emphasised the gloomy nature of Prudence's parent; and Mr. Herbert Ross, always efficient and painstaking, was quite satisfactory as Monsieur Duhamel, a Minister of State. Mr. D. J. Williams did excellent work as Chief of Police, and was active and alert throughout his enlivening and amusing performance; and Mr. E. H. Wynne deserves great credit for his extremely intelligent performance as William, the waiter; Miss Jennie Richards did exceeding well as Rachel Pym. Mr. George Bellamy contributed a very creditable bit of acting as the village crier, Jarge, and Miss Phyllys le Grand was quite acceptable as Diana, a Parisian actress. As Mrs. Lukin, the landlady of the Chequers Inn, Miss Luna Love supplied a satisfactory embodiment of a familiar type, and Mlle. Gina Palerme, Miss Irene Warren, Miss Kitty Melrose, Miss Mabel Duncan, and Miss Marie West were very handsome and stately employees of the Maison Blum.

The mounting and dressing of the piece were superb, and quite worthy of the beautiful interior of the newly-decorated Adelphi; and Mr. J. A. E. Malone must be warmly praised for the production, which was complete and smooth in every particular. The Quaker Girl promises to be as successful as any of Mr. George Edwardes's productions at the Gaiety and Daly's. The piece has all the requisites for success which should be possessed by a piece of its class, and there is no reason why, after its baptism of comic opera—for the piece approaches that genre in many ways—the Adelphi should not become a home of light, pretty, frivolous, and dainty entertainment.

The above engraving represents the new drop curtain at the Adelphi Theatre, where The Quaker Girl was presented on Saturday last, the admirable stage production being under the superintendence of Mr. J. A. E. Malone. The figure in the centre was due to a suggestion by Mr. George Edwardes, and is a great improvement on the original picture.

Miss Marion Terry's Début.

MISS MARION TERRY'S first appearance on the stage was made at Leeds as Ophelia. "The earlier part of the play," she says in the Sketch, "went smoothly enough. When I came to the Mad Scene, I was sitting on the floor arranging the flowers which I had brought on in my hands, while I sang the snatches of song. In the middle of the scene my mind became a blank. I had forgotten every single word I had to speak. There was no prompter. That fact I remembered very clearly. There was a pause while I tried to remember what I had to say. I did not get flustered or show that I was put out in any way. I simply went on arranging my flowers just as if it was premeditated business; then I got up, went over to the actor who was playing Laertes, gave him some of the flowers, put my head on his shoulder and whispered, "Tell me what I have got to say next." He gave me the words, and I went back and played the rest of the scene without the least trouble."

Tom Taylor's Opinion.

"TOM TAYLOR was in front, and noticed what had happened. He came round when the curtain had fallen, and patted my head. 'You'll do all right,' he said. 'You have the making of an actress in you.' Then he went on to say that when I crossed over to Laertes he could not think what I was doing, and came to the conclusion that, as I seemed so calm and undisturbed, I had invented some new business for the scene, which I had not had an opportunity of trying at rehearsal."

"A SINGLE MAN."

Comedy, in Four Acts, by Hubert Henry Davies, Produced at the Playhouse on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

Robin Worthington	MR. CYRIL MAUDE
Henry Worthington	MR. ERNEST MAINWARING
Dicky Cottrell	MR. LYONEL WATTS
Lady Cottrell	MISS FLORENCE HAYDON
Maggie Cottrell	MISS DULCIE GREATWICH
Miss Heseltine	MISS HILDA TREVELYAN
Isabella Worthington	MISS MARY JERROLD
Louise Parker	MISS NANCY PRICE
Bertha Sims	MISS DOROTHY DAYNE
The Housekeeper	MISS EMMA CHAMBERS
The Parlourmaid	MISS VERA COBURN
The Nurse	MISS DIANA SELLICK

Roars, and, at times, screams of laughter accompanied the performance of A Single Man at the Playhouse on Tuesday last. Mr. Hubert Henry Davies may have written plays in which he has dived more deeply beneath the surface of humanity than he has done in this case; but, judging by its reception, he has never written anything calculated to appeal more strongly to the tastes of an English audience. The Playhouse is the playground of the children of a larger growth who, very properly from their own point of view, refuse to worry themselves about problems, or trouble themselves with tragedies, and are satisfied with sportiveness, sentiment, and even a certain amount of joyful silliness.

The oft-used theme of a middle-aged man fancying himself "still young"—or, at any rate, young enough to marry a girl very much his junior, is dealt with by Mr. Davies in a fresh and original way. Robin Worthington is a clever author, who, in the first act of the play, is so exhilarated by the spring and by the spectacle of the domestic happiness of his sister-in-law, Isabella, and her husband, that he hurries—not to say rushes—into an engagement with a young and lively young lady named Maggie Cottrell. But Mrs. Worthington has in her mind a more suitable match for Robin, and she invites to visit her a spinster of uncertain age named Louise Parker, who comes on the distinct understanding that she is to marry Robin. But before Louise arrives he has become betrothed. Using his quiet, sensible type writer, Miss Heseltine—whom he regards, from habit only, as a helpful assistant—as go-between, he ascertains that the thoughtless, shallow Maggie is ready to marry him; and then the comedy begins. We see Robin trying hard to live up to the pace of Maggie and her friends, to emulate their inexhaustible activity and imitate their childish recklessness. He fails, and is beginning to find his engagement rather a trial, when Miss Parker makes a "dead set" at him. Robin has not the least inclination towards her, and snubs her without hesitation. But he is strangely perturbed when Miss Heseltine announces that she will have to leave his service when he marries. She will not explain why her departure is necessary, but leaves him to imagine the cause, which, unless he is extremely dense, he can hardly fail to do. In the last act he is dining alone, when she enters, having gone without a meal in order to type an important article of his. He insists that she shall share his beefsteak and champagne, and she consents—it is to be her last happy time with him. Then, by degrees, comes their rapprochment. Gradually her love for him dawns upon Robin, and he realises that she, and she alone, is the one woman in the world that he should marry. Their embrace is seen by Louise, who at once sniffs an immoral intrigue, and makes a scandal. Robin's friends, when he tries to explain, merely praise his chivalry, but decline to believe him. The difficulty is solved by Maggie, who saves the situation, and straightens things out for Robin, by declaring that she finds him too old for her, and that their engagement must be broken off. And so, happily, as it should, the pretty comedy ends, amidst the applause of an audience which has enjoyed its progress from beginning to end.

Mr. Cyril Maude has the art of making triviality important by his treatment of it. His method is that of developing detail by high finish, and, by agreeable individuality and telling suggestion, fixing a slight sketch on the memory. When Mr. Maude appears on the stage he takes immediate possession of the sympathy of the audience by his personality, and a kind of half-confident, half-pleading tone which never fails to appeal to his "friends in front." He is never more successful than in a part in which he represents a slightly silly but altogether engaging and worthy individual struggling with difficulties created by his own deficiencies; and to this class does the character of Robin Worthington belong. Our respect is secured for the personage by the knowledge that he is a really able and clever man; and we indulgently admire his weakness in becoming engaged to the utterly unsuitable Maggie. To see Mr. Maude as Robin trying, with great goodwill, to keep up with the younger people in their wild sports and pastimes, and finding not that Miss Cottrell is too young for him, but that he is too old for her and her friends, is an entirely delightful spectacle. The tact and finesse which Mr. Maude expends on the part, his quiet, unforced but always effective humour, and the unvarying good taste and fine style of his acting, make his Robin Worthington decidedly one of his successes, the spontaneous impulse which he suggests so well being not the least of the merits of the creation. A delightfully delicate and always appealing impersonation is Miss Hilda Trevelyan's Miss Heseltine. Her facial play—and in this case, facial play and mute expressiveness are of the very essence of the embodiment—is of the most artistic kind; and she takes the audience into her confidence by it even more eloquently than she could by speech. The scenes in which she is pained by her apparently hopeless affection for Robin are treated with a delicacy and appreciative tact which are admirable; and the refined and tender, but never mawkish or absurd sentiment which she infuses into her performance makes it a most winning example of restrained expression and unforced, but undeniable, effect. There is a good deal of quiet subtlety about Mr. Ernest Mainwaring's Henry Worthington, and the characterisation which this able artist employs is marked by a moderation and self-restraint quite in keeping with the nature of the part. That incomparable exponent of old ladies' rôles, Miss Florence Haydon, is once more in her element as Lady Cottrell, and hits off the shrewd, sharp, "snappy" old lady to the life. One of the greatest charms about Miss Haydon's work is her excellent elocution, and her delivery is as crisp and articulate as ever. The exuberant joyousness of Maggie Cottrell is well expressed by Miss Dulcie Greatwich, whose inexhaustible supply of animation and irrepressible activity make her performance a most exhilarating one. Miss Greatwich manages to be riotous without being noisy, and high-spirited without being vulgar. A neat, smooth, and natural representative of the happily-married match-maker, Isabella Worthington, is supplied by Miss Mary Jerrold, whose style is as unimpeachable as her method is sound and satisfactory. Miss Nancy Price has a task in the depiction of Louise Parker which is rather unthankful; but she makes the best of a poor part. Mr. Lyonel Watts is sufficiently bold and boyish as Dicky Cottrell, and Miss Dorothy Dane does excellent work as Bertha Sims. Miss Emma Chambers is efficient as the Housekeeper; Miss Vera Coburn is satisfactory as the Parlourmaid; and Miss Diana Sellick is commendable as the Nurse. Mr. Bruce Smith's scenery supplies a series of tasteful and appropriate backgrounds, and G. E. Jennings's one-act play Between the Soup and the Savoury forms an agreeable prelude to the piece of the evening.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Mr. Kyrle Bellew began an engagement at the Garrick Theatre on the 17th inst., appearing as Maurice Ferioul in The Scandal, a play in four acts, by Henri Bataille. Judging from present indications, it is not likely to prove as successful in New York as it did in Paris. Mr. Charles Frohman has produced the play with great care, and Kyrle Bellew is a name that draws the public. Our playgoers take a warm interest in Mr. Bellew's impersonations, distinguished as they are by a polished manner and a graceful utterance. In the present instance this favourite player has been credited with a fine performance of a rôle that seems hardly worthy of him. The play begins in the Casino Garden at Luchon in August. Charlotte Ferrioul, mother of two children, and whose husband is the Mayor of Grasse, has become suddenly infatuated with Artanezzo, a young Spaniard, about whom she knows nothing until he confesses that he is a gambler, and borrows her diamond ring for the professed purpose of winning back his losses. Before she met Artanezzo she was a dutiful wife and mother; but the man has "bewitched" her, and during their stolen interviews she freely confesses her love for him. Act 2 takes place in the sitting-room of Ferioul's villa near Magagnose in October. Charlotte has realised her folly, and is anxious to escape from the influence of Artanezzo, who calls on her unexpectedly, not to extort money, as she at first fears, but to return the incriminating letters which she wrote to him when their love affair was young. Artanezzo is in difficulties, having used her name in order to raise money, and word comes presently that he has been arrested for swindling. Charlotte has hitherto had no difficulty in deceiving her husband, but the visits of Parizot, the town clerk at Grasse, arouse his suspicions, and when Parizot refuses to divulge his business with Mme. Ferioul, her husband chokes him until he tells the whole scandalous story. Charlotte is summoned to appear as a witness at the trial of Artanezzo, and she invents an excuse for her absence. Before she goes Ferioul decides to expose and humiliate her before the entire household, and in his furious anger, after calling the terror-stricken Charlotte, he shouts for his mother, his children, and even the servants, to come and hear what he has to say. But as he looks into his wife's eyes the words die on his lips, and he pretends that he wishes to reprove his son in the presence of the entire family for being expelled from school. Charlotte attends the trial, her husband allowing her to believe that he knows nothing. On her return he has to decide whether to turn her out or forgive her, and when she reads his knowledge of her perfidy in her husband's eyes she grovels at his feet, and beseeches him to end her misery by killing her. But Ferioul relents, and the erring but repentant wife, completely worn out, falls into a deep sleep as Ferioul bends over her, uttering words of forgiveness. Miss Gladys Hanson, who appeared as Charlotte Ferioul, gave a touching portrayal; Mr. Vincent Serrano played with excellent discretion the part of Artanezzo; Mr. Frank Connor as Jeannetier did well; and Mr. Ernest Stallard's Parizot was a clever characterisation. Miss Ffolliott Paget was good as Mme. Ferioul, the mother; and Mr. Frank Westerton, the stage-manager, appeared with success as the Prefect.

"Keeping Up Appearances," a comedy in four acts, by Butler Davenport, was produced at the Comedy Theatre on the 19th inst. The story deals with the efforts of an unhappy family living in the metropolis to preserve an appearance of prosperity and unity. The father, Frederick Lowell, is a lawyer, who is striving for an appointment as a judge. He has practically deserted his family, and is seldom seen in his own household, his affection being centred elsewhere. There is scandalous gossip, and it comes to the wife's ears; but Mrs. Lowell endures the humiliation of the situation in which she finds herself for the sake of her children, as her private means have been exhausted, and she is entirely dependent upon the money her husband allows her. Evelyn, the eldest daughter, thinks only of having "a good time," while her sister Alice is bent on finding a rich husband. Paul, the son, is a young man of estimable character. The father finds the expense of keeping up two establishments too much for him, and proposes to sell his wife's home. She has already consented to three mortgages, from which she has received only a portion of the proceeds, and she now refuses to accede to her husband's wishes. He threatens to withdraw his support, and leaves the house. The son stands by his mother, and, by going into business, manages to keep the wolf from the door. Evelyn marries, and Alice becomes the guest of her wealthy friends in a trip around the world. The third act shows the preparations for Evelyn's wedding. The father has been persuaded to take part in the ceremony for the sake of appearances, but just before starting for the church he receives the news by telephone that his child by the other woman has been instantly killed by falling out of a window. This message he receives in an upper room, but the telephone bell also rings in the living-room downstairs, and the wife puts her ear to the receiver, believing the message to be for her. Thus she accidentally learns what has happened, and understands her husband's agitation. Sinking her feelings as a wife, she sympathises with the other woman as a mother, and sustains her husband in his grief, but tells him that he must attend their daughter's wedding at any cost. Despite his determination to leave, he is at length prevailed upon to accompany the party to the church, and his wife telephones the bereaved mother that Lowell must do what he has undertaken to do. The woman replies that she understands and acquiesces. Neither in this scene nor in the last act, when the two women meet, are there any recriminations. Mrs. Lowell bears herself as one who has long since understood and accepted the inevitable. Whether or not she is an "impossible" woman is an open question; she is certainly the personification of dignity, sweetness, and self-control. These qualities enable her to appreciate the tactful sympathy of her rival in immediately recognising the fact that Lowell's first duty is to attend his daughter's wedding. So when the wife and the mistress meet they face each other as two women who understand and even sympathise with each other. Edith Dalton's reserve and good breeding help considerably in making the situation feasible. Mrs. Lowell takes a philosophical view of her husband's preference for another woman. He is the sort of man, she says, who does not appreciate the qualities of a domesticated wife and mother. So she decides to divorce him. He has obtained the judgeship, thanks to her sacrifice in separing him the exposure his conduct deserved. It is no longer necessary to keep up appearances. The play is well written, the author having handled a difficult theme with admirable discretion. There are only seven characters, and these were represented in a highly intelligent and praiseworthy manner by Messrs. J. Harry Benrimo and A. Hylton Allen; Misses Amelia Gardner, Mabel Moore, Pamela Gaythorne, Zelda Sears, and Gertrude Dallas. Miss Gardner's embodiment of the mother won all hearts; and Mr. Hylton Allen was natural and convincing as the son. Miss Gaythorne, who comes from London, made her American début in this play, and created a distinctly favourable impression.

"The Dollar Princess" has returned to town, and is holding nightly receptions at the New York Theatre. The popularity of this melodious and charming play has been renewed, and it draws as well as ever.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The Girl in the Taxi, a farce in three acts, by Antony Mars, has been well received at the Astor Theatre. The original version has been considerably "toned down" since it was first produced in Chicago, Mr. Stanislaus Stange having adapted the piece for the American stage. The situations remind one of Pink Dominoes, A Trip to Chinatown, and a dozen other plays in which the various characters dodge each other. Despite their antiquity, however, these situations prove as laughable as ever at the Astor Theatre. It was quite interesting to see an artist so decidely English in her previous characterisations as Miss Jessie Millward in the unaccustomed environment of a "roaring" American farce. And if that were not enough to remind one of the old days at the Adelphi there was Mr. W. L. Abingdon witnessing the performance from a box. One of the newspapers said that Miss Millward had the only "refined" part in the piece, which is about correct, for the other characters were certainly a pretty "swift" lot. It was a far cry from Dora in The Harbour Lights to Clara Stewart, a credulous wife and mother, with the sort of husband who is usually described as a "gay old sport" and a son who is following in father's footsteps quite rapidly. Thanks to Miss Millward's art, however, even this lady's inability to see what was going on around her seemed plausible. Moreover, Miss Millward threw herself, heart and soul, in to the fun of the piece, and made everyone feel glad that she had returned to the local stage.

The principal characters are John Stewart, a prominent man, and to all appearances an estimable citizen; his wife Clara, who looks upon her husband as a paragon; their son Bertie, who is clever enough to pass for a model youth until he is found out; and Percy Peters, who is married to Stewart's niece. Another good young man is Percy until his mask wears out. He lives in Philadelphia and has "throat trouble," which compels him to visit New York twice a year in order to see a doctor. Then there is "the girl in the taxi," who is known as Mignon. Six divorces and a seventh husband have failed to tame her. She is as fond of the gay life as ever. Percy has had an adventure with her, and tells Bertie. The latter slips out of the house when everyone is supposed to have retired, and takes Mignon to supper at a Broadway restaurant. Bertie's papa also slips out, and so does Percy. Of course, they all go to the same restaurant, and are enabled to avoid each other up to a certain point by means of numerous exits and entrances. When mutual discovery comes, father and son, and nephew find it expedient to stand by each other, and in the morning, when Bertie's mother calls them, they emerge from their respective bedrooms looking as innocent as lambs.

Mr. Carter De Haven played Bertie cleverly, incidentally singing several songs. Mr. Fred Bond was very good indeed as Bertie's frisky father; and Miss Laura Guerite made the most of her opportunities as Mignon. Mr. John Glendinning, as Frederick Smith, gave an amusing portrayal of Mignon's seventh husband, a mild-mannered perfume manufacturer, who becomes quite ferocious whenever he wears his uniform as an officer in the National Guard.

"The Scandal," by Henri Bataille, having been tried and found wanting, Mr. Kyrle Bellew has revived one of his most popular impersonations—that of the gentleman burglar in Raffles the Amateur Cracksman, a play in four acts, by E. W. Hornung and Eugene Presbrey, originally produced at the Princess Theatre, New York, on Oct. 27, 1903. The play scored an instantaneous success and had a long run. Few dramas have a more effective ending that the exit of "Mr. A. J. Raffles" through the tall clock, and his escape to the street. Miss Ethel Matthews was the original Mrs. Vidal, Mr. E. M. Holland played the detective, Captain Bedford, and Mr. Frank Connor appeared as Lord Crowley. The last-named player is a member of Mr. Bellew's present company. With this exception, the new cast is entirely different from the old one, the principal parts now being played by Misses Gladys Hanson, Ffolliott Paget, and Jane May, Messrs. Frank Westerton and Ernest Stallard.

"The Seventh Daughter" is the title of a new four-act play, by Richard Harding Davis, which Messrs. Liebler and Co. will shortly produce in this city. Miss Chrystal Herne, who has been engaged for title-role, will impersonate a spiritualistic medium named Aline. Honest by nature, the young woman has been brought up in an atmosphere of sham and trickery until she is almost incapable of seeing the harmful effects of her impositions. One of the other characters is a District Attorney of the county of New York.

Mr. John Lawson has been appearing at the American Music Hall in his well-known playlet Only a Jew. His forceful acting, and the excellent support he received from the members of his company, made this one of the strongest attractions in the bill.

Miss Annie Russell will shortly appear under Mr. Charles Frohman's management in a play called The Impostor, by Leonard Merrick, the English novelist, and Michael Morton, the American playwright, who lives in London.

The Manhattan Opera House is likely to be converted into a vaudeville theatre when Hans the Flute Player, the current attraction, ends its run there.

"FOR THE LAND WE LOVE."

Drama, In Five Acts, by Hilda Hatton, Produced at the Lyceum, Stafford, on Friday, Nov. 4.

Doris Moncrief .....Miss Cecily Cardew
Lady Honoria Littleton.Miss Gertrude Vickers
Joan .....Miss Ivy Clarke
Miss Vigora Matchman ....Miss Dora Pancake
Mona Moncrief .....Miss Hilda Hatton

The story of For the Land We Love is extremely complicated, and we shall not attempt to follow the thread of the plot through an intricate labyrinth of exciting incidents. Interwoven with an ordinary melodramatic story is a patriotic motive, in which there are transparent allusions to the possibility of the invasion of England by a foreign Power, "Zidonia."

The first act opens in a seaside village in Devonshire. The squire of the place, who calls himself Moncrief, is really an ex-actor of bad character named Leon Dargueville. This man has decoyed away and married a young woman named Mona Moncrief, formerly betrothed to a local clergyman, Robert Arden. Mona has parted from the villain, and comes to the village disguised as a fortune-teller. She meets Moncrief, and recognises him. With a certain Durant and others Moncrief is conspiring in the interests of the "Zidonian" Government, and Arden is wounded by a pistol-shot, fired presumably by the conspirators, from an aeroplane which has been hovering over the village. There is a fight between the reverend gentleman and the villains, and Mona stabs her rascally husband, wounding him dangerously.

In the next scene, in London, Mona is watching the conspirators. Durant, disguised as a newspaper seller, places certain stolen plans of defences in the pocket of one, Captain Stannard, who is arrested on the charge of stealing them by a detective named Johnson, but is ultimately released. Stannard, who has been employed in making plans of important defences, places them in a safe at Arden's house. The conspirators try to secure them, but though they seriously injure the clergyman, they are prevented by Mona from murdering him outright. News arrives that the Prince of Zidonia is about to land on the coast in an airship with a cargo of bombs; and in the last scene the defeat of the conspirators by a contingent of Territorials is depicted. Moncrief meets a well-deserved death, and Mona is wounded, and falls from a cliff into the sea, and dies, as Arden remarks, "For the sake of her country."

Miss Hilda Hatton as Mona Moncrief acted with a depth of feeling and an earnestness of expression which deeply stirred the audience. A very fine performance of the part of the Rev. Robert Arden was given by Mr. Victor Gardom, who enacted the strong and spirited vicar in a manner which made him immensely popular, and much assisted the effect of the production. Mr. Herbert de Ville was effectively villainous as Moncrief, and Mr. A. Gellertt was good as Captain Stannard. Mr. Alec Finlayson gave a capital comedy performance as Bertie Speffington, and Mr. Victor Norreys was quite efficient as Durant. Mr. Geoffrey Broughton was characteristic as General Scott, and Mr. George Toft acted ably as the detective. As Doris Moncrief and Lady Honoria Littleton Miss Cecily Cardew and Miss Gertrude Vickers supplied impersonations of genuine merit. The other personages were well played.

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Frank Keenan recently appeared at the Fifth-avenue Theatre, New York, in a one-act play, called The Oath, by Seumas MacManus. Mr. Keenan gave a highly-effective representation of an old Irishman named Neil O'Donnell, whose father had been killed many years ago on the Orangemen's Day. Again the anniversay comes round, and his son goes to the village to see the celebration, despite his father's pleading. The old man goes to sleep, and dreams that his boy is killed. Suddenly the door bursts open, and a stranger rushes in and begs to be hidden from the police, who are pursuing him. The old man hides him in a back room, and the police appear. They tell O'Donnell that his son has been killed in a tavern brawl, and they are seeking the murderer. "It isn't likely that he would be hidin' the man who has killed his boy," says one of the constables, and they depart. Standing before the picture of his dead wife, the old man turns it to the wall, and swears that it shall stay so until his vengeance is accomplished. Then he takes up the gun that his son loaded just before he left the house, and stamps three times on the floor, to tell the fugitive that the way is clear. When the latter appears and learns the truth, he falls on his knees and begs the old man to shoot. He might as well die now, as he will never again know a moment's peace on earth. But O'Donnell decides to let him go, since that will be punishment enough. He turns the picture back, and falls on his knees, clasping his rosary.

William Gillette in Toronto.

Mr. William Gillette and his company of fifty players recently appeared for a week at the Princess Theatre, Toronto. Mr. Gillette opened his engagement in Sherlock Holmes, which he repeated on the Tuesday and Saturday nights. On Wednesday and Thursday evenings and Saturday matinée he presented Secret Service, and on Friday night appeared in that most entertaining of farces, The Private Secretary. Mr. Gillette brought to Toronto for this special engagement four carloads of scenery, and there was a complete change of cast for each of the pieces played.

Princess Henry of Battenberg witnessed the performance of The Girl in the Train at the Vaudeville Theatre on Thursday evening.

COLONIAL GOSSIP.

Miss Blanche Browne in Sydney.

Miss Blanche Browne, who has been playing the title-rôle in Our Miss Gibbs at Her Majesty's Theatre, Sydney, is one of Mr. George Edwardes' most promising artists. The newcomer has had nine years' stage experience. First making a reputation in the provinces, she came to London and was engaged at the Gaiety, where she had to wait some considerable time for a part. Her chance came in Our Miss Gibbs, when Miss Julia James, the Lady Betty, fell ill. Miss Browne was called to play the part, which she did during a two months' absence of the original, and gave entire satisfaction. She was next entrusted with Miss Gertie Millar's part during the temporary absences of that actress from the cast. It was on one of these occasions that Mr. J. C. Williamson saw her, and promptly engaged her for Australia, though it was by special favour of old friendship that Mr. George Edwardes consented to her release. Mr. Robert Courtneidge also wanted Miss Browne for the Shaftesbury, where a three years' contract was held out as an inducement.

The Cheerful Steward.

Mr. Victor Gouriet, who recently returned to Johannesburg for the third time, and has been playing with great success Tweedlepunch in Florodora with the Wheeler-Edwards' Gaiety company, thoroughly enjoyed his 3½ years in the Commonwealth and New Zealand, and he is particularly enthusiastic about the stewards on Australian boats. The Observer (Johannesburg) says that "once going from Invercargill to Hobart with The Merry Widow—she arrived a day late by the way—the beautiful, bounding billows almost sank the crazy craft. Gouriet was lying in his berth holding a special committee meeting with himself and his stomach. In came the cheerful steward, who unburdened his feelings in this wise: 'You've got no hope of opening to-morrow at Hobart, the saloon's wrecked, the piano's broke up, the men's quarters for'ard have been washed out, the weather's getting worse, and the bloke next cabin to you has cut his throat. See you later!'"

Real Acting!

"Mr. Gouriet's serious business in life is finding winners; he only acts for amusement," remarks the Observer. "In Melbourne, when Mr. J. C. Williamson's Bluebook ran a dead heat with Aborigine in the Caulfield Cup, the management asked Myles Connell, the jockey who rode Bluebook, to pose for a second on the stage in the course of a song called 'Fame,' which was part of The Catch of the Season.' Connell, pallid and extremely nervous, entered Gouriet's dressing-room. A whisky and soda revived the jockey, who, to the astonishment of the comedian, drawled: 'This isn't the first time I've been behind the scenes, but it's the first time I've done any real acting.'"

Mr. Weedon Grossmith's Success in Canada.

Mr. Weedon Grossmith, in Mr. Preedy and the Countess, was quite recently the attraction at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto. Of this finished comedian's performance the Montreal Gazette said: "Not for a very long time has a Montreal audience joined in such unbounded mirth over the bubbling cleverness of a farce as the big crowd at the Princess experienced last night when Weedon Grossmith and his company presented Mr. Preedy and the Countess. From the opening of the play to the very last line the company held the careful attention of the audience, and the continuity was only broken by the frequent laughter, which so interrupted the progress of the thing that much good matter was lost."

Musical Culture in Melbourne.

Mme Carreno, the distinguished pianist, has a very high opinion of the state of musical culture in Melbourne. She stated that it compares very favourably with what one gets in the old world. The native talent for piano playing, in her opinion, is specially remarkable, so much so that there are very big possibilities in the future, all of which will doubtless be very encouraging to those who aim to follow in the gifted lady's footsteps, and who have been fortunate enough to secure the imprimatur of her approval.

Steele-Payne Handbell Ringers.

This renowned combination of handbell ringers, musicians, and vocalists paid a flying visit to Bombay, at the Empire Theatre, and played to excellent business for a week. The company consisted of Miss Lizzie Payne, violinist, banjoist, and mandolinist; Miss Gloria Gwynne, a rich soprano and an accomplished instrumentalist; and Miss Kate Maher, known as "the Queen of Irish Song." The gentlemen were Mr. Ralph Steele, a fine robust baritone and humorist; Mr. Claude Steele, an all-round musical artist; Mr. J. A. Williams, the eminent basso of the Chapel Royal, Kew; Mr. Jules Henri; pianist and speciality entertainer; Mr. Tom Saunders, a popular Australian comedian; and Mr. Geo. Sharratt, a well-known society entertainer. This was their first visit to India on their tour of the world, and the stage effects were, without doubt, the best Bombay has seen. Considerable sensation was caused by their wonderful solos on the organ chimes, and throughout the week most appreciative audiences greeted every number on the programme with applause, and encores were numerous. In either mandolin, violin, sleigh bells, handbells, songs, &c., they are all equally expert, and we predict an enjoyable and profitable tour for the Steele-Payne combination in India.

Mr. Robert M. Bottomley in Australia.

Amongst the new people engaged by the J. C. Williamson Company for The Whip is Mr. Robert M. Bottomley, who plays the jockey, Harry Anson. As a youngster he was a grand opera singer at Covent Garden. Sir Augustus Harris heard him as choir boy at Brompton Oratory, and determined to have him for boy parts. As such Mr. Bottomley appeared with all the great artists of the time—Tamagno, De Reske, Alvarez, Ancona, Patti, Albani, Melba, and Calve (with whom he went to Windsor as the Little Captain in Carmen).

Mr. Charles W. Blackall.

Mr. Charles W. Blackall, another member of The Whip company, engaged for the rôle of Captain Greville Sartoris, the villain of the piece—a part he has taken during the Drury Lane production—is a grandson of the Governor Blackall who was the vice-regal representative in Queensland during the early years of that State's existence.

"Dollar Princess" in Bombay.

The Bandmann Opera Company has just concluded at the Empire Theatre what has been undoubtedly the most successful season ever experienced by any company in Bombay. The star attraction of the visit was The Dollar Princess, which broke all records, even excelling the famous houses seen last year at The Merry Widow. It has been, indeed, quite a miniature Gaiety season, and has proved that all Bombay folk want is good rollicking amusement. Most of the artists were old Bombay favourites, and prominent amongst them was our old friend Harry Cole, a comedian who has a large following in this city. He is a tower of strength to the company, and is ably seconded by Dan Clifford. Miss Florence Beech took all the honours, as usual, with the ladies, and Mr. G. V. Arnold ably seconded her efforts in their duets, &c. The whole company is far superior to any we have seen East under the Bandmann regime, and should break all records at Calcutta. They are certain of still bigger houses when they visit us again in the cold season.

"Guide to Selecting Plays," for the use of professionals and amateurs, is again before us in an up-to-date edition, and we have to recognise once more the careful editorial work of Mr. Wentworth Hogg, who has done admirably. A striking feature of this vade mecum of plays is the cleverly condensed plots of pieces from one act to five. There is an excellent index, and in 190 pages we have quite a compendium of the drama.

After an absence of over two years Cardiffians have the pleasure of a return visit from the popular actor, Mr. Martin Harvey, with his London company. The Only Way was put forward on Monday and Tuesday, large audiences being attracted by this ever-welcome piece. Mr. Martin Harvey was as brilliant as ever in his original rôle of Sydney Carton, Mr. Charles Glenney's Ernest Defarge is a talented impersonation, Dr. Manette is still in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Wright, sen., and Miss N. De Silva as Mimi is accorded a hearty reception; Miss Brenda Gibson as Lucie also doing well. A Cigarette-Maker's Romance was billed for Wednesday.

The Great Northern Railway Company will run a new luncheon car express to Peterborough and other important towns en route to York every Sunday until further notice, beginning to-morrow, the 13th. The train leaves King's Cross at 11.45 a.m. (a call being made at Finsbury Park, Hatfield, and Hitchin, when required to take up passengers for stations north of Doncaster), and is due at Peterborough 1.21 p.m., departing thence at 1.25. The following times will be observed:—Grantham, arrive 2.2 p.m., depart 2.6; Newark, arrive 2.24, depart 2.25; Retford, arrive 2.47, depart 2.48; Doncaster, arrive 3.9, depart 3.13; Selby, arrive 3.35, depart 3.40; and York arrive 4.0. There will be no connection for Selby, York, and stations north thereof by the 12.0 noon train from King's Cross on and after Sunday, Nov. 13, 1910.

Last Saturday's performance at the Blackpool Opera House was the last prior to the re-building and entire reconstruction, which will be completed by Easter next. At the fall of the curtain on Saturday night Mr. John R. Huddlestone, the manager, came to the front of the stage and made a brief speech. He thanked the public for their twenty-one years' generous patronage, and said it had been decided by the directors of the Winter Gardens to rebuild the place on the latest and most modern principles. A start would be made on Monday in pulling down the old building. It would be entirely re-erected, with a magnificent grand circle capable of seating over five hundred persons, instead of the present circle, which had accommodation for only ninety. The decorations, the furniture, carpets, &c., would be entirely new. In fact, the whole place would be entirely remodelled. In addition, there would be a magnificent foyer, which would be second to none in any theatre in the country.

These works would take a period of something like six months to complete, and during that time theatrical performances would be given in the Grand Pavilion, which had been reduced in size to make it more cosy and comfortable. Mr. Huddlestone expressed the hope that the new theatre, when erected, would not only continue to enjoy the same patronage it had received from the public in the past, but that they would extend to it that generous measure of support which the enterprise merited. The orchestra then played "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King."

THE Avenue Theatre, Sunderland, which, with the Empire and Royal in that town, is under the control of Mr. "Dick" Thornton, has started a two-houses-a-night show.

MR. MARTIN SANDS writes:—"In your issue of Saturday last my name is included in the cast of Hush Money, played at the Pavilion Theatre, Abertillery, during the week commencing Monday, Oct. 31. I gave notice of termination of my engagement on Oct. 15, and appeared for the last time on Saturday, Oct. 29."

"MY first engagement was with a variety combination at some Winter Gardens," says Mr. Dan Rolyat in an interview in the Weekly Scotsman, "my contributions being imitations of music hall stars and a little skit called 'The Dude on Skates.' In this I proved that without previous rehearsals I could gracefully stand on the naps of my neck. My salary was to be £5 a week for not less than a fortnight. On arriving at the hall the manager told me the whole troupe had to give a full dress cycle parade every forenoon. What a blow to my pride! I really needn't have troubled, for the streets were empty, save for a few half-starved boys leading dyspeptic donkeys. Why, Robinson Crusoe's Island must have been a rollicking place in comparison. For two solid hours we paraded deserted streets in drenching rain, and at seven o'clock opened the hall doors to a big rush—of cold air, several invalids, and a few children. After our orchestra, consisting of a wheezy trombone and a flute, had played the overture, we were just going to ring up the curtain, when the caretaker, a cadaverous-looking person with an aggressively sandy moustache, freezingly remarked 'that no curtain wasn't goin' up till a few preliminary "exs." was paid.' (He had been counting the audience.) Reluctantly the necessary palm oil was applied, and the performance proceeded. For my first week's salary I got 5s., but the second was worse, for on turning up to receive my pay I was greeted with the cheerful information that our worthy (?) manager had done a bolt, carelessly omitting to leave either our salaries or his address. So ended my first bid for fame."

AFTER the close of the performance at the Jersey Opera House on Saturday evening, the entire staff assembled in the foyer and presented Mr. Lindsay Edwards, the retiring manager, with a handsome set of pipes in case, which bore the following inscription: "From the Staff, Opera House, Jersey.—To Mr. Lindsay Edwards, wishing him the best of luck in his new sphere." Mr. A. W. Williams, in charge of the box-office, in a neat speech, asked Mr. Edwards to accept their tribute as a souvenir of the happy time they had had together. Mr. Edwards, in expressing his thanks, referred to the short time he had been amongst them as the most pleasant in his professional career, and he took that opportunity of thanking everyone on the staff for his or her courteous behaviour during the time he had been manager. He could, with every confidence and without any flattery, say that he had had the most courteous staff any manager could wish to meet, and he hoped that they would show the same consideration to his successor (Mr. Draco) as they had done to him.

"THE THUNDERBOLT," by Sir A. W. Pinero, which was produced at the St. James's Theatre on May 9, 1908, was performed for the first time on the other side of the Atlantic at the Princess Theatre, Montreal, on the 27th ult. by the New Theatre company of New York. The performance was attended by a large and fashionable audience, and the event was a notable success. The New York cast is:—James Mortimore, Mr. Louis Calvert; Stephen Mortimore, Mr. Albert Bruning; Thaddeus Mortimore, Mr A. E. Anson; Colonel Ponting, Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk; Helen Thornhill, Miss Olive Wyndham; Rev. George Trist, Mr. Frank Gillmore; Mr. Vallance, Mr. Ben Johnson; Mr. Elkin, Mr. E. M. Holland; Ann, wife of James Mortimore, Mrs. Harriet Otis Dellenbaugh; Louisa, wife of Stephen Mortimore, Mrs. Sol Smith; Phyllis, wife of Thaddeus Mortimore, Miss Thais Lawton.

MR. W. B. YEATS delivered the second of his series of lectures in the Memorial Hall, Manchester, on Monday, dealing with "The Theatre." Mr. Yeats said he hoped his audience would agree with him in disliking the theatre of commerce; all firm agreements were based upon the things which men disliked in common. When he came to tell them what he liked they would probably disagree. Melodrama was not worth a quarrel, but there was an art of the theatre which was worth quarrelling with, because it was based upon insincerity. Pinero's His House in Order might stand for the type; it was written by a man who had considerable mastery of stagecraft and the use of dialogue, but it was a drama of cowardice, appealing to the moral conceptions of the mob. All popular art, where the artist would not give his own vision of the truth, was conceived in cowardice, for fear that society would fall to pieces if the truth were told.

IN England, continued the speaker, the insincerity of the theatre of commerce was being assailed by Shaw and Granville Barker, whose work was inspired with a relentless logic, and by the realism of Galsworthy. But human nature was often lost in the logic, and the fullness of life was diminished in a drama which weighed institutions rather than human character. Yet by their sincerity alone these three were united with all that was greatest in art.

REALISM was necessary as a weapon in the struggle with the conventional drama, but it suffered a great limitation in the poverty of the everyday language it employed. Hamlet could tell you little of himself in two hours if he used our daily speech. To give the impression of reality there was need to magnify expression, to heighten words, as the impressionist painter heightened all his colours. Such expression was coming back to our theatre from places where the common speech of daily life was still the exponent of personality, from Sicily and from the West of Ireland. England could only produce an art of the will, the supreme achievement of our civilisation, which gave us the power of doing things that we did not like doing, until each became as a character of Galsworthy. But the "backward places" gave us the art of personality, of impulse unsubdued by will; the expression of a man doing something because he liked to do it.

LOGICAL analysis of the art of the theatre was going on in Europe to-day; men were studying the conditions peculiar to stagecraft, as William Morris had studied the conditions of the handicrafts. And in the art of the stage-picture they were feeling the influence of Mr. Gordon Craig, who achieved decoration by getting away from reality. It would be objected that the essence of drama was the clash of character with character, and that character must have its appropriate surroundings. But passion was the essence of tragic art, not character, and passion could only be expressed by getting rid of character; the infinite energy of the soul, which arose in the defeat of tragedy, required an unmeasured unreality in its surroundings to reveal its infinitude. In all the great masters of drama, except Shakespeare, character faded away; the passionate motive was everything. Comedy was the expression of character, and it was Shakespeare's great achievement that he added comedy to tragedy. He was a tragic comedian, but in all his tragedies character gave way to passion at the end, and we saw the defeat not of a man, but of human nature itself.

MESSRS. ABEL AND WELSH, performers of considerable originality, are rejoicing in the favour of continental audiences, who express in no uncertain terms approval of their act.

MR. WILMOT HASTINGS, in his speciality the musical tramp, has been so successful at the Theatre Royal, Barnstaple, that his engagement was extended from one week to three.

Invaluable for ACTORS and SINGERS.
Indispensable for PUBLIC SPEAKERS

GENTLEMEN,—For sudden affections of the Bronchial Organs I use and most cheerfully recommend "Brown's Troches." They are regarded as most eligible, convenient, and indispensable by numerous artists of my acquaintance, BOTH IN EUROPE AND AMERICA. They seem to act specially on the organs of the voice, and produce a clear enunciation.—Yours truly (Signed), MARIE ROSE MAPLESON.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1910.

TRAGEDY AND COMEDY.

Mr. and Mrs. OSCAR ASCHE, since their return from Australia, have made interesting contributions to a theory of the drama. Miss BRAYTON, in referring to the avidity with which the Australian public received tragedy as performed by herself and her husband, said that it was a question of climate and happiness. The Australians, being a prosperous, optimistic people, with a sunny and exhilarating climate and very little poverty, enjoyed tragedy; the English, with their depressing fogs and their millions on the verge of starvation, liked comedies, farces, and musical plays. At the O.P. Club dinner on Sunday last Mr. ASCHE confessed that he had tried to produce classical drama in London several times; and, outside SHAKESPEARE, the attempt had always been non-successful; and he reiterated his wife's opinions on the influence of climate and happiness on dramatic taste.

The enjoyment which is undoubtedly created in many people by a tragedy is difficult to understand. Why should we feel pleasure in witnessing the struggles of a good man with adversity and his ultimate failure to cope with circumstance? It may have been a sight fit for the heathen gods; but why should it be agreeable to ordinary mortals? We may explain the puzzle by saying that the enjoyment consists in excitement, in the spectator being "taken out of himself" by his sympathy being excited. It would seem as though the sensation of interest is so pleasurable that it will overpower even the pain of pessimism in a public that is extremely exuberant in vitality. But it is easy to be misled by the fact that SHAKESPEARE'S tragedies are still successfully played. SHAKESPEARE is out of the range of all argument. What we should ask ourselves, if we wish to get to the bottom of the matter, is, Would his tragic stories, if modernised, be popular in spite of their unhappy endings? Would not a drama in which a modern Iago was successful in ruining the lives of the hero and heroine be a decided failure? Would the suicides of a modern Romeo and Juliet be tolerated on the stage? Even in the last century there was a revolt. When TATE, in his version of King Lear, made the tale "conclude in a success to the innocent distrest persons" of the play he was only responding to the general feeling of his contemporaries, as was proved by the time during which his "alteration" held possession of the stage.

There is one explanation—a very mean one, however—of the pleasure that is taken in tragedy—i.e., that an audience of happy people, who feel it to be extremely improbable that they will ever have any serious trouble to endure, enjoy seeing their superiors suffering distress. In that case, what a happy, and what a brutal, public the Elizabethans must have been! They revelled in tragedy of the bloodiest and cruelest kind.

Are we to take it, then, that the more full-blooded and exuberantly vital a nation is the more sorrow, anguish, and distress it can bear to witness on the stage? But, on this principle, how extremely happy the French nation must be! The sort of play which we will not have over here at any price is patronised and supported in Paris by the French public at large, not only, as with us, by a select band of enthusiasts. Anyone who formed his ideas of life from the social studies of the modern French dramatists would be inclined, like SHAKESPEARE'S too well-informed boy, to "shut the book and sit him down and die." Many modern French dramas are not problem-plays, but protest-plays. "I wants to make yer flesh creep!" said the fat boy in "Pickwick." "I want to make you despair of life," might be the remark of many a modern French dramatist.

The whole thing is a puzzle, and we should like to see a "symposium" or "correspondence" on the point started by the curious. If we reverse the arguments of Mr. and Mrs. OSCAR ASCHE, the people who patronise amusing plays ought to be unhappy persons in search of an antidote. But in view of the facts which anyone may ascertain by simply glancing round a theatre where a musical comedy or popular farce is being played, this is not the case. The class which makes entertainments of this sort as successful as they are in England is the young, careless, perhaps brainless, but certainly thoughtless, class, with no cares and few responsibilities. Mr. GEORGE MOORE had a theory that really intellectual people, when they are off duty, go and see the silliest entertainment they can think of, just for a change; but there are not enough intellectual people in London to make the success of a single musical play, to say nothing of half a dozen.

As to whether pessimism and fatalism—that is to say, defeated heroes and unhappy endings—are practically beneficial or injurious, there can be no two opinions. It is impossible to say how much happiness or unhappiness there is in this world in the aggregate. But there is nothing gained by making people, by art or philosophy, more miserable than they are already. The more we have to bear, the more we want to be heartened and cheered for the struggle. It is a bad sign when society begins to despair of itself, and to signify the same in its literature and its drama; and as long as there is vitality in a nation it will resent plays that are likely to depress it. The robust intellect of the scholar rebels against them as much as the mind of the youthful Philistine. "I might relate," says JOHNSON, "that I was many years ago so shocked by Cordelia's death that I know not whether I ever endured to read again the last scenes of the play till I undertook to revise them as an editor"; and, as we have already remarked, for the better part of a century the feelings of playgoers were spared by alterations in the acting version of the play. The fatalistic pessimism of Widowers' Houses and Strife has been the undoing of two works of genius. For, in spite of everything, a virile race will cling to the theory of free will and deny the doctrine of fatalism. And the results are: hearty dramas, successful heroes, and happy endings; comedy, which cheers us with the suggestion that life is a joke, and farce, with its foolish fun and its physical medicine of laughter. And for these, by the great majority, will the theatre always be beloved.

"A WOMAN'S WAY" TRANSFERRED.

The last performance of A Woman's Way at the Comedy was given on Friday, the 4th, and on Saturday Thompson Buchanan's piece was installed at the Globe, where it has been doing particularly well during the week. There is much ingenuity in the development of the plot, and the satire which marks the speeches of Mrs. Waldron is often subtly conceived. "Honour us with truth if not with praise," says Elizabeth Barrett Browning, and this is exactly the request of Mrs. Waldron in the first act. Failing to get exactitude of statement concerning her husband's motor escapade with Mrs. Verney—a model of attractive inconstancy—she hits upon a neatly-devised scheme for "getting her own back." The woman who receives the attentions of so many men can be no match for the woman with faith and love as her weapons; and to the duel between the two there can only be one ending.

Miss Alexandra Carlisle is superb as Mrs. Waldron. Here is the wife who is not going to hug her distress of mind in silence and become patient and passive. Miss Carlisle realises in her acting not only the determination that animates the wife, but the fine tact that possesses her. The voice is always beautifully modulated; the manner invitingly confidential. The actress never over-emphasises a home thrust, or gives the slightest clue to her rival that under a fair show of consideration Mrs. Waldron is dissembling her hate. A most interesting performance!

Mr. Charles Quartermaine has to surmount the difficulty of displaying throughout the comedy a sense of chronic irritation, and this he does quite admirably, it is true, but the part is not so grateful as those in which this clever young actor is usually seen. Mr. Charles Bryant, who reminds one so strongly of Sir Charles Wyndham, is better than ever as Clive Hatton, to which he gives a particularly light touch. Mr. Edmund Maurice makes the very most of the slender opportunities afforded General Sir Harry Dundas—quite an ancient Lothario. Mr. Athol Stewart as the family solicitor, Frederick Rowley, adds much to the merriment of the last act by his naïve confession. Mr. Harry Dodd is an excellent Wilson; Mr. Frederick Lloyd is a particularly good Ralph Bienneharsset; and the author may be thanked for not making the Press interviewer a caricature, as is usually the case. Mr. Eric Maturin does good work as Otho Dundas.

Miss Elaine Inescort, by her refinement and style, softens the unprepossessing characteristics of Mrs. Verney, who is so well known to her admirers as "Puss," and gives fascination and distinction to the part. Miss Kate Serjeantson and Miss Helen Rous are excellently contrasted in the parts of Lady Dundas and the Hon. Mrs. Waldron; and the slight parts of Norah Dundas and Margaret Rowley are adequately sustained by Miss Evelyn Beaumont and Miss Madge Murray. The comedy is beautifully staged, and on the night of our visit was played to an accompaniment of laughter. Mr. Oscar Barrett, jun., is the polite business-manager of this pretty house.

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT'S production of Mr. John W. de Kay's play, in a prologue, three acts, and an epilogue, on the subject of Judas Iscariot, will take place in New York shortly. The moral resembles that of Salome. Love of a woman is the motive which makes Judas betray his Master. The play has been translated into French by Mr. J. C. de Chassaigne.

It was on April 9, 1883, that Mr. F. Anstey's first version of his amusing novel Vice Versâ was played for the first time in London at the Gaiety Theatre at a matinée for the benefit of Mr. W. H. Griffiths. It was described as a dramatic sketch, in three tableaux, the adaptation being done by Mr. E. Rose. Mr. C. H. Hawtrey was Mr. Bultitude's Body, Mr. Edward Rose Dick's Body, and Miss Laura Linden Dulcie. The piece, which was originally performed at the Theatre Royal, Reading, and had a short run at the Opera Comique Theatre, was substantially the same as the adaptation by Mr. Anstey which was produced with absolute and unmistakable success at the Comedy Theatre on Thursday, though some delightful additions and improvements have been made by the author.

Mr. Anstey's version is in three acts. In the first the position of affairs between the irritable and tyrannical Mr. Bultitude and his son, Dick, is stated, and sympathy is created with the boy, who is obviously a good average example of youthful humanity, while his father is much too hard on him. The "bad egg," Marmaduke Paradine, arrives from India, where he has been given by a fakir a certain magic stone which allows its possessor to have two wishes gratified. Bultitude, in a moment of false enthusiasm, wishes that he were Dick, and the transformation immediately takes place, the spirit of the produce-broker inhabiting the body of the boy, and the boy's soul entering the physical frame of his father. Dick is delighted, and completes the effect of the change by wishing that his father should return to school in his—Dick's—stead.

So poor Mr. Bultitude appears, in the second scene of the act, at Crichton House Academy. The boys cannot understand his manner and his opinions, so different from those of Dick as they knew him before the holidays. His attempts to explain what has happened are baffled again and again, and his disloyalties to the code of schoolboy honour and esprit de corps are hotly denounced. His schoolmaster, Dr. Grimstone, is completely puzzled, too. The new Dick "takes on" all the responsibilities of the previous one, including a love affair with Dulcie Grimstone, the schoolmaster's daughter, and a flirtation with another young lady, who throws billets doux over the wall to him. Mr. Bultitude is too elderly in spirit to cope with the emergencies thus created. He is bored by Dulcie's advances, and refuses to fight for her with Tipping, the "cock" of the school. He "sneaks" of a boy who is sucking peppermints, and in his own playbox is found a store of the odoriferous lozenge. Dick's correspondence with the former young lady is discovered, and the new Dick is on the point of being expelled. This is exactly what he would like, for he would thus be able to return home; but, unfortunately for him, Dulcie intercedes in his favour, and it is settled that he is to be flogged instead. Before this terrible indignity is done to him, however, he escapes from the school with the aid of a good-natured boy, named Jolland, and arrives home to find that in his absence Dick, in Bultitude's body, has fallen into the toils of the unprincipled Paradine, who has almost succeeded in cashing a big cheque on Bultitude's bankers. However, the father arrives in time to stop any serious injury being done to him in his absence; by the use of the magic stone the souls of the father and son resume their original habitations; and, Bultitude père having learnt what school life really is, the relations between him and his son become much more humane.

The piece was cast with remarkable judgment and acted with extraordinary completeness, each impersonation being thoroughly satisfactory and convincing. One can hardly imagine a more absolutely adequate portrait of the testy, overbearing, old produce-broker, Paul Bultitude, than was given by Mr. Frederick Volpe. He hit off the type exactly; and his make-up and general appearance were excellently well studied. Mr. Volpe was admirable also in the way in which he displayed the boyish simplicity of Dick's soul when imprisoned in the corpulent figure of his father; and very funny was the result, especially in the last act. Mr. Spencer Trevor was similarly successful in the manner in which he depicted the pompous and unstable spirit of the elderly gentleman warring with the bodily shape of the school boy. The tricks of style of the adult were very cleverly imitated, and the humour of the situation was never exaggerated. A charmingly frank and spirited embodiment of Barbara Bultitude was supplied by Miss Agnes Glynne, who made a brisk and bonnie lassie indeed; and Mr. C. M. Lowne's mellow and unctuous style and absolute ease and authority made him the very man to play the plausible and pleasant Marmaduke Paradine. Mr. Arthur Playfair must have revelled in the impersonation of the stern schoolmaster, Dr. Grimstone. The broad-bearded pedagogue, with his surface trick of scholastic sententiousness and his ready way of saving a situation, was represented by Mr. Playfair with great zest and appreciation, and a keen perception of the humour of the part; and Miss Phyllis Embury enacted Dulcie with just the correct amount of girlish frankness and simplicity. Mr. Leveson Lane contributed a well-considered and careful reading of the rôle of the Senior Assistant-Master, Mr. Blinkhorn, and embellished it with much quiet drollery; and a firm, sharp, and quaint representation of the pretentious Mr. Tinkler was supplied by Mr. Brian Egerton, who was exceedingly amusing. Mr. W. Briscoe-Owen brought out well the pugnacious superiority of Tipping; the "sneakishness" of Chawner was intelligently suggested by Master Bobbie Andrews; the meek, gentle, and spectacled Kiffin, whose character so soon developes under the influence of school experience, had an able exponent in Master Sidney Sherwood; Jolland's good nature was done justice to by Master Philip Tonge; and Biddlecombe, Coker, and Coggs had capable representatives in Master Joseph Victor, Master F. Thorndike, and Master Jack Hobbs. The conscientious and self-respecting Boaler was embodied with rare ability by Mr. Clifford Brooke, who was the faithful, but self-respecting, butler to the life, and acted with much tact and judgment in the last division of the play. The flirtatiously-inclined Rhoda was neatly hit off by Miss May Taverner; and Miss Jean Bloomfield was good as the more sober-minded Ellen, Miss Lillie Brennand being satisfactory as the Nurse and Miss Marjorie Dane impulsively youthful as Cecily, while Master Burford Hampden behaved well as Peter. The scenery, by F. L. Schmitz, was appropriate and adequate. The new version of Vice Versâ had a very enthusiastic reception.

"JUST TO GET MARRIED."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, Produced at the Little Theatre, on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

Frances Mellishp	MISS DORA BARTON
Mrs. Macartney	MISS MAUD CRESSALL
Georgina Vicary	MISS GERTRUDE KINGSTON
Daphne Grayle	MISS DOROTHY MINTO
Tod Grayle	MR. EVERARD VANDERLIP
Lady Catherine Grayle	MISS ROSINA FILIPPI
Sir Theodore Grayle	MR. THOMAS SIDNEY
Adam Lankester	MR. GODFREY TEARLE
Butler	MR. A. C. FOTHERINGHAM LYSONS
Dobbins	MR. ARTHUR FAYNE

Miss Cicely Hamilton has written a book on "Marriage as a Profession," and some of its deductions are embodied in the really interesting and sincere play produced by Miss Gertrude Kingston at the Little Theatre in John-street, Adelphi, on Tuesday evening. The characters are naturally drawn, the interest is well sustained, the conversations are decidedly good, but the last act is weak. It is the tragedy of the undowered poor relation, who looks to marriage to secure her independence. Georgina Vicary, who is nearing her thirtieth birthday, is dependent upon her uncle and aunt, Sir Theodore and Lady Catherine Grayle, and they are naturally anxious to see her settled in life. A very eligible parti, Adam Lankester, is a guest in their country house, and it is plain to see that he is very much smitten with Georgina. Though he has been much in her society during his stay, Adam, with the rugged simplicity and shyness born of his experiences in the Wild West, has been unable to pluck up courage to propose. He does so, however, when saying "Good-bye" on the eve of his departure, and is deliriously happy when Georgina says "Yes!" She is not particularly enthusiastic over it, and her cool, prosaic behaviour would have raised doubts of her sincerity in anyone less infatuated than Adam. He had been on the point of "popping the question" several times, but as he naïvely confesses—"Every blessed time I funked it; I hadn't the pluck to speak out."

The prospective bride's friends, delighted at the turn things have taken, offer congratulations; and in the next act everyone is busy preparing for the wedding on the morrow. Georgina is perhaps the least excited. The absence of Adam and his letters—full of passionate adoration—had given her time to reflect; and though we get no inkling of her determination, we are scarcely surprised when, in an outburst of candour, she tells her betrothed, who has brought her a bridal present of pearls, that she has no love for him: that she merely accepted him because she wanted to get married. It was to escape the tragedy of old maidism, the serfdom of the poor relation, that she had snatched at his love and given him hypocrisy for sincerity. "You have taken my life and broken it in your cruel little fingers," retorts Adam, and he goes out.

Of course Aunt Catherine, who had manœuvred so skilfully to get Georgina "off," is furious at the outrageous conduct of that conscientious young lady, and there is an angry scene—admirably written, by the way, and as admirably acted—ending in Georgina's departure in her going-away dress to the railway station. There we find her in the last act, determined to go to London. Adam finds his way there too. Pity and tenderness overtake Georgina as he offers to be her friend whatever happens. The good fellow's splendid devotion touches her. It breaks down all her maidenly reserve. She proposes, is accepted, and the two depart for London to be married privately.

It will be seen that Georgina is constant only to change, and one fears that Lankester's happiness with her is none too sure. Miss Gertrude Kingston, though hardly looking the part, acts it with rare finesse, and the big scene in the second act between the lovers—the man sad and reproachful, the woman distressed and despairing—roused the audience to enthusiasm, so splendidly was it played by Miss Kingston and Mr. Godfrey Tearle, who will add greatly to a fast-growing reputation by his earnestness and sincerity as Adam Lankester. Miss Rosina Filippi was genuinely amusing as Lady Catherine Grayle—a particularly well-sketched character—whom she represented as a suave diplomat in the first act and as a bitterly disappointed woman in the second. Mr. Thomas Sidney made a hit as Sir Theodore Grayle, whose horror of "scenes" and quiet submission to feminine authority are always so quaintly expressed. Miss Dorothy Minto made the most of the part of an outspoken and cheeky schoolgirl; Mr. Everard Vanderlip was a blunt and cubbish Tod Grayle; Miss Dora Barton played the colourless part of Frances Mellishp; and Miss Maud Cressall managed to make the character of Mrs. Macartney fairly interesting. Mr. Arthur Fayne was responsible for a neat sketch of Dobbins, a railway porter; and Mr. A. C. Fotheringham Lysons was an irreproachable butler.

Just to Get Married was followed by a tragedietta, in one act, entitled

"THE MERCIFUL SOUL."

Hugh	MISS VIOLET B. BUCALOSSI
Colomba	MISS ISABEL MERSON
Annet	MISS CHRISTINE JENSON
Fiordelisa	MISS DOROTHY MINTO
Geoffrey	MR. EVERARD VANDERLIP
Richard	MR. JAMES GELDARD
Old Man	MR. A. E. FILMER
Basil of the Iron Hand.	MR. CAVENDISH MORTON

A mournful little play in a mediæval setting. Basil of the Iron Hand has married, en secondes noces, Fiordelisa, a young, impressionable girl, left in the care of Colomba, a saintly woman who is the sister of the first Mrs. Basil. Fiordelisa, during the absence of her elderly lord, accepts the kisses of Geoffrey, a young knight, and carries on a clandestine flirtation with him. The time for Basil's return has arrived, but his ship is wrecked, and he is drowned. His disembodied spirit reproaches the false Fiordelisa, and freely forgives her, at the same time extracting a confession of love from the high-souled Colomba. No sooner has the spirit of Basil departed on the long pilgrimage than men-at-arms bring in his body. The fall of the curtain came as a relief to the settled gloom of the piece. Miss Isabel Merson gave a beautiful and touching performance of Colomba; Mr. Everard Vanderlip made a warm and passionate Geoffrey; and Miss Dorothy Minto as the unfaithful Fiordelisa did all that was possible with that character. Mr. Cavendish Morton played the spirit of Basil in the traditional method adopted for ghostly visitants to the nether world of the stage.

MR. E. H. SOTHERN is about to make in New York his first appearance in the rôle of Macbeth. Scenic artists have been employed upon the production for nearly two years. The sets will be twenty in number, and it is Mr. Sothern's intention to emphasise the supernatural and psychological elements of the play. Miss Julia Marlowe will be the Lady Macbeth.

ON the 4th inst., at the Criterion Restaurant, another highly successful "At Home" was held by the Actresses' Franchise League. On this occasion the meeting was included as one of the series being held during "Suffrage Week," in support of the Conciliation Bill. Mrs. J. B. Fagan was in the chair, and the speakers were Lady Constance Lytton, Mrs. Pertwee, Mr. Cecil Chapman, and Mr. H. Campbell Johnstone. Mrs. George Edwardes kindly acted as hostess. The hall was crowded, and the following resolution was carried with only three dissentients:—"That this meeting calls upon the Government to give facilities for the passing into law this Session of the Representation of the People (Women) Bill, 1910."

"JUSTICE" AND THE ACTOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The current presentation of Mr. Galsworthy's play in Manchester revives discussion of this remarkable drama, and offers the opportunity of making a needed note on its significance from the technical point of view of the actor.

That its formative influence on the profession of acting is likely to be as potent at least as its pressure upon public morals, play-writing, and other issues of more general interest, has, as far as I am aware, escaped notice, yet inherent in the peculiarity of the play's technique is a force to attract and bring into prominence a school of stage artist hitherto largely of negligible standing. I mean that body of men and women—attracted to the stage, I believe, only of late years, and recruited from the educated ranks—whose impulse is more that of the genuine artist than is the instinct of the actor of tradition, whose activity largely—perhaps chiefly—is towards personal impression and individual power. Egoistic prominence is doubtless the logical and inevitable ambition of specially gifted, strong personalities; but it is to be noted that eminence of this particular kind does not now, as it once did, stand as the "be all and end all" of theatrical aspiration, nor does failure to achieve public and popular distinction mean negation so much to-day as it did yesterday, when it was almost the only achievement honoured with the name of success, not only by the public outside—who are still largely burdened with this tradition—but even in the ranks of the workers of the stage. The hold of this ideal, however, is loosening, and new adjustments towards regeneration are taking place. Among a nucleus there are observable ambitions of the more ancient artistic kind; determinations to resist the attractive unworthy, to seek for the secret causes of vitality and life, and to achieve them at any cost—even in the hard region of personal suppression and renunciation. That the hope of the larger histrionic progress lies in this tendency is not to be doubted, yet there is room for all classes of activity. It is to the point of this note, however, that Justice has comparatively little to offer the personal protagonist, who of necessity needs a considerable amplitude of dramatic material in which to display his powers; and the distinction of this play lies in the fact that, inherently, of its own nature, it has drawn together for the first time, and presented in a brilliant setting, a company of those players who stand in the van of the advanced, welcome movement, and it is this fact among others—not, perhaps, sufficiently recognised—that helps to make the play a figure of a new and inspiring time.

In this connection it is noticeable that the actors in Justice make comparatively little individual personal impression. The material they use is vital, even showy, but not expensive, or modulated on any telling length gamut. They appear to be figures acutely alive, clear-cut, and sharply relieved; but, though vivid, they are, in a measure, microscopic, because the peculiarity of the technique of this play is that it reveals the story by a series of high-lights, in tragic glimpses at the peaks of crisis, rather than in the slower, fuller, more comprehensive methods to which the stage is accustomed, and which gives the actor more scope. The action, indeed, is ever at breathless pauses, at the faltering utterance, at the moment of catastrophe. There is practically no development of character. The basis of contributory movement and thought which generates the crisis and its mood is, to all intents and purposes, suppressed: the spectacle afforded is, on the whole, chiefly that of the social machine in motion rather than a drama of human generation; and the business of the actor almost entirely consists in appearing at the points when the strain has reached an acute stage and the victim is squeezed to a state of agony. For this reason—and the chief parts most of all—while the characters appear to be in the most prominent projection towards the spectator, they yet seem to lack the impressiveness of breadth and the weight of solid expansion and development. They create comparatively little personal impression.

Needless to say, the truly artistic spirit is amply compensated by work of this kind, for though it suffers some egoistic eclipse, it is vivified by dealing in living material and in entering thereby into the domain of universal—as opposed to purely theatrical—art.

If we seek a definition for the particular class of artist a play like Justice assembles, we find it, perhaps, most aptly in another branch of work under the denomination of the miniature painters or gravers. Swift and clean strokes of technique at high pressure is alone the manner of portrayal. What benefit Justice has conferred on the profession may be gauged when it is remembered how inconspicuous this section of the theatrical community were before its advent, and how hence forward they are likely to represent a definite factor in its midst.

Work of this kind, it scarcely needs pointing, is not in any sense easy or simplified stagecraft, consisting chiefly in the discarding of old, conventional methods of work, but represents rather the super-addition on the stem of effective traditional training of the much-needed qualities of imagination and nervous sensibility. On this ground, therefore, the new drama is no school of probation for the aspirant seeking the elements of stage capacity. These must be acquired still in the robust, positive, well-tried ways of the old régime. Stillness and tensity of demeanour—perhaps the dominant singularity of Justice as a new dramatic form—cannot be handled effectively but on a basis of the old-fashioned methods of stage grip and power.

The presentation of crisis, in which Justice chiefly consists, by its inherent quality reduces a great deal of the play to an almost static and soundless form, and this manner is its most prophetic element. Inevitably, it is not a chance accident, but represents a quality which the author pressed out of the living tendency of the time. The dramas of modern existence do not run to spectacle or sound, and they are still waiting to be caught by the stage as they show themselves, dimly but magnetically, in the more intangible deeps of human nature. Justice is, however, a play of the heart and not of the soul; but its moments are yet those on the borderland of silence, and some unspoken intangibilities have to be conveyed by the actors by means of such technique as is at present at command. To present a state of mental crisis vividly, with nerves and imagination taut and still, may well, however, be experiments on the road to more capacity in the region of the finer and subtler psychology which is characteristic of modern life.

In the slow development of the actor's art the mental, nervous, and imaginative qualities seem at last to have been added to the physical equipment, needing only the right play, like Justice, to point their existence. May the time, therefore, need only the appearance of the practical plays of further progress for complementary advanced technique on the actor's side also to appear?—Yours faithfully,

BREMBER WILLS.
Actors' Association, Nov. 10.

THE Buckinghamshire Players are the latest village histrions to come before the public, their purpose being the production of plays of local interest. Most of the members are chair-makers, or work on the land, and they have no wish to compete with professional actors, but to remain amateurs. Their first play, Pot Luck, will be produced at Naphill on Nov. 19. It is by Miss Gertrude Robins, and deals humorously with a poaching incident.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The London Hippodrome and the London Coliseum will again have to carry on their business without a licence for intoxicants, in spite of Mr. Gill's able appeal to the common sense of the Theatres Committee of the L.C.C. at Clerkenwell yesterday. Last year the Committee approved of the granting of the licenses, but their decision was reversed at the sitting of the whole Council. A report of Friday's licensing proceedings appears in another column.

The application for the licence of the Camden Hippodrome was opposed by Mr. Curtis, but the Committee ruled that his notice was out of order, and recommended that the application should be granted. The house has been closed since Monday, Oct. 31, and all applications in connection with it are to be sent to Messrs. Marler and Marler.

Miss Annie Hughes closed last Saturday a successful tour of Miss Tommy at the Opera House, Blackpool, and resumed her music hall engagements at the Pavilion, Glasgow, on Monday, Nov. 7, where she was greeted with a very flattering reception on her appearance as Mme. Sans Gêne in her new sketch Napoleon's Washerwoman, which scored a distinct and unqualified success. Miss Hughes is ably supported by Mr. Henry Deas as Napoleon and Mr. Mayne Lynton as Fouché.

Miss Hughes will produce at Liverpool, on Monday, Nov. 14, a new dramatic duologue which she has acquired absolutely from the author, Mr. W. Douglas Newton, entitled The Fourth Kiss; in this Miss Hughes will have the assistance of Mr. Mayne Lynton. Liverpool is followed by Manchester for two weeks with the above-named sketches, and on Dec. 5 Miss Hughes will return to the Syndicate halls, opening at the Metropolitan.

Mr. John Lawson arrived at Southampton on Wednesday after a nice trip across, and goes to the Hippodrome, Margate, on Monday. During his stay in New York John purchased 25,000 dollars' worth William Morris Inc. stock, following the example of several American actors and vaudeville performers.

Mr. Frank Allen, who, it will be remembered, took up the cause of the old Music Hall Benevolent Fund so warmly, and has always supported music hall charities, has also kindly consented to act as a patron and assist in every way possible the organisation of the charity matinée on the 24th at the Empire, Liverpool, in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund. The Mayor of Blackpool (Mr. W. H. Broadhead) has sent a cheque for a large private box, and the Lord Mayor of Liverpool (Mr. S. Mason Hutchinson) has granted his patronage.

The box-office is now open, and much local interest is being evinced in this, the first provincial matinée in aid of the variety charities. There is a good demand for seats, the prices for which are as follows:—Orchestra stalls, 5s.; grand circle, 3s.; pit stalls, 2s. 6d. and 2s.; upper circle, 1s.; and gallery, 6d.

The second London benefit in aid of the Benevolent Funds will be held this year, by kind permission of Sir Edward Moss, Mr. Oswald Stoll, and the directors, at the London Hippodrome, on Tuesday, Dec. 13, when it is hoped to surpass even the grand success of the matinée at the Coliseum last Christmas. It is hoped to be able to arrange a big novelty, which is a secret at present.

"Dolly's Little Bills" is the title of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's one-act play for the Hippodrome at Christmas. It is founded on the quarrel scene in Dolly Reforming Herself, in which Miss Ethel Irving played so superbly at the Haymarket Theatre two years ago.

Mr. Henry Arthur Jones has written to Mr. Winston Churchill, the Home Secretary, an "open letter," in which he strongly advocates the passage through Parliament of a short, non-contentious Bill rendering legal the production of plays at music halls. Throughout the kingdom there are, it is estimated, 150,000 illegal performances of stage plays in music halls every year, and this number is rapidly increasing.

Pointing out some of the anomalies of the present position, Mr. Jones says:—"An absurd illegal agreement between the managers of theatres and music halls is enforced, limiting the music halls to the production of plays containing not more than six characters, and not lasting longer than half an hour. Thus, if one of the best London music hall managers were to produce a fine original play lasting thirty-five minutes, he would be prosecuted, while the theatre manager who prosecuted him might himself be producing the most witless vulgarity."

Mr. Jones points out that the Censorship Committee recommended a simple licence for both classes of houses, giving them freedom to produce whatever entertainment may best conform to the tastes of the public they serve, and he urges the Home Secretary immediately to carry this recommendation into effect. Mr. Jones omits one important particular. Who is to be the licensing authority? The theatre managers of the West End advocate the retention of the Lord Chamberlain; but the London County Council has a much greater area of jurisdiction.

Mr. Alfred Moul, managing director of the Alhambra, has asked us to correct the statement that the London County Council will be asked to sanction proposals involving the rearrangement of the seating accommodation of the Alhambra Theatre. Mr. Moul adds that the statement was unauthorised and entirely erroneous. All that he has done has been to forward an inquiry to the London County Council asking what their requirements would be in the event of the Alhambra directorate deciding at any future date to alter the seating arrangements of the Leicester-square playhouse.

Mr. Gus Elen must have been delighted with the warm reception accorded to him on his return on Monday to the Coliseum. "The little gee-gee" and "The Mistakes of Nature" were not enough for the admirers of the Cockney caroller, and they insisted on another contribution. Gus gave them his well-known "'Alf a pint o' ale." His admirable distinctness in such a vast house was a fine testimonial to his methods.

The death is announced of Mr. Benjamin Simmonds, violinist, and father of the famous Selina Dolaro, one of the most gifted women of the mid-Victorian era. Selina, like Adah Menken, wrote poetry, and was flattered by admirers, both literary and artistic. At the Philharmonic, in 1871-72, she figured as Genevieve de Brabant in the opera of that name, as Frédégonde in Chilperic, and as Clairette in Madame Angot. She also played in La Perichole at the Royalty, and was at the Alhambra in 1877. But the qualities of her Carmen in Bizet's opera received the greatest praise from the critics. Mr. Simmonds was at one time the first fiddle in the orchestra of the old Trocadero Music Hall, under Mr. Angelo Asher. He died at the ripe age of eighty-four, and was buried in the Jewish Cemetery at Manor Park.

The Matlock Bath Urban District Council are prepared to engage a band to play in the Pleasure Grounds, Matlock Bath, from June 25, 1911, to Sept. 9, 1911. For further particulars apply H. W. P. Carter, Council-chambers, Matlock Bath.

Mrs. Maud Barrasford has recently acquired the commodious property adjoining the Court Theatre, Brighton (formerly for many years occupied by Messrs. Crunden, furniture and antique dealers), with a possible view to enlarging her successful picture house.

The Alhambra, Brighton, which was for some years run under the management of Mr. J. L. Graydon, will be running drama at any rate for a season, and will open on Monday next with The Bad Girl of the Family, seemingly a mascot drama both for halls and theatres. A pantomime will be produced at Christmas.

Miss Bertha De Pas resumes on Monday next her Northern tour of return dates, which will extend to the middle of January, when she sails for South Africa for a two months' engagement at Mr. Sydney Hyman's Empire Palace, Johannesburg. We understand that Messrs. Tom Shaw and Co. are booking her well up for 1913.

The Hastings Hippodrome, a variety establishment on which fortune has not smiled, is to become a picture house, and will open as such, under new management, on the 19th inst. The Co-operative Varieties, Ltd., have been supplying the entertainment of late, but have ceased their connection, and will start on Monday at Hastings Pier.

The construction of the new Kursaal at Worthing for Mr. C. Adolf Seebold, the lessee and manager of the Theatre Royal in the town, is now proceeding apace, and it is quite likely that it will be ready for opening early in the new year. It will be the largest building in the town, and accommodation will be provided for over three thousand people.

There is no need to inform our readers that the new Mayor of Blackpool, Councillor W. H. Broadhead, J.P., is the chief of the "Broadhead Tour," which controls about fourteen variety halls in Manchester and other Lancashire districts. Ladies were invited to the mayoral banquet for the first time in the history of the borough. Mr. Broadhead is the father-in-law of Mr. Percy Honri, of concertina and Concordia fame.

It is seldom we get the real bushman in England, but there is one of the genuine sort appearing this week at the Empire, Hull. His name is Salt Bush Bill, otherwise William Mills. He weighs 16 stone, is tall, broad, and burly, and cuts a picturesque figure in his cord breeches, top boots, and red shirt. He is the real thing, and a stock-whip expert, who can manipulate a thong 52ft. in length. We hope to see Salt Bush Bill in London.

The distress in Hartlepool caused by the lock-out in the shipbuilding yards shows as yet no signs of abatement. Relief is being contributed through many channels, and on Friday last Mr. Maxted, the genial and popular lessee of the Empress Theatre, placed his building, staff, artists, and services at the disposal of the Distress Committee. In addition to the ordinary programme, local talent contributed to the entertainment, and a considerable balance was handed over.

Extensive preparations are on foot for this season's pantomime at the Grand, Glasgow, to be produced early in December. Moss' Empires have entrusted the production to Mr. Fred Karno, and Dick Whittington will be the subject. Included in the cast are these popular artists:—George French, George Ali, Harry Webber, Burley and Burley, Lily Morris, and Maidie Scott. With such a capable and popular crowd success is already guaranteed.

Mr. Wm. Trussell, who for the past five years has been manager of the Palace, Southampton, said "Au revoir" to his friends last (Friday) evening, when two grand gala performances were given. Mr. Trussell has been promoted to the London office of the Macnaghten Vaudeville Circuit, and his successor at Southampton is Mr. J. R. Badcoe, who returns to scenes of former triumphs, after a successful sojourn at Burnley. Mr. Badcoe is a good sport, and we wish him a long and prosperous reign at the Southampton Palace.

Mr. Lindsay Edwards, who has made himself immensely popular as manager of the Jersey Opera, was the recipient of a present from the staff on his retirement last week, when the management was taken over by Mr. Pan E. Draco. The staff also made a presentation to Mr. Clements, the electrical engineer who manipulates the pictures, on his marriage to Miss Ahier, the fascinating lady who for the last two or three years has had charge of the bar. The presentations were made by Mr. A. Williams, who presides at the box office.

The Sheffield branch of the National Lifeboat Fund has for many years received ready help from the directorate of the local Empire, and the annual matinée on the 3rd inst. on behalf of this noble cause was a great success, thanks to the support of the public, the loyal help of the artists, orchestra, and staff, and the indefatigable exertions of the honorary secretary (Mrs. J. A. Craven) and Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.

The beautiful theatre presented a brilliant appearance, the boxes and stalls being graced by the presence of the Lord and Lady Mayoress (the Earl and Countess Fitzwilliam), the Master and Mistress Cutler (Alderman and Mrs. Senior), Sir Joseph and Lady Jonas, the Ladies Elfrida and Joan Fitzwilliam, and the principal notables of the city and district. A fine programme was contributed to by many well-known artists, including the Princess D'Aryaba (the famous dancer), the Grassis, Mr. Tom Costello, Lew Lake's company, Miss Nellie Chisholm, Miss Calladine's troupe in a ballet divertissement, and the orchestra. At the conclusion an enthusiastic vote of thanks was passed to the Moss' Empires Co., the artists, &c., and to Mr. Alan D. Dunbar, the popular and genial manager.

Lew Lake is by way of presenting a tabloid version of The Great Millionaire, Mr. Cecil Raleigh's Drury-lane drama, presented on Sept. 19, 1901. The two famous scenes in the piece are the £100-a-guest banquet and the bread riot in the East End. The play will be produced under the personal supervision of the author and Mr. Heaton Grey, who is general-manager of Lew Lake's dramatic companies for the production of similar Raleigh's pieces.

After an expenditure of £500 on alterations and decorations, the Spread Eagle, Lambeth-road, has been transformed into the coziest professional house of call in this neighbourhood. There is a large rehearsal room on the ground floor with separate entrance, which, being let at very moderate terms with piano and use of telephone, will be greatly appreciated by sketch proprietors and others. The proprietor, Mr. Tom Cavill, will be pleased to see all friends at any time.

Mr. Tom Dunville has added "The Railway Station-master" to his gallery of comic stage portraits, and he is giving this at the Hippodrome, Belfast, on Monday next. He returns to town on the 21st.

The latest addition to Mr. Albert Toft's "makers of history" includes the irrespressible and energetic Seymour Hicks. He has certainly helped to make history on the variety stage by a remarkable reproduction of Richard III.

Mr. Herbert Shelley writes of "The New Tyranny." In his letter he says: "I read that the rioters at Tonypandy surrounded the Hippodrome, ordering the manager to immediately close down, threatening to take the law into their own hands, and showing, at the same time, a man with bleeding face and battered head as a sample of their intentions.

"As this is by no means the first instance where in an industrial strike the music hall has been ordered to close, I, in all humility, ask why? Surely the majority of music-hall artists do enough in the way of helping the funds and institutions of the workers in times of peace, without being made the unwilling sufferers in times of industrial arguments.

"Truly the situation becomes a tragic paradox if men and women performers are to be asked to give their services for the benefit of the soup kitchen one week, and told to clear out of the theatre the next because of a local dispute. The life of the average music-hall artist is infinitely harder than the artisan's, and as such should command the sympathy of the disputants and not their abandonment."

Miss Decima Moore's one-act farcical comedy, A Black Mark, which was produced at the Kilburn Empire the week before last, met with such success there that it is being rapidly booked up, and will be played by her at the opening weeks of the London Palladium.

Mr. Harry Rickards, who is on board the Peninsular and Oriental liner Morea, outward bound, writing from Port Said to Mr. Tom Pacey, says he is having a splendid trip and enjoying a good rest. According to present arrangements, Mr. Rickards will be in England again next May.

Mendel, the blind pianist, who made his first appearance in the West End of London at the Hippodrome, returns there again on the 21st, after a most successful tour in Australia. It is to be hoped that the manager of the house, Mr. Fred Trussell, himself an excellent pianist, will outline a theme on which Mendel can improvise.

The committee of the M.H.A.R.A. held their 683rd meeting on Wednesday, at the offices, Lieut. Albini presiding. There were also present Messrs. F. W. Millis (vice-president), Chas. Cohorn, Jack Straw, Tom Packer, J. W. Cragg, and C. Douglas Stuart. The balloting for the position of vice-chairman resulted in Mr. Harry Blake being re-elected. The weekly statement showed an increase of forty-seven new members, and receipts of £60 9s.

Mr. Edmund de Celle, the son of the popular comedienne, Miss Alexandra Dagmar, who some time since embarked upon his career as an artist, is making rapid progress, and recently secured two prizes for painting at an exhibition given under the auspices of the Camberwell Sketch Club. He also had the distinction of being highly commended by an eminent R.A.

Griff and George, jugglers and acrobats, are to appear at the Palace Theatre on Monday next. Griff has been there before with his whimsical juggling entertainment, accompanied by a running fire of patter. With his new partner he has made an enormous success in the States, and his rentrée to the Palace will mark his reappearance before a metropolitan audience. He is an excellent clown.

The total subscriptions to the George Fuller Golden Benefit are given as 2,538 dollars 57 cents. To this must be added a cheque for £5 5s. (21 dollars), which Mr. Joe Elvin has sent through the Variety Artists' Federation, and which has just been forwarded to America. The benefit performance is to be given at the New York Hippodrome on the 20th inst., so that our readers who wish to help a good cause should send their donations at once to 18, Charing Cross-road.

A daring burglary took place last Saturday evening at Loraine Mansions, Holloway, whilst the occupier was away from home, every room in the house being ransacked. Mr. Bertie Ralland, the manager of the Holloway Empire, having received information of what had happened, and that the gentleman chiefly interested was in the hall, promptly came forward and made an announcement from the stage, and the occupier of the burgled premises thus became aware of what had occurred.

The monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road, on Wednesday afternoon, when there were present Messrs. Wm. Bailey (in the chair), H. Jennings* (trustee), W. J. Waimatta, A. Drew, S. Whyte, and V. T. Carney. A proposal for a special performance in aid of the management fund, to take place early in the New Year, was discussed, and received the unanimous approval of the members present. The necessary arrangements in regard to the benefit entertainment, which will probably be held on a Sunday evening, will be settled at a future meeting.

With regard to Mr. Oswald Stoll's proposal to erect another music hall in Euston-road, a deputation recently attended before a committee of the St. Pancras Borough Council and urged that, in the interests of morality, it is not desirable that another music hall shall be erected in this locality, since amusement is already provided by the Euston Theatre of Varieties, close by, and at other places within a short distance, and in the opinion of the deputation the erection of another music hall would tend to depreciate further all the property in the locality.

The committee has received another deputation from tradesmen in the locality, who said, on the contrary, that the suggested music hall would provide a higher type of entertainment than is at present obtainable in the district; that it would improve the business of the traders there, purchase from the council a large amount of electric current, and pay in rates a considerable sum per annum. The Borough Committee has recommended that the council take no action in the matter.

Devotees of the driver and the cleek will be interested to learn that definite arrangements have been made with the Honor Oak Club for the affiliation of the Vaudeville Golfing Association with their club. Mr. Gus Garrick asks all those who have promised to join, but have not sent up their subscriptions, kindly to do so at once, as after fifty members have been enrolled the subscription will be raised. Subscriptions should be forwarded to W. H. McCarthy, 98, Charing Cross-road, or to the Secretary, Vaudeville Golfing Society, at the same address. Those who don't golf should learn. The keen eager walk across the links, the varying fortunes of the "shots," the delight of surmounting a "stymie" on the green, all add a zest to the "constitutional," which is a fine preparation for the turn at night.

The first performance of the new nautical divertissement, entitled Ship Ahoy! by C. Wilhelm, will take place at the Empire Theatre on Tuesday next.

Every detail of the life on board a great mail steamer has been most carefully studied, and with such a popular theme as a nautical subject, and with such a superb cast, every element of success seems to be assured.

The following important letter is from Mr. John Lawson, who writes from the American Theatre, New York, under date Oct. 25:—

"English artists about to visit New York with acts they have created, and on which they are paying a royalty to the author, will do well to make sure that they have the American rights as well as the English rights secure.

"For five years I have held the vaudeville rights of The Monkey's Paw. On my second week at the American Theater litigation is commenced against me by an American manager, who claims the American rights of The Monkey's Paw. I am threatened with injunctions, High and Low Courts, bonds, and a thousand other troubles an ordinary man might fall under. Eventually I put up a bond of $250.00, and withdrew The Monkey's Paw from the Morris Circuit, pending affidavits and other matters which necessitate a trip to England.

"With a revolver held at my head I was asked to pay $100.00 per week for permission to play a sketch I have a perfect right to, according to my contract. I am now wondering if, when I return to New York next January, anyone will claim the American rights of Humanity.

"My advice to brother artists contemplating a trip to America (and it is a great country—the hospitality is overwhelming) is: Be sure your house is in order—otherwise expect trouble. I shall be very pleased to give any information upon my return in the middle of November."

It is proposed to book the Watford Palace—recently acquired by Mr. Joseph Davis—in conjunction with the Syndicate halls.

Millicent Freres, society gymnasts, are back in England, after a most successful tour, and have not yet settled for pantomime.

Miss Vera Saunders's new song, "Herman, you must speak to me in German," will be published by Francis, Day, and Hunter. Vera, who is still in her teens, will be seen at the London Pavilion on Dec. 5.

Miss Lily Langtry, at one time known as the Jersey Lily, and who is the owner of "Mr. Jersey's" racing stable, will, so we are informed, make her variety début at the Pavilion, Glasgow, early next year, to be followed by tours of the Barrasford and De Frece halls. It is to be hoped that her stage name will not clash with the other Lillie Langtry, the sprightly little comedienne, who has "made good" in three continents.

Miss Madge Temple, the charming musical comedy star, is making an absolute hit at the Pavilion, Glasgow, where she is making her first appearance. She immediately established herself a favourite with the audience, who joined heartily in her popular choruses, particularly "On the silvery sands," a number with a most infectious chorus. Her beautiful costumes, too, have been the admiration of the ladies.

Miss Gladys Maxwell has secured the rights of a new dramatic sketch, written by Edward Thane, entitled Molly Dureen. She will produce it at Canning Town on Monday next. The sketch is a blend of comedy, pathos, and sensation, which should appeal strongly to music hall audiences. It will be elaborately staged, with every attention to detail, and Miss Maxwell will be supported by a specially selected company.

The chief newcomer to the London Hippodrome next week is Mr. Fred Lindsay, who thus returns to the house at which he made his first appearance in one of the most original acts of modern times. Mr. Lindsay, who is without a rival in the manipulation of the stock whip, will appear on Monday in a new version of his amazing act. A beautiful set, illustrating the charms of backwood life in Australia, has been prepared.

Among the newcomers at the Coliseum next Monday are Miss Kate Cutler, who has played Nan in Good for Nothing in the halls, in a duologue, entitled An Episode, and Miss Maudie Thornton, who made her début on the variety stage from musical comedy.

Miss Thornton is a particular favourite in the provinces, in Australia, and South Africa. She has taken the leading parts in Mr. George Edwardes's touring companies, namely, Franzi in The Waltz Dream, Mitzi in The Girls of Gottenberg, Sonia in The Merry Widow, Sally in Miss Hook of Holland, the name-part in See See and The Girl Behind the Counter, &c., and has been principal boy in Cinderella, Aladdin, Sindbad, Dick Whittington, and Forty Thieves pantomimes.

Mr. Charlie Ferrier, who has been long associated with Harry Burns, the popular variety agent, in the management of the latter's provincial agency, has been appointed manager of Mr. Burns's new town offices, which are being opened at Walter House, opposite the Tivoli, in the Strand. On Saturday last, to mark their appreciation of Charlie's genial popularity, a number of professional and lay friends induced him to accept a slight memento in the form of a handsome travelling outfit. In a felicitous speech Mr. Maxted, of the Empress, Hartlepool, handed over the gift. Charlie feelingly responded, and the remainder of the evening was spent in harmony and conviviality.

Miss Alexandra Dagmar generously gave her services at a concert at the Balham Assembly Rooms on Wednesday in aid of the organ fund of the Church of St. Anselm, Tooting Bec. The popular comedienne received a warm welcome, and afforded the large audience much entertainment with her interlude of song and story, impersonating a café chantant artist singing a Swiss jodelling song, and recounting a number of racy anecdotes in her own diverting fashion. In response to an undeniable encore, Miss Dagmar gave a mock pathetic recitation, called "A Message from the Dead," which provoked much merriment. She was recalled to the platform to receive a bouquet and renewed expressions of goodwill.

In returning thanks to those who had contributed to the success of the evening, Father Donovan, the rector of the mission, singled out Miss Dagmar for special appreciation, emphasising the kindness of the artist, who had come a long distance to oblige, and had afterwards to journey to Poplar, which was the next scene of operations. A number of well-known entertainers also figured in the programme. Miss Rita Gallally displayed her elocutionary skill and versatility in recitations grave and gay; Mr. George O'Hagan's humorous songs proved irresistibly droll; an encore was gained by Miss Mary Jones for her singing of Tosti's "Good-bye"; and similar distinction was conferred upon Miss A. Henesy, a cultivated soprano, who sang "Rose in the bud" to her own accompaniment with considerable taste and expression. Mr. Aloys Hilf presided at the piano efficiently, and won loud applause for an able rendering of Brahms' Scherzo in E Flat Minor.

In its comments on the opposition to Mr. Oswald Stoll's new enterprises, the Performer remarks:—"Music hall artists generally will welcome any addition to the existing number of music halls, for the very obvious reason that it will give more chance of employment to a large body of unemployed. The amount of unemployment that exists in the music hall profession to-day—not amongst undesirables or unemployables, but amongst reliable performers—is much greater than is generally known to the outside public."

Mr. Harry Weldon ("Stiffy") duly made his appearance at the Coliseum on Monday afternoon in his droll business as "Turpin," and his humour caught on with the packed house. Unfortunately, he has been unable to work since, owing to a bad attack of bronchitis, but hopes to resume business on Monday at the Gaiety, Birmingham.

Walton and Lester conclude eighteen weeks' London season to-night, and leave town Monday for three weeks, commencing at Palace, Derby, after which they return to London and the Gibbons circuit, and will be seen in pantomime this year at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham Junction.

A particularly attractive item will be introduced to London at the Tivoli on Monday, when Mlle. Amélie de l'Enclos will make her first appearance in a little scena, entitled The Little Whistler and His Dog. This has been specially written for her by the celebrated composer, Mr. Oscar Straus, who is a great admirer of her talent. Mlle. de l'Enclos has a voice of exceptional range.

We referred in our columns last week to the Old Grange estate, Kilburn, which Mr. Stoll has acquired for frontage purposes for his proposed Coliseum, and the greater part of which he is prepared to re-sell to the public as an open space. A petition in favour of the proposed new Coliseum and recreation ground was being most extensively signed there on Saturday evening, and a house-to-house canvass during the week has brought many signatures to the petition from residents.

Staffo, the juggler, on his journey on Monday morning from his apartments to Liverpool-street Station, en route for Hippodrome, Colchester, had a narrow escape. Whilst crossing London Bridge his taxi-cab smashed into a heavy van and broke the wheel off, sending him and his luggage tumbling in the road. He received a severe shaking, and it was with difficulty that he arrived at his destination. Though feeling a little sore, he bucked up and did his performance.

Mr. Will Dalton (Dalton's Agency), of 62, Parsonage-road, Withington, Manchester, is at present lying very ill. He has had periodical attacks since an operation three years ago, and his health of late has been indifferent. This news will no doubt cause surprise to many among his legion of friends and clients, who know so well his hustling propensities and continual energy. He is always on the road, and seldom to be found at home in Manchester amongst his friends.

Miss Lola Lee, who gave in our last issue some interesting facts regarding English and foreign dancing, is this week appearing at the King's Theatre, Southsea, where her dancing is creating an unusual amount of interest. Judging by the enthusiastic applause which is bestowed upon her nightly by a crowded house, it is quite evident that the revival of this most graceful and delightful style of dancing is thoroughly appreciated by the patrons of Mr. Boughton's pretty house.

Orchidée, a dancer trained according to the precepts of Loie Fuller, has been seen at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, and is a performer possessing grace, beauty, and intellectuality. She is a born dancer, and her presentment of poetic and classical dancing at the Coliseum on Monday added immensely to the interest of a great programme. A delightful feature of the pretty Orchidée's show is the dancing and play of a troupe of children, numbering sixteen, who should be immediately secured for the new Palace of Happiness scene in The Blue Bird when that fantasy is reproduced at the Haymarket.

Benj. Woodger, secretary of the Music Hall Home, desires, on behalf of the committee, to acknowledge with thanks the following contributions:—W. H. Lennon (Empire, Swansea), £1 8s.; Miss Cissie Lawson (Empire, Camberwell), box collection, 7s. 10d.; W. T. Simmons (Palace, Reading), 4s. 6d.; the Borough Market and South London Fruiterers' Charity Sports (per H. Morris, treasurer), £5 5s.; and Harry Rawn, parcel of men's useful clothes. Also to thank Morris Abrahams (Queen's, Poplar) for taking two collecting-boxes for the Home. The next committee meeting will be held at the Three Stags, Kennington, on Thursday next at 12 noon.

The L.C.C. agenda paper for Tuesday's meeting included a report from the Theatres and Music Halls Committee. One of the paragraphs had reference to the Alhambra, the Committee reporting that they had considered drawings, submitted by Mr. W. Cave, showing alterations proposed to be made at the Alhambra Palace of Varieties, Charing Cross-road. The alterations include the abolition of the pit, the extension of the stalls, and the formation of a foyer at the rear of the stalls seating, the rearrangement of the saloon bar, and the abolition of two exits leading into Leicester-square. The Committee recommended the approval of the proposed alterations. This recommendation, however, was omitted when the Chairman of the Committee, Mr. Greenwood, moved the adoption of the report.

Mr. Joe Archer and Mr. Syd Crossley were initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Order upon Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Terrier Andie Caine, W.T., assisted by Terrier Fred A. Hooper, V.T. The organist was Terrier Arthur Were. Messrs. Harry Alvey (X Rays), Frank Forsyth, Phil Hayes (Barnes and Ascot), Jack Lane, Fred Leon (X Rays), Charles A. Rowcroft (Zettmah), Frank Sylvo, Harry Valdo, James Valdo, and Sam Vincent have successfully passed the ballot. Applications for membership have been received from Messrs. J. W. F. Grant, Dan Thomas, Harry Rogerson, Frank Sauteron, Reg Wentworth, and Len Teel.

The second ladies' concert of the season was held at the Three Stags Hotel, Kennington, on Sunday last. The chair was taken by Terrier Andie Caine, W.T., supported by the president, Terrier Griff, and Terrier Harry Barnard, who was in the vice-chair. Terrier Bert Marsden acted as musical-director, and Terrier J. Charles Moore was the accompanist. The following artists contributed to an enjoyable programme:—Miss Cooper, song, "Daddy"; the Adeles, thought-reading act; President Terrier Griff, imitations of a child crying during a pianoforte lesson and recital; Terrier Bert Marsden, song, "Oh, dear"; Terrier Tom Packer, song, "Value for money"; Terrier Ernest D'Alessino, song, "Your eyes have told me so"; Terrier Andie Caine, songs, "Dingle, dongle, dell" and "My novelette"; Terrier Harry Brown, song, "Summertime"; Terrier Joe Archer, stories and song "Troubles"; Terrier Walter Norman, song, "The Longshoreman"; Terrier Syd Crossley, song, "Pot-house Politicians"; Terrier George Cooper, song, "Occupations"; Mr. George W. Baker, entertainment at the piano; Mr. Eddie Comet, stories. There was a record attendance at the meeting prior to the concert. Terrier Bert Marsden was W.D. and Terrier Edward A. Rose the Y.B.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MR. HARRY RANDALL'S new humorous song "I'm using Sunday language all the week" is in very great request, the "smoker" world being on it to a man. It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day, and is by the author of many of Mr. Randall's most admired numbers, with music by Maurice Scott.

Two songs of Messrs. Francis and Day's that are advancing in public estimation by leaps and bounds are "Good-bye, everybody's girlie," and "You taught me how to love you, now teach me to forget." Miss Clara Beck sings the latter and Miss Crissie Cross the former, and each with taste and distinction.

HAPPY are the lots of the artists engaged in pantomime, and also of the managers and producers, who have been, and are still, wending their ways toward Messrs. Francis and Day's establishment these last few weeks. To one and all of such, including many who had journeyed up to London post haste and purposely, it has been a comfort and solace to know that everything they required from overture to finale was ready to their hand under the one roof, thus giving them time for themselves and saving fruitless, irritating and aimless wanderings in the byeways of the Metropolis. Others there are, likewise, who have not even taken the trouble to visit the headquarters of the world's best songs, but have selected all their requirements from the two pantomime books issued by the foremost publishers. Messrs. Francis and Day, and by the present look of things is not likely to be omitted from any Christmas annual.

BRISK inquiry for Messrs. Rich and Rich's "We don't want a girl" and that other humorous item, "And just then he fell out of bed" (Miss Ada Reeve's song) continues to be made at Messrs. Francis and Day's, and the appreciations for "Flanagan," "In cherry blossom time in Japan," "Come with me down Regent Street," and "There are nice girls everywhere," are showered into the firm's capacious letter-box by every post.

THE news of the thunderous encores demanded by imperious audiences from Miss Maie Ash when she has finished "Take your girlie where the band is playing" (the words and music of which are by Fred Day, and which has been dropped into the successful musical play, Captain Kidd), has been noised abroad, and has indubitably settled what is to be the pantomime march song for the season 1910-11. The song is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

THAT sterling and delightful artist, Miss Clarice Mayne, whose "Put on your tat-ta, little girlie," has been voted by principal girls one of the finest things in their way this year, will be shortly heard in a new song, entitled "All the little birds have gone to bye-bye," written by Joseph Tabrar and Worton David, and composed by the genial Tabrar. It has been secured by Messrs. Francis and Day for publication, along with the fair artist's other new numbers—"By the moon's pale light," written by Louis James and composed by J. W. Tate; "Will you walk into my parlour, Nellie Bly?" by George Arthurs and A. J. Lawrance; and "Nursie! Nursie!" by Worton David and Bert Lee.

MR. GEORGE H. ELLIOTT, the "chocolate coloured coon," must be satiated with ceaseless plaudits. During the week now drawing to a close he has been set down to appear at Croydon twice, at Brixton once, and at Balham twice, and on each occasion he has faced his audiences the applause has been deafening. His "Little Black Cupid in the Moon" and his "Mister Owl"—both published by Messrs. Francis and Day—are booked for pantomimes galore, and are certain at the theatres to obtain a great vogue.

AT the Holborn Empire, where money has had to be turned away during the week, Miss Ella Retford has been cheered to the echo for her vivacious rendering of "Hi! Hi! Mr. McKie." This is one of the pantomime songs of which much will be heard during the forthcoming season, it having been in great demand recently among producers. It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

A COMIC song, written and composed by Fred Hastings, is being published by Messrs. Francis and Day, with the title, "Oh! what a rude awakening!" It is being sung by the author-composer, and also by Mr. Fred Weldon.

AT the London Hippodrome during the forthcoming week the fine band of the establishment will play as selection Herbert E. Haines' "Three Woodland Dances," which Messrs. Francis and Day publish. The singing by Miss Elhaline Terriss of the late Walter Slaughter's "Only a penny," in the revised version of Bluebell at this house, has given the sale of this pretty and pathetic ballad a decided fillip. This also is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

ONE of the daintiest songs that has seen the light for a decade or more has just been published by Messrs. Francis and Day under the title of "Hush! little babe!" The words and music of the song are by Owen Thompson, M.A.

THAT swellest among swell comedians, Mr. Arthur Woodville, has acquired from C. W. Murphy and Harry Castling a fine new song entitled "I've been out with the Man in the Moon." Mr. David Day's firm has it in the press.

AMONG the new dance music that will shortly be published by Messrs. Francis and Day will be found "Nightingale" waltz and "Agrès Moi" galop, both by that past master of his art, Charles Coote. The distinguished composer has also written a taking march entitled "Pompadour," which will also be published by the same eminent house.

A ROLLICKING song that will be much in request at Christmas gatherings is "Everyone's key fits my street-door," which Miss Minna Green is singing. It will be published forthwith by Messrs. Francis and Day, and is by Percy Edgar, Huntley Trevor, and Henry E. Pether.

KARL F. HOOPER and J. Chas. Moore, of the National Music Publishing Co., 132, Charing Cross-road, hold the real goods in the ballad line. "Why do you wait for to-morrw?" is absolutely the greatest ballad ever written. It will be featured in almost every pantomime of note this year, and we strongly advise artists and managers who have not yet chosen their numbers to secure without delay this sensational ballad. Messrs. Carlisle and Wellmon (who have been featuring the song at London halls during the past few weeks) have been creating quite a furore with this number; in fact, at the Holborn Empire the programme was stopped owing to the enormous popularity of its ear-haunting melody.

THE National Music Publishing Company, 132, Charing Cross-road, are indeed an enterprising firm, besides possessing what looks like being one of the biggest ballad hits of the year. They are exploiting a number of songs which, in the opinion of recognised judges, are sure to "get there."

J. CHAS. MOORE and Fred E. D'Albert have been doing the hat trick again, their latest being a tuneful, catchy, go-ahead comedy chorus song entitled "Sammy in his Tam O'Shanter hat." Pantomime artists should make a point of hearing this number.

"WE ALL WANT TO CANOODLE WITH SOMEBODY" (a companion song to "We all want something to cuddle"), written by J. Chas. Moore and Fred E. Cliffe (the young song-writer who is rapidly coming to the front), is a Dame song with great possibilities. Mr. Geo. Robey has again secured this great number. Mr. Scott Barrie, at the Lyceum Theatre, London, will also make a big feature of "We all want to canoodle with somebody." Comedians playing dame this year should secure this great number at once.

RICHARD III. AT THE COLISEUM.

When an actor of parts demanding the lightest touch enters the realms of tragedy, the experiment may be one fraught with some danger to his reputation, but it has a special interest for the public, and, incidentally, the critic. When, therefore, Mr. Seymour Hicks announced some time since in newspaper gossip that he would essay the rôle of Richard the Third, the statement was regarded as a veritable staggerer. That he did so on Monday with a success as gratifying to himself as to his admirers, is due in the first place to his pluck, determination, and earnestness. (Oh, yes! our Seymour, the chartered gaggist of many a musical play, can be tremendously in earnest.) In the second place Mr. Oswald Stoll entered into the project of Shakespearean production at the Coliseum with an enthusiasm every whit as warm as that of Mr. Seymour Hicks. Then there was the artistic aid of Mr. Guy Laking, the King's armourer, to give us a coup d'œil of the flower of the haute noblesse of the Tudor period in all the pomp and circumstance of a chivalrous time, and lastly, there was the stage management of Frank Parker, a master of spectacle. There are many purists who urge objection to the serving up of excerpts from Shakespeare on the variety stage, but the Coliseum has such wonderful stage facilities that it was surely quite within the province of its director to present a most interesting historical spectacle and to make of it a brave show.

The text of the excerpt is taken from the fourth act, the action commencing in the second scene. The crooked-backed tyrant is crowned, but is uneasy while the young princes live. Their imprisonment and murder in the Tower are shown in a couple of tableaux accompanied by the fine incidental music of Edward German, who conducted on Monday. Richard has reached the stage when he is "in so far in blood that sin will pluck on sin," when "tear-falling pity dwells not in this eye." The craft and subtlety of the throne-seeker have given way to the despair and fatalism of the Monarch. Richard feels that the conscience of England is aroused. The "wretched usurping boar" can but buckle on his armour and rave defiance.

The cast of the play is as follows:—

"KING RICHARD III."

King Richard III. .....MR. SEYMOUR HICKS
Henry, Earl of Richmond ..MR. HUBERT CARTER
Duke of Buckingham ..MR. NORMAN WRIGHTON
Lord Stanley .....MR. CECIL MORTON YORKE
Sir William Catesby .....MR. J. C. BUCKSTONE
Sir James Tyrrel .....MR. J. J. HOOKER

Mr. Seymour Hicks on entering the throne-room, Westminster Palace, commenced somewhat nervously on Monday afternoon, but the deeply-interested house speedily inspired him with confidence, and his speeches to Stanley and Buckingham were full of stern import, in strong contrast to the more persuasive accents when addressing Tyrrel. It was in the tent scene, however, that the actor made the deepest impression. Richard would kneel before the crucifix, but the hypocrisy, so glib-tongued when dealing with men, is dumb before the emblem of Divine mercy. Unhouselled, the King hides his eyes, and comes forth in an attitude of humility. In the battle scenes, where the mere dissembler and wily politician becomes the warrior, Mr. Hicks made it quite evident that Richard was endowed with undaunted courage, and the final combat was a supreme exhibition of baffled hate and deep despair. Mr. Hubert Carter gave spirited expression to Richmond's address to his followers, and was in every way excellent in the part. Mr. J. C. Buckstone made an effective Sir William Catesby; Mr. Norman Wrighton gave due expression to the disappointment of Buckingham; Mr. Cecil Morton Yorke was the Stanley; and Mr. J. J. Hooker the Sir James Tyrrel. The battle of Bosworth Field commenced with a flight of arrows from the bowmen, and the stir and stress of conflict were finely suggested by the clash of pike and halberd. The crowd of armed men did their battling well under Mr. Frank Parker's directions, and the fight at Bosworth made a series of stirring pictures. The headquarters of Richmond's forces are in one of the prettiest of wheatfields, the bit of English pastoral scenery being very finely done by Mr. W. T. Hemsley. Mr. Willie Clarkson wigged not only the nobles of Richard's court and Richard himself, but the phalanxes of fighting men, and what Willie does is always done well.

At the conclusion of the play, in answer to many calls for a speech, Mr. Seymour Hicks acknowledged the kindness of his friends in front, to whom he was deeply grateful, and stated that he had tried to be earnest. Without Mr. Oswald Stoll he should not have had the opportunity of appearing in the character, and he thanked Mr. German for his kindness in lending him the music and for personally conducting it.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

At the college concert on Thursday evening, Nov. 3, the Quartet for Strings in F major (M. Ravel), was played by Miss Winifred Douglas, Mr. Eugene Goossens, Miss Janet Macfie, and Mr. Cedric Sharpe, who were most successful in the third movement, "Très lent." In Bach's unaccompanied violin solo "Chaconne" Mr. Antonia Piedra displayed a fine tone and marked technical ability, well deserving the storm of applause which greeted his very able performance; but better even than the applause and four recalls was the promising future before the talented young violinist. Mendelssohn's C minor Trio, for piano, violin, and violoncello, the last instrumental item in the programme, was ably executed by Miss Jennie Wilson, Miss Florence Hanson, and Mr. John Snowden. Miss Dorothy Broad sang a selection from Brahms with admirable purity of tone. An English translation of Brahms' song was given in the programme. Miss Gladys Hislop gave Schubert's "Wasserfluth," but was most successful in a pleasing song by C. A. Lidgey, "The Wind on the Wold." Miss Constance Stockbridge and Mr. William Murdoch were the accompanists.

THE National Music Publishing Company, 132, Charing Cross-road, W.C., have in the press a new song, entitled "I'm learning the lockstep," being sung with great success by George Formby. This number was written when The Man from Mexico was first produced, so the authors (J. Chas. Moore and Fred E. Cliffe) are quite justified in claiming it to be the original lockstep song.

M. PADEREWSKI celebrated his fiftieth birthday on Sunday. The famous pianist was born in Podolia, Russian Poland, on Nov. 6, 1860, and began to play the piano at the age of three.

The present has truly been a red-letter week with the house of Feldman, and "crowded out" is the term that most fittingly describes the condition of the professional department of that huge concern. Callers have been legion; producers and performers have been constantly arriving, eager to sample the luscious wares for Christmas consumption so temptingly spread before them by these astute caterers to the wants of the multitude. The tit-bit of all is, of course, that exquisite ballad "Beautiful Garden of Roses," which, having ravished ears American early in the year, now bids fair to eclipse its own record by becoming the bright particular "star" song of each and every pantomime in the land. From Old Drury downwards this is certain to be the specially "featured" number in Christmas "annuals" everywhere, and principal boys are fixing on it with an avidity that speaks volumes for the seductive charm of both words and music.

Miss Carlotta Levey will open at the Granville, Walham Green, on Monday next, with her latest great success, "Maggie Ryan from London Town," one of the big plums in the Feldman basket this year, and the week following will find her seeking the suffrages of West End audiences at the Oxford with the same racy number. There has been a record demand for "Maggie Ryan" for weeks past for pantomime, and this is already an assured favourite for both principal boys and girls.

Miss Florrie Forde has just scored hugely with a new comedy chorus song, entitled "There's something about a soldier," which gives every indication of being the hit of her répertoire everywhere, and the wide-awake firm of Feldman have acquired the number for publication forthwith. There is a dash and "vim" about both words and music that must irresistibly appeal to all principal boys this year, and this song may safely be predicted to prove a big eleventh-hour "winner" for all who apply for permission to sing it in pantomime.

Mr. Harry Marlow, a vocal comedian who is rapidly coming to the front, produced Feldman's strong comedy number, "We're miles away from home," at Manchester with very great success a week or two ago. He is now singing it on the Gibbons tour, and will specially feature it at Christmas, when he plays Dandini in Mr. Milton Bode's Cinderella at the Grand Theatre, Wolverhampton. This is a song that may be specially recommended for light comedians and others engaged in pantomime.

Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie this week has made a most pronounced success with her really beautiful song-scena, "Connemara," at the Hippodrome, Southend-on-Sea, this week, and many and long have been the plaudits that have been showered upon her for her refined and artistic rendering of this delightful Feldman song. Miss Ra-Leslie is specially "featuring" the great comedy chorus song "Oh, boys, I've seen you there" (also published by Feldman's), in pantomime at Belfast this year.

A telegram recently received at Feldman's runs thus:—"'Lead me towards the girls' great success last night.—Harry Simms." This is one of the most promising comedy chorus songs issued by the famous Arthur-street firm, and, although a trifle late for the present season's pantomimes, in which so many better-known songs of Feldman's will figure, it is certain to loom large in pierrot circles, and doubtless in pantomime also, at a later date.

Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. are issuing a fine instrumental number, "Danse du Paraguay," which is already the rage of Vienna, and should shortly prove the same in this country also. Several musical directors of pantomime have acclaimed this composition most highly, and it is already fixed to figure in a number of the earliest-produced pantomimes in this country. Ere Boxing Day arrives it may pretty safely be predicted that the "Danse du Paraguay" will be a prominent feature in all!

Not only have those delightful young artists the Romps been hugely successful in the West End with Feldman's great march-time chorus song "Oh, boys, I've seen you there," but Mr. Colin Carlisle and Miss May Lilian Levey have also been making phenomenal hits all round the provinces with the same favourite number. This stands out as one of the biggest songs of the season from the principal boy point of view, and daily applications in large numbers are being received at headquarters for permission to use it in pantomime.

That the sons and daughters of Erin can be equally as enthusiastic over the merits of a real good song, well sung, as Metropolitan audiences are has been evidenced at the Empire, Dublin, this week, where dainty Enis Josie Delaine has been duplicating the success she recently achieved at the Oxford and other London houses with that delightful Feldman number, "Little Miss Importance," which has been cheered to the echo in the Irish capital. This is "the" principal girl's song of the year of its class, and many will be its exponents this year when Christmas comes round. It will be specially "featured" in one of the first of the Glasgow pantomimes.

That statuesque and delightfully humorous artist Miss Alexandra Dagmar has just found two numbers after her own heart in "U-li-i-a-tee" and "Silver Bell," both published by Feldman's, and will produce them immediately, making them, in fact, the staple items (apart from her deliciously naïve stories) of a new entertainment. Both of these are being very extensively taken up for pantomime, "Silver Bell" in particular being almost certain to have a very big vogue indeed.

When Miss Gladys Mavius opens at the Holborn Empire on Monday next she purposes producing, for the first time, a new comedy chorus song, published by Feldman and Co., entitled "Do they all go to see the sea?" which good judges confidently predict will be one of the biggest "hits" yet exploited by this clever young singer of popular songs.

Daily on the increase is the demand for Miss Ada Reeve's two great songs, "Foolish questions" and "Nobody knows—nobody cares," for pantomime purposes, the last-named especially appealing to all artists playing Dick Whittington and other pantomime heroes with a vein of sentiment in their parts. On the other hand, "Foolish questions" is one of the biggest laugh-getters of the present season. Both are published by Feldman and Co.

A particularly fine comedy chorus song which most principal boys have already decided upon as an important adjunct to their respective parts is that great George Lashwoodian success, "Mister Pat O'Hare," with which this favourite comedian is simply "storming the castle" at the Palace, Leicester, this week, and no safer card could be played for pantomime than this assured and proven success. Ubiquitous Feldman is again in evidence here as the publisher.

A song of the "Wild and Woolly West" is always necessary in pantomime, and in "Santa Fè," the number with which Miss José Collins won golden opinions at the Tivoli and Oxford and other principal halls recently, Feldman and Co. are offering a gem of the first water for all artists affecting this type of business. Both words and music are far above the average.

Messrs. Feldman and Co. have an astonishing array of pantomime songs this year. Really, it will be difficult for artists to decide which are to be their numbers, so great is the variety and so many the plums. The song which promises to become prime favourite with light comedians is one by Glover Kind, entitled "Let's have a little bit of sunshine." Mr. Fred Barnes is the sole singer, and is making this number his big song for the theatre Royal, Portsmouth, pantomime.

Mr. Charles Sheard's firm are daily receiving enquiries from vocalists for Mr. H. W. Petrie's fine but charming soprano or tenor song, "The Roses tell me of you." Letters recently received by them state that Mr. Herbert Aldridge, Mr. F. Barrington Dalby, Mr. Geo. H. Fox, and many others are all delighted with the song, and that they intend singing it at all their engagements.

Kloop and Ramsey are this week repeating their wonted success with "Don't break your loving heart for me," Mr. Marcus Hope's enchanting sequel to this popular song, "I'm wearing my heart away for you." Vocalists on the look-out for a really successful and captivating ballad should at once communicate with Messrs. Sheard and Co.

Some people seek to escape trouble and some meet it half-way, but judging from the demand for copies and the ever-increasing success of Joe Archer's undeniable comedy hit, "T-r-o-u-b-l-e" (Those wedding bells are ringing), we are all in for a good dose this Christmas pantomime season. "Don't you hear dem bells" spelling out the refrain?

"T-r-o-u-b-l-e. Those welling bells are ringing,
You're all gay, they seem to say, but trouble they are bringing.
You take a wife, you take on strife that sticks to you like glue;
It's a lot of silly rot when you tie the wedding knot,
It's a knot that you can't undo."

Several of the pantomime producers have decided to stage this telling number with a chorus of seven, or more, girls, with headgear for the wedding bells effect.

Last Monday's Australian mail brought the glad tidings from Messrs. Sheard's local agents that, so far as the Antipodes are concerned, Messrs. Dempsey and Schmid's two latest songs, "If you must love someone won't you please love me" and "Moonlight in jungleland," are both downright genuine hits, more so in fact than the same composers' much-boomed "Beautiful garden of roses." Don't wait until you hear somebody else score hits with these melodious and dainty songs, but get right in at them yourself at once.

There is evidently a boom coming along in waltzes. The Evening News has recently devoted considerable space to the subject in their offer of £100 as a prize in a competition for British-born waltz-writers. Messrs. Sheard have during the past year foreseen the coming evolution in the tastes of patrons of the terpsichorean art, and have issued four new waltzes by Mr. Frederick Hopkins, viz.: "The scent of the jasmine," "Dreams of the past" (Reve d'Autrefois), "The shadow," and "Lilies and thee," Miss Constance White's "My dreamy waltz," Tito Natali's "L'Amour Passionné" (Love's passion), Constantine Baga's "Tristesse d'Amour" (Love's sorrow), and a new waltz entitled "The Empire," dedicated to Mr. Frank Allen, the director and general-manager of Moss' Empires, Ltd., by the genial and well-known variety agent, Fred Higham. Orchestral parts have been published for all these waltzes, and any musical directors who have not already got them are invited to apply for them to Messrs. Sheard.

Miss Iva Voyce, the phenomenal lady bass, tells Messrs. Sheard that having sung their famous song, "Asleep in the deep," 1,698 times, with Stanley Gordon's "When the ebb-tide flows" as a relief, during the past year or more, she is delighted with Mr. Stanley Gordon's unique triumph in the art of writing for bass voices, "Neptune" (Lord of the sea am I), and that she received hearty encouragement to adopt it as the only possible successor to Mr. H. W. Petrie's world-renowned song. Its favourable reception this week at the New Cross Empire she hopes to repeat next week at the Stratford Empire and at Shepherd's Bush the week following, and so on.

Messrs. Sheard have in the press one of the best pantomime dame songs written for years in "I call him my chocolate soldier because he works at Fry's." It is the work of those up-to-date writers, Percy Edgar and Huntley Trevor, and they have produced both as regards words and music one of the cutest skits imaginable.

Mr. Maurice Farkoa has placed his latest society success, "Never give the girls away," written by Mr. Frederick Weatherley, with music by Mr. Noel Johnson, with Mr. Charles Sheard's firm for publication. Mr. Farkoa reports this item as likely to prove one of the most precious gems in his répertoire.

Clifton Bingham and Edward St. Quentin, those well-tried collaborators, have added to their laurels with their new expressive number, "What would my life be without you?" with which Mr. Will Norrie is "hitting them" in South Africa all the time. It is graceful and melodious, so all vocalists looking for an appealing number should certainly call at Messrs. Sheard's and hear this one.

Messrs. Charles Sheard lost no time in securing Edward St. Quentin's tuneful number, with its haunting valse chorus, "Everywhere." Miss Edith Combes is singing it with great success at her engagements, and has chosen it for her star number at the Plymouth pantomime. Those who want a song that "goes with a swing" throughout, with a catchy chorus, will find this "the very thing."

At the Tivoli this week Ernest Shand has been making a tremendous success with his new song "We really had a most delightful evening" (Worton David and George Arthurs), published by the Von Tilzer Music Co. This firm of publishers are also responsible for the two huge successes Sam Mayo is featuring at all his engagements, viz., "Wallah-wallah-wallah-peroo" (Indian song) and "Oh, poor father and mother!"

Von Tilzers have been very busy with Fragson's songs lately. Among their latest issues we note "The old tom cat" (Wimperis and Bertrand David), "It's the English!" (Wimperis, Fragson, and Penso), "Father's safety razor," "On your honeymoon," "The other department, please" (Worton David and Bert Lee), "The old banjo" (Wimperis and Christine), and a charming little sentimental number, entitled "Baby's box of toys" (Worton David and R. Penso), which was a great hit with Hippodrome audiences a week or two ago. Harry Champion, Fred Earle, and Harry Ford also figure on Von Tilzer's new list in their songs "My natty little patch behind," "John! John! John!" (Time's going on), and "What is a——?" respectively.

Miss Vesta Tilley's new song "The girls I've left behind me" (Worton David and R. Penso) bids fair to rival in popularity even the biggest of her many successful songs. It has already proved an immense favourite in the provinces, and will be specially featured by Miss Tilley when she returns to the Palace at Christmas. Von Tilzers are the publishers.

As the time for pantomime rehearsals draws nearer the rush to secure the best songs for Christmas productions becomes more emphatic. Managers and artists who had tentatively decided on certain songs have in many cases changed their opinions, and where that has happened it has been greatly to the advantage of the Star Music Co., whose splendid batch of pantomime numbers excel the best even they have ever issued. As matters are now shaping, it would seem that scarcely a pantomime in the United Kingdom will be without their principal winners—"I wonder if you miss me sometimes?" and "Fall in and follow me"—whilst most productions will feature at least half a dozen of the firm's songs.

A. J. MILLS and Bennett Scott's beautiful chorus ballad, "I wonder if you miss me sometimes?" continues to recruit fresh admirers week by week, and wherever it is sung encores and numerous recalls are the result. In spite of the strenuous efforts being made with counter attractions in many directions, this gem of melody and sentiment continues to hold its pride of place as the most popular chorus ballad of the year. The Star Co. issue band parts in keys to suit all voices.

AMONGST other artists who have recorded splendid triumphs with "I wonder if you miss me sometimes?" during the past week, special mention must be made of the following, who have, to use an American phrase, "stopped the programme." Miss Ethel Ra Leslie at the Hippodrome, Southend, Miss Florrie Cooper at the Stratford Empire, Rose and Jeanette at the Palace, Southampton, Miss Marie Santoi at the Pavilion, Liverpool, Miss Maude Mortimer at the Palace, Aberdeen, Miss Marie Blythe at the Hippodrome, Hamilton, and Miss Lily Lonsdale at the Ipswich Hippodrome. Surely a marvellous record of simultaneous success.

PRINCIPAL boys who have already fixed A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's great winner, "Fall in and follow me," for pantomime have been wise in time. The point of this remark will be seen when it is revealed that in numerous cases three and four applications have been received from artists engaged for the same production, all seeking to secure this big hit with which Mr. Charles Whittle is making the success of his career. Whilst regretting the painful duty of disappointing applicants, the Star Music Co. naturally fall back on the old saying of "first come, first served." Therefore, to those who procrastinate one would say, "Hurry up, or you may be too late!"

In addition to the songs mentioned above the Star Music Co. have a big batch of tried and proved successes, so that no pantomime artist need be without a real hit for Christmas. Amongst other excellent songs the following are in great demand by those "in the know": "Cheer up, my Highland lassie," Dorothy Ward's fine march song; May Mars' quaint and pretty Irish ditty, "What d'ye say, Molly Molloy?" Edna Latonne's big success, "She was a girl in white"; George Lashwood's fine chorus number, "The moonlight promenade"; Whit Cunliffe's latest successes, "Up she goes" and "You can't do without each other"; Phil Parson's big American song hit, "My wife's gone to the country, hooray! hooray!"

HARRY SIMMS, who is just now on the Stoll circuit, reports the splendid success of George Arthurs' and Alf. Lawrence's brilliant comedy song, "It reminds me of home." Light comedians in pantomime would do well to secure a copy of this number from the Star Music Co.

MESSRS. REEDER AND WALSH, of 14, Castle-street, London, W., have just published a number of songs, justly entitled "Sixpenny Musical Marvels." A fine example is "Everybody owes a bit to everybody else," written and composed by Gilbert Wells and Will Terry, and introduced by Miss Flo Burnett. There is an admirable sentiment in the chorus, of which we give an extract:

"There are little deeds of kindness which no money can repay,
And helping hands we never should forget.
There's more in life than money that it's possible to owe,
So everybody's more or less in debt."

OF a somewhat similar character is a pretty song, "When somebody knocks at your door," written and composed by J. F. Lambe and Fred Godfrey, and sung by Miss Ray Raymond. The somebody in this chorus does not mean a handsome young man, but "someone who's shabby and poor." In these two songs excellent portraits of the singers are on the title-page, and one is glad to note they are printed in England, like the rest of the Sixpenny Marvels. In strong contrast to the above songs is Messrs. Reeder and Walsh's highly successful comic song "I didn't let it upset me," written, composed, and sung by Mr. Percy Agutter, which is just the thing for pantomime time.

NOTHING seems to disturb the hero of this ditty, even when his "Sunday" girl is pinched by a pal, or when he opens a tin of potted beef just to let it breathe "And it sang me Love's old song." "When the World has lost its glamour," written by Will A. Bevan and composed by Fred Hall, is a charming song with a graceful refrain in which words and music are admirably blended. Capitally printed, the song is wonderful value, and equal to many four times the price.

FROM the same publishers, Messrs. Reeder and Walsh, comes another song of sentiment, "By the light of your eyes," written and composed by Percy Edgar and John Neat, and sung by Mr. John Budd, whose portrait is on the title-page. The eyes of the lady mentioned in this song must have been bright indeed, as the lover says:

"The path may be long and weary,
Still, I can never stray;
For your eyes will be a beacon
To light me on my way."

IN "Two tiny hands" the subject is dainty and the words, by W. Terry, very appropriate, while the music is by that well-known composer, J. Airlie Dix. Ever since Arditi wrote "Il Bacio" waltz songs have always been popular, and "The Wooing Waltz Song" of H. Lane Wilson, to the words of Miss Hilda Hart, will no doubt be extremely welcome in the drawing-room. The song is in two keys, C and B flat.

"WHAT would be the use of them to me?" written, composed, and sung by Mark Merry, has a kind of moral against wishing for Windsor Castle, the Shah of Persia's diamonds, or a brewery. Sung by Mr. Sam Mayo with great effect is "Incidents and accidents," a lively work by Tom Mellor, J. F. Lambe, and Harry Gifford, one of the incidents being about Jones and his bride, who stay at an hotel where the husband was formerly well known. Jones orders honey for breakfast, and, as the chorus has it:

"Next morning they'd breakfast at eight,
The waiter seemed dreadfully slow.
Said Jones, 'Where's my honey?'
'Your honey,' said he, 'she left here a fortnight ago.'"

MR. LEN TEEL, the perturbed "dame," is scoring a real success at the Oxford and Canterbury in his new song, "I'm looking for a husband," by Will Hyde.

AMERICAN NOTES.

BY AN OBSERVER.

EVERY music hall here gives daily matinées, and as there are about twenty regular halls around it is remarkable where the people come from. Add to this the hundreds of ten-cent and five-cent picture shows, all doing well, and it proves there is plenty of money here in the pockets of entertainment seekers.

To a stranger, New York is a city of contrasts. It never sleeps, yet from the crowds of men standing in groups on Broadway one wonders how they live. The nearest approach to Broadway at home is the Strand, with the addition of Coventry-street to the London Pavilion corner, at the Charing Cross end. From the Knickerbocker Theatre (Wellington-street) to the Columbia Theatre Buildings (Shaftesbury-avenue) is the haunt of the performers and the offices of the managers and agents.

THE most important building (not structurally) is that commonly called the Long Acre Building, and may best be described as the Randvoll House of New York. Herein on the top floor are the offices of the United Booking Office, with waiting rooms for men and "rest" parlours for the ladies. Everybody here who sends his or her name in gets an answer—they are business people, and you know your fate, whether they have work for you or not. If they want to see you they tell you so; if not, they tell you so also.

ON the same floor are situated the Eastern Offices of the Orpheum Circuit. The interior reminds one more of Coutts' Bank than anything else. From the fifth floor downwards are situated all the principal agents—all representing some circuit or other, and all doing business with the folks on the sixth floor.

SOME people call this building the "Heart Breaker" Building, and the name is not inappropriate.

FROM a cursory view of some of the shows in vaudeville here, at the few houses visited, the audiences are good and well-intentioned. They do not get as enthusiastic over an act as do our English audiences, but, on the other hand, they seem far more orderly. The American Music Hall (Morris) is run on the English system, and smoking is allowed. Yesterday, at the opening show the three English acts, I am glad to say, scored the best hits. La Belle Nello, George Newburn (very well indeed), and then John Lawson with his new act The Open Door. This turned out to be a version of The Devil's Sunday, in which Miss Cissie Lawson made such a hit in England. I am of the opinion, and others share it with me, that if Miss Cissie Lawson had appeared in the act yesterday she would have electrified the town. "John" returns to England next week, and it is quite on the cards that he will return here shortly—that is, if pending negotiations are completed.

THE most curious thing here is the predominance of moving-picture houses and vaudeville shows combined. They start at 1 p.m. and continue till 11.30 p.m., and use about six music hall acts—one half-hour's pictures, and then a turn; more pictures, and then another turn; and so on; and the extraordinary thing is there is always a good audience. The prices range from 5d. to 1s.

NOT content with packing out twice daily, Hammerstein's have turned their roof garden into a continuous vaudeville and picture show. I should reckon this house occupies the place of our London Tivoli. A most objectionable feature, and one which would not be tolerated either by the public or the police in London, is the ticket speculator outside the doors of nearly every theatre and hall with the noticeable exception of the Morris houses. These people make your life a misery in trying to sell a minimum ticket of 25 cents for 50 cents, and even the ordinary non-pleasure-seeking pedestrian has to run the gauntlet of about 100 of these men in passing Hammerstein's alone.

IF the speculators can get a hundred per cent. profit, why doesn't the manager alter the price of his seats and take the extra profit?

THERE are a good many English acts over here, and a stroll down Broadway will often be reminiscent of a stroll down the Strand or round the Cranbourn Mahsions corner.

CHARLIE STEVENS and La Belle Nello are both well in health; the latter has made a big impression, being in her second week at Morris's American, and Charlie looking after the business management.

"SERPENTELLO" is in the real estate business, and looking younger than ever, with a beardless face à l'Americaine.

HYMACK is repeating his success on the Percy Williams time in company with Albert Whelan, who has been awarded the palm of merit by "Zit," a well-known local critic.

FRED GINNETT, as happy-go-lucky as ever, is looking forward to his return to England in April next year. "Fred's" répertoire of stories has been greatly increased by his American experiences.

HERBERT CLIFTON opens at Washington this week, and Mason and Bart are doing well on Morris time.

CLIFFE BERZAC was up yesterday, after spending some time on his farm. By the way, they are all buying land and farms here. I fancy there will be a variety kingdom over here soon.

LILY LENA was singing five and six songs last week at Hammerstein's, and adding to her reputation.

I REGRET to announce the death of Mrs. Charles Butler (Brown and Robinson). It was very unexpected.

THE weather here is beautiful, and is much cooler.

FOOD NOTE: When once you know the ropes, living and eating are better and cheaper here than in the dear Homeland.

THE best news heard during the week is that concerning the addition of forty Shubert houses to the Marcus Loew Circuit. These theatres have been playing legitimate fare, but have not received the support necessary to make them paying concerns. Mr. Loew, who has been supplying some of the Shubert houses in New York, the Majestic and Circle to wit, with a music hall and motion picture programme, has undertaken to do the same for about forty houses, which will doubtless be split weeks. The Loew Circuit is bound to rank as a big factor in the vaudeville industry in the near future. Their present houses are in excellent order, both back and front, and from the patronage bestowed on them, the New York public are well pleased with the programmes provided. This addition must of necessity be to the advantage of the performer, as counting each house a split-week house, it means the employment of an extra 120 acts.

THERE are a number of English sketch acts here. Of John Lawson you have already heard. Frank Elliston produced My Lady Betty at the Fifth Avenue Theatre last week, but from reports to hand, it appears that Mr. Elliston is about to offer one of his comedy sketches in its place. Without going into details, it were better that English acts intending coming over here should at once register and copyright their acts with the officials at Washington, D.C. It is common knowledge that acts have been brought in good faith by artists over here, from people who are not the beneficial owners, and when the original English act attempts to play his own property, he is immediately stopped by the owner of the American copyright, who has the power of the law on his side. My advice to all and sundry is "copyright" before it is too late.

MISS DIANA HOPE opens in New York on Sunday next with The Altar of Duty, which she had copyrighted in the U.S.A. simultaneously with her English copyright.

THE Sunday papers here are mainly devoted to theatrical and vaudeville matters, and the interest shown by the general public in the title table and scandal of "Grease Paint Avenue," to the exclusion of other news, is most marked.

IT is apparent that the Artists' Organisation over here may take a definite attitude with regard to their affiliation with the American Federation of Labour. It is quite on the cards that a sort of alliance will be formed with the Musician and Stage Employees' Unions, and perhaps with the Actors' Union. The three latter Unions are strongly organised, and are part and parcel of the Labour movement of America.

THE Fifth Avenue Theatre has a very good bill, the star act being Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth, whom I liken to our own Bella and Bijou. Their turn, although very acceptable, coming at the end of a long programme, was too long—about forty to forty-five minutes. Howard and North, a very effective double talking act, entitled "They were Happy Days," carrying their own cloth, were one of the hits of the bill.

R. G. KNOWLES is drawing big crowds in Brooklyn with his "travelogues." Jimmy Howard (of Howard and St. Clair) is slowly recovering his health, and is looking forward to the time when his doctors will allow him to get back to work.

JOHN LAWSON is taking a holiday, sight-seeing, previous to returning home. Tim McMahon (McMahon and Chapelle) will most likely be seen over in England before long. I met J. J. Morton at the Vaudeville Comedy Club, and he is still being worried by his agents about his return for England. This club, by the way, is very exclusive, and membership is the hall-mark of some repute. It is very handsomely appointed and most conveniently situated.

THE weather here is excellent, warm and bracing, only the steam-heated atmosphere is not congenial to English lungs, and to the newly-landed a good cold seems to be a sure companion. New York grows on one. It has many things better than London, but oh for a cup of "English" tea.

"A LOOSE END."

Melodramatic Farce, by Malcolm Watson, Produced at the Palace Theatre, on Monday, Nov. 7.

Capt. Harry Dallas, D.S.O.... MR. L. GROSSMITH
Jim Calhoun ..... MR. LESLIE CARTER
Mike ..... MR. PHILIP KAY
Baker ..... MR. ERIC WARD
Judy ..... MISS MAGGIE NEILL

An interesting melodramatic farce with many improbabilities, several thrills, and an ingenious finish, A Loose End, by Malcolm Watson, was favourably received at the Palace Theatre on Monday evening. To the house of Jim Calhoun, a professional and clever blackmailer, is brought Captain Harry Dallas, D.S.O., gagged and handcuffed, by a couple of ruffians—Mike and Baker. Once safely trapped, Calhoun soon explains why the Captain has been so unceremoniously and roughly handled. Dallas is to start for the West Coast of Africa on the morrow on an important expedition, and he has something like £3,000 in the bank. If he will sign a cheque for that amount to Calhoun, who apparently would find no difficulty in cashing it, he may go free; if he refuses he will be kept a prisoner. Quite alive to the seriousness of his position, Dallas will not sign the cheque, hoping to find some way out of his unpleasant dilemma, and Calhoun leaves him to reflect. They all stand out at first, he says, but soon succumb when they find escape impossible. Left alone, Dallas tries the door, but evidently receives a severe electric shock; when he endeavous to open the window, the effect is even more violent, and formidable bars immediately appear to completely block his escape, and the frame of the other window in this veritable "trick" chamber is covered with a blind, with "No Exit" plainly marked thereon. Baulked at every move, Dallas is beginning to despair, when a comely waiting maid brings him some refreshment, and, hinting that he will find her a better job, he gives her a five pound note, and a promise of further remuneration when he is a free man. When she has gone he has another idea. Seizing the poker he rings for Calhoun, meaning to hide behind the door and strike him down on his appearance. But the wily blackmailer is prepared for all eventualities, and thrusting his hand through a movable panel, stays the arm of Dallas. When Dallas would fell him to earth with a chair, Calhoun whips out a revolver, and the abducted one now thoroughly realises the hopelessness of his position. Calhoun also taunts his prisoner with playing it down low by attempting to bribe the maid, and explains that she is his wife. They are all a united family, Mike and Baker included, and he had better sign the cheque. It is his only chance. Eventually Dallas, when again alone, conceives the brilliant idea of hanging himself—or pretending to; it may be fatal, but he will risk it. Accordingly he divests himself of collar and tie, pulls down a convenient bell-rope from the wall, mounts a table, winds the rope round his neck, and hitching it to an electric light bracket, is soon dangling in the air—a gruesome spectacle in the dim green light. When the blackmailers return they are horrified, and speedily cutting the apparently lifeless body down, place it on a couch. Then all rush for brandy and medical assistance, and Dallas makes his escape by the open door in a brace of shakes!

Mr. Laurence Grossmith played the part of the abducted young officer, who is determined at all hazards not to submit to the demands of the blackmailer in a quietly effective and clever manner; Mr. Leslie Carter was a cool and determined Jim Calhoun; Miss Maggie Neill as Judy, Calhoun's wife, supplied an admirable little representation; and the two ruffians, Mike and Baker, were enacted in grimly humorous fashion by Mr. Philip Kay and Mr. Eric Ward.

Another novelty in the host of alluring items at the Palace was "The Balloon Mystery," presented by Mlle. Denarber. The attractive young Parisienne first engagingly sang a couple of French songs; and then, the house being plunged in total darkness, appeared seated in the basket of a small illuminated balloon—the Star—which floated over the stalls. Manœuvring about the auditorium she sang "Come and have a sail in my balloon," and made many amusing remarks in pretty broken English. The "mystery" is certainly a pretty one, and the charm and gaiety of Mlle. Denarber added greatly to its attractiveness. The Palace audience freely bestowed applause on the novelty.

"MY SAILOR BOY."

Playlet, Written by Fred S. Jennings and Produced by Mr. Wentworth Croke's Company at the Hammersmith Palace on Monday, Nov. 7.

William Belton ..... MR. W. H. ROTHERAM
Capt. Godfrey ..... MR. BERT MORLEY
Lieut. Leonard Belton, R.N. MR. BERTRAM BURLEIGH
Isadore Cohen ..... MR. R. OSWALD MARSHALL
Mrs. Belton ..... MRS. H. GASCOIGNE

It is rather a daring act to produce a serious sketch without any love interest therein, but Mr. Wentworth Croke's experiment received a hearty endorsement from a crowded house at the Hammersmith Palace on Monday night. The author is Mr. Fred S. Jennings, Mr. Croke's popular manager at the Lyric, Hammersmith, who is becoming quite renowned as a sketch writer by the successes he has attained with Vengeance, Varna's Revenge, The Power of Music (which Mr. Jan Rudenyi is touring), The Spirit of Music (presenting Carl Junor), and also the excellent music hall version of East Lynne, which Mr. Croke is touring.

The plot of this sketch makes a pretty little story. Old Wm. Belton has slaved and saved to get enough money to give his son a good chance, and just when the boy obtains his commission in the Navy all the happiness and pride of the parents are destroyed by Isadore Cohen's arrival, with a demand for £1,000, money lent to their son and spent on gaiety. To save his son from public disgrace, Belton decides to sell up everything and start working again in his old age. Capt. Godfrey, an old chum of Belton's, forcibly tells Cohen his opinion of his action, and, pointing to the model of the lifeboat which was presented to Belton when he retired from being Captain thereof, reads out the inscription on it, and amongst the principal wrecks mentioned is that of the s.s. Marmaduke. Cohen's child was rescued from this wreck, and he now finds that the man who rescued his daughter from the sea is the very man whose ruin he was about to cause. In memory of that past act of bravery in saving one so dear to him, Cohen destroys the bill, and so restores happiness to the family once again.

Mr. R. Oswald Marshall, though giving a thoughtful and earnest representation of the Jew moneylender, Cohen, did not completely grasp his opportunities. As the old fisherman, William Belton, Mr. W. H. Rotheram gave one of the best performances of an old salt that has been seen for many a day, and his make-up was excellent. Mr. Bert Morley was a forcible and cheery Capt. Godfrey; Mr. Bertram Burleigh did well in the somewhat priggish part of Lieut. Leonard Belton; Mrs. Belton was ably played by Mrs. H. Gascoigne; and a word of praise must be added for the scenery, which was a decidedly pretty and effective setting for the sketch. Mr. Croke should have no difficulty in securing a long tour for his latest enterprise.

IT is quite on the cards that the Worthing Operatic Society will not produce an opera next spring. The society is in low water financially, and this year a sum of sixty pounds was dropped as the result of the production of Olivette, which was not produced at the Theatre Royal.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

LONDON PAVILION.

Prominent in the current bill at the London Pavilion is placed the name of Zona Vevey, who sings simple ballads amid a scenic setting and with various embellishments. Thus, the refrain of the song "I do love my shepherd boy" is echoed by a piping from the hills and is followed by the appearance of the player clad in appropriate pastoral attire. Subsequently, the vocalist extols the virtues of "Mary," who was never "contrary," and duly there appears a lassie in Highland garb. Recognition should, however, be given of Miss Vevey's accompanist Max Erard, an accomplished pianist, who plays a march of his own composition, and has also invented the musical effects, the song in which chiming bells and church organ are combined with the orchestra being particularly harmonious. Music is also agreeably conspicuous in the entertainment presented by the Seven Bramusas, a company of juvenile instrumentalists, who introduce a brass band extravaganza entitled Music Afloat.

The farcical sketch Half a Dollar has served Messrs. Haines, Borthwick, and company extremely well, and the fun evolved from the situations in which a cabman gains an entry to a fancy-dress ball, and is there mistaken for a gentleman visitor who goes in the character of a "cabby," is again the cause of laughter frequent and prolonged. Hilarious results, too, come of the efforts of Foreman and Fannan, in their clever cross-talk and their song of "Well, well." The name of Mr. Whit Cunliffe appears in the bill, but on the evening of our visit the popular comedian was indisposed, and had as a deputy Miss Mabel Green, a prepossessing young lady, who sang "Life's a song" and "I wonder if it's true?" with an excellence of expression and cultivation of style that won admiration. Mr. Charles Norton proves himself a faithful mimic of leading comedians—from Joe Elvin to Chirgwin, Sam Mayo to Lauder, and his fidelity to the originals is recognised in repeated recalls.

A vaudeville variation is supplied by Mr. Philip Braham's March Hares, who combine in song and dance, the humour of Mr. Davy Burnaby being especially appreciated. His most amusing selection is "Archibald Vere de Vere," in which the dude is divertingly satirised, including, with the help of the little company, his doings at the stage door of the Gaiety. A pretty duet and dance is also furnished in "Fly away, little butterfly," in which one March Hare joins with a lady companion. A welcome contribution is that of Mr Percy Honri, who renders selections from grand opera on his concertina, which he manipulates as melodiously as ever. The Four Amaranths are a quartet of agile acrobatic dancers, who work with remarkable precision. Miss Emilie Hayes sings with tunefulness and taste; the Brothers Horn present their boxing sketch; and others in the varied programme are Miss Kitty Colyer, the talented and versatile comedienne; Miss Jessie Stuart, vocalist; Miss Gwen Lindon, comedienne; Mr. S. W. Wyndham, comedian; and Mr. Fred Pardoe, impressionist. The fine band at the Pavilion is led with his customary skill by Mr. A. Bond-Sayers, and Mr. Frank Glenister, the esteemed manager, has a thoroughly reliable assistant in Mr. William Cobbett.

COLLINS'S.

There is plenty of amusement of the lighter kind to be obtained here this week. Drama, however, is well represented by Leonard Mortimer and company, who present the detective sketch entitled The Raven's Toll. This sketch is a dramatised version of one of a series of stories by T. W. Hanshew concerning the adventures of Hamilton Cleek, a detective, who is also known by the name of the "Man of Forty Faces." Leonard Mortimer, who dramatised the story, takes the part of Hamilton Cleek. The piece is replete with dramatic situations, and holds the audience from start to finish.

Spry and Monti are always an entertaining turn, but some new gag-matter should be introduced. They are a very popular turn in North London, and their miscellaneous comedy, "The Erratic Song-writer," never fails to keep the audience well amused.

Martin Adeson and company present a farcical absurdity, entitled Dr. Maud's First Patient. This sketch, dealing as it does with the old theme of cross purposes, is humorous enough, and causes plenty of hilarious merriment. Dolly Harmer, character comedienne, is much appreciated in two songs, her "petticoat" song being especially popular. Courtney and Wilton are responsible for a humorous turn entitled A Marble Flirtation. Briefly, a lady's husband falls in love with a statue, and the wife impersonates the statue, and thus regains her husband's affections. Some topical gags and songs are introduced, and the trifle is well applauded. Wylie and Kitz, comedy duo, introduce some amusing patter and fooling into their turn, and May Fayre is heartily applauded for two well-sung songs, Chas. Ulrick, tranka wonder, exhibits some clever balancing with his feet. "Rosemary Dell," a musical scena, and Harry Martell are also billed, but were deputised for on the night of our visit. Manager A. L. Williams is having additional electric light installed, and things will be brightened up accordingly.

WOOLWICH HIPPODROME.

Despite counter attractions, huge audiences are enjoying the fare provided at this house over whose destinies Messrs. Laidman and Roberts preside. These popular managers must be congratulated on the strong array of talent which they have secured. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. A. Ross, is one of the best in South London, consisting, as it does, almost wholly of members of the Royal Artillery Band. Heading the bill is Countess De Russe, who is making her first appearance in England. In turn she is a poseuse, a classical dancer, a mystifier, and a protean actress, and practically presents a complete vaudeville programme. She is assisted by Carl Menitz, under whose direction the orchestra plays a unique travesty of overtures. Jenny Alexander, the juvenile comedienne, is a very clever child, and earns unstinted applause in her mimicry of such well-known artists as Gertie Gitana, Victoria Monks, and Harry Lauder. Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are too well-known to need description. The merry antics of one of the trio in hunting costume with immense spurs is very funny. Their turn ends with a football match on wheels.

The Glenroy Troupe are a capital quintet of dancers. Their international dances are executed skilfully and tastefully. The Venetians present a unique speciality embracing sculpture, singing, and painting. Many famous sculptures are shown, during which vocal items are rendered with panoramic views by models in a subdued light, "A Night in Venice" and "Ora Pro Nobis" being most prominent. Joe Archer, the cheerful, chatty chappie, in his latest trifles, "Oh, my friends," and "T-r-o-u-b-l-e," caused roars of laughter. His patter, too, is of the very best—crisp and clean, and no "chestnuts" or cribbed gags, and scores every time off his own bat.

Daisy Stratton is a chic comedienne and dancer, her song "Mary from Tipperary" and its accompanying dance being well received. The Bioscope is showing a new set of films; A Friend in Need, a sympathetic set, and The Wonderful Hat, a comic one, were perhaps the best. Arthur Watson and company, with The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, written by Flo Stanley and music by J. Shanahan, present a most acceptable absurdity. Arthur Watson as Joe Marlinspike, the sailor detective, is ludicrous in the extreme; Miss Flo Stanley is a winsome Polly; Miss B. Hayden as the hot-tempered Lady Teasum is well placed; Mr. Frank Leslie, a manly Admiral Teasum, sings very well; and Mr. H. Neilson is smart as the waiter, Trotter. The Vera Troupe perform some very clever dances, and Pat Rafferty is popular.

ILFORD HIPPODROME.

This popular outer metropolitan hall continues to make rapid strides, and its clientèle is not only drawn from all parts of East London, but from many remote corners of Essex. This week's entertainment is delightfully varied in every item. Vesta Victoria, the queen of domestic comedy, is paying a welcome return visit, and her reception is a very hearty one indeed. With her new songs "Uncle Bill" and "Leading the simple life" she literally "brings down the house," and an old favourite, "Skating," has its chorus loudly sung by the audience.

Mr. Herbert Darnley's company, which includes James Guidery in the now popular Spanish musical burlesque The Brigands of Tarragona, is really excellent. The piece has a beautiful setting. Rinaldo, the wandering violinist, comes in for a vociferous reception, both for his famous "Rinaldo Rag" and his rendition of the overture "Poet and Peasant." The famous Cragg Family, well to the fore as marvellous acrobats and fun-makers, present their acrobatic comedy sketch Billy, the New Steward, and roars of laughter mingled with amazement at the astounding feats are the outcome.

Mr. Henry J. Corner presents the Dandies in his latest musical burletta "Our Audiences," which are very entertaining interpretations, full of humour. Some delightful singing is also given, special mention being deserved by the beautiful duet "If I were King." The comedy skit A Yacht for Sale evokes loud roars of laughter, and most applause, his dancing being extremely finished and well-timed.

A laughable song, entitled "Yes, yes, oh! yes," is quaintly chanted by Harry Herbert, who is a capital grotesque comedian. Jack's Jacket is a smart comedy duologue, in which Nita Crystal and Geoffrey Saville shine conspicuously. The dialogue is crisp and piquant, and the piece is enacted in a bright and dashing manner. Alexandre and Hughes are exceptionally capable patterers, and, in addition, display no mean ability as musicians. The well-known tenor from Madrid, Luis Alvarez, sings with much power, his rendering of "Violets" being especially effective. Mons. and Mme. Alf. Agoust are a pair of Continental artists who exhibit tricky feats in juggling. Their performance concludes in a somewhat startling fashion, and is received with great enthusiasm. A cycling act above the average is submitted by the Westwoods, and a merry Foolshead film is shown upon the bioscope. Mr. Ernest Wighton and Mr. E. Smith respectively control the front of the house and the stage.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

A programme of infinite variety is that which Mr. Pierre Cohen offers to his patrons this week, and the said patrons are not slow to appreciate the good things set before them, both in the matter of well-filled houses and the heartiness of their applause, laughter, and interest. An invigorating send-off is supplied by the overture, "The Hare and the Tortoise," composed by Mr. Kennedy Russell and capitally played by the orchestra under the direction of the talented composer. Miss Edna Latonne, one of the best male impersonators now before the public, with her smart appearance, irreproachable costume, and few bars of one piece alternately, and singing, dancing, and "patter," the two are untiring in their efforts, and the audience seem reluctant to let them quit the stage. If America can send us many turns like the Two Bobs, pleasure-seekers in the Old Country can have little to complain of in this Yankee invasion. Strange to say, the States supplies us with the very next artist on the programme, in the quaint person of Sam Stern, who comes in for as big a reception as his preceding fellow-countrymen. There is a charm about the little comedian that at once makes him a favourite; Harry Nelson is a capital comedian, quite capable of holding his own as a laugh-raiser against all comers. The concluding item of this attractive programme is provided by Messrs. Joe Peterman and Geo. Ricketts' company in the well-known musical comedy, The Belle of the Orient.

WILLESDEN HIPPODROME.

A first-rate entertainment is provided at this fine hall this week, and Mr. Gibbons's enterprise is well rewarded with full houses. Mr. Harry Tate in his well-known piscatorial burlesque, Fishing, causes great hilarity. The sketch does not need detailing here; suffice it to say that it improves with age. A good dramatic episode is presented by Fred Maxwell and company, entitled The Heathen and the Christian. Mr. Lois Du Cane and Mr. Fred Maxwell play powerfully the chief parts.

Messrs. W. T. Ellwanger and company appear in an American absurdity, Who Did It? and the company fully deserve the excellent reception accorded them at the close. Special mention must be made of Messrs. Ellwanger and Arthur Gribben in their respective parts. Miss Ella Shields, the popular comedienne, is heard to great

MUSIC AND DANCING LICENCES.

The London County Council Theatres and Music Halls Committee sat at the Clerkenwell Sessions House yesterday (Friday) to hear applications for renewals, transfers, and the granting of new licences for music, music and dancing, and stage plays. There was a strong array of counsel, Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., Mr. George Elliott, K.C., Mr. Travers Humphreys, Mr. Hawker, Mr. Bodkin, and Mr. Symmons being present amongst others.

The applications numbered 468, and of these over ninety were objected to. Most of the objections were at the instance of Mr. C. Pinhorn, secretary of the London United Temperance Council, who asked the London County Council to put a stipulation into the licence refusing facilities for the sale or consumption of intoxicating drink.

The first opposition was made to the application for a music licence for St. James's Hall, Great Portland-street. Mr. Bodkin supported the renewal, which was opposed by Mr. Edward White, L.C.C., on the ground that there was due to the Marylebone Borough Council a sum of £480 in respect of rates. Mr. Bodkin explained that the premises were in the hands of mortgagees, who, not being in beneficial occupation, were exempt from rates. The committee decided to recommend the renewal of the licence.

THE LONDON COLISEUM.

Mr. Gill, K.C., made an application on behalf of Mr. Oswald Stoll for the removal of the restriction on the licence prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors at the Coliseum. He said the Coliseum was one of the finest theatres of variety in Europe, presenting an exceptional and unique entertainment, and he asked that it should be granted the same privileges as other important West End variety theatres, and that there should be no invidious distinction, Knowing as the committee well knew the concession would not be in any way abused. The only opposition came from Mr. Pinhorn. Mr. Pinhorn agreed that the Coliseum was a splendid building and gave a unique entertainment, but a drink licence was not necessary or desirable.

The Committee, after consulting in private, decided to recommend the licence conditionally that no intoxicants were sold or consumed on the premises.

THE LONDON HIPPODROME.

Mr. Gill, on behalf of Sir Edward Moss, also made an application for the renewal or modification of the restriction that no intoxicating drinks be sold on the premises. He said it was the one instance where an application had been treated with injustice, as they had been given a licence, and through no fault of theirs had it taken away. The licence was granted before a brick was laid. Mr. Gill also referred to the fact that over 5,000 visitors to the Hippodrome had, in a few months, signed a petition approving of the sale of intoxicating liquors—visitors from all parts of the world, including all classes of the community. Mr. T. Miller, in the absence of the Hippodrome manager, Mr. Trussell, supported Mr. Gill's statement with regard to the petition. Mr. Pinhorn again opposed.

The committee recommended that the licence be granted, subject to the condition that no intoxicating drink be served in the auditorium.

After the unopposed cases and transfers had been dealt with,

CINEMATOGRAPH THEATRES AND SKATING RINKS.

There were a large number of picture theatre and skating rink applications, mostly opposed by Mr. Pinhorn, who withdrew his opposition when it was stated there was no desire to sell intoxicating liquor on the premises. Subject to these conditions the committee recommended licences be granted the following, amongst others:—The Holland Park Rink (in this case permission to sell intoxicants in grill room, as last year); Terry's Theatre; Electric Palace, Clapham; Electric Pavilion, Clapham; Lavender Hill Picture Palace; Central Hall Picture Palace, Lee; Electric Pavilion, Coldharbour-lane; Central Picture Palace, Upper Tooting; Mitcham-lane Picture Palace; Streatham Empire Picture Palace; Premier Electric Theatre, Woolwich; the Sebright, Hackney-road; Old Ford Picture Palace; Clapton Cinematograph Theatre; Hackney Picture Palace; Electric Palace, Hammersmith; King's Hall, Uxbridge-road; Holborn Cinema; Premier Electric Theatre, Highbury-crescent; Electric Palace, Islington; Great Central Picture Palace, Gisson-grove; Electric Empire, Edgware-road; Electric Palace, Mile End-road; Bayswater Cinema Theatre; Electric Alhambra, St. Pancras; Gem Picture Palace, Kentish Town; Gaiety Picture Palace, Tottenham Court-road; National Theatre de Luxe, Tottenham Court-road; Palace Cinematograph Theatre, Mile End-road; Cinema de Paris, Westminster; Cinema House, Oxford-street; Theatre de Luxe, Strand; People's Arcade Skating Rink, Stepney; People's Arcade Cinematograph Theatre, Stepney.

Miss Hetty King, the "dandy" impersonator, is making a welcome return visit to the Empire, Cardiff, where she is adding further laurels to her already enviable reputation.

Miss Beatrice Bonnie and company are playing with enormous success at the Holborn Empire this week. Their dancing novelty "Stariophone" is the only act of the kind, and is patented.

Mr. Sydney Russell's troupes of lady dancers will be seen in pantomime this year at London, Manchester, Birmingham, Dublin, Liverpool, and Glasgow. Mr. Ernest Edelsten has arranged all the bookings.

Mr. Charles D. Hickman's knowledge of the variety stage and its requirements is extensive and peculiar, and therefore his ventriloquial dialogues have been written with an inner knowledge of things. The "dialogues" are published by Samuel French, Ltd., 26, Southampton-street, Strand, W.C., and the price is one shilling.

Mr. George H. Child will, on Monday next, at the Chelsea Palace, produce for Miss Hilda Jacobsen an entirely new dramatic episode, entitled The Cottage on the Moor. Mr. Child is able to do this by the kind courtesy of Mr. Van Biene, for whom he is also playing twice nightly at the Metropolitan in Karl's Luck.

At Bow-street on Monday afternoon Mr. Marsham was asked to license a little girl to appear on the stage at the Empire. Sub-Divisional Inspector Landow stated that the child had already been licensed to appear at Croydon twice nightly. The girl's father said that was perfectly true. After the first performance at Croydon, where she lived, she would be taken to the Empire in a motor. After the performance there she would be taken back to Croydon in the same way for the second house. During the whole of the three turns she would not be on the stage more than half an hour.

Mr. Marsham said that might be true, but he objected to young people being hurried about in this way. He felt sure it was not good for them, and he would grant a licence for the Empire if the girl's father would promise that she should not appear at Croydon on the same dates. The father said he could not do that, and the application in respect of the Empire was refused.

Mr. James Travis, the advertising manager of the Portsmouth Hippodrome, who is leaving to take up a similar appointment at the Hippodrome, Manchester, was recently honoured with a presentation.

Messrs. E. Danter, bioscope and variety exhibitors, open at Blaenagrw with an attractive lot of pictures and variety turns. Mr. Bendle is an able describer of the various films shown. Mr. S. White is stationed at Pembroke Dock with bioscope, tower, aerial flights, porkers, swings, &c., and reports good business. His magnificent new organ is also a great attraction. Mr. Wm. Haggar, sen., has secured a fine site at Mountain Ash for a new scena theatre; also at Bargoed, where the very best will be put on in pictures and varieties at popular prices.

"THE HORSE THIEF."

Sketch, by Harry M. Vernon, Produced at the Hackney Empire, on Monday, Nov. 7.

John Clare .....MR. WM. F. GRANT
Jim Ryan .....MR. JAMES CARROLL
Ironjacket .....MR. W. J. KENNEDY
Bob Taylor .....MR. FRANK MAYO
Bessie Clare .....MISS MARY ALLESTREE
Dick Hathaway .....MR. HERBERT SLEATH

Mr. Vernon, in the playlet, produced on Monday at this popular hall, has succeeded in producing precisely that kind of dramatic fare which appeals to the patrons of vaudeville. Within the limit of three scenes he presents a succession of incidents which could very easily be spun out to the dimensions of a four-act drama, and in consequence the interest of the audience is sustained at high pressure throughout.

Dick Hathaway, an Englishman, has been for nearly a year on John Clare's ranch at Canyon City, Montana, and has speedily established himself as the smartest cowboy in the district. Prior to his arrival another cowboy named Bob Taylor had been the leading hand on Clare's Ranch. He is discharged for dishonesty shortly after Hathaway's arrival, and the latter gets the position. In addition, Taylor has been in love with Clare's daughter Bessie, but finds that here too he is supplanted by the newcomer. For some time horses have been disappearing, and anger is being expressed on all sides. Taylor, with the assistance of a half-breed, determines, by forged documents, to so manipulate matters as to make it appear that Hathaway is the guilty person, well knowing what scant ceremony or justice a suspected man will secure in that semi-lawless part of America. On the rising of the curtain on the first scene, Taylor has arrived to put the plot into motion, and he works so well on the feelings of the mob, that on Hathaway's arrival he meets with a hostile reception. They decline to listen to him, and he is just on the point of being attacked, when Clare enters, and covering the crowd with his revolver, rescues his man from a dangerous situation. The action then passes to Waterfall Pass, Canyon Mountains, in Indian territory. Hathaway has previously struck gold prospecting, and Will Clare and his men are engaged in securing his claim. Clare has a conversation with Ironjacket, an Indian chief, who is friendly to Hathaway, and learns that Taylor himself is the actual instigator of the trade in stolen horses. Ironjacket further tells him that the half-breed has cruelly wronged his daughter, and for that offence he has sworn to kill him. Taylor and his men enter, and after a heated scene with Hathaway, the former attempts to kill his rival, and wounds another man, and this so incenses the crowd that Taylor is being tied up preparatory to being lynched, when Hathaway begs that he may have at least a semblance of a trial. The last scene is situated in John Clare's ranch, and here soon after the rise of the curtain the Sheriff arrives with Taylor and the other cowboys, and demands that Hathaway be handed over. Clare refuses, and as he and his men have the crowd covered, they have to go without him. Clare's daughter comes out of the house, and Taylor and his confederate attempt to abduct her, when Hathaway rushes out to the rescue, and the Indian Chief also appears and shoots the half-breed. The Sheriff re-enters with the intelligence that they have secured a man making a run with some stolen animals, and he has confessed that Taylor is the guilty ringleader, and the latter is promptly tied up and taken off.

It will be seen that there is no lack of incident in the little drama, and it has the great advantage of being admirably presented by the company. Mr. Herbert Sleath himself is a tower of strength, the part fitting him like the proverbial glove, and when either sustaining the love interest, or the more strenuous phases of the piece, he was alike admirable. The support accorded him is much above the average. Mr. William F. Grant, who plays Clare, gives a capital performance. He has some of the best lines in the playlet, and gets every ounce out of them. Another character study of great merit is that of Mr. Frank Mayo as Bob Taylor. From beginning to end the rôle is written in the most intense vein, but Mr. Mayo easily succeeded in making his impersonation a living embodiment of abandoned vindictiveness. Mr. W. J. Kennedy as Ironjacket, the Indian, was dignified in a small part, and Mr. James Carroll gave a neat study of the Sheriff. Miss Mary Allestree as Bessie Clare was effective in a part of few opportunities, and a large crowd of cowboys, &c., greatly aided the general stage picture. The production is most admirably mounted, the final scene being specially commendable. A crowded house gave the show the heartiest of welcomes, and it is beyond doubt destined to prove a very successful addition to Mr. Sleath's répertoire.

THAT well-known comedian Mr. Charles Lilburn is purporting a visit to the Antipodes, where, doubtless, his attainments as a comedian will stand him in good stead. He will take with him new songs by Fred Murray, Harry Castling, and other well-known writers.

MR. FRANK DANBY, who is now en route for Australia, will produce there a characteristic song from the pen of Huntley Trevor, entitled "Always be a pal to a pal." Both artist and lyricist are fortunate in having the song set to music by Henry E. Pether.

MR. FRED LINDSAY, the famous Australian bushman, reappearing at the London Hippodrome on Monday, is one of those romantic types we read of in Mayne Reid or Fenimore Cooper and very seldom see in real life. He is on the stage purely from a hobby, and, incidentally, is reaping a rich harvest, having just completed a tour of America at £200 weekly.

THERE has always been considerable mystery surrounding his identity, Lindsay being merely a nom de theatre. He is in private life well known in society, a member of several leading clubs, a director of a couple of large companies in the City, owner of a large ranch in the North-West of Canada, and extensive concessions in British East Africa. He has explored in several countries, fought in a couple of wars, and is a personal friend of ex-President Roosevelt.

"DAFFODIL TIME," words and music by Percy Edgar, published by Messrs. Reeder and Walsh, of 14, Castle-street, London, W., is a pleasing song in the key of G. A capital song with chorus for the use of our young folks at Christmas-time is "Good-night, Teddy Bear," by Percy Agutter, and a popular song that contains a fine moral is "Judge not," by Gilbert Wells and Will Terry. A spirited Irish song, "Won't you give me a sprig of shamrock?" by J. F. Lambe, and a very pretty vocal waltz, "Love's star," by H. Lane Wilson, to the words of G. Hubi Newcombe, can either be sung or used in the ballroom.

B. BURNETT AND CO., LTD., of 22, Garrick-street, W.C., the well-known house for stage fabrics, hosiery, shoes, &c., have recently placed on the market the "Audallyn" Elastic Belt (Regd.), as worn by the leading classical dancers, &c. The belt allows free movement of the body, reveals an elegant figure to perfection, and possesses other advantages over the ordinary corset. Many ladies prominent in the profession who have tried the "Audallyn" speak very highly in its favour, both for stage and private use. This old-established firm has long been recognised as one of the most reliable for tights, paddings, &c., and supply all the principal theatres, pantomime producers, and costumiers. Every article purchased at Burnett's is of the finest quality obtainable at the prices charged.

PANTOMIME SONGS.

THE STAR MUSIC CO.'S NUMBERS.

What may be called the undercurrent of pantomime is with us, and various managers, producers, musical directors, and—last but not least—artists are reflecting upon the possibilities of the tuneful song, the rousing chorus, and the sentimental lilt. All have their place in the Christmastide productions; all add variety to that hotch-potch of fun and frolic to which we give the name of pantomime. It is a sine qua non that the people's songs shall be sung with heart and voice, and the wise conductor of introductory music during the festive season is he who arranges the catchy refrains of the day with much elaboration of orchestration without detracting in any way from their simplicity. The labour of the pantomime producer is one he delights in, and he finds his most effective and practical aiders and abettors among the song publishers. He may be—and is—faced with real difficulties; but, with the aid of the song-writer and publisher, many of them vanish. He can with confidence go for special numbers to the Star Music Publishing Company, whose miraculous rise to popularity has been accomplished in record time. From them he can acquire numbers worthy of special featuring, and the romance and fun of their lyrics promise well for diversity of treatment.

The firm's recent move to magnificently-appointed premises at 51, High-street, New Oxford-street, created quite a stir in professional circles, and we hear rumours that still more surprising developments are being planned by Mr. Bennett Scott, the energetic managing-director. Just now the new offices present an extremely animated appearance. Well-known theatrical managers, musical directors, pantomime producers, and artists continually coming and going, and in every case well satisfied with the result of their interview.

We are taught there is a cause for every effect, and in this case the explanation is plain for all to see. From the inception of the firm to the present day the aim has been to publish only the best material, and having the enormous advantage of the exclusive services of A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott (probably the most consistently successful song-writers we have), the company have been able to live up to their ideals.

When our representative called on Mr. Bennett Scott, he discovered that busy gentleman busier than ever, trying to crowd three days' work into a third of that time. Mr. Scott has spent the past fifteen years in the land of songs, and what he does not know on the subject is hardly worth discussing. His views on all sorts of songs would make interesting reading. He believes not only in versatility, but verse-ability. But the business of the moment is pantomime numbers, and particularly those issued by the Star Music Co., Ltd. For the coming season Mr. Scott (in conjunction with his talented colleague, Mr. A. J. Mills) has prepared a number of songs suitable for all requirements, but particularly pins his faith to a trio of ditties which all who have heard them agree are likely to stand out as three of the greatest pantomime successes of 1910-11, and certainly three of the best songs ever written by these past-masters in the art of popular song-writing. First and foremost they have written a song sentiment, far above the average, the plaintive, haunting melody of which seems to echo through the brain and heart, long after the singer has vanished. This delightful number is entitled "I wonder if you miss me sometimes?" and is everything a popular ballad can be. Several artists of repute have tested the song in various parts of the country, and without a solitary exception all have "made good" with it. "I wonder if you miss me sometimes?" is the Star Company's pièce de résistance, the song they are prepared to stand or fall by.

Quite another type of song, though equally successful, is the same author's bright comedy chorus number, "Fall in and follow me," which has been sung for the past few months with phenomenal success by Charles Whittle. It has become quite the fashion of recent times, for principal boys and light comedians in pantomime to feature a Charles Whittle song, and in "Fall in and follow me" they have a ready-made hit. Already this number has been definitely settled with practically every principal boy, and one and all are convinced it is a worthy successor to the same author's great winner of last season, "Ship ahoy!"

Somewhat in the nature of an eleventh-hour success is G. H. Elliott's new song by the same versatile writers, "Here comes the chocolate Major." This is a brilliant march number, which proved an instantaneous hit, as sung by the chocolate-coloured coon, and managers with an eye to the possibilities of staging, have eagerly secured advance copies of the song. Mr. Elliott is also featuring with great success another Mills and Scott number, entitled, "Loo Sue Mary Dinah," which is also much in demand.

The abundance of good things the Star Company have to offer, includes the fine song, "Cheer up, my Highland Lassie," which Miss Dorothy Ward has featured with great success; "What d'ye say, Molly Molloy?" Miss May Mars' big hit; "The moonlight promenade," a song which Mr. George Lashwood has made popular wherever he has appeared; Whit Cunliffe's two successes, "Up she goes" and "You can't do without each other"; Phil Parsons' great American song hit, "My wife's gone to the country, hurray, hurray!" is also being handled by the Star Music Co., in conjunction with the Ted Snyder Co. Other pantomime winners are "She was a dollar princess," "Are you anybody's little girlie in particular?" "Love is like a balloon," "She was a girl in white," "I met Mary Ellen at the Isle of Man," "It's my night out to-night," "Oh, Miss Wilhelmina," &c., &c.

This comprises, without doubt, the best and most comprehensive batch of pantomime songs yet issued by this enterprising firm.

AN IDEAL PRINCIPAL BOY.

A CHAT WITH MISS DOROTHY WARD.

It was the lamented Lester Collingwood, always ready to help a beginner, who may be said to have given the accomplished musical comedy artist and pantomime principal boy, Miss Dorothy Ward, her first real chance in the profession. The persevering young lady, then only fifteen years of age, persuaded him to give her a part in the pantomime of Blue Beard, at the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, and the youthful artist quickly made a reputation for herself.

Soon after this engagement Miss Ward went into musical comedy with The Dairymaids, understudying Miss Carrie Moore (Peggy) in the principal London production, and then went again into pantomime, this time with Mr. Robert Courtneidge, playing second boy in Cinderella. At the opening of the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, she understudied Miss Violet Englefield as principal boy, a character she played with great success nearly the whole of the run. The next Christmas found her engaged for principal boy at Dublin and Belfast, and she was re-engaged by the same management for the following year at the same towns, an eloquent tribute to her popularity and success. On the occasion of her benefit at Dublin she had over fifty bouquets and baskets of flowers. Last year she undertook the principal boy's part at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, where her charming personality and fine voice won her hosts of admirers, the Press being unanimous in their praise of her fitness for the part. With the Birmingham public she was little less than an idol, and on the last night the many bouquets and floral offerings handed her across the footlights occupied half the stage. This year she goes to Newcastle, having been re-engaged by Messrs. Howard and Wyndham to play Jack Horner.

Such is Miss Dorothy Ward's splendid record in pantomime, and for one so young—she first played principal boy when only sixteen years of age—it is certainly one to be proud of. In one of her earliest annuals she won a deal of popularity with the well-known song, "How would you like to spoon with me?" and in this connection she recalls the many spoons given her—silver spoons, wooden spoons, spoons of all shapes and sizes, a curious and unique collection which she greatly prizes. And one might almost say that Miss Ward was one of those few lucky mortals really born with a silver spoon in their mouth, so rapid has been her progress up the ladder of fame.

Whilst singing this number the artist had a rather trying experience. It will be remembered that the singer always invited any venturesome male on to the stage to "spoon" with her. One evening a gentleman in the stalls took her at her word, and making his way on to the stage would not be denied. Discovering that his amorous intentions were of a serious nature, Miss Ward was placed in a bit of a dilemma, especially when she found he was mentally deranged. Eventually the lady managed to "cake walk" him off to the wings, and he was soon safe in the arms of the stage-manager, where doubtless his "spooning" inclinations quickly vanished.

"In the intervals between pantomime," says Miss Ward, "I played Miss Carrie Moore's part in The Dairymaids (South) principal company on tour; Miss Zena Dare's part (Victoria Siddons) in The Gay Gordons, with Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss; the Princess Helène in The Waltz Dream at the Hicks, now the Globe Theatre, and Consuela, Miss Evie Greene's part, in Havana for two tours with Mr. George Edwardes." Miss Ward has also acted in revues in Paris and Brussels, and for the last twelve months has been on the variety stage, with the Moss-Stoll, Gibbons, and other prominent managements. She was one of the principal attractions at the opening of the New Empire, Kingston-on-Thames, and was last week starring at the Empire, Belfast, where her great success in pantomime as principal boy ensured her a most enthusiastic welcome. A refined comedienne with a charming personality, excellent voice, and ear-haunting songs, Miss Ward has had no reason to regret forsaking musical comedy for vaudeville, where she speedily "made good."

It will thus be seen that Miss Ward has in her brief career done an immense amount of valuable work, and played parts which scarcely seem credible for one in her teens. But it must be remembered that when a girl the lady always looked older than her years. She recalls with amusement how on one occasion when a youngster of fourteen she entered for a swimming race, and won, the indignant mothers of the other children all came up in a body declaring she was much older than stated. Such a tall and splendidly developed girl must be over fourteen, they protested, and eventually the prize she had won was withheld till she had produced her birth certificate!

Passionately fond of the open-air, Miss Ward scarcely ever rides in a train. The fortunate possessor of a fine motor car, she is enabled to do all her journeys and tours when possible by road. Lavishly gifted by nature, and with youth and an evident enthusiasm for her work, Miss Ward would appear to have an enviable career before her. To be able to sign three-figure contracts when only twenty years of age speaks eloquently of the rapid progress she has made in the profession for which she is so splendidly equipped.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring-gardens, Mr. Whitaker Thompson (chairman) presiding.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were presented against the erection of another music hall in the Fulham district.

SKATING RINK AND ELECTRIC THEATRE.

The Council, on Feb. 15 last approved, subject to certain conditions, drawings of a skating rink which it was proposed to erect on the site of the People's Arcade, Back Church-lane, Whitechapel. Drawings have now been submitted, by Messrs. Smith and Churchward, showing an amended proposal, including the erection of a smaller rink and a cinematograph hall on the site. The skating rink will have accommodation for about 780 persons, and the cinematograph hall for 1,000. It is intended to apply for music and dancing licences for the skating rink and for the cinematograph hall, and, subject to certain conditions being complied with, the premises appeared to the Theatres Committee to be suitable for the purposes for which the licences are desired.

The Committee recommended the Council to grant certificates, provided that the usual conditions were complied with.

PROPOSED FULHAM EMPIRE.

The Theatres Committee reported that they had considered drawings, submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co., showing a music hall proposed to be erected on the site of Nos. 444 and 446, Fulham-road, and to be known as the Fulham Empire. The premises will have accommodation for about 2,700 persons, and, subject to certain conditions being observed, the arrangements shown on the drawings appear to be satisfactory.

The Committee recommended that a certificate be granted, provided the usual conditions be complied with.

PROPOSED NEW THEATRE.

The Theatres Committee reported that they had considered drawings, submitted by Messrs. G. Billings, Wright, and Co., showing a theatre proposed to be erected at 226, Commercial-road, and to be known as the Oriental Theatre. The premises will have accommodation for about 1,650 persons, and subject to certain conditions being observed, the arrangements shown on the drawings appear to be satisfactory.

The Committee recommended the Council to grant a certificate.

SURREY THEATRE.

The Theatres Committee reported that they had considered drawings, submitted by Messrs. Kirk and Kirk, showing extensive alterations proposed to be made at the Surrey Vaudeville Theatre, Blackfriars-road. The proposed alterations will constitute practically a reconstruction of the auditorium. The premises, as altered, will have accommodation for 1,970 persons. The arrangements shown on the drawings appear to be satisfactory, subject to certain conditions being complied with, and the Committee recommended the Council to grant a certificate.

All the above recommendations were agreed to.

THE LATE MR. WALTER CURTIS.

We regret to record the death of Mr. Walter Curtis, who passed away at his residence, 16, Lascelles-road, Roundhay-road, Leeds, in the early hours of Saturday last. Mr. Curtis as a well-known entertainer had gained a good reputation not only on the music-hall stage but also on the concert platform. He was engaged by Mr. Oswald Stoll to play a leading part in The Motor Chase, but owing to heart trouble, following a horse accident some years ago at Harrogate, he was taking a twelve months' rest under doctor's orders. Mr. Curtis was of a jovial temperament, and had gathered around him a host of friends in and out of the profession.

THE LATE MR. CURTIS.

There was a representative gathering of mourners at the funeral at Woodhouse Cemetery, Leeds, on Tuesday afternoon, many of the company having known the deceased since his school-days. The chief mourners were:—Mrs. Walter Curtis (widow), Mr. William Curtis (brother), Mrs. H. Hepworth (sister), Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Thwaites (daughter and son-in-law), Miss M. Spencer (sister-in-law), and the Misses P. and C. Dixon (cousins). The service was conducted by the Rev. J. Scruton, of Leeds.

Among those present at the graveside were:—Mr. J. C. Whiteman (general-manager, Varieties, Leeds), Mr. A. Galley, Mr. T. E. Fox, Mr. J. W. Nicholson, Mr. F. W. Wood, Mr. C. Bush, Mr. G. Almond, Mr. G. O. Cattle, Mr. Walter Cressey, Mr. J. Browning, Mr. A. Armstrong, Mr. J. A. Walker, Mr. G. Cropper, Mr. J. Pennington, Mr. E. T. S. Atkinson, Mr. W. Pickard, Mrs. K. Alnwick (for Mr. R. Alnwick), Mr. S. Walker Mr. A. Hill, Mr. L. Franks, Mr. A. Mahoney, Mr. A. Webster, Mr. Robert Beevers, Mr. S. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bottomley, Mr. J. W. Rowley, Mr. G. Walker, Mr. R. H. Lister, Mr. T. Sydney, Mr. J. H. Pickard, Mr. F. W. Charlesworth, Mr. T. Lucas, Mr W. Fletcher, and Mr. E. Rowley.

A large number of beautiful wreaths included those sent from the following:—Mrs. Walter Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Thwaites, Mr. Edward Curtis, Mrs. H. Hepworth, Mr. William Curtis, the Misses P. and C. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. J. Whiteman, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Child, Mrs. Thwaites, Mr. and Mrs. G. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hill, Dr. Friend, Mr. G. O. Cattle, Mr. and Mrs. Pickard (Garforth), Mr. and Master Charles Bush, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Mugliston, and "the Pack Horse Boys."

Mr. Edward Curtis, the father of Mr. Walter Curtis, is at present in Egypt.

"WHAT'S the matter with father?" is Mr. Fred Barnes's great song success. It is fast becoming the password of every town he visits, and is, we should imagine, a great song for pantomime comedians. Mr. Bert Feldman is the publisher.

"DON'T be an M.U.G." is the title of Mr. Fred Barnes's great new song. It is, we hear, to be published in the popular sixpenny form. This song is the sole property of Mr. Barnes, written and composed by himself, registered and fully protected.

"PARSON GRAY, V.C.," AT THE METROPOLITAN.

Metropolitan audiences this week are giving an enthusiastic welcome to Mr. George Gray and his company in the elaborately staged dramatic sketch Parson Gray, V.C.—a miniature drama packed with thrilling incidents and telling lines that never appeal in vain, the playlet being exactly the thing for a popular audience. This stirring tale of love and bravery, peace and war, is cleverly compressed by Mr. Gray into the limits of a music-hall sketch, and events necessarily move very rapidly. In the opening scene, the Deanery of Porchester—Christmas Eve—Colonel Duncan Gray is welcomed home by his family and friends, the only absentee apparently being the Rev. Thomas Gray, who believes the Colonel to be his father, but who, it is explained, is the natural son of the Rev. James Madden, the Dean of Porchester, the Colonel and the Dean being the only two who know the truth of the matter. One of the many good works of the enthusiastic young cleric is looking after the welfare of homeless and fatherless kiddies in the neighbourhood, and a party of joyous youngsters are seen just previous to their departure for one of the Colonies. Soon after, he questions Madge Gray, whom he believes to be his sister, as to the cause of her depression and seeming indisposition, telling her that she should not mind revealing any trouble she may have to her brother. He asks her if she has had a lovers' tiff with Geoffrey Madden, her fiancé, a question that evidently gives the girl much pain. Eventually we learn that Madden had some time previously seduced Madge under promise of marriage, and sent their little child to South Africa, and the distraught girl admits that she now loathes him. Madden's villainy has not stopped there, for he has stolen some money and letters, the latter revealing the fact that young Gray is not the son of the Colonel. The Colonel is obliged to confess, on being questioned by Gray, that the latter is only his adopted son, and the curtain falls on Gray proclaiming his intention of going out into the world to seek his father.

In the next scene we are shown a chapel in a besieged city in South Africa during the war. Young Gray has joined the army, and has distinguished himself by many deeds of valour; indeed, he is known as the man without fear, and appears to court death. Among the wounded is a little boy whom the Colonel is surprised to hear from Gray is his nameless grandchild, the offspring of Madge and Madden, the latter of whom is likewise on the spot, having been taken prisoner as a spy. In the chapel to which he is captive Madge also comes, and Gray suggests that he shall make her his wife then and there. Although Madge is not at all anxious to wed Madden, for the sake of the child she consents. Madden, however, sneers at the idea; indeed, he absolutely refuses, and says it is impossible. But he forgets that young Gray is a parson—and a fighting one—and when the latter tries the persuasive power of a revolver he reluctantly agrees, and the pair are united. Gray, who has previously befriended the unworthy Madden, risks his life by giving up his horse on which the latter may escape. There is a very exciting scene, where the parson is cruelly illtreated by the Boers, and the subsequent fight with the "raw 'uns," in which he repeatedly downs half a dozen or so of these brutal-looking ruffians, created immense enthusiasm. Then there are many stirring and realistic war scenes, until we reach the concluding picture where the victorious troops return; Gray learns from his own father's mouth the truth as to his parentage, and forgives him the great wrong he has done him; and the curtain finally falls on the prospect of Gray and Madge being wedded, the unspeakable Madden having apparently been killed in the war.

The part of the brave and chivalrous cleric Thomas Gray is undertaken by Mr. George Gray in his usual sincere, vigorous, and convincing fashion, the actor being alike admirable in the quieter episodes of the play—as, for instance, in the first scene, where he learns that the Colonel is not his father, and in the last scene—and also when the fighting parson is called upon to defend himself against the cowardly assault of his enemies. The scene with little Geoffrey is also admirably handled, and the impersonation throughout of an arduous rôle is a virile and effective one. The names of the other players are not given on the programme, but all contribute valuably to the success of the production, which is mounted and dressed in first-class style.

"THE HUMAN TRIANGLE."

A Dramatic Episode, by Jose G. Levy, Produced at the Camberwell Empire on Monday, Nov. 7.

Lydia Moncrieff .....MISS MARIE PERA
Lily Appleton .....MISS CRIGHTON
Victor Carstairs .....MR. GEORGE INGLETON
Marie .....MISS ROSE MARTIN

The Human Triangle has a story at once true and simple, and without artificial colouring, and should have a long and successful run. The story is laid in the flat of Lydia Moncrieff, a prominent and much-admired actress. Lily Appleton, a charming and innocent maid, calls upon Lydia for the purpose of obtaining her autograph and at the same time securing her services for a charity concert. Upon her arrival at the flat Lily finds herself alone for a few moments, and noticing a bouquet of flowers on the table she picks it up, and, to her horror, discovers that it has been sent by Victor Carstairs, her future husband.

Astounded at the apparent perfidy of the man she loves, Lily questions Miss Moncrieff, and the actress, feeling a certain amount of compassion for the young and innocent girl, tells her that there is nothing between them; in fact, the sending of the flowers was but the result of a bet, and is, moreover, an insult. Lily Appleton is at last satisfied that her suspicions have been unfounded, and leaves the house in a contented frame of mind. No sooner has she gone, however, than her lover enters. The actress loves Victor Carstairs with all her heart, but renounces her claim in favour of her younger and more innocent rival.

Miss Marie Pera acts with considerable warmth as Lydia Moncrieff, and plays throughout with much power and skill; Miss Crighton supplies a charming portrayal of Lily Appleton; and Miss Rose Martin is all that can be desired as Marie, the servant. Great praise is due to Mr. George Ingleton for his powerful delineation of Victor Carstairs. The special scenery for the piece has been painted by Messrs. J. and T. Bull; the furniture has been supplied by Mr. J. Lyon; and the effective incidental music written by Mr. Julian Frank.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

On Saturday last a capital audience assembled in the great central hall at the Alexandra Palace for the performance of Sir Alexander Mackenzie's Rose of Sharon, under the enthusiastic conductorship of Mr. Allen Till. The Alexandra Palace choir has made rapid and pronounced success under his careful directorship, and came through with flying colours. As the Sulamite Miss Esta D'Argo displayed her melodious voice and her artistic method of singing to great advantage; Miss Gwladys Roberts deserves praise for the contralto numbers, all rendered with exquisite purity of tone and creating a very favourable impression. Mr. Farrington used his excellent voice very well in the exacting music for Solomon; and Mr. R. Goond capably rendered his numbers, his fine bass voice, coupled with his easy and clear manner of delivery, being greatly appreciated. Mr. Webster Millar, tenor, was loudly applauded for artistic singing.

Rotherham Statutes Fair.

THIS famous fair was held under adverse weather conditions this last week. The principal shows were the cinematograph theatres of Messrs. Farrar and Son, T. Payne, and E. Farrar, Chipperfield's Franco-British Menagerie, Lewis's American serpent jungle, J. Collins's Haunted Castle, Harry Hughes's school of boxers, White's model of a coal mine, and Mr. Hughes' fine art gallery were on the show list. The machine list included John Collins's five sets, the Joy Wheel, the steam yachts, the razzle-dazzle, the cake-walk, and the ever-popular four-abreast galloping horses, P. Collins's two sets (the Teddy bears and the Brooklands motor track—a superb motor machine), Waller Shaw's steam swings, and Gem motor and pony sets by S. Mercer and Mrs. Middlebrook completed a fine aggregation of mechanical novelties.

THERE were toy and fairings bazaars by Messrs. Parkinson, Pullen, and Seeds; pannum stalls by Messrs. G. Wright, J. Wright and Co., Peatman, Pullen, and Mrs. Mulhearne; photo booth by Mr. Gunthorpe; shooting ranges, galleries, and batteries by Messrs. Fossett, Cornwell, Radcliffe, Marsden, Lever, Pullen, Middlebrook, and Hughes and Martin; houp-la circles by Messrs. Ashcroft and Shaw, throwing games, ring and dart boards, bagatelle boards, coker sheets, dolly frames, and varieties by Messrs. Steward, S. Mercer, Turner, T. Burgin, Johnson, Middlebrook, Cornwell, jun., Gandy, Whatmore, Illingworth, Mitchell, Calver, Ling, Fawcett, and Barker.

Guild Benefit at Rotherham.

ALTHOUGH the bad weather meant poor business for the entertainers at Rotherham Statutes, the response to the Guild's request for a benefit met with a hearty and generous response. All the machines and shows took part in the effort, and the other amusements and stalls joined in a subscription list. We give the details of the subscribers to the fund: John Collins's concerns, £7 12s. 8½d.; Patrick Collins's concerns, £4 15s. 6d.; Farrars and Son, 15s. 10d.; Chipperfield's, 16s. 5d.; E. Farrar (No. 2), 14s. 8d.; T. Payne, 10s.; W. Shaw, 5s.; S. Mercer, 5s.; F. Wright and Co., 5s.; H. Gunthorpe, 5s.; Mrs. Mitchell, 2s. 6d.; Mrs. Parkinson, 2s. 6d.; Mrs. Geo. Wright, 2s. 6d.; Lewis, 2s. 6d.; Parkinson, 2s. 6d.; J. Marsden, 2s.; W. Steward, 2s.; G. Cornwell, 2s.; Pullen, 2s.; T. White, 2s.; Hughes and Martin, 2s.; A. Barker, 1s.; Mrs. Lever, 1s.; Mr. Gandy, 1s.; total, £17 13s. 0½d.

Guild Subscriptions, 1910.

Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union.

AT the Rotherham meeting of the executive of this union a complaint was laid against the Corporation of Hull for having altered the position of the machine of a member of the Union, the material point of the complaint being that the roundabout in question was placed out of the line of the machines, and in such a position that the money loss exceeded £100.

IT will be remembered by our readers that a conference between the Corporation and the showmen was held after Hull Fair, 1909, and a plan was drawn up that gave everyone a fair chance. A copy of the plan was in the possession of both parties. The plan was not adhered to, and the result is seen in the serious loss sustained by a member of the Union. The secretary (Mr. T. Hurst) was instructed to put the matter of the complaint before the Markets and Fairs Committee of the Hull Corporation, and to seek redress for the loss sustained.

Showman's Letter-box.

LETTERS await the following at The Era office: Messrs. W. Purchase, J. W. Chipperfield, James Henry Chipperfield, and Mrs. C. Birch.

A Most Urgent Case of Need.

WE understand from Mr. Irvin (who is interesting himself as a friend in the matter) that Mr. and Mrs. Chittock are in necessitous circumstances. We have known for some time past that dear old Chittock, as we love to call him, has been in failing health. Mrs. Chittock, with the bravery and perseverance that mark showwomen, has done her best to keep the show going and to maintain the family. The task has been manifestly too much for her. An attempt was made in the summer to sell the show, Mr. Tom Norman, out of sheer kindness, doing his best to dispose of it as a going concern. This well-meant effort failed. Since then the family has made a precarious living on various private pitches in the suburbs of London. In these days of keen competition from permanent picture palaces at every street corner, picture shows on vacant land in back streets make little money. Anyhow, the Chittocks are, through ill-health and continued misfortune, in real distress. Mr. Irvin kindly lent them his traction engine, and gave his personal help to move the show to a new pitch last week, and he informs us that it is a case needing immediate help. We shall be glad to receive subscriptions, however small, and will acknowledge them week by week in The Era. Mr. Pedgrift will act as treasurer to the fund, and the Rev. T. Horne will see that the money goes to Mrs. Chittock for their pressing wants.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD OF GREAT BRITAIN.

GUILD CHAPLAIN'S REPORT, 1910.

FIFTH ARTICLE.

The Showmen's Guild and Abingdon.

IN compliance with the kind invitation of the Vicar of Abingdon (the Rev. H. T. Maitland) the Guild Chaplain visited the town from Oct. 8 to 10, in order to open out, if possible, Guild work. Under ordinary conditions, where the shows are compelled to arrive and build up on the Sunday, Guild meetings are impossible. There are two hopeful elements at Abingdon; the first is that St. Nicholas, one of its ancient churches, is actually on the Market-square. It is therefore quite practical and possible to have a service at 7.30 for showpeople. The other hopeful circumstance is that a meeting (with a tea) has been given for many years past by the united Nonconformist bodies of the town. This tea and meeting appeals to some of the showpeople, and they attend it. The vicar arranged for a service at 7.30 in St. Nicholas's, and the Guild Chaplain was the preacher. Prior to this service the Chaplain gave an address to the young people of the parish at St. Helen's Church, his subject being "Shows and Show Life." After the Guild service in St. Nicholas's Church, Mr. Horne was the principal speaker at the meeting in the Corn Exchange. It is these opportunities of the Chaplain speaking to his own people and also to others on their behalf that makes the Guild so powerful a factor in forming an enlightened and more tolerant public opinion of show life. The Vicar of Abingdon has accepted the office of hon. local chaplain of the Guild.

The Showmen's Guild at Hull Fair.

THE following Press opinions of the value of the Guild work will be of interest to our readers. The Hull Daily Mail of Monday, Oct. 17, said:—

"THE SHOWMEN'S CHAPLAIN.

"SERMONS IN HULL CHURCHES.

"Although there was not the usual showmen's service on the Fair ground on Sunday, the Hon. Chaplain of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain had a busy time. He preached twice that day—in the morning at All Saints' Church, Margaret-street, and in the evening at St. Mary's Church, Dairycoates. It is a coincidence that the Rev. H. C. Horne, the curate at the former church, is a son of the showmen's Chaplain, whilst the Rev. W. H. Butler, of Hull, is another honorary local Chaplain of the Guild. It was, of course, a disappointment to many of the public that there was no service on the Fair ground, owing to the fact that the Fair came to an end on Saturday night, and the show people were busy soon after dismantling their shows, and on Sunday morning many of the vans were removed by the traction engines.

"AN INTERESTING CHAT.

"After Communion Service at All Saints' Church, the showmen's chaplain had an interesting little chat with our representative, which showed that the showmen have won their right to citizenship. 'They have proved that class legislation is not necessary for them, and that the ordinary law of the land governing morals and conduct are quite sufficient for the men and women of the fair-ground. It is the showmen's function in the State to minister the medicine of laughter and the joy of life to the worn and weary toilers, whose industry supplies the great trade and commerce upon which the prosperity of the Empire is built.' In a few words, the showman is a craftsman amongst other craftsmen, taking his part, and doing his share to brighten and to uplift humanity.

"TWENTY-ONE YEARS' SERVICE.

"For twenty-one years Mr. Horne has acted as chaplain, our representative gathered from the veteran clergyman, and during the past four years he had devoted his whole energies to the work. 'The work grows to such an extent,' he said, 'that I feel I must give the rest of my life to it.' Like an ordinary parish priest, the chaplain realises that he must work amongst his people, and to do this he travels some thousands of miles a year. His energy is remarkable for one of his years, and to quote an interesting paragraph from the last annual report, 'The chaplain's people have offered again and again to find him a salary, but as he is able to earn his daily bread without a salary from them, he is proud enough to do it.' From the Epistle of the day, the Rev. T. Horne selected the words 'Put on the whole armour of God,' and he preached a helpful sermon to a large congregation at All Saints' Church."

The Church of St. Peter and St. Mary Dairycoates, Hull, was crowded to its utmost capacity at Evensong, the Guild chaplain preaching a harvest festival sermon, taking for his text the words: "The harvest is the end of the world." After dealing with his subject in its wider aspects, he referred to his own work in the Church of God as ministering the Bread of Life to the showpeople on the fairgrounds of the empire.

The crowded congregation were deeply moved by the details he gave of how the Church of God touches the hearts and lives of showpeople. How the fruitage of the Holy Spirit was seen in the uplifting of showlife and the betterment of the people's amusements. "It was," he said, "for all good men to work in God's great harvest field of the world, preparing the soil and sowing the seed, but it is God who gives the increase, and it will be God's Great Harvester who will at the end of time gather in the harvest. So true it is at the end of the world will be the harvest of God."

Alf. Ball Fund.

THE time is rapidly approaching when this fund must be closed. We confidently reiterate our appeal for this extremely deserving case. We readily admit that the response has been generous, particularly from the fairs where the Ball family are well known. It is now the season of the big all-England fairs—Nottingham, Peterborough, Hull, Stratford, Warwick, Rotherham, Wakefield, York, and the great hiring fairs of the North. Efforts, we think, might well be made at these fairs to support the Alf. Ball Fund.

AMOUNT already received and acknowledged in The Era £163 15s. 6d.

WE shall be glad to receive all outstanding subscriptions to this truly deserving fund. New subscribers' names will be duly acknowledged in our columns. The treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, is anxious that the help given shall not only be generous but that it shall be immediately available.

SHOWMEN'S GUILD.

ANNUAL MEETING AT ROTHERHAM.

BRITISH SHOW LIFE.

(BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Rev. Thomas Horne, the organiser and hon. chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, can always rely upon receiving a hearty reception whenever that reverend gentleman visits Rotherham, and it is now understood that Rotherham Statutes would be incomplete without a visit from our old and estimable friend. To use his own words, the Rev. Thos. Horne is looked upon as "part and parcel of the annual show."

Mr. Horne has a host of admirers in Rotherham and district. Not only is he remembered as the curate of the village of Whiston, but also his splendid work on behalf of the miners during the great coal strike in the year 1893. The sacrifices he then made will live in the memory of Rotherham people for ever. It is not necessary to write at length upon the work Mr. Horne has done in the interests of showmen, as his efforts in that direction have won the appreciation of the thousands of showpeople all over the country. The annual meeting of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain for Yorkshire was held on Sunday last at Rotherham in Messrs. Farrar and Son's show. Considering that the weather was so unpropitious, there was an excellent attendance. The Mayor of Rotherham (Ald. Dan Mullins, J.P.) was to have occupied the chair, but owing to indisposition he was unable to attend. Mr. T. Bartholomew presided, and he was supported by the Rev. Thos. Horne, the Rev. J. H. Poole (Vicar of Northfield), Mr. W. E. Ball, and others.

The Rev. THOS. HORNE, in opening the meeting, said that he had to regret the absence of the Mayor of Rotherham (Ald. D. Mullins), who was to have presided; but owing to a chill his Worship was unable to be present. He therefore proposed that Mr. T. Batholomew take the chair, and this was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN said he was pleased to render what assistance he could. He was glad they had the Rev. Thos. Horne amongst them again. They had been interested in what that gentlemen had said upon previous occasions, and they were glad to see him again looking so well. (Applause.)

THE MOVEABLE DWELLINGS BILL.

The Rev. THOS. HORNE, upon rising to address the meeting, had a hearty reception. He said in his opening remarks "that the labourer is worthy of his hire," which meant that he was entitled to get his wages when the job was done. He therefore was a labourer, and to meet his friends there that day were his wages. He said he loved to come to Rotherham Statutes as long as he received the warm appreciation which the people of Rotherham never failed to give him. When he was in the wrong they had always stood by him, and he was quite certain that when he happened to be in the right they would support him. As they said in the pantomime, "Here we are again." Rotherham "Stattis" had come round again. Continuing, he said he believed he was part and parcel of the annual show, and upon that occasion he wished to speak to them on British show life. Before, however, he began his lecture, he said he was glad to tell them that the reason that brought them together year after year—twenty years right straight off the reel—no longer existed. At the last meeting at Rotherham Statutes they had to protest against an iniquitous Bill then before Parliament, which, if passed, would have hampered and penalised, and in the end have killed the show business. They fought against that Bill and killed it. Last year they passed a resolution at the annual meeting of the Guild to the effect that Rotherham people sympathised with the work of the Showmen's Guild, and strongly opposed the Moveable Dwellings Bill. The speaker then outlined the progress of the Bill through the House of Lords, and it had been so dealt with that only a "little bit of mistaken legislation remained."

The Showmen's Guild had absolutely killed the Bill. They had not come to Rotherham again to ask them to pass any resolutions, and with regard to the evil remaining, they were going to take care that when Parliament met that every clause in the Bill would receive the most strenuous opposition from their Trades' Society. He did not intend to move any resolution or make a speech about the Moveable Dwellings Bill, for if it was not already killed, it was in the process of being killed. They intended that not one portion of the Bill, so far as its attack on the industry of the fairground, not one clause, and not even one line of a clause of the Bill should pass into law, which put a hinderance and a penalty on an industry that claimed to be sufficiently well looked after by the ordinary law of the land that it was not necessary that it should require any special legislation. He was glad they had knocked the top and bottom out of the Bill, and he thought with a few more raps they would finish it altogether.

British Show Life.

Dealing with British show life, the reverend gentleman said that he well remembered Rotherham Statutes fifty years ago. In those days they had not got the cinematograph theatres, as the fairs in these days. They had the menageries, such as Wombwell's, William Mander's, or Day's. At this juncture the reverend gentleman told a pathetic story concerning "Bill" Manders and sweet Rosy, his wife, in which he pointed out that life as it was lived in a van had pathos and power to move anyone, as only true life stories could. The reverend gentleman then told a touching and pathetic story concerning an old showman—a Punch and Judy man—which brought out the good characters of the showman. For twenty-one years they had been trying to educate the public to understand what show life really meant. He thought Rotherham people had known that for at least fifteen years, but he was sorry to say there were other towns that had not yet grasped it. Here the speaker related an incident when a police officer was one day watching some showpeople at a certain place arrange their shows, he (the Rev. Thos. Horne) happened to be standing alongside the police officer, and ventured a remark that it was very interesting to see how orderly the showpeople got their places arranged, and, in reply, the intelligent police officer said, "What a lot—gipsies!" In reply to this, he (the speaker) told the police officer that he thought he ought to know that when he saw a yellow van it did not necessarily follow that the people who occupied them were gipsies, and he pointed out that out of the 200 or more vans it would puzzle him to find one gipsy family in the whole of the crowd. It was a pity, after twenty years of work, to come across an intelligent police officer who did not understand that travelling showpeople were not the same as travelling gipsies. He claimed, and he had said it many times before, that showpeople in their trade and business were as honest and industrious and as good citizens as any class of the community. (Applause.) They were also clean morally and a God-fearing set of men and women. He claimed with safety that showpeople's life was conducive to the sanctity of home life, because the showman never was away from his home. In his opinion, home life was a very real thing for the showmen and women. After relating a story of Rotherham "Stattis," he appealed to his listeners to have most kindly thoughts towards showpeople when they visited the town. He realised that there was the super-sensitive person who took objection to the discordant music at fairs. Those people had no charity broad enough to stand a few discordant notes. He hoped they would have kindly sympathies and broad-minded charity towards showpeople. The showman was a minister—he had a mission to fulfil, and he (the speaker) asked them to be charitable towards him whenever he came amongst them. (Applause.)

The Rev. J. H. POOLE (Vicar of Northfield), in proposing a vote of thanks to the Rev. Thos. Horne, said his sympathy was with the showpeople, and whenever they came to Rotherham they would always find a friend in him.

Mr. W. E. BALL, in seconding the motion, spoke of the excellent work the Showmen's Guild was doing.

The CHAIRMAN, in putting the resolution to the meeting, which was carried with acclamation, said that Rotherham appreciated a man like the Rev. Thos. Horne, and they well remembered the important part he took in the great coal strike of 1893. The part taken by the reverend gentleman at that time was sufficient to warrant the sympathy they extended to him, and he hoped he would be spared for some time to come to champion the cause of the Showmen's Guild.

In the evening a Guild service was held, when the Rev. Thos. Horne preached to an excellent congregation. The orchestra and choir of the St. Michael's Church were in attendance.

The Guild at Rotherham Statutes Fair.

The oldest centre of the Guild's work in Yorkshire is at Rotherham. For twenty years without a break Rotherham Statutes Fair has been marked by a showmen's service. The Guild, founded at Manchester in 1889, had for its first chaplain the Rev. T. Horne, who was at that time Curate of Whiston, Rotherham. At the first fair after the establishment of the Guild, the showpeople in several large waggonettes came out to Whiston from the fairground and more than half-filled Whiston Parish Church. This was a surprise visit, but it turned out to be the actual commencement of the Guild services. The following year a service was held in a show on the fairground, and that has been the plan ever since.

This year's service was held in Farrer and Son's beautiful cinematograph pavilion. Despite the inclement weather the show was crowded, and great interest was taken in the service by the crowded congregation of showpeople and their good friends, the church folk of Rotherham.

The Guild work has always been linked with the parish of St. Michael's, Northfield, for until quite recently the fair was held in that parish. The choir and orchestra of St. Michael's, with the mission workers, have given yeoman service to the Guild work, and with the full acquiescence and blessing of the Vicar of Masbro', in whose parish the fairground is now situated, the Northfield church people continue their valuable work. The Vicar of St. Michael's (the Rev. J. H. Poole) has kindly accepted the office of honorary local chaplain in succession to the Rev. H. Greenway, who, during his arduous vicariate of St. Michael's, always looked after the showpeople at the Statutes Fair.

The Vicar, the choir, the orchestra, and the church workers again took part in the Guild service at the fairground.

The Guild Chaplain associated himself throughout the Sunday with the work at St. Michael's Church. He was Celebrant at the 8 a.m. Eucharist and preacher at the High Celebration at 11. In the evening he read the Lessons. The chaplain's sermon in the show was on the Festival of All Saints', taking as his text the words: "Who hath made us meet to be partakers of the Inheritance of the Saints in Light," from the Epistle of the day.

The musical portion of the service was most heartily rendered by people, choir, and orchestra. At the close of the service, at the request of the organising chaplain, the honorary local chaplain (the Vicar of St. Michael's) spoke a few words to his brother Guildsmen at the fair.

He disclaimed any intention of preaching a second sermon, however short, his only wish was to make the showpeople understand that he, with the assistant clergy of St. Michael's, extended the heartiest possible welcome to them when in Rotherham. He assured them that anything that they could do, whether in the direct ministry of the things of God, or in brotherly fellowship and friendship, the showpeople would find them ready and glad to be of use in the furtherance of the good work of the Showmen's Guild.

Other Workers in the Same Field.

The honorary local chaplain for Preston, Canon H. S. Butler, Vicar of the parish church, with his mission workers, held a successful Showmen's Guild service in Clarke's cinematograph show at the Whitsuntide fair. The Rev. F. S. Sykes, Vicar of Holbeck, Leeds, held a Guild service in Murphy's show pavilion on the feast ground during the local fair.

The Rev. R. St. John Mitchell, of the Exeter Itinerant Mission, has again this year followed the circuit of the West of England Regatta Fairs. This excellent diocesan work has been much blessed with success, the showpeople of the West of England readily assisting in every possible way.

The Rev. Canon Heygate, Vicar of the Parish Church, Boston, held a Guild Service in Aspland's show at Boston Fair with great acceptance. The Rev. J. T. Mumford, the Vicar of East Retford, continued his splendid work of showmen's services at Retford Fair. During the visit of Fossett's circus to Penzance the local Guild Chaplain, the Rev. C. F. Rogers, Vicar of St. Mary's, held a service for the circus people in the tent. The Rev. G. Robinson, Holme-on-Spalding Moor, York, held a service at the village feast. The Rector of Neath, Wales, and the Rev. T. S. Phillips, Neath, held services on the fairground during Neath Fair. Other services in Wales were held at Pontardawe, and at Porth by the Honorary Local Chaplains.

There is also an excellent Diocesan Mission worked by the St. Andrew's Brotherhood of Salisbury; the clergy dealing with showlife at the fairs in the diocese are the Rev. E. Chorley and the Rev. E. W. Legge, both of whom are Honorary Chaplains of the Guild. There have been other services held and other good work attempted; the detailed accounts of this have not reached the Guild Chaplain.

It is extremely gratifying to notice that in increasing numbers the Honorary Local Chaplains are carrying forward the work in the absence of the Organising Chaplain of the Guild, who is thus liberated to open up new centres of work.

The Scott Family Appeal.

WE draw our readers' attention to the urgent appeal for help made by the Scott family, of circus celebrity. To the circus world this appeal must come with great force, the Scotts being amongst the most esteemed and best-known of British equestrians. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift most readily consents to receive subscriptions, and to acknowledge them week by week in The Era.

Municipal Honours for Hamlyn.

MR. J. D. HAMLYN, the famous naturalist and importer of wild beasts, has been returned at the top of the poll in the recent bye-election for the Tower Ward of Stepney. The official figures were:

Hamlyn	240
Somerfield	93
Braine	39

Our heartiest congratulations to Councillor J. D. Hamlyn.

Lord John Sanger and Son's Circus.

LORD JOHN SANGER'S circus paid a visit to East Molesey on Thursday, and created considerable interest. It is upwards of six years since a previous visit was paid. The menagerie includes four performing elephants, eight camels, and nine cages of wild beasts. The circus arrived in the morning about eight, from Egham, and the huge tents were speedily erected.

FILM GOSSIP.

New Cinematograph Halls.

At the meeting on Tuesday of the L.C.C. the Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered a drawing, submitted by Messrs. Homer and Lucas, showing a cinematograph hall proposed to be erected in Coldharbour-lane, Brixton. The hall will have accommodation for about 770 persons. It is intended to apply for a music licence, and, subject to certain conditions being observed, the premises appear to be suitable for the purpose for which the licence is desired. The Committee recommended the Council to grant a certificate on the usual conditions being complied with. Agreed to. With respect to the Electric Palace, Brixton, and the Electric Palace, Lewisham, the Catford Central Picture Palace and Skating Rink, the Committee recommended that the provisional licence for music be confirmed. They also recommended that a certificate be granted in respect of the Gaiety Picture Palace, Tottenham Court-road. These recommendations were carried.

Erection of Glass Shelter Not Consented To.

At the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday, Nov. 1, the Building Acts Committee recommended the Council not to consent to the erection of an iron and glass shelter in front of a cinematograph theatre on the western side of St. Stephen's-road, Bow, as shown on plans submitted with the application of Messrs. Andrews and Peascod on behalf of J. Manger and Sons, Ltd. Agreed to.

"Henry VIII." on the Screen.

Mr. Horace Sedger and Mr. Edward Laurillard, directors of the Electric Palace Company, have recently been in communication with Sir Herbert Tree with the view of securing from him the right to reproduce scenes from Henry VIII. in this way. To their request Sir Herbert has given his conditional assent; the one reservation he makes is that the films shall first be approved of by him. The scenes selected for treatment are Wolsey's entrance, the trial of Queen Katherine, and the Coronation ceremony. If all goes well visitors to the Electric Palace, Marble Arch, will consequently have an early opportunity of studying these in full detail.

Ayr Picture Palace.

With a view to adding to the comfort of their patrons, and at the same time taking advantage of the full floor space at their disposal, the management at the Picture Palace, Ayr, intend carrying out certain alterations which will bring the building thoroughly up to the requirements of modern times. The principal pictures on the programme for this week are: The Animated Chronicle, a review of the world's doings, At the Doors of Italy, Transport in Indo-China, Girl of Triple X., Bewitched Boxing Gloves, &c.

A New Picture Show at Bridlington.

Mr. R. C. Luxton, the manager of the New Spa and Opera House at Bridlington, has just installed a new Gaumont chromo de luxe machine at the theatre, which has already proved a source of great attraction. The pictures are thrown from behind the screen—a very great improvement on the old way of projecting them from the front, and Mr. Geo. Robinson, the electrician and operator, is highly praised for the wonderful steadiness and effect which is attained, the pictures showing with remarkable clearness. Mr. Luxton has also secured a capital little orchestra, under Mr. Victor Medcalf's conductorship, who play appropriate music to the scenes depicted.

Croydon Electric Theatre.

The bill here is still up to high-water mark, as the pictures are of the very latest. Amusing subjects are admirably blended with picturesque scenic effects and pictures of dramatic interest. We were pleased to see Mr. Cousins back at his old duties as manager, as he is certainly a past-master in the art of catering for Croydon amusement-seekers.

B.B. Pictures at Dundee.

District-Manager Mr. Tom Lunn, judging by the packed condition of the houses at each of their three theatres, has gauged the Dundonians' taste in pictures to a nicety. At the Palace Theatre an exceptionally interesting and instructive programme is submitted. A very popular picture depicts the story of St. George and the Dragon, whilst Tennyson's poem "Dora" is another outstanding item, the pathos of the latter being given fine effect to. A Woman's Folly is a picture of great dramatic power, and tells of the downfall of a woman owing to her gambling habits, and the subsequent regaining of her honour through her son's sacrifice. A (K)night in Armour proves a regular "rib-tickler," and the programme includes many other capital films. At the Gaiety Theatre a scientific film, Cuttlefish at Home, is particularly interesting to students of natural history. The Old Sergeant is a capital dramatic subject, others of a dramatic nature being The Rival Barons and The Price of a Sacrifice. The comic pictures include Her Uncle's Will, Love Me, Love My Dog, Pontilini Wants Money, and The Mother of Invention. At the Empire Theatre, Acting-Manager R. W. Austin submits a very excellent assortment of films, Great Train Hold-up and A Big Scoop being the most popular; whilst the singing picture, "Follow Me, Girls," meets with much appreciation.

Dundee Cinema Theatre.

Mr. P. Feathers shows a local picture this week entitled Fife Artillery at Craig Pier, showing the men with their horses and cannon leaving Newport boat en route for Barry. Tragedy is depicted in His Second Wife, Nellie's Farm, and The Gipsy's Jealousy. The Detachable Man and What the Parrot Saw are humorous films; while A Trip to the Mediterranean is a very beautiful picture containing some fine scenic effects.

Opposition to Sunday Opening.

Strong opposition having been raised at Kingston-on-Thames against the opening of the Surrey and Sussex Picture Palace in the borough, Mr. Cecil Frere (the manager) has decided not to again open on the Sabbath. The opposition was voiced by Mr. T. W. Weeding (Clerk of the Peace for Surrey) and the Free Churches in the district. A deputation from the latter waited on Mr. Kendall Robinson, one of the directors, on Monday evening, and fully discussed the Sunday opening with him, and made it clear that they had not a word to say against the character of the pictures shown at the Sunday performances. They simply objected to the opening.

Lichfield Electric Palace.

Mr. Patrick Collins, the well known public caterer, has acquired the Seagrave Hall in the city of Lichfield, where he has installed an up-to-date Electric Theatre with every sign of success. The hall has been prettily decorated, and, moreover, has been fitted with tip-up seats and otherwise most comfortably arranged. The pictures, which are changed twice a week, are of the finest character and are quite up to date. Mr. J. D. Bate is the manager, and Mr. Davies treasurer, and both officials are doing all that is possible towards making Mr. Collins's show an entire success.

The pictures this week maintain their usual standard of excellence, and the new arrangement of giving a complete change of pictures on Thursday is greatly appreciated. The variety turns include Maggie Fraser, a contralto vocalist, with a nice voice; Horace Horner, who makes a good impression with his speciality dancing; and James Brady, who meets with a capital reception.

Opening at Lichfield.

The well-known pioneer of amusements, Mr. Patrick Collins, has secured Seagrave's Assembly Room, in the centre of Lichfield, and, after extensive alterations and improvements, including tip-up seats and other conveniences, opened on Monday, the 31st ult. The general management is in the hands of Mr. Davis and Mr. J. D. Bate, who are doing everything possible for patrons. The films were all first class, and the entertainment went with verve throughout. Mr. Collins proposes to run his Lichfield Palace for six months certain, and has inaugurated his season with two shows per night, with other fixtures.

Fine Picture Palace for Mountain Ash.

A fine central site has been secured in Oxford-street, Mountain Ash, for the purpose of erecting a cinematograph theatre, which will be one of the most commodious and elaborate theatres in the provinces. The plans have been prepared by Mr. George Kenshole, architect, Bargoed, and the contract has also been let. Building operations will be commenced at once. The front of the building will be constructed of white burmantoft, and the theatre will provide accommodation for over 1,000. The proprietors are the same company which have erected a similar theatre at Bargoed. The syndicate have been very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. William Haggar, senior, the pioneer of cinematographs in South Wales, as managing-director in the venture. This syndicate on Thursday opened the new Picture Palace, Bargoed, one of the prettiest theatres in South Wales. The plans were designed by Mr. George Kenshole, and the building erected by Messrs. Williams and Sons, New Tredegar and Bargoed, and will accommodate 700 people.

Portsmouth's Cinema Shows.

At the Fratton Electric Theatre a capital selection of films adorned the sheet last week, the most interesting being A Champion Boxer, His New Family (capital comic), Girl on Triple X Ranch (sensational), and an instructive picture, Gathering Lemons in Sicily.—The Eastney Electric Theatre screened some good pictures, including Auntie at the Boat Race (comic), Central American Romance (tragic), and Boss of Bar X Ranch, an especially good picture.—Amidst a host of interesting films at the Gosport Theatre, Mme. Adah Payne, the Australian prima donna, scored a big hit with some excellent songs. A capital picture was The Deputy's Duty; and Glen Alno, comedian and dancer, should not be omitted.

Another Electric Theatre in Swindon.

The old Central Hall in Regent-circus, which was recently acquired by the Sceptre Syndicate, Ltd., was opened on Saturday afternoon last. The Central Electric Theatre, as it is now called, has undergone alterations to meet the requirements of the local authorities, and is under the management of Mr. E. J. Jennings, who is running the theatre on popular lines.

Irish Animated Picture Company.

The Irish Animated Picture Company are at the Theatre Royal, Limerick, for another week, and the beautiful films of the Pathé Frère series attract special attention from very popular houses. The principal pictures exhibited are The Queen of Judah, The Motor Smugglers, The Flag of Company H, and a Trip Through Asia Minor, this latter being very educative and interesting. The company are capably supported by Mons. Ugo, a gifted and astute illusionist and conjurer; whilst that highly talented soprano, Miss Nellie Moore, from Dublin, sings some very agreeable solos and snatches from grand opera. Operator Duggan works off without a hitch, and Manager George is the clever guide and demonstrator.

APPEAL FOR HELP.

TO OUR FELLOW SHOWMEN AND BROTHER ARTISTS IN ENGLAND, SCOTLAND, WALES AND IRELAND.

The several members of the Scott family—sons and daughters of the late Walter Scott, circus proprietor, who was well and favourably known—beg to intimate that we are completely overburdened with trouble at the present time, being in stricken circumstances and in want of money, and can no longer find the necessary funds to defend an action of detinue which has been brought against us by Edward Hanneford, who claims to be entitled to the circus property which was left to us by our late father to enable us to earn a livelihood. The following is a report of the case taken from a local newspaper when it was last before the court on Oct 27:—

HANNEFORD v. SCOTT AND OTHERS.

This was an appeal by the defendants, Robert Scott and others, from an order of Mr. Justice Ross appointing a receiver over the chattels, business, and effects of the circus of the defendants. There was a cross-appeal by the plaintiff, Edward Hanneford, that the order in question, the subject of defendants' appeal, should be amended so as to constitute Mr. Hugh Boyd, of Belfast, manager as well as receiver over the circus. The defendants contended that the plaintiff had no valid claim against the property, and alleged that he had been overpaid to the extent of £400 in respect of money lent to the defendants, and that the appointment of a receiver would prevent the business from being carried on in the ordinary course, and would be detrimental to the defendants' interests. It appeared that the circus had been carried on under the title of Sir Walter Scott and Sons. The plaintiff resided in Strandtown, Belfast. Following the death of Mr. Walter Scott litigation took place between the parties as to their respective rights, and when the matter came before Mr. Justice Ross a receiver was appointed pending the matter.

For the defendants (appellants)—Mr. Healy, K.C., M.P., and Mr. W. H. Brown (instructed by Mr. J. G. Scott, solicitor, Larne).

For the plaintiff—Mr. J. O'Connor, K.C., and Mr. H. M. Thompson (instructed by Mr. James Alexander, solicitor, Belfast).

The Lord Chancellor, in giving judgment, said they would allow matters to remain as they were, having regard to the lateness of the season, and to the fact that the touring of the circus was finished for the season. They would decline to grant the plaintiff's cross-notice of appeal, which sought to appoint the receiver as manager, and they would put the plaintiff under terms to deliver his statement of claim forthwith, and make costs of both parties costs in the cause.

We wish to keep what our father left to us, and we are therefore resisting the claim made by Hanneford, and we look forward with confidence to receiving adequate financial support from our fellow showmen and brother artists who know us well. Funds are urgently required, and we appeal to all our many British, Scottish, Welsh, and Irish friends to come forward at this critical moment and help us to defend the action and have justice done between the parties. The smallest sums will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged by the undersigned, to whom all contributions are to be sent.

ROBERT SCOTT,

47, Main-street, Larne, co. Antrim, Ireland.

On behalf of himself and his brothers and sisters, children of the late Walter Scott, who are the defendants in the action.

PEEPS INTO SHOWLAND.

During a brief holiday spent this autumn in the West of England I was attracted by an announcement that on Sunday afternoon the Rev. Thomas Horne, Honorary Chaplain to the Showmen's Guild, would deliver an address on "Shows and Showmen." Now, as a boy, like most urchins I was desperately fond of spending time and money in a fair or mop. My memories go back to the time when I must have been very young, for my father took me up in his arms to enable me to see above the heads of a vast crowd a lady attired in Scotch costume, who sang "Write me a letter from home." The notes seem as familiar to me to-day as they were on the night they were articulated. Outside the show the lights were burning brightly, the bandsmen were putting a lot of wind into their instruments, so much so that their swollen cheeks almost obliterated their eyes, and wild beasts inside, growled, roared, and snarled in anticipation of feeding time. "Walk up, walk up, ladies and gentlemen, walk up—now you little boys stand back and let the people with the money come to the front—in this show you see monarchs of the forest, tigers from the jungles of India, polar bears from Arctic regions, monster elephants, dromedaries, camels, wolves, zebras, and giraffes, not forgetting the monkeys." And I do not forget the monkeys there, for much of my time was spent in watching their peculiar antics. Talk about being "as cunning as a monkey," they were a lot of fidgety little creatures, always on the "scratch" and looking out to take part in the scramble for whatever was thrown into their cages. Then we moved on to other caravans, in which were imprisoned specimens of the gorilla tribe. Can I ever forget the composed figure of the coloured, ribbed-nosed mandril, designated as a fierce and powerful African baboon? He was not to be teased.

Next we were introduced to the feather tribe. I dimly recall something said about the propensities of the ancient, as distinguished from the modern, pelicans, as to how they fed their young; but amid such an array of eagle, pheasant, and duck-shaped birds with beautiful plumage, can you wonder that, one not too well versed in objects of natural history, I got a bit mystified? At a tender age it made one shudder to witness the narrow escapes of lion tamers and keepers who ventured to put these ferocious beasts through perilous performances. It was so realistic. The lady who put her head between the lion's jaws for the last time suffered the penalty of such realism. Of my boyhood it was a pathetic story. In the waxworks, as a lad, I jumped with joy as I listened to weird stories of "live lions stuffed with straw and the great wangdoodles from the South of Africa." Here I saw a representation of "Daniel in the lion's den." We were told to carefully observe that "Daniel was distinguished from the lions by the blue cotton umbrella he held in his hand." Of course, I asked my father why Daniel wanted an umbrella, as it was not raining! He said, "We must move on." We did.

Outside in the fair the crush was almost unbearable, and at times in the "rushes" it was difficult to keep on one's feet. Cheap Jacks galore, a very extensive array, were seen promenading the front of their gaily caparisoned cars and appraising the merits of real "Sheffield" goods. Of course, these in the naphtha lights glistened like silver. One vendor said the razor he recommended would cut the wind into "rashers"; also if he showed a pair of scissors to a dress piece it would cut it into every conceivable fashionable shape! Then the swing boats, the high flyers, the cocoa-nut shies, the brandy snap, ginger bread, and sweetmeat stalls. There were also in those days various forms of "fun of the fair." At that time lads and lasses came in from the country sides wearing all kinds of agricultural distinctions. Somewhere near to the pleasure fair was located the Statute fair. If a farmer wanted a cowman, a shepherd, a carter, a boy, a dairymaid, a housekeeper, or a "Mary of all work," there were plenty of facilities offered on both sides to effect these engagements, or "hirings." To-day we do not go to fairs for our servants. Civilisation has impregnated and refined the ranks and feelings of our Sarah Janes and Mary Annes as well as polite members in the higher grades of society. It is true we live in a different age, but we have showmen with us still, and, what is more, they will remain so long as there are men and women on the surface of the globe.

When I was down in the city I made bold to go up to the Chaplain of the Showmen's Guild. He is a very energetic and affable gentleman. Of course he was as pleased to see me as I was to make his acquaintance. I told him that an idea had entered into my head. He put into my hand a little book, entitled "British Shows and Showmen," of which he is the author, and told me I should find it useful. In that little book it is set forth that the modern showman has no need to be ashamed either of his work or his position in the national economy.

To cater for a people natural relaxation involves no slight share of responsibility in the nation's well-being. The strenuous toil of a highly-developed industrial system demands frequent opportunities for recreation and change. Experience has demonstrated more than ever that the most complete provision of this natural demand is the healthy, all-absorbing, and ever-varying amusements of our fairs, feasts, and wakes. A mere casual study of the root conditions of life of the workers will be enough to show the reason for this. With the toilers at the loom, the machine bench, or in the mine, a prime necessity is that they shall not be expected to take too much trouble about the matter of necessary recreation. They cannot make a toil of pleasure. With those whose work is less exacting it may be different. With the worn-out toiler, it is essential that the amusement be brought to his very door. It is also necessary that a healthy, neighbourly tradition of interchange of hospitality—of paying friendly visits and entertaining distant friends and relatives—be maintained. To short-sighted people this surcease from productive industry may seem to be a waste of time and money, but it is not so. There is no sounder principle of true economy than that which is embodied in the old saying, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

People who are inclined to look askance at these popular forms of recreation ought to be reminded that shows and showmen have flourished in all parts of the world. Homer, the poet, was an itinerant bard or minstrel, singing his songs of the people to the people. William Shakespeare has provided mirth for strolling players, and it is on record that at every period of reputable history and in every phase of settled or normal life, showmen and their shows were popular with the masses. The feats originated in the observance of the annual festival or martyr day of the patron saint, in whose honour parish churches had been dedicated. Our forbears on such occasions would join in the festivities with song, dance, and merry joke.

This helps us to conjure up a picture of the evolution of a fair. Quick, change! Behold the strolling players, the gleemen, the mountebanks, the pedlars, the dealers, the astrologers, mummers, tumblers, quack doctors, the clown to make the welkin ring with laughter, the improvised circus ring. See! The tight-rope dancing, posturing, conjuring!

Banks, the showman, was the Barnum of his day. He had a wonderful performing bay horse, shod in silver shoes, called "Morocco." Of Banks it is written: "Whosoever was most famous amongst them could never master or instruct any beast as he did." Banks' horse could "count up figures and indicate the boy who stole the sugar or the lady who kissed her sweetheart." Well, it was all very funny, and quite harmless, but Banks and his horse were burned for witchcraft and black magic! Certainly there were some very eccentric characters in existence, who practised on the credulity of their astonished audiences. We read in the old mumming rhyme the immortalisation of the learned Hildago d'Espanolio from Madrid, who arrived with safe and certain cures for all the ills poor flesh is heir to.

Earliest records reveal evidences of forerunners on a small scale of the American combination of wild beast shows and circus performances. Courts as well as people were absorbed in such pastimes. Bartholomew Fair was patronised by Queen Anne. Hogarth has left us his fine picture of Southwark Fair, depicting the well-known showmen of his time. Later on Philip Astley, who captured a standard at the Battle of Emsdorf, began his career in the open fields between Westminster and Blackfriars as a circus entertainer with two horses—one he had given to him on his discharge from the Army by General Elliott, and another he purchased at Smithfield Market. The feats of horsemanship he introduced included a minuet danced by the two horses, the comic musical interlude entitled The Awkward Recruit, and other attractive accessories were an amazing exhibition of dancing dogs. Out of this circus sprung Astley's Amphitheatre in Holborn. Wonderful combinations of their day were organised by Ducrow, Sangers, Henglers, Newsomes, Pablo Fauques, Ginnetts, Myers, Cookes, Fossetts, Ohmys and Alexanders, Pinders, Wombwells, Samwells, Wilds, Thornes, and others.—The Wellingborough Post, Nov. 4, 1910.

North Shields Fair.

The ancient ceremony of proclaiming the fair, which has not been performed for the past ten years, was revived at noon yesterday at North Shields. The Duke of Northumberland's agent Mr. F. G. Tuck, accompanied by Mr. J. G. Stroud, and Mr. J. Appleby, from the Duke's office at Newcastle, and Mr. J. Hall, the Duke's piper, assembled at noon at the main entrance to the Northumberland Arms Hotel, and the piper performed on the Northumbrian small pipes "The Lads of Alnwick." The proclamation was then made by the Duke's agent, and the piper afterwards rendered "Chevy Chase." A number of tickets, each valued at 3d., was then thrown among the crowd assembled, and entitled the holders to that amount of refreshment within the hotel.

The Frank C. Bostock's Jungle in Sheffield.

The gaiety of Steelopolis will be considerably increased this winter by the installation of Mr. Frank C. Bostock's world-famous "Jungle." In the centre of the city a large area has recently been cleared of old "slums," and here the great "Animal King" has "reared his tent," or, in plain words, in a well-equipped brick and corrugated iron building, measuring some 500ft. by 100ft., there has been comfortably housed a great menagerie, comprising 100 lions, tigers, bears, &c., and a "Fun City," with the latest mechanical surprises for causing harmless mirth. At one end of the big building a stage, 50ft. square (well lighted and surrounded with high cage railings backed by effective scenery), is provided, and here performances are given afternoon and evening by notable animal trainers and their pupils—savage and otherwise. A parterre of well-raked stalls fronts the stage, but the animal acts can also be comfortably witnessed by the promenaders in the hall and from the fine coign of vantage in the galleries that run round three sides of the building.

The World-famed Animal Experts.

The American contingent includes Mme. Aurora, who presents the equestrian lion D'Artagnan, "the Beau Brummell" of the lion tribe, his associates in the arena being an amusing dog and a highly-trained horse Miss Texa introduces the animal kindergarten, Mr. Miller, America's greatest lion tamer, and young Tallor, the youth in the lions' den. The British experts are Captain Rowley and Captain Taylor, the celebrated lion, bear, and wolf trainers. France, Germany, Hungary, Spain, Italy, Belgium, Russia, and Cuba, each is represented by its own animal experts. The list includes Mme. Morelli, M. Coquelit, Herr Falkendorf, Herr Scholz, Senorita Juanita, Signorita Alicia, M. Garnier, Mlle. Louise, and Senor Marco. The delightful exhibition of skilled training by Mme. Morelli and Signorita Alicia were much applauded. This, of course, is true of all the animal displays in the arena. An excellent idea is the humorous interlude to break the mental strain of the arenic performances, the humorists being Messieurs Henri Rey, eccentric Auguste, and "Phile," and Martino.

All the Fun of the Fair.

These free amusements include a joy wheel, a haunted house, a slippery slope, a children's pedal roundabout, the windy corner of the flat-iron building, turtling the turtles, and other novelties.

As the genial Master Cutler of Sheffield (Ald. George Senior) put it when he addressed the audience from the stage-arena at the private view on the 4th inst., if for nothing else, Mr. Bostock deserves the thanks of the public, not only for providing a delightful resort, where music, fun, and instruction were happily blended, but for brightening up a gloomy region in the heart of the city. In an arid waste, surrounded by high tenement dwellings, individual enterprise has again "brought light into dark places." With a large and courteous staff, a splendid array of continuous entertainments, and no "extra charges," there is no doubt that Mr. Bostock's enterprise will meet with its deserved reward. The Rev. Thomas Horne, the good chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, was present for the opening, and many old friends were glad to welcome him back to his "native heath."

Sedgwick's Menagerie on Tour.

This famous menagerie is touring the Midland Circuit. Last Friday it was located at Redditch, and drew big audiences both afternoon and night.

Ballads of Showland.

The Rev. T. Horne has published a cheap edition, price twopence (post free 3d., from this office), of his "Ballads of Showland." It is a thirty-two page booklet, and has a portrait of the author. The ballads given are: "I Want to See the Clown," "A Crippled Sunbeam," "The Pipes and the Drum," "A Showgirl's Letter from School," "Gregory the Martyr," "To Earn Their Christmas Cake," "The Tumbler of the Lord," "The Tiger and Child, "Billy Mander's Sermon," "Faithful Unto the End," "The Showman's Dying Wish," and "Telling the Tale: An Old Doorman's Memories."

In addition to the ballads there are three recitations—"The Whitby Vikings," "Death Grip Canyon," and "Righting the Wrong." These have no reference to showlife. The author's purpose in issuing the ballads is to give at the lowest possible price a corrective to the misleading "romance" of current literature that showpeople are gipsies, and that their nomadic occupation makes them lower in the scale of social and moral life than the people of the towns and villages wherein they minister wholesome amusement at the time of the fair. The author's cheap edition of his "Stories of Showlife," also issued from The Era office, have had great influence in this direction, and the issue at twopence of the ballads is with the same good intention.

RINKING GOSSIP.

Earl's Court Rink.

The opening of the Earl's Court Rink, London's colossal rinking rendezvous, of which Mr. Frank C. Bostock is the director-proprietor, and Mr. John S. Harvey, the manager, was announced to take place last night, at 7.30 p.m. Under an entirely new proprietary and new management, nothing has been left undone to still further enhance the attractions of the rink. Special attention has been given to the splendid skating surface, acknowledged to be the finest and most perfect floor in the world, remarkable for its silence, and irresistible to the skater. As a result of the careful electric machining, the vast floor resembles a glistening expanse of smooth ice. The new lighting and decorations will add considerably to the brilliancy and brightness of the building, giving an effective setting for the animated throng of skaters, whilst an even skating temperature will be zealously guarded. The large staff of instructors of both sexes will be found exceptionally accomplished and capable of imparting a first knowledge of the fascinating and health-giving pastime in a remarkably short space of time. A special attraction is the engagement of Phasey's Military Band.

Hobble Skirt Race.

Only four lady roller skaters (and one of them a little girl) entered for the hobble-skirt race at Holland Park Rink on Thursday, the 3rd. The hems of the skirt were not allowed to exceed 40in. in circumference, but in spite of so serious a handicap the competitors went round two laps of the rink at a speed which could not have been less than ten miles an hour, and there were no falls. The little girl won. The amusing race made it clear that only an expert could overcome the handicap of the hobble.

Carnival at Devonshire Park.

His Grace the Duke of Devonshire, who was accompanied by Mr. Manners Sutton and Mr. Roland Burke, attended the carnival at Devonshire Park, Eastbourne, on Monday, the 31st ult., when the prizes were distributed by Mrs. Roland Burke. The occasion was the opening of the Canadian rock maple rink. The enlarged Floral Hall presented its most inviting aspect. Coloured electric lights and Chinese lanterns were arrayed about the hall with admirable taste, and huge palms had been placed at the sides of the stage, on which the Municipal Orchestra (under Mr. Hiram Henton) discoursed a programme of sweet music. Mr. A. E. Hedges was in charge of the floor, and was assisted by Messrs. N. Holdsworth and M. Findlay.

Attractive and Original Fancy Dresses.

In the fancy dress classes Miss Pyman as "Merry Widow" secured the first prize, and Miss Trotter as "A Dancer" was second. Mr. Dick Knight captured his sixth consecutive first prize as "Roman General," and Mr. Riddle as "Indian Chief" was second. Miss Brown won the ladies' quaint and original prize as "Spirit of the Fifth," and Miss Tait as "Dame Fashion" secured second prize. Mr. Sidney Hounson had an ingenious contrivance representing "Guy Fawkes," with which he easily secured first prize. The second prize was awarded to Mr. V. S. Campany as "What it may come to." The juvenile prizes were won by Miss B. Forbes and Master Forbes, as an Indian Girl and Indian Boy. Messrs. D. Roberts and E. Mockett caused considerable amusement as Waiters.

Roller Racing at Wandsworth.

At the Central Hall Skating Rink, East Hill, Wandsworth, a one mile open amateur handicap (under N.S.A. laws, and under the auspices of the Wandsworth Roller Skating Club) was announced to take place on Wednesday. The first prize is valued at £5 5s., the second at £3 3s., and the third at £2 2s., gold medals being given to all unplaced competitors in the final.

Actors on the Rink.

At the Alexandra Skating Rink, Swansea, on the afternoon of Thursday, the 3rd, a number of members of The King of Cadonia company played a hockey match with the rink team. Some of the actors appeared in theatrical costume, and evoked much amusement by their curious antics during the game. A number of other members of the company, including Mr. Bertram Wallis, were highly interested spectators of the proceedings. The match ended in a win for the rink team by five goals to two.

Guy Fawkes Carnival at Wembley.

Among the many attractions at the grand Guy Fawkes Carnival at Wembley Skating Palace last Monday there was an exhibition of fancy waltzing by Miss Dora Mays and Mr. "Jimmie" Easton (instructors at the Palace), a grand march past of competitors in costumes of characters or subjects connected with the Gunpowder Plot, the Battle of the Guys, and a grand display of fireworks. Herr Adolf Voorzanger's fine band was responsible for the musical portion of the programme, and the saxophone solo by Herr Voorzanger was especially appreciated.

Moritz Clarke and Dainty Lillian.

During last week the Ystradgynlais Skating Rink, South Wales, was well patronised by enthusiastic rinkers and spectators, the proprietors having arranged a series of exhibitions with Professor Moritz Clarke and Dainty Lillian, the well-known exhibition skaters, in their clever and graceful exposition of skating in its highest form, their skilful turn meeting with a very cordial reception. The adroit and daring knife maze and the charming dance movements which followed were heartily applauded.

Croydon on Wheels.

The attendance at Croydon's admirably-conducted rink is steadily increasing with the advancing season, which gives every appearance of being a successful one. The maple floor has been voted perfection, and an excellent and untiring orchestra renders appropriate selections. Mr. A. Telford is a courteous manager, whose efforts are always in the right direction.

Croydon Rink.

The Crystal Palace Engineers' Rink Hockey Club now have their headquarters here. On Tuesday they met the Silverdale R.H.C. in a spirited and well-fought contest, neither side being able to secure a goal. Mr. Alexander Telford's management of this rink deserves every praise.

Ebrington Rink, Plymouth.

Rinking is increasing in popularity in Plymouth, and a fashionable throng patronises all three sessions daily, and fully appreciates the excellent condition of the rink and incidental conveniences.

Costume Carnival at Empress, Nottingham.

The seventh costume carnival of the New Empress Rink, Nottingham, was held on Nov. 2, when over 2,000 persons passed through the turnstiles. The impression produced was that of some continental gymkhana. It was more than a mere exhibition of the beautiful and the grotesque, as a special feature was the display of gowns made exclusively of Nottingham lace. There were a large number of entries in this class. Some of the dresses were exceedingly beautiful, and good taste was displayed in the selection of the modes through which to exhibit the material to the best advantage. There were in addition classes for the portrayal of popular advertisements, some of which were exceedingly clever, and the whole carnival was a feast of colour, grace, and amusement. Coupled with this were various competitions, and there was indeed almost a surfeit of attractions.

Hockey at Derby Rink.

Hockey matches at Derby Rink are by no means of a tame order, and a recent encounter, Alexandra v. Burton Curzon Hall, was no exception to the rule. The teams worked well together, and the second half brought the Alexandra's first goal. Burton played steadily on, and under cover of their opponents' elation managed to equalise before the whistle blew. Well done, both sides.

Newbury Nonagenarian Rinkers.

Newbury boasts two nonagenarian rinkers. One is Alderman Thomas Fidler, who will be ninety-five years of age on Dec. 20, and the other Mr. Richard Freeman, who was ninety-five last February. Alderman Fidler is "father" of the Newbury Corporation, and Mr. Freeman enjoys the title of being the oldest angler in the United Kingdom. Alderman Fidler has been a total abstainer for fifty years, but his friend has not abstained from intoxicants. Both, however, are non-smokers. The veterans recently visited the Newbury Exchange, which has been converted into a skating rink, and were there persuaded to put on the skates.

Paisley's Carnival.

Success attended the grand masquerade and costume carnival at the Paisley Rink on Tuesday evening. The large building, beautifully decorated and lighted in a special manner, was crowded to excess with sightseers, and the number joining in the masquerade carnival on the rink was the biggest that has attended any special gala night since Mr. E. H. Bostock opened his establishment. There were six competitions, for which the proprietor had supplied twenty valuable prizes, the awards being given by the popular vote of the audience. Prizes were awarded for the best historical costumes, the most original costumes, the most comical costumes, the best paper costume, the best advertisement costumes, and the prettiest costumes, with consolation prizes.

Coulson Robertson, Fancy Skater.

Another item on the programme was the trick and fancy skating exhibition of Mr. F. Coulson Robertson, late floor manager. Mr. Jack R Bostock, under whose able managership the skating rink is, was responsible for the arrangements connected therewith, and to him all the honour is due for such successful results as attended the carnival.

Prof. Fritz's Splendid Acrobatic Skating.

At a well-attended carnival held at the Empress Rink, Gloucester, last week, the new floor manager, Prof. Fritz, gave a splendid exhibition of acrobatic skating. He somersaults over a man's back, picks up a handkerchief with his teeth whilst bending backwards, and executes many other difficult tricks, concluding with a series of somersaults through hoops of fire. Prof. Fritz proved a great attraction.

Pavilion Rink, Spennymoor.

This popular rink, recently reopened, is being exceedingly well patronised. Mr. Percy Harrison, late of the Middlesbrough and Darlington Rinks, has been appointed as manager, and weekly novelties are being introduced. The first hockey match of the season took place on the rink with the Spennymoor team, who were opposed by the Redcar team, and a pleasant game resulted in a draw of one goal each.

Grand Hockey Match at Tynemouth.

Much interest was taken in a hockey match on roller skates which was played on the Tynemouth Palace Skating Rink on Thursday evening, the 3rd inst., between amateur teams representing Tynemouth and Newcastle (White City). The huge and commodious floor was in perfect condition for the event, and with two teams comprised of expert skaters the large assembly of enthusiastic spectators were kept in intense excitement during the match. The White Cityites met with their first defeat at the hands of the gallant Tynemouth boys, who, after a strenuously fought game deservedly won by three goals to nil. R. Champney, A. G. Young, and S. Dodds were the marksmen, their play individually being exceptionally smart.

Waterford and District Rink Hockey.

A satisfactory meeting was held at the Waterford Rink on Tuesday evening, Nov. 1, of ladies and gentlemen interested in rink hockey, when an association was formed called the Waterford and District Rink Hockey Association, and rules and bye-laws were agreed on, the district to count on fifty miles around Waterford. Practice will be held Mondays and Fridays for gentlemen, and Wednesdays for ladies, and as soon as the various clubs which consist of five players are formed, public matches are expected to be played two evenings each week. These matches will not affect the patrons' time for ordinary skating. It was also mentioned at the meeting that teams are expected to come from Cork, Limerick, and Dublin. There is also to be a club called the Waterford Rink Hockey Club, which members can join who are not members of other clubs. Applications to be made to Mr. J. C. Ferguson, secretary, The Waterford Rink Co. A league will shortly be formed consisting of the various hockey clubs, who will play between themselves for a set of gold medals.

Rinking at Rouen.

Le Grand Skating Rouennais was opened on Friday night, Oct. 28, when a large and influential company assembled to the number of upwards of 4,000. The building is a very handsome one, and the restaurant most elegant and comfortable, and being upon a raised dais a full view of the floor is obtained. Mr. Walter Shepherd (who was so favourably known in connection with the Gourock Skating Pavilion last year) has the appointment of resident manager, and the rink promises to be very successful.

Cape Hill Picture Palace, Smethwick.

Building operations have commenced for an Electric Picture Palace situate on Cape-hill, Smethwick. The building will be erected on the same lines as the Birmingham New-street Electric Theatre, and will seat 1,250 persons. It will be fitted throughout with tip-up chairs, and there will be ample refreshment lounges and waiting-rooms.

New Picture Palace at Ramsgate.

The new King's Electric Theatre at Ramsgate, which was opened to the public on Monday, the 31st ult., is a decided acquisition to the town. Erected on a central site, within one minute of the Market-place, the new building has an imposing front, two broad flights of patent concrete steps leading to the entrance to the main hall. The high-pitched roof gives a fine sense of spaciousness, and the hall will comfortably seat 700 people. All the seats are tip-up, and the stalls are handsomely upholstered in Russian leather. The rake of the floor ensures everyone securing a full view of the stage and pictures. The hall is artistically decorated, a particularly effective scheme of green and gold panelling being used, with an appropriate frieze. The hall is well lighted with electricity, and the ventilating and heating arrangements have been carefully considered, and particular precautions have been taken against fire. There are two shows nightly, with matinées on Thursdays and Saturdays, and the pictures include the pick of the films of Mr. Jury, who is also a director of the King's Theatre. They are interspersed with high-class varieties. The local directors are Messrs. H. Gold, R. Crow, and H. B. Boyland, all well known in the entertainment world.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, Sept. 27. — Her Majesty's. — Sole Lessees and Managers, J. C. Williamson, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. G. L. Goodman.—The production of Our Miss Gibbs on the 24th was on the most lavish scale. Mr. John Gordon, who was responsible for the setting of the second act, has never shown such magnificence of effect, and Mr. Little's setting of Garrod's Store surpassed all previously seen interiors. Brilliant costumes for all the ladies and attractive male attire, all arranged in sixes, kept up continual surprises, and the electrical devices kept us agog from 7.40 till 11.20, and found us still alert for more of the like. There was not one dull or dark moment. The plot is coherent, the fun continuous and clean, and the music sparkling in solo and concerted numbers throughout. A hearty welcome was accorded to Miss Blanche Browne, who established herself as a prospective favourite for her Australasian stoppings. The newcomer is comely, dainty, alert, graceful, and charmingly distinct in every sung or spoken word. Her Mary Gibbs is a most attractive portraiture, and Mr. Bertie Wright, as Mary's cousin "thro' Yorksheer" showed us the best of his best kind of comedy. With a thousand opportunities for exaggeration, nothing but legitimate fun was dealt out by this very excellent comedian. That impossible amateur burglar, the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint, had Mr. Langford Kirby on the go the whole night, and he proved most amusing. Mr. Andrew Higginson, always manly and tuneful, made us interested in Lord Eynsford's love affairs, and we liked his song, "My Yorkshire lassie." The sterling worth of Mr. C. R. Banstock's inclusion in any cast was again proved by his acting as the Earl of St. Ives. It was capital. Mr. Fred Leslie made Slithers a most attractive pickpocket, and his theftly success vastly pleased the Sydney playgoers. Mr. D. B. O'Connor hit off the mannerisms of Mr. Toplady as if he had actually been a Sydney shopwalker. Miss Alma Barber, fresh returned from London, was Lady Elizabeth, with a surprisingly subdued manner, new to this actress. Miss Nelly Wilson made a lot out of Mme. Jeanne, the French modiste of Scottish origin. Miss Fitzmaurice Gill, an experienced Australian actress, was a cleverly-placed Duchess of Minster, and Miss Florence Vie was the impecunious social "pusher" to the very life. An amazingly clever dance called "La Danse du Vaurien" was given by Miss Ivy Schilling and Mr. Fred Leslie. It was arranged by him, and evoked thunderous plaudits. Miss Minnie Hooper arranged all the dances. The large, rich-voiced chorus was trained by Mr. Andrew MacCunn, who conducted the orchestra. Mr. Gerard Coventry directed the production, and Mr. Fred Young was stage-manager. The ladies were comp'imented by huge floral tributes at curtain-fall, but, to the relief of all, no speech occurred.

Criterion.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Musgrove; Sub-Lessees, Sir Rupert Clarke and Mr. Clyde Meynell; Business-Manager, Mr. W. Noble.—The last night of The Arcadians was a time of wild excitement. The officers of the Dutch men-of-war were present, the house was suffocatingly full, and it seemed as if the company had shaken off the gloom caused by Arthur Edwards' most pitiful end. Miss Maie Sydney and Miss Essie Perrin, who both leave at once for England, were literally smothered in flowers, ribbons, and other presents. The company is now off to New Zealand. Mr. William Anderson's company is filling in the week before the George Willoughby comedy season begins on Oct. 1, by playing The Chance of a Lifetime. All the familiar tricks of the horsey fraternity were thoroughly welcomed and enjoyed. A horse who can walk upstairs is a novelty, and the audience was quick to acknowledge the managerial enterprise in providing the sensation. Mr. Conway Wingfield, the owner of Trixie, and Miss Harrie Ireland, the daughter of the trainer (afterwards mistress of Netherby Hall), were in their element, and captured their audience most effectively. Harry Sweeney was the Hon. Bob Lovett, a typical dude, a species which our people are taught to believe pervades the entire British aristocracy. Mr. Frank Gerald is the scoundrel Captain Clinch in veritable earnest. Miss Florence Richter (Mrs. Edgar), Miss Lilian Wiseman (Lady Betty Lovett), and Mr. Harry Douglas (Ben Blower) were all in the best of form. Stirling Whyte and a host of other favourites made up a coterie of conscientious interpreters of the author's intentions.

Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, J. C. Williamson, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. Edward Major.—The Williamson Grand Opera Company returned on the 24th and revived Carmen, Bel Sorel being again the impudent coquette. Taken from comic opera and musical comedy, Mr. Reginald Roberts made his first appearance in grand opera here as Don José. This hard-working singer is a good actor, and he made the part of much more value than even a better singer could have done. Mr. Roberts is always tuneful and distinct in his enunciation.

Palace.—Lessees, Messrs. Allan Hamilton and Max Maxwell; Business-Manager, Mr. George Buller.—The new programme is The Little Breadwinner. Owing to the illness of Miss Beatrice Holloway, the part of Margaret Daventry was played by Miss Vera Rernee, who acquitted herself most acceptably. The girl Meg gave Miss Queenie Williams a capital chance to show her ability, the result being a decided success. Miss Katie Towers imparted honest humour to the part of Mary O'Rourke, the Irish housekeeper. The sisters Cherry had Misses Mabel Russell and Muriel Dale as their prototypes. Mr. Max Maxwell knew how to play Richard Laurence perfectly; so did Mr. Charles Brown also serve Lord William Dorrington; and with Mr. Richard Bellairs, who was Joseph Prior, the scoundrel, and Mr. Ronald W. Riley, the happy sport Charles Prior, an effective cast was completed.

The Tivoli.—Proprietor and Director, Mr. Harry Rickards; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Leete.—Gracie Grahame returned on the 24th, and again secured popular favour. Tom Dawson is funnier than ever. He has to wait in his songs until the people choose to stop laughing. Cronin is the bright particular star; his turn is a truly marvellous one. An exhibition of what an aeroplane is capable of was given by a young Australian engineer, Mr. Newman, who used a cleverly-made model for his lucid demonstration.

Mr. A. C. Lilly, of Drummed Out fame, has secured the sole rights of an original military episode, by Mary Stafford Smith.

The case in which a young girl named May Ayres, aged twenty-one, was charged with stealing money by means of a trick, came up on remand at Bow-street Police-court on Tuesday. Evidence showed that she had made a practice of representing that she had lost her purse in a theatre during a matinée performance. She would tell the manager or his representative that she had come up from the country, and that the purse contained her return ticket and all the money she had with her, and in that way she succeeded in obtaining advances of a few shillings. The prisoner's arrest was brought about by Mr. Frederick King, a clerk at Daly's Theatre, who, after lending her 7s. 6d., saw her attempting to obtain money in a similar manner at the Prince of Wales's Theatre.

Two further cases were now gone into, the prosecutors being Mr. Charles Edward Gibbons, a clerk in the box office at the Savoy Theatre, and Mr. Thomas Miller, assistant manager of the London Hippodrome, who had parted with 5s. and 4s. respectively. In one instance the prisoner said she lived at Berkhamsted and in the other at St. Albans. A detective-sergeant stated that there were thirteen other cases of the same nature, extending over a period of about a month.

A letter from the girl's father was handed to the magistrate, and the Court missionary informed him that she had led a respectable life until last April, when she left a situation at Winchester. She then met a man who lent her money, and under whose influence she remained until he went away to Russia a short time ago. Accused, who was crying bitterly, expressed her sorrow, and promised that she would never do anything of the kind again. She was bound over to come up for judgment if called upon.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

STOCKPORT. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Miss Horniman's company is paying a welcome visit here, and on Monday gave a capital representation of Mr. Bernard Shaw's Candida. Mr. Ian Maclaren's acting was impressive as the Rev. James Mayor Morell; Miss Louise Holbrook displayed marked ability as Proserpine Garnett; as Eugene Marchbanks Mr. Leonard Mudie was sympathetic; Mr. Edward Landor pleasingly impersonated Mr. Burgess; Mr. Ernest C. Cassel made an excellent Rev. Alexander Mill; and Miss Rosalind Joan was charmingly effective as Candida. The Troth preceded. For Wednesday and Friday Cupid and Commonsense was billed.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.—The Ten Loonies, whose comical antics cause abundant laughter, head a capital all-round company, which includes the Davis and Gledhill Trio in a clever cycle and motor racing exhibition; a popular favourite, Harry Drew, Welsh basso; Charles Wakeman's Five Singing Gypsies, who are most entertaining; Zelda, a capable lady instrumentalist; Wal Owen, comedy juggler, who provokes plenty of mirth; Gertrude Lytton, a pleasing singer of chorus songs; and Michael Madden, an amusing comedian.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — CASTLE THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Haldane Crichton company is here with The Cingalee. Miss Isa Bowman makes a delightful Nanoya; Miss Ray Anderson a taking Lady Patricia; Miss Florrie Greensmith a captivating Peggy; Mr. Frank Barclay, as Harry Vereker, sings well, as does also Mr. Herbert Franklin as Bobby Warren; Mr. Hylton Warde is a funny Chambhuddy Ram; Mr. Frank Lennard (as Boobhamba) and Mr. Hellin Le Maistre (as Sir Peter) are capital.

HIPPODROME. — Lessee, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stainton. — Merian's wonderful dogs are the leading turn here; Jack Roscoe is a good comedian; Mabel and Hester Reeve are clever harmonising vocalists; Will Hanvarr and Anna Lee are as popular as ever; Norman Leonard Trio take well in a musical act; May De Rowse is a pleasing comedienne; Dankmar Schiller Troupe are clever acrobats and hand balancers; and the Bioscope concludes.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Wallie Batty. — Miss Nannie Goldman and Mr. William Holles' company is presenting here The Stepmother. Miss Nannie Goldman is very good as Danny; Mr. William Holles is a most natural Bob Brixtow; and Miss Patricia Bostock does well as Anna Vickers.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General Manager, Mr. Lloyd Townrow.—The Speckled Band is here. Mr. C. W. Somerset makes an excellent Dr. Rylott; Mr. E. H. Patterson gives a finished study of Mr. Armitage; Mr. Julian Royer is fittingly imperturbable as Sherlock Holmes; Miss Alice Leigh makes a charming Enid Stonor; Miss Adelaide Grace, a clever Mrs. Staunton; Mr. Bellenden Clarke acts well as Dr. Watson; and Mr. Herbert Vivian is capital as the Butler.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. Bernard Mervyn is producing the playlet The Deadbeat here this week, supported by a capital company.

PALACE THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. A. G. Hamilton.—Scott and Whaley are scoring heavily here this week with smart work, including singing and dancing; the Frohmans are presenting a pretty and effective musical turn; and the Croisit Trio execute some clever acrobatic work.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is here in The Power of the King. Miss Y. Conyers Radcliffe adapts herself admirably to the rôle of Lady Annastasia; Miss Doris Williams does well in the juvenile rôle of Phillipe; Mr. Clavering Craig acts throughout in an interesting manner as Captain Landgrave; and as the King of Vallambrosa Mr. Charles Whitlock is equally good. Mr. Roy Craig is a capable Alberta; Mr. Arthur St. John as Prince Oscar proves himself a good exponent of villainy; and is well supported by Miss Florence MacInnes as Lady Florina and Mr. Sprey Palmer as General Stevonic. The humour is in the hands of Miss Mana Stuart and Messrs. Wilton Drury and Fred Mewburn.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Wee Georgie Wood is astonishing and delighting audiences here; the Dayton Family present an exceptionally smart acrobatic mélange; Florence and Rose Shewell, operatic duettists, contribute vocal work that is keenly enjoyed; J. C. Scatter adds to his already high reputation as a dialect comedian; and the same may be said of Elsie Roby, "the slavey at the piano," an old favourite. Cosgrave and Burns are eminently successful in the presentation of their smart act, The Singing Academy; and capital entertainment is also provided by the Sisters Jerome and Dan Hendy.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. Arthur Leigh's company in Lucky Durham opened here on Monday for three nights. Mr. Edmund Kennedy achieved a success as John Durham; Mr. William Calvert made an effective Lord Mountfallon; Mr. Arthur Leigh as the Hon. Reg. Steighton never fails to amuse; Mr. Vallerton had a good interpretation at the hands of Mr. Charles Wemyss; Arthur Walcombe was well sustained by Mr. Frank Elton; Miss Florence Tressillian gave an admirable portrayal of Helen Vallerton; Miss Frances Wolviston was an excellent Lady Mountfallon; Miss Dorothy Turner was quite natural as the Hon. Margaret Steighton; and an impressive delineation of Mrs. Durham was presented by Miss Nellie Bonser. Mr. George Dance's company in Our Miss Gibbs is billed for the latter half of the week.

COUNTY ELECTRIC PAVILION. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur E. Melborne.—The pictures continue to draw good audiences, and are much appreciated.

TODMORDEN.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Richd. Dewhirst.—The Life of a Showman is here. As Brien Leader, the circus athlete, Mr. Frank Sante displays great physical strength; Mr. C. W. Bretton ably portrays Sir Noel Hartland; Mr. J. R. C. Hamilton gives a powerful delineation of Hendrick Marais; and able support is given by Miss Dora Price as Agatha Winter. Miss C. Bamford wins all hearts as the faithful wife of Brian Leader, being well seconded by Miss M. Legh as Lynette. Messrs. T. Maynard and Tom Wheeler, together with Miss Kitty Lamber as Tommy Allthere, Ben Tic Tac, and Angelina Mutton respectively supply the humour of the piece; Mr. J. G. Sante as Laurie Grey, the maimed musician, is deservedly encored for his violin playing; Mr. W. A. Armour makes an impression as the Rev. Cyril Arliss; and mention should be made of the clever knockabout work of Messrs. Pickard and West.

TORQUAY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Ald. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company in The Little Damozel is deservedly popular. Miss Emilie Polini presents a careful study of the title-rôle, portraying with considerable skill the more emotional scenes of the play; Mr. Alick Chumley as Recklaw Poole gives general satisfaction; the Captain Partington of Mr. George A. Brandram is a capital piece of acting; as the Hon. Fitzroy Lock Mr. Guy Newall provokes much amusement; and Mr. William Matthews is seen to advantage as Mr. Walter Angel. Miss Marion Lockie acts with becoming grace as Sybil Craven; Captain Gambier, Mr. R. S. Ravenscroft, and Mr. Frank Roy are quite satisfactory as Papa Batholdy, Franz Pepo, and Abraham respectively. The play is preceded by a charming little sketch, An Englishman's Lie, in which the principal parts are taken by Mr. George A. Brandram, Miss Marion Lockie, and Miss Maude Rivers, whose interpretation of Theresa Murray is exceedingly good.

TRALEE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Tralee Urban Council.—The Irish Animated Picture Co. had large audiences attending their display of pictures. The Sisters Colley provided the variety entertainments attractively.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale; Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Mr. F. R. Benson's company's annual visit is receiving the usual cordial appreciation. The week's répertoire includes A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Taming of the Shrew, King Lear, Richard III., Hamlet, and The Merchant of Venice. The principal successes are being scored by Mr. Henry Herbert and Miss Gladys Vanderzee, who are ably supported by the other members of the company. Friday evening's performance of The Tempest was under the special patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress.

TYLDESLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—The New Barmaid is being played by Miss Violet Osmund's company. Mr. Alexander Loftus establishes himself a favourite by his portrayal of Bertie White; Mr. Charles Adeson makes a humorous creation of the Waiter; Miss Madge Prior is seen and heard to advantage in the title-rôle; and others lending acting; as the Hon. Fitzroy Lock Mr. Guy Newall provokes much amusement; and Mr. William Matthews is seen to advantage as Mr. Walter Angel. Miss Marion Lockie acts with becoming grace as Sybil Craven; Captain Gambier, Mr. R. S. Ravenscroft, and Mr. Frank Roy are quite satisfactory as Papa Batholdy, Franz Pepo, and Abraham respectively. The play is preceded by a charming little sketch, An Englishman's Lie, in which the principal parts are taken by Mr. George A. Brandram, Miss Marion Lockie, and Miss Maude Rivers, whose interpretation of Theresa Murray is exceedingly good.

NEW EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Jack Forlescue and company are here in Hawkshaw the Detective, which is well acted. Mr. Tom Lloyd, comedian, is successful with funny songs; Mattie Lord, operatic vocalist, sings delightfully; Mr. Allie Moore gives a clever exhibition of jumping on roller skates; Mr. Renny Ray in a mock ventriloquial turn proves popular; Will R. Haines, character comedian, provides an acceptable act; Stanley and Vandyke, old favourites, are versatile in a comedy act; and Miss Ruby Maybutt, sand dancer, does well.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Capital pictures are exhibited on the Bioscope. The variety turns comprise Bob King, comedian, who merits approbation, and the Armicus, refined musical artists, who give an excellent performance.

WALLSEND. — BOROUGH THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hugh Duffy.—Henry and Tyler, trick cyclists, head the bill this week, and perform some wonderful feats; Beatrice English proves herself to be a sweet and cultured soprano; an entertaining turn is provided by Vandinoff, whirlwind painter, on a welcome return visit; Rose Gower, a dainty and captivating comedienne, is well received; and Briff, Braff, and Broff are successful in their comedy acrobatic tumbling. An additional turn is provided by Harry Levaine, a highly amusing comedian; and the Four Miovskys (comedy acrobatic musical eccentrics), Smith and Johnson (in a singing duo), and the Lynches (in American picture songs) are worthy contributors.

WALSALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Part Management, Moss and Stoll Empires, Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. F. Cyril Leighton's company in Capt'n Jack occupies the boards here this week. Mr. Ernest Owttrim in the title-rôle is all that can be desired; Miss Nina Blake-Adams sustains the rôle of Mary, Jack's wife, in a capable manner; the part of Anthony Cliversedge is cleverly characterised by Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh; Miss Betty Manners makes a charming Winnie Trent; the part of Billy Bowster is well played by Mr. Harry Leamar, and Miss Ada Arnott gives a humorous touch to her part of Ginge; Mrs. R. S. R. Pittard gives an admirable study of the scapegrace Barry Trent, and Mr. Herbert Bentone as Andrew Lee is excellent.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Joint-Management, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls are bright and pleasing in their song scena; the Hadj Mohammed troupe of acrobats are clever performers; Ferry Corwey, the musical clown, has something new and refreshing; Bert Weston scores as a comedian, as also does the popular Harry Bedford. Lizzie Glenroy is a refined comedienne and dancer; the Soho Trio introduce some good vocal numbers. The Bioscope concludes.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. Joseph Beecham.—General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader.—Mr. Harold Armitage's company is delighting large houses here this week with The Greater Love. As Paul, the martyr, Mr. Campbell Goldsmid displays histrionic abilities of a high order; Mr. Stanley Bedwell scores well as Jack May; Mr. Algernon J. Hicks is a typical cleric; and a clever sketch of Constable Drayton is that given by Mr. Wentworth Lawson. Mr. Dennis Bryan makes Andrew Isted a manly personage; Miss Marion Fawcett in the difficult rôle of Mrs. May imparts a depth of feeling which wins the warmest encomiums; and Mary, her daughter, is in the safe hands of Miss Francesca Strickland. Miss Ethel Russell as Sarah Higgs is seen to advantage in a light rôle.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Eric Longden. —Miss Mary Mayfren's company is here this week in The Yellow Fang, in which dramatic episodes of an opium den are fully illustrated, Mr. Gilbert Beckett and Miss Campbell scoring well. Carl and Mary Ohm's Animal Circus is an acceptable turn, and the well-trained ponies, dogs, and monkeys are well received. Reginald Beauchamp is a smart eccentric comedian; Miss Norma Grant scores in an entertainment at the piano; Halma is a smart juggler; Marie and Nellie Hula are pleasing vocalists and dancers; Albert St. Clair has a voice of remarkable range, and his songs are well received; Cissie Thompson is a refined comedienne; the Four Figaros are capital sketch artists, and Ten Minutes on the Continent provides capital amusement. The pictures are good.

ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Central Theatres and Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Manager, Mr. John Waters.—Good business is being done here this week. Lindsay and Hart are as big favourites as ever; Charles Rowen's songs are well received; Quennie May charms all with her vocalisation; and Arthur Lloyd, a local illusionist, accomplishes some clever tricks. The pictures are decidedly good.

GRAND. — Proprietors, The Palatine Company; Manager, Mr. S. Spencer.—The pictures at this house continue to be of a very high order.

WASHINGTON.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Lessees, The Alexandra Theatre Co.; Secretary, Mr. Joe Turnbull; Stage-Manager, Mr. Neo Johnson.—Proof is being presented here. The part of Pierre Lorance is successfully undertaken by Mr. Francis Roberts; Lazare finds a capable exponent in Mr. George Kingsley; Mr. Thomas R. Marshall is seen to advantage as Chamboran; Mr. Hubert B. Hein is good as Victor; Mr. Alfred Wiltshire does well as Duke D'Aubeterre; Miss Hero Hattaway is an excellent Adrienne; Miss Phena Powell scores as Madame Deprets; Miss Millicent James is a success as Duchesse D'Aubeterre; Miss Nellie Hayes is good as Julie; and Miss Esie Golding is a charming Valentine.

WATFORD.—PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lionel G. Holding.—The popular comedian, Mr. Charles Coborn, is a big attraction here this week, in three old favourites; Jessie Wilton provides a clever turn as a character vocalist; and Percy Hannan proves acceptable in capital tenor solos, Henriette and Selina have a charming entertainment; and Florence Wix, in chic songs, is highly diverting. Other turns include a sketch, Napoleon at Waterloo; Haig and Hazell, patter comedians and dancers; and the Brennans, the latter in a pleasing dancing act. Ruffell's Bioscope and a tuneful "Watford Palace March," composed by the musical-director, Mr. Augustus Greco, complete the entertainment.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Manager, Mr. Wallie Spinner.—Mr. Will Glaze's company with No Mother to Guide Her is here this week. Mr. George Gormley creditably sustains the part of William Saxby; as Felix Campbell, alias Green, Mr. Bernard J. Lieli plays with ability; the Rev. Tom Pelham finds an able exponent in Mr. Wm. Heilbronn; Mr. Frederick Biron is responsible for the performance of Bill Bunce; Bob Coleman is admirably portrayed by Mr. Will Glaze; Mr. Tom Beasley is good as Tim Tiddlebat; Miss Roma Pendrons does well as Millicent Saxby; Julia Pattorson is cleverly depicted by Miss Georgette Thierry; and as Nan Miss Betty Seymour is favourably received.

KING'S HALL.—Lessee and Proprietor, Mr. B. Kennedy.—The appearance of Jack Igo and Vera Cooke, speciality vocalists and dancers, is a huge success; a good turn also is that of Charlie Dixon, eccentric comedian; Miss Marie Clifford, vocalist, makes an excellent impression; the Digbys, trans-Atlantic comedy duo, are warmly appreciated; and the pictures are a special attraction.

WELLINGBOROUGH. — KING'S PALACE.—Fun is being caused by the musical eccentricities of Morelli and Moore; Harley and Hardon are a fine pair of knockabout comedians; George St. Helen scores with "Out in the West," and Gertie Mason is also on the programme.

EMPIRE.—A skit entitled The Manaphonegram, by the Three Merry Wags, is funny and well done; La Belle Greta's songs are in the best style; Kitty Arnold is applauded for her dances, and Frank Early causes many a laugh.

WEST BROMWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Nightingale and Montague Beaudyn.—Mr. Beaudyn is this week presenting The Bellringer. As James Pengar, the bellringer, Mr. Herbert Skardon is seen to great advantage; while Miss Sidney Crowe as Hesba Pengarth gives a delightful study. Mr. Geoff. Sutherland as Ann Chesney is also clever; and the other parts are in capable hands.

NEW HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. R. Colin; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. Colin, sen.; Secretary, Mr. W. Hebden.—A strong bill is headed this week with a clever little play, Australian Bush Boys, in which appear Miss Lidia Norton, Messrs. Sidney Merrall and Jim Brisbane, and Masters Len Norton, R. Welbourne, and Bob Hartley. Clever turns are also provided by Bert Rayburn, Harley and Milton, Wyllie Fox, Harry Keeble, Gladys Wells, Tessman, and the Three Comedy Chanters.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. F. Thompson.—Conan and Doyle are as brisk and humorous as ever; Cassie Walmer is always welcome; Waul Langtry continues to amuse; Howard and Harris are droll in their American eccentricities; some brisk work is neatly done by the Alex Piccad company of pantomimists; Minna Denvil sings prettily; and Wullie Walker is an amusing Scotch comedian.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Theatre Company, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Was She to Blame? by Messrs. Kimberley Green and Hinton's company, is the attraction here. In the rôle of William Clark, Mr. Fred L. Conynghame is excellent; and as Capt. Geo. Courtney Mr. Martin B. Pedler is good; Mr. Henry Rutland is a creditable John Norman; whilst as Frank Reselle Mr. George Langdon is entirely satisfactory. Mr. Ken Murray as Timothy and Miss Nita Owen as Sarah Swales are responsible for the comedy element, and keep the house in roars; Miss Margaret Hobart is an attractive Lilian Norman; and as Kate Reselle Miss Georgie de Lasa is all that can be desired.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Lessee, Mr. John Cottrell; Acting-Maanger, Mr. W. D. Murray.—The Five Yorkshire Lasses submit a novel vocal and dancing scena; and Flake White, king of lightning painters, and the Miltons, comedy skaters, all give attractive items. Several good pictures are shown, the most effective being Deformed Child, Hero in Peace and War, and the Governor's Daughter.

WEXFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. E. P. Ronan.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's Miss Hook of Holland company was here on the 3rd and 4th inst., and played to packed houses. Mr. Charles Simms possesses an inexhaustible fund of humour, and as Mr. Hook kept the audience in continual laughter, aided by that excellent comedian Mr. Edward Kipling as Simon Slinks. Mr. Jack Gray used his pleasing voice with effect as Van Vuyt, and Mr. Griffiths Moss made a pompous Captain Paap. Miss Marion Armitage in the character of Mina had to respond to several well-merited encores, and Miss Carda Walker made a fascinating Sally Hook, her singing and dancing being much appreciated. Misses Hazel Alexander and Ella Burke as Freda and Clara Voce were entertaining, as was Miss Frances Walker as Gretchen. The chorus was efficient, and the effects all that could be desired.

WEYMOUTH.—PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. R. Wallis.—Mr. Frank Stanmore's company is here in an amusing farcical comedy, Chasing Cynthia. Mr. Frank Stanmore is an amusing Billy Bootle; Miss Gurney Delaporte a sprightly Cynthia Coleman; Mr. Arthur Poole a successful Col. Theobald Chutnee, V.C.; and Mr. Mark Lester an exceedingly funny Dobson. Miss Adie Boyne gives a capital impersonation of Miss Pinch; and Miss Gladys Beech is very successful as Fifi.

WHITEHAVEN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—Messrs. Albert and Edmund's variety company are engaged here. In addition to the absurdity The Tower of London the following artists appear:—Mr. George Lambton, comedian; Walter Purvis and partner, in an amusing duologue, "The Postman"; Harry Morris, comedian; Desmond and Dare; Jean Kram, juggler; the Four Minnims; Vera Elmore, child comedienne; and Messrs. Albert and Edmund.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—A series of Shakespearean and classical plays is being given here by Mr. Alexander Marsh's company. On Monday David Garrick, followed by The Corsican Brothers, was presented. Mr. Alexander Marsh gives a capital portrayal of David Garrick; Squire Chivy finds an able exponent in Mr. Wilson Gunning; the part of Simon Ingot is in the capable hands of Mr. A. E. Walker; Miss Carrie Baillie proves herself a talented actress as Lilian Ingot; while Miss May Grimshaw as Tabitha Tatlough and Miss Agnes Gagan as Mrs. Bilberry render valuable assistance. The week's programme includes Romeo and Juliet, Julius Cæsar, As You Like It, Othello, Much Ado About Nothing, and Jane Shore.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—A welcome return visit is being paid by H. O. Wills, who is encored for his humorous songs; the Cumberlands are clever acrobatic cyclists; the Harvey Boys, comedians, cause much laughter; Ranckle is a smart character impersonator; Dolly Ross is a soubrette of talent; Gicardo is a smart juggler; Smith and Gibbs give a clever acrobatic performance; Barrie and Wood cause laughter with their entertainment; Ernest Clifford is a good comedian; and Ethel Donna a dainty comedienne and dancer. The pictures conclude.

WISBECH.—SELWYN HALL THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. C. Gates.—Pete was presented by one of Miss Inez Howard's companies last week-end with complete success. On Thursday of this week Mr. Geo. Dance's company, in Our Miss Gibbs, drew a crowded house.

WISHAW, N.B.—PAVILION.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Nimse. — William Jackson's Eight Lancashire Lads, in a clever dancing scena, top the bill here. The Three Royal Dreadnoughts give a clever rifle shooting exhibition; Kenneth and Kane, comedy duo, Ida Evilo, a daring trapeze artist, Harriet Rose, a fine singer of chorus songs, the Claymore Trio, in a dancing and club swinging turn, all go well, and the Bioscope concludes.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. G. Kimberley. — The perennial popularity of Uncle Tom's Cabin seems in no way to diminish, if one may judge by the well-filled house which gave Mr. Charles Harrington's American combination a warm welcome on Monday. Mr. J. H. Boehm repeats his excellent performance as Uncle Tom; and able support is rendered by Mr. Frank Lynne as St. Clair, Mr. Terence Nerrey as Phineas Fletcher, Mr. Tom Bowron as Legree, Mr. Reginald Kloof as Marks, Miss Sylvia Harrington as Eliza Harris, Miss Ethel Vernon as Aunt Ophelia, Miss Annie Watson as Topsy, and Miss Norah Bretton as Little Eva. The play is admirably staged.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Mr. H. P. Selwyn's company in A 33 to 1 Chance is the premier attraction here. Eadie and Ramsden again present Charley's Visit with undiminished success; Cul-Pitt is a versatile entertainer with a fund of racy humour; Waldo Etoile, in "The Crocodile and the Fairy," proves himself a marvellous contortionist; W. G. Webber, bass vocalist, wins applause; and Maudie Ford, comedienne and dancer, and Nora Stockelle, are also in the bill.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Kitto.—Mr. Bulmer's powerful company is here with The Girl Who Went Astray. Mr. Evan Roland as Adolphus Boomer was the life of the piece; Mr. Richard Ferris as Captain Julian and Mr. Mortimer as Rupert Murdoch were perfect in their respective parts; Miss Brooks, in the title rôle, represented her character with success; and Miss Masterson and Miss Dalby played delightfully.

CARNEGIE HALL. — Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; General-Manager, Mr. Fred Kitto. — The variety turns here include the Misses Henderson, harpists and dancers; and Bernard Cox, the double-voiced vocalist.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Malcom Spurgin.—This week Messrs. C. and F. Renad are playing The Merry Territorial here. A distinctive character is that of Mr. W. S. Stevenson, who plays the rôle of Sergeant Mustard; Mr. Haydon Scott made a good Capt. Carleton; as Corporal Toby Jones Mr. Victor T. Raymond was alive to the demands made upon him; Mr. Sydney Claydon was responsible for a good interpretation of Bertie; and the Augustus Gaybird of Mr. Edward de Vere was equally pleasing. One of the successes of the cast is Miss Lily Beverly, who cleverly played the part of Polly. Miss Irene Atchison was seen to advantage in the rôle of Bertie's wife.

YNYSHIR.—WORKMEN'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. H. Stewart.—An excellent array of up-to-date films is presented here. Miss Ella Blair and her Bowery Boys and Girls present new vocal and dancing specialities; and Ingram and Irving have an amusing comedy act in The New Office Boy. The Cinephone gives illustrated songs.

THE Four Khans, now playing a new and original magical act, will in future be known as the mysterious De Kolzas. The change of name is necessary to prevent proprietors associating the new show with their other act.

MR. ALF. HAMPSON has sent us a long letter explaining his claim to be the founder of the Terriers' Association. "On my return from America in 1890," writes, "I arranged for a meeting to be held in May, 1890, at Mr. Fletcher's, Thayle-street, Kennington. About half a dozen persons attended. After some discussion, a proposition was made by myself that an Association should be formed to be called the 'Terriers.' As one present facetiously remarked, we were 'after the Rats' (a society which had already been formed). I was appointed to draw up some rules, which I did, and at the following meeting they were accepted in their entirety. The idea at first was a membership of twelve, but the number was afterwards increased to twenty-four.

"Now for organisation. Who but myself proposed and carried out the first 'Terriers'' Fête and Gala at Dulwich, from the proceeds of which I handed a cheque for £63 odd to Mr. J. L. Graydon for the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, afterwards followed by the first 'Terriers' Fancy Dress Ball,' held at the Freemason's Tavern, and later on by the 'Music Hall (Trades) Exhibition, which ran two weeks at the Royal Aquarium. Both were organised and carried out by myself, with the assistance of the then secretary and a few other members. All I wish to do is to state real facts, and upon them I am prepared to stand."

JOHN LAWSON.

Extracts from American Criticisms of "THE MONKEY'S PAW."

The NEW YORK AMERICAN, Oct. 5.

"... There is a new dramatic playlet at the American this week that even people who are not steady patrons of vaudeville are going to talk about. They are already discussing a new actor, John Lawson, who is the central character in The Monkey's Paw. Lawson is a firm believer in detail. He is like David Belasco in his staging, as found in this playlet from over the sea. Lawson is certainly a performer who understands his art, and is certainly the best character actor we've seen for some time."

The NEW YORK AMERICAN, Oct. 13, 1910.

"... shows no abatement in popularity. John Lawson, in the original dramatic playlet, has already entrenched himself as a favourite, and his appearance in the act is invariably met with loud and sincere applause."

The NEW YORK TIMES, Oct. 4, 1910.

"... the most tense playlet we have ever seen. ... Met with a tremendous reception. ... John Lawson's performance of the old man is wonderful."

The NEW YORK SUN, Oct. 5, 1910.

"... a crowded house was thrilled with this weird playlet. ... Undoubtedly a step in the history of vaudeville. ... John Lawson is undoubtedly a great character actor."

The NEW YORK WORLD, Oct. 4.

"... The Monkey's Paw, with the English actor, John Lawson, scored an immediate success. ... It is undoubtedly a gripping piece, and will draw the Town. ... Lawson's acting as the old man is one of the finest bits of character acting seen here."

The NEW YORK STAR, Oct. 24.

"... John Lawson, a big actor in a big act."

The NEW YORK CITY REVIEW, Oct. 8.

"... John Lawson proved himself a great character actor as the old father ... and those who appreciate a high-class sketch, good acting, and a weird story should certainly see it."

The NEW YORK DRAMATIC NEWS, Oct. 8.

"... it's as tense a little playlet as we have seen. Mr. Lawson has a charm about him that is sure to be appreciated here. He is certainly an actor who knows how to emphasise a dramatist's strong points."

The NEW YORK EVENING MAIL, Oct. 27.

"... John Lawson is one of the best actors appearing in New York at this moment. He enters into his rôles with such intense conviction that you forget he is acting, and is not really living the part. ... It is certainly refreshing to see a human being presented without any resort to artificial and theatric methods."

SAM MCKEE, in the NEW YORK MORNING TELEGRAPH, Oct. 25, says:—

"... That producers of dramatic plays who scoff at vaudeville should have allowed John Lawson to escape them is astounding. Physically he is a small man. From the standpoint of dramatic acting he is the biggest little man this American generation has known."

"THE RUIN OF HER LIFE,"

The Era says:—
In "The Ruin of Her Life" Mrs. Morton Powell has written just the type of drama of which the stage stands in need. The story is a strong, heart-moving one; it grips the audience the moment the curtain rises, and that grip is never lost till the final tableau, and we leave the theatre feeling that the night has been all too short, and filled with a strong desire to see it all again. It is a drama which will hold the stage for many years, and given a London production it would make the fortunes of manager and authoress. . . . Mrs. Charles Sugden in this act treats us to a piece of acting which is nothing short of wonderful. The despair of the mother, who feels no love in her heart for the child they call her daughter, her struggle to take Fairy to her arms, her scorn of Devel, her love and gratitude to Sir Philip, her wild outbursts of grief, despair, hope, and fear, follow one another with lightning-like rapidity. She sways her audience with a magic touch, her acting rising to heights seldom seen in melodrama. . . . Here again Mrs. Sugden's marvellous powers were fully revealed. The cough, the slouching gait, the alcoholic, husky voice, were all true to life. It was no stage figure, but an absolute type of London's submerged tenth, which we saw before us. Nothing more striking, vivid, and realistic than this gem of character acting could be imagined. In London it would set the West-End talking.

The Leicester Daily Mail, Nov. 1, says:—

MRS. CHARLES SUGDEN AT THE THEATRE ROYAL.

Local lovers of good, wholesome drama who were at the Theatre Royal, Leicester, last night were decidedly fortunate to have the opportunity of witnessing the first performance of "The Ruin of Her Life." . . . and the large audience which filled the auditorium, both in the popular parts and in the circle, showed, by its appreciation, that a really good work has been put on to the boards. "The Ruin of Her Life" possesses to the fullest extent those essential factors without which no drama can possibly hope for a LONG AND SUCCESSFUL RUN.
The play is from the pen of that well-known writer of drama, Mrs. Morton Powell, who has
ECLIPSED ALL HER PREVIOUS EFFORTS.
It is well balanced, all the scenes are carefully laid, there is no overlapping or a superabundance of material which so often mars the success of a drama; it constitutes a chain of intensely exciting episodes which grip the attention of the audience from
THE RISE TO THE FALL OF THE CURTAIN.
Perhaps the greatest feature of "The Ruin of Her Life" is that all-important fact that it centres round a delightful theme, and points out in a realistic manner much of the seamy side of child-life by exposing the many horrors and dangers which beset juveniles in the hands of unscrupulous people of the Father Fagin type. . . . One can imagine the tremendous possibilities of such a theme, especially when in the hands of a talented company, as that convened by Mrs. Charles Sugden.
THE AUDIENCE ARE HELD SPELLBOUND,
the play was splendidly acted, and everything went off without the slightest hitch. Of course, the premier honours go to Mrs. Sugden in the part of Mary Macair, which was specially written for her by Mrs. Morton Powell. It is a triple rôle, and whether as the ticket-of-leave woman, Lady Selwyn, or a drunken hag, Mrs. Sugden acts with all customary skill. Upon the success of these characters the play hangs, and the heroine of "Zaza" and many other famous plays rises to all the demands placed upon her.

WANTED, Nov. 28, onwards, also Christmas, Horace Wheatley.
In great form.
Tivoli, Dublin.

The popularity of the company ensured such great business at both houses last week, the early doors packing the houses, that Mr. Jones was forced to make the now historic remark: "That even if he had Lauder he couldn't find room for another person." This just shows you what a carefully-chosen and well-balanced company can do. The principal attraction was Dublin's premier favourite, Mr. Horace Wheatley, who, after the applause had subsided, gave us in his best style a pretty Irish melody, entitled "The Sprig of Shamrock." It is a good song, and as done by Horace went great. He then told some stories that his old friend MacIntyre is responsible for, following with that good old song, "Magee's Wedding." Here he made an effort to escape, but the Tivoli audience had him back again with cries of "Give us a dance, Horace!" so he let them have another old favourite, "Fitzpatrick John Malone," which he finished with one of his great soft-shoe dances during the execution of which you could hear a pin drop in the packed house. Having finished he had to come before the curtain and give them another few steps to the melody of "Father O'Flynn." I never saw Horace Wheatley better in my life, and I have seen him a few times. The old dog for the hard road, and good luck to him. —Irish Sporting Illustrated, Oct. 8, 1910.

An Important Sale
by Public Auction.

To Roundabout Proprietors, Showmen, and Travellers in General.

WANTED, Known, Mr. Tom Norman having been favoured with Instructions from the owner, who is retiring from the Business, to Offer for Sale by Public Auction on Wednesday, Nov. 16, at 2 p.m., prompt,
on Market Ground, Crewe,
all that Beautiful Set of Three-abreast Gallopers as a going concern, which are undoubtedly Second to None in this country, Savage's make, comprising 40ft. centre truck, Savage's engine, splendid carved and gilt top centre and droppers, 14 carved and gilded rounding boards, cornice, and droppers, over 5ft. deep; carved and gilded drum; large ornamental mirrors; 36 carved horses, by Spooner; 2 motor cars, altogether carrying 74 persons, twisted brass rods; magnificent Gavioli self-changer, 10 Excello lamps; the whole packs on four loads, road or rail (Savage's trucks). Also 3 h.p. Burrell traction engine and dynamo; 1 14ft. road Pullman living wagon, by Orton.
All the above are in condition as new, and can be seen running on day of sale.
The Proprietor having quite recently spent a very large amount of money on the concern, especially the organ and traction, it is now without doubt absolutely equal to a new concern and worth the consideration of those that require a really smart, up-to-date lot.

PLEASE NOTE.—NO DEPUTIES WILL BE ACCEPTED AT REHEARSALS.

Special provision has been made at each theatre for the exhibition of loose photographs. Artistes are requested to supply these to the Manager on reaching the theatre, and they will be returned in good condition at the end of the week.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

MELODRAMA SYNDICATE, LTD., v. JACK FORTESCUE.

TO MANAGERS, AGENTS, AND THE PROFESSION AT LARGE.

Extracts from the published reports of the above case:—

The Lord Chief Justice said: "No doubt Mr. Fortescue is an accomplished actor, and the bloodhound, Pedro, had been well trained by him. He had established his case, and was entitled to damages."

George Elliot, Esq., K.C. (opposing counsel), said: "No suggestion is made against Mr. Fortescue's ability or personal honour. Mr. Fortescue is a gentleman and a brilliant and accomplished actor, and he (Mr. Elliot) quite agreed that he was entitled to damages."

Jury's verdict: Jury found for Mr. Fortescue on all points, awarding him damages and costs.

May I extend my sincere thanks to the numerous friends and well-wishers who inundated me with congratulatory letters and telegrams? I am sure that they will realise the difficulty of replying to them individually, and will accept this as my personal thanks.

FINANCIAL TIMES, Jan. 24, 1910.
"The Era" Annual, 1910, 1s., 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C. As usual, this well-known annual of the theatrical profession contains a complete record of the plays and sketches produced during the year, in this country and abroad, a record, with photographs, of stage celebrities whose deaths have taken place during the period, directories of theatres and music-halls in the United Kingdom and a well-arranged dramatic and musical calendar. The ever-popular series of good stories told by well-known people, and illustrated by the author's photographs and autographs, is led off this time by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, with "Where was the old Globe Playhouse?" and the reputation this symposium has gained for humour and wit is thoroughly maintained. The Annual will make a strong appeal, not only to members of the profession, but to all theatre lovers.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatre Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The New Lady Bantock is presented by a company under the direction of Mr. Horace Lingard and Miss Beatrice Moreau. Mr. Lingard takes the part of the stern and austere butler, and comports himself admirably; Miss Moreau as Fanny puts life and vigour into her acting, and scores a distinct success; Mr. Leon Hastings makes a tactful Dr. Freemantle; Mr. Campbell Fletcher as Lord Bantock is engaging and bright; while Mr. Wilfrid Compton as George Newte is quietly effective.

PALACE THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher. —Edward Crossland's Melody-makers are musical artists of decided ability, and give a spirited rendering of The Burglar's Dream; the Elsa Satanella Trio combine successfully comedy and acrobatic skill; Vera de Astra scores prettily in a sketch entitled A Shepherd's Dream of the Year; George Clark and Tom Mostol dance and act with captivating power; Fred Dunstone sings well; Cambo and Castelle are musical adepts of no mean order; the Eight Frolics sing and dance with sprightly grace; Miss Annie Schuberth gives a capital rendering of a novel act, The Deputy; or, A Private Rehearsal; and the Corsican Brothers display decided skill as instrumentalists.

THE TIVOLI.—Proprietors, the Tivoli (Aberdeen), Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—D'Arc's Marionettes are decidedly pleasing; the Norman Leonard Trio give a realistic representation of old-time habits in a musical sketch entitled The Squire's Dance; the Miltons give a graceful exhibition of skating evolutions; the Janowskys are a troupe of exceptionally clever acrobats; Mr. Gena Manon is a vocalist of tunefulness and power; Julian Ross gives a clever humorous turn; Syd Crossley as "The Long Comic" is droll; the Chunn Trio are versatile performers; and Mr. T. Brown McGill, a local tenor, enhances his reputation by his tasteful singing.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lyndon and company opened here on Monday in Why Did She Run Away. Mr. John B. Shinton as the Vicar of Charnley, Norman Helmsley, wins praise for a realistic performance; Mr. Stephen Langton acts in a capable manner as Cecil Whiteley; and Mr. Cyril Craven gives a good interpretation of John Helmsley; Mr. Harry Lyndon proves himself a comedian of ability as Willie Lightning; Mr. Sidney Fiennes acts the part of Sam Fletcher forcibly; and Mr. Frank Foxwell is well suited as the Hon. Percy Choldneley. Miss Iza Lyndon is a charming Sybil Vanbrough; Miss Ada M. Ryder ably sustains the part of Vera Maxwell; and Miss Florrie Johnson is all that could be desired as Jane Ellison. Master Sidney Clarance deserves every commendation for his portrayal of a street arab.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Fred Elton in his entertaining items at the piano is the star turn here; Viviana and company in The Toy Shop are well received; and Gibbon and Bell in their acrobatic turn are deservedly popular; Baddow, ventriloquist, convulses the audience with laughter; the Millwards give a capital gymnastic display; J. Cheetham proves himself a clever whistler; Harold Heath, coon singer and dancer, gives a very smart turn; and the Bioscope pictures conclude.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—A welcome return visit is being paid by Mr. George Dance's company with Our Miss Gibbs. Miss Daisy Wallace plays the part of Mary Gibbs with plenty of go, and she has a pleasing manner, which helps materially to make her impersonation a success; Miss Flo Hylton retains the part of Mrs. Farquhar, a rôle which is admirably suited to her; Miss Dorothy Harris gives a charmingly refreshing personation of Lady Elizabeth, and sings with excellent result; Miss Madge Lucas is good as the Duchess; and Miss Louie Beckmann as the modiste does well; Mr. Vincent Erne as the humorous Yorkshireman Timothy is most amusing; and both he and Miss Wallace are the recipients of hearty re-demands for their specialities in song and dance; Mr. Herbert Willis is another amusing artist, and as Hughie helps to keep the merriment in full swing; Mr. Douglas Phillips gives a capital enactment of Lord Eynsford; and Messrs. Frank Sealey and Gordon Begg repeat former successes here as Toplady and the Earl respectively; whilst Messrs. David Miller (Lawyer) and J. S. Durant (Slithers) also are successful. The musical comedy is well dressed and effectively staged.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. R. Macdonald's company is here with The Dairymaids. Miss Marie Rignold makes the utmost of her opportunities as Lady Brudenell; Miss Ethel Callanan as Peggy is prominent, singing and dancing with artistic grace; as Winifred, Miss Marjorie Manners distinguishes herself; as Eliza, Miss Edie Martin is chic; and Miss Sheila Hayes, Rose Edouin, Lily Cameron, Gwenneth Hughes sustain other rôles capitally. In the comic element the lion's share falls to some excellent comedians: Messrs. W. Spray as Lieut. Sam Brudenell, Harry Clark as Lieut. Frank Meredith; James W. Duval as Tim Capers; W. W. Biddlecombe as Lieut. Breston; Robert Caradoc as Todgers; and Mr. Edwin Dodds as Joe Mivens; Mr. Harry Scaddan makes a fine Irish character of Dr. O'Byrne.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—Fred Karno's The Wow-Wows, with Syd Chaplin and Jimmy Russell as Archibald Binks and Jimmy Bottles, heads the bill. Mr. Karno's company also appear later in the evening in Early Birds. The other artists for the week are May De Rowse, comedienne and eccentric dancer; the ideal couple, Belle and Austin, in A Fatal Rehearsal; Dix and Dox, Continental musical grotesques; Three Aza Boys, a trio of refined singers and expert dancers; and Adela Masson, operatic, amusing, and dramatic songstress, in her triple song scena.

ATTERCLIFFE. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—A well-selected programme of humorous and dramatic pictures, which are entirely changed twice weekly, is drawing large audiences here. The principal films this week are: The Tax-Gatherer, The First Grey Hair, The Five-pound Note, Majesty of the Law, Mother's Love—all very interesting and dramatic. Italian Switzerland is a pretty travel picture of delightful scenery. Lysando Brothers, clever acrobatic equilibrists, and the Deverkas, amusing comedians, are responsible for well-appreciated variety turns.

PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Matt. Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward King.—The "star" pictures this week are Assassination of President Lincoln and Vengeance of the Dead. A hearty reception is given to Kloof and Ramsay for their bright musical act; and Laurie and Elsy are heard to advantage as vocalists. The augmented Scarlet Band, under the able direction of Mr. W. A. Guest, adds greatly to the success.

AYR.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Messrs. J. E. Watson and C. T. Dee's company is presenting Priscilla Runs Away. In the part of Priscilla Miss Beatrice Lindley is charmingly vivacious, and much of the success of the performance is due to her acting; Mr. Leslie Owen as Prince Lucerne acts with power; Mr. Clifton Anderson as the Grand Duke makes the most of his part; as Court Librarian Mr. J. Edward Pearce plays well; and others worthy of mention are Mr. Leslie Ryecroft, Mr. Cyril Bruce, Mrs. Thomas Sydney, Miss Maxine Hinton, and Miss Annie Stalman.

BACUP.—COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Walters.—Haldane Crichton pays a return visit here with The Cingalee. Vereker is well played by Mr. Frank Barclay; Mr. Hylton Warde is funny as Chambhuddy; Boobhamba is in the capable hands of Mr. Frank Lennard; Mr. Herbert Le Maistre is good as Sir Peter; the part of Lady Patricia is in the capable hands of Miss Ray Anderson; and Miss Isa Bowman plays Nanoya creditably.

BARNSLEY.—EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. The Barnsley Empire Palace Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Will Smithson.—An excellent bill this week is headed by the Three Laurels, who perform some marvellous hand-balancing, &c.; the Fimans, in The Fire Station, are heartily applauded; Lieven and Pantzer, in A Lesson in Physical Culture, are keenly appreciated; the Goltz Trio submit a clever turn; an excellent mimic is Yorkshire Tom; two good songs are rendered by Vera Mayne; and other artists on the bill are Nellie Peers and Rex and Ford. The Palascope shows two good pictures, The Smith and An Interrupted Honeymoon.

ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. The Barnsley Theatre Royal Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—The Barnsley Shakespearean Society are presenting King Richard III. this week.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton. —The Barnstaple Picturedrome Company, under the direction of Messrs. Lionel Prichard and F. A. Osborne, are giving a good show this week. Miss Cissy Trent, who tops the bill, is a protean dancer of exceptional ability; Mr. Wilmot Hastings continues his success, and his musical tramp act meets with approval; Miss Elsie Gorton also appears in illustrated songs. The Bioscope completes a capital programme.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—Mr. Charles Windermere and company is here this week in Where is William? Mr. Charles Windermere is delightfully humorous as Sir William Gregory, and is ably seconded by Mr. Rule Pyott. Mr. Robert Urquhart is a capital Harry; and Mr. Leslie Norman is good as the testy General Rubbub. Miss Belle Donaldson is a graceful and charming Lady Gregory. A one-act play, The Clown, precedes each evening.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The lessees are taking a benefit this week, and Mr. Walter Maxwell's company, in Mr. Preedy and the Countess, is here. Mr. A. W. Baskcomb proves a talented actor, and makes Mr. Preedy exceedingly funny; and Miss Nella Powys plays the Countess of Rushmere with much charm. Mr. John Nesbitt does well as Bounsall; and Miss Ninon Dudley is clever as Harriett Budgeon.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—Charles Prelle's Bijou Circus is here. An exceedingly clever exposition of animal training is given. Moon and Morris are a pair of excellent entertainers. Their songs and patter are good, and their step dancing is exceptionally smart. Helen Martin has a most captivating voice, and is happy in the selection of her songs; Hinton and Wooton are clever as cycle footballers; the Kebbles are a pleasing turn as duettists and dancers; Wallie Fitzgibbons is good in a musical entertainment. Vernon's Bioscope concludes with some good pictures.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting Manager, Mr. Frank Dure.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company in At Cripple Creek is paying a return visit. Mr. Wernham Ryott plays Joe Mayfield with convincing effect; Ben White is skillfully handled by Mr. Harry Benson; Mr. Chas. Calver (Reggie) and Miss Tina Langlois (Maggie Mason) are responsible for a lot of merriment; the heavy characters are well sustained by Messrs. Chas. E. Johnson and J. O. Cuthbertson; Miss Agnes as Dynamite Ann, Miss Norah Dillon as Sarah Lively, and Miss O'Niel as Bell Gordon, play well; Mr. Wilfred Jessop gives a faithful portrayal of Waktekak; and Little Doris scores a well-deserved success as Little Tato.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Manager, Mr. W. Wm. Minto.—Lal and Hal have an attractive musical and ventriloqual scena, and Marquis and Truly contributes an amusing acrobatic and musical act. The pictures are pleasing.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—After being closed for a week the theatre reopened on Monday with Mr. Harry P. Tower's company in Dear Little Denmark. Christine and Conrad are well represented by Miss Thelma Raye and Mr. Cameron Carr; the comedy is safe in the hands of Mr. Tom Payne as Hans Hansen and Mr. Edward Thirlby as the Duke, the dancing of the former gentleman being really excellent; Mr. Arthur Ballance sings well; Miss Alice Waldie is applauded for her "goey" rendering of her Copenhagen song; a lady who worked with success was Miss Winifred Volt as Ophelia, her duet with Mr. Payne in the second act being much appreciated; Mr. Frank Lewis did well as the Burgomaster; and Mr. George W. Ruff was duly quaint as Jenson. Miss Nancy Rich and her companions received a recall for their ballet song and dance.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Here this week are Toch and Tard, in their burlesque, acrobatic, and comedy act, and they are immense favourites; the Brothers Hannaway amusingly banter each other; Miss Julia Reeve wins hearty recalls for her original Lady Bill-poster scena; the Four Figaros, in their vocal and dancing turn Ten Minutes on the Continent, entertain vastly; the magic act of Yettmah is cleanly worked; Fred S. Peake and Dora Davis invest the Cromwellian episode The Swashbuckler with dramatic importance; Willie Rennie dances himself into favour on skates; and Edwin Garth, comedian, is also in the bill.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Our Flat is being presented by Messrs. Murray King and Clarke's company this week. Mr. Murray King plays the part of Nathaniel Glover, and his impersonation and make-up create much amusement; Miss Louie Tinsley's portrayal of Bella is also productive of a deal of mirth; Mr. Warburton Gamble puts plenty of spirit and humour into the part of Reginald Sylvester; and Miss Florence Radcliffe is a charming Marjory; Mr. Ardene Linden excels as Mr. McCullum; good work is done by Miss Evelyn Shelley as Mme. Volant, Mr. Walter Brodie as Jeremiah Pinchard, and Mr. Owen Rice as the foreman from the stores.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company opened here on Monday with Smith. In the title-rôle Miss Cicely Stuckey, an accomplished actress, achieved a noteworthy success; Tom Freeman was excellently portrayed by Mr. Robert Minster, his acting throughout being irreproachable; Miss Ethel Hodgkins played Mrs. Dallas-Baker with much skill; and an effective portrayal of Mr. Dallas-Baker was submitted by Mr. F. G. Thurstans; Algey Peppercorn was cleverly sustained by Mr H. Douglas Greet; and Emily Chapman was naturally and convincingly interpreted by Miss Pauline Straus; Miss Ethel Wellesley appeared to advantage as Mrs. Otto Rosenberg; and Mr. George Gamble was a satisfactory Fletcher.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Nick Carter is portrayed by Mr. J. Forbes Knowles and Harry Masterman's company. In the title rôle Mr. J. Forbes Knowles gained gratifying approval for his clever impersonation, and great praise is due the talented actress, Miss Helena Walbran for her realistic impersonation of Madeline. The heavy part of Eustace Lee is sustained with no little skill by Mr. Raymond Thomas; and Miss Ella Vane is a satisfactory Stephanie; Mr. William Burgess is well placed as Dave Crowley; and little Hilda Votes deserves praise for her clever portrayal of Cyril Carter; the humorous element is in the capital hands of Miss Nancy Laurence as Bessie; Miss Nellie Shirley as Matilda Timmins, Mr. Harry C. Momber as Theophilus Timmins, and Mr. Will Ellythorne as George Slade, their various impersonations being responsible for much hilarity.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs. —The star here is Mr. T. E. Dunville, the inimitable comedian, who made a hit on Monday. Charlburn's young stars, a troupe of twelve juveniles, have been very successful, and much mirth has been created by those droll comedians Messrs. Palles and Cussick; the equilibristic feats of the Colombias are undoubtedly smart; Mr. Harris Cooney is a clever dancer; Gladys and Alber in their funny funniosities gain much approval; and also here are Miss Leah Arden, vocal comedienne, Mr Harry Bickley, comedian, and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—The top of the bill here is occupied by Mr. Tom Edwards, the smart ventriloquist; Ike and Will Scott gain a gratifying success with their capital comedy act; the fine baritone voice of Mr. Ford Williams has been heard with pleasure in "The Wolf" and other songs; Mr. Charles Erard, a good pianist, is also a realistic mimic; and the Channings appear to advantage in their vocal and instrumental act; Mr. Harry Simms, comedian; and the Bioscope completes a first-class programme.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Among many attractive films exhibited here may be mentioned Bowker v. Stanley, Burglar Expected, and Convict 796. The vaudeville element is sustained by Sadie and Vone, comedy duo; and Kendrick and Laura in harmony and eccentric dancing act.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers.—Excellent pictures are shown here. Miss May Hall, dainty comedienne and dancer, appears with marked success.

PRINCESS PICTURE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. D. Ryall.—In addition to the pictures, Revel and Raval appear in song, dance, and story.

BILSTON.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Tunstall.—No Mother to Guide Her just suits the popular taste. Miss Betty Seymour makes a delightful Nan; Miss Roma Pendros is very successful as Millicent Saxby; the Rev. Tom Felham is admirably depicted by Mr. William Heilbronn; Mr. Fred Biron interprets the character of Bill Bunce cleverly; and Julia Paterson has a capable exponent in Miss Georgette Thierry.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris. —Mr. Gaston Mayer's company in Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, are fulfilling an initial engagement in this town. The piece is produced by Mr. Kenneth Rivington, and the success of the comedy has been most gratifying. Miss Lucy Beaumont gives a fine performance of Mrs. Wiggs; Miss Annie Grace is equally good as Miss Hazy; Lovey Mary is well represented by Miss Winifred Murray; and Miss Sybil Brooke is an excellent Mrs. Eichorn. Mr. Stubbins is cleverly and humorously played by Mr. Fred Forrest; Hunkerdunkus Jones is made much of by Mr. Harry G. Wright; and the remaining characters in a lengthy cast are, without exception, adequately filled.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—Hayman and Franklin, entertaining Hebrew comedians, are a prominent attraction; and Dale and O'Malley, comedians and patterers, also have a host of admirers. Bert Williams is an expert ventriloquist; and G. W. Hunter, a sterling comedian and raconteur, renews previous successes. A fine combination also includes Miss Minnie Mace, comedienne; the Sisters Simms, vocalists and dancers; Billy French, clog dancer; Bert Pemberton, baritone vocalist; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Speckled Band was played at another theatre here a few weeks ago, but the visit this week of a new company in the play is meeting with success. An admirable presentation of Dr. Grimesby Rylott is given by

On their garments not a blemish,
But fresher than before.—The Tempest.

ORIGINAL THEATRICAL CLEANERS & DYERS, AND CONTRACTORS TO HIS MAJESTY'S OFFICE OF WORKS.

COPY OF TESTIMONIAL.

From J. A. Harrison Co., Ltd., Theatrical Costumiers, 29, Leicester Square, W.C.
27th October, 1910.

To T. Harris, Esq., Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 6, Argyll Street, W.

Dear Mr. Harris,—

I am very pleased with the cleaning of the Pantomime Wardrobe you have just sent back. It may interest you to know that some of the Costumes were made six years ago. They look almost as good as the first time they were used.

Yours truly, J. A. HARRISON,
Managing Director.

Mr. Lyn Harding, whose performance necessarily dominates the piece; Mr. O. P. Heggie is excellent as Sherlock Holmes; Miss Mary Forbes as Enid Stonor achieves success; Mr. Talbot Homewood is a convincing Dr. Watson; Mr. Asheton Tonge is responsible for a capital study of the butler; and as the Methodist village grocer Mr. G. H. Brooke is genuinely amusing.

PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The D'Oyly Carte Opera company are to be heartily congratulated upon their excellent work. The programme arranged for this the second week of its stay consisted of Yeomen of the Guard, Iolanthe, Princess Ida, Pirates of Penzance, and The Mikado.

ALEXANDRA.—Manager, Mr. Fred Barnardo; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—A return visit of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, in The Earl and the Girl, proves that the piece has a complete hold over Birmingham theatregoers. The leading incidental item is a Chantecler scene, in which the principal characters are well sustained. Mr. Edward Lewis as Jim Cheese is the chief humorist, and he is a big favourite; Mr. Herbert St. John is excellent as Dick Wargrave and Miss Lily Gullick (Elphin Haye), Miss Lina Hicks ('Liza Shoddam), and Mr. Lionel Scott (Hon. Crewe Boodle) are also prominent.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Who is She? is effectively presented by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company. Mr. Hill-Mitchelson ably sustains the part of Prince Bora, and Miss Ada Champion as the mysterious lady is frequently applauded for good work. As the Countess Ladori Miss Alice Barber is conspicuous; and the other characters are well represented.

METROPOLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Shop-Soiled Girl is enjoying a successful fortnight's stay at this theatre, and is playing to good houses. There are many points of attraction about this new drama, and being well handled by a clever company, it is creating an excellent impression. Miss Georgina Wynter is popular in the title-rôle; Miss Gladys Ford-Howitt makes a charming Vera Thurston; Mr. C. W. Standing carries himself well as Jack Duncan; Mr. H. E. Herbert gives a good portrayal of the man from Lancashire; and other prominent people are Mr. Will Smith, Mr. Tom E. Sinclair, Mr. Harvey Braban, Mr. Wilfred Lyndon, and Miss Winifred Pearson.

ASTON THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis Chapman.—Driving a Girl to Destruction is occupying the boards here. The company is Mr. Morton Powell's, and the piece is admirably presented. The heroine, Ruby Wright, is cleverly portrayed by Miss Maud M. Powell and Miss Marie Robson as Ruth Wright gives a capable representation. Mr. Cecil Mannering makes an ideal stage villain as Lucas List, and Mr. Henry Scathard, Mr. Arthur T. Ellis, and Miss Eva Norman are also prominent in the chief situations. The comedy parts are well sustained by Mr. Fred Yarnold, Mr. Frank C. Lester, Mr. H. Arnold Allen, and Miss Effie Macintosh.

CARLTON THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Scarlet Clue is proving a great dramatic success this week, presented by Miss Grace Warner and her London company. The story is a powerful one, embodying features of deep child interest, and the characters are all-absorbing. Miss Grace Warner portrays the central figure, Sal Scarlet, with true appreciation of the value of the character, and her acting is always convincing. Mr. George Gordon, as Michael Stanton, is a clever actor; and Mr. Louis Nanton, in the part of Billy the Rotter, is a decided acquisition to the cast; Master Willie Taylor and Little Glad Thorpe are capable juveniles; and other characters are well portrayed by Mr. Frank Esmonde, Mr. Frank Hertie, Miss L. Palmer, and Miss L. Price.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—Crowded audiences are enjoying a varied and bright entertainment. Whit Cunliffe gives his latest song successes, and provides a lively turn; comedy of good, wholesome kind is safe in the hands of Harry Roxbury, who as Detective Longfellow, in The Prince of Monte Carlo, keeps the patrons in merry mood; a capital patriotic sketch is presented by Wallace Selkirk's Boy Scouts; an exceptionally good protean turn is given by Ernest Laws and Margaret Ruby; the Dainton-Shaw Troupe are responsible for clever trick cycling; and others on the bill are the Rawsons, society entertainers; George Rae, a Scotch comedian; Olga Dore, operatic vocalist; and Kathleen Cogan with songs and dances.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster.—An exceptionally good sketch, entitled Under Suspicion, is admirably performed by Horace Hunter and company. Mr. Hunter as war correspondent, Miss Una Tristrem as the Countess, and Mr. Douglas Vigors are splendid; Captain Fred Woodward's sea lions and seals are as entertaining as ever; George French appears in his mirth-provoking scene, Who Scored that Goal?; the Farabonis give a delightful dancing turn; Bowden and Stol, acrobatic eccentrics, are both humorous and clever; Lizzie Glenroy, in Highland costume, is a pleasing dancer. Others who contribute items are Ellis Barrington, vocalist; Wullie Walker, Scotch comedian; and Charles Vincent, comedian.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Miss Ada Reeve is the star here, and crowded houses go into raptures over her latest successes. Her winsome stage presence and delightful dancing never fail to captivate. Harry Weldon, in the character of Stiffy, the goalkeeper, presents an amusing skit on burgling; the Lenfords are smart simultaneous dancers; the Sisters Morgan give a clever exhibition of dancing on skates; the Dancing Duggans are an exceedingly clever trio; Sterling and Love are amusing in a humorous phantasy in two flats; Archie Rover is applauded for acrobatic work; and the Lyric Mummers, vocalists and comedians, and Bert Weston, comedian, provide acceptable humour.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Barrasfords, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Alan Holt and company present a powerfully dramatic episode, entitled A Society Woman. Laughter reigns supreme during the farce Confusion, produced by Laurence Brough and company. The situations are most ludicrous, and the players earn hearty applause. La Noedia is a talented impersonator; Nora Stockelle is a graceful dancer; the Whittington Trio are smart acrobats; and Eadie and Ramsden are as popular as ever in their comedy skit. J. J. Mannix, Happy Attwood, Jack Hylton, and Joe and Hetty Waldron also contribute acceptably.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—There are several strong attractions in this week's programme, and crowded houses are enjoying the entertainment. Haley's Juveniles receive a warm welcome upon a return visit to the theatre, and present a delightful series of songs and dances, a quartette of barefoot dancers providing a novelty; Dot and Spot, tiny duettists, have a great reception; the Four Mexican Lasso Wonders are expert with the lariat; Dave Carter is exceedingly popular in Irish songs; the Four Sisters Gilby present a pleasing musical act; Alphonso Sylvano is a daring equilibrist; and other turns are provided by Raie Walters, Walter Stanley, Arthur Harris, and Mamie Irene and Cliff Morton.

CURZON HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Waller Jeffs. — The entertainment arranged by Mr. Jeffs is nothing if not up to date. Events that have been occupying the public mind during the past few days are depicted in a series of excellent photographs, the principal subjects being The Welsh Coal Strike and the Wreck of the Preussen. The programme is by no means lacking in pictures of a romantic and humorous nature, a picturesque item being The Heart of a Cowboy. Elephants are depicted at work in a highly interesting film. The programme is completed by vaudeville items, furnished by Miss Vida Yorke, singer and danseuse; and Renato, banjo performer.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is here in When Knights Were Bold. Mr. Sam Lysons depicts Sir Guy de Vere in a delightful manner; Mr. James Macley is an amusing Rev. Peter Pottlebury; Mr. Alec. Forbes (Isaac Isaacson), Mr. C. Gifford (Hon. Charles Widdicombe), Mr. Claude Aymonde (Sir Bryan Ballymore), Mr. Sydney F. Courtenay (Barker), and Mr. Bannister Howard, jun., present their parts in good style. The Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave is tastefully presented by Miss Alice M. Maude, and a charming Lady Millicent is Miss May Ronayne; Miss Elsie Roberts plays Lady Rowena cleverly.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Hippodrome, Bishop Auckland, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—The Harvey Boys give an amusing turn here; Barnard's Marionettes are good; J. P. Ling, as comedian and mimic, scores a great success; Wyllie, a tramp musician, and Fred Park, comedian, are well appreciated; an entertaining show is provided by Lillie C. Breton, lady gymnast; Marie Reeve, comedienne and dancer, is very smart; and the Hipposcope concludes the programme.

BLACKBURN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Resident Managing-Director, Mr. Harry Yorke; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—Brewster's Millions is delighting large audiences here, and Mr. Percy Hutchison as Brewster is the life and soul of the piece, and he is well supported by a strong company. Mr. Robert Forsyth plays well as Mr. Grant; Charlie Harrison is capably presented by Mr. Gordon Ash; Colonel Drew is well placed in the hands of Mr. A. Andrews; Archie Golding, Mr. Henry Hampton; Joseph McLeod, Mr. Aubrey Mather; Frank Bragden, Mr. Arthur Bell; Horace Pettinghill, Mr. Andrew Wight; Tommy Smith, Mr. Otho Hazelwood; Jack Gardner, Mr. U. P. Plinge; Captain Perry, Mr. George Salver; Monsieur Barque, Mr. A. P. Kaye; Rawles, Mr. Frank Hill. Mrs. Dan de Mille is nicely played by Miss Lilias Earle; Miss Marion Ripley is an interesting Janice Armstrong; Miss Dorothy Whittaker is a sympathetic Peggy. The comedy was preceded by Chalk and Cheese.

THE PALACE.—Sole Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Billy Merson is topping the bill at the Palace this week, and there is no doubt of his popularity in Blackburn; Reeco is a humorous burlesque acrobat; Harry Shirley and May Ransome present an episode entitled Jim's Pal in a clever manner; Woodhouse and Wells repeat their former successes; the Brothers Rees give a military act, entitled Soldiers at Play; Russell Wallett, the "lady" in black, is a humorous female impersonator; Marie and Nellie Hula are expert dancers; and Mr. George Bellrose, basso, and Miss Maude de Velin (soprano) are heard in pleasing ducts. De Bissell is a clever clay modeller; the Society Quartette sing topical songs, and introduce some big boot dancing.

THE NEW PRINCESS THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; Manageress, Mrs. C. Clarkson.—Alone in London is presented here by Mr. Chas. Gibbons' company in a capable manner. Mr. William Macready is a good John Beddlecombe; as Nan Miss Nellie Clyde does well; Mr. Gilbert Elvin is quite at home as Mr. Burnaby; and Miss Ethel Green is a good Tom Chickweed.

BLACKPOOL.—WINTER GARDENS PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R Huddlestone.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and company are paying a welcome return visit here this week. The Taming of the Shrew was the fare provided on Monday, when Mr. Wilkie gave a good account of Petruchio, and Miss F. Hunter Watts successfully portrayed Katharina. Hamlet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, The School for Scandal, The Merchant of Venice, and Twelfth Night have also found a place in the week's bill. Mr. Wilkie is well supported by Mr. Henry Hargreaves (a promising young actor), Messrs. Philip Gordon, Hal Brough, Rex Barington Houston Meharry, and Misses Hilda Plowright, May Dallas, Mary Lovett, Alice Miller, and Ida Warrington.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—A capital evening's entertainment is provided here this week by Alec Kendal, a humorous patter comedian; Adam Tomlinson, a clever dialect comedian; Horace Pollock and company, in Pinero's comedietta Hester's Mystery; George Brooks, in comic songs; Ben Lewin, character actor; the Westbrooks, in a dancing scena; Lizzie Daniels, a pleasing comedienne; and Will E. Stoppit, eccentric comedian.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Miss Hook of Holland, presented by Mr. George Dance's principal company, is as popular as ever. Mr. Fred Wellesley repeats his excellent portrayal of Mr. Hook; Mr. Arthur W. Mansey as Captain Adrian Paap sings well; and Mr. Lacey Mills is good in the small part of Lieut. de Coop. Mr. Charles Ross is a breezy Ludwig Schnapps; Mr. Mansell Stringer as Bandmaster Von Vuyt possesses a good voice, which is heard to advantage in the songs allotted to him; the drolleries of Mr. Harry Brayne as Simon Slinks are inimitable; and Miss Nan Stuart well deserves the applause she receives for her clever and winsome presentation of Miss Hook. Much praise is due to Miss Maud Denny for her Nina; Miss May Hardy is a bewitching Gretchen; and Miss May Leslie and Miss Mollie Loraine are well placed as the old market woman and Thelka.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Lafayette pays his first visit to Bolton with his various illusions, Mimetic Travesty Band, and "Mimic War Drama, 1912." An all-round variety company includes the Two Countees, harmonising duettists; Rich Taylor, whistling ventriloquist; Lillie Langtry, comedienne; the St. Johns, musical comedians and duettists; the Avolos, acrobats, &c.; J. A. Wilson, in his smart act, The Troubles of a Recruiting Sergeant, assisted by his dog Private Towser, is vastly popular; and the Premier Imperial pictures add to the entertainment.

THE HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—The Jewels head the bill here with their clever protean production, Change; or, the Haunted Castle. Other items are given by Harry Clark, juvenile comedian and dancer; the Zanonis, jugglers, &c; Augustine and Hartley, barrel jumpers; Waldo and Etoile present a novel act, The Crocodile and the Fairy; Tina Florence, lady mimic; Nellie Wallace, eccentric comedienne; H. O. Wills, comedian; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BOOTLE.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Boult.—The successful comic opera The Queen of the Fair is being presented here this week by Mr. Basil Horsfall's company. Mr. Arthur Reynolds as Enery and Mr. George Carroll as the Burgomaster are the life and soul of the piece; Mr. Claude Casey sustains the part of the landlord Pierre with excellent judgment; Mr. Albert Chapman is enthusiastically received as Captain Karl; and Miss Maude Fergusson is seen to advantage as Jemima. In the title-rôle, Queen of the Fair, Senora Mercedes Dalmada charms with her clever singing and acting.

MUNCASTER THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Harry Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alf. D. Adams.—The Muncaster stock company, under the capable direction of Mr. Alfred D. Adams, is presenting the costume play, Her Kingdom of Love.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece.—Oswald Williams, the English illusionist, assisted by Winifred La Barte and company, in a lightning magical entertainment, is loudly applauded for his clever performance; Paulton and Dooley, the world's greatest bicycle comedians, receive hearty applause for their clever feats; the Picquays are also successful as extraordinary hand equilibrists; Phil Bransby as a coster comedian receives a hearty welcome; Maud Esmond as a vocal comedian is successful; Hampton and Bauman, the Dark Town entertainers, and Sisters Hall, duettists and dancers, also contribute. Up-to-date Bioscope pictures conclude.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. F. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes's company is drawing large houses at enhanced prices in The Dollar Princess. Mr. Fred Leslie as Harry Conder is a great success; Miss Kathleen Courtney makes a fascinating and dignified Dollar Princess; Mr. Horace Mills makes an original and droll Bulger; Mr. Alec Worcester is a faultless Fairfax; Miss Muriel Allen is good as Olga, and Miss Daisy Elliston makes a dainty and attractive Daisy; Mr. Hugh Henson as Dick, Mr. W. Johnstone Douglas as John, and Mr. Jack Bates as the Butler all help to make the piece successful.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The Merry Widow is again proving very attractive to Mr. Hart's patrons, and Mr. George Edwardes's company submit the usual delightful performance of the comedy, which is staged with the customary magnificence. Miss Gertrude Lester elicits much applause in her original and charming representation of the title-rôle; Mr. W. L. Bradfield is at his best as Prince Danilo; Mr. Eric Thorne arouses hearty laughter as Baron Popoff; excellence is attained by Mr. W. Tallieur Andrews's Vicomte de Jolidon, Mr. Fred Kaye's General Novakovitch, and Miss Maggie May's Natalie; and the rest of the characters leave nothing to be desired.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—Messrs. Edward Ferris and B. P. Matthews have provided in The Fighting Chance a military drama of sterling interest, and the company engaged on its first representation here on Monday night achieved considerable distinction; Mr. Austen Milroy's Stephen Blanchard is a fine performance, intense and thoroughly convincing; Mr. Sydney Vautier is earnest in his acting as the sorely-tried Jim Blanchard; as the vile Philip Rivers Mr. Arthur Elwyn is effective; Mr. F. J. Wailer gives a good performance of General Blanchard; Mr. James Wilson is good as Colonel Paget; the Larry O'Brien of Mr. Charles Leverton is a breezy effort; Mr. C. B. Bedelle is picturesque and dignified as Izra Mahomet Khan; Miss Lilian Constance as Marjorie Voriand and Miss Marie Duncan as Ethel Hardy command admiration and sympathy; and as Mrs. Mackintosh Miss Annie Barclay is quaint. The drama is very finely staged.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—Happy Fanny Fields, with her natural buoyancy and humorous Dutch songs and patter, is winning hearty laughter; and Roze and Calvert, with their exceedingly funny burlesque Captain Kettle, are entertaining. The Hardini Trio give a clever performance as violinists; Carl and Carr are amusing with their comedy and patter; with their knockabout comedy sketch, Astronomy, W. Fallbrook and company elicit hearty laughter; Tom Parker's comic songs are rendered acceptably; the Du Gros trio of gymnasts provide a humorous, novel, and clever turn; the Andos Happy Little Japs exhibit remarkable skill and daring in their acrobatic and juggling feats; and the Bioscope pictures are amusing.

THE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, M. E. Harrison.—Emmie Ames, comedienne, provides a pleasing turn with "Her Christmas-tree"; Harry Bancroft, actor-vocalist, sings with acceptance, and his style is imitated in an open amateur competition; Edna Barrett, comedienne and dancer, is received with favour; with their funny burlesque turn, The Dimple Sisters, Ferguson and Mack are very amusing; in his pot-pourri, Le Café Chantant, Henri Cazman and company are vastly entertaining and smart; a very clever and expert balancing act by Alfonzo wins applause; the Hargreaves Trio are responsible for original comedy; Rita and Roma are a couple of versatile entertainers; Harry Elliston and company are boisterously funny in their sketch, Aunt Matilda; and the Palace Perfection pictures are interesting.

BRIGHOUSE.—ALBERT THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Martin Manley, sen.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Martin Manley, jun.—After an absence of four years, Messrs. Levy and Cardwell have paid a welcome return visit with Hop o' My Thumb, juvenile pantomime. The title-rôle is in the hands of Little George Harris, a clever child comedian; Miss Daisy Wood is a charming Prince Uno; Miss Evelyn Major a delightful Rupert; Mr. Vivian Wakeman an excellent Dame; and Mr. Stanley Annison a very good Jerry.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Mr. Will Casey's company is here with An Unwedded Wife. Miss Chrissie Dunbar achieves distinct success with her skilful treatment of the title-rôle; Mr. Walter A. Chitham gives a clever enactment of the villainous Phillip Blackstone; Miss Ethel Spense acquits herself admirably as Elsie Langham; Mr. L. Ernest's John Hawthorne is well played; Mr. Dennis Renton makes a capital Frank Armstrong; and the humorous element is very effectively presented by Mr. Will Casey as Napoleon B. Boomer, Mr. Dicky Bird as Kit, and Mr. H. Hamerton as Constable Bolt.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. R. Smith.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is attracting good houses here this week with The Bad Girl of the Family. Miss Violet Crossley displays finished and convincing acting in her treatment of the title-character; Mr. Alexander R. Bradley is highly successful in his portrayal of the villainous Harry Gordon; Miss Daisie Cook makes a charming Gladys Erskine; Mr. James C. Taylor submits a good character study as Lord Erskine; Mr. Richard Lane is admirably suited as Lieut. Richard Marsh; Mr. Luke Forster is amusing as Barney Gordon; and able support is given by George Belmore as Jerry Holmes, Mr. Tom May, as Sammy Snozzle, and Miss Sadie Southern as Mrs. Moore.

Brown.—George Graves and company are highly successful in Koffo of Bond Street; Mark Leslie is an excellent coon artist and eccentric dancer; the Ausonia Trio are sensational equilibriste; Tom Franks, with his automaton, "Billy," submits a pleasing turn; Smann Sing Hpoo, the miniature man and ring performer, is well received; Sam Thompson is a capital Scotch comedian. Mr. and Mrs. Alaska are effective in their eccentric dancing act; and A. E. Clifford is an able vocal comedian.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Miss Vera Leslie and company opened here on Monday with Cousin Kate. Miss Leslie gave a charming enactment of the title-part; Mr. Henry Doughty submitted an admirable representation of Heath Desmond; Mr. Philip Lawton was well placed as the Rev. James Bartlett; Miss Maud Stoner made a graceful Amy Spencer; Miss Madge Laverton displayed able acting as Mrs. Spencer; and satisfactory support was rendered by Master Walter Neville (Bobby Spencer) and Miss Myra Selwyn (Jane).

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. Martin Harvey commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, when The Only Way was played. Mr. Harvey scored his accustomed success as Sydney Carton; Miss N. de Silva played Mimi with her usual charm; Miss Brenda Gibson was pleasing as Lucie Manette; Mr. Cowley Wright was decidedly good as Charles Darnay; Mr. Fred Wright, sen., was impressive as Dr. Manette; Mr. Charles Glenney was excellent as Ernest Defarge; and Mr. Percy Foster and Mr. Philip Howland made the most of Mr. Lorry and Mr. Stryver. A Cigarette Maker's Romance, An Idyll of Seven Dials, and Richard III. are also billed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mrs. Emma Carpenter; Manager, Mr Henry C. Ahy.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company is here with The Beggar Princess, the drama being staged in good style and acted well. Mr. Cassidy plays the Hon. Algernon Fitzhugh capitally, both his humour and pathos being acceptable; Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy presents a fine study of Seaweed (afterwards the Princess Henri of Slavonia); Miss Ada Roscoe displays considerable power as the Countess Olga; and Miss Isabel Hunt makes a smart Tommy Bostock. Mr. Juan D'Alberti acts well and consistently in the unpopular part of the Duke Serglus Rubinoff; Mr. Alfred Boxhall is sufficiently dignified as the King of Slavonia; Mr. Henry Danson does well as Duke Michael; and all the remaining parts are in capable hands. The trained goat introduced into the play is amusing.

PALACE. — Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Treasurer and Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Fuji Family head the bill and prove excellent acrobats, jugglers, and equilibrists; the Six Ceylons do some smart acrobatic work in A Dream of an Opium Den; John S. Leick and Mabel Keith are successful with their musical speciality; Reginald Jecks, "the balladmonger," is appreciated; George Prince amuses with quaint songs; the Floradora Girls sing and dance in good style; Selby and Myers entertain with song, dance, and patter; W. Macaire.—The bill is headed by Lelia Roze, who has some pleasing songs, composed by herself, which she renders with her accustomed skill; Ruhart, comedy parodist, presents a succession of burlesque productions in amusing style; Carl and Mary Ohms have a clever animal act with well-trained ponies, monkeys, and dogs; Violet Romaine is a pleasing vocalist; Cameron Matthews and Jessamine Newcombe do well with their dramatic sketch The Supreme Sacrifice; Lillian French gives impersonations of well-known artists successfully; Will, Vi, and Luis entertain as harmony and burlesque artists; Sid Bandon, comedian, is appreciated, as also is Archie Pitt, comedian; and interesting animated pictures conclude.

BROUGHTON. — VICTORIA THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. J. P. Moore and Montague Beaudyn; General-Manager, Mr. Montague Beaudyn; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Collingwood.—Send Him Victorious is giving much satisfaction. Mr. Montague Beaudyn plays the hero, Captain Allison; the scheming Countess Cora Von Mechlinberg is well sustained by Miss Irene Munroe; Miss Cora Patey is a charming heroine as Ethel Harding; Mr. Chas. D. Pitt plays the villainous Colonel Kaufman with vigour; and Mr. G. E. Dunstan, Mr. Wm. Melvyn, Mr. Geo. Overs, Mr. E. Benson, Mr. Ancart, Mr. Cartwright, Mr. A. A. Tomlin, and Miss Phyllis Rae give good studies of their various parts.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Music-lovers have a treat in Cavaliere Castellano's Italian Grand Opera Company. The principal artists are of high standard, possessing rich, full voices, which are used to advantage in conjunction with brilliant acting. On Monday Il Trovatore was presented to a full house. Signora Defral, who has a voice of delicious purity and power, sings the rôle of Leonora; and Signor Barbato as Manrico achieved a triumph. Signor Vail as the Count displayed a voice of volume and tone; and Mme. Govetta Castellano as the Gipsy scored an artistic success. Signor Vittori was excellent as Fernando. On Tuesday a fine performance was given of Rigoletto, and Faust, La Traviata, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, Il Barbiere di Siviglia, and Carmen are also in the week's bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Maria Racko and her partner give a wonderful hand-balancing turn; and Jordan and Harvey are a couple of exceedingly funny Hebrew character delineators. The Mackinnon Family are a talented troupe of musicians with good selections; and Harry Drew is a bass singer of considerable merit. J. W. Gallagher, comedian, is a great favourite; and enjoyable items are provided by Polo and Florence, hand balancers; Ben E. Verity, coon comedian; and the Empire Theatrescope, with pictures of lake scenery.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Rentoul.—A strong company is presenting The Bad Girl of the Family in place of the usual variety programme. Miss Florrie Kelsie cleverly plays the rôle of Bess; and Miss A. E. Belmore is a sweet and sympathetic Gladys Erskine. Mr. R. M. St. Johns as Lieut. Richard Marsh does excellent emotional work; and Mr. Sydney Lynn is a capable villain as Harry Gordon. An admirable Jew is Barney Gordon as represented by Mr. Barnett Lando; and the comedy business of Miss Nellie James as Sally Smithers and Mr. George H. Aspin as Sammy Snozzles is well conceived and executed. The intervals between acts are pleasantly filled by the Palace pictures.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—The attraction here is Mr. Frank Adair's company in It's Always the Woman. Miss Louie Adair acts with much charm as Lady Margaret; Miss Lily Prescott as Paula Carlton gives a clever performance; Miss Felicia Firmin is an admirable Nancy; and little Bertha Hanbury is especially good as the child, Marjorie Desmond. Mr. Frank Adair is a great success as the villainous Major Stevington; Mr. Walter Clarke plays Jack Desmond with ability; Mr. Dudley Wynton is successful as Lord Grasmere; and Mr. Herbert Sydney as Mike O'Flynn and Miss Ena Hamilton as the maid, Barker, are responsible for much humour.

BURY (Lancs). — ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Acting-Manager, Mr. J. McPherson.—This house is given over to variety for one week only and a bill of exceptional strength is submitted. The Touch of the Ch'ld, presented by William Mollison and his company, is a real dramatic treat. As Colonel James Fullard Mr. Mollison adds to his already high reputation, and he is ably assisted by Mr. Archie W. Chappall, Miss Evelyn McKay, and Miss Jeannie Fitzgerald; St. Ruth and Conyers are operatic duettists of distinct merit; Edna Mayne is a particularly clever dancer; lightning paintings are executed by D'Aulby; the Bros. Miller are clever gymnastic comedians and are funny in their burlesque wrestling act; Bennett and Martell are popular comedians; a great local favourite is seen in Jennie Johns, comedienne; and Ottograph pictures complete.

C. Ross gives a fine rendering of Louis Klauffsky; Mr. Richard Fielding's Jimmy O'Neill is good; and Miss Sophie Lingwood makes a success as Mrs. Hughes. An original monologue, entitled Yes, Papa, written and played by Miss Grete Hahn, went well as a curtain-raiser.

PALACE.—The East Coast Varieties, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Nichols.—Charles R. Whittle, comedian, is a great draw here; Leo Teli, mimic, is also well received; Austin Tempie, magician, assisted by Miss Irene Vincent, gives a capital show; the Sisters Castelli are good dancers; and other good turns are Sydney Brandon, character actor; Vena Veima, comedienne and dancer; and Mlle. Marjutti, the tissom lady.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Foremost on a good bill this week is John Clempert, who presents his death-defying mysteries, consisting of escapes from handcuffs, Russian punishment, jackets, and even sealed tanks of water, his turn is remarkably clever, and is preceded by Bioscopic illustrations of his sensational high dives from bridges; Clinko, a young London juggler, provides a smart and up-to-date exhibition which is thoroughly appreciated; Leslie and Stevens are refined entertainers who appear to good advantage in an operetta, Love Levels All; Minnie Kaufmann, trick cyclist, performs difficult feats in a manner which is heartily applauded; Walton and Lester, the "world's worst wizards," keep the house in roars of laughter with their drolleries; Harcourt Mills, boy actor, is to be commended for his finely portrayed character studies; Monty Walker, Lancashire comedian, has a budget of excellent songs; and Agnes Tina, a charming mimetic vocalist, is eminently successful.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Moyes.—Mr. F. Cyril Leighton's company occupies the boards this week with a successful nautical drama entitled Capt'n Jack. In the title-rôle Mr. Ernest Owttrim is in every way acceptable, and gives a manly interpretation of the character; Miss Nina Blake-Adams achieves success with her sympathetic rendering of Mary, the captain's wife; the villain of the play, Anthony Cliveredge, is cleverly impersonated by Mr. H. Ryland-Leigh; Miss Bettie Manners is charming as Winnie Trent; Miss Ada Arnott is a vivacious Ginge, the barmaid; and Billy Bowster is well played by Mr. Harry Leamer. The remaining characters are capably accounted for by Messrs. Herbert Bentone, R. S. R. Pittard, Owen Edwin, F. Fletcher, J. Otterspool, Ray Costello, Eric Booth, and Sam Payne, who work well for the success of the piece.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Hush Money; or, The Disappearance of Sexton Blake, is eagerly followed by large audiences. The cast includes Pedro, the bloodhound, whose sagacity is remarkable. Mr. S. Leigh Courtney cleverly undertakes the rôle of Sexton Blake; while Mr. Robert Barton plays the aristocratic villain with great credit. Mr. John Shard, a multi-millionaire, is cleverly impersonated by Mr. H Gomer May; Miss Theresa Osborne makes a charming Lady Muriel Montressor. The other principals are Messrs. H. Hartley, John Lowther, F. Hopkins, and Miss Agnes Paulton.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. G. Prance.—Crowded houses are attracted here, the star turn being provided by Achmed Ibrahim's Troupe of Bedouin Arab acrobats; Edward Lauri and May Beatty, in their musical comedy In Her Boudoir, keep the house in roars of laughter; the Jackey Trio give a refined entertainment; Charles Santon proves himself a first-rate soprano and double-voiced vocalist; Miss Lily Edwardes is a dainty comedienne; Will Cornish is a great success as a musical bell expert; and Mr. Fred Hallam scores as a comedian. Miss Clara Reich and Mr. John Power are very good in their comedy, entitled The Chambermaid.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mr. and Mrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company are appearing here to appreciative audiences in Her Fatal Marriage, which is presented twice nightly. Mr Jerrold Heather submits a powerful portrayal of Zaco Malleto, and is repeatedly applauded for some excellent acting; Miss Hilda Shirley gives a remarkably fine rendition of the much-abused Myra Malleto; Mr. Ernest R. Allen as the curate, Wilfred Grey, acts with skill and impressiveness; a sympathetic rendering of Lily is presented by Miss Maud Hastings; Mr. P. Morton Wright gives a fine character study of the half-witted Paul; and Mr. William Allan is successful as Detective Smart. The comedy business is well sustained by Mr. Frank Shepherd as Peter Pimple and Miss Elsie Dene as Dolly Dimple. Mr. P. Laurence does well as Sergeant Wiggins. The mounting is admirable.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr Claude Shayler.—During the week the Dewsbury Amateur Operatic Society have given an excellent representation of Haddon Hall, the success being due largely to their energetic coach, Mr. W. G. Bedford, of the Savoy Theatre. Packed houses have been the rule, and local charities, in aid of which the performances have been, will greatly benefit.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—The Bros. De Hais appear here in a clever and original club-juggling performance; the Four Broadways excel in the art of dancing; Taffie Harris has an excellent baritone voice, which he uses effectively; Dick Goldsard is very amusing; Beatrice Sullivan is a dainty comedienne and dancer; and the pictures are changed twice weekly.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, Travis Green, and Arthur Hinton's company has made a welcome appearance here in Was She to Blame? Mr. Fred L. Conynghame's conception of William Clark, a broken-down actor, is pleasing; Mr. Martin Pedler brings a martial bearing and clever reading to support the rôle of the hero, Captain George Courtney; Mr. Henry Butland makes a venerable Vicar; Frank Roselle is a capital effort on the part of Mr. George Langdon; Mr. Ken Murray as Timothy Jonathan Frederick Swales and Miss Nita Owen as Sarah Swales are irresistibly humorous; the heroine is engaging played by Miss Margaret Hobart; and Miss George de Lara is a refined Mrs. Kate Russalle.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The Geisha is meeting with a cordial reception here. Mr. Edward Carlton causes no end of amusement as Wun Hi, and Miss Aimee Grey as O Mimosa San captivates all by her charm and natural style; Mr. Colin Coop gives a clever interpretation of the Marquis Imari; and Miss Adela Crispen sweetly portrays the rôle of Molly Seamour; Mr. Edmund Sherras is distinctly successful as Reginald Fairfax; and O Juliette Diamante has an admirable impersonator in Miss Renee Reel. The remaining parts are well filled, and the staging and scenery excellent. A Greek Slave is also billed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—At the opening of the Hippodrome season here on Monday large audiences were present at both performances. Montgomery and Moore make a tremendous hit in their funny act; Mr. P. T. Selbit presented Dr. Wilmar's spirit paintings which are truly marvellous and entertaining; the Trio Romanos, in their classical fantastic dances, are cordially received; Sados, boy juggler, is exceptionally clever; Miss Gwennie Llewellyn has a delightful voice and enchants the audience with her vocal numbers; Sarkoezi and Monnier secure well merited applause for an excellent musical turn; Fred Russell and Lillian Held are seen to advantage in their singing and dancing act; Valanche's Football Dogs are greatly enjoyed; and the Royal Bioscope with up-to-date films concludes.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company opened here on Monday with The Love of the Princess. Mr. Frank Harvey presents with telling effect the rôle of Prince Conrad, and Miss Maisie Hanbury gives a capital portrayal of the Princess Idalia; Mr. Cyprian H. Matthews gives an able rendering of Count Nicholas Danilo, and Miss Josephine Lee makes a good impression as Constantia; Mr. Charles O'Connor is effective as Lieutenant Orlando, and Miss Maud Steeple acts in pleasing style as Lady Irena Ramona; Mr. John Worth submits a good study of Lieutenant Zaroff; and others deserving of mention are Messrs. John Burton, Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle, Mr. W. P. Acock, and Mr. Edgar Morgan.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Miss Florrie Gallimore, in all her latest successes, holds premier position here, and fully merits the applause which greets her; Verno and Voyce appear with much success in their musical sketch, John Bull's Cash Box; the King's College Boys, in their vocal scena, The Students, are loudly applauded; Ross Warren, eccentric comedian, scores; and Lola Patey, character comedienne, gives a capital turn; Sullivan and Edwards, comedians and dancers, are well received; and Violet Mills wins plaudits for her excellent dancing and singing; Ben Albert, a smart vocal comedian, and the Empire pictures conclude.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The O-K-Dians have a refined and original act; Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, presented by Mr. Richardson's company, causes no end of laughter; Lois Audrey, comedienne, renders her numbers pleasingly; and Fred Brick, quaint comedian, scores. Other turns are Rozel, "King of the Air"; Dalvere and Wallace, in laughter and song; Jack Hamilton, comedian; Athelda, champion lady athlete; Harriett Rose, vocal comedienne; and the Bioscope.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietors, Sprengel Brothers.—A good all-round programme includes George Casey, a laughter-provoking comedian; Miss Genie Elen, a dainty comedienne; Bell and Demey, comedy duettists; Lieutenant Uniquem, a capital ventriloquist; Arthur Green, Irish comedian; and the cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—When London Sleeps is appealing to Dudley audiences this week. Mr. Kenneth Norbury invests the part of Captain Rodney Haynes with sufficient villainy, and is ably seconded by Miss Cissie St. Elmo as Hilda Carode; Mr. George B. Daiper played the hero, David Englehart, in a convincing style; and the heroine, Queenie Carruthers, found a pathetic representative in Miss Mabel Scudamore. The comedy element was well to the fore in the parts of Sammy Blythe by Mr. Harry Cooke and Carrie Jones by Miss Mabel Tremare. Miss Christine Middleton threw herself with thorough abandon into the part of Maudie de Frere, and her business with the Hon. Bertie Broomhead (Mr. Charles Rogers) was highly amusing.

EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Colin.—Miss Harriet Vernon, in a beautifully dressed and staged scena, "Emblems," delights everyone here this week. The clever troupe of Tennessee Guards are paying a very welcome return visit; the Lador Troupe of male and female acrobats neatly perform many original tricks, and the Famous Unos give a graceful trapeze act. Mollie Doon, comedienne and dancer, has a sweet voice; Fremel and Fremel, eccentrics, are old favourites; Leslie Race is a good light comedian; and Clifton Hall, versatile vocalist, has a powerful voice. The Empire Pictures complete.

DUMFRIES.—MECHANICS' HALL.—Agents, Messrs. James Hiddleston and Sons.—The Bondman was presented here by Mr. Durward Lely and company on Saturday and Monday last. Mr. Durward Lely as Jason played with remarkably fine dramatic emphasis, and his rendering of "The Reaper's Song" was enthusiastically received. As an encore he sang "Corn Riggs.' Mr. J. Clifford Wright as Father Ferrati achieved a noteworthy success; the part of Michael Sunlocks was well interpreted by Mr. Frank Kelland; Miss Georgina V. Clifford as Greeba was admirably suited; Mrs. Durward Lely as Mrs. Fairbrother plays in excellent fashion; Mr. Clive Woods as Adam Fairbrother, Mr. James Finlayson as the Grandfather, Mr. Gerald Poole as Dr. Boni, and Mr. Jack C. Gray as Governor Testa were worthy of special mention.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Messrs. Milton Bode and John Hart's Opera company, in Les Cloches de Corneville, has drawn good audiences here this week. As the Marquis de Corneville, Mr. Cyril Thompson acts with ease and finish, his fine voice making an excellent impression; Mr. E. St. Alban in the rôle of Gaspard acts throughout with consummate skill; Mr. Arthur Geary displays his fine singing voice to advantage as Grenicheux; Mr. Fred Dark is unctuous as the Bailie; Mr. Alfred Selby is an amusing Gobo, his eccentric dancing meeting with warm appreciation; Miss Kitty Dale, a pleasing actress and delightful singer, does capitally as Germaine; Miss Dolly Castles makes a chic and vivacious Serpolette; Miss Lucy Kipling submits a clever impersonation of Christophe; and the Village Girls have attractive representatives in Misses Jessie Hamilton, Kitty Rawlinson, Alice Hornsby, and Mabel Ross. The orchestra is under the skilful bâton of Mr. Knight Pearce.

KING'S THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—A good all-round bill is headed by Leonie de Lausanne, lady champion rifle shot of the world, whose performance is both marvellous and interesting; Frank Fenton, in a tabloid version of David Garrick gives a finished performance of the title-rôle, and is charmingly supported by Miss Lilian Stennis as Ada Ingot; Frank Seeley's eccentricities are heartily enjoyed. Little Frankie, the Highland laddie, presents an entertaining item; Edie King, in her dancing scena, "Music of Dancing," proves herself a veritable queen of terpsichore; Alice Blandford, billed as the New Zealand Nightingale, possesses a voice of remarkable power; the Three Krakes, in a diverting comedy act, entitled The Electric Car Conductor, keep the risible faculties of the audience working at high pressure; Danvers and Rosslyn score in their amusing piano absurdity, Pantomime Boy; the Fordyces are expert dancers; Rich and Rich simply bubble over with wit and humour; and Jury's Bioscope completes.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. W. Graham Arthurs' company provides the bill of fare here this week. On Monday The Mockery of Marriage was staged. Mr. Arthurs in the dual part of Dick Kenyon and Sir Montague Jephson proves himself full of resource, and is a complete success; Mr. Gerald Ord plays Jack Stanley with much skill, and is equally successful as Ned Stanley; Mr. J. Barker is an excellent Joseph Vernham; Messrs. J. E. McCann and R. A. Armfield as P.C. Augustus Rice and Seth Pearse are responsible for the comical element, and succeed in making the most of their respective parts; Miss Mabel Elliott makes an admirable Adva Kenyon; Miss Ida Lovatt is a good Nellie Kenyon; Miss Molly Richardson a clever Rose Vernham; and Miss Ada Band a highly-amusing Mary Ann Barnicoat.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. Ernest Leicester and his company are appearing here in East Lynne. A convincing portrayal of Isabel is given by Miss Kathleen Russell; Miss Mary Bronton worthily sustains the comedy work as Cornelia; Miss Lydia Busch is an appealing Barbara; and Misses Dora Levis and Violet Crowe give capital support as Joyce and Susanne. Mr. Ernest Leicester handles the part of Archibald Carlyle with culture and feeling; Mr. Charles Goodhart is an easy Lord Mountsevern; Mr. Harry V. Sanford does praiseworthy work as Sir Francis Levison; Mr. Edwyn Sykes as Justice Hare and Mr. Ernest Spalding as Lawyer Dill help the laughter along; Mr. Ashmore Vincent is a quietly effective Dick Hare; Mr. Harry Bristow is a facetious Postman; and Miss Hermone Lester plays prettily the part of Willie.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. F. Woodward.—Heading the bill here this week are the Five Whiteleys, whose tumbling, balancing, and acrobatic business are as clever and smart as anything seen here for some time; Grogie, the Sussex yokel, is a funny comedian; Mr. Henri Alexander is a skilful foot balancer; Mr. Ned Graydon is both funny and talented as a comedy musician; Miss Marie Goodwin, pretty and dainty, is a charming comedienne and dancer; Cooper and Preston are successful patterers and dancers; Madge and Teddy Coynes have a smart sketch, Jane and the Kid; and Mr. Sam Fay as a comedian completes.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company is this week in Happy-go-Lucky O'Lyn. As Bryan O'Lyn, Mr. John Child acts and sings delightfully; Mr. Reginald Adair as Frank Fentiman proves himself the possessor of a sonorous bass voice; Miss Anna Hickisch as Kathleen O'Lyn acts in a dainty and pleasing manner, whilst her cultured soprano voice is heard in several well-known Irish ballads; Miss Marie Alexander as Aunt Charlotte also sings and acts well; and Mr. S. Lansdale has a capital drinking song to which he does full justice.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry F. Ashton.—The diversions of Charley's Aunt are made as entertaining as ever by the author's London company, now touring this world-famous piece. The leading "lady's" part is presented with irrepressible humour by Mr. George A. Seager; while the two undergraduates, Jack Chesney and Charles Wykeham, have amusing interpreters in Mr. Francis Drake and Mr. Cecil Kerr. Their ladyloves, Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettigue, are attractively played by Miss Bertha Northam and Miss Ruth Henton; Miss Helen Palgrave is excellent as Donna Lucia; and Miss Gladys Storey acts nicely in the rôle of Ella Delahay. Mr. C. F. Collings and Mr. Sydney Compton are thoroughly at home in the elderly parts of Colonel Chesney and Stephen Spettigue; and Brasset is made the most of in a quiet way by Mr. E. Christopher. An interesting playlet, also by Mr. Brandon Thomas, and entitled The Lancashire Sailor, preceded the comedy. Mr. Drake, Miss Nancy Harding, Mr Collings, Miss Northam, and Mr. Compton rendered this curtain-raiser very enjoyably.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. Leigh Lovel and Miss Octavia Kenmore's company has been providing a veritable feast for Ibsenites at this theatre by giving a selection from the works of the Norwegian dramatist. Hedda Gabler was played on Monday evening, the chief honours in an excellent cast being carried off by Miss Kenmore by her finished performance of the title-rôle. It is a difficult part to act, but Miss Kenmore showed herself quite equal to the task, and played throughout with a power which greatly impressed the audience. Mr. Leigh Lovel was an effective Lovborg; and Mr. Frederick Meads, in a clever, well-studied impersonation of Judge Brack, made a distinct hit. Mr. Cland W. Sykes was careful but convincing in his portrait of the absent-minded Tesman; Miss Daisy Race presented a pathetic figure as Mrs. Elvested; and Miss Katherine Maynard and Miss Sylvia Dawson were admirable in the respective parts of Miss Juliana Tesman and Bertha. The programme for the week has comprised The Master Builder, A Doll's House, When We Dead Awaken, and John Gabriel Borkman.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Armand Muscard.—Miss Florrie Forde headed this week's programme with an entertaining selection of catchy chorus songs, which hugely delighted her hearers; and the comedienne element was further effectively worked by Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, as well as by Miss Ruth Lytton, both of whom approved themselves popular Scottish vocalists; and Miss Odeyne Spark sang and danced very acceptably. The Brothers Horne furnished considerable amusement with their burlesque boxing sketch; Stacey and Williams contributed some exceedingly diverting patter; the Victor Brothers displayed great skill and dexterity as herculean equilibrists; Fred Barnes was alike successful in songs of sentiment and of humour; Syd Walker created hearty laughter as "the furniture man"; Dan Conroy came out strong in the triple rôle of patter comedian, vocalist, and quaint dancer; and the usual Bioscope exhibition of pictures concluded a pleasant bill.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—A capital programme here introduces, in the premier position, "Princess" D'Aryaba, a dancer of much grace, who, in an Eastern scene, gives a delightful exhibition of various classical dances. The Princess has the able assistance of M. Barthelemy, a picturesque and exhilarating dancer from the Imperial Opera House, St. Petersburg. Mr. Edmund Maurice's company appears in a strong one-act play, entitled Blind, the acting of Mr. Henry Latimer and Miss Laura Hansen being marked by considerable dramatic power; and a pleasant sketch, The Little Puritan, is presented by France and Stewart. Of the other turns, an admirable ventriloquist act is provided by Thora, whose work is both clever and amusing; Cruikshank causes great laughter by his humorous songs and stories; and the Sutcliffe Family of Scottish acrobats submit an exceedingly good entertainment of gymnastic feats, pipe music, and dancing. Stephens and Rennoir, comedians; Jock Whiteside, a capable Scottish comedian; the Three Belle Belles, comediennes; and views shown by the American Bioscope add to the attractiveness of the bill.

ELLESMERE PORT.—HIPPODROME AND PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Corelli and Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Corelli.—J. H. Wakefield has a cordial reception as a coon delineator; Nora Heaton, the lady baritone, possesses a strong voice, and renders her songs in capital style; Arthur Bright pleases immensely as a comedian and Milanese piper; much ability is shown by Clarice Mignon as a banjo soloist; the musical comedy speciality act of Warren and Granville affords great satisfaction. Several interesting and up-to-date animated pictures are thrown upon the screen, including the launch of the great White Star liner Olympic.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. H. P. Towers' company in The Best People, is proving a popular attraction. As Lord Emsworth Mr. Henry Renouf gives unmistakable proof of his histrionic talent; Mr. Frederick Sargent as the Hon. Gerald Bayle submits a capital study; and Mr. Claud Haviland as Lord Wynlea is true to life. Mrs. Evelyn Summers makes the most of her opportunities as the Hon. Mrs. Bayle; and Miss Irene Lavington does extremely well as Lady Emsworth. Mr. C. Forester as Jackson and Mr. Edward Nimmo as Jas. Spofforth also deserve commendable notice. The Last Night precedes.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fredk. Sandy.—The top of the bill is The Yellow Fang, powerfully presented by Miss Mary Mayfren's company. Miss Violet Campbell as Judith Beck shows much histrionic ability, and Mr. Frank Annesley as a drunken sport is also very real; and the part of Hung-Kow, the keeper of the den, is well done by Mr. Geo. Pickett. The Child and the juvenile actor musicians presented by Mr. Edward Platt are great favourites. Ethel Bourne is a talented contralto vocalist; Master Cliff Diamond, a smart young comedian and dancer, is a popular turn, and so is that of Cestra, the comedy juggler. Mona Garrick is a talented elocutionist; and Field and Lewis give an amusing burlesque.

EXMOUTH.—KING'S HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint.—Fine business is being done at this popular place of amusement, the two houses nightly being packed with enthusiastic audiences. The programme of pictures is unusually attractive, while the celebrated Four Watsons contribute a musical and comedy act that is greeted with thunders of applause. Comic songs, phono songs, and other items are introduced, the entertainment being of a very attractive nature.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Marcus Draper's company in The Christian fills the bill here this week, and has attracted large houses. Mr. Baliol Holloway interprets the character of John Storm with force; Miss Elizabeth Risdon makes an able exponent of Glory Quayle, and Mr. Benson North fulfils the general conception of the evil, blasé, sneering man of the world to a nicety; Mr. N. Burgess Barrett as Horatio Drake, Miss Maisie Richardson as Polly Love, Mr. Aylmer Williams as Archdeacon Wealthy, and Miss Rosa Burgess as Mrs. Callander, also sustain their parts admirably.

FERNDALE.—NEW THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. David Williams; Secretary, Mr. William James.—The New Frivolity, including the Original Leopolds, was played here the first three nights of the week with success. Mr. Harry Douglas was really fine as Oliver Buckwheat; Mr. Willie Leopold as Samuel Vermiglio created much merriment; as Daniel Teething Mr. Fred Leopold, jun., was excellent; Mr. Tom Leopold provided a successful interpretation of Jules Vermiglio; Miss Kathleen Kavanagh was seen to advantage in the part of Madame Cobweb; Mr. W. H. Howarth as Mick and Miss Amy Hall as Lucy Buckwheat were excellent; Miss Winnie Leopold made a typical schoolgirl as Maud; and Mr. R. Valls was a realistic page. The U.S.A. Girls are a clever troupe of dancers, and the acrobatic tricks by the Leopolds are capital. The piece was preceded by The Houseboat. The Sign of the Cross, by Mr. C. W. Bowes's company, is billed for the last three nights.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Folkestone is favoured this week with a visit of Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company in The Merchant of Venice, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Richard the Third, She Stoops to Conquer, As You Like It, and Hamlet. On Tuesday night the company gave an excellent performance of Richard III. to a highly appreciative audience, every part being capably portrayed. Mr. Henry Herbert gave his usual finished study in the title-rôle, and Mr. Charles Warburton was exceptionally fine as the ill-fated Duke of Clarence; Mr. Duncan Yarrow was excellent in the double rôle of the luckless King Edward the Fourth and Henry Earl of Richmond; the two young Princes were charmingly acted by Miss Thea Johnson and Miss Celia Lorraine; Miss Hope Trant submitted a brilliant enactment of the aged Duchess of York; and Miss Rosalind Gray fully overcame the difficulties of the part of Lady Anne; as the widowed Queen of Henry VI. Miss Gladys Vanderzee showed real histrionic ability. Mr. Andrew Leigh (Bishop of Ely), Mr. John Cairns (Duke of Buckingham), Mr. H. S. Cohen (Earl of Hastings), Mr. Metcalfe (Duke of Norfolk), and Mr. Wilfred Fletcher (Catesby) were perfect in their respective parts.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fredk. J. Reece.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday Mr. Horace Stanley's company appeared here in The Female Detective. The title-rôle is effectively represented by Miss Trevoir; Mr. Burden is a typical villain, and Mr. Fore plays well as the hero; the comedy element is safe in the hands of Mr. Stanley.

GRAND THEATRE AND VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John R. Fox.—This place of amusement was most successfully opened on Monday night in the presence of a large and fashionable audience by Mr. Norman V. Norman's Répertoire Company with Lord and Lady Algy. Previous to the commencement of the comedy Mr. G. W. Smith Neill, Mr. Norman's films is provided here. Miss Eva Warne (chorus comedienne), Twisty Oliver (character comedian), and Ward and Davis (duettists and dancers) supply the variety.

THE GEM.—Proprietors, the Goodman Entertainment Co.—Manager, Mr. C. Goodman.—The pictures here are quite up to the usual standard, and good items are contributed by Miss Cissie Scott and Leslie Sears (old favourites here), and Lawrence Howard, who possesses a good voice.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy O. Humphrys.—This week The Eternal Question, Ltd., with Mr. G. Ralph Hall Caine as managing-Director, present The Eternal Question and The Bishop's Son. Mr. Derwent Hall Caine as David Rosse, the turbulent Socialist, in the former play, is strong and vigorous; into the character of Donna Roma Miss Helena Millais brings a winsome personality and sweetness of expression, and her delicacy of treatment adds to the intensity and charm of her performance; as Baron Bonelli Mr. Creagh Henry shows remarkable aptitude; and Mr. Julian Cross give an effective portrayal of Bruno Rocco. Elena has a sympathetic exponent in Miss Agnes Knights. On Thursday and Friday The Bishop's Son was presented.

KING'S LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and Geo. T. Minshull; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—A crowded house on Monday welcomed Mr. James Welch and company in When Knights were Bold. The popular comedian was better than ever as the little knight, Sir Guy de Vere, and his amusing sallies were enjoyed immensely; Miss Audrey Ford made a charming Rowena; and Miss Mabel Younge a stately Mrs. Waldegrave; Miss Daisy Cordell as Sarah Isaacson and Miss Annie Chippendale as Alice gave clever renderings of their parts; and the other winsome ladies were attractively played by Misses Maev O'Hea, Hermione Black, and Peggie Kennedy. Mr. Arthur Grenville acted well as the Jew, Isaacson, and Mr. George Desmond was very funny as Charlie Widdicombe; Mr. Guy Lane as the dignified Dean and Mr. Cecil Kinnaird as Sir Brian gave excellent performances; Mr. George F. Tully as Wittle, Mr. Gordon Tomkins as Barker, and Mr. Leopold Profeit as a Herald completed a first-rate cast.

ROYALTY.—Sub-Lessees, the Scottish Playgoers, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Wareing; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Humphrys.—The Repertory Theatre company is this week reproducing Mr. G. J. Hamlin's comedy Barbara Grows Up. The part of Kenneth Morrison was taken by Mr. Campbell Gullan, who plays in easy and finished style; Barbara Morrison has admirable treatment from Miss Muriel Pope; Miss Jean Cadell is an excellent Janet; the Margaret Morrison of Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is an interesting study; Mr. Walter Roy makes good use of his opportunities as Andrew Purdie; Miss Winifred Gunn gives a capital character study; and the Barney O'Brian of Mr. Norman M'Keown is very good. The comedy was followed by the National Service League play The Call, written by Miss Marianne Stayton.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—The chief item on the bill here this week is The Goose with the Golden Eggs, in which Mr. Alex Keith keeps the audience in good humour with his impersonation of Turby; Clara is charmingly played by Miss Julia Kent; Mr. Charles Homer is a vigorous Flickster; Mr. Jack Glynn a good Bonser; Mrs. Turby is pleasingly portrayed by Miss Margaret Zaidia; and the Maidservant is well played by Miss Belle Edison.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. George N. Ballinger's company is doing good business with the stirring American play King of the Wild West. Young Buffalo's fine romantic portrayal of the title rôle is, of course, the main attraction; as Wild Nell Miss Caroline May Blaney's acting is gay and spontaneous; another pleasing assumption being the Kate Morton of Miss Mary McCarthy. Jack Morton is played with considerable spirit by Mr. Edwin J. Collier; Bluffington is represented with good effect by Mr. George W. Cockburn; and Yellow Face is suitably taken by Mr. Antonine Provost; the part of old Morton being ably filled by Mr. Ernest Foster.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's principal company in A Broken Heart is here this week; Mr. John S. Millward as John Barnard, master blacksmith, and Miss Dorothy Haigh as Mary Barnard carry off leading honours; Mr. Denis Hogan as Stephen Railton, assisted by Mr. Vernon Travers as Gash Gills, a social terror, supply the evil influences with marked ability; while Mr. Newton Pearce as Tony Tibbets does full justice to the lighter elements.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey are this week delighting good houses at the Govan Theatre. In the part of Roy O'Donohoe in Rollicking Rory he is particularly well suited; Mr. J. P. McBride as Desmond Fitzgerald possesses the convincing style of an accomplished actor; and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey takes the part of Rosaleen with great credit.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—Most enjoyable is the programme here this week. Miss Adrienne Augarde, assisted by Mr. Victor G. Huntly, presents an original and entertaining duologue Dick's Sister. The pair work capitally together. Little Elise Craven on a return visit appears with Master Bert Clerc. The duologue is Grecian, and the scene laid in a vineyard on the road to Athens. Both artists dance beautifully. The Bensons, in their pleasing comedy act, The Page and the Maid, are responsible for much genuine merriment; Barrett and Knowles are welcome; the Bollingers present their unique rag painting act; Ugo Nap appears with a handful of comedy; Harry Fields is a clever mimic; Alf Chester is responsible for a football song, which catches on. The Bioscope closes the programme.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest R. Foster.—The absence of Miss Clarice Mayne from the bill here has been a disappointment to many, but it afforded an excellent opportunity for Miss Frances Letty to appear in her new scena, which was such a hit here recently, and is going even better on the present occasion; Maude Mortimer has several new songs this visit, one being a humorous recital of incidents in real life; J. W. Hall's eccentricities tickled the audience immensely, and he had a rousing recall; Hanvaar and Lee once more show their dexterity in their club juggling act as The Golfer and the Maid; the Five Poncherrys give one of the best wire-walking turns seen here for a long time, and proved a great success; the Rangers take well in a cycling turn, the gentleman partner being a particularly clever trick cyclist; Mart and Pep, two smart hand balancers, give a first-rate act; Cuthbertson and Pearson, two juvenile dancers, complete a lengthy bill

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—Harry Lemore, comedy entertainer, tops the bill here in a slack-wire display; Daisy Mayer contributes several coon songs; and other turns include Seener and Fridkin's Imperial Russian Troupe of vocalists and dancers; Florence and Rose Showell, popular duettists; Stewart and Morris, versatile comedians and dancers; Fanny Humber, instrumentalist and dancer; A. J. Gamble, Scotch comedian; the Three Kels, gymnasts; and the Claymore Trio, club jugglers.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. John M. Hay.—The top of the bill this week is Miss Jen Latona, appearing for the first time here as a single turn. She gives a most enjoyable musical act, but the audience miss the humorous relief afforded by Frank Latona, who contents himself this time by attending to the "shouts off" in several of the songs. Staley's musical and transformation act is, as before, cleverly worked, and their selections are much enjoyed; Winifred Ward is becoming a great favourite here, and her various male impersonations are extremely clever; Bros. Ashley contribute their famous boxing sketch, Next please; Signor Persichini as a mandolinist is a marvel, and he is accorded hearty applause; Witty Watty Walton once more delights with his humorous patter and impersonations of types of all nations; Mike Nono is a dame comedian of much originality and humour and an expert dancer; Calde's company, in their Casey's Court sketch, serve to introduce a host of clever youngsters, both as singers and as comedians.

"DERWENT"

GAS-STEAM RADIATORS

For Heating Theatres.

JOBSON & CO.,
Derwent Foundry, DERBY.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—In the variety line here Miss Rollo Cameron earns merited praise for her catchy songs; Randle and Renee submit humorous patter and attractive singing. A feature of the entertainment is the talking and singing pictures of Miss Ella Retford's popular song "Has anyone seen my Chinese man?"

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Sinclair.—Rowan and Moore, vocalists and dancers, have a good reception here; J. H. Harris, Scotch comedian, contributes humorous songs; and the other artists include Miss A. G. Davis, descriptive vocalist; Flem Darrock, light comedian; and the Towers, vocalists and dancers.

HENGLER'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Albert Hengler; Manager, Mr. Harry Milne.—This is the last week of the picture season here, as preparations are afoot for the winter circus attractions. Clarke and Cambridge, two clever Glasgow comedians, excel in cross-talk and humorous ditties; Palette and Otto give an enjoyable and smart turn; Max, the wonderfully-trained dog, is seen in various picturesque poses. An excellent and varied selection of films is shown on the Bioscope.

STAR.—Resident-Manager, Mr. George Chandos.—The Lavelle Brothers are amusing comedy acrobats; Chant and Chant keep the house in good humour; and Mona Marion is loudly applauded for her vocal numbers.

ZOO-CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock.—A lengthy and varied programme is this week again submitted. The Prairie Girls with their Wild West bronchos, Mocassin and Rattlesnake, are very popular; a like remark applying to Mlle. Chloe Convere with her talented cake-walking horse Kentucky Beau; the Erneste Family are a trio of splendid equestriennes, whose deeds on horseback are thoroughly enjoyed; an amusing comedy bull fight is presented by the Toreadors with their trained donkey; and Harez and Jabez, the musical clowns get through a lot of genuine work, much to the amusement of the juveniles; Rabbit is prime favourite; Jas. Holloway is wonderfully clever on an unsupported ladder; Ida Evilo is daring on a flying trapeze; Captain George introduces his trained elephant and ponies; the Valdo Bros. are seen to advantage; and Frisk, Harry, and Comical Spuds, a trio of clowns, are responsible for much jollity.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—The attraction here this week is Mr. William Pardoe's pantomime Dick Whittington. Miss Lottie Holland is a dashing Dick; Miss Cissie Lenore makes a bright and lively Alice; Mr. Tom Hulme as Idle Jack is very mirth-provoking; Mr. Tom Griffith is a capable King Rat; Mr. Frank Vant is a comical and amusing Sarah, the cook; M. Pauli is a decided favourite as the cat; Mr. Joe Verona makes an imposing Emperor; Mr. Harold Carlyle as Khan Tellum and Mr. J. Sherwin as Jim are capable; and Miss Cissie Loveday is charming and vivacious as the Fairy Bowbelle. Pauletti, Finetti, and the Edendale Dancing Trio are responsible for some clever specialities.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Messrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is presenting Her Secret Lover. Mr. Edward J. Fletcher as Gilbert Seymour gives a manly impersonation, and Mr. Walter H. Wilson shows marked ability as Capt. Darrell Rose; Miss Laura Walker enlists the sympathies of the audience as Ivy Seymour; Miss Lynn Darlington as a comedy servant is good; Billy Burleigh is well enacted by Mr. Fred Russel; Mr. Alfred Stretton is capital as the villain John Strange; Miss Flora Leslie cleverly portrays the part of Alicia Royale; Mr. Alfred James is successful as the Rev. Arthur Holmes, as is Mr. J. Newton Cowling as Jim Jones; Mr. Frank Wheatley is noticeable as Mr. Murfield; and the remainder of the cast is adequate.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. Stewart.—The animated pictures are supported by a clever concert party in Mr. Carl Fredricks' Les Vivandières. Miss Kitty Woodford continues to entertain with illustrated songs.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—The Midnight Wedding is here this week. The principal rôles are filled by Miss Lilian Hallows, a charming Princess Astrea, and Mr. A. E. W. Barnes, a clever Paul Valmar.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—Unthan, the armless wonder, is creating a sensation by his marvellous performance with his feet; Miss Florrie Humel is repeating her success of last week; the Orenius Troupe perform clever and artistic gymnastic feats; the Northcotes render some charming ballads; McCann introduces well-trained Irish terriers; Edie Anderson is a first-rate dancer; Francis O'Flynn, an expert banjoist; and Doodles, assisted by Pimple, is always introducing new drolleries.

GREENOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Messrs. Glenville and Elliston's company in The Wicked City is here. Harold Vereker is well portrayed by Mr. George Glenville; the rascally Paul Desmond is faithfully drawn by Mr. John Manners; Silas Sefton finds a clever exponent in Mr. George M. Manley; Mr. W. G. Clements is a popular Charlie Chance; and Mr. Val Gulley is successful as Dr. Strangways. Miss Muriel Inglis submits a careful study of Doris Grant; Cora Despard, in the hands of Miss Edith Wallis, was forcibly impersonated; and Miss Queenie Millard as Victoria McCleary shows ability.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—George A. Street is successfully presenting his dramatic episode The Cattle Thief, being assisted by a talented company; the Foresters do well with their sketch, A Society Sinner, and others in the bill include Ryan and Hall, comedy acrobats; Annie Freedman, a youthful comedienne; Diamond and Hart, comedians and dancers; and James Brady, comedian.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the B. B. Pictures, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank L. Clayton.—An excellent series of pictures is exhibited here this week. The Adventuress is strongly dramatic; The Coquette's Suitors conveys a pretty love story; The Moths and the Flame is interesting; By the Faith of a Child is powerfully pathetic; and an amusing number is Tontolini Wants Money.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Joint Lessees, Messrs. Ed. Marris and Albany Ward; Resident-Manager, Mr. George A. Deighton.—Imperial Electric Pictures and varieties continue to please at this popular resort. The Sisters Lucretia and Josephine contribute agreeable singing and dancing; Les Henris, eccentric gymnasts, score; and Sabino, the merry musical monarch, makes a hit.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson are giving a round of Shakespearean plays, which includes The Taming of the Shrew, Twelfth Night, The Merchant of Venice, Hamlet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Julius Cæsar, and Macbeth. In the first-named Mr. Benson gives his well-known rendering of Petruchio, and Mrs. Benson adds a fine portrayal of Katherine. Admirable support is given by Messrs. Alfred Brydone, H. O. Nicholson, Harry Caine, and Miss Elinor Aickin. In Twelfth Night Mr. Benson is seen to advantage as Malvolio; Mr. M. Carrington gives a fine rendering of Orsino; Sebastian is well played by Mr. A. Wild; Mr. A. Brydone is a good Antonio; Mr. J. M. Johnston and Mr. H. O. Nicholson are excellect as Sir Toby Belch and Sir Andrew Aguecheek; Festa is well played by Mr. Harry Caine; Miss E. McDowall is a painstaking Olivia; and Miss M. Patterson an excellent Viola.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The Life of a Showman is here. Mr. Edwin Bretton gives a capital rendering of Sir Noel Hartland; Mr. Frank Sante gives a clever exhibition of strength in the part of Brian Leader, an athlete; and Miss Eileen Bamford is an attractive Mrs. Brien Leader.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Yangar is a clever and versatile conjurer and illusionist; Reg. Beauchamp, eccentric comedian, keeps the house in a continuous roar; the Eight College Girls, singers and dancers, give a smart turn; Doris Druce is a clever and refined juvenile mimic; the Fitzroys give a smart gymnastic display; Gus Harris, Hebrew delineator, is well received; and Ernestine Desborough, comedienne; Ted Karno and company, in Hotel de Quick; and the Palace pictures complete.

VICTORIA HALL.—Manager, Mr. Frank H. Corbett. Karl Cynski, the Hungarian musician and one-man band, is very clever. The pictures are varied and attractive.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone.—The sixth and farewell visit of Lucky Durham is paid here. In the title-rôle Mr. Edmund Kennedy is again admirable; Mr. Arthur Leigh as the Hon. Reggie is capital; Mr. Frank Elton sustains the part of Arthur Welcombe with distinct success; as Lord Mountfallen Mr. Wm. Calvert is decidedly good, and Mr. Charles Wemyss plays Mr. Vallerton commendably; Miss Florence Tresillian as Helen Valerton could scarcely be improved upon; Miss D. Turner is a realistic Hon. Margaret Steighton; Miss Nellie Bonser as Mrs. Durham is delightful, and Miss Frances Wolviston as Lady Mountfallen is very good. Business is excellent.

GRAND. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—The Five Posing Ladies presented by Mlle. Suzanne de Verneuil top the bill, which also includes Harry Russon, a clever actor-comedian; Curtis Leo, the "hurricane wizard"; Arthur Croxon, the Yorkshire entertainer; Jay Laurier, who stars as a comedian; the Bellong Brothers, extraordinary cycle equilibrists; Maggie Bowman and Tom Morton in Mixed Pickles; and Jessie Buckle, a refined and clever comedienne. Pictures complete.

KING'S.—Lessee, Mr. J. P. Moore; Manager, Mr. Colin Hazlewood.—An excellent programme of pictures and vaudeville is presented. Merry B. Bright sings well and dances excellently.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—For the first three nights of the week Mr. H. Armitage's capable company is presenting Leah Kleschna. In the title-rôle Miss Marguerite Cellier's talent enables her to make a striking study of the part; Mr. William Clayton as Kleschna plays with passion and intensity; Mr. Graham Pockett makes a pathetic Schram; Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee as Paul Sylvaine is thoroughly qualified to give the part its due dignity; Raoul Berton has a fine exponent in Mr. E. S. Petley; and another who appears in a well-selected cast is Mr. Harry Wren as General Berton.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt.—Mr. Harold V. Neilson and company are presenting here, for the first time out of London, Perceval Landon's play, in four acts, The House Opposite. Miss Amy Sangster brings to the character of the Hon. Mrs. Rivers a passionate energy altogether admirable; Richard Cardyne has a capital exponent in Mr. Harold V. Neilson, and gives a very finished and suggestive study; an intelligent representation of the Right Hon. Henry Rivers is supplied by Mr. W. Lemmon Warde; Miss Dorothy Blackader is well suited to the part of Marie; Miss Effie Leigh Hunt ably impersonates Mrs. Calthorpe.

ST. LEONARDS AMERICAN PALACE PIER.—Resident-Manager, M. Leopold; Piermaster, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. Arthur Levien's répertoire company is still here in East Lynne. Mr. Arthur Levien in the dual characters of Lord Mountsevern and Archibald Carlyle greatly distinguishes himself; the part of Sir Francis Levison is played with skill by Mr. Edward Vivian; Mr. Vernon Crabtree as the man of law is admirable; Mr. Fred T. Carroll is very amusing as Sherlock Blue; Miss Sylvia Denny well sustains the rôle of Barbara Hare; and Miss Grace Garside is comically emphatic as Cornelia Carlyle. Little Willy has a sympathetic representative in Miss Currio Marlow; Miss Maud Blaze as Joyce is good; and in the character of Lady Isabel Miss Kathleen Yates is sweet and womanly.

HOUGHTON. — PICTURE PALACE. — Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood.—This week the Bioscope Chronicle, dealing with recent events, is proving a great attraction. Other films include A Modern Cinderella, The Altar of Love, An Impudent Bet, and the Winning Punch.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING.—GAIETY. — Proprietors, Messrs. Ainsley and Hall.—Mr. Dickie Clave's company is on return visit here in Lucky 'Liza. Mr. Clare, in the rôles of Silas Slim and the judge, is capitally assisted by Mr. Lenord Maitland as Paul Pettitoe; the parts of Barnaby Blatherwick, Peter Pittitoe, and William Biffins are ably portrayed by Messrs. Harry George, T. Benson, and J. W. Forest; Miss Rosie Coyne is especially well suited as Virginia; Miss Vesta Browne plays the title-rôle well.

HOYLAND.—HIPPODROME. — Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Firth.—The attraction here is Mr. C. Watson Mills's company in A Wrecker of Men. As Risca Mallison Miss Ruth Zillwood shows histrionic ability; Jim Murley, a slogger, is well depicted by Mr. Arthur S. Pitt; and Miss Marie Ault as Vavasole Slopper introduces a rich vein of humour. Mr. James Willoughby is an excellent Guise Strange; Mr. Eddie Vane is very good as Pharosaphus, and as Reggie Verincourt Mr. John Alexander is excellent. In the dual rôle of Ezekiel Isaacs and Knarnaphus, a mummy, Mr. Chas. E. Lovel is seen to advantage. A sweet and sympathetic Doris Melville is found in Miss Winifred Willard, and Miss Cecily Fisher is a good Marion Isaacs.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Accustomed as he is to success, G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, must have been delighted by the cordiality of the reception he has had on his first visit here; his rich singing, tireless acting, and graceful dancing have been most generously appreciated. Other turns are Marlo, juggler; Miss Lillian Warde, comedienne; J. C. Inman, light comedian; the Marzellos, a pair of amusing triple-bar performers; Miss Carrie Laurie and her smart troupe of juveniles; Randall and Everette, in musical sketch; and the pictures.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—A long and well-varied bill includes Henry Bedford and company in a dramatic little one-act play The Bottom Dog; the Eeduns and Scena Vocas, in illustrated songs and vocal duets; Misses Mabel and Hester Reeves, comediennes; the Five Petleys, whose daring aerial act is well and smartly done; Tamamoto, a clever Japanese wire-walker; Geo. D'Albert, a light comedian with an infectious laugh; Martin Adeson and Miss Clara Bernard, in a laughable duologue; Miss Louie Tracy, the dapper dandy boy, in smartly-done male impersonations; and the Palace pictures makes up the list.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Very welcome indeed is the return visit of The Dollar Princess, which is being played to crowded houses. Miss Nora Barry plays the rôle of Alice with fine effect; Miss Mabel Russell plays the part of Daisy with considerable humour; as the Lion Queen Miss Madeline Seymour does well; as the hero Mr. Leonard Mackay does excellently throughout; Mr. W. H. Rawlings, always funny, was in fine form as Mr. Bulger; the Earl of Quorn was effectively realised by Mr. Paul Plunkett; and not lacking in merit was Mr. Percy Davison as Sir Jas. McGregor.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Sinner is presented here this week. Miss Dora Olga quickly won the sympathy of the audience; Mr. Ben Carr played the old fisherman with intensity; the wronged man is cleverly suggested by Mr. Louis Lingard; Miss Nancy Roberts plays Vera Ewen with skill; and Miss Mona Gray is admirable as Meg Stanton.

PALACE THEATRE.— Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—Lew Lake and company present the laughable King Nobbler; Ethel Arden and George Abel elicit hearty applause with their funny comedy sketch; the Grassis, "musical acrobatic pierrots," submit a delightfully entertaining item; Esta Stella was unable to appear on Monday night, and Miss Doris Trevelyn, who appeared in her place, had an enthusiastic reception for her cultured singing; Horace Wheatley, comedian, scores with Irish songs and neat dancing; Maud Lordy's Dogs perform a number of wonderful tricks; Will Johnson, versatile comedian, and Daisy Martell, a popular comedienne, give appreciative items; and the Bioscope pictures are still popular.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Bentley.—Tom Davies' Trio submit their sensational feat "Motoring in Mid-Air"; Irve Haymen and company in Christmas Eve receive hearty approval; Clifford Morgan in a pot-pourri of operatic airs provides a pleasing feature; a novelty act, consisting of singing, whistling, and bird imitation, is successfully exploited by Joe Belmont; Henri Bekker, assisted by Miss Maie, presents a neat conjuring act; Arthur Stacey, comedian and dancer, Snowden and Rand, in a new and original comedy act, The Football Intruder, and Bessie Knight, comedienne, all submit items of acceptance.

PRINCE'S HALL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morton.—Large and appreciative audiences are being attracted nightly to this cosy hall to witness the Bioscope pictures.

HYDE.—EMPIRE AND THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee, Mr. W. Stansfield; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Silver.—The place of honour here is accorded Marie Santoi and company in an entertaining musical sketch, A Night in Japan. The Coopers are heartily received; Tom Drew is most diverting; and Friscara's juggling is warmly applauded. The Bioscope presents subjects both grave and gay.

ILKESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Midland Electric Theatres and Cinematograph Co.; Chairman, Mr. J. W. Moore, C.C.; Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—Dan Regan gives a pleasing turn as an Irish comedian and dancer; Luna Lisle is a dainty comedienne; Dan and Willie appear successfully in a comedy sketch; Will Capnor and Victoria Steele, character duettists, in song scenes, are much enjoyed; and a good variety of films is shown on the screen.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Kelso's Royal British Pictures and Vaudevilles continue to draw good houses. Jim Max, swell coon, comedian, and dancer, has to respond to numerous encores.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Murray King, Clarke, and W. H. Savary.—This house was occupied the first half of the week by Miss Loie Esmond's company in The Sorrows of Satan. The Prince Lucio Rimanez of Mr. Edward Neville was a finished performance; Mr. J. Le Fleming made a good Earl of Elton, and Mr. Frank Wheatley a robust Lord Lynton; Mr. E. Astor was amusing as Morris; and Amice had a suitable exponent in Mr. H. Sisto. Miss Loie Esmond as Diana Chesney was extremely good, and Miss Dorothy Dewhurst was a really charming Mavis Clare; as Lady Sybil Elton Miss Rosie Neville made an aristocratic appearance; and Miss Cecil Bryne as Mrs. Grimes was a characteristic lodging-house keeper, Miss May Morne playing the servant well.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Austin Rudd heads the bill, and received an ovation for his new songs and business; Arthur Slater, the "Whistling Man in White," is an accomplished silfleur; Patty Yohle is a clever comedienne and dancer; Rose Gower has some very popular chorus songs; Regan and Ryan are excellent comedians; Eileen Douglas is really charming in both song and dance; the Warsaw Brothers are clever and eccentric musical instrumentalists; and the Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Evans.—Variety is the order here, the programme including Miss Lilian Levey, the clever impersonator; Charles Sewell and Sara Dudley, in a sparklet entitled The Sun Bath; James Rich, the popular black comedian; the Herald Comedy Four, in a scena entitled The Hawkers; Amandus, clever facial mimic; Dan Daly, comedian; Ess and Hoey, Canadian ski-skaters; Mlle. Rosina, musical expert; and the famous Consul, the almost-man monkey, who scores quite a success.

THE KINO.—Proprietor, Mr. Dixon Scott; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. R. Scott.—This picture hall still continues to draw excellent houses. Dave Sands, comedian and dancer; and the Three Veros, vocalists and speciality dancers, gain favour.

THE PALACE.—Lessees, The Jarrow Palace Co.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. C. Padden.—Excellent films are being shown here, and variety is supplied by the Sisters Volbecque, in a farcical comedy act; and Probyn and Bates, comedians and dancers.

KEIGHLEY. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Keighley Hippodrome Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. S. Holmes.—The Girls of Gottenburg is presented with much completeness by Mr. T. C. Wray and Mr. Austen Hurgon's company. An augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Edmund Peterson. "Smith" scores heavily as Max Moddlekopp, his comicalities proving irresistible; Mr. R. N. Cory is excellent as Otto. His voice is nicely modulated, and he sings with a clear enunciation. Mr. J. R. Timms throws himself boldly into the part of Colonel Finkhausen, and his acting is convincing; praise must be awarded to Mr. Eddie Foy for his excellent dancing; Mr. George Gorst carries himself buoyantly as Corporal Smith; and Miss Dora Langham is a bright and gay Mitzi.

KETTERING. — VICTORIA THEATRE.—Managers, Messrs. Bailey and Co.—Varieties are the attraction here this week. Topping the bill is Bosanquet, the human violin; and other clever turns are Leon and Tee, in the "Musical Farm"; the Whitworth Trio, cyclists; Buval; Arthur Milton, comedian; Stuart Paton, character impersonator; Connie Isca, vocalist; and Gilbert's Canine Wonders.

COLISEUM.—Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackman.—An admirable programme of pictures is presented, sandwiched by enjoyable contributions by the Maximilian Trio; Carrie and Moore, comedians and dancers; Mabel May, comedienne; and Mons. and Grace Leo, contortionists.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—The first three nights this week crowded houses welcomed Mr. Geo. Edwardes' company in The Merry Widow. Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter as Baron Popoff is very funny; Mr. Robert Needham as Prince Danilo scores a big success; Mr. Ronald Pomeroy does capitally as Jolidon; Mr. Harry Emeric is seen to advantage as Nisch; the Marquis de Cascada is well played by Mr. Tom H. David; Miss Dorothy Arliss as Sonia is praiseworthy; while Natalie is excellently enacted by Miss Mabel Hope. The mounting and dresses generally are first class. For Thursday, Friday, and Saturday this week Mr. John Levey is billed to produce The Scapegrace.

KILMARNOCK. — KING'S THEATRE. — Closed Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday this week. On Thursday and for the remainder of the week the Kilmarnock Society of Musicians were billed to produce Mrs. Gorringer's Necklace in aid of local charities.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—For three nights this week What the Butler Saw was presented. As Pink the Butler Mr. Lionel Rignold showed remarkably clever acting; Mr. Charles Fawcett did well as Jack Barrington; Mr. Pat Alexander made an excellent Professor Shale; and Mr. Raymond Dudley displayed ability as Sir Charles Foden; Miss Zoe Gilfillan was a charming Mrs. Barrington; Miss Marie Daltra was well suited to the part of Miss Foden; and Miss Christine Jensen made a duly modest Nora Wickham.

KIRKCALDY.—CORN EXCHANGE PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. W. D. Walker.—A capital programme is submitted here this week. G. W. Walker, the ever-popular Scottish baritone, tops the bill; George Arnot, Scottish comedian, does well; the films worthy of notice are A Fight for the Faith, The Fisherman's Lass, Pater's Patient Painter, and The Trickster Tricked.

LANCASTER. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—Miss Winifred Maude and company, under the direction of Mr. Victor Du Cane, occupy the boards here in The Sins of a City and The Stowaway. The former piece was presented on Monday. Miss Winifred Maude appeared with her usual success as Seaweed; Miss Mabel Lane made a capable Mrs. Muggs; Miss Annie Megson did well as Midge; and as Lesbia Miss Gipsy Alexander gave an excellent portrayal; Mr. Victor Du Cane was a droll Isaac Levi; Mr. William Vane a capital Sandy; and the same remark applies to Mr. Harold Heath as Donald McIvor.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—Messrs. C. and F. Renad's company is delighting large audiences with The Merry Territorial. Mr. Edward De Vere causes much amusement by his clever impersonation of Augustus Gaybird; Mr. Syd Claydon makes an excellent Bertie Brown; the fiery Sergeant-Major Mustard is ably portrayed by Mr. W. S. Stevenson; and as Corporal Toby Jones, Mr. Victor Raymond is meritorious; Mr. Haydon Scott appears with success in the rôle of Captain Carlton; and Miss Evelyn Robson in the character of Mrs. Gaybird makes much of her opportunities. Miss Ethel Royle efficiently sustains the part of the scheming actress, Angelina Vernon; and Bella Brown and Polly Mustard find capable representatives in Miss Irene Atchinson and Miss Lily Beverley. A Plucky Woman precedes.

LEEDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Her Path of Sorrow is effectively staged, and all the characters are well played. Miss Maud Warburton is excellent as Pauline Ferrars; Miss Florence Halton, Mr. Frank Liston, Mr. Horatio Sinclair, and Mr. Hubert Lawrence all act with ability.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The second visit of Our Miss Gibbs ensured a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Miss Carrie Moore realises capitally the character of Miss Gibbs, and sings and dances in a charming manner; Mr. George Gregory as Timothy is the chief mirth-producer; Mr. Leslie Gaze is smart as the swagger professional crook; and Mr. Frank Hector ably fills the rôle of the amateur thief. Mr. H. V. Crofton as Lord Eynsford meets with due appreciation.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Macleod.—Miss Vesta Tilley, as charming as ever, is singing four songs at each house, and still the audience want more; W. J. Churchill amuses everyone with his droll style; Les Romas give a novel musical act; and other old favourites doing well include McConnell Trio, Great Northern Troupe, Rosa Loader, Bert Harrow, Dacey and Lewis, and Elly Adair.

THE HIPPODROME.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Jan Rudenyi's violin solos are greatly applauded; in his sketch, The Storm, Signor Torti has to respond to encores; Max Waldon's clever dancing is highly appreciated; and Gilday and Fox make a big hit. Other good turns include Michael Madden, a funny dame; Zenary Brothers, Harmony Boys, and the Three Gerlins.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager,—Mr. Charles Bush.—Longden and Livesay's company is here with The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesay as the Blacksmith is a big favourite; and Miss Maggie Edwards ably takes Kate Storm. Mr. Joseph Carter as Captain Lee, and Miss Gladys Brittain also render meritorious service.

THE VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Whiteman.—Will Netta's Singing Jockeys give a capital racing and whistling act; Zeta Grey and company are very amusing in her sketch, The Lancashire Lass; Baker and Balfe have a talented musical act; an exceptionally nice singer is Queenie May; and others completing a good programme include Tennis and Laune, George Campbell, and Lenton and Lane.

LEEK.—GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Leek Theatre Co., Ltd.; Licensee and General-Manager, Mr. Barry Bond.—Mr. Percy Norman's capable company, under the direction of Mr. A. B. Mackay, is appearing here in two dramas, Trilby and Life of an Actress. The former was presented to a large and appreciative audience on Monday. Miss Lillie Lewis, in her impersonation of Trilby, was excellent; Mr. Graham Hamlyn made a capital Little Billie; Messrs. A. Campbell and Fred Chester as Taffy and the Laird did well; Mr. A. B. Mackay as Svengali gave an admirable reading; and Miss Ida Mackay was successful as Madam Vinard.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Business-Manager, Mr. Trueman Towers.—Mr. George Edwardes' company is on a return visit here this week, with The Merry Widow. Miss Louie Pounds' performance of Sonia is throughout a truly delightful one; Mr. Lionel Victor is an amusing Baron Popoff; Mr. Basil S. Foster as Prince Danilo is to be highly complimented; Mr. Edward McKeown makes a good impression as De Jolidon; and Miss Victoria Sievers as Natalie, Mr. Tom Redmond as Nisch, Miss Gwendoline Brogden as Frou-Frou, and Mr. Somers Bellamy as De Cascada are others who do full justice to their respective parts.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's No. 1 company, in For Wife and Kingdom, is here this week. Mr. Reginald F. Fox is good as Captain Maximilian Lubeck; and Mr. Albert Guyon cleverly enacts the part of Baron Maurice Breslaw. Both Mr. Fred Osmond as Karl Ludhayr and Mr. Charles H. Gallier as Sergeant Offonbeck are provocative of merriment; and Miss Hettie Zillwood as the Grand Duchess Marie of Gotsburg, Mr. Lewis Gordon as Jan, Miss Lillian Malvern as Esther, Miss Audrey Canning as Ottilie Schwartz, and Miss Alice Buckland as Nita Constadt are also prominent with embodiments calling for special praise.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. L. Knight.—Topping this week's bill is Eugene Stratton, the ideal coon, who is being accorded a splendid reception. At the other end is Ernie Mayne, who keeps the audience in a continual roar of merriment. Park's Eton Boys, assisted by the Girton Girls, score a success, in Speech Day at Eton College; La Superbe is a smart dancer and clever acrobat; Kitty Wager is a dainty chorus comedienne; Ruth Davenport is an excellent light operatic vocalist; and Luigi Salvino, boy instrumentalist, Fred Pollar, comedian, and Hans and Lux, comedians and dancers, also provide entertaining turns. The Bioscope shows The Time is Out of Joint.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—Heading an entertaining show this week is Mr. Jack Fortescue, in his latest creation, Hawkshaw, the Detective, in which Mr. Fortescue is making a very favourable impression with a clever performance in the name-part, being supported by a capable company. The Jadoos mystify with their clever feats; the Borriskis are mirth-provoking comedians; and Queenie West, comedienne and dancer, Sid Penna, in mimicry at the piano, Geo. Edmonds, the comedian mimic and his piano, and Beatrice Allen, comedienne, also provide capital turns. The Bioscope pictures are The Sheriff and Friscol's Itching Powder.

GRAND ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Midland Electric Theatre, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Joseph Eke.—This week's Kinemacolor pictures are beautiful specimens of that art, depicting the River Thames from Westminster to Greenwich and the Review of the British Navy at Spithead. Other fine films are Hunting the Hippopotamus and Light Love.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—The two outstanding films here this week are The Broken Spell and Through the Darkness. Stave, in mystery, mirth, and music, provides a most entertaining interlude.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Gould; General-Manager, Mr. A. F. Beaton.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company, in Are You a Mason? received a hearty welcome from a good house on Monday. Mr. William Lockhart is well suited to the rôle of Amos Bloodgood; Frank Perry is excellently enacted by Mr. Howard L. Tracey; Miss Agnes Maude skilfully portrays Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood; Miss Claire Townshend makes a charming Mrs. Perry; as George Fisher Mr. Archie Selwyn deserves great praise; much humour is infused into the rôle of Hamilton Travers by Mr. Stanley Arthur; Mr. Edward J. Hinge as John Halton and Mr. Andrews Buck as Ernest Morrison are both excellent. My Wife's Friend proves a capital curtain-raiser.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Woolstencroft.—At the head of a good bill we have Reano's famous band, who received a flattering ovation on Monday for their excellent selections; Mike Craig is a smart juggling comedian, a clever turn is provided by the Bros. St. Clair, who play an excellent game of football on bicycles; Rob Wilton is a droll comedian; Astley's American Circus is greatly appreciated; Jack Lytton and Penny Bland provide an interesting dancing scena; Barney Stuart, actor-vocalist, is well received; Beal and Broadway, comedy duo, find much favour; Miss Liona Deering, vocalist, sings in good style; and the Hipposcope pictures complete.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS AND PICTURE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Barclay.—Up-to-date pictures are provided here. Barney Murphy, comedian, is much appreciated.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Following a successful week with Jeanie Deans, Mr. John Clyde has been doing good business here with a meritorious production of Rob Roy. Mr. Clyde's impersonation of the picturesque outlaw is a stirring and effective piece of work; and Miss Amy McNeill makes an imposing and spirited Helen Macgregor. The company is fortunate in the inclusion of Mr. J. W. Bowie and Miss Jeannie MacIntyre for the singing parts of Francis and Diana, the rendering of their allotted vocal numbers by both these artists being greatly appreciated. Mr. Fred F. Loyd is quite Irvingesque and consistently villainous as the traitor, Rashleigh; Captain Thornton and Major Galbraith have orthodox representatives in Mr. David Blair and Mr. Malcolm Strachan; Mr. George Hunter and Mr. Andrew Allan keep to sound traditional lines as the Dougal Cratur and Andrew Fairservice; and the Bailie of Mr. R. B. Drysdale is deserving of special commendation as an excellent study of this quaint and pawky character.

LIMERICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. George Victor Fogerty.—The Irish animated picture exhibits are attracting large and appreciative houses. The clever conjurer M. Ure is with us again; Messrs. W. R. Williams, tenor, and John Cahill, baritone, sing good numbers. Miss May O'Connor presides at the piano.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope; Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—Mr. Charles Constant's company in Florodora was here for the first three evenings of the week. Mr. Johnnie Schofield as Tweedlepunch was soon a huge favourite; Miss Daisy Lake was almost an ideal Dolores; Miss Florence Hersee a charming Angela; Mr. Johnnie Junin's Donegal was smart; and Mr. Junin and Miss Hersee made a great hit with an Apache dance; Miss Kate Leicester was happily cast as Lady Holyrood; and Mr. Stanley White's Gilfain was mirth-provoking.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Pete and Minnie Lee, in an interlude, afford a capital top-of-bill turn here; and a big welcome is given to Bert Woodicat, the steeplechasing cyclist, on a return visit; Little Sophie wins favour for her impersonations; and Edgar Forest and company score in My Friend the Enemy; Bruce Green, Jack Heyworth, and Dorothy Dacey also go well.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The leading theatre this week has the honour of a visit from Miss Ethel Irving with the powerful play Dame Nature. Rarely has the distinguished artist been seen in a part more suited to her high qualities as an emotional actress, and at times she holds her audience spellbound. Mr. Frank Cooper handles the rôle of Robert Bertram with all the neatness and finish that is to be expected from such a talented actor; Mr. Norman Forbes makes the most of his opportunities with the Prince de Chabran, and presents a convincing study of an old man; a better and more skilful rendering of the seductive Princess could hardly be expected than that supplied by Miss Mabelle Hunt; and very praiseworthy work is also performed by Messrs. Charles Vane (James Ridgway), W. R. Staveley (Paul Garford), Alfred Drayton (Henry Greville), and Charles Hampden (Chaillard), Miss Minnie Terry (Mimi) and Miss Florence Nelson (Mrs. Garford).

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Tantalising Tommy is presented by Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company, and large audiences are revelling in the amusement with which the cleverly-written comedy is crammed. Miss Nellie Lonnen, in the title-rôle, meets with general favour, and her pranks provoke continuous laughter; Mr. Hastings Lynn shows his acting ability as James Cottenham, a well-drawn character; Mr. Roy Byford stands out prominently as Thomas H. Pepper; Mr. Ambrose Flower fits the part of Harry Killick to a nicety; and among the remainder of a particularly capable cast may be worthily mentioned Messrs. Ernest R. Holloway (Eustace Tathem), Geoffrey Denys (Lord Enderby), and the Misses Margaret Stuart (Elsie Tathem) and Eva Brickwell (Bertha). The Second Mrs. Grundy is a curtain-raiser.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The attraction here is Mr. J. A. Campbell's From Convent to Throne. Mr. Aiden Lovett makes an excellent Lieut. Hapsburg, his acting earning for him much applause; Miss Valerie Crespin plays the Princess with extreme care and delicacy; Mr. William J. Miller proves a powerful Baron Strelsau; and other carefully-sustained characters are the General Hapsburg of Mr. Courtenay Robinson and the Prince Maurice of Mr. A. F. Stuart.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Sherlock Holmes, presented by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart, is doing good business here. In the title-rôle Mr. Stewart shows much histrionic ability, playing the famous detective with a convincing naturalness; Miss May Clare pleases in the part of Alice Faulkner; Mr. W. T. Harris makes a capital Professor Moriarty; Master Thomas Hill as the useful Billy is greatly popular; Mr. Oliver Crombie carefully portrays James Larabee; and others who help are Messrs. Eric Morden (Dr. Watson), Charles A. James (John Forman), and Miss Ethel Trevor Lloyd (Madge Larabee).

KELLY'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—The Silver King is playing to big houses, the company being that of Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford. Mr. Arthur H. Rooke is a powerful Wilfred Denver, whose wife is charmingly undertaken by Miss Mildred Surrey; Mr. Edward J. George repeats his well-known Jaikes; the Spider is ably presented by Mr. L. St. George Lowther; and others are Messrs. Albert Bernard (Elijah Coombe), Fred May (Cripps), Ralph Leon (Henry Corket), and W. Leslie Ellis (Baxter).

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Top of the bill here are Marie George and company, including Herbert Sparling, with a capital comedy of Western life entitled The Cowboy Girl, which finds great favour; the popular Arthur Lennard is heartily received for his latest songs; Winfe'd Blake and Maude Amber delight everybody with their taking songs and dances; Goodfellow and Gregson keep their audience in shouts of laughter; as "whirlwind dancers" the Legay Trio astonish; Laro'a makes everybody laugh; and also in the list are Harry Freeman, comedian; the Flying Hanlons, gymnasts; and Rose Cabani, comedienne and dancer.

LYRIC.—Lessees, The Liverpool Lyric Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—A capable company, under the direction of Mr. Bulmer, is playing When Woman Hates twice nightly. Miss Doris Brookes holds the part of Cora Daintry, which she handles with much effect; Mr. Richard Ferris proves a manly and vigorous Lieut. Rokeby; Mr. Evan Roland is a most amusing Patrick O'Brien; Miss Ada Oakley and Miss Jean Scott please in the respective parts of Marie and Edith; and also in the cast are Messrs. B. H. Davis, Henry Sainsbury, and Miss Mary Dalby.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—In big type here is Karno's The Bailiff, with Albert Bruno as Perkins, and the sketch proves as funny as ever. Beatie and Babs, the clever juvenile couple, repeat their Pavement Rehearsal; a pair of amusing American comedians are Friend and Downing, who are well received; Spissell Bros. and Mack cause endless laughter with their Fun in a Café; Rorke, Rooke and company present a diverting sketch, The Prince's Love Affair; Rastus and Banks, coloured entertainers, are as funny as ever; Mlle. Medicis has a pretty posing act, introducing her dog Billy; Damerell and Rutland prove themselves to be a couple of smart comedians; and others who contribute are Harry Taft, comedian, and Elton and Elma, gymnasts.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Adrift in London is being given twice nightly. The principal parts are in the good hands of Messrs. Harry Tresham, Sydney Grant, Miss Lilian Radbourne, and Miss Gertrude Entwistle. Brown's Bioscope shows The Short-sighted Errand Boy.

OLYMPIA.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. M. Slater.—Things are busy here with Bella and Bijou as an attraction. The clever couple again enjoy a flattering reception. Alice Pierce earns rounds of applause for her impressions of noted players; Harry Brown, coloured comedian, is an excellent laugh-provoker; the Four Royal Scots go through a pleasing and accomplished musical act; Jock Mills causes much laughter with his Scotch songs and patter; Harold Montague's Vagabond Players delight everybody by reason of their merry musical turn; Little Zola is as funny as ever; Haig and Novel have an amusing acrobatic turn; and Ethel Beech, comedienne, also appears.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—On Monday evening Miss Annie Hughes presented a new sketch entitled The Fourth Kiss, which is noticed in another column. On the following evening In and Out of a Punt was put on. Miss Hughes and Mr. Mayne Lynton played the parts of a married couple, rehearsing some of the events of their courting days, one being an accident to a punt in which they were seated. Herbert Lloyd and company caused endless laughter with their burlesques; the able ventriloquial entertainer W. E. Giffin pleased as well as ever; Nightingale and Stignant, with their quarrelling sketch, Two Sides of a Wall, scored one of the hits of the evening; the Starley Bros. went through a clever cycling, acrobatic turn; some smart work as equilibrists was done by the Three Warringtons; Dolly Rees sang and danced tastefully; and contributions also came from L. W. Harris, light comedian; and Will Sullivan, comedian. The Bioscope showed Way Out West.

LLANELLY.—HAGGAR'S (LATE ROYALTY) THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Haggar, sen.; Manager, Mr. Jas. Haggar.—Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company is here with The Still Alarm. Mr. Matthew H. Glenville does exceedingly well as Jack Manley; Mr. Edward Hobart as Willie Manley is very good; as John Bird Mr. Wilton Reed works hard and successfully; Miss Minnie Willett is a charming Elinore Fordham; Miss Lydia Andre a clever Carrie Wilber; and Miss Mavel Venton a very good Mrs. Manley; Messrs. Monty Partridge as Jenkins, Henry C. Gilpin as Dock Wilber, and Gerald Shirley as Joe Jones are all highly capable.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Manager, Mr. R. A. Warton.—This week Mr. Herbert Fuller's capable company presents The Fiends of London and A Noble Mother. In the former piece Mr. Herbert Fuller figured capably as Peter Shark, a rascally lawyer; Laurie Christie, the heroine, is ably portrayed by Miss Eliza Coliser; and all the other rôles in a diversified cast are cleverly filled.

ST. COLUMB'S HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. R. A. P. Williams; Manager, Mr. Dan Derry.—The standard of excellence in the programme presented is well maintained. Mr. J. Daly, who possesses a capital voice, created a good impression; the Dandies are clever entertainers, and gave a diverting turn; Phylis Kempton sings illustrated songs in pleasing manner; and a clever exhibition of clog dancing was given by Mr. White, who was also successful as a comedian.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—VINT'S ELECTRIC HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. H. Bowmaker.—A strong programme is presented here. Lieut. Chard's trick and high-leaping dogs are a great attraction; Mint and Mart, in a comedy cyclist and pot-pourri act, are clever; and the Sages, vocalists, dancers, and comedy artists, render a novel turn, which is highly appreciated.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Woisker Bros.; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. S. Evanson.—The artists here are the Maynards, comedy duo, and Frank Buckley, comedian.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—A welcome return visit is being paid by Messrs. Cranston and Helsby's company in The Drama of Life. A clever impersonation of Harry Beech comes from Mr. Graham Woods; Mr. Archie Helsby is successful as Walter Beech; Mr. Sidney C. Cranston undertakes in a satisfactory manner the part of Sir Dobson Wilde; Mr. Vernon Darly is good as Dave Crane; a clever study of Richard Brenton is presented by Mr. J. Harrell; Miss Dolly Bogue is much appreciated as Master Beech; Miss P. Hastings acts with good judgment the part of Sylvia Beech.

MAIDSTONE.—PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Ewart C. Potter.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company attracted good houses for three nights in His Real Wife. Mr. Clifford Rean worked successfully in the part of Herbert Barton; Mr. J. O. Stewart did well as the blind and aged Farmer Avondale; Mr. Charles Yorke was an excellent Colombe; Mr. T. Edward Ward was decidedly good as Simon Sletherley; Mr. John Waddington as Mr. Hackett, K.C., was quite satisfactory; and Mr. Harwood Roberts succeeded in the lighter part of Alf. Snickers; Mr. Herbert Vere also doing capitally as Randal Meredith. A pathetic rendering of the part of the much-wronged Rose Avondale was given by Miss Ward; Miss Clarrie Yandell was charming as the village beauty, Betty Tuttlebee; Miss Kate Walfred did well as Lady Sybil; and Miss Grace Rosemond deserves praise for her acting as Mrs. Creele. For the last three nights of the week Messrs. Bennett and Wray's company, in Miss Hook of Holland, occupied the theatre.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—The Royal Carl Rosa week opened here on Monday with a performance of Goldmark's opera The Queen of Sheba. Mr. Walter Wheatley as Assad, Miss Doris Woodall as the Queen of Sheba, Mr. Arthur Winckworth as King Solomon, and Miss Annie Van Dyck were all excellent; and no fault could be found with the smaller rôles of Sulamith, the High Priest, and Baal-Hanan, as rendered by Miss Beatrice Miranda, Mr. Alexander Richard, and Mr. George M. Reid. A dance in the third act was finely done; and the opera is produced under the joint direction of Messrs. Eugene Goossens and George Beale.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—One of the daintiest plays in Mr. Edward Terry's répertoire, The Toymaker of Nuremberg, was put on here, for the first time in Manchester, on Monday. It provides Mr. Terry with a part in which his gift of depicting a simple and lovable old man—all comedy, simplicity, and pathos—has the fullest opportunities. The simple, sentimental spirit of the play was further expressed in the delightful acting of Miss Christine Rayner as Hester, supplemented by Mr. Percival Madgewick's depiction of David. Mr. Robert Pateman as the Sergeant (a capital impersonation) and Mr. Percy Bell as the Old Actor contributed to the quaint atmosphere of the piece; and Miss Adah Barton as the Mother furnished just the right note of pathos. Among other parts well played were Mr. William Dexter's the Employer; and the long-lost Adolf, by Mr. Templar Powell. Bardell v. Pickwick followed; and on Tuesday an enjoyable performance of Liberty Hall was given, this being succeeded by The Magistrate on Wednesday, and Sweet Lavender on Friday.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Mr. Walter Melville's attraction The Beggar Girl's Wedding is staged here this week.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—Dramatic répertoire here is provided by Mr. J. C. Lodge-Percy's company, with Miss Henrietta Schrier in principal parts. On Monday Mr. Barnes of New York was put on to a good house. Miss Schrier playing Marini Paoli, and Mr. Lodge-Percy the title-part. Among many other clever people in the company, Mr. A. Money is worthily placed in important rôles. Camille and The Second Mrs. Tanqueray are in the week's programme.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Jones.—A strong attraction here this week is Mrs. Morton Powell's new drama of crime and criminals, The Ruin of Her Life, which was produced at Leicester a fortnight ago for the first time. Mrs. Charles Sugden, in the triple rôles of Mary Macaire, Lady Selwyn, and the Duchess, is a powerful factor in the success; but many other parts are capably handled by the members of an all-round clever cast; while the play is elaborately and convincingly staged.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—A strong bill here is headed by Leo Stormont. Nora Brocklebank and company, in an excellent sketch, entitled Exposure; Mike S. Whalen, the popular comedian and raconteur; and the Famous Kellinos, in their new risley production On the Road; Tom Stuart's dramatic and burlesque impersonations are good; Stevens and Brett, burlesque entertainers, provide amusement; Francis and Alfred, the juggler and his comic assistant, are a strong turn; Athas and Collins, comedy couple, make a decided hit; and other pleasing items are Harry Carsdale, farmyard mimic, and Maudie Ford, comedienne and dancer.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—A well-varied programme here includes the Scottish Meisters, in their vocal extravaganza; Wallace Whitney, the popular comedian, in latest successes; the Maories, smart acrobatic tumblers; George Hvam, comedian; Nellie Rose, serio and dancer; Geo. French's troupe of clever trick cyclists; the Snow Family of expert skaters; and Beattie Foster, comedienne.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A capital programme here is topped by George Lashwood, who is making a big success by the inclusion of "The railway guard" in his attractive répertoire; Sammy Shields, the Scottish comedian, gives a popular comedy Football act; and a fine brisk show is that of Kate Carney and company, in The Fun of the Fair. Ivy Williams and company act well in What Women Do for Men, a Scottish drama; and other nice turns are Edith Frink, comedienne; Kay Wallace, in mimicry at the piano; Gladys Hooley, in "Fiddle and I"; and the Three Emersons, in their novel gymnastic act, The Swimming Pool.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Seymour Hicks presents Zena Dare by way of the top star turn here, in The Model and the Man, in which the popular actress is adequately supported by Frank Wilson and Ivy St. Heller; another star turn is that of George Leyton, who includes "The roll-call" among his latest successes; an amusing turn is given by Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic at the piano; Kisbey, the cash-boy, adds an excellent performance; and other attractive items are W. F. Frame, the Scotch comedian; Adey Spencer, the girl from the hat shop; the Paxton Troupe of skilled acrobats; and the Brothers Artois, in their great comedy bar act.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—May Moore Duprez, the jolly little Dutch girl, and Daisy Jerome, that clever comedienne, top the bill here this week, and receive big receptions; George Elliston, ably assisted by Ernest Percy and Oliph Webb, is highly successful in That Brute Simmons; Mark Stuart, comedian, makes a decided hit; and other entertaining items are offered by May Baskerville, soprano vocalist; Marie Loud, comedienne; Memora, the "human encyclopædia"; and Wyndham and Kitty, in sensational wire act. Ruhell's Bioscope pictures are good, as usual. Dec. 7 has been set aside for the thirteen anniversary and benefit of the popular manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.

KING'S THEATRE, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. R. Trippett.—No less a comedian that Arthur Roberts, in The Importance of Being Another Man's Wife, is the star attraction here; and a prominent and effective act is added by the Three Romas. Mima Kello is seen in her charming song-scena; the Five M.P.'s are musical artists of merit; and other pleasing items are furnished by Jock McNeil, the Brothers Curran, and Gracie Lawn.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Merion's dogs top the bill here in a wonderful show of canine intelligence; Morny Cash, the Lancashire lad, is popular; Frank Hartley gives his original act with success; the Dancing Paceys are smart in their speciality; Bex and Bex present a comic military burlesque; Luis Hardt, the Sandow boy, gives an elaborate and effective scena; and Ida Dorrie completes with an excellent turn in refined comedy.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Pearson.—What one may call a "Max Goldberg" répertoire is the attraction here this week. It consists of a series of romantic costume plays by this popular author—namely, Jane Shore, Nell Gwynne, The Three Musketeers, and The Man in the Iron Mask, all of them well and effectively written, and presented with attractive staging. The acting is also good, this being headed by Mr. John F. Preston and Miss Mabelle F. Barlow.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND.—Managing-Director, Captain C. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Fred Clayton.—Miss Winifred Chalmers's company is presenting the musical absurdity Miss Plaster of Paris. Mr. Harry Ed. Ray is highly successful in his efforts to make laughter as Alexander; and no less effective is Mr. Johnny McElroy as Numbskull Nubbs. Mr. Herbert Goldin is good as Tom Stubbs; Miss Winifred Chalmers takes the part of Medea Hamilton; Miss Nellie Harcourt is the vivacious Eliza Plaster; and Miss Nubbs is well represented by Mr. Sid Dean. Miss Nellie Harcourt has a pretty skipping-rope dance; and the Sisters English and Sisters Florencie also shine in saltatory efforts.

MARGATE.—HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Mayall.—A smart performance is given this week by the Azuma Family of six Japanese artists, whose sensational act includes native dancing, foot juggling, wire walking, and shoulder balancing; the Wilton Heriot Trio present an amusing comedy sketch, Following in His Father's Footsteps; the Paulhan team, in their game of aerial football on bicycles, give a really good show; Marie Wilton, comedienne, sings pleasing chorus songs with success; and Agnes Aldra, comedienne, also contributes to the programme, which concludes with John Lawson and his company in the sketch The Monkey's Paw. The Bioscope pictures this week are The Gold-seeker and The Hampered Dragoon.

MATLOCK BATH.—PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. C. Seymour.—The first two nights this week the boards were occupied by Percy Tyler and Dudley Stuart's company in A Message from Mars. There were appreciative attendances each night, and a first-class performance was given by a strong company, which included Mr. Dudley Stuart, Mr. Percy Tyler, Mr. G. Berresford Innes, Miss Maud Gill, and Miss Ruth Wingrove.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Sandow Perkins.—An excellent house welcomed The Gay Gordons on Monday, when Miss May Yates made a charming and piquant Peggy, being ably seconded by Mr. Alex S. Clunes as Angus Graeme. Mr. W. H. Benson was admirable as Andrew Minton; Mr. Harry Howe as Nervy Nat kept up a continual ripple of laughter; and Mr. W. H. Desmond as the son was very amusing. Speedy was well played by Mr. Alfred Lloyd; Miss Kitty Kirwan ably undertook Charlotte Siddons; Mary McLeod had an able representative in Miss Mavis Clare; and Miss Beatrice was good as Janet.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Lessees, the Merthyr Entertainments Co.; Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The Great Marconis, electric wonders, head a popular bill, which also includes the Wynfords, champion jumpers; J. H. Ellis, comedian; Harvey and Stanton, in a comedy episode; Bonnetti and Corri, comedy jugglers; Ingram and Irving, in a comedy duo, and pictures.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—Messrs. F. Marriott Watson and Jas. Ussher's company is here with The Face at the Window. Mr. T. W. Dunscombe as Paul Gouffet is exceptionally good; Mr. W. H. Macauly as Le Loup gives a fine display of villainy; Miss Constance Glenabyn as Marie Brisson acts with great feeling; and Peter Pottleberry (Mr. John A. Stimson) and Barbette (Miss Frances Day) supply the lighter vein.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Goodison.—Mr. Carr Loates and company are presenting A London Outcast. Mr. Sydney Ernest gives an intelligent interpretation of John Trueman; a powerful rendering of Edgar Hall is supplied by Mr. Carr Loates; Philip Reymond has an able exponent in Mr. W. Leonard; Miss Hazel Dent imparts grace and sympathy to the character of Mabel Reymond; Miss Cissie Milford skilfully enacts the dual rôle of Susan Good and a waif; and Miss Carrie Johnson does well as the child Philip.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production of The Arcadians meets with the same unqualified approval as on the previous visit. Miss Ethel Erskine as Sombra is most successful; the Mrs. Smith of Miss Veronica Brady commands high commendation; Mr. Walter Passmore is a splendid James Smith, and equally worthy of praise is his Simplicitas; and Mr. Oliver J. Round is a capital Peter Doody, the jockey. Mr. Harold C. Pearce gives entire satisfaction as Jack Meadows.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Imeson.—Mrs. Frank Bateman and company present with success the melodrama Where Angels Fear to Tread, in which Mrs. Bateman capably sustains the rôle of Arananta Parsons. Miss Emma Rainbow is seen to advantage as Lady Margaret Austinleigh; Mr. Geo. Butler's portrayal of the burglar, Bert Taylor, is appreciated; and Mr. Fred W. Goddard acquits himself well as the Hon. Maurice Masterman.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—Jack Pleasants is once more entertaining Tees-side audiences with his droll humour; the Courtiers submit a good musical turn; Livesey and Rosebery present the entertaining playlet An Amateur Anarchist; Kenneth and Kaye, comedians; the Darntons, operatic vocalists; Miss Jessie Merrilees, in a pleasing number; Zedini, comedy juggler; and the Empire pictures all go well.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. S. T. Smurthwaite.—Miss Edith Tudora's ponies give a capital performance, which is much enjoyed; the Manchester Lads, vocalists and dancers, are well received; the baritone contributions of Fred Leslie are appreciated; and a first-rate picture show meets with approbation. Good houses rule.

MORLEY.—ALEXANDRA PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—Tiny and Mite, song and dance artists, are a great attraction here; Nobby, another small item of humanity (3ft. 1in.) causes a continual roar of merriment; Johnny Dewar goes well as an eccentric comedian; and Edward Caselli manipulates the banjo in an efficient manner.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Business-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wright.—The Glossop-Harris Shakespearean company are appearing here this week, with Miss Glossop-Harris and Mr. Frank Cellier in the leads.

NEATH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice; Musical-Director, Mr. G. T. Hutchins.—Mr. Tom Watts's company present the Heath-Wilson-Barrett original version of East Lynne here this week. As Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine Miss Ada Heron is decidedly clever, and gains much applause; in the rôle of Archibald dancers; Theo. Carly's troupe of well-trained dogs; Daisy and Dot, two clever dancers; Hazel Glade, comedienne; and the pictures conclude.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. F. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—There is a programme of more than ordinary interest at this popular East End theatre. Lillie le Main, Lilliputian artist and dainty dancer, has a flattering reception; R. C. Note is a comedian of no mean ability; and Peakman and Walsh are two clever comedy jugglers. In addition to the usual show of animated pictures there is an interesting exhibition of natural colour photography.

PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Heaton Assembly Hall Co.; Manager, Mr. G. Graby.—Capital variety turns are provided here by Clifton Reynolds, comedian, and Florence Raynard, lady ventriloquist.

BRINKBURN ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. McHarg; Manager, Mr. G. T. Edminson.—Little Alice, the dainty comedienne, is paying a welcome return visit, and is supported by a powerful picture programme.

NORTHAMPTON. — TEMPERANCE HALL. — Andrews' Pictures, Ltd.—"The Cobblers" v. Portsmouth, played at Northampton Nov. 12, has great local interest. The illustrated songs "Beloved" and "Ohio" are well sung by Mr. F. Nettleton.

COUNTY ELECTRIC PAVILION.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Lyle Edwards.—Good films are provided, and Nellie Stevenson's fine soprano voice is heard to advantage.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company with Sapho is proving a big attraction here. As Jean Gaussin Mr. Stephen Crossley makes an excellent impression; and Miss Ada Abbott gives a capital impersonation of Fanny Legrand. Mr. Edwin Keene fills the rôle of Uncle Cesaire with credit; Mr. Henry Earlesmere ably portrays Famant; Mr. Weedon Ross makes the most of the part of Old Legrande; Mr. John Drake scores as Henri Dechelette; and Mr. John Lester is seen to advantage as Caudel. Miss Ethel Tinsley does justice to the rôle of Aunt Divonne; Miss Florence North gives a satisfactory rendition of Lucy; Miss Marjorie Tennant deserves praise as Nichette; and the remaining parts are well sustained.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—Cassie Walmer heads the bill here, and maintains her popularity; the Three Comerfords, comedy acrobats and tumblers, get a capital reception; Guest and Newlyn, "the Hebrew and the soubrette," are cordially received; Master Chester proves himself a capital vocalist; Massano, the comedy juggling merchant, is well to the fore; Will Powers, versatile comedian, is entertaining; and the Bioscope Pictures are greatly enjoyed.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss S. Golden.—Miss Olga Audre and company have presented The Great Awakening, and have been well patronised. Mr. Herbert Barrs is a capital exponent of James Selby; Mr. Tom Arkinstall does well as Guy Logan; Mr. Arthur Wimpenny is good as Jack Merton; and Mr. Chas. Chandler as Capt. Harry Lambert depicts the character impressively. Mr. Artie Francis as Billy Brass and Miss Dorothy Oswald as Selina Worts cause much merriment; Miss Evie Conway is well suited to the part of Molly Merton; and Miss Olga Audre presents a clever and highly-finished performance as Lola Selby.

NORWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company, in A Message from Mars, is being well supported. Mr. Barbe-West gives an excellent representation as Horace Parker, and is much appreciated; Mr. William H. Brougham as the Messenger is dignified alike in presence, voice, and acting; Mr. Norman Clarke is most successful as the Tramp; and Mr. Arthur Lugg is very good as Arthur Dicey. Miss Josephine Middleton deserves every praise as Minnie Templar; and Miss Aubrey Ashton is equally commendable as Miss Parker.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Miss Stella Gastelle and company are giving a condensed performance of La Poupée, in which Miss Gastelle appears as Alesia, supported by Mr. Leon Simpkin (Hilarious), Mr. Wellington (Lancelot), Miss Rose Lytton (Mme. Hilarious), and Miss Gladys Keats (Henri), proving very attractive; the Martialo troupe are clever equilibrists and balancers; Barry Lupino exhibits some eccentric dancing; Bob Selvidge and Poppy Holland create much laughter in their musical absurdity A Dotted Crotchet; Maurice proves a clever mystifier and card manipulator; Lace and Leno, comedians and tangle-foot dancers, are humorous; Rolando Martin is good as a comedian and patterer; and Francesca, the vocal comedian, is well received; while the Hippo Bio pictures are very choice.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Blue Bird has received an enthusiastic welcome from crowded houses. Tyltyl and Mytyl are played by Master Stephen Thomas and Miss Bella Terry with engaging frankness and naturalness; as the Dog Mr. Ernest Hendrie fully deserved the frequent applause accorded him; a faithful study of the Cat by Mr. Norman Page also evoked hearty recognition; Mr. William Farren as Gaffer Tyl plays with excellent effect; and the Granny Tyl of Miss Daisy England is a capital embodiment. A graceful impersonation of Light and the excellent diction of Miss Saba Raleigh as Night call for much praise; Mr. E. A. Warburton gives a sound performance as the Oak and Father Time; Mr. Edward Rigby's drolleries as Bread are thoroughly appreciated; and other parts receive careful attention from Miss Lizzie Webster, Miss Morris, Miss Burgess, and Mr. H. R. Hignett.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry J. Crane.—Mr. Geo. H. Hazlehurst's company present A Child of the Streets. Miss Dot Stephens as Doris Graham does wonders in the way of acting and dancing, and her appearance and singing are at all times charming; Miss Bessie Hazlewood has all the necessary ability to make her acting of the rôle of Gertrude Graham attractive; Mr. John Erroll makes up well, and does good work as the Baronet; and Mr. Leonard Clarke is to be congratulated upon his portrayal of the villainous Craigie, in which he is ably assisted by Miss Yoxa Summer as Lorna Carstairs, Mr. Geo. Keene as Lieutenant Jack Ainsley and Mr. Claude Gravely as Robert Wallace both do good work.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Once again that inimitable comedian Fred Kitchen is delighting his Nottingham friends in Herbert Darnley's sketch Private Potts. Mrs. Herbert Darnley makes a charming exponent of the Colonel's daughter, and all the company acquit themselves well; Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris evoke the heartiest of laughter by their quaint witticisms; Fred Corwey's musical ability is capitally aided by his "fooling"; a charming turn is given by Edith Heron-Brown in songs at the piano; Phil Rees' stable lads prove a versatile combination; a highly humorous turn by Drew and Alders secures recognition; Frank Couch patters well; and Georgina Leno proves a sprightly comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. W. Austin.—A rousing welcome was given Miss Decima Moore on Monday last, when this charming comedienne appeared in the sketch A Black Mark, in which she had the able assistance of Messrs. Percy Francis and Charles Esdale; the Banzai family of Japanese entertainers offer some novel and startling feats; the football match by Mlle. Doris's canine wonders is both amusing and clever; the dancing of Effie White is well conceived and executed; the paper-tearing of Harry Moir is well done; and others who contribute to the enjoyment are the Two Lillies, dancers; Dora Lyric, comedienne; Josh Dixon, a smart comedian; and Walter Wallis, comic.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brown.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company is here this week with Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J. H. Boehm ably portrays Uncle Tom; Mr. Terrence Nerry acquits himself well as Phineas Fletcher; Mr. Frank Lynn is good as Mr. St. Clair; Mr. Eric Williams is excellent as George Harris; Mr. Tom Bowron represents Legree in a forcible manner; Miss May Turner is well suited as Mrs. St. Clair; Miss Sylvia Harrington puts in good work as Eliza Harris; Miss Norah Bretton is a charming Little Eva; Miss Annie Watson is decidedly amusing as Topsy; and the other parts are all well filled.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; General-Manager, Mr. J. F. Elston.—The bill here is topped this week by Harry Tate's No. 1 company in Motoring, which is productive of much hilarity; Kinnard, in his magical act, is appreciated; Lawson and Odell, smart dancers, are well received; the Loraines, lady brass instrumentalists, do a pleasing turn; and Tom and Neil are exceedingly smart in their comedy boxing and wrestling.

OLDHAM.—GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—A capital audience witnessed the opening of the week's engagement of Miss Horniman's company on Monday evening in Mr. G. Bernard Shaw's play Candida. Mr. Ian MacLaren acted in forceful manner as the Rev. James Mavor Morrell; Miss Rosalind Ivan as Candida gave a delightful portrayal; Miss Muriel Pratt played cleverly as Proserpine Garnett; Mr. Leonard Mudie as Eugene Marchbanks, the dreamer, was excellent; and Mr. Edward Landor made a capital Mr. Burgess; whilst Mr. Ernest C. Cassel as the Rev. Alexander Mill did good work. Preceded by The Truth, Cupid and Commonsense is also in the bill.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—The Better Land is staged here by Mr. Fred Granville's company. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe as Philip Radcliffe acts in a manly fashion, and his rascally brother Hubert is played by Mr. Albert Sinclair forcefully. Miss Hazel Head as Doris is a sympathetic heroine; Miss Madge Trevyllian as Mercedes plays with power; Miss Bella Moody acts in a lively manner as Aunt Jemima; and Miss Gertie Moody as Harry and Miss Florence Trevyllian as Tessa both fill their parts charmingly. Miss Marion Mayne as Polly Perkins and Mr. Sammy Foster as Tom Tadpole causes hearty laughter; and Mr. Paul Milne as Bill Bones is amusing. Mr. Leonard Marshall is good as George Grant; and Mr. E. W. Davis as the detective William White works well.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Miss Nannie Goldman and company are playing The Stepmother here. Miss Goldman as Danny acts in a clever manner; Mr. William Hollés as Bob Bristow plays in a breezy style; Miss Lucy Burrows is a charming Amy Bristow; and Miss Patricia Bostock a venomous Anna Vickers. Abraham Wiggins is played by Mr. Chas. Dockwray; Miss Edith Bruce as Johanna Jones is excellent, and along with Mr. Teddy Myles as Timothy Yapp causes considerable amusement. Mr. H. P. Owen is a capital Luke Frizel; and Mr. Herbert J. Walton good as David Blake.

ROYAL THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Leach.—In Life's Cycle is a fine dramatic picture, and The Man Who Learned is a dramatic film of great interest. The Warwick Weekly Journal is good; Max Linder as a Cinematograph Artist is amusing; and The Champion Boxer is laughable. Wilson's Wife's Countenance is a novel comedy film. Mr. Leach contributes a good song.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Burt.—From Tyranny to Liberty is an effective Russian drama; Her Mother's Wedding-gown is also good; Pathé's Journal is interesting; Willies Has a Quiet Sleep, Tontoline Pays a Visit, and Bunker's Patent Bellows are among the comedy films.

OSBORNE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Hughes.—The Broken Symphony, The Stronger Sex, and The Princess are fine dramatic pictures. Who's Who? Prison Reform, and The Champion Boxer are also included in a good bill. Some capital selections are sung by the Cousinn Quartette.

BROWN'S ASSEMBLY.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Brown.—Eternal Triangle is a powerful picture; and Captain Denham is another capital one. Mike O'Grady and A Holiday in the Highlands are also depicted.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas. — Miss Horniman's company, under the direction of Mr. B. Iden Payne, is paying a welcome return visit, and opened to a full house on Monday with Press Cuttings and The Fantasticks. Both plays were performed in perfect fashion, and met with a flattering reception. In the first play Mr. Esmé Percy was natural and amusing as General Bones; and the Prime Minister was artistically played by Mr. Charles Bibby. Mr. B. Iden Payne gave a droll sketch of the orderly, who preferred his original occupation of barber to being a soldier; Miss Ada King gave a sterling performance as Mrs. Farrell; Miss Alice O'Dea was well suited to the manly Mrs. Banger; and Miss Edyth Goodall was a fascinating and seductive Lady Corinthia. In The Fantasticks Miss Hilda Bruce Potter was uncommonly good as Sylvette; and Mr. Esmé Percy a capital Percinet. Bergamin, Pasquin, and Straforel were filled capably by Messrs. C. Bibby, F. Hope, and Iden Payne. On Tuesday The Critic drew a good house, and on Wednesday Justice was billed for performance.

HIPPODROME (late East Oxford Theatre).—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.—Henceforth there will be two shows nightly, at 7 and 9, at this house, with reduced prices. There were capital houses on Monday night to witness the opening performance provided by the new management, and all concerned may be congratulated on the general excellence of the programme. Amongst many interesting items, the sketch, Napoleon at Waterloo, with Scott Alexander in the title-rôle, scored a decided success; Miniola Hurst and her Merry Midgets were very funny; while Freda and Franks, dancing marvels, were good. The Milstead-Bell Trio, in Two Sharps and a Flat, caused considerable merriment; Laurence Ivors, the Irish tenor, had a good reception; Ronald George, with musical act, was smart; the Scotties, comedians, won hearty applause. Other successful contributors to the excellent programme were Miss Lena Lewis, comedienne; and Willis and Owen, comedians. The chief feature of the bill was Everhart, the world's greatest hoop-manipulator, who gave a clever exhibition of his unique skill in his particular line.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Harry Tilbury's company is in possession here, the play presented being His Dishonoured Wife. Mr. A. G. Fry acquits himself well as Frank Lindon; Neil Lockley is capably enacted by Mr. Fred Owen; Mr. Alex. Alexander gives a powerful rendering of Lord Devant; as Micky Doolan, Mr. Harry Tilbury keeps the audience in fits of merriment; and rôles of minor importance are well played by Mr. George Walkley and others. Miss Belle Tilbury gives a sound representation of Florence Lindon; Miss A. T. George as Alice Harvey is highly successful; Miss Etta Spalding creates a deal of mirth by her humorous portrayal of Araminta Dustpan; and a word of praise is due Little Violet for a cleverly acted child part.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack R. Bostock.—The management have again made a decided hit by securing Alexandra Dagmar, and the popular comedienne, has been a big success; Addie Dorina, protean artist, with Dr. Spot's Patients, in which she presents seven distinct characters herself, each change occupying less than five seconds, is a strong line in the bill; Talberto and Douglas contribute a smart and lively grotesque entertainment; Maud Hughes, soprano vocalist, sings delightfully; a most attractive turn is that furnished by William Jackson's Eight Lancashire Lads, a combination of singers and dancers; Louis J. Seymour, light comedy artist, renders several taking songs in a manner that wins loud applause; Miss Hilda Mascot is a pleasing singer and capital dancer; Howard Ward and Louie Davis entertain in their musical comedy duologue, Wanted, a Typist; and the Bioscope completes the bill.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—TEMPERANCE HALL.—Business-Manager, Mr. W. H. Thomas.—The Chas. W. Poole Myriorama and variety entertainment is paying a five-night visit here, commencing on Monday. The show is brought quite up to date, the latest dioramic effect being "A Contest in the Clouds," a forecast of aerial warfare. The variety turns include Amasis, who performs some mysterious conjuring acts; the Ettenas, clever and amusing acrobats, introducing exciting performances on the rolling sphere; the Cairo Trio of gifted musicians, in a refined Oriental musical performance; Inez and Pim, who give extraordinary gymnastic exhibitions; the Jerome Duo, eccentric jugglers, introducing some good novelty business; and U. L. Rowlands, the fun-furnisher. Poole's Imperial Orchestra is under the direction of Mr. F. Mann, and Mr. John R. Poole is a capable guide.

WHITE'S ELECTRIC PICTURE PALACE continue to do good business here, and is devoting the receipts of the performances this week to the benefit of the Pembroke Dock Poor Relief Society.

PETERBOROUGH. — HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—Leonard Barry and company successfully head the bill with their song-scena, Ginger's Dream; Dixie Dee, comedienne, obtains appreciation; Manson and West amuse with their duologue, Telling the Tale; Myrtle Grove, child dancer, is applauded; the Days, with their exhibition of thought transmission, are entertaining; and Stallham and Russell, in Borrowed Plumage, merit praise. Kenny Kay, ventriloquist, and the Karnoscope complete.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Naked Truth is winning decided approval. As Bunny Darrell Mr. Stanley Logan gives point to the witticisms of the piece, and acts in finished style; Mr. Townsend Whitling is excellent as the deep-voiced and irascible Indian uncle, James Darrell; Mr. Besley Beltran correctly delineates the rôle of the self-satisfied Mr. Hayter; Mr. Horace Sinclair is original as Teddy Lestrange; and Mr. James Heddon is correctly placed as Prosser. Miss Kathleen Maude is a demure and fascinating Norah Creighton; Miss Ormonde Wynne as Mrs. Darrell is matronly and sedate; Miss Violet Ley gives a clever portrayal of a difficult rôle as Mrs. Hayter; and Miss Violet Temple is an energetic Mrs. Duckett. The curtain-raiser is entitled Protecting Mrs. Moxon, the exponents being Miss V. Temple (Mrs. Moxon), Mr. B. Beltran (Capt. Snapps), and Mr. H. Sinclair (the Stranger).

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. Woodward.—Can a Woman Be Good? is played here by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. Mr. H. C. Robinson scores heavily with some really clever work as Herod Steinberg; Miss Isabel Rose sympathetically presents the rôle of the heroine, a very trying part; Miss Florence Hunt is excellently placed as Naomi; and the amusing business is in the capable hands of Mr. J. R. Tyrell and Miss Winnifred Barton.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Miss Lillie Soutter, the vivacious comedian, is exceedingly popular; the Bouncing Dillons provide an interesting turn at the end of which an amateur competition in bouncing elicits roars of laughter; Bruno Pitrot performs clever but daring feats on a moving horizontal bar; Wilfrid Burnard provides some realistic impersonations; Hubert and Freydo entertain with clever head and hand balancing; Arthur Sutcliffe has a couple of refined songs; and Hurman and Arthur and the Brand Sisters conclude.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee, Mr. George Tankard.—Mr. H. C. Lovell and company present the musical comedy phantasy The Queen of Sheba, which captures the audience from the rise of the curtain. Louie and Wally, burlesque artists, are well received; Stelfane is smart as a lady magician; Doyle and Deane appear as the chic comedy couple; Bee Smart has quite a taking turn; and other items are Phil Terris, comedian; Adela Varcoe, singer of chorus songs; King and Lewis, Jewish comedians; and the Alexandrascope.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Willie Trenchard.—The Master of the Mill is being presented here by the Melodramatic Syndicate, Ltd. Mr. John Greenfield is excellent as John Greenfield; Mr. Paul Beckett is good as Tom Bolton; and Mr. E. E. Imeson excels as Julian Croft. Adam Davenport is ably portrayed by Mr. Danell Greene; Mr. D. Ewart Drake is a very capital Braithwaite; Mr. Frank Kingsley and Mr. Frank Ward do well as Dykes and Collins; Miss Enid Edoni is a pleasing Nancy; and Miss Valerie Russell is a "taking" Isabel. Miss Nair Longmans is good as Kate Rigby and Miss F. Russell Spires a capital Mrs. Ray.

PORTH. — PALACE THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. W. J. Bynorth.—Mr. Alexander Marsh and his company are here. On Monday David Garrick and The Sleigh Bells were presented. Garrick was admirably played by Mr. Alex. Marsh; and Mr. Wilson Gunning was effective as Squire Ching. Mr. A. E. Walker made a capital Ingot; and Miss Carrie Baillie as Lilian Ingot was charming. For the remainder of the week Romeo and Juliet, Othello, The Taming of the Shrew, Julius Cæsar, and Jane Shore were announced.

PORTSMOUTH.—ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur A. Horner.—Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird attracted a large audience in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde here on Monday. Mr. Chas. Sugden gave a good character study of Sir Danvers; Utterson was ably impersonated by Mr. Henry Vibart; Mr. Ellie Norwood made an excellent Dr. Lanyon; Mr. Frank Tyar's talents were well employed as Poole; Wellabby was safe in the hands of Mr. J. Patrick Curwen; Miss Dorothea Baird, as Laura Jekyll, touched a sympathetic chord; and an admirable portrayal of Lady Carew was given by Miss Grace Croft. A powerful one-act play, A Maid of Honour, preceded, affording opportunities for Mr. Frank Tyars (Oliver Cromwell), Mr. Stanley Howett (Major Bosville), Mr. Arthur Curtis (Capt. Effingham), and Miss Grace Croft in the rôle of Maryleave.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—Miss Maisie Ellinger opened this week's entertainment with her patriotic song, "Wake up, ye Britishers"; Roelgin's highly trained cockatoos did carefully varied feats; an amusing comedy scena, Interrupted, provided opportunity for the Primrose Quartette of male voices; Rosie Lloyd proved very diverting; Bert Errol, the lady impersonator, scored well; Yamamoto and Koyoshi did some thrilling and remarkable equilibristic feats; an interesting turn was that of Miss Marquis and her stud of trained ponies; a dancing act was well executed by Phillips and Barstow; and the Six Brothers Luck evoked merriment with their farcical absurdity. The Demon of the Cellar.

GOSPORT ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. C. W. Collings.—Pat Carey, Helena Roberts, Daisy Cordelia, and pictures of The Sheriff's Daughter, and High Treason delight this week's patrons of this popular house.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Alban Newton.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and C. F. Wray's company is here with A Country Girl. Mr. Percy Carr sings and acts well as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr. H. John Hammond as the Rajah is vociferously encored for his topical song; Mr. Percy Everard is a capital Sir Joseph Verity; and Mr. C. B. Hargraves good as the vapid son Douglas. Mr. Tom Sheridan is an excellent character-study as Granfer Mummery; Mr. Coningsby Brierley convulses the audience with his drolleries as Barry. Miss May Rawlinson is to be congratulated on her excellent portrayal of Marjorie Joy; Miss Ethel Negretti is also seen to much advantage as Princess Melanah; Miss Hilda Darrell as Sophie wins applause for her duet and dance with Barry. Misses Florence Linton, Sylvia de Lacy, and Vi Small, in their respective parts of Mrs. St. Quintan, Lady Anchester, and Lady Arnot are equally good. Miss Dorothy Craske is an ideal Nan, and acts with much vim, while her songs are excellently rendered.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Clarkson.—Through the Divorce Court is being played here this week, and is meeting with a good reception. The company is a good one.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons.—R. A. Roberts tops the bill this week with his marvellous presentation of Dick Turpin. His quick changes nonplus the audience, many of whom seem dubious about the characters all being portrayed by Mr. Roberts. He is also presenting Cruel Coppinger during the latter part of the week. Kitty Kennedy Allen, comedienne, contributes a capital song and dance; Daisy Taylor is a chic comedienne and dancer; Dolly and Elsie are clever juvenile duettists and dancers; Robb Rossi's sweet tenor voice is heard to much advantage; Cullen and Carthy, with their diminutive assistant Little Chuley, are as popular as ever. Martin Conway also contributes, and Real Prison Reform on the Bioscope concludes.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner, Mr. G. T. Santé; Managing-Director, Mr. James Boothman. — The Lighthouse Robbery is being played by Mrs. E. H. Knight's company. Mr. H. G. Ingham as Tom Manley, the fisherman, and Messrs. F. H. Fortescue and P. Beresford, who are responsible for the villainy, act very well; Miss H. Baynton is a graceful heroine; and Baby Freda gives promise of making a fine actress.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee and Director, Mr. Chas. Evans; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Miss Nora Carton's company have been giving successful performances this week in the interesting drama Temptation. Miss Carton makes a fine study of Hilda Dundonald; and Mr. Charles H. Mortimer is admirable as Sir Charles Tremaine. Miss Lilla Wilde is a splendid adventuress as Irva Blight; and the other parts are all filled in an eminently satisfactory manner.

MARINA THEATRE —Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Attack.—At the Marina, it is generally noted, the pictures are this week even better than ever. The Albano Girls, in their "cowboy girls" turn, are thoroughly popular.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hamilton Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Renshaw. — We have this week Mr. Fred Melville's company in Her Forbidden Marriage. Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson showed ability as George Maddison; as Charles Devereux Mr. W. H. Porter was in every sense a success; Mr. Fred de Vere deserved great praise for the exceedingly clever manner in which he sustained the part of Timothy Tuttutt; Mr. Frank Denis as Sir George Lancaster was most effective; Miss Alice Bowes achieved success as Lucy; Miss Vera Grafton as Lady Lucretia made a fine villainess; and Miss Rita Tomkins was excellent as the Mother Superior.

READING. — ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is appearing this week in A Girl's Cross Roads. Miss Neil Oliver acts with power as Barbara Wade; Miss Florrie Lyndon is a charming representative of Constance Cornell; Miss Edah Rothwell is excellent as Nellie Meadows; Mr. Edward Valentine makes a good study of the part of John Meadows, the old farmer; Mr. Cecil F. Kerze as Jack Livingstone, Mr. Fred Rivers as Cuthbert Lumley, Mr. Kendrew Milson as Dr. Weston, Mr. Leslie Nolan as Luke Ramsden, all sustain their parts well; and broad comedy relief is afforded by Miss Amy Rudd as Tilly Vane and Mr. Willie Scott as Toby Turvey.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Curtine Baldry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. George Kedge; Stage-Manager, Mr. A. Burridge.—The Ten Loonies provide an hilarious turn here this week; the Grovini Sisters, acrobatic trio, give a clever performance; Rose and Wold, as "The Sentry and the Maid," submit an amusing display on the tight wire; Iris Yohe is a good comedienne and dancer; the Haydens are highly amusing in their up-to-date burlesque Bertie and the Barmaid; Clara Hubbard is an accomplished elocutionist; Lily Burnand achieves success with her songs; Harry Marte is an acceptable light comedian; and the Palace Bioscope concludes.

Tom Child is a well-known Yorkshire tenor; the Four Marsanos are a huge success; and the Ted Curtis Trio, in a vocal and comedy act, introduce some smart dancing. The Holland Bros., a couple of local athletes, make their appearance on the music-hall stage as weight-lifters and scientific hand-balancers, and receive a great ovation; Arthur Aiston is a comedian with original songs; Niagara and Falls present a mirth-provoking comedy acrobatic duo; and Ethel Dove, who is described as "the girl who waited on London Bridge," is responsible for two well-rendered songs. The Gilberts make a return visit in their tight-wire act, In the Camp, and are as popular as ever. Two interesting films shown on the Hipposcope complete a good all-round entertainment.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—The boards of this house are occupied by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company in The Prince and the Beggar Maid, who meet with a very cordial reception upon a welcome return visit. It is certainly one of the finest dramas staged at Rotherham for some time. The company is a talented one, at the head of which is Mr. Leonard Booker, who as Prince Hildred gives a powerful representation; the rôle of Prince Michael, the hunchback brother, finds a clever exponent in Mr. Victor Rae; whilst the part of Prince Olaf is admirably interpreted by Mr. Henry Hallatt. The central figure in the play, that of the Beggar Maid, is pleasingly and sympathetically portrayed by Miss Violette May. There are a number of subsidiary parts, all excellently sustained; whilst the play is complete with elaborate dresses and gorgeous stage setting.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Under the management of Mr. Edward McLean, who plays the part of Roger Blackburn, Sexton Blake, Detective, is a great draw here. Henfrey-Aldred.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. Edward Whitty's company began a return visit on Monday in The Eyes of the World. All the characters are acted with dramatic earnestness and the scenery is first-rate.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Originally acted for "one night only" here, the excellent comedy-drama, by F. C. Somerfield, Geoffrey Langdon's Wife, created such a favourable impression that its performance this week by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown's company has met with the approval of all lovers of sterling English drama. Mr. Wilson Coleman, Mr. Francis Leslie, Mr. Reginald Brown, Mr. Cyril Grier, Mr. Joe Redfern, Mr. Alfred G. Raymond, Mr. W. Annesley, Mr. H. Brookes, Mr. H. Rufus, Miss Leila Drummond, Miss Minnie Goepel, and Miss Kathleen Magee all give satisfactory portrayals.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—Mr. Tom Foy and his intelligent little donkey, in The First of April, are causing great laughter here; and other clever and amusing performers appearing with success are Franco Piper, the banjo expert; Mr. Alfred West, piano soloist; Miss Maud Edwardes, the pretty and talented lady ventriloquist; the Violas, second-sight marvels; Sanford and Lyons, who are selling good low comedy goods; the Sisters Jerome, charming and graceful vocalists and dancers; Mr. Frank Lynne, comic singer; the Bioscope, with artistic films; and the beautiful and shapely diver and tank-performer, Mlle. Serene Nord, in a graceful and elegant act.

THE HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—Mr. Arthur Prince, the ventriloquist, returned on Monday, and had a royal reception; Miss Beaumont Collins and company thrilled the audience in The House of Terror; the Bros. Obo are warm favourites; Miss Topsy Sinden, the famous and skilled exponent of high-class terpsichorean art, delighted all admirers of graceful and poetic movements. Mr. Fred Lyndo, comedian; Miss Mabel Moss, vocalist; the Croissett Trio, athletes, &c.; Bioscope pictures; Miss Adeé Adell, a vivacious vocalist; and the Tiffanos, musical grotesques, make up an attractive programme.

GRAND THEATRE.—Variety artists, sketches, and Bioscope pictures are pleasing good audiences this week.

PICTURE PALACE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Leonard Shaw.—Some splendid new pictures are projected on the screen this week, including A Trip to the Grottos of Capri, Love and Honour, From Nice to Monte Carlo, The Half-Breed's Defence, The Trans-Continental Express, &c.

SMETHWICK.—ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—The attraction this week is Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company in The Apple of Eden. The part of King Ferdinand of Slavenia is in the capable hands of Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan. Mr. Percy Bullard as Prince Nicola acts effectively; Julian Hanbury is admirably sustained by Mr. Lauderdale Maitland; Mr. J. F. Trynor displays power as General Pavlos; Miss Janet Alexander acts with much dramatic power as Queen Margaret; Miss M. Hayden gives a creditable performance as Lady Hanbury; Mr. Bertie White as Robert Bertram, and Miss Tessa Myers as Winifred Cresson, create much amusement; Miss Mysie Monte is good as the maid Anna; and Messrs. Henry Chalmers, Percy Follis, James Saunders, Francis James, and P. G. Marler acquit themselves well in lesser rôles.

EMPIRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Kennedy; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Adams; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Leslie. — The management has secured a most attractive programme. La-Vie, in a series of living art poses, figures at the head of the bill; and the Musical Melbahs, modern musical eccentrics, are at the bottom. The Vandas, wire artists, acrobats, and jugglers also figure prominently. Other items are presented by Little Cliffe, Leoline, lady shadowgraphist, Marie Clifford, Harry Tomlin, and Charles Bradford.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. Monckton Hoffe's delightful play The Little Damozel is proving a big draw here. Miss Emilie Polini in the rôle of Julie scores a decided success; Mr. Alick Chumley gives an admirable portrayal of Reclaw Poole; Mr. George Brandram is a convincing Capt. Partington; and Mr. Guy Newall and Mr. William Summers are both seen to advantage in their respective parts. An Englishman's Lie is an effective curtain-raiser.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—Joe Peterman's extravaganza, The Belle of the Orient, with George Ricketts as Ike, creates roars of laughter; Frapcini Olloms and his page contribute a smart turn which is well liked; the Alex. Piccad and company of pantomimists are most hilarious; and Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor charm with their singing and dancing act. Duncan and Godfrey, a quaint couple, Jenny Castelle, and Evelyn Taylor also add their quota to a capital evening's entertainment.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—The Great Raymond, mystery merchant, tops the list, and creates a perfect furore with his wonderful tricks and illusions; the De Breans are seen in a smart Japanese entertainment; and Marriott Edgar, the man in red, scores in his humorous songs; Little Sunbeam, Musical Silvo, Four Sydney Girls, Ryde and Beeman, and Luella Cross also successfully appear.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julian Graham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Archibald Pareezer.—The engagement for this week of Mr. J. W Turner's English opera company is most popular. On Monday Faust was enthusiastically received. Miss Kitty Brownlees made a powerful Marguerite; and the Misses Jessie Dennis as Siebel and Beatrice Mill as Martha were capable exponents. Mr. F. J. Hargrave impersonated the title-rôle in good style; Mr. Tom Griffiths as Mephistopheles was eminently suited; and Mr. Frank Clarke was a pleasing Valentine. On Tuesday Satanella was produced.

THE HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Lewis De Bargh.—The programme this week is one of the finest ever seen in Southend. Carl Müller is an excellent dancer; Ethel Newman is very good in "Her wedding-day"; Frank Lyndo recites with great reality; Mephisto, the mysterious illusionist works wonders with fire and water; Phillips and Merritt, comedy artists, are well received; Jake Friedman and company, in Happy Holland, create roars of laughter. The scene and the quaint costumes of the company are exceedingly attractive. Harry Conlin, comedian, is a good singer; the Wilhelm Trio, acrobatic eccentrics, display marvellous strength.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Percy Hutchison; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Clarkson.—A capital all-round interpretation of Mr. Wilson Barrett's famous play, The Sign of the Cross, is being presented during the current week by Mr. William Greet's chief company, who are paying a return visit here. Mr. W. Lawson Butt is eminently suited in the rôle of Marcus Superbus, which he depicted in a forceful and convincing manner; the gentle Mercia was earnestly and sympathetically portrayed by Miss Evelyn Hope; Miss Dorothy Lart submits an admirable impersonation of Berenice; Mr. Bernard Elliott acquits himself creditably as Nero; Tigellinus had an able and subtle representative in Mr. Charles Aldred; in the part of Stephanus Miss Winifred Delevanti vividly enacts the agony and heroism of the condemned child; Miss Esmé Lee imparts a natural charm to the part of Dacia; Mr. Frank Wood is to be credited with an amusing and humorous portraiture of Glabrio; the Empress of Rome was well played by Miss Mabel Cooke; Favius and Titus had earnest and impressive representatives in Mr. Walter Ficet and Mr. Henri Raymond respectively; whilst among others who lent ample support were Mr. Harry Jones as Philodemus, Mr. H. Thurston Harris and Mr. Martin Palmer as the two spies, and Mr. Phil Ellis as Viturius.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Coulson.— Mr. J. W. Cordingley's company present Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Dorothy Desmond gives a charming portrayal of Dorothy; and Ruth is ably depicted by Miss Margaret S. Forbes. Judith is well delineated by Miss Florence Corri; Mr. James Morath makes an effective Capt. Edward Dudley; Mr. Walter Ashley is good as Capt. George Fielding; Mr. James Salter is humorous as Silas Crump; and much merriment is caused by Mr. Geoffrey Borwick as the Dude; Hawkins is ably represented by Mr. Edward Aldworth.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Rich Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen.—The chief turn is King and Benson, in a new musical burlesque, Round the Town, in which they are much appreciated; Briff, Braff, and Broff give an excellent acrobatic display; Waul Langtry receives an ovation for his Tyneside song and clever patter and other humorous songs; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lucas submit some new and original scenes from Dickens successfully. Other good items are Elsie Robey, the slavey at the piano; Clown Argo, the eccentric farmyard mimic; Dan Hendy, acrobatic comedian; and the Bioscope.

GRAND ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Will Clark.—This popular place of entertainment still maintains its high character for films of travel, comedy, drama, &c. Ormonde Penstone submits a good ventriloquial conjuring and card manipulating turn, in which he is assisted by Miss San Go. Another turn is Lang, vocalist, who is also well received.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—A welcome return visit is paid here this week of Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's No. 1 company in Proof. Mr. Francis Roberts is well applauded for an admirable portrayal of Pierre Lorance; Mr. George Kingsley undertakes Count de Laval ably; as the Duke d'Aubeterre Mr. Alfred Wiltshire comes in for praise; Mr. Thomas E. Marshall makes a good Chamberan; and Mr. Hubert Hine a successful Victor de Langney. Miss Hero Hathaway, in the rôles of Madeleine and Audrienne, gave a capital rendition; Miss Millicent James made a popular Duchess d'Aubeterre; Miss Phena Powell, a good Madame Deprets; and Miss Elsie Goulding, a capable Valentine.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Mr. Arthur Sleep; Manager, Mr. Leslie Talmage.—Bob Winter, of Crook Durham, is a highly appreciated humorist; whilst the Harrison Brothers come in for much praise of their abilities as duettists and comedians. In addition to these turns, 5,000ft. of the latest star pictures are produced.

ARCADIA.—Proprietor, Mr. R. F. Gowland; Manager, Mr. George Castrey.—Mr. David Fuller tops a strong bill here, and his songs are all well received; Goodhall and Knox are good as burlesque comedians; Miss Ruby Maybutt, as a comedienne and dancer, delights all; and the engagement of Harry Goodburn, light comedian and actor-vocalist, is appreciated. Good subjects are also shown on the bioscope.

TOWN HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. A. J. Vesey and E. H. Dodston; Manager, Mr. Alfred Burrows.—George Payne's Wanderers make themselves extremely popular in their new and original roadside scena. Capital films are also provided.

DEANBANK INSTITUTE.—Lessee, Mr. Randall Williams; Manager, Mr. E. P. S. Whaite.—Considerable interest has been manifested here by the introduction of the famous battle between Johnson and Jeffries, and it is the first time the film has been produced in the county of Durham. Variety turns are successfully given by Dan Pedlar and Tiny Wilmott.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND THEATRE AND PICTUREDOME.—Manager, Mr. P. Leckie.—The programme is headed by the British Empire Band, and is drawing large houses. Other good turns are the Gregorys, in their comedy musical sketch; and Dean and Dixon, black and white comedians. The Bioscope shows some very interesting subjects.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager Mr. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry E. Johnson.—The attraction here is The Greatest Love, played by Mr. H. Armitage's company. The character of Paul Penfold, the martyr, is impersonated with marked ability by Mr. Campbell Goldsmid; Mr. Stanley Bedwell gives a praiseworthy delineation of Jack May; as the Rev. Arthur Warren Mr. Algernon J. Hicks is very impressive; and Mr. Dennis Bryan is also excellent as Andrew Isted. Constable Drayton is well portrayed by Mr. Wentworth Lawson; Miss Marion Fawcett's Mrs. May is an admirable piece of work; and Miss Francesca Strickland gives a touching portrayal of Mary.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—Queen and Le Brun and company are amusing in the sketch At the Meet; Wild, Willie, and West bring down the house with their comicalities; Lilian Love's sweet and powerful voice is pleasing; and Leolin is smart with the clubs. Ralph and Nellie Howard give an excellent display of their musical talent; and A. W. Scotto is a good turn.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Those Terrible Twins has been here this week. Genuinely funny is the author, Mr. Leedham Bantock, as William; Mr. Cyril Delevanti acts admirably as Charlie Pringle; as the Hon. Harry Scott Mr. Martin Alwyne is pleasing; and Mr. Robert Rivers amusingly fills the character of Samuel Pringle. Mrs. Pringle is impersonated with much ability by Miss Maud Adams; Violet and Lillie are charmingly played by Miss Enid Baird and Miss Norah Walker; and Mrs. Watt Tanner ably portrays the cook Maria.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.—An interesting performance is given by La Belle Duchesse, with her performing horses and jumping hounds; and among a capital array of talent appearing are the Martelloni Troupe of lady acrobats, who are exceedingly clever; Karr and Kooney, amusing patter comedians; that pleasing pair Brull and Helmsley, in Fun in a Music Shop; Coverdale's nine dainty dots, a troupe of talented juveniles; a smart dancing act by Pat Lynch; Nash and Noel, mirthful comedians and dancers; and the Three Comedy Chanters, harmonious vocalists.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — CASTLE THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. James Bell's company is here with The Idol of Paris. Miss Annie Bell appears in the rôle of Flare-Flare with distinction, and is well supported

HIPPODROME. — Lessee, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. V. Staimton.—Mr. Bransby Williams gives a number of fine sketches here this week; the Villions are a clever pair of trick cyclists; Flora Macdonald is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Miss Helen Charles is very entertaining at the piano; Stanley and Vandyke take well in a comedy act; the Bros. Weltman are clever whirlwind dancers; Bertha de Pas causes much laughter in a low comedy act; Frank Cass is a popular vocal comedian; and the Bioscope concludes.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott's répertoire company is presenting here this week The Shaughraun, The Ticket-of-Leave Man, Colleen Bawn, The Octoroon, and Arrah-na-Pogue. Good houses rule.

STOKE-ON-TRENT. — THE HIPPODROME. — Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will A. Jackson. Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company present the pleasing and pathetic little drama, entitled Her Nameless Child. As the heroine Miss Jean Wigney speedily gains the sympathy of her audience; the heavy part of Lord Woodville is forcibly enacted by Mr. Leonard Aardale, ably seconded by Miss Dora Weber as Lady Sybil-Woodville. The comedy parts find capable exponents in Mr. Larry Clements and Miss Rene Douglas.

QUEEN'S PALACE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Trevanion. —In addition to capital pictures, Miss Minnie Pike contributes several ballads in good style; and Keane Harker is an amusing patterer and comedian.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Townrow; Treasurer, Mr. L. Crawford Orr.—The Sunderland Amateur Operatic and Dramatic Society are performing throughout this week in Merry England. The production is under the supervision of Mr. Arthur M. Cullin, of the Savoy company, and the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Harold Williams.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. Bernard Mervyn is presenting The King of Terrors here. Mr. Mervyn ably fills the rôle of Jack Ralston, and is well supported by Miss V. Wray-Holmes (Bessie Power) and Miss Ella Balderson (Marion), and Messrs. H. Naylor Grimston (Captain Blackstock) and Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood (Lieutenant Langley). The drama is excellently staged.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. A. P. Hamilton.—The Oxos are presenting an amusing comedy pantomime entitled Wrecked with success; the Derrington Family give a daring cycle turn, and the Two Bees are making a hit with a novel musical number.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Dunn.—Mr. E. Hill Mitcheson's company is here in The King and the Unknown Woman. Miss Violet Carlyle acts well in the difficult rôle of Zora; Miss Ella Sennett is admirable as Else; Prudence Ayrton gives much promise as Cascar; Mr. Norman Partridge is a masterly Prince Loris; Mr. W. R. Winning is an excellent General Platz; and Mr. Cyril Harrison is good as Capt. Gara; capital exponents of villainy are Mr. W. T. Clifford and Miss Adeline Raby as Prince Menski and Countess Melvitch, while the humour is well done by Mr. J. J. Dilsen and Miss Auena Walton.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Ernest Shand is heading the bill here and is as usual carrying all before him with his amusing songs and smart patter; the Daukmar-Schiller Troupe of acrobats give an attractive display, demonstrating their remarkable skill; Ricardo and Salving present a difficult equilibristic act entitled The Human Bridge with much success. The Eisteddfod Prize Vocal Sextette contribute some fine work; Kitts and Windrum present their sketch The Cuckoo in good style; the Rosses give a smart dancing turn; Bugler Carr combines clever equilibrism and music; and Mina Denvil uses her powerful voice with telling effect.

SWANSEA. — GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. D. Allen and Sons, Ltd.; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Byrne.—The House of Temperley is attracting large audiences. Mr. Lionel Glenister as Capt. Jack Temperley acts with polished ease and military precision; Sir Charles Temperley is well characterised by Mr. Howard Rose; Mr. Fellows Basset makes an effective Sir John Hawker; Jaikes, the bookmaker, is thoroughly realised by Mr. John Detliv; Mr. Charles Cleveland pleases with the buoyant and irresponsible way he enacts the part of the volatile Ginger Stubbs. The feminine interest in the cast is not strong, but such as exists is worthily maintained by Misses Sheila O'More, Madge Devereux, Adria Hill, Nora Watson, and Grace Massey.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. James Willard's company, in Paying the Price, is being presented here this week. Mr. Willard cleverly portrays the dual rôle of Lord Delemere and Paul Hartman; a careful delineation of Captain Dick Clinton is given by Mr. Fred Wilson; Miss Margaret Tueskie is responsible for a powerful study of Nell Fortescue; Miss Lily Lloyd makes a pleasing Doris Delemere; Mr. Frank Hurst does well as Hal Vortoone; and the Hon. Cecil Dalrymple is ably impersonated by Mr. Charlton Morton.

COUNTY ELECTRIC PAVILION.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur E. Melborne.—The films here include The Deputy's Love, The Great Hold-up, Toymaker's Dream, Norway to New York, and Fear of Fire.

TODMORDEN.—THE HIPPODROME.—Geo. A. de Grey and Harry Masterman's company was here in the early part of this week with The Angel of his Dreams. On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday The Forbidden Fruit was given.

TON-Y-PANDY. — ROYAL.— General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Mr. Bruce Warwick's company is presenting in excellent style In the Shadow of the Night. John Allington finds an able exponent in Mr. F. Carrington; Mr. J. Desmond is capitally suited as Gordon Allington; Mr. C. P. Wentworth makes a cool rascal of Clifford York; Mr. C. Taylor does well as Tom Nainby; Mr. F. Luard does good work as Joe Jackson and the Rev. N. Hope; Miss Florrie Hall is a sympathetic Molly Woodstock; and Miss M. Richardson is well suited as Violet Kingston.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Ton-y-Pandy Hippodrome Co.; General-Manager, Mr. David Taylor.—Kurio, the mystery, goes well here; the Bros. Western are smart dancers; Douglas and Gordon are well received; as also is Whitty What. Some excellent films are shown.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. Arthur Shelton's company in Beauty and the Barge is the attraction here. Miss Hilda Vaughan gives a charming portrayal of Ethel Smedley, to whom she gives a delicate touch of frivolity that just suits the part; Miss Gwenllyan Cattell as Lucy Dallas and Miss Mabyn Fay as Mrs. Porter do very well; Mrs. Henry Renouf is quite satisfactory as Mrs. Baldwin; and the Mrs. Smedley of Miss Jane Fay is worthy of mention. Mr. A. Russell-Davis as Lieut. Boyne presents an excellent interpretation; and Mr. Hugh Trevor's characterisation of Tom Codd is amusing. As Major Smedley Mr. A. E. Jackson works hard; whilst Mr Gerald Carter is seen to advantage as Herbert Manners. Mr. Ivor Smith is a droll Augustus; the John Dibbs of Mr. Fred Lake is equally effective; and Mr. Ivor Barnard is a quaint Mr. Porter. Mr. Maitland Marler's easy manner and acting could scarcely be improved upon as Captain Barley.

TREHERBERT.—POOLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Totten.—Ella Blair and her Bowery boys and girls sing and dance in accomplished style; the Dunvilles, in "Little Bits of This and That," fully deserve the appreciation bestowed; and pleasing pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

TYNEMOUTH.— PALACE.— Proprietors, Palace Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Councillor Harold Arnold.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford is this week presenting The Private Secretary. Mr. James Hussey as the Rev. Robert Spalding keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Mr. W. Haigreaves is delightfully humorous as Mr. Cattermole; Douglas Cattermole has an apt exponent in Mr. Arthur Claremont; Mr. Sydney Gibson is excellently represented by Mr. Kendal Chalmers; and Mr. Marsland is ably depicted by Mr. William Carriden. Miss Estelle Despa is well placed as Miss Ashford; and Miss Mary Malhalieu makes a charming Edith Marsland. Mr Horace George gives a good impersonation of Harry Marsland; Miss Cicely Wade is successful as Mrs. Stead; and Miss Elsie Blythe makes the most of her opportunities in the rôle of Eva Webster.

WAKEFIELD. — OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. and Mrs. O. Silverstone and Henry Bright's company is appearing here in The Nihilist. The part of Prince Alexander is admirably portrayed by Mr. O. Silverstone; Mr. Cowell Clarke acquits himself well as Karl Orloff; Mr. George Mitchell is a powerful Ivan; Mr. J. Branelle-Harvey acts well as Father Gourko; Mr. C. Newton Buckland is successful as Pierlree Petoff; the humour of the piece is in the hands of Mr. Henry Wright, who was inimitable as Bobbie Smart; Miss Edna Clare acts with much charm and sympathy as Alexina; Miss Annie Hylton gives a merited impersonation as Princess Olga; and Mrs. O. Silverstone acts with lively grace as Katrina.

NEW EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—The Ministrel Boys head the bill and provide a capital variety turn of singing, dancing, and patter; N. T. Kioto and C. H. Esa are wonderful equilibrists, and have a great reception; Fred Evans is popular with a novel protean absurdity, entitled Dreaming; Will Lindsay, comedian, earns applause with funny songs; Kail Stern, negro comedian, is a smart coon vocalist and dancer; the Four Fedoras, lady vocalists and acrobatic dancers, are clever; and Mlle. Dalmere introduces a well-trained troupe of performing cats, dogs, rabbits, &c.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The pictures maintain their high standard of excellence here, and the varieties comprise Mr. Tom Isherwood, an amusing comedian; and Carlos Menard, in a musical act, who takes well.

WALLSEND.—BOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hugh Duffy.—Sandy McNab and company are paying a welcome return visit here this week in The Egyptian Mummy; a good reception is accorded the Brooklyn Comedy Quartette; Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard are responsible for much amusement in Coming Home; and Ethell Thomas, the Welsh nightingale, proves herself a vocalist of exceptional merit. Henry Hilton is a magician of mystifying dexterity; whilst a capital turn is contributed by the Musical Keiths, instrumentalists. Percy Main, comedian and dancer, and Daisy Morgan, comedienne, are both seen to advantage.

PREMIER ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. McDonald.—U. K. Owen, an instrumentalist of more than average ability, is the chief attraction here. An excellent picture programme is also provided, including The Trunk Mystery and Dr. Bryan Pellie.

TYNE PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. McHarg.—A good variety of pictures is provided here this week, including A Mohawk's Way, The Way to Win, and The Geisha. Vaudeville turns are given by Spiridion, a juggler of exceptional ability, and Tiny Ashton, a talented vocalist.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood; Joint Management, Moss Empires, Ltd.—Horace Goldin heads a first-class programme, and the famous illusionist receives a most enthusiastic reception; Mr. and Mrs. Findon, the popular sketch artists, keep the house in a long laugh, and the same remark applies to the Bros. Redmond, a pair of smart acrobatic comedians; the Belles of the Kitchen are a bevy of juvenile entertainers of considerable merit; the musical act of the Cavalotti Bros. is one of refinement and taste; Lawrence Barclay is very funny in his ballet song; and Mary Ambrose is a violinist and vocalist of talent. The Bioscope concludes.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatre Co.; Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is presenting The Midnight Mail. Mr. George Harvard acts powerfully in the rôle of Harry Steyne; Miss Tressie Humphreys is a very capable exponent of Mary Steyne; Mr. Henry W. Hatchman as Leonard Royle is all that can be desired; Miss Mildred Carr's Nancy is distinctly good; and Mr. Fred G. Evison is to be complimented on his performance of Billy Brewer. Messrs. F. S. Stricklane and T. C. Glenville and Miss Jennie Wester fill their respective parts with skill and earnestness.

WASHINGTON.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Joe Turnbull.—The New Barmaid, as played by Miss Violet Osmund's company, is excruciatingly funny. Mr. Geo A. Fox causes a good deal of amusement as Captain Loveday, as does Miss M. Stead as Braddy; Mr. W. Henty's assumption of the rôle of Colonel Claymore keeps the house in continual merriment; Mr. Alex. Loftus acts with good effect as Bertie White; Mr. E. Osborne is good as James; admirable assistance is rendered by Mr. Charles Adeson as William White; Lady Moulton is drolly enacted by Miss Barbara Steele; exceedingly well played is the Dora Heather of Miss Beatrice Erle; as Ethel Joy Miss Madge Prior's lively action and dainty manner are greatly appreciated; Miss Dora Carmen does good work as the Old Barmaid (Brenda Louth); Misses Bettee Dalmeny and Murielle Mascot both score in their respective parts of Mary and Mabel Cherryman. Nov. 21, A Prince's Secret Wedding.

WATFORD.—PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lionel G. Holding.—This week's programme is an excellent one, with Launceston Elliott, "the modern Hercules," and Cliff Ryland rivals for the top of the bill. Dainty Daisy Sloan is one of the most delightful artists ever seen at this hall; and Daisy Stratton may be said to run her very close. S. and G. Aner's "jumps and bumps" business is the finest thing in its way, both from the points of view of cleverness and the amusement afforded; Ernest Clifford has some jolly songs and dances; as also have Dollie and Rose. The Royal Delomes, with specialities in the clog-dancing line, and Doone and Donald, in a pot-pourri act, to say nothing of Bioscope pictures and delightful music by Mr. Augustus Greco's orchestra, complete a jolly entertainment, in which there is not a dull moment.

WELLINGBOROUGH.—KING'S PALACE.—A big attraction here this week is the Four Scoreys; Wisper is amusing with his juggling; and Beattie Bloom is also in the programme.

EMPIRE.—A turn that is greatly appreciated is Cline and Clark; Harvey and Jesson are an amusing and clever pair; and Herbert Swan and Sadie Stuart are also successful.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Messrs. R. Nightingale and Montague Beaudyn.—Under Two Flags is meeting with the hearty reception it deserves, for the play is excellently staged and mounted, and the company is a most capable one. Miss Sidney Crowe as Cigarette does invaluable work; and Mr. Herbert Skardon as Bertie Cecil provides a fine study. Miss May Dana as Norilda and Miss Irene Stanhope as Princess Venetia Corona are good; and the Colonel Chateauroy of Mr. Geoff Sutherland is clever.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Colin; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. Colin, sen.; Secretary, Mr. W. Hebden.—The great attraction here is Miss Harriett Vernon, who exercises much charm in some of her most famous characters. Capital turns are given by Mollie Doon, Clifton Hall, Leslie Race, Fremel and Fremel, Mons. Varl, Manil and Vulcan, Tennessee Guards, Desmond and Dare, and the Carlinos.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Theatre Royal Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. William Maclaren is here with Claudian. In the title-rôle Mr. Maclaren displays ability of a high order, and, with Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Almida, is the recipient of well-deserved applause. Mr. Frank R. Chambers is very good as the Tetrach; and as Agazil Mr. Douglas Erle is most effective. Mr. Weston Hubbard makes a capable Alcares; Mr. Cecil Maynard is a satisfactory Rhamantes; whilst Mr. Chal T. Chaloner as Belos creates much amusement.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Lessee, Mr. John Cottrell; General-Manager, Mr. W. D. Murray.—The Bouncing Peps top the bill here this week, other variety turns being Alice Gilt, contralto and Tyrolean vocalist; and Horace Horner, novelty dancer. Some excellent pictures are shown, notably The Eagle and the Eaglet, Burly Bill, and The Call of the Blood.

WHITBY.—SPA THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's company appeared in Almost His Bride on Monday. As the Earl of Ullswater Mr. J. O. Stevenson is very successful; Mr. Reginald Barrill as Squire Rowland is excellent; Mr. Morris Maud Pravides is an effectual Philip Rowland; Mr. C. Quinton Fulford is the ideal Jasper Thorne; Mr. Stephen Pritt is screamingly funny as Simon Simson; Miss Cissie Bellamy as Myra Thorne and Miss Kathleen Stewart as Mona Gilchrist are clever; and Miss May Neilson as Emma Bather sustains her rôle with distinction. East Lynne was staged, and A Woman's Passion has also been given.

WHITEHAVEN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—Mr. Harry Newman's company is here for three nights in What a Man Made Her. Mr. W. J. Butler is prominent as the Earl of Saxon Royal; and is excellently supported by Mr. Phil Harper (Dr. Haven), Mr. C. H. Francis (Sir Ernest Cavendish), Mr. Harry Ugar (Gunnerstein), Miss Nora Kingsley (Duchess of Saxon Royal), and Miss R. Glendower (Janet McAllister). For the remainder of the week The Education of Elizabeth is billed.

WHITLEY BAY.—PLEASURE GARDENS (OLD SPANISH CITY) AND THEATRE ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Penlevé.—Pictures form the chief attraction here, of which there are varied and diversified exhibition.

COLISEUM.—Lessees, Messrs. Imett Bros.; Business-Manager, Mr. Edwin de Frece.—This week marks a new departure in the management here, and the event is emphasised by a special programme, including J. N. Milburn, the well-known comedian, in a répertoire budget, with his old favourite, "The old mulberry-tree"; Preston Holmes, musical speciality artist; Surrey and Carlton, in a sketch, She Would Be An Actress; and Chita Corri, soprano, in song scena, Character Types.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. W. Huzzard.—Although pictures hold sway here—and an excellent exhibition, too—variety is to the fore, the principal contributors being Carmen Watson and Billy McQuire, the amusing comedy couple, in the sketch Watch the Coat.

BATHS PAVILION.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. R. L. Grice.—This, the oldest picture hall in the district, manages to hold its own against all competitors. The latest films are generally on view, and variety is this week headed by Fred Lindsay, the Tyneside comedian, whose patter in the local vernacular is highly appreciated.

WHITSTABLE.—THEATRE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Mr. Fred Conway produced The Sinner that Repenteth here on Monday evening. As Stephen York Mr. Conway submitted an excellent impersonation, and was well supported by Miss Vivienne Peek as Madge, the old trainer's daughter.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. Gar Kiddie and F. Bray.—A Woman's Past was produced here on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings by Messrs. Clifford, Hamilton, and Charles Locke's company. Miss Dora Pass was a distinct success as Bessie; and Mr. Percy Dawsone was a manly and impressive David Heath. The other characters were in good hands. For the remaining three nights the popular musical play, Florodora, was billed. Mr. Johnnie Schofield headed Mr. Charles Constant's excellent company as the inimitable Tweedlepunch. A feature of the production was the splendid representation of the Apache Dance by Miss Florence Hersee and Mr. Johnnie Junior.

CO-OPERATIVE HALL.—Lessees and Manager, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—Messrs. Tom Kerr and Will Shaw provide principal turns here. Austin and Cowan provide a treat for lovers of vocalism; Billy Elliott is a singer of quaint songs; and Miss Lily Vesta, vocalist, also entertains.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co., Ltd.—The Boy King is being presented here by Mr. Walter Howard's company. Mr. Howard has a decided personality and the Ragged Prince finds an able exponent in him; the acting of Miss Annie Saker attains a high level as Camilla; Camillo is in the capable hands of Mr. F. G. Clifton; Mr. Dan Rose is a capital Florian; good acting comes from Mr. Rayce Carlton as Fabion; and Mr. Charles Weir as the Grand Duke of Savernac. The scenery is picturesque.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—A welcome return visit is being paid by L'Incognita, who is vociferously applauded for her selections; the songs of F. V. St. Clair please the audience; the Merions, vocal and instrumental entertainers, are well received; the Cummingers are smart sand dancers; George Madigan has a marvellous troupe of performing dogs; Shenton and Chicks sing and dance themselves into favour; Tony, Hoppit, and Jerry, in The Coster's Derby Day, prove clever tumblers; Rell and Butt introduce some smart patter in Trouble on the Stage; Fox and Melville, song illustrators, and Bert Bowden, comedian, conclude.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. G. Kimberley.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company is paying a first visit here with Little Phil's Mother. Mr. Herbert Evelyn as the hero, Frank Towers, plays in a convincing manner, and has an able partner in Miss Maud Russell as Ruth. Mr. David M'Farlane, as Oscar Titherton, makes a good villain; Mr. Dunlop Stewart is well suited as Geoffrey Dyne; Mr. J. P. Marsden, as Donald Taggerty, is responsible for an excellent Scotch character-study; Mr. John E. Tomlinson does well as Bill Briskett; and the comedy element is in the hands of Mr. Frank M. Thorne as Sam Perkels and Miss Leslie Warner as Julia Woodlove. Miss Katie Blair is very dramatic as Elspeth; and Miss Daisy Rochefort evokes sympathy as Phil.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Mr. Harry P. Selwyn's company is this week presenting a condensed version of Cecil Raleigh's drama The Flood Tide. Included also in a lengthy programme are Harry Grey, eccentric comedian; Julian Mack, whose patter is of the best; Hyde and Cody Trio, in their eccentric acrobatic tricks; the Hesseys, in a pleasing musical act; Little Dolly Bell, with a sweet voice; and Olive Armadale, comedienne and dancer.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Macnamara.—Mr. James Welch's company in When Knights Were Bold is proving a great attraction, although a comparatively short interval only has elapsed since a former visit. Mr. H. Langdon Bruce is irresistible as Sir Guy de Vere; Mr. Charles F. Lloyd is well suited as Isaac Isaacson; as also are Mr. Allan Macdona'd as the Hon. Chas. Widdicombe, Mr. P. L. Julian as the Rev. Peter Pottlebury, Mr. Humphrey Warden as Sir Brian Ballymote, Mr. Lawrence Stephenson as Wittle, and Mr. John Cecil as Barker. Miss Violet Noel as Lady Rowena is the central figure in a bevy of charming ladies, comprising Miss Lena Flowerdew (Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave), Miss Lee Lewes (Miss Isaacson), Miss Lola Norman (Lady Millicent), Miss Mabel Hardinge (Lady Marjorie), Miss Juliet Matthoson (Kate Pottlebury), and Miss Elspeth Oliphant (Alice). Mr. Herbert Ranson appears as a Herald, and there is a full chorus.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr Stanley Rogers; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Kitto.—Mr. Ernest E. Norris's company were here for three nights, with The Education of Elizabeth, which drew good houses. Mr. Norris as Reggie Hankey, Mr. Percy Marmont as Harry, and Mr. Castleman as Mr. Whitby distinguished themselves. Miss Helene Forest as Lucy Middleton, Miss May Norris as Elizabeth Black, Miss McIntyre as Phyllis Dailley, and Miss Spencer as Lily Kerr were delightful.

CARNEGIE HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; General-Manager, Mr. Fred Kitto.—Professor Evansio, conjuror, and Messrs. Dale and Vale, artistic sepcialists, create much amusement. The pictures are particularly good.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Malcom Spurgin.—Variety performances are being given here this week, and the departure has proved to be highly popular, judging by the enthusiasm of Monday's audience. At the head of the bill is the amazing mystery Not To Be Opened, which is presented by Frederick Lloyd and Cyril Sworden's company. The show is quite unique, and those engaged in its presentation are Mr J. Herbert Beaumont, Mr. Eric Snowden, and Mr. Albert Woodall. The Lizette Troupe of lady acrobats perform some marvellous feats, in addition to singing sweet songs; and Geo. Shurley, comedian, has fairly established himself as a local favourite. Fame and Fortune provoke a deal of mirth with their funny boxing act; and Molly Augarde captures her audience with her latest songs. Ben Jackson is a banjoist of no mean order; and an excellent programme is completed by the Daimlers, comedy artists, and Bessie Vaughan, instrumentalist.

YNYSHIR.—WORKMEN'S HALL.—Lessee, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. H. Stewart.—Many highly amusing and instructive films are presented here. Helene and Emilon, Continental gymnasts, present a unique act; and Jules Charmettes, French comedian, is very funny.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Mr. Laurence Cowen's company is here in The World, the Flesh, and the Devil. It is an excellent play, full of realistic situations and impressive lessons. Miss Dora Hammersley as Gertrude Grant is repeatedly applauded for her impersonation; Miss Dorothy Routh is an excellent Beatrice Cuthbert; Mr. Hugh Wildey, a manly Robert Hall; and a large amount of work falls upon Mr. Keith Fraser as the villain, Nicholas Brophy, who is worthy of much praise for his clever acting. Mr. Henry Compton as Rupert Dyke plays with considerable force; Mr. John Brittain and Mrs. Maitland Marler cause much laughter in their character studies as Johnson and Jenkins respectively; the remaining characters are in capable hands, and the scenery is good.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—La Milo is one of the principal attractions this week, and large audiences have been the rule. Her poses call forth general praise. The Jacksons are musicians of the first rank, and present a turn as novel and up-to-date as it is popular; Tom Bryce and Miss Maynard in a neat sketch, The Dude's Wooing, are particularly smart; John Donald, in Scottish songs and rhyme, is very popular; and Joe Booth is a comedian of whom much more might be seen with advantage; Crosby and Walker introduce amusing patter; the Sisters St. Julian are clever duettists; and Ethel Edwardes contributes a popular item.

DURING the night of Tuesday last a fire broke out in the coach-house of the Waggon and Horses Inn, Banbury, at the back of the Theatre Royal, and most of the personal belongings of The Arcadians touring company were destroyed. The coach-house, which was used as a dressing-room, and the rest of the building were burnt out.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, OCT. 11.—Mr. George Willoughby and his English farcical comedy company opened at the Criterion Theatre under the auspices of Sir Rupert Clarke and Mr. Clyde Meynell in The Night of the Party. Mr. Willoughby has surrounded himself with a perfect cast, amid which he figures as Flambert with ease and success. Mr. David James never exaggerates in his portrayal of Crosbie, and the Sydney democrats enjoy to the utmost his "cheeking" of his master, Mr. Frank Frayne, who has Mr. Hugh C. Buckler as his delineator, a very excellent entrance into our playgoers' favour. Sir Charles Hampshire loses nothing at the hands of Mr. Arthur Cornell. Two handsome women, Miss Mab Paul and Miss Stella Payter, act delightfully as Gipsy Vandelier and Lady Hampshire. Miss Amy Willard retains all the charm with which she won her London successes. Mr. Harry Overton makes the Alderman a capital character study.

PALACE.—The Hamilton and Maxwell company is now playing Why Men Love Women to good and interested audiences. Miss Vera Renrèe as the heroine shows considerable advance in her profession, and she will be one of our best before very long. Mr. Max Maxwell as Captain Fitzherbert quite realises the author's intention, and Mr. Charles Brown is an ideal vaudeville manager as Orlando Figgins. Mr. Richard Bellairs made Staniloff stand out like a cameo, and Mr. Ronald W. Riley makes a dignified Maharajah of Balore, and Birdie Summertop is capably portrayed by Miss Mabel Russell.

"OUR MISS GIBBS" is cramming Her Majesty's every night, despite the counter attractions of scores of election meetings where free fun is to be had. The magnificent scene in the second act is a great attraction—nothing finer has been seen here. Miss Blanche Browne and Mr. Bertie Wright have become prime permanent Sydney favourites.

THE ROYAL has alternate grand opera nights, when Bel Sorel and Amy Castles, Reginald Roberts and Frederick Blamey change about in Madame Butterfly, I Pagliacci, and Cavalleria Rusticana to operagoers' satisfaction. The season closes this week, and immediately Miss Katherine Grey and a big company return with drama. Mme. Carreno is giving farewell recitals, and the Besses o' th' Barn Band final band performances. Mr. Walter Kirby announces concerts.

THE TIVOLI has Morris Cronin as star, Morris and West, Nellie Morrison, Olga Monsey, and Gracie Grahame as other attractions.

MELBOURNE, OCT. 5.—PRINCESS'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, J. C. Williamson, Ltd.—This evening Mr. Julius Knight will enter upon the last three nights of his season in Australia. As Marcus Superbus in The Sign of the Cross he has been attracting large audiences during the present revival of the piece. To-morrow afternoon Mr. Knight is being tendered a benefit by the management. A monster programme has been arranged by all the Melbourne managers, in which most of the leading artists now in Melbourne will take part, so that a bumper house is expected.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, J. C. Williamson, Ltd.—As strong a favourite as ever, The Whip succeeds each evening in winning the appreciation of large audences. With the sporting element so excellently defined throughout, the drama should continue its course of prosperity right over the racing season. A very popular scene is that in which Miss Illington speaks into the telephone concerning the comedian who has been locked into the "Chamber of Horrors" at Madame Tussaud's. The cast is an excellent one, while the staging throughout is on a most elaborate scale.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Clyde Meynell and Rupert Clarke; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Levy.—The Meynell and Clarke production of Tom Jones has delighted crowded audiences since its opening night. It has all the elements of tunefulness, brightness, and originality, that go to make a musical play enjoyable. The singing of Miss Winifred O'Connor, the new prima donna, is a notable feature of the performance. This talented artist is supported by a strong company, all of whom do full justice to their various rôles. The scenery and costumes are on a lavish scale.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—The Winning Ticket continues to draw crowded houses. Amongst the more sensational effects are the race for the Melbourne Cup and the swinging bridge scene. Last night the production was witnessed by His Excellency Sir Thomas Gibson-Carmichael, Lady Gibson-Carmichael, and suite. This admirable Australian sporting play is now in its fourth week, and seems certain to enjoy a lengthy run.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Frederic Aydon.—On Saturday evening three new artists made their first appearance, and met with good receptions from a packed house. Miss Lorna Pounds proved herself a clever mimic of actors and actresses well-known to Melbourne playgoers. Mr. Kevin Dunn made his début as a singer. He has a trained tenor voice of sympathetic quality, which he used to excellent advantage in the favourite ballad "Sally Horner." Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Meymott have put on a new little one-act comedy sketch which keeps the audience well amused; the Charlenes are established favourites with their clever musical and juggling act; Mr. Fred Bluett and his parody boy scouts seem to have established themselves for a renewed term of popularity; Mr. Pip Powell and Miss Kate Vesey present a laughable absurdity, entitled Where Are You Going? while excellent items are presented by Lily Thompson, Johnny Gilmore, the Martin Sisters, Will White, Les Warton, the Donnellys, and a host of others. On Saturday next Mr. Walter C. Kelly, a monologue entertainer, with a great American reputation, will make his first appearance in Australia.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. James Brennan; Business-Manager, Mr. Harry Brennan.—A crowded house assembled here on Saturday evening last, when Mr. Brennan's vaudeville company presented an entire change of programme. Among the most popular turns are Hassan and Wills, American equilibrists; Alf. Holt, mimic; McGrath and Page, banjoists; Heath and Lamb; Goldie Collins; Ruby Golder, and many others. Excellent pictures are shown by the Miorama.

MISS MAGGIE KNIGHT, who appeared here recently with such success as Granny in Mr. Matheson Lang's production of Pete, has met with great success in the part in Adelaide, where Mr. Lang and Miss Hutin Britton are at present appearing for a brief season. Miss Knight's clever character-sketch is considered a feature of the production.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

THE BEECHAM SEASON.

Il Barbière di Siviglia was given at Covent Garden on Saturday night before a large audience. The chief features of the performance were the charming Rosina of Miss Mignon Nevada and an excellent embodiment of Figaro by Signor De Luca. In the Lesson scene Miss Nevada sang "Couplets du Mysoli," from "La Perle de Bresil," with such delightful ease and finish that the audience insisted on an encore. As Almaviva Mr. Macnez sang and acted with far more success than in his previous performance of the Duke in Rigoletto; while Mr. Alfred de Manby displayed considerable humour in the part of Basilio. Bartolo was undertaken by Mr. Paterna; and Bertha by Miss Lena Maitland. Messrs. Arthur Wynn and Charles Knowles completed the cast. Signor Camilieri conducted, and the orchestra gave a spirited account of Rossini's score.

THE ETHICS OF IBSEN.

"Ibsen's purpose in crowning with death so many attempts at defiance of current morality was to signify his final approval of them through a form that he considered the fittest and noblest of all emancipations," wrote Mr. W. Aylott Orton in a recent number of the Westminster Review.

"That such was, indeed, his intention seems, however, more than probable, as one tries to grasp the practical drift of his somewhat obscure message. The disciples of the vision of liberty (so, in effect, he tells us), being bound at present thus to defy, not only conventional, but real morality, must be content to accept for wages, not mere bitterness or disappointment, but the moral damnation reserved for those who, in their endeavours to serve humanity in the future, are forced to fight against it in the present. For the liberation of the modern world from those tyrannic idols to which it sacrifices so much of its power and beauty is to be accomplished, not merely by books and plays, but by pioneer dealings with life of an active nature—the deliberate sacrifice of reputation and all traditional honour to the future, and faithful acceptance of all that such sacrifice will bring in its train of scorn and hatred and social ostracism.

"But there is a second type of motivation in these social dramas—that, namely, which comprises the Wild Duck and Hedda Gabler. It is the problem of the aftermath: of the soul that has crossed the border, and stands without direction in the strange new region—a land wherein many of our own day wander disconsolate. 'Believe me' (writes Ibsen at thirty!) 'it is not agreeable to see the world from the October standpoint; and yet there was, strange to say, a time when I wished for nothing better. I had a burning desire for, I almost prayed for, a great sorrow, which might round out my existence and give life meaning. It was foolish, and I have fought my way out of that phase—and yet, the remembrance of it is never effaced.' Never effaced—not even after another thirty years spent in telling the world that what it knows by the name is not life at all, that there are titanic conflicts to be waged ere true life is to be as much as tasted. For the conflicts over, or their issue imminent, the old question as to the meaning of life recurs with new insistence; and no answer being immediately forthcoming—answer of any sort being indeed difficult to produce at short notice—the devil rises to his one really great opportunity, and suggests that there is, after all, no answer possible, that the only justification the struggle has had resides entirely in the excitement it has afforded.

"It is to be confessed that Ibsen had not his apage Satana ready promptly enough to prevert, for instance, the explosion of General Gabler's pistols; it is, indeed, a matter he came very near leaving open altogether. Scattered suggestions of an answer are, however, to be discerned up and down his work, though in himself they were probably not conscious, the Zeitgeist having reserved the explicit statement of the matter for a later mind, whence our interest in tracing its primogeniture in Ibsen is largely historical.

"In the first place, it is to be noted that the very thoroughness of Ibsen's tragedy is probably the most optimistic thing about him. What we are accustomed to call tragedy is but crude and cheerful stuff beside the few lucid passages of that master-artist, Fate; and it is the greatest of errors to conceive of despair as in any way barren or final. The amount of unconquered energy that goes into a mood of thorough blackness holds more assurance of ultimate victory than the most sanguine 'perhaps.' Some other final issue than defeat was certainly in store for the temper that, consciously fronted with the damnation of its attempts at social revolution, still through unending disaster persistently fought on; just as for those old Scandinavian gods whom their worshippers pictured as conscious from birth of the doom that was finally to vanquish them, and as fighting it none the less lustily on that account; and for all errant kinsmen of a heathen generation, alike in the Viking age and the nineteenth century, the prophecy is recorded that the chastened spirit of paganism shall survive the protracted götterdämmerung, and crown their questing, on some distant day, with an uncurst success.

"It was surely his intuitive hope of some such consummation that Ibsen embodied in Emperor and Galilean, under the figure of the Third Empire. Its conditions, which must neither fetter the soul nor induce it to rebel against its fate, would seem to be that social law shall have come into line with the dictates of the noble will, so that distinction of soul shall result no longer in fruitless conflict with a necessity that may be base, but in liberty wherein a man may confirm the law through 'willing what he must.' And since all such law depends upon the mental and moral calibre of the people by whom and for whom it is framed, all hope of change for the better must rest ultimately upon what Ibsen called a 'revolution of the spirit of man'—the production, more practically speaking, of a race of freer-thinking, finer-feeling beings, fit to create and enter into an atmosphere of moral liberty that the most advanced spirits of our own day can but pine for. Thus, while Nietzsche was working out the philosophic statement of this idea, Ibsen—perhaps unconscious of the meaning of what he did—was giving it dramatic form; and it is interesting to see how those factors upon which Nietzsche most relied in theory are also dramatically emphasised by Ibsen.

"One is reminded at once of many scenes like that between Solvejg and Peer Gynt, in which the dramatist seems to have suspected the existence of some ultimate felicity attainable in or through the duality of the sexes, that it was for some reason beyond his power more than to suggest. Perhaps it was his strange inability to depict essential woman, in spite of his ability to portray women, that prevented his showing us the realisation of this sexual harmony; yet he frequently makes it the acknowledged goal of a long course of action—as in Peer Gynt, The Lady from the Sea, Little Eyolf, and the tragic figures of Rosmersholm. And although Ibsen does not seem to have realised the extent to which the possibilities of such relationships were to become the ethical keynote of the future, the inestimable preciousness of youth as a motive force, the significance of it as a moral criterion, is, perhaps, the very heart of his own philosophy.

"Just as, years ago in his own adolescence, he had found in the legends of the youth of his country the expression of a psychology that satisfied his instinctive demands, so, in his later diagnosis of individual lives become stagnant or purposeless, it is to the eruptive influence of youth let loose upon the modern world that he most frequently turns for a specific. How often, where no actually youthful personality is brought into the action, do we find the course of things entirely diverted by the sudden intrusion of a figure—such as so often greets one at an unlikely corner or crossing of a busy life—to whom memory has given the power of reaching down, through the wrack and spindrift of many intervening years, to where the hopes and passions of a far distant day lie slumbering in their coffins: of kindling again, by some fateful glance or phrase, these frustrated forces of a forgotten youth; until, winning their way moment by moment nearer the surface of present consciousness, they issue at last in a fresh outburst of fierce energy that may either destroy or recreate the life it enters. Thus, while he is at all times too much in earnest to exhibit merely the æsthetic charm of adolescence, Ibsen has again and again, in its aspect of power unbridled, made it the crucial factor in a situation."

THE "NIBELUNGEN" IN BERLIN.

Mr. Angelo Neumann, in his "Personal Recollections of Wagner," gives an interesting account of the great composer at rehearsal. He says:—

"The Master, with his wife, Countess Schleinitz, and Daniela von Bülow, took their places in the lower left-hand proscenium box. He asked me to sit in the next box beside him that he might criticise the performance as the occasion arose.

"I had ordered the rehearsal to open with the second act of The Valkyre, and as Scaria turned to leave the stage after his great scene in that act, Wagner sprang from his seat, flew down the steps, and tore on to the stage at such a frantic pace that I could scarcely follow; shouting, 'Where is he? Where is Scaria? That was glorious! Man alive, where did you get that voice?' and catching the artist about the neck, he hugged him enthusiastically, kissing him and saying, 'But you did that well—that was well done!'

"From now on he took the direction of the rehearsal himself. He showed Sieglinda how to lay her head on Siegmund's lap and fall asleep. He insisted that Brunhilda, when she comes to announce the doom, must throw her right arm about the horse's neck, holding the shield and spear in her left. The fight between Hunding and Siegmund was not at all to his liking. Scarcely had they begun their sword-play when we all had a fright that made our hearts stop beating! Suddenly, with the agility of an acrobat, Wagner swung himself up on to the railing and ran lightly along the high narrow ledge of the proscenium box, balancing skilfully, but too full of eager impatience to think of reaching the stage by the regular way.

"Here he snatched up Siegmund's sword, and finished the fight with Hunding on the heights at the back of the stage. Then, at the given signal, he fell with a crash close by the edge of a precipice; his head brought clearly into relief by the rise of the hill behind, and his arm hanging limp over the edge of the abyss in full view of the audience. All this with a certainty and a dashing agility that a man of twenty-five might have envied.

"Under his direction the scene between Hunding and Siegmund was repeated over and again until it finally went to please him. Then at length he ordered Wotan to thunder out his deadly 'Go!' breaking it off short and sharp to let the clang of weapons and the crash of Hunding's fall be heard with more distinctness.

"The following rehearsal—Rhinegold—Wagner conducted almost entirely. Then in Siegfried we had a scene that rivalled the one with Scaria. The Master had recommended his Bayreuth singer Schlosser for the part of Mime; but I had decided to give the rôle to Julius Lieban, an ideal Mime and a member of our Leipsic cast. At the close of the first act Wagner, who had never seen this young singer before, could hardly contain himself. With his characteristic dash he flew on to the stage, and stormed up the steps, passing Lieban, whom he did not recognise, in his hurry. The singer himself, young and inexperienced, was hurrying down the stairs, anxious to hear the Master's verdict. As he passed him by I called to Wagner, 'Master, that is our Lieban,' but not recognising the name he hurried on, still looking for the artist; till I finally cried, 'Master, that is our Mime!' Then he stopped suddenly, wheeled, and rushed at Lieban, who stood there, trembling at the thought of meeting Richard Wagner. The Master threw his arms about him in an ecstasy of enthusiasm, and when he exclaimed, 'You did that wonderfully—it was simply matchless!' the young fellow fairly cried for joy and kissed his hand in reverence and gratitude.

"In the third act we had a most exciting incident. In the duet between Siegfried and Brunhilda we had introduced an effect that Seidl had formerly arranged under Wagner's direction. The latter seemed not to have noticed, until Vogl called his attention to it as something unusual and disturbing. Immediately Wagner began to scold, denouncing the rendering of the scene. Mme. Materna, who felt that Vogl had criticised her conception of the rôle, and considered it an intrigue on his part against her as a rival of his wife, immediately burst into tears. It was a tragi-comic scene. On the stage the weeping prima donna—in the box the angry author. My first efforts were directed toward soothing Wagner, which I did by reminding him that he himself had originated that passage and approved of its introduction years ago. Finally, when that tempest was laid, he in turn helped me restore the injured artist—patting her gently on the back and comforting her with honeyed words of praise.

"That same evening we had ordered the dress rehearsal of The Valkyre. It was to begin at six, and in order that everything should be in readiness before the Master came, I myself arrived at five. There I was greeted by Major von Witte, inspector-general of the fire commission, who informed me that the donkey-engine we had set up in the court to furnish our clouds of steam, was contrary to the fire ordinance and would have to be removed. The effect this announcement had upon me may be imagined. The final rehearsal in the presence of the Master was to begin in just an hour; and we had no steam for the fire scene. Nothing I could say or do moved Major von Witte. He was cordial, sympathetic, and deeply interested in the performance, yet, as he said, 'Herr Director, I am a Prussian officer, and my duty comes first of all.'

"In the meantime several of the artists had arrived, among them Heinrich Vogl—the Siegmund of that night. When he saw me coming from the theatre with Major von Witte he came toward us calling out, 'I say, this is a pretty mess. There's no steam, I hear.' Then he added, pointing to the adjacent building, 'I'll tell you what—if you say the word I can fix it for you next door. We'll have all we need in a couple of hours.' 'The devil! Where from?'—'That's a distillery,' he continued, and told us he had one of his own on his estates. 'They've steam enough in there for anything, and all we'll have to do is to get permission to lay a pipe in here and connect it with our stage.' Then Major Witte declared, if we could arrange it with the owners, there would be no further interference from the fire department—and I forthwith flew rather than walked into that distillery and ran up against the son of the proprietor.

"I told him my troubles breathlessly, and he set my mind at rest by saying, 'I'm somewhat of a Wagner enthusiast myself, and if there's anything we can possibly do to help, you may rest assured it shall be done. Only I must speak to my father about it first, though I've not the least doubt that he'll be glad to help you.' After a whole night's work we broke through the wall, laid our pipe, and our troubles were finally over. Indeed I may say I've never seen better or more convincing steam in any other performance of the Nibelungen.

"Herr Kahlbaum, the owner of the distillery, would not hear of any reimbursement, and even put his workmen at our disposal for the necessary connections. He asked, however, as a special favour that he might meet Richard Wagner, and the manner of his introduction was truly remarkable. I had told him to come behind the scenes, and he arrived just at the particular moment when Wagner was trying to take me aside to discuss some important technical details. Herr Kahlbaum shyly persisted in following us up, which made Wagner so nervous that he flew at the poor man in a whirl of fury, saying, 'Who the devil are you? Can't we have a moment's peace to ourselves?' Naturally I immediately explained the situation and introduced him as our saviour in the late difficulty; then Wagner soon calmed down."

"THE GAMBLERS."

Drama, in Three Acts, by Charles Klein, Produced at Maxine Elliott's Theatre, New York, Oct. 31.

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Once more has the author of The Lion and the Mouse written an intensely interesting and powerful play. The action begins at Emerson's residence, where his sister is entertaining her guests at a dancing party. In the midst of the gaiety, James Darwin, the special prosecutor appointed by the Government to obtain a conviction against Emerson and his associates, comes to take his wife away, he having requested her not to attend the party. It becomes evident that Darwin is jealous of Emerson, and the reason of this is that Mrs. Darwin, before her marriage, was beloved by Wilbur Emerson. She feared, however, that he loved her less than money-making, so she rejected him and married Darwin. It also becomes evident that she and her husband are an ill-mated pair. Darwin has a suspicious nature and is "as hard as nails." He is the sort of man who poses as a public benefactor, but is all the time thinking of his own interests. The Emersons are friends of long standing, but Darwin knows no friends when business stands in the way. He has political ambitions, and these ambitions will be furthered by a relentless prosecution of the association of bankers of which Emerson is the head.

Mrs. Darwin, as has been said, has attended the dance in defiance of her husband's wishes, but she denies that her object in coming was to be with Emerson. Darwin demands her dance card. For nearly every dance she is engaged to his rival. She declares that Emerson is not even present, and that the engagements were made by Emerson's sister, who is greatly attached to her. This is really a quibble which serves to increase her husband's suspicions. As a matter of fact, however, Emerson has always acted honourably, and Darwin's suspicions of his wife's fidelity are unfounded. He takes her away, and when Emerson arrives there is a meeting of the bank directors, called together ostensibly for a card party, but in reality for a conference over the desperate situation in which they find themselves. Emerson admits that, acting for them all, he has broken the law; that the facts are known to the Government, and that their arrest is imminent. There is one chance for them. He has the incriminating notes in his possession, and has raised enough money to pay them before the authorities take action. On examining the notes, however, he finds that they are mere copies. The scene that follows is admirably enacted. It shows the terror-stricken directors trying to shift the responsibility. With the exception of Emerson and his aged father, sauve qui peut is the attitude of all of them. The copies of the notes are in a familiar handwriting, and Emerson accuses one of his associates, George Cowper, of having betrayed his fellow-directors to the Government. In a powerful scene, Cowper is forced to confess that he has agreed to give State's evidence in order to save himself. He has sent the original notes, together with a detailed statement of facts, which will ensure the bankers' conviction. Before this is discovered, Emerson decides that one of them must go to prison to save the others, and deals the cards. The one who turns up a certain card is to shoulder the entire responsibility and take his punishment. The fateful card falls to Emerson's aged father, but Wilbur Emerson has watched for it, and he snatches it up before the old man gets it. There was a mistake in dealing, he says, and claims the card himself. The elder Emerson, it appears, knew nothing of his son's transactions. He is an exemplary gentleman of the "old school" of banking, when, as he puts it, it was "a gentleman's business, and not a gambler's game." He is not equal to the game as it is played to-day, and has left the conduct of the business to younger men. In his interview with Cowper, Emerson learns that the notes have been sent by a messenger to Darwin's house. Now, as Darwin is to leave for Washington that very night, he has probably not received them, and Emerson makes up his mind to recover them.

The second act takes places in the Darwin library at 11 p.m. Mrs. Darwin retires after turning out the lights. Disguised as a chauffeur Emerson comes to the house and asks for Mr. Darwin. The maid seeks her mistress, and during her absence the visitor secretes himself and slams the outer door to make it appear that he has gone. When all is quiet he makes his way to the library and searches among the papers on the table. He finds what he is looking for, but Mrs. Darwin comes upon him just in time to take it out of his hand. He coaxes and pleads, reminding her of the days when they were lovers, and telling her that his possession of the notes will save his aged father from undeserved disgrace. Mrs. Darwin is firm, although it is plainly a terrible struggle, for she has always loved Emerson, although she has been true to her husband. She will not swerve from her duty as a wife, though, and holds fast to the notes until Emerson threatens to force them from her. He quickly relents, however, and finally she promises to say nothing of his visit. As he is about to leave he is stopped by a detective, who announces that Darwin is coming. Darwin arrives, immediately suspects that there has been an assignation, and ridicules Emerson's story when he confesses that he came to steal the notes. Darwin agrees, however, to believe the story if his wife corroborates it. Emerson is sent downstairs under guard, and Darwin puts his wife through a severe cross-examination. Although her story is substantially the same as Emerson's, her hesitation convinces her husband that she is guilty. Moreover, the maid tells of being disturbed and trying the door. She found it locked, and Mrs. Darwin called out that everything was all right. Darwin orders the detective to take Emerson to the police-station on a charge of burglary, and declares that Mrs. Darwin shall appear against him.

Left alone with his wife, Darwin sneers when she protests her innocence, and threatens to divorce her. And she, in an outburst of emotion, declares that she is willing to be found guilty of anything, no matter how unjust the accusation may be.

In the last act, in which the interest is well sustained, Mrs. Darwin still has the notes, and has decided to give them to Emerson. In the meantime her husband realises that divorce proceedings will prove prejudicial to his political prospects, and offers to condone her offence if she will restore the notes to him. This she refuses to do. She wants her freedom, and will even make a false confession of guilt to obtain it. Darwin has her watched by detectives in an effort to prevent her from giving the notes to Emerson. The latter gets them, however, and destroys them. Then he saves his fellow-directors by assuming entire responsibility for the illegal banking operations, the notes having been the only evidence against them.

Emerson goes to prison, and Mrs. Darwin, in a tearful farewell, tells him that in the hour of his deliverance he will find her waiting for him.

The principal honours of the performance were won by Miss Jane Cowl, whose sincerity and naturalness in the rôle of Catherine Darwin gave verisimilitude to the most important scenes in the play. Mr. George Nash was direct, forceful, and convincing as Wilbur Emerson, and gave a remarkably fine portrayal. Mr. Charles Stevenson depicted the unlovable attributes of James Darwin in a highly effective manner, and Mr. William B. Mack ably delineated the weakness and remorse of George Cowper. Messrs. George Backus, De Witt, C. Jennings, and Cecil Kingstone played prominent parts well.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. HOWARD RUSSELL.

Mr. Howard Russell was born in London on Jan. 7, 1833, and is thus within a few weeks of seventy-eight years. At the age of fifteen he entered the office of Mr. F. F. Hand, solicitor, of 89, Chancery-lane, with whom he remained for five years, and gave up the study of the law for the post of secretary to Admiral Taylor. Mr. Russell's frequent visits to Sadler's Wells and his admiration of Mr. Samuel Phelps and his unexcelled company of players inspired him with the desire to become an actor, and he made his début under the management of Mr. Huntley May, going on for twelve parts a week and working with all the ardour of youth. Mr. Russell's perseverance led to his engagement as leading man at the Theatre Royal, Portsmouth, where he often played six legitimate and six melodramatic parts a week.

His first appearance in London was at the Victoria Theatre, under the management of Mr. Cave, in The Sin of a Life. Eventually Mr. Russell was engaged by the late Mr. F. B. Chatterton, and made his first obeisance to a West-End audience at the Princess's Theatre in February, 1871, as Captain Culpepper in The King of Scots, supporting Samuel Phelps. He proceeded to Drury Lane, replacing the Mexican tragedian, Morton Tavares, in a post-pantomime revival of Amy Robsart. Returning to the Princess's, he took part in the first performance of Falconer's Eileen Oge on June 29, 1871. At this theatre, Easter, 1872, Mr. Russell appeared in Byron's Haunted Houses, and later played Claudius to Fechter's Hamlet. Mr. Russell treasures a photographic memorial of an engagement at the Strand in the autumn of 1872 to play Murgatroyd in Not Such a Fool as He Looks, in the cast of which were Byron, Edward Terry, Walter Joyce, Ada Swanborough, and Miss Giffard. A season of Shakespeare, supporting Creswick and Phelps at the Princess's, ensued, and at Easter, 1873, Mr. Russell made a notable success as the Wandering Jew at the Adelphi. He returned to Drury Lane to play Eros in a revival of Antony and Cleopatra.

At Christmas, 1873, he played Oliver to Miss Helen Faucit's Rosalind in a performance of As You Like It at the Haymarket, on behalf of the Royal General Theatrical Fund. Among the members of a truly remarkable cast was Sir (then Mr.) Charles Wyndham, whose stage-manager Mr. Russell eventually became at the Criterion. In the summer of 1874 Mr. Russell played Ulric in Elizabeth; or, The Exiles of Siberia, at the Adelphi, and was in the subsequent production, The Prayer in the Storm. In December, 1875, Mr. Russell had the honour of playing Henry VIII. to the Wolsey of Samuel Phelps at the Standard, and that was the last time he acted with that great player. He also recalls with pleasure playing Bishop Gardiner to the Elizabeth of Mrs. Rousby at the Standard Theatre, at a time when the biggest of our "stars" did not deem it infra dig. to appear there. A very pleasant tour with the late Charles Calvert occurred in 1876, Mr. Russell playing Salamenes in Sardinapalus, Shylock, Kent in King Lear, King René in King René's Daughter, The Corsican Brothers, and Joseph Ironsides in Nine Points of the Law.

MR. HOWARD RUSSELL.

One of Mr. Russell's remarkable successes was that of Uncle Tom in a revival of Uncle Tom's Cabin at the Adelphi. He was a member of the company supporting Barry Sullivan at Drury Lane in 1876, and the following spring supported Creswick in Shakespeare at Drury Lane. Subsequently, at the Princess's, he had the distinction of playing Derrick to the Rip Van Winkle of Joseph Jefferson. He took part as Chandos Bellingham in a revival of After Dark; and as Richard, Duke of Glo'ster, supported Miss Heath in Jane Shore; also in Elfinella. In the autumn of 1878 Charles Dillon appeared at Drury Lane, notably in A Winter's Tale, Cymbeline, and Belphegor, in all of which Mr. Russell supported him. He also appeared for that famous actor's benefit at Drury Lane, playing Lavaranes in Belphegor.

In 1878 Mr. Russell was again at the Princess's, where he appeared once more as Richard, Duke of Glo'ster, supporting Miss Heath. At Christmas It's Never Too Late to Mend was revived, with Mr. Russell as Mr. Meadows, a character with which he has been much identified. In 1881 Mr. Russell was again at the Adelphi, where he appeared in Michael Strogoff, in a revival of Janet Pride, and in Charles Reade's Rachel the Reaper.

When Irving revived Romeo and Juliet at the Lyceum he intrusted the Chorus to Mr. Russell. At the Lyceum, too, he figured as a member of Miss Mary Anderson's company when she made her first appearance in England as Parthenia, Mr. Russell playing the Tymarch. At the end of his engagement with Miss Mary Anderson, Mr. Russell was retained by another American actress, but of a very different type—Miss Lotta to wit—whom as Sampson Brass he supported in The Old Curiosity Shop. At the Olympic he had a curious experience of the vicissitudes of plays. My Partner, one of the most popular pieces ever produced in America, was a dire failure in London, notwithstanding the care and money lavished on it.

Mr. Russell had a later life experience of the Adelphi under the rule of the Messrs. Gatti, playing in the course of a long and successful series there The Harbour Lights, The Bells of Haslemere, The Union Jack, the revived Green Bushes, The Trumpet Call, The White Rose, The Lights of Home, The Lost Paradise, the Black Domino, and A Woman's Revenge.

Incidentally, Mr. Russell has produced twenty-one "legitimate" plays at the Crystal Palace, playing the "heavy" parts therein, for the late Mr. William Terriss. In the summer of 1881 Mr. Russell played at the Crystal Palace Leontes, Dentatus, Julius Cæsar, the Duke Orsini, Jem Dalton, William Tell, and William (in Black-Ey'd Susan) in two weeks during the Meiningen company's tenancy of Drury Lane. It has been Mr. Russell's good luck to play important parts in all the Drury Lane dramas (except The Whip), under the management of Mr. Arthur Collins, and he has toured the suburbs as Sir John Garnet in The Great Ruby and Michael Wain in Hearts are Trumps. He has also toured the provinces in the late Henry Neville's part of the Governor-General in The Prodigal Son.

MISS ADA BLANCHE.

Miss Ada Blanche is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adams, both well known in the profession, the former as a music hall manager and the latter as a popular vocalist under the name of Mme. Cicely Nott. Miss Blanche started her career as a child at the Adelphi, and was the first to sing Clement Scott's celebrated song "Here stands a post." Her next engagement was at Drury Lane, for the Christmas pantomime, after which she appeared as one of the children in Miss Marie Litton's production of The Vicar of Wakefield at the Imperial Theatre, and as Little Red Riding Hood in pantomime under the same management. The following Christmas found her again at Drury Lane, in Mother Goose, and later on she toured with the late Dion Boucicault, playing Eily, Moya, and Arrah-na-Pogue. Further engagements included a tour with Mme. Soldene, in which she appeared as Fiametta in Boccaccio; three tours with Mr. Auguste Van Biene in Ruy Blas, playing Miss Nellie Farren's part; and three seasons with Mr. George Edwardes at the Gaiety, playing in Monte Cristo (and understudying for Miss Farren), Miss Esmeralda and Joan of Arc, in which she sustained the title-rôle. Miss Blanche has played principal boy many times in the provinces, her parts consisting of Selim, in Blue Beard, at the Tyne, Newcastle; the Prince, in Cinderella, at the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham; Aladdin, at the Royal, Newcastle; Boy Blue, at the Prince's, Manchester; Prince, in Cinderella, at the Grand, Leeds; Sinbad at the Prince's, Bristol; and Dick Whittington at the Prince's, Manchester. Six consecutive years as principal boy at Drury Lane Theatre came afterwards, Miss Blanche thus holding the "record" run of principal boys at the National Theatre.

MISS ADA BLANCHE.

For a short time Miss Blanche appeared in the music halls, her first engagement being at the Trocadero, then under the management of her father. Appearances at the Palace, Tivoli, Pavilion, Empire, Holborn, Canterbury, and Paragon followed. In the spring of 1896 she toured the musical comedy The Telephone Girl, which had a most successful run of six tours. An engagement as principal boy in Mr. Robert Courtneidge's pantomime of Sinbad at the Prince's, Manchester, followed, and in the autumn of that year she was secured by Mr. Chas. Macdona to star in the title-rôle of The Gay Parisienne. At Christmas Miss Blanche appeared as Aladdin at the Borough, Stratford, the following year returning to Mr. Courtneidge for principal boy in The Sleeping Beauty at the Prince's, Manchester; after which she was engaged by Mr. Tom B. Davis to create the part of Mrs. Habbicombe in The Medal and the Maid at the Lyric Theatre. Christmas once more found her in pantomime at Liverpool, under the management of Mr. Robert Courtneidge, playing a strong Irish comedy part, for which she was retained the following year at the Grand, Glasgow.

At the termination of this engagement Miss Blanche entered into partnership and toured for three consecutive years the well-known comedy What the Butler Saw, in which she appeared as the vivacious American Kittie Barrington. On her return to town she was again engaged by Mr. Robert Courtneidge to create the part of Mrs. Smith in The Arcadians, which is now in the second year of its run at the Shaftesbury.

Miss Blanche's favourite parts are Arrah-na-Pogue, Moya, Ruy Blas, the Prince in Cinderella, Kittie Barrington in What the Butler Saw, and Mrs. Smith, the rôle she is now playing in The Arcadians.

HARRY ROXBURY will produce the pantomime Mother Goose at the Bordesley Palace, and his company will include Fred Acton, Walter Dale, Kitty Russell, Bessie Esmond, J. W. Gallagher, the Society Quartette, Leon and Tee, and the Eight Sydney Girls.

FAVOURITE artists will also appear at the Prince of Wales's, where Jack Horner will form the attraction. The performers include Hetty King, Carlton, G. H. Elliott, Jay Laurier, George Miller, the Lyric Quartette, Rita Trekelle, Olive Dene, and the Stella Girls.

THIEVES have been paying particular attention lately to the theatres at Aston. A fortnight ago the manager's office at the Aston Hippodrome was entered, and the safe was carried into the passage, but left unopened, and the marauders, who were evidently disturbed, got clear away. On the night of the 11th inst. the Theatre Royal, Aston, was broken into, and a quantity of stock removed from the bar, with a sum of money, the takings from the sale of refreshments. A sequel to the latter case was the appearance before the Aston magistrates on Monday of a man named George Busst, of 11, Drury-lane, Birmingham, charged with breaking and entering the Theatre Royal and stealing four bottles of brandy, two bottles of whisky, seventy cigars, three packets of cigarettes, twenty packets of chocolates, and £15 7s. 3½d. in cash, the property of Charles Barnard, of West Hampstead. It was stated that the prisoner was found helplessly drunk in the bar of the theatre, having consumed a bottle of brandy. He was remanded for a week.

THE LATE FRANK EMERY.

During a career extending over half a century, Mr. Frank Emery, whose death we recorded in our last issue, experienced many and varied vicissitudes and achieved numerous triumphs, both at home and abroad. The veteran actor, who in his strenuous life was to fulfil the rôles of clown, pantomimist, comedian, and manager, enjoyed in his early days a short experience as an actor in the provinces. Later on he joined Huntly May McCarthy at Folkestone. The theatre was a permanently erected wooden structure. "Here," said Mr. Emery, in an interesting memoir he has left behind, "Charles Mathews appeared with us for two nights. We did two nights at Dover, travelling by coach to Canterbury for two nights. This pleasant journey was rendered most enjoyable by Charles Mathews—happy and convivial—relating innumerable interesting stories and anecdotes. In a winter season at Preston with Huntly May McCarthy, we did a pantomime, the opening being the splendid Lyceum burlesque of Conrad and Medora. We were visited by several stars, including Dillon and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mathews. From Preston we went to Sheffield, where Mr. McCarthy had taken both theatres, the Royal and the Alexandra, where he produced a very fine version of Dred, with John Coleman in the leading part.

"I joined the late J. P. Weston at the Theatre Royal, Bolton, as comedian, stage-manager, and pantomimist, where the work we got through was simply marvellous. Weston took me to the old theatre at Gravesend for a summer season, where he produced, for the first time out of London, The Colleen Bawn, which was then in the height of its popularity at the Adelphi."

Mr. Emery spent a winter season at the famous old Theatre Royal, Leeds, where they played The Colleen Bawn for six weeks in the depths of a most severe winter.

"Weston now having taken a lease of the Theatre Royal, Bolton, became permanently domiciled there, taking me with him as his general manager. While here I was engaged by the late John Knowles, of the Theatre Royal, Manchester, to play clown, which I did for three successive pantomimes, viz., Aladdin, The Fair One with the Golden Locks, and Gulliver's Travels."

For a season or two Mr. Emery travelled as general-manager and comedian with Captain Disney Roebuck's United Service Dramatic Company, into which Mr. Emery introduced the professional element, securing among others Miss Lottie Venne, George Giddens, E. W. Royce, and many others. Standard plays and comedies constituted the principal performances. Subsequently Mr. Emery was associated with Mr. L. J. Sefton in performances of Sir (then Mr.) W. S. Gilbert's Pygmalion and Galatea and The Palace of Truth, Pygmalion being played by "Handsome" George Gordon and Galatea by Miss Rose Leclercq. After an extensive tour the company was disbanded, and Mr. Emery assisted Mr. Sefton to produce the pantomime and play clown in Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star at the Theatre Royal, Sheffield.

THE LATE MR. FRANK EMERY.

"It was at this time, having plenty of leisure, that I took out Withered Leaves, by Fred Broughton, and commissioned him to write Ruth's Romance, which I produced at the Theatre Royal, Bath, with Fred Marshall as Captain Wilton, J. D. Beveridge as Jack Dudley, and Rose Leclercq as Ruth. Both these little plays were veritable triumphs. At Bath I produced also W. S. Gilbert's new play Broken Hearts.

"The Prince of Wales' Theatre, Liverpool, which had seen many ups and downs of late years, was in the hands of a Mr. Kittle, from whom I purchased the residue of his lease, and entered into possession on Monday, Oct. 9, 1876. The opening address of seventy lines of clever rhyme was kindly written for me by W. S. Gilbert, and spoken by myself and G. W. Anson, who starred in an original burlesque by J. F. McArdle, Zampa.

"At Christmas, 1877, I produced my first pantomime at this house, The Fair One with the Golden Locks, which was a triumph. The success of my management from this moment was never in doubt. I got the best stars and best companies, such as Charles Wyndham, Hare, Kendal, and D'Oyly Carte's company, who made a point of playing the Gilbert and Sullivan operas the first time out of London always at the Prince of Wales', Liverpool."

Perhaps the most memorable engagement of Mr. Emery's career was that with Wilson Barrett, whom he accompanied as stage-manager on his American tour. Visits to many of the States were made, seventeen towns being played in three weeks!

On returning to England the company immediately started on a provincial tour of the principal cities, at the conclusion of which Mr. Emery joined Walter Hatton as resident stage-manager and producer at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, for whom he produced three most successful pantomimes, and for the summer season managed a series of promenade concerts which proved prodigiously attractive.

Another important period in Mr. Emery's career came when he accepted a lucrative offer from Mr. Arthur Garner, the famous Australian manager, with whom he had a three years' contract. Mr. Emery had a long stay in Australia, winning success under various notable managements.

His record, as we have said, was a long and interesting one, and he died in harness in his native country, his last engagement being with the original House of Temperley company at the Adelphi and on tour.

MISS ITALIA CONTI.

Some Press Opinions of Miss Italia Conti's Producing of the Fairy Scenes, and of her Training of the Children in M. Cammaert's play of "The Two Hunchbacks," produced at the Savoy last Monday, Nov. 14; and some Notices of Little Miss Mavis Yorke as the Child Elf, who has been trained under Miss Conti's direction:—

The Daily Telegraph.

A mite of a girl, Miss Mavis Yorke, captured the goodwill of the house by her delightfully fresh and clever acting as the Prince of the Elves.

The Globe.

But the honours of the performance went to Miss Mavis Yorke, a really great little actress, who made the most fascinating of elfin Princes.

The Standard.

It is a charming little idyll, and, as acted by a host of clever children and one more than clever child—Miss Mavis Yorke—it should help to draw both old and young to the Savoy for many days to come.

The Daily Express.

The play was chiefly remarkable for the wonderful acting and dancing of little Mavis Yorke as the little Prince Pit, Prince of the Elves.

The Daily Telegraph.

The scene between Jack and the elves is quite charming, and should serve to make the little play a decided favourite with young folks during the Christmas holidays.

Morning Advertiser.

The little play was capitally acted by a company including Miss Brand, Mr. Vernon Steel, and the wonderful child actress and dancer, little Miss Mavis Yorke, all of whom may be congratulated on having caught exactly the right spirit of M. Cammaert's always fascinating fairy tales.

Daily News.

A charming and admirably-acted fairy tale, and little Miss Mavis Yorke was truly a Prince of Elves.

The Times.

The two scenes in the forest, with the dancing of the elves, are very pretty, and the children who represent them have been excellently trained and act with much spirit. Pit, the King of the Elves (Mr. Guy Griffinhoofe), and Little Pit, his son (Miss Mavis Yorke), are deliciously vivacious. The action of the piece has most wisely left the tunes to be sung by the children's voices without support. There is a charming spontaneity about the whole thing.

The St. James's Gazette.

The scene of the second act, which takes place in a pine wood, is quite delightful in the way it was presented, as well as in the charming group of well-trained and clever children who took part in it. Among these, especial mention must be made of Miss Mavis Yorke, a fascinating child actress, who, as Little Pit, the Prince of the Elves, played her part with conspicuous ability.

The Pall Mall.

Especially successful being the two pine-wood scenes. The numbers of children as elves seemed to enjoy themselves immensely, and they went through all their business, which includes a clever representation of felling a pine tree, with great spirit.

The Star.

The management of the woodland scenes was highly artistic, and the little people acted remarkably well. Far the best of them was Miss Mavis Yorke, who was delightful as the Prince of the Elves.

"THE MELLSTOCK QUIRE."

The Dorchester Debating and Dramatic Society produced at Dorchester on Wednesday, the 16th inst., a new comedy, The Mellstock Quire, being a dramatisation of their fellow townsman Mr. Thomas Hardy's famous novel "Under the Greenwood Tree." This society have previously produced two other plays founded on Mr. Hardy's novels, viz., The Trumpet-Major, in 1908, and Far from the Madding Crowd, in 1909. All three were adapted by Mr. A. H. Evans. Mr. Hardy has manifested a keen interest in the production, having attended several of the rehearsals and helped with many useful suggestions. The townsmen of Dorchester have just shown their appreciation of the honour which he has brought to their town by conferring upon him the freedom of the borough. This ceremony took place in the Guildhall immediately before the performance on Wednesday evening.

The scene of the play is laid in and near Mellstock, a village situate within a couple of miles of Dorchester and identical with the birthplace of the famous novelist. The date is in the early part of the last century. The play is presented in four acts, of which the following is a synopsis:

Act I., Scene.—Mellstock Village upon a Snowy Christmas Eve: The quire are going their rounds, carol singing, visiting the vicarage and the house of the schoolmistress. The Vicar makes an innovation by inviting them to the Vicarage for refreshments, instead of the old custom of taking "a crumb and a drap in the church gallery." Dick eludes his companions and seeks Fancy Day. The act closes with Churchwarden Shinar's reception of the singers, who retaliate by trying to drown his voice by their singing. The carols sung were selected by Mr. Hardy from carols actually sung by choirs at the date in which the play is laid.

Act II., Scene.—Mellstock Village in the Spring of the following year: The members of the quire and other parishioners are discussing the Vicar's intention of dismissing the quire and substituting an organ to be played by Fancy Day; Reuben Dewy undertakes to speak to the Vicar on the matter. The quire line up and "have it out" with the parson. Dick seeks his father's advice on love-making, proposes to Fancy and is accepted. Shinar courts Fancy but is rejected. The village school children come out of school and play.

Act III., Scene.—Fancy Day's Sitting-room: Dick and the Vicar in turn help Fancy to arrange the furniture brought by her father from Yalbury; she fascinates the Vicar, but loves Dick and is willing to marry him; her father however wishes her to accept the more prosperous Shinar. To overcome this difficulty Elizabeth proposes that both Dick and Fancy shall mope with broken hearts and feign sickness nigh unto death.

Act IV., Scene.—Under the Greenwood Tree in Yalbury Wood on Whit-Sunday: Elizabeth's plot proves successful and Geoffrey Day consents to his daughter's engagement to Dick. Fancy plays the organ for the first time in Mellstock Church, and the quire, unable yet to bear the change, forsake the service and visit Geoffrey Day at the keeper's house in Yalbury Wood. The Vicar tells Fancy of his love for her, proposes, and describes the life she would lead as his wife. Fancy accepts the Vicar. Dick, unconscious of what has happened, arrives and casually informs the Vicar of his engagement to Fancy. In the meantime Fancy has reconsidered her acceptance of the Vicar, and returning asks him to release her, which he does. The quire return, and all desire the future wedded happiness of Dick and Fancy.

It will be observed that the plot hangs mainly upon the attractions of Fancy Day, to which Dick Dewy, Farmer Shinar, and even the new Vicar all fall victims; but undoubtedly the chief interest lies in the old quire, who speak the Dorset dialect as to the manner born.

All the characters, except the Parson, Fancy, and possibly the Farmer, are drawn from the typical rustic class which Mr. Hardy loves to depict. The parts are played entirely by amateurs.

The play is to be performed for the benefit of the Society of Dorset Men on Dec. 1 at the Cripplegate Institute.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Farce, entitled
"THE MAN FROM BLANKLEY'S."

There is an abundance of genuine amusement in Mr. Anstey's merry farce, and the company appearing this week at the King's have succeeded to the utmost in creating hearty laughter at the mistakes and complications arising out of the supposed hired guest from Blankley's. The crowded house on Monday evening thoroughly enjoyed the ludicrous situations so tellingly arranged by Mr. Anstey, and the reception bade fair to lead to a successful week. As Lord Strathpeffer, the victim of the mistake in being mistaken for the hired guest, Mr. Clarence Blakiston scored repeatedly, his gentlemanly bearing and easy acting making his impersonation highly popular. The City man, Montague Tidmarsh, was cleverly portrayed by Mr. F. Percival Stevens. Mr. Harry Ashford amusingly rendered Gabriel Gilwattle, and Mr. Toomer was effectively played by Mr. J. Plumpton Wilson. A sufficiently melancholy Jeremiah Ditchwater was Mr. W. Ribton Haines, and Mr. J. W. Macdonald's Mr. Pomfrey created much merriment. Mr. Walter Ringham, with a capital make-up, was a laughable Mr. Nathaniel Bodfish. Dawes, the Butler, found an excellent representative in Mr. Fredk. Moyes. Mrs. Russ Whytal as Mrs. Montague Tidmarsh gave a brilliant representation. That talented actress, Miss Alice Mansfield, was seen to much advantage as Mrs. Gilwattle, and Mrs. Ditchwater enabled Miss Dorothy Fane to score for her exceedingly good make-up and dress. Miss Agnes Imlay was a pleasant Mrs. Bodfish, and Miss Ada Palmer as Mrs. Bugle caused many smiles. Miss Cecilia Flinders was giddily played by Miss Drusilla Wills, and Jane and Hannah were typically personated by Miss R. Migault and Miss Ada Claremont. One of the cleverest little actresses we have seen for some time is Miss Mary Glynne, who, in the character of Gwendoline Tidmarsh, created great interest, and earned a well-deserved reception. In Miss Eily Malyon's hands the part of Marjory Seaton lost nothing of its old effectiveness, and the King's patrons were not backward in welcoming her return to the district. The scenery was admirably painted. The farce was preceded by The Chain, a one-act drama, by Mrs. Herbert D. Cohen, in which Mrs. Russ Whytal distinguished herself. A quintuple bill of five plays was given on Thursday evening.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Nov. 14,
"OUR MISS GIBBS."

The patrons of musical comedy in this and surrounding neighbourhoods were not slow in showing their appreciation of the energy of the management in securing another West End attraction in the shape of Mr. George Dance's company in Our Miss Gibbs, which is here this week. This successful Gaiety play has the advantages of an exceptionally talented company. Mr. Hugh Weybrance presents a fine picture of Lord Eynesford. Possessing a well-trained and effective voice, Mr. Weybrance succeeds in moving his audience to genuine enthusiasm with the rendering of his numbers. Miss Jessie Lonnen as Mary Gibbs ("Our Miss Gibbs") sings and plays sweetly and unaffectedly, and, acting with a quiet force of personality, scores an artistic success. Mr. Eustace Burnaby realises exactly the eccentricities of the part of the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint, the amateur criminal. A large share of the success of the piece is due to the strenuous efforts of Mr. John Leopold, jun., as Slithers and Mr. Ernest Darrell is an admirable exponent of the part of the Earl of St. Ives. The Duchess of Minster has a successful representative in Miss Helen Langton, and the impecunious Mrs. Farquhar has a good representative in Miss Emily Stevens. Miss Ellaline Thorne is characteristically French as Mme. Jeanne, modiste at Garrod's Stores, and Lady Elizabeth Thanet is capably undertaken by Miss Lilian Birtles. Mr. Theodore Leonard as Timothy Gibbs "fra' Yorkshire" has a part brimful of opportunities for provoking laughter, which he uses to the full. His is a performance of distinct merit. Mr. Campbell Brown plays the part of Mr. Toplady, manager of the stores, with gentlemanly assurance, and Mr. Reginald Weighill is good as Mr. Beavis, the solicitor. Mr. Percy Clarbour gives a capital sketch of Mr. Amalfy, and Mr. Albert Cavendish is suitably placed as the taxi cabby. The Misses Nancy Aylwin, Lily Vining, and Nina Terri charmingly acquit themselves in acting, singing, and dancing as Irish Colleens at the White City, and Miss Hilda Hoyes (Lady Connie), Miss Ella Merton (Lady Sybil), Miss Kitty Beyer (Lady Trixie), Miss Mabel Gordon (Lady Angela), Miss Kitty Develin (Lady Muriel), and Miss May Marshall (Lady Gwen), the remaining characters in a lengthy cast, are all well placed. The chorus is well up to Mr. George Dance's usual standard of excellence, and the efficient orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Otto Manns, get through their work with the utmost precision. The play is staged with elaborate detail, and is under the management of Mr. Reginald Weighill, assisted by Mr. Albert Cavendish.

LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama entitled
"A THIEF IN THE NIGHT."

Mr. G. Carlton Wallace has brought a high-class company. Mr. Alfred Goddard is very good as Alan Escombe, and Mr. Leyton Cancellor scores a great success as Michael Pagani. Miss Beatrice Homer sustains the part of Sonia Cleeve with marked power, and Miss Florence Dalton ably overcomes the difficulties of the rôle of Joan Escombe. Mr. Hugh Wallace leaves nothing to be desired as Lord Romilly, and Lady Romilly is safely put in the hands of Miss Irene Chalmers. Miss Edith Watkins is clever as Susan; and Miss Jennie Halworth skilfully impersonates Happy Xmas. Richard Cleeve is allotted to Mr. Gerald Poole, and the Rev. Chas. Halkett to Mr. Philip Crossley. Mr. C. Alan-Hincson as Crake and Mr. Bert Atherton as Toby are well chosen for the parts; Mr. Robert Merrick is a capable Detective Laxton; Mr. C. Hedger as a constable and Mr. Henry Stanton as a police inspector are good; and Mr. Arthur Moran takes the waiter's part satisfactorily.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, entitled
"THE WHIP."

That wonderful sporting drama, The Whip, was presented at Kennington on Monday by Mr. George Dance's company. The two great scenes, The Collision at Manfield Junction and The 2,000 Guineas were quite a triumph of stagecraft. There is a talented and well-balanced company. Miss Gwendoline Wren is a charming Lady Diana Sartoris, investing the part with much sympathy and feeling; Mr. Dallas Cairns is a frank and manly Earl of Brancaster, and the love passages between him and the heroine are very daintily interpreted. Mr. James Lindsay gives a powerful and vivid study of Captain Greville Sartoris, and his victim, the Rev. Verner Haslam, is graphically portrayed by Mr. Frederick Leister. The lighter side of the play is well looked after by Mr. Edwin Brett as Tom Lambert, the trainer, and Miss Simeta Marsden as the Hon. Mrs. Beamish. Mr. Brett's impersonation of Lambert, the trainer, and Miss Simeta Marsden is extremely vivacious. Miss Vera Beringer's representation of Mrs. d'Aquila, the villain's accomplice, is a brilliant piece of acting, and Mr. Eric Hudson gives an excellent delineation of the rôle of Joe Kelly, the bookmaker. Mr. Ernest A. Douglas is a stately Marquis of Beverley, and Mr. Colston Mansell is admirably suited to the part of Harry Anson. Miss Dora Lane makes an attractive figure of Myrtle Anson, and Miss Talbot Daniel is well placed as Lady Antrobus. A good deal of fun is caused by Mr. Horace Custins and Miss Ida Mann as Mr. and Mrs. Tomlin respectively. Mr. W. J. Yeldham is well placed as Sir Andrew Beck, and others who deserve mention are Mr. E. Goldham as Tom Foster, Mr. Vincent Lawson as Captain Rayner, Miss Edith Fraser as Mrs. Purley, Miss Aimee Le Gros as Mrs. Pelham, Mr. Victor Boggetti as Emmett, Miss Marguerite Courtier as Lady Middleton, Miss Ellis Hudson as Lady Gore, and Mr. William Sydney as the Carpenter at Tussaud's.

FULHAM THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 14,
THE GROTESQUES.

The Grotesques, the clever artists who have been delighting London audiences at the Savoy, are on tour, under the direction of Mr. Philip Cuningham, and have been giving Fulham playgoers a taste of their quality. All their work is artistic and refined, and much of it is really humorous. Miss Kathleen Severn and Mr. Hugh Bayly open the individual items with a duet; and Mr. Harry Harmer follows with a weirdly-impressive "bogey" song. Miss Dorothy Doria next contributes a smart song, and shows herself, moreover, to be a most graceful and accomplished dancer. Mr. James Watts, who is a real comedian, gives an amusing coon song. Miss Elsie English, who sings in charming style and with admirable finish, is much applauded for her rendering of "Mister Nightingale." Mr. T. C. Sterndale Bennett contributes some little songs of his own. The melodious music and bright humour of these proved very attractive. The remaining portion of Part I consisted of "Some Impressions of a Ballad Concert," wherein the mannerisms of various types of performers were caricatured with great spirit and humour. Prominent among these were the amusing skit of Miss Margarine Scooper and M. Pullman on the 'cello, while the impersonation of Mme. Von Bellow produced roars of laughter. In Part II. Mr. Sterndale Bennett's song "My Bungalow in Bond-street" was one of the favourites, and some clever impressions of different sorts of music, varied from the delicate artistry of the "Street Cries" to the broad farce of "Operative Music." Finally, there is the inimitable "Village Concert," in which Mr. Cecil Cook gives a delightful caricature of the Vicar, and the other members of the company enact various other concert types, one of the cleverest being the representation of Mrs. Mealy.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, entitled
"HER ROAD TO RUIN."

Mr. Fred Melville is this week presenting at his own popular theatre one of his latest successful plays, and good audiences are nightly rewarding his efforts. Mr. Fred Melville has well mounted Her Road to Ruin, and the realistic London scenes arouse plenty of enthusiasm. Mr. Charles Dickens was in capital form as the Curate, Frank Temple, his virile acting making a marked impression; Miss Doris Gilham was remarkably effective in her representation of Jess; Mr. Knox Orde was at home in the arduous part of Philip Hardy; Mr. Dave Clarke sustained the rôle of the Bishop admirably; Mr. Albert Grenville played with care and carried conviction as Tom Wells; Mr. Chas. H. Brooke was a diverting Billy Boats; Miss Gertrude Tait was well cast as May Willoughby; and Miss Grace Emery was very bright and entertaining as Jenny Crackling. Miss Margaret McClellan, in the rôles of Mary Dawson, Marie de Vaune, and 'Orrible Mary, played with clearness and agility. Miss Leta Scarlett, Miss Jessie Stephens, Miss Mary Halstead, Miss Lucy Bentley, and Miss Violet Cane deserve mention in a large cast, as also do Mr. Guy Routh, Mr. Thomas Henry, Mr. H. C. Stallwood, Mr. Harry Winter, Mr. Louis, Clarke, Mr. Henry Powell, and Mr. R. Leigh Ellis.

SADLER'S WELLS.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, by W. A. Brabner, entitled
"FOR THE COLOURS."

Drama has come into its own again at the Wells, and appears likely to stay, the fare offered week by week by Mr. Frank Macnaghten and his astute general manager, Mr. Frederick Baugh, being of the kind that appeals exactly to the patrons. The admirable all-round Sadler's Wells stock company is this week presenting W. A. Brabner's stirring military drama, For the Colours, in which Mr. Wingold Lawrence is seen to particular advantage as Captain Roland Vereker, the soldier-hero, giving throughout a manly and unrestrained portrayal that is very convincing, especially effective being his acting in the scene in the store shed of Van Blumer's, and also in the Defence of the Drift. He was ably seconded by Mr. Douglas Murray as Lieut. Vernice Hansford, a capitally enacted scene being the first, where the timid young officer proposes for the hand of Doris, and in the later episodes Mr. Murray played with appropriate directness and sincerity, the elocution of both players being especially praiseworthy. The traitorous Boer and spy, Van Blumer, was skilfully undertaken by Mr. William Bradford. Umbopola and Scragga were capably portrayed by Mr. A. Grant and Mr. H. West, and Mr. A. Howard, Mr. Fred W. Graham, and Mr. Frank Western all did good work. The comedy relief was quite safe in the hands of Mr. E. Robertson as the irresistible Sprouts and Miss Ada Tilley as the outspoken and volatile Liza, and the many humorous interludes of this happily-associated couple always compelled hearty laughter. Miss Eugene Magnus quickly gained the sympathy of the audience for her natural and refined portrayal of the sorely-tried Mrs. Vereker, very effective being the scene in Van Blumen's store shed, where she saves the life of her husband from the treacherous Boer; and Miss Hebe Barlow was equally deserving of praise for her unaffected portrayal of Doris. The many exciting scenes were admirably staged, and the entire production, under the personal supervision of Mr. Frederick Baugh, was a very creditable one. Some amusing Tantolini and other pictures are shown in the intervals, and altogether the entertainment provided is splendid value for the admission prices charged.

THE BROADWAY, NEW CROSS.

On Monday, Nov. 14,
"THE KING OF CADONIA."

This charming musical play had an enthusiastic reception on Monday, and the story was followed with interest. The music is pretty and catchy, and had ample justice from all concerned. The scenery is good and appropriate, and the dresses very beautiful. The play is exceedingly well acted, and the orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. Julian Rutt. Miss Alice Moffat is a delightful Princess Marie, sympathetic and altogether charming; Miss Queenie Preston is excellent as the Duchess of Alasia; Miss Amy Preston is very pleasing and attractive as Stephanie; Miss Joan Penrose plays Melitza delightfully, and proves herself an artist of more than average ability; Mr. Bertram Wallis is an ideal King of Cadonia, handsome, earnest, and manly, and scores an instant success; Mr. Alfred Clarke is quietly humorous as Bran; General Bonski is capitally enacted by Mr. Robert Selby; Mr. Arthur Staples causes much amusement by his clever rendering of the Duke of Alasia; Mr. Lawrence Robbins is good as Captain Laski; Mr. C. B. Williams is well placed as Laborde; and Mr. Alec Buchanan gives a clever performance as Panix. Mr. Frank Curzon must be congratulated on an excellent production.

THE DALSTON.

Patrons of the Dalston Theatre are experiencing a treat this week in the form of a visit from Mr. Edward Compton and his celebrated comedy company, an organisation of clever actors and actresses which can boast of having been on tour during a perid of thirty years. Mr. Compton has been presenting to audiences during this very welcome return visit David Garrick, She Stoops to Conquer, A Reformed Rake, The Rivals, The Road to Ruin, and The School for Scandal. All who have seen Mr. Compton enact the part of the celebrated old Drury Lane actor admit that it is a piece of work instinct with life, and on the occasion of this visit to North London he has fully maintained his reputation in the character. As Tony Lumpkin in She Stoops to Conquer he is still exceedingly droll, and as Harry Jasper in A Reformed Rake his performance elicits much applause. His Bob Acres in The Rivals is another success, but perhaps his most complete triumph is as Charles Surface in The School for Scandal. Here the keenest appreciation of the true spirit of high-class comedy is seen, and Mr. Compton is frequently called to the front to be the recipient of the most genuine applause. Another character in which Mr. Compton has succeeded to the full is that of Charles Goldfinch in The Road to Ruin, a part in which he has appeared over six hundred times, and is as buoyant and vigorous as ever. The popular comedian has been assisted in many of the representations by Miss Nell Compton, who has undertaken several important characters, including Miss Hardcastle in She Stoops to Conquer and Joyce Thornton in A Reformed Rake. Others appearing to the very best advantage have included Mr. Frank Royde, Mr. Clifford Marquand, Mr. Keith Graham, Mr. Henry Crocker, Mr. Herrick, Mr. Charles R. Stone, Miss Marie Hassell, Miss Rita Sponti, Miss Agnes Williams, and Miss Vivien Marriott.

EDMONTON EMPIRE.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the German Military Play,
"LIGHTS OUT."

Once again the management of this successful hall has substituted drama for variety, and considering the very high standard of entertainment provided, one need hardly add that audiences remain as large and appreciative as ever. This week, Mr. J. W. Lindsay-Ellis presents twice-nightly the German military play (formerly produced in the West End) entitled Lights Out, which deservedly appeals to the house, and is received with demonstrative heartiness. As Klara Volkhardt Miss Sylvia Morris elicits considerable sympathy, and is to be congratulated upon her able portrayal; Mr. Bernard Merlfield is an excellent Lieutenant Von Lauffen, particularly in the court-martial scene; Mr. Sydney Bland is responsible for a careful character study of Sergeant Volkhardt, his performance in the last act being most commendable; the Captain Von B. Bannewitz of Mr. Frank Stuart is extremely lifelike; and Mr. Arthur T. Barugh is effective as Corporal Quiess. Mr. Chas. Western is an impressive Major Pasche, Mr. Alfred Turner an amusing orderly as Private Michael, Mr. George W. Barnes is exceptionally successful, Mr. Robert Sefton is good as Private Speiss, and Mr. Geo. Austin enacts the rôle of Lieutenant Von Howan most capably. The remaining parts are safe in the hands of Mr. Philip Ronough as Corporal Helbeg, Mr. Alfred Clark as Captain Lebdenburg, Mr. Ernest Ralston as Lieutenant Hagermeister, and Mr. Eric Cunliffe as a member of the court martial. Mr. Fred Alexander, in his usual courteous and attentive manner, supervises for Mr. Harry Bawn, and Mr. Angelo A. Asher is the popular musical director.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Play, entitled
"A WHITE MAN."

An extremely cordial reception was given on Monday evening to the production of A White Man at the Shakespeare Theatre. This thrilling romance of the American West is presented by Mr. Herbert Sleath, whose powerful company does full justice to the story. Mr. Frank E. Petley gives an admirable and concise rendering of the rôle of Captain Wynnegate, and his acting is marked by force and reality. Mr. Charles Maunsell is successful in his portrayal of the Earl of Kerhill, and Mr. Harold Richardson is interesting and decidedly amusing as Sir John Applegate. Mr. Lewis Sealy as the solicitor, Malcolm Petrie, is very effective, and Mr. Charles A. Forster as the Dean of Trantham does all that is necessary. The phlegmatic nature of Big Bill is cleverly depicted by Mr. John M. East, who contributes a sound performance, and the diverse characters of the three Cowboys, Shorty, Andy, and Grouchy, are amusingly portrayed by Messrs. Walter Bannister, James McWilliam, and Dan Erlston. Mr. Oswald Lingard is excellent as the Indian Chief, Tab-y-wana, and the interpreter, Baco White, is capably sustained by Mr. James Jolley. The desperado, Cash Hawkins, is smartly enacted by Mr. Vernon Sansbury; and Mr. Henry Du Val as the Barkeeper and Mr. James E. Page as the County Sheriff, Bud Hardy, also contribute valuable assistance. Miss Enid Sars is responsible for a charmingly unaffected assumption of the Countess of Kerhill, and her acting throughout is sincere and artistic. Miss Dorothy Edwards is completely successful in her impersonation of the difficult part of the Indian girl, Nat-u-rich, and Miss Gertrude Price was well suited as the Dowager Lady Kerth. Miss Elsie Buller was a vivacious Lady Mabel Wynnegate, and Little Hal was creditably played by Miss Nora Nagle.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Musical Play,
"THE MERRY WIDOW."

Notwithstanding a host of counter attractions in Kingston, the Royal County Theatre has been thronged this week with most appreciative audiences to witness the charming musical play which scored such a long run at Daly's Theatre. The company has been sent out by Mr. George Edwardes, which is synonymous with saying that everything has been done to secure a talented body of artists, and to ensure that the dressing and mounting of the play was all that could be desired. Those who witnessed The Merry Widow at Kingston this week were at a loss which to admire most—Franz Lehar's tuneful music, the pretty plots of Messrs. Leon and Stein, or the bewitching costumes. Chief honours amongst the company were carried off by Miss Mary Ridley, who appeared as Sonia, and by Mr. J. Warren-Foster, the Prince Danilo. Miss Ridley acquitted herself with a charm that won all hearts, her dancing and her singing (in which she disclosed the possession of a powerful and sweet contralto voice) being frequently applauded. She was the recipient of many floral tributes at each performance. Mr. Foster gave an admirable picture of the careless, devil-may-care Secretary of Legation, and sang the songs allotted to the part with great acceptance. The Marsovian dance by Sonia and the Prince in the second act quite took the audience by storm, and had to be repeated several times. Little less meritorious were the efforts of Miss Ada Thomas as the dutiful wife, Natalie, and of Mr. Ripley Evans as her illicit lover, the Vicomte de Jolidon. With a pretty and engaging manner, and an equally pleasant presence, Miss Thomas danced and sang herself into the favour of the audience, her song, "The dutiful wife," being loudly applauded for its wholesome sentiment as for the engaging way in which it was sung. Mr. Evans's fine tenor voice was heard to great advantage in the numbers allotted to him. Mr. Edward D'Arcy excelled himself as the facetious Baron Popoff. His whimsicalities were contagious, and laughter was the rule in the house when he was on the stage. In this respect good work was also done by Mr. Fred Fowler as the serving man Nisch, by Mr. William Allison as the Marquis de Cascada, and by Mr. Clifford Seyler as the jealous General Novakovitch. An amusing picture of the Parisian waiter was given by Mr. Adrian Beaumont. Miss Katie May made quite a hit as the Parisian dancer, Frou-Frou, her terpsichorean feats with Nisch fairly "bringing down the house." Mention should also be made of Miss Heather Featherstone as Olga, of Miss Frances Midgley as Sylvanie, and of Miss Lucie Donati as Prascovia, whilst the bevy of Parisian beauties at Maxim's were charmingly represented. The chorus was a numerous one and well trained, and the orchestra was under the direction of Mr. Harry Burton. The play was produced under the direction of Mr. J. A. E. Malone, Mr. Gifford Stacey acting as the general-manager.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the play, entitled
"RAFFLES."

Mr. Leonard Boyne's company has had excellent and well-deserved support here this week, and the thrilling interest of the ingenious play is well sustained throughout. In the title-rôle Mr. Leonard Boyne presents an admirable study of the paradoxical character of a burglar who could at the same time be a gentleman, and is equally successful in the lighter scenes and in the effective description of the Old Bailey scene, which literally brought down the house. Mr. Edward Irwin's embodiment of Curtis Bedford is a forcible one, and does not allow the American accent to be unduly obtrusive. He is impressive without heaviness, and contrives to give quite an original interpretation. Mr. Carlaw Grand is "a fine old English gentleman" as Lord Amerstcth, and Mr. Stephen Wentworth as his son, Viscount Crowley, is breezy and amusing. Mr. Harold West is successful in the difficult part of Harry Manders, and takes care not to overdo the tragic significance of the rôle. As Crawshay, the burglar, Mr. Buckstone Clair is quite an uncompromising ruffian, and Miss Kathleen Grey as Marie, the French maid, was equally good as the unprincipled domestic of the better class. Miss Blanka Stewart as Lady Melrose is refined and distinguished, and Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald is a sprightly and charming Lady Ethel. Miss Eva Killick is quite equal to the exiguous part of Gwendoline Conran, the heroine, her pathos being natural and her appearance prepossessing. Miss May Brooke as Mrs. Vidal is incisive and convincing, and wears some extremely smart gowns becomingly. Mr. Arthur Fitzgerald as Goldby is a well-trained and high-class footman, and as Merton, Mr. Henry Armstrong is quietly effective and to the point; and Mr. Richard Downes as Barraclough is a true type of the old retainer. The entire production is excellently dressed and staged. Recalls at the end of each act were numerous and hearty.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, by Walter Melville, entitled
"THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

This week Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is here with a further edition of "Melvillian" drama, in a condensed form, for the first time in its six years' history. Mr. Chas. Sparrow as Jack England, afterwards Private Johnson, acts with great force and precision. The part of Rose Seymour is ably played by Miss Dorothy Thayer, the scenes between the pair being very good indeed. Miss Lorraine Stevens leaves little to be desired in her interpretation of the misguided Molly Vernon. Mr. Chas. Ashwell as the Rev. Robert Everton is a most able exponent of the character, and looks as well as he plays the part. That of Charles Sutton is well placed in Mr. Walter Kellson's hands. He makes use of every opportunity. Mr. Digby Hayes is a smart Detective Weathersby. Mr. Herbert Morgan's reading of the villainous Captain Caversham is very clever. The rôle of Marion Franklyn could scarcely be in better hands than in those of Miss Letitia Rushforth. The comedy finds clever exponents in Miss Lillian Drake and Mr. Allan Carruthers as Isabella Jones and Dick Punch, and the remaining characters are in safe hands.

ROYAL ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Play entitled
"THE FLAG LIEUTENANT."

This week Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's exceptionally strong company is here on a week's return visit. This popular play has already reached its third year of uninterrupted success. It is so characteristically British that its attractiveness seems to be always increasing. The rôle of Dick Lascelles is admirably played by Mr. Loring Fernie, who gives a capital portrayal of the rollicking, careless, chivalrous sailor. Right well does Miss Dorothy Ripley as Lady Hermione Wynne play up to him, and these two excellent artists are immensely popular. Mr. Edward Harrison as the good-hearted Admiral is pleasing, Miss Clarisse Selwynne charms all in her rôle of Mrs. Cameron, the pretty genial, humorous widow, and Mr. A. V. Bramble does well as Major Theisiger. Miss Stella Leigh is very successful as Mrs. Gough-Bogle, and Mr. James Coulsdon is excellent as the Quartermaster. The manner in which Mr. George Percy enacts the naval surgeon is especially worthy of mention. Messrs. Geo. Robinson and A. J. Harris are admirable as the mischievous "middies," Horatio Hood and Edward Dormer Lee. The remaining parts are in capable hands. Perhaps Messrs. L. Isted and John Wheatman should be selected for special praise. The scenery is picturesque, and the dresses and uniforms elaborate.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Nov. 14, the Drama, by Arthur Conan Doyle,
"THE HOUSE OF TEMPERLEY."

A strong attraction is provided here this week in The House of Temperley, played by a company under the direction of Mr Arthur Hardy; and the enthusiastic reception of the piece on Monday augured well for a successful week's business. The piece is splendidly staged, and the pugilistic encounter in the Crawley Down scene is remarkably effective. As the easy-going, casual Sir Charles Temperley Mr. Skelton Rodney plays with fluency and polish; and his brother, Captain Jack Temperley, the hero of the prize-fight, has a manly and buoyant representative in Mr. Claude King. That card sharper and swindler Sir John Hawker is very powerfully enacted by Mr. Murray Carson; a really fine character study as the crafty bookmaker Jakes comes from Mr. Leon M. Lion; and Mr. Blake Adams submits an enjoyable performance as the genial ex-pugilist Ginger Stubbs. Mr. A. S. Homewood is very successful in the dual rôle of Joe Berks and the Duke of Broadwater; Mr. Douglas Munro is admirably suited as Tom Cubb; Mr. Hubert Willis is excellent as Tom Belcher; Mr. Reginald Davis looks and acts the part of the prize-fighter Gloucester Dick very convincingly; and Mr. A. Corney Grain cleverly sketches the old crony Buckhorse. Miss Claire Pauncefort is a natural and dignified Lady Temperley; Miss Una Venning is sweetly pretty and acts effectively as Ethel Morley; Miss Polly Emery is decidedly diverting as the servant Lucy; Mary, the bar-girl, has a chic representative in Miss Joyce Francis; and the slatternly Mrs Barnett is safely entrusted to Miss Joan Blair.

"THE COASTGUARD'S DAUGHTER."

Drama, in Four Acts, by J. A. Campbell, Produced, for the First Time in London, at the Elephant Theatre, on Monday, Nov. 14.

Post-Captain Henry Drummond ..... Mr. Douglas Tremayne
Lieut. Philip Marchant ..... Mr. Gerald Jordan
Derek Mason ..... Mr. Guy Hastings
Lieut. Arthur Barclay ..... Mr. Stanley Vine
John Melrose ..... Mr. T. Lionel Ellis
Jerry Dale ..... Mr. Finn Doyle
Capt. Hubert Sternroyd ..... Mr. E. H. Clarke
Sir Dennis Jermyn ..... Mr. W. Webb
Nanoya ..... Miss Babs Stuart
Edward Somerville ..... Mr. L. J. Lawrence
Gabrielle D'Armand ..... Miss Janice Deane
Audrey Melrose ..... Miss Gertrude F. Godart

The best criticism that can be offered of The Coastguard's Daughter, the latest effort from the prolific pen of Mr. J. A. Campbell, is that of the super who acted one of the marines in a vivid court-martial scene and was so carried away by the excitement on Monday evening that he fainted and had to be led off the stage. Little less sensational was the effect on the audience created by the situation, which forms the central episode in Mr. Campbell's play, and is ingeniously built up. The court-martial is carried out with a remarkable wealth of detail, all the ceremonial being observed. Eloquent speeches are made by prosecution and defence, and elaborate cross-examination is carried out on both sides, the delight of the audience when the villain is cornered, as he constantly is, being unbounded. As its name implies, the piece is a naval one, and for that reason the title The Hand that Rocks the Cradle, under which the play was originally produced at the Grand Junction Theatre, Manchester, on July 25 last, has been changed to the more significant one above named.

The circumstances which lead up to the chief incident are these. Lieut. Philip Marchant, R.N., has secretly married Audrey, the only daughter of John Melrose, a coastguard in His Majesty's service, well knowing that the young girl is heiress to a fortune. Audrey begs to be allowed to acquaint her father of her union, and Philip reluctantly consents, and goes so far as to broach the subject of the marriage to Melrose, when there appears on the scene a foreign lady who claims to be Philip's wife. Audrey's distress does not escape the eyes of her father, and he demands to know the meaning of it; but the girl, anxious to save him the pain her revelation would cause, refuses to speak, and Melrose confides the duty of finding out the cause of his daughter's uneasiness to Derek Mason, a petty officer who serves under Philip on H.M.S. Hercules, and a devoted admirer of Audrey. Derek accordingly visits the lieutenant at his quarters, and in a fine scene calls upon him for an explanation, which the lieutenant, fearful of the damage to his career should his bigamous act become known, declines to give. Thereupon Derek cuffs the lieutenant on the face, and, calling in the guard, gives himself up to be court-martialled for striking his superior officer, his design being to bring the whole matter to light.

The ceremony is duly carried out in the second act. Philip's real wife is called, and, by previous arrangement with Philip, declares she is a single lady, but is confounded by the production of her marriage certificate. Philip also swears falsely as to his relations with Audrey, and the prisoner gives evidence on his own account. But the truth is not reached until the coastguard's daughter is called, and, after a poignant scene, declares that Lieut. Marchant married her under false pretences, and that she is about to become a mother.

The news, as was expected, has a disastrous effect on old Melrose, who, in the fourth act, some months later, is found partially to have lost his reason, and meditates deadly vengeance on Marchant. That individual has been arrested on a charge of bigamy, but breaks his parole and comes to Melrose's house, where Audrey is living with her baby. Pursued by the authorities, he hides behind a door, and, covering Audrey with a revolver, threatens to fire if she reveals his presence. This the intrepid girl does not hesitate to do, and Philip shoots, without, however, any ill effects. He is promptly retaken; Audrey obtains the forgiveness of her father, whose reason has been restored by the excitement of the moment; and Derek arriving, a free man, takes Audrey to his arms.

Mr. Campbell has cast his play unerringly. The exacting rôle of Audrey is played with dramatic skill and emotional ability by Miss Gertrude F. Godart, who overcomes particularly well the arduous demands of the court-martial scene. Mr. Guy Hastings makes a true "blue" of Derek Mason, earnest and sincere, and delivering his speeches with all the desired vehemence. A properly sinister impression is created by Mr. Gerald Jordan, who as Lieut. Philip Marchant adopts a contemptuous tone that is very effective, lies with ease and fluency, and gains the abhorrence of all, thus proving his entire ability for the rôle. John Melrose, the bluff and hearty coastguard, is thoroughly realised by Mr. T. Lionel Ellis, a sound and experienced actor with a rich voice and vigorous method that command admiration. Mr. Douglas Tremayne is a refined and gentlemanly President of the Court, and Mr. L. J. Lawrence makes a distinct and emphatic Judge Advocate. Mr. E. H. Clarke as Captain Sternroyd leaves no question as to the unprincipled nature of the prosecutor, who is in collusion with the unscrupulous Philip, and an agreeable contrast is provided in the Lieut. Barclay of Mr. Stanley Vine, a stylish young actor with a prepossessing presence and a commendable clearness of delivery. Comedy is furnished amply but not obtrusively by Mr. Finn Doyle, who makes a smart sailor of Jerry Dale, and is very humorous in his scenes with Nanoya, a Cingalese girl, prettily played by Miss Babs Stuart. No little humour, too, is afforded by Miss Janice Deane, who as Philip's frivolous wife unintentionally takes a large share in the events which cause his undoing, but continues to preserve a cheerful demeanour, and always makes her exit trilling a popular refrain. The audience at the Elephant were kept engrossed on Monday, and by repeated applause demonstrated their pleasure in the production, which has the advantage of expensive mounting and dressing, the uniforms being correct in every detail.

THE CORONET'S PRODUCTIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—One or two paragraphs having appeared suggesting that the plan of producing plays at the Coronet Theatre is not to be persevered in, Mr. Robert Arthur desires to contradict this. Behind the Veil had to be suspended at the end of three weeks in order to bring in The Merry Widow and Mr. Martin Harvey, both visits having been arranged for early in the year. Subject to the pantomime season, the D'Oyly Carte season, and a few intermediate musical plays, long since booked, it is Mr. Arthur's firm intention to continue to produce new and original plays. As many plays and artists are contracted for and the public already informed, this erroneous rumour is hurtful, and Mr. Arthur would be glad if you would kindly contradict it.—I am, Sir (on behalf of Mr. Robert Arthur),

EADE MONTEFIORE,
General Manager.

KINGSTON THEATRE CO.

The annual ordinary general meeting of the shareholders in the Kingston-on-Thames Theatre Co., Ltd., was held at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, on Wednesday afternoon, under the presidency of Mr. William Millwood, chairman of the directors.

In submitting the balance-sheet and profit and loss account for the year ending Sept. 30, 1910, the directors reported:—"The receipts for the period have been £12,507 3s. 2d., and the expenses £11,622 1s. 10d., leaving a balance of £885 1s. 4d. After paying mortgage interest and writing off £100 for depreciation, there remains a sum of £500 1s. 4d., to which must be added £331 15s. 2d., brought forward from last year, making an available balance of £831 16s. 6d. From this amount an interim dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum to March 31, 1910, has been paid on the preference shares; the directors now recommend the payment of the final dividend, making 6 per cent. for the year on the preference shares, and a dividend of 3 per cent. on the ordinary shares, and that the balance, £255 7s. 6d., be carried forward."

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, congratulated the shareholders upon such a satisfactory result as was shown on the report, having regard to the fact that the General Election in January and the death of King Edward later in the year had very seriously interfered with theatrical enterprises. In addition to those drawbacks, the Royal County Theatre had now to contend with two roller skating rinks, three picture palaces, and a new music hall, and it was gratifying to know that, notwithstanding these new attractions in Kingston, their old-established theatre still commanded a great deal of local patronage. It was the aim of the directors, by providing as many high-class entertainments as possible, to maintain the high standard the theatre had hitherto presented, and the arrangements for the coming season were, in this respect, of a most satisfactory character.

Mr. C. E. Nuthall, J.P., seconded the motion, which was carried.

The Chairman then moved that a dividend of 3 per cent. on the ordinary shares be paid.

In seconding the motion, Mr. C. E. Nuthall said it was satisfactory to know that the Kingston Theatre was able to pay 3 per cent. to the ordinary shareholders, when many similar ventures in London were paying nothing at all.

The motion was carried.

In moving the re-election of Mr. Nuthall as a director, the Chairman alluded to Mr. Nuthall's long connection with Kingston, of which he had twice been Mayor, and said he was a director of three of the largest industries in the town, and the largest shareholder in the company.

The motion having been carried unanimously,

Mr. Nuthall, in returning thanks, expressed his confidence in the future of the Royal County Theatre, notwithstanding other minor amusements, for it was one of the prettiest and cosiest little playhouses he knew of, and only plays of a healthy moral tone were produced at it.

The Chairman alluded to the services of Mr. Peter Davey, the managing-director, who, he said, was one of the most zealous, painstaking, and energetic managers any theatre ever had, and these sentiments were borne out by other shareholders present.

Mr. Davey, in reply, said the Royal County Theatre had a large place in his heart, and he had done his best to make it a success. At present, however, everyone must realise that the theatre was going through a critical period of its existence. Within recent times it was hemmed in all round by counter attractions, but notwithstanding these he did not think the shareholders had much to be unhappy about. His aim was to keep the entertainments at the theatre of as high a class as possible. It would cost a little money to do so, but the investment would be a wise one in every way.

Mr. Davey having paid a well-deserved compliment to the staff, some of whom, he said, had been connected with the theatre since it started, a vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

LECTURING at the Working Men's College, St. Pancras, on "Shakespeare's Boyhood," on Saturday last, the Rev. R. C. de Courcy Laffan said that it might be doubted whether great dramatic literature had ever developed in the world excepting at a time of intense national feeling, and Shakespeare's birth occurred not only at such a time, but at a time of great national change, and much in the same way as Dickens derived his knowledge and sympathy of the life of the poorer classes in London, so the boyhood of Shakespeare gave him this knowledge of character and ways of a whole stratum of society with which in his prosperous London life he could have had little acquaintance. Although a paradox, it was profoundly true that it was the smallness of his native place to which Shakespeare owed his infinite width of range.

"PLAYS seemed to be currently called literary either in the sense that they were written well or that they were written badly," said Mr. C. E. Montague the other day in a lecture on "The Literary Play" at the second session of the Manchester and South-East Lancashire Branch of the English Association at the Manchester University. "Those condemned as literary might again be subdivided into those that were specially ill-written for stage representation and those that were bookishly ill-written altogether. And, again, the plays that were commended as literary might be sub-divided into those that were felt to be specially well-written for the stage and those that, while they contrived to exist on the stage, also satisfied critics of Traill's way of thinking that they were worthy of a higher life as bound books. So that a 'literary' play might mean a play wholly bad to read and to see, or a play wholly good to read and to see, or a play good to read but bad to see, or even a play bad to read but not quite bad to see. In fact, the distinction between literary and dramatic was one of those distinctions that seemed very real when you thought lazily, but diminished and diminished until they almost vanished when you thought more vigorously. It was in that respect like the distinction between knowing a thing theoretically and knowing it practically; we all used that sort of antithesis and took for granted, in a slipshod way, that theory and practice were a pair of natural opposites, though a careful thinker would tell us that if we knew a thing theoretically but did not know it practically then we really did not know its whole theory, and that if we knew it practically but did not know it theoretically then we did not really know its whole practice. Such, almost exactly, was the distinction between literary and dramatic quality in a play. If one's own conception of literary quality and of dramatic quality were weak and confused, the distinction was a gaping wide one. If by literary quality we meant bookishness and by dramatic quality we meant staginess, the antithesis between them might easily be striking. But in proportion as one examined and defined more exactly one's own conception of literary excellence on one side and of dramatic excellence on the other, one found the assumed contrast to be fading away into nothing. Just as knowledge of the theory of a thing almost ceased to be distinguishable from knowledge of its practice so soon as we began really to mean 'knowledge' when we said it, and not merely 'semi-knowledge,' so literary merit and dramatic merit might cease to seem to us to be in conflict at all if we could only clear our own minds of the last trace of slovenly thinking about them."

A UNIVERSAL COSTUMIER.

A CHAT WITH JOHN HYMAN.

The magnitude of the business done by the well-known theatrical costumiers, John Hyman and Co., of Leicester-square, was recently revealed to a representative of The Era in a brief chat with the busy and astute head of the firm, Mr. John Hyman, who from humble beginnings has built up a business with an enviable reputation, and has, at one time or another, supplied costumes to nearly every manager and house of importance in the United Kingdom.

To take the present week as a sample of many which have gone before—and are likely to follow—Mr. Hyman's firm has supplied the well-known manager, Mr. Leonard Rayne for his South African productions with all the costumes and uniforms for The Prince and the Beggar Maid, The Boy King, Her Love Against the World, The Speckled Band, and The Midnight Wedding. For the production of the musical play, Tom Jones, at the Court Theatre, 200 costumes have been supplied, and the week's output has included costumes for Lew Lake's production of The Great Millionaire and the Robbery of the Mail; E. D. Nicholls' Detective Dripping; H. A. Saintsbury's Strolling Player; Beresford Whitcomb's Nihilist and Soldier's Wife; C. Carlile's Sexton Blake in America; Montague Beaudyn's Send Her Victorious; Lionel Wallace's Betsy Baker; Fred Moule's Gretna Green; Brian M'Cullough's Midnight London Express; and Miss Decima Moore's sketch. Truly a wonderful record for one week!

"I think I can safely say I received the largest order ever placed in the theatrical business," remarked Mr. Hyman, "and that was for the spectacle, "India," when Mr. Imre Kiralfy opened the Earl's Court Exhibition. For that production I supplied over 2,000 costumes and uniforms. And a remarkable incident occurred in connection with this Exhibition. Just before the opening it was discovered, when the musicians came to the two bandstands, that the uniforms for the men had been quite forgotten. Mr. Kiralfy sent for me, and told me that they must be there by the next day. I replied that it was impossible. Mr. Kiralfy, however, would take no refusal, and told me to go and get them made. The men must be in the uniforms by 2 o'clock the next day!" Needless to add, Mr. Hyman managed to get this difficult task executed, and the eighty tunics, trousers, and caps were made in one day. And the same uniforms were used for three years, sufficient evidence that they were made, not "blown together."

Another big order undertaken by the firm was for the Robert Cunningham Opera Company, with Miss Ella Russell as the star, twelve complete operas being furnished with costumes—all new. For a great many years Mr. Hyman was the sole costumier for the Syndicate halls, and amongst the multitude of sketches he dressed may be mentioned Joe Elvin's Toffee's Trotter, Over the Sticks, On the Flat, and Foresters' Day; George Leyton's Henry V., Robin Hood, and Claude Duval; Eugene Stratton's Coon Drum Major and Cake Walk; and Paul Martinetti's Night Attack and Robert Macaire. A remarkable incident in connection with the latter sketch, which Mr. Hyman declares is absolutely true, is that when the supers came to his establishment to be fitted, and were asked what they were—meaning, of course, what part they were to play—every man Jack answered "Pheasant!"

Then there were G. H. Macdermott's Lads in Red and other playlets; the famous On Guard, and other scenes, for Charles Godfrey; all Jenny Hill's productions; A. C. Lilly's Drummed Out, for whom Mr. Hyman suggested the regiment of the 17th Lancers, having the costumes in stock; and Cheer Up at the Paragon, one of the biggest successes ever staged there, many people going from the West End to see it. It will be remembered that in this sketch the Guards' Band were represented. At the rehearsal a well-known critic remarked in Mr. Hyman's hearing, "Fancy the management going to the expense of engaging the Guards' Band." Mr. Hyman turned round and quietly informed the gentleman that it was not the Guards' Band. Whereupon the critic waxed indignant, and replied, "Don't you think I know the Guards' Band when I see it?" "And don't you think I know it's not the Guards' Band, considering I made the uniforms?" was the answer. In a notice of the sketch, which subsequently appeared, the critic acknowledged that he had been deceived by a clever costumier.

"At the time of the production of A Run of Luck at Drury Lane by the late Sir Augustus Harris, I was asked if I could get the management out of a difficulty. They had tried everywhere to get the huntsmen's liveries. These men clear the course at Goodwood, and the liveries were wanted for the Racecourse scene. Of the many they enquired of, not one knew the description of livery wanted. There was only one way to get them—that was to go to the Duke of Richmond's residence at Goodwood. I was asked if I would oblige and go, and, after looking up a time-table I went by the first train and brought back the liveries.

"I dressed A Night Out for Sir Charles Wyndham, and for Mr. Forbes Robertson supplied the costumes for two companies in The Light that Failed and two companies in Mice and Men. After sending along the costumes for one company, Mr. Robertson wrote, saying, 'he was so satisfied with the work done, that he would not mind paying a little more for the next set.'" Surely a unique compliment! For Miss Ada Reeve's Butterflies (two companies), the late Mr. George Conquest at the Surrey, and everyone connected with the circus and equestrian business, including Lord George Sanger and the Bostocks, Mr. Hyman has executed many commissions. The O.U.D.C. and most of the well-known amateur dramatic clubs go to the house of Hyman for their costumes, and the production this week at the Court of Tom Jones, Mr. Hyam asserts, will be quite equal in the matter of dressing to the original one at the Apollo.

The Whip, The Prisoner of Zenda, Monsieur Beaucaire, Tommy Atkins, Human Nature, The Second in Command, three companies of The Little Minister, three companies of The Flag Lieutenant (the American and African and Mr. Lyn Harding's No. 1) are a few other prominent productions which Mr. Hyman has dressed. And there are others! Eight hundred suits for the Japanese Exhibition and attendants' uniforms in galore for various exhibitions, cinematograph palaces, &c., may also be mentioned.

Owing to a deal of competition, large caterers hiring out costumes, and also toy dealers and bazaars entering the lists of theatrical costumiers, Mr. Hyman has decided to open a Boy Scout outfit department, and the firm supplies hats, shirts, haversacks, belts, knives, jerseys, stockings, breeches, shorts, scarves, and numerous other requisites at the lowest possible prices. This branch has only been started two weeks, and the results are more than satisfactory.

DEATH OF MR. ERNEST COSHAM.

Many of our readers will hear with regret of the death of Mr. Ernest Cosham, who passed away on Saturday at Charing Cross Hospital, to which institution he was removed three weeks since to undergo an operation for peritonitis. The improvement in his condition was not maintained, and a second operation was decided upon. Under the effects of this he gradually sank. He was forty-four years of age.

Beginning his career in 1889, the deceased actor went to the provinces for experience, and after three years he was engaged by Mr. Charles Hawtrey as understudy at the Comedy, remaining with that gentleman for seven years. He played small parts in Houp-La, Husband and Wife, and The Grey Mare. After a stay of a year in Australia Mr. Cosham returned to London to be with Mr. Willie Edouin at the Avenue, and later with Mr. Comyns-Carr at the Comedy, where he played the part of the Bishop in The Benefit of the Doubt, produced in 1895, and in Gossip, the three-act comedy by Clyde Fitch and Leo Dietrichstein, produced in February, 1896. In the production of Saucy Sally, Sir Francis Burnand's adaptation of Hennequin's La Flamboyante, at the Comedy on March 10, 1897, Mr. Cosham played the part of Evan Evans; and on Sept. 19 in the same year he was the Sir Charles Trefusis in The Guinea Stamp, by Cyril Hallward, revived as a forepiece to One Summer's Day. He also fulfilled engagements with Sir John Hare, Mr. Charles Frohman, and Mr. Forbes-Robertson, and his last engagement was with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle at the Adelphi in The House of Temperley. He also played Rogers, the old Butler, in The Speckled Band. One also remembers his Walter Emerson in George Paston's comedietta, Tilda's New Hat, when that little piece was revived at Wyndham's last year in front of The Little Damozel. He was the author of the one-act play The Home Coming, produced at the Comedy on July 4, 1892, with a distinguished cast, which included the late Robb Harwood as Alan Travers, Mr. Sam Sothern as Charlie Harding, Miss Alice Yorke as Mrs. Musgrave, and Miss Nina Boucicault as Stella. Mr. Cosham always put his heart into his work, and in even the smallest parts his acting was invariably marked by conscientious care. His amiability of disposition had endeared him to many friends, who mourn the loss of an actor always held in high esteem by his fellows.

The deceased actor was buried at East Finchley on Thursday last, many of his fellow-actors being present at the graveside, amongst whom were Henry Ainley, J. J. Bartlett, Kenneth Douglas, Brian Egerton, Loring Fernie, W. Lestocq, Lawrence Leyton, Lennox Pawle, Leon Quartermain, Aubrey Smith, Farren Soutar, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Turnbull, Spencer Trevor, Dr. Honnywill, Mr. Lenn West, &c., &c., the Green Room Club being represented by the secretary. Wreaths were sent by Dr. Honnywill, W. Lenn West, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bowring and Miss May Bowring, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Henry Ainley, Hilda and Brian Egerton, W. W. Keen and A. Hardy, Cyril Maude, Aubrey Smith, Spencer Trevor, Huntley Wright, Stanley and Mrs. Turnbull, Green Room Club, and friends at 10, Great Ormond-street (where deceased had resided for many years).

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

At the Council meeting held on Nov. 15, at 32, Regent-street, Mr. Clarence Derwent was in the chair, and there were present Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Frederick Annerley, C. Hayden Coffin, Cecil A. Collins, Robson Paige, F. J. Arlton, R. A. Greene, Langford Reed, Murri Moncrieff, Henry Pettitt, Henry le Grand, Miss Rose Cazalet, Miss Mildred Cottell, Miss Vita Spencer, Miss Beatrice Chester, and Mr. D. Young (secretary).

The Secretary read the minutes of the meeting held on the 8th inst., which the meeting confirmed, and the Chairman signed same.

The Secretary read a letter from Messrs. Broxholm and Williams, and was instructed to give the necessary information and comply with their request.

The Hon. Solicitor reported on two cases.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Miss Chester, and on the motion of Mr. Green, adopted.

The House Committee's report was submitted by Mr. Arlton and adopted.

With reference to the dinner, members requiring the five shilling tickets are strongly urged to make immediate application, as the number is limited.

Francis Roberts, J. Wells Knight, Gertrude de Lacy, Susie Nainby, Dorothy Radford, Eily V. Wilson were elected, and Gladys Mason and Alan J. Chester were nominated.

A Near Thing.

MR. LAWRENCE CRANE, the Irish wizard, when he was recently in America, was invited to appear before one of those little gatherings of millionaires of which much are written. For a conjurer it is more favourable to be as far from his audience as possible; but on this occasion Mr. Crane had to work at a small table at the end of the drawing-room with only a chair behind him, on which was laid his box containing the necessary apparatus for his tricks. To use his own words: 'I got down in my entertainment to my disappearing rabbit trick, in which I had to pass a rabbit from my hand into a box held by a young lady in the audience. Of course, there are two rabbits used, one in my hand and one under a false bottom of the box. I passed my rabbit all right into my pocket, when a bright young peach in the audience blurted out, 'I will bet sixty dollars I know where the rabbit went.' Everyone heard him, and I went goosey with fright. I had to make good, and accepted the challenge, kissing the act good-bye. 'Take off your coat,' was the laughing command, and I did so. The young man went through all the pockets, but found no rabbit. I was more surprised than he, and, noticing his predicament, made the best of it, and got him fried to a frazzle in ten seconds. You should have heard the crowd give the guy the laugh. When the show was over I got thinking about my rabbit, and going to the box where they were usually kept, there I found the little bunch of all that was good laying quite comfy like, waiting to go home. It seems that I did not put the rabbit in my pocket at all, but had inadvertently slipped him into the box behind me."

GLOBE-TROTTING ENTERTAINER.

MR. G. H. SNAZELLE.

The above much-travelled and (dare we say?) veteran vocalist, raconteur, author, and lecturer starts to-day on his fourth tour of Great Britain's overseas possessions. Mr. Snazelle is embarking upon the biggest venture he has ever undertaken, and is practically opening new ground with new work. He has six complete programmes, comprising "A London Club Night," a Naval and Military programme, a sacred programme, Dickens's "Christmas Carol," Tennyson's "Enoch Arden," and—this is his cheval de battaile—a great lecture on "London."

"This idea," says Mr. Snazelle, "has been in my mind for many years, knowing the colonies as I do. Even the Savage Islands of the South Pacific, Fiji, Tonga, New Guinea, Solomon Islands, &c.—they are all talking of London. So with the help of 'Dick Donovan' (J. E. P. Muddock), I have knocked together a comprehensive entertainment—historical, statistical, anecdotal, musical, and, above all, scenical (for it is illustrated with 400 specially prepared scenes). I want this understood, so that my audiences may not think they are coming to a mere dry hash (Australian term) lecture. It is under the direct patronage of the Lord Mayor of London, and, take note of this, I go out to glorify the 'old smoke.' I have received innumerable letters wishing me great success—from the Right Hon. John Burns, from Mr. G. R. Sims, and from His Majesty the King; for the success of my naval and military programme, from Lord Roberts and Lord Charles Beresford, and for my sacred programme from Lord Kinnaird and clergymen of all denominations."

Mr. Snazelle opens at St. John's, Newfoundland, and goes thence to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Canada, India, China, Japan, Java, Sumatra, South Pacific Islands, New Zealand, Tasmania, Australia, Ceylon, Malta, Gibraltar, and Africa. It must not be omitted to state that the music for the "London" lecture has been specially written by Sir Charle Santley, A. H. Behrend, and W. W. Hedgcock.

"So," said Mr. Snazelle, as he bade us a cheery good-bye, "I really think I may claim some little credit for showing our brothers and cousins in these far-off lands (most of whom can never hope to see London) something of the beauties, the power, the joys, and the pathos of 'the heart of their Empire.'"

BRITISH EMPIRE SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY.

The annual general meeting of the Belfast branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society was held on Wednesday evening in the Central Hall, Rosemary-street, Belfast, with Professor J. A. Lindsay in the chair. The annual report showed the branch to be on a most satisfactory footing, both as regards membership and income. The report was adopted, on the motion of Mr. H. H. Mayne, seconded by Mr. R. H. Shepperd. Mr. S. Bulloch moved, and Mr. Atkinson seconded, that the Executive Committee be re-elected, with the additional names of Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Moore, and Miss Chipp, and this was passed unanimously. The various officers were also re-elected. Mr. Mayne proposed, and Mr. Mayes seconded, that the programme for the year comprise a reading of The Merchant of Venice, a reading by Mr. F. R. Benson and his company, and a lecture. The motion was passed by acclamation. The inaugural reading of the session was then held, the play chosen being The Merry Wives of Windsor. All the members who participated in the reading acquitted themselves creditably, and the reading was very enjoyable, the various characters being allotted as follows:—Sir John Falstaff, Mr. S. Bulloch; Fenton and Shallow, Mr. Alfred M. Letcher; Slender, Mr. C. D. Patterson; Ford and Page, Mr. N. E. Atkinson and Mr. A. Newton Anderson; Sir Hugh Evans, Mr. R. H. Shepperd; Dr. Caius, Mr. C. G. Boas; Host of the Garter Inn, Mr. Gordon C. May; Bardolph, Pistol, and Nym, Mr. T. H. Mayes, Mr. C. G. Boas, and Mr. C. D. Patterson; Robin, Mr. T. H. Mayes; Simple, Mr. G. D. May; Rugby, Mr. T. H. Mayes; Mistress Ford, Miss G. Purdon; Mistress Page, Miss Parrott; Anne Page, Miss E. S. Gunning; and Mistress Quickly, Miss May M'Tear. The reading was embellished with some excellent incidental music.

Left Behind.

"THE worst adventure I can remember in America," said Mr. Herbert Sleath in an interview in Madame the other day, "was once when I got out of the train to get some coffee for my wife, and they went on without me. I was left in a town that only looked like a smudge on the landscape, no hat or coat even and, what was worst of all, no money. It took me three days to catch up with my company, and I had to persuade the people in the little town to feed me till I could get some money telegraphed to me; but there was no real harm done, as we were not playing at the time. Audiences are very good in America. I remember once when we were doing one-night stands from New York to San Francisco, when we usually got on the train about midnight, travelled till five or so next afternoon, played at seven, then back to the train again. We were travelling through snow-drifts, with the aid of a powerful snow-plough, but could not make Seattle—where we were due to ring up at seven—till half-past eight; but the audience were still waiting, more or less patiently, so we unpacked and got on with the show. Some of the people had ridden fifty miles to see us."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Captain of the School is amusing and well-written, while the construction is all that could be desired. The piece had a capital start on Monday, when a crowded house accorded it a good-humoured and appreciative reception.

The action opens in the school gardens at Dr. McIntyre's, on the eve of vacation, and, in addition to the usual speech-making and dinner ceremonies, there is to be a performance of Romeo and Juliet. In an incident pertaining to the latter circumstance, lies the pivot of the action. Tom Brant, the nineteen-year-old captain of the school, a successful scholar and general favourite, has been cast for Romeo, while Juliet is to be played by Rhoda, the doctor's pretty daughter. Tom has one or two enemies, however, the chief being one of the masters, Leonard, who is jealous of his popularity and opportunities, while another is a boy named Thurloe, known as "Sneaky." Tom and Rhoda have a little rehearsal by themselves, but are spied upon by Sneaky, who watches the rehearsal develop into an actual confession of love, which is, to Tom's delight, reciprocated by Rhoda. Sneaky tells Leonard of this, who carries it to the doctor. The latter does not receive the tale-bearing very warmly, and he is not pleased by what he has heard. In company with his sister, Mrs. Higgins (the widow of a bishop who was eaten by cannibals), he comes upon the couple about to resume their rehearsal. There is a confession, and he follows up his ridicule and condemnation by ordering Tom to see him later on in his study. It happens that a friend of Tom's, known as the "Sleuth-hound," as well as Sneaky, has seen the original incident, and thus Tom learns the cause of this interference. While everybody is on the scene, therefore, Tom publicly accuses Leonard of being a contemptible informer. The latter raises his stick in resentment, but Brant is quick enough to get in a blow, which fells the junior master to the ground. This leads to Tom's expulsion by the Doctor. So far, the episode is complete; but it is carried on through the medium of Mrs. Higgins, who is on a visit to the school in order to meet an old sweetheart, Professor Brant, Tom's uncle, from Cambridge, whom Dr. McIntyre has invited for the purpose. Knowing that his uncle is coming, though ignorant of his connection with Mrs. Higgins, Tom conceives the idea of impersonating the Professor, so that he may remain on the spot, be near Rhoda, and get what amusement out of the notion that may arise. This idea is carried out; Tom has to question the class on mathematics, but much fun lies in the situation, and incidentally he makes comic allusions to the black eye of Leonard, who now has to play Romeo in his place. The deception carries well enough, but Rhoda and Mrs. Higgins find it out, and decide to have some fun with him. Mrs. Higgins, pretending that she takes him for the real Professor, makes love, and presses for an immediate marriage. To keep up the part, he has to make love in return. The arrival of the Professor is, however, impending, and Tom devises with Murray, the "Sleuth-hound" that when he comes he shall be taken secretly to his room (which Tom has to vacate) and kept there while Tom goes in his place to the dinner and the ceremonies. This is done. The Professor's trousers are stolen while he is changing into his dress clothes, and he is also locked in. All goes merrily at the dinner, but, as Tom is replying to the toast of his uncle, that victimised worthy walks in, with his legs wrapped in a bed-quilt. Tom slips under the table, divests himself of his disguise, and reappears, much to the surprise of everyone and the indignation of the Doctor and the Professor. He produces the trousers, however, and the Professor goes off to dress. Afterwards the deception is forgiven; Tom is reinstated; and the whole business ends with his resolve to make his way in the world and come back to marry Rhoda in the end.

Mr. Lionel Mackinder as Tom Brant made a great success, and was especially amusing in his comic impersonation of the Professor. As Rhoda Miss Dorothy Parry (Judge Parry's daughter) played with considerable charm and perfect confidence—this being, by the way, her first professional appearance. Mrs. Mouillot added another delightful performance as Mrs. Bessie Higgins, and a typical piece of characterisation was the Dr. McIntyre of Mr. Charles Macdona. Resourceful impersonations were contributed by Mr. Eugene Mayeur as Martin Leonard; Messrs. Connought, Duff, and Swinburne as Corbett, "the Bishop," Murray, "the Sleuth-hound," and Thurloe, "Sneaky"; and Messrs. Arthur Eldred, T. Gideon Warren, Alfred S. Barber, A. J. Nicholls, and Miss Lucy Edwin did well in the remaining smaller rôles. The scenery was good, and Stedman's Famous School Choir contributed incidental vocalism with effect.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

An interesting concert was given by the Guildhall students on Wednesday evening, Miss Ruby Wastell opening the programme with two piano solos, Etude in F sharp (Arensky), and Berger's "Hexentanz" (Witches' Frolic) both being cleverly played. In "The lute player," by Allitsen (an ex-student of the G.S.M.), Mr. J. Packer Ramsey made artistic use of an excellent voice; and Mr. Rowland Hill's violin solo, Second Movement from Wieniawski's Concerto in D, was distinguished by good intonation and careful technique. Miss Lottie Minns was much applauded for her singing of "O love that rulest" (Fallen Fairies), by Ed. German, while Miss Lily White gave a spirited performance of Liszt's showy Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 12, always a popular work with students. A monologue on the subject of "Hats," by Miss Jean Garlick, a clever pupil of Miss Kate Rorke, greatly pleased the audience, and the classic dance to the music of Rubenstein's "Romance" was gracefully carried out by Miss May Curtis, pupil of Mr. B. Soutten. Miss Norah Stollery, who has a really fine voice, did great credit to her professor by an intelligent rendering of "Bergine tutto armor" (Francesco Durande) and Max Reger's "Waldeinsamkeit," and praise must be awarded to Mr. E. H. Thompson for his artistic singing of the "Toreador" song from Carmen. To English words this song is no easy task, but Mr. Thompson was most ably supported by Miss Jenny Hyman, the accompanist. Miss Selma Sacke and Miss Vera Wise, two advanced students, were associated in a very creditable performance of Schumann's Sonata for violin and pianoforte in A. Other clever pupils were Miss Maud Jones, who recited "Hullo!" (Foss) and "If we only knew" (Spurr), Miss Grace Steward, and Mr. Eldon Dacre, who was set down for the Prologue from Pagliacci.

"DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW." By Albert A. Strong, LL.B. (London), Solicitor. Third Edition. Price 5s., post free 5s. 4d. Published by The Era, Limited, 5, Tavistock street, Strand, W.C.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR HERBERT TREE, when the run of his very successful revival of Henry VIII. is terminated, will present Macbeth at His Majesty's, and follow this by other Shakespearean revivals. In Macbeth Mr. Bourchier will play Macduff; and Miss Violet Vanbrugh, whose fine performance as Lady Macbeth at the Garrick is familiar to playgoers, will repeat it at His Majesty's. Sir Herbert hopes to induce Mr. Gordon Craig to assist him in the production of the drama.

SIR JOHN HARE, as president of the Irving Memorial Committee, asks us to announce that the unveiling of the statue of the late Sir Henry Irving, at the rear of the National Portrait Gallery, in Charing Cross-road, will take place on Monday, Dec. 5, at 11.30 a.m.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER will give a matinée at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday in aid of Princess Christian's association for supplying spectacles to the elementary schools of London. The performance will include Stephen Phillips's Paolo and Francesca, with a full orchestra and chorus, for which Mr. Percy Pitt has written some charming music.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has enjoyed a very pleasant visit to the Prince's, Bristol, this week, and on Monday goes to the Theatre Royal, Birmingham. Subsequently Mr. Harvey is to visit Hull, where, on Friday evening, Dec. 2, he will appear in a triple bill, consisting of Rouget de L'Isle, The House of Pierre, and The Conspiracy. Mr. Martin Harvey is to deliver his lecture on the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre scheme in Birmingham next week—probably on Wednesday. The long tour of the Harvey company will conclude at the Coronet Theatre the week commencing Dec. 5.

MISS MURIEL MARTIN HARVEY, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Harvey, is to make her first appearance on the professional stage to-night at the St. James's Theatre, where she will "walk on" in Mr. George Alexander's new production, Eccentric Lord Comberdene. Miss Muriel Martin Harvey will also understudy the part played by Miss Waterlow. We wish the charming daughter of an accomplished couple an equally brilliant future.

MR. OSCAR ASCHE and Miss Lily Brayton are doing such big business at the New Theatre with Count Hannibal that the season has been indefinitely extended, and Mr. Asche has been compelled, for the time being, to abandon his American tour. Shortly after Christmas he will move to another theatre, as Mr. Fred Terry will return to the New early in 1911.

THE Gaiety Theatre Football Club played a very enjoyable match on Sunday morning last with the Flowerpotonians at Walthamstow—enjoyable to the players, no doubt, for footballers heed not the weather. Despite the fact that the rain came down during the greater part of the time, Gaietys and Flowerpotonians went at it with a will, cheered in their efforts by a crowd of enthusiastic spectators, who braved the elements with an utter disregard for the consequent influenza. The Theatre team lost to the Flowerpotonians to two goals to nil.

SIR HERBERT TREE and his company at His Majesty's Theatre assembled at a suburban studio at ten o'clock on Thursday for the purpose of having the principal scenes from the production of Henry VIII. cinematographed. The costumes and properties had been conveyed to the studio, but the dense fog prevented the photographs being taken. The company waited till after lunch, but the light was still so bad that the party, which numbered 190, came away unphotographed.

MR. H. B. IRVING will, on Wednesday, Dec. 14, make his reappearance at the Queen's Theatre after a very successful provincial tour in The Princess Clementine, the four-act play which Mr. A. E. W. Mason and Mr. George Pleydell have adapted from Mr. Mason's novel, "Clementine." Mr. Irving has engaged Miss Stella Patrick Campbell to sustain the part of the heroine.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES thinks of closing Daly's Theatre about the end of the second week in December, reopening it early in January with Franz Lehar's musical play The Count of Luxembourg, which has been so successful in America and on the Continent.

MR. HERBERT TRENCH has entrusted Mr. Cayley Robinson with the difficult task of designing the scenery and costumes for the new act, The Palace of Happiness, which M. Maeterlinck has written for the forthcoming revival of The Blue Bird at the Haymarket Theatre on Dec. 19. Mr. Norman O'Neill will compose special music for the act.

LEADING features of Mr. Arthur Collins's pantomime of Jack and the Beanstalk at Drury Lane will be a mechanical hurricane and a giant forty feet high. The cost of the production will be over £20,000. The comedians of the cast will consist of Messrs. George Graves, George Barrett (who makes his first appearance in Drury Lane pantomime), Harry Randall, Johnnie Danvers, Arthur Conquest, Barry Lupino, Downes and Langford, and Bennett and Martell; while the harlequinade is in the hands of the Pender Troupe. The ladies, who are nearly all new to this theatre, include Misses Dolly Castles, Maud Thornton, Victoria Sievers, Anita Edis, Hilda Playfair, Mona Brae, and the Sisters Emson.

MR. HERBERT TRENCH has kindly lent the Haymarket Theatre for a matinée on Thursday and Friday next in aid of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre. Mr. George Bernard Shaw's piece, The Dark Lady of the Sonnets, will be played for the first time, Mr. Granville Barker appearing as Shakespeare and Miss Mona Limerick as the "Dark Lady."

ANOTHER novelty will be The Kiss, by George Paston, in which Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Miss Florence Harwood, Mr. Eric Lewis, and Mr. Guy Standing will appear. Mr. J. M. Barrie's Slice of Life, with Mr. Gerald du Maurier and Miss Lena Ashwell in the cast, and George Paston's Stuffing, with Miss Agnes Thomas, Miss Sydney Fairbrother, Miss Clare Greet, and Mr. Arthur Chesney, complete the programme.

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL, who sailed recently for New York, will appear there early in December in an English version of Henry Bataille's drama La Vierge Folle, sustaining the character of Mme. Armaury, originated in Paris by Mme. Berthe Bady.

ALTHOUGH only some nine months has elapsed since the last visit of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company to the Grand Opera House, Middlesbrough, the advance booking for the second visit of The Arcadians this week has been phenomenal. At the closing of the box-office on the Saturday night preceding the visit the total advance booking reached nearly £400. Mr. Lewis Waller will visit the Opera House for a week on the 28th of this month.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD still continues to be a very busy man. In addition to two electric theatres now open, he has three more building, he is also running four pantomimes at Christmas, and this autumn he has been touring The Earl and the Girl and When Knights Were Bold. It is not Mr. Howard's intention to tour any theatrical companies in the spring, as he will for a time devote his entire energies to electric theatres and a well-earned holiday.

MR. STANISLAUS STANGE, the English librettist of The Chocolate Soldier, prior to his departure for America on Wednesday, was presented by the entire company and staff, both before and behind the curtain, at the Lyric Theatre with a handsome gold cigarette box suitably inscribed. Mr. Stange, who will take a six months' holiday after his recent severe illness, attains in The Chocolate Soldier his thirty-seventh lyrical production.

MISS MAVIS YORKE, who, as the child elf in The Two Hunchbacks, has made such a big hit at the Savoy Theatre, under Miss Brema's management, is one of the youngest actresses on the stage. She appeared once for charity at the Playhouse last year, when too young to be licensed professionally, and the next day there was a long article about her wonderful acting and dancing headed the "Dream Fairy," in which the critic said of her that there was never such a tiny magician seen as this Dream Fairy. "Miss Mavis Yorke—so frail a baby—like a child's soul that has not found its body yet—dancing for the joy of itself and of all things sweet and pure." In The Two Hunchbacks little Mavis has only an acting part, but she was an instant success from the moment she appeared, and she is to have an opportunity of showing her wonderful powers as a dancer later on. She has been brought out by Miss Italia Conti.

MISS ITALIA CONTI, who has produced the fairy scenes and trained all the children in M. Emile Cammaert's delightful fairy play, The Two Hunchbacks, now being given at the Savoy Theatre under Miss Brema's management on alternate days with Orpheus, has been warmly congratulated by Miss Brema and the authors on the success she has achieved. Miss Conti received the following letter from the author after he had been to one of the rehearsals: "Dear Miss Conti,—I feel I did not tell you enough how delighted I was with to-day's rehearsal. You have really worked in the spirit of the thing as if you had lived with it as long as myself. Every business and position is wonderfully thought out, and so living already that it is hard to believe that you could get such a result in so short a time. My wife and myself were simply delighted with the whole thing, and we feel we ought to tell you so again and again.—With best regards from us all, yours very sincerely, EMILE CAMMAERTS."

MISS CONTI feels that to be praised so highly by a management that is responsible for the extraordinarily clever production of Orpheus is praise worth having. She hopes to do a great deal of production work in the near future, as she thinks there is an opening for women in this branch of the profession.

THE thirteenth annual general meeting of the Robert Arthur Theatres Company was held on Monday at the registered offices, 244, Regent-street, S.W., Mr. Robert Arthur (chairman and managing-director) presiding. The following report of the proceedings has been supplied by the company. The statement of accounts submitted showed the net income for the year, including the amount brought forward, to be £18,585 10s. 1d. The sinking fund now stands at £6,500; written off for depreciation of stocks, £4,834 3s. 11d. The directors proposed to declare a dividend of 6 per cent. on the preference shares. The report and accounts were approved and adopted.

MR. A. M. OGSTON was unanimously re-elected a director, and the meeting confirmed the election of Mr. Morris Richardson as an additional director. The auditors (Messrs. Turquand Youngs and Co.) were re-elected. The Chairman (Mr. Arthur) made a feeling reference to the loss the company had sustained in the death of Mr. Sidney Marler, who, although he only acted as a director for a short period, took a very great interest in the company and moved that the loss be recorded in the minutes of the meeting, which was unanimously agreed to. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close.

MR. LYN HARDING, who recently resumed his original rôle of Dr. Grimesby Rylott in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's play The Speckled Band, will appear in the part throughout next week at the Borough Theatre, Stratford. At Birmingham last week Mr. Harding achieved a remarkable success, highly eulogistic articles being devoted to him in the local Press.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE, who is having a most successful autumn tour, has been approached by two well-known impresarios with proposals for a tour of the Colonies with his Shakespearean Répertoire Company, but as his bookings extend well into 1912 he is unable to consider the matter at present. Mr. Wilkie contemplates, however, undertaking at some future date a world-wide tour with his répertoire of twenty-five plays.

MR. F. C. WHITNEY has decided, owing to the phenomenal success of The Chocolate Soldier at the Lyric, not only to give a matinée on each day of the week after Christmas, and on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays afterwards, but to recruit two first-class companies to take the opera on tour, one to the North and the other to the South. This will mean travelling in each case a company of over 120 artists, exclusive of a full orchestra.

MR. ISAAC COHEN, the late managing-director of the Pavilion, Mile End-road, who died on Oct. 1 last, left estate of the gross value of £6,272, of which the net personalty has been sworn at £6,065.

BY the permission of the Reverend Master (the Rev. Gerald Davis) a few members of the Savage Club gave a concert entertainment at Charterhouse on Tuesday evening. The historical "old Gueston Hall," in which the concert took place, was crowded to its utmost capacity by the "Brethren" of Charterhouse, their friends, and the staff; and it would have been difficult to bring together a more enthusiastic or appreciative audience. The vocalists were Messrs. Franklyn Clive, Watkin Mills, Richard Green, Reginald Groome, Laurence Lorge, and Herbert Thorndike; Messrs. Bernard Gribble and John Hassall gave specimens of their art with charcoal and crayon; Messrs. Gurrin, Ian Walsh, and Gordon Parker contributed humorous stories and recitations; Mr. Robert Ganthony sustained his reputation as an entertainer; and Messrs. Gerald Fitzgibbon's songs and Mr. Charles Collette's inimitable patter kept the audience in roars of laughter. Mr. Reginald Groome acted as musical director, and Mr. W. Murdock presided at the piano as soloist and accompanist. The stage is represented at Charterhouse by "Brothers" J. A. Cave and E. J. Odell, both old "Savages."

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON scored his customary huge success with Brewster's Millions at the New Theatre Royal, Blackburn, last Monday, his fine performance as Monty Brewster and the wonderful yacht scene causing a remarkable demonstration of enthusiasm. The booking-office and doors throughout the week have been besieged by Blackburn theatregoers.

"CHASING CYNTHIA" proved such a "big draw" last week at Weymouth that Mr. W. R. Wallis, the manager of the Pavilion Theatre, and the local corporation have invited Mr. Stanmore to bring the company back on Dec. 5, as they wish for a special attraction to entertain the American Fleet, and have offered a very substantial guarantee as an inducement. Chasing Cynthia will make its first appearance in Brighton next week.

MANY members of the profession will remember subscribing a few years ago to the Fred Locke Fund, on behalf of the family of that clever librettist. It may interest these subscribers to know that the fund has been so administered as to tide the younger members of the family safely over a trying period, and most of them are now earning salaries in the branches of the profession open to juveniles. The two trustees of the fund, Messrs. Rich Waldon and J. G. Crichton, of Glasgow, have for some time been devoting the money to paying the rent of Mrs. Locke's house in Saltcoats, thus relieving her of what is always a serious financial problem. There still remains enough to do this for two years to come, and, in the circumstances, the trustees think this an appropriate time to once again thank those who so kindly responded when the appeal was made in 1906-7.

MR. WILLIAM MORTON, "The Father of the Hull Theatres," recently lectured at Hull to the members of the Fish-street Memorial Church Literary Society on the subject of "Extracts from My Diary." Mr. Morton told of his acquaintance of great people of the theatrical world, past and present, and threw a new light on many famous characters. Of Dickens he told how once he heard him read some of his own works, and the surprise and disappointment he had on that occasion. He had gone expecting to find a modest and retiring man, but the great novelist was dressed in a most dandified fashion, and he (Mr. Morton) thought this was hardly in accord with a man of so great a mind.

MR. MORTON'S life has been one of adventure. He served his apprenticeship as a printer, and passed from that trade to the profession of journalism, which he found too strenuous. Then he became an agent for lecturers and entertainers, and in this connection he has many anecdotes for the interest of those who are lucky enough to hear him lecture. Eventually he started in the theatrical line, and has stuck to that ever since.

IN his lecture he told of his connection with the famous Maskelyne and Cook, and their exposure of spirit rapping and other "fake" spiritualistic devices designed to gull a somewhat childlike and bland public. The lecture was illustrated with water-colour drawings. At the close of the lecture Mr. Morton was accorded a very hearty vote of thanks.

MISS MARJORIE NAPIER, who figured as one of the pretty girls at the stores in Our Miss Gibbs, was married on the 9th inst. to Mr. Rupert Higgins, the younger son of Mr. Henry Higgins, one of the directors of the Covent Garden Opera Syndicate. Mr. Rupert Higgins is a grandson of the eleventh Earl of Winchilsea.

THE success of Nat Gould's great sporting drama, The Chance of a Lifetime, in Australia, continues unabated. After concluding a phenomenally successful season in Sydney, the company opened to record business in Newcastle, N.S.W. From there they travelled to Brisbane, opening on Oct. 29. Mr. Frank Gerald, Nat Gould's representative and producer of the play, anticipates an equally satisfactory result in the Queensland capital, and considers that the success of the play in London is certain.

MISS AUGUSTA HAVILAND, after a successful tour in Australia and New Zealand with The Brass Bottle company, will arrive home by the s.s. Malwa in December, when she will resume her old part of Aunt Caroline in Pinkie and the Fairies in Messrs. Montesole's and McLeod's company. Miss Haviland won high praise from the press of the Antipodes for her presentment of the rôle of the eminently practical Mrs. Futvoye, being described as an example of finished methods in comedy.

MR. GEORGE MARLOW'S new Sydney Theatre, the Adelphi, is making good progress, and is expected to be ready for opening in March, when The Bad Girl of the Family will be presented. It is calculated that the Adelphi will hold 400 more people than any other theatre in the Commonwealth. Mr. Arthur Shirley's successful drama Nick Carter will be performed for the first time in Australia by one of Mr. Marlow's touring companies at Adelaide on Nov. 26.

LOCAL playgoers with a taste for real drama and romance should not miss seeing The Prince and the Beggar Maid, which will occupy the boards at the Crystal Palace Theatre next week. It is being played by Messrs. A. Paumier and Walter Howard's company, and the acting is of a high standard. Mr. Walter Howard has given us of his best in this piece, which has made as great a hit in the provinces as it did at the Lyceum Theatre.

THE Censor has withdrawn his prohibition of Strauss's opera Salome, and it will shortly be heard at Covent Garden.

IMPORTANT new powers, relative to the management of employment agencies, have been conferred upon the London County Council, under the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1910. Hitherto the Council's powers have been limited to the registration of agencies for the employment of governesses, female domestic servants, or other female persons in any similar capacity, and to concert, theatrical, or music hall employment agencies, where preliminary or registration fees were accepted. The Act of 1910, however, requires that, with few exceptions, all employment agencies, including those for males as well as for females, in the County of London, shall be licensed annually by the Council.

THE first licensing meeting under the new powers will be held at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, S.W., on Dec. 2, 1910, and on the following day, if necessary, at 10 a.m., when the Public Control Committee of the Council will sit to consider applications for licences. The last day for making applications for consideration at this meeting is Nov. 22. Objections to the grant of licences may be made by notice in writing to the Clerk of the Council at least ten days before the date of the licensing meeting. Applicants for licences, and persons objecting to the grant of licences, may be heard in person, or by counsel, or by solicitor, and may call witnesses before the Committee. The meeting will be open to the public, but the Committee may conduct their deliberations and consider evidence in private. It is hoped that the exercise of the Council's new powers in this respect will tend effectually to prevent fraud and other irregularities in connection with employment agencies.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN gave a special performance of David Garrick at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, the production being received with tremendous enthusiasm, Mr. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson being called over twenty times in front of the curtain during the evening. The play was preceded by a selection of scenes from Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, in which Miss Wilson appeared as Romeo, the part of Juliet being played by Miss Kathleen Rind.

THE O.P. Club opened their winter session of Sunday evening gatherings at the Criterion on Sunday, when, under the chairmanship of Mr. T. M'Donald Rendle, a paper was read by Mr. James Mortimer entitled, "Some Casual Remarks Concerning the Press and the Stage."

DISCUSSING the stage as a bit of a playwright himself, and as one who once acted on a real stage as Hamlet—and he confessed that he was absolutely the worst—it was in a club, and he bid seven dollars for Hamlet and got it. They played behind a net, and it was fortunate, because he had flowers thrown at him in plenty—cauliflowers—and the next morning a young man was found dead in the Hudson river with a copy of the programme in his pocket.

THAT was his only effort as an actor. In his opinion musical comedy was an inane and vacuous form of entertainment, which, perhaps, accounted for its popularity. So long as they had plays which were not so bad as others they need not despair. He believed the condition of the British stage was better in the present day than formerly.

MR. LAURENCE HOUSMAN, who recently gave a public reading of his censored play Pains and Penalties, has addressed the following letter to the Lord Chamberlain:—"My Lord,—I beg to call your attention to the fact that my historical play Pains and Penalties, to which you recently refused a licence, presumably on the grounds that it was offensive to good manners, decorum, or the public peace, has now been publicly read in London, and has received considerable notice from the public Press. Neither at the public reading nor in any Press criticism that has come under my notice has any suggestion been made that the play offends in those particulars to which your Lordship's powers of censorship are statutorily directed. May I ask, therefore, if your Lordship will now be good enough to reconsider an adverse decision, to which the public reception of my play gives no justification; or, as an alternative, to inform me in what respect my play offends against the law which it is your duty to administer?"

IT appears that the licence was refused because the play "dealt with a sad historical episode of comparatively recent date in the life of an unhappy lady." "The 'unhappy lady,'" comments Mr. Housman, "has been dead for ninety years, and for all that period her memory has rested under a cloud. The whole bent of my play goes to correct the unfavourable verdict passed upon her by history. I am now officially informed that this rehabilitation of her character is not to be allowed."

A BENEFIT concert in aid of the funds of the British Musicians' Pension Society will be given at the Queen's Hall on Thursday afternoon, March 30, 1911, by the London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Richter. Full particulars as to membership, &c., can be had from the Hon. Secretary, at the registered offices of the society, No. 21, Albert-embankment, S.E. Office hours, Mondays and Fridays, three to five p.m. The society is open to all professional musicians in the United Kingdom.

MISS NELLIE DADE is putting on Mr. Fitzroy Gardner's little play, Good Old Aggie, on Monday at the Alexandra, Stoke Newington. Miss Katie Yates will appear as Violet, and Miss Dade herself will play Aggie.

MR. HENRY DE SOLLA has been engaged by Mr. C. St. John Denton as producer and general-manager of the Dalston Theatre pantomime.

MR. ARTHUR GROVER, the well-known young English baritone, is making a great success in the title part of The Chocolate Soldier on a tour of the chief American cities, including New York, Chicago, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Los Angeles, finishing at San Francisco in June next.

REGINALD PAYNE, one of our youngest and most popular leading men, is fulfilling his second engagement with Mr. Frank Hardie, in whose excellent sketches he is appearing at the Palace, Dover. Mr. Payne has booked Mme. Adah Payne, the Australian prima donna, late of Moody-Manners' principal opera company, at the same hall for this week. She constitutes the bottom of the bill, and made an instantaneous success on Monday with her cultured vocalism.

MISS ADELE ROZE, who made such a success last year at Torquay as principal boy in Mr. J. A. Thomson's pantomime, has been re-engaged by him as principal boy in Puss in Boots at Torquay this Christmas.

"FALSE DAWN," which will be produced by the Play Actors at the Court to-morrow (Sunday) evening, is a comedy with serious interest, in three acts. The authors are Mr. Morley Roberts and Mr. Henry Seton, and the production is in charge of Mr. Hubert Druce. The cast will consist of Messrs. Norman Trevor, Nye Chart, and Charles King, and Misses Marie Linden, Esmé Beringer, Gillian Scaife, and Florence Harcourt.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES'S special matinée of The Dollar Princess has resulted in Mr. Carl Hentschel, the President of the League of Mercy for the Strand District, being able to hand over £181 2s. 6d. to the funds of the League.

THAT well-known actor Mr. Alfred Goddard has been engaged by Mr. Walter Howard to play the Duke of Savarnac in The Boy King on South tour.

COUNT LEO TOLSTOY, who is seriously ill, is the author of the celebrated novel "Resurrection," a version of which, by Henri Bataille and Michael Morton, was produced at His Majesty's Theatre in the February of 1903, with Sir (then Mr.) Herbert Tree in the part of Prince Dimitry Nehludof and Miss Lena Ashwell as Katusha. In his book "What is Art?" Tolstoy attacked very severely what appeared to him to be the deficiencies of Wagnerian production. An adaptation by Louise and Aylmer Maude of Tolstoy's novel "The Power of Darkness" was produced by the Stage Society at the Royalty Theatre on Dec. 18, 1904.

THE Morecambe Royalty Theatre and Opera House has been sold by the mortgagees, the Manchester and Liverpool District Banking Company, to Messrs. E. and F. Burgess, of Morecambe, and they will enter into possession on March 1. For the past nine years the theatre has been leased to Mr. Julian Malvern, for thirty years a highly-respected and popular actor-manager. During his lesseeship of the Morecambe theare, Mr. Malvern has introduced to that popular seaside resort some of the leading London and provincial actors, and engaged the best companies. We regret that Mr. Malvern, who was formerly at Leith, has recently been suffering from ill-health.

THE Cavaliere Castellano company is booked next week at Kelly's Theatre, Liverpool, the patrons of which will thus be enabled to enjoy grand opera at cheap prices. On Monday Mr. W. W. Kelly will present a promising new operatic artist. Her name is Miss Miriam Licette, and she is the daughter of a well-known Liverpool captain. Miss Licette, who is stated to possess a soprano voice of excellent quality and wide range, will appear with the Castellano Opera Company as Nedda in I Pagliacci and later in the week as Marguerite in Faust.

THE Birkenhead Amateur Dramatic Society will occupy the stage all next week at the Birkenhead Theatre Royal, presenting Trilby, in which Mr. Harold Smith, the adopted candidate for the Warrington division, will appear as Svengali.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES'S company appears at the Coronet on Monday with The Merry Widow, with Miss Louie Pounds as the fascinating Sonia and Mr. Basil S. Foster (of "Fostershire") as the Prince.

MISS EMILIE BURKE, for many years leading lady with the late Henry Talbot's repertory company, organised a production of Romeo and Juliet in Glasgow last week, in aid of the Samaritan Hospital for Women. The performances were given on three nights, under distinguished patronage, and realised a handsome sum for this deserving charity.

MR. W. V. GARROD, within two weeks of his acquiring from Mr. G. M. Polini the rights of Wilson Barrett's drama, The Sledge-Hammer, has booked the play at twenty-one theatres, including the entire Broadhead Circuit and Alexandra Theatre, Hull, for August Bank Holiday. Bookings already extend to the end of April, 1912. For his own play, A Wife for a Day, Mr. Garrod has secured thirty-six theatres, although the tour does not start until February, and not a date is vacant for The Prodigal Parson until July.

MRS. J. A. HUTCHISON (née V. Ennis Lawson) has been induced by Mr. Melville to fulfil a special engagement with him to play "lead" in his suburban tour of The Sins of London. Miss Lawson is the niece of Mr. John Lawson, and left the profession some two years ago when she married Mr. Anderson Hutchison, a wealthy Lancashire manufacturer.

MISS FLORENCE PREDDY, who has lately been on tour with Old Heidelberg, and who so successfully undertook the part of Kathie at a few hours' notice at Yarmouth, has been specially engaged by Mr. Stanley Cooke for his forthcoming tour of A Man from Mexico.

MR. FRANK POWELL, who has made such a success as Von Haugh in Old Heidelberg, has been specially engaged by Mr. Stanley Cooke to play Timothy Cook in his forthcoming tour of A Man from Mexico.

MR. LAURENCE IRVING will deliver a lecture, the subject of which has not yet been chosen, to the O.P. Club in the Prince's Room at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday, Dec. 4. The chair will be occupied by Miss Mabel Hackney.

AT the Prince of Wales' Theatre on Thursday, in front of Inconstant George, a little "dance play," entitled The Portrait, written and composed by Miss Dora Bright, will be presented. The cast will include Mr. Gordon Cleather, Mr. Henri Laurent, and Miss Mona Harrison. The scene of the piece is an artist's studio.

MISS FLORENCE IMESON is achieving a veritable triumph as the Merry Widow in South Africa, and on one occasion when she responded to an enthusiastic call at the close of the performance at Johannesburg the members of the company joined with the audience in cheering the clever little lady—a pleasant and unique experience which must have been very gratifying to the artist. To-day (Saturday) Miss Imeson sails from Cape Town for Australia to "star" in Messrs. Rupert Clarke and Clyde Meynell's musical comedy company.

MR. J. W. BOUGHTON, managing-director of the Portsmouth Theatres, has forwarded to the chairman of the Naval Disasters Fund a cheque for £127 11s. 11d. on behalf of the Fund. This handsome donation represents the proceeds from the matinée recently given with such signal success at the King's Theatre, Southsea.

THE autumn tour of Old Heidelberg having proved so successful Mr. Ernest Benham has decided to send the piece out again next spring. During this tour Mr. Benham will undertake the part of Lutz, a character which he sustained with great success when Mr. Mouillot first sent the play out. The present tour terminates on Dec. 10 at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway.

"LUCKY DURHAM," the last play written by the late Wilson Barrett, will be played at the Elephant and Castle Theatre every night next week and at a matinée on Thursday. On Monday this play reaches its 1,510th performance by the same company, which includes Mr. Edmund Kennedy in his well-known portrayal of John Durham and Mr. Arthur Leigh as the irrepressible Reggie. Miss Gertrude Robins, who has attained distinction as a dramatist, has been engaged to play Helen Vallerton.

DR. C. W. PEARCE gave an address on the lives and music of Henry Smart and Edward J. Hopkins to the members of the Incorporated Society of Musicians at Hanover-square on Saturday. He stated that musical progress was not wholly wrapped up in the work of the greatest masters of the art, but a great deal depended on some of the lesser composers, and he proceeded to give descriptions of the work of Smart and Hopkins. In this he was assisted by Miss Kate Cherry, Miss Gertrude Geere, Mme. Bessie Grant, Mr. Charles Ellison, Mr. George Stubbs, and Mr. Percy D. Hodsoll, who gave musical illustrations.

DR. PEARCE said Smart was not only a wonderful extemporaneous player of the organ, but his engineering talents enabled him to construct organs which were improvements on others of the day. Excellent examples were the organs in Leeds Town Hall and St. Andrew's Hall, Glasgow. The swell-box of the Leeds Town Hall organ was the largest made at the time it was built, and before the organ was put in place Smart suggested that a dinner should be held in the swell-box. This was done, ten people, including Smart, forming the dinner party. Towards the dinner one friend sent salmon, another sent entrées, another a dozen bottles of champagne, and another six bottles of 1834 port.

HOPKINS was an even greater extemporaneous organist than Smart, and one Sunday morning at the Temple Church, when the service was over, he improvised on the organ to play the people out. He became so absorbed in his playing that he continued until an elderly verger appeared in the organ loft and said, "Do please stop, sir. Nobody has left yet. They won't go as long as you keep playing, and we must get the church cleared for the evening service." Hopkins stopped, and the congregation waited for more until they realised by the silence that the organist had vacated his seat. Hopkins was, in fact, the first person to leave the church, which he did by a side exit.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

No Signs of Decay.

SIR HERBERT TREE has told the Express that he does not see any sign of decay in the British theatre. "Personally," says Sir Herbert, "I believe in the public. I have had failures, but I have never had failures I could not understand. Plays fail because of their shortcomings, never because of their virtues. I am told by my less intelligent critics that my theatre is crowded because of the pageants. That is absurd. If the public wants pageant only, it can get it done splendidly in the musical comedy theatres, in pantomimes, and in the music halls. My friends come to His Majesty's primarily for the drama and the acting; but I admit that they like to see their drama in a beautiful and appropriate setting. And, pray, why not?

Mr. Maugham in America.

MR. W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM intends to see Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, and Washington, as well as New York, during his six weeks' stay in America. According to a New York interviewer he means to have a "perfectly corking time," whatever that may be. This authority says of Mr. Maugham that "he gives you the impression of being a man who enjoys everything and can extract the last possible bit of amusement out of an incident, an experience, or a place. In conversation he has the air of seeing the humorous side, even of the things on which he feels most strongly. The superficial impression one gets is that he does not take anything seriously, but that impression almost immediately wears off, and one recognises a man of positive convictions and strong sincerity."

Not Commercialised.

MR. MAUGHAM was asked about the oft-repeated assertion that the stage is being "commercialised." "One hears that everywhere," said Mr. Maugham; "but I don't know what on earth it means. It seems to me to have extremely little sense in it. Once in a hundred times, when a play is a failure, it fails because it is over the heads of the audience. The ninety-nine other times it fails because it is beneath the audience's contempt. But the talk you mention is not confined to America. They raise the same cry in London, in Paris, in Berlin—everywhere. If your American playwrights are restive under this form of abuse they can console themselves by remembering that dramatists are just as much abused everywhere else. The unsuccessful dramatist always abuses successful dramatists. I did," added Mr. Maugham, with his fetching stammer, "until I was successful."

The Coming Drama.

THE "coming drama" was the next subject touched upon, and Mr. Maugham was asked for a prediction. "The coming drama," he replied, "will be the same type of play that has been successful for the last 2,000 years, and will be for the next 2,000—the play that entertains and interests. The drama that is not going to come in the future, just as it hasn't come in the past, is the drama that bores while it pretends to elevate." "You don't believe, then, in the drama of uplift?" "Personally, I don't want to be uplifted, but I dare say there are people who do. The only thing I resent is that they should ask me to uplift them."

The Play with a Purpose.

"Do you think, then, that the play with a purpose is passing away?" "I don't know. The fact is that the first thing needful for a drama is the dramatic instinct. If a man has got that there is no knowing what he can get the public to accept from him. I think the public will take any amount and any kind of preaching if the man who preaches is really a born dramatist and has the dramatic instinct. But the trouble with most of these people who try to give us what they are pleased to call ideas on the stage and want to uplift and elevate and educate us is that they haven't the dramatic instinct and they don't succeed in making what they have to say interesting. Things are often quite interesting in a book, and when you see them acted you are bored to extinction."

The German Drama.

SPEAKING of the Continent, and the popularity of the "problem play," Mr. Maugham said that in Germany they went in for the drama of psychological analysis and for making it as real and true to life as they could. They went further and further until the plays were so lifelike that people couldn't stand seeing them, and these dramas just killed themselves. "When I was in Vienna some time ago I wanted very much to see some German plays. But I couldn't. In all the theatres they were doing translations from the French and English. Last summer I went to Munich and again made a heroic effort to see some German plays; but the only plays they were doing were two by one William Shakespeare and two by another English dramatist—one," he finished, after a pause, "whom modesty forbids me to mention."

The Right Knack.

MR. MAUGHAM expressed the opinion that it was not absolutely necessary to have intellectual ability in order to write a successful play. "You can write a play if you have the knack of getting what you have to say over the footlights. And Heaven only knows what that knack is and how it comes. Fortunately, only a very few have it, and those who have are able to keep the wolf from the door."

A Dreary Business.

THE author of Lady Frederick was under the impression that this play had been refused by seventeen people before it was put on as a stop-gap. All of his earlier plays had been refused by every manager in London, including the play that Billie Burke is appearing in now. Success came after a long and weary struggle. If he had known, he would have "stuck to doctoring." "I don't know what it is like here," said Mr Maugham in conclusion, "but in England a man who goes in for play-writing, unless he has a private income, is an awful fool. It is a hard and dreary business."

Shakespeare's Handwriting.

MR. SIDNEY LEE, in his lecture on "Recent Disclosures about Shakespeare," at a recent house dinner of the Authors' Club, at Whitehall Court, spoke of Dr. Wallace's discovery with reference to a suit brought against Christopher Mountjoy by Mountjoy's son-in-law in respect to a marriage portion. Shakespeare had made the acquaintance of the family, apparently as a lodger, and gave evidence on behalf of the claim of the son-in-law. As to the signature to the deposition, Mr. Lee said:—"Shakespeare's hand resembles the old German handwriting—our handwriting to-day is based on Italian models, which superseded the old English style in the seventeenth century. Shakespeare was a conservative in this matter, like a good many literary men in his day, but not all. Men of letters differed in their styles of writing then even more than they do now. Ben Jonson wrote a most beautiful hand on a pattern of his own invention. But in the playhouse, as surviving transcripts of plays amply prove, the ugly sprawling old English hand that Shakespeare affected was the rule. That old style lent itself to pace, and Shakespeare, who, according to the evidence of his fellow-actors, Heming and Condell, wrote with great rapidity, cared only for pace, and nothing at all for neat or pretty effects."

The torture of a criminal on the rack of cross-examination by an examining magistrate has been often used in fiction and the drama. It forms one of the strongest scenes in Balzac's "Grand Homme de Province à Paris"; it is the essence of M. Eugene Brieux's Robe Rouge, done in England as The Arm of the Law; and it always lends itself effectively to dramatic treatment. Never in our memory, however, has such a terribly intense use of the material been made as in The Unwritten Law, which was played for the first time in London at the Garrick Theatre on Monday last. Nothing could have prevented the triumph of this scene; it was certain to succeed, and the drop-curtain, indeed, fell on an audience wrought up to the highest pitch of interest and excitement.

The Unwritten Law, however, is much more than a strong, theatrical drama. It has its philosophic side, and the author handles the social system in a spirit of bitter indignation. The murderer is influenced by such admirable instincts that we hardly know whether to sympathise with him or to desire his detection. Rodion Raskolnikoff, a student who lives in a big block of flats in St. Petersburg, argues verbally and in print against the sanctity of human life; for many lives must be sacrificed, he maintains, in the cause of Progress. From these theories to the murder of the rascally manager of the flats, who tries to extort from a poor girl named Sonia Martinova, one of the lodgers, compliance with his vile desires under penalty of being turned into the street, is a short step. Rodion kills the brute with an axe which has been left in his room by a servant, and suspicion at first falls upon a couple of ignorant workmen, who were at the time of the murder engaged in repairing the building. But an examining magistrate named Bezak, whose speciality is extorting confessions from murderers, suspects Rodion of the crime. The student, in order to save the innocent prisoners, calls on Bezak while the latter is installed in the room next to the one in which the crime was committed. The Examining Magistrate, by "reconstituting" the incidents of the murder and forcing Rodion to repeat his actions up to a certain point, reduces him to the pitch of abject helplessness and confession. At this moment one of the workmen comes in, and in order to save his comrade takes upon himself the guilt of the crime, thus baffling Bezak completely, and permitting Rodion to escape, pro tem., from his torturer's grip. In the last scene, however, by the influence of Sonia and her sister, Raskolnikoff's heart is softened and his religious instincts awakened, and he voluntarily accepts the punishment of his crime—three years in Siberia.

The character of Rodion Raskolnikoff suits Mr. Laurence Irving's personality exactly, and there is probably no actor on the English stage who could have given to the representation of it the nervous morbidity with which Mr. Irving's reading is so effectively imbued. Early in the first act we realise that we have before us a true child of modern Russia—neurotic, highly educated, and bitterly rebellious against existing social conditions. The great merits of Mr. Laurence Irving's creation are its sustained sensitiveness and realistic excitability. We feel from the first that Rodion is too reflective, too susceptible to impressions, and too mercilessly logical to survive in the coarse competition which we call life. As the play progresses, so the character, in Mr. Irving's hands, develops. We see Rodion's first writhing under the pain of his eager and indignant humanity, and later on suffering the slow agony of nervous anxiety and the tortures of anticipation and dread. The exposition is an awful and harrowing one. There are scenes in which the murderer mutters to himself, grimaces, twists and faints in terror. There are other scenes in which his quick wit and ready assurance struggle with the weakness of his nerves till he sinks under the terrible burden he has to bear. So real and so natural is the rendering, so finished and complete is it in every detail, that there are times when the contemplation of so much distress is almost overpowering in its intensity. It must not be imagined, however, that Mr. Irving's performance or the play itself is one long tale of grief and pain. The criminal, though unequal to the struggle with the trained intellect of Bezak, makes a spirited struggle, and is not conquered without the Examining Magistrate exerting the whole of his ingenuity. This part of Bezak, a very important one, is sustained in a wonderfully original and finished style by Mr. Dalziel Heron. Outwardly, the Examining Magistrate is a sleek, smiling, "comfortable," elderly gentleman, with a habit of frequently wiping the glasses of his spectacles and replacing them; mentally, he is a fanatic in the work of detecting homicide, a specialist in extorting confession by cross-examination. The combination is one which will not easily be forgotten, and Mr. Dalziel Heron made a vivid impression on the memories of those who saw his remarkable performance at the Garrick on Monday. Miss Mabel Hackney as Sonia Martinova has to sustain a part which is pitched throughout in the key of suffering and sadness, and she plays the simple but strong character with rare skill and tact, never exaggerating, but being always sufficiently spirited when the situation demands increased energy. Her Sonia is a very clever and consistent creation. By an excellent make-up and a most appropriate manner, Mr. Wentworth Fane suggests, subtly but sufficiently, the nature of the smug hypocrite Keller; and Mr. Frank Esmond is commendably impulsive and spontaneous as the honest and kind-hearted Kashkin. Mr. Rupert Harvey is entirely satisfactory and efficient as the young doctor, Zosimoff; and Miss Beatrice Smith is duly "rough and ready" as the servant girl, Nastasia. An admirably picturesque and quietly powerful performance of the part of Gromoff is given by Mr. James Skea; and Miss Leonora Oakford is frank, dashing, and decided as Raskolnikoff's sister, Doonia, Miss Alice Inman being excellent as the affectionate mother, Pulcheria. Miss Mabel Nelson as Sonia's little sister, Katya, is cleverly quaint and comical; Mr. W. Barnett does good work as Ivan; Mr. Charles Seymour is smart and effective as Koltzoff; and Mr. Montague Lane and Mr. A. Field Fisher supply characteristic embodiments of the two falsely-accused workmen, Dmitri and Mikolka. The merry mob of students and girls is composed of clever people, all of whom attend carefully to requirements; and Mr. I. Jones is satisfactory as Lobko, Mr. J. Arnold being excellent as a policeman. Miss Dorothy Hill must be warmly praised for her admirable reading of the rôle of Mashenka, and Mr. Henry Elmore is commendable as the white-haired clerk, Solski. The scenery, by Schmidt, is effective and artistic, and the music, arranged by Mr. Yearsley, from the works of Tschaikowsky, Glinka, and Scroff, is decidedly helpful to the illusion. The Unwritten Law had an enthusiastic reception, the appeal of the strong situations and Mr. Laurence Irving's superb impersonation proving, in combination, irresistible. In a speech at the conclusion of the performance, he explained that he had tried in vain to induce other managers to produce the play, but it had been unanimously rejected, so that he had been obliged to play Rodion himself. Mr. Irving also referred in terms of warm praise to the performances of the company, especially complimenting Mr. Dalziel Heron.

"THE MENDERS OF NETS."

Play, in One Act, by Philip Gibbs, Produced at the Queen's Theatre on Saturday, Nov. 12.

Bess	MISS BERYL FABER
Mrs. Tregarth	MISS FRANCES WETHERALL
John	MR. A. HOLMES-GORE
Pete	MR. FREDERIC WORLOCK

The attractiveness of Mrs. Skeffington is materially enhanced by contrast with the first piece, The Menders of Nets, which was placed in the bill on Saturday. The little play was originally produced under the title of The Escape of John Merchant at the Duke of York's on July 10, 1906, when its authorship was attributed to Messrs. Philip Gibbs and Cosmo Hamilton, and afterwards revived as A Mender of Nets at the Court on Dec. 31, 1907, with Mr. Cosmo Hamilton figuring alone as author. In the present production Mr. Hamilton has retired, leaving Mr. Gibbs in sole possession of the playwright honours. The play is a gloomy little piece, but with considerable dramatic grip and quite painful intensity. Nothing is gained by the change of title, as no significance exists beyond the fact that the action is laid in a house where the net-mending industry is carried on. Its mistress, Bess, has been married for some two years to the intemperate Pete, who had been the victim of a furious attack by his rival, John Merchant, now languishing in gaol for the offence. John had exacted from Bess a promise to wait for him, but she had yielded to the wooing of Pete, and has ever since been tormented by the prospect of the return of John Merchant. When the boom of a gun announces the escape of a prisoner, Bess instinctively divines that it is John who has got free. Sure enough John makes his appearance while Pete has gone to fetch the doctor for his little son, who lies ill in the adjoining room, and Bess responds to his embraces, afraid to reveal the fact that she is married. After an affecting scene, in which John Merchant draws a picture of their future happiness, Pete returns intoxicated; but Bess keeps up the illusion that she is still single, and bids him leave. Pete has a wholesome fear of John, and decides to obey, but as he will not take his hand, the convict declares that he means to inform on him. He forces Pete into the bedroom, but a startled cry leads John to enter, to find the child dead. John thus learns the bitter truth, but, pitying the grief of the mother, resigns himself to the warders, who have been fetched by Bess's mother, giving a parting warning to Pete to behave better in view of the prisoner's ultimate release.

A profound impression was created by the little piece, which was faultlessly acted. Miss Beryl Faber displayed her dramatic gifts agreeably as Bess, indicating with artistic skill the suppressed emotion of the affrighted young wife. Mr. A. Holmes-Gore acted with grim earnestness as John Merchant, the devotion of the escaped convict being very touching. Miss Frances Wetherall played with the care and finish of an experienced artist as Besss' mother, and Mr. Frederic Worlock was effective as the hulking Pete. This little piece had the distinction of four curtains.

Miss Brayton's Beginnings.

"I REALLY don't know what first made me want to go on the stage, beyond the fact that I was fond of learning poetry and reading Shakespeare," says Miss Lily Brayton in an article in the Sketch. "Still, I did want to go on the stage, although I had not seen many plays, for my home was in the little town of Hindley, in Lancashire, where my father had practised for some time as a doctor. For a holiday I was taken to Scarborough, where Mr F. R. Benson was playing an engagement, and I went to see him in Hamlet. Curiously enough, that night my husband that was to be, Mr. Asche, was playing the King.

"WHEN I went home I thought more than ever how lovely it would be to go on the stage, so I wrote a letter to Mr. Benson telling him so, and adding a line about my fondness for poetry and Shakespeare. I hardly expected that he would answer, but a day or two afterwards a letter did come from him, asking me to see him at the theatre. Of course, I went, and I recited to him Queen Katherine's big speech before the Court.

"WHEN I had finished Mr. Benson told me I should join the company, but, to my inexpressible regret, he made haste to add that there was no vacancy. Still, he told me that as soon as there was he would send for me. I went away very crestfallen, for when I got his letter I quite expected he would say he would engage me there and then. When I got home I did not say a word to my mother about having written. A few weeks later, however, when my sister and I were working with our governess my mother entered the schoolroom with an open telegram in her hand.

"'CAN you tell me what the meaning of this is?' she asked, as she put the paper into my hand—'Join the company to-morrow at Manchester. Benson.' I had to explain about the letter, my visit to the theatre, and Mr. Benson's promise. The next day I went to Manchester to see Mr. Benson. When I got to the stage-door of the Theatre Royal, Manchester, where Mr. Benson was playing, two actors were standing there. When we were engaged, Mr. Asche told me a remarkable thing—that he was one of them, and that, as soon as I had passed through the door, he turned to his friend and said, 'That is the girl I am going to marry.'"

BEFORE Mr. Lester Collingwood met his death he had engaged practically the whole of his artists for the Alexandra Theatre pantomime, and his arrangements will be faithfully carried out by the executors, Mr. Fred Barnardo (business-manager) and Mr. H. Barnes (chef d'orchestre). The cast includes Marie Reeves, Lily Eyton, Madge Beresford, Little Maudie Olmar, Harry Rogerson, and the Brothers Durrant.

ELLEN TERRY IN AMERICA.

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Miss Ellen Terry gave her first discourse on "Shakespeare's Heroines" at the Hudson Theatre, New York, on the 3rd inst. The house was filled to overflowing, despite a gale of wind and a drenching rain. "No one but Ellen Terry," said a leading critic, "could have drawn such an audience in such weather." The discourse was entitled "Shakespeare's Heroines—Triumphant." The audience rose to greet the distinguished actress when she entered, and gave her an ovation that lasted for several minutes. Miss Terry was introduced by Mr. John Erskine Ely. For her heroines she chose Beatrice, Rosalind, and Portia. She recited several of the great scenes with which her name is associated, notably part of the Church scene from Much Ado About Nothing, the trial scene from The Merchant of Venice, and the scene between the mother and wife of Coriolanus. Miss Terry said she had played Portia in half a dozen different ways. In Germany the part was frequently played in a spirit of low comedy, Portia wearing a lawyer's wig, horn spectacles, and even a moustache. She herself preferred to play Portia as a high-born Italian lady. She pictured Portia before the trial going to Bellario, and consulting with that learned doctor as to what should be done. Bellario, she said, after explaining the law, which seemed to leave no loophole, must have counselled her to appeal to Shylock's sense of mercy, and then to his cupidity.

"Those failing," said Miss Terry, "I imagine the learned lawyer gave it up, and it was then that the womanly intuition of Portia came to the rescue."

Miss Terry admitted that Portia's contention that no blood should be shed with the pound of flesh was purely a trick, but defended it by saying that one must meet such emergencies with heroic measures.

Miss Terry likened the "Quality of Mercy" speech to the Lord's Prayer. "It contains," she said, "the same teaching as the petition 'Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them that trespass against us.'"

After the discourse flowers were thrown upon the stage, and the audience expressed its delight in prolonged applause. Then the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant presented Miss Terry with a book of welcome containing the autographs of many distinguished and dear friends. In doing this, the reverend gentleman delivered this brief address, which had been written by Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin:—

"The names in this book are interlined throughout with radiant memories and happy anticipations, tho' they will be visible to no one but yourself, as they are in sympathetic ink of a peculiarly confidential tint.

"This little volume is a Book of Welcome from certain loyal admirers to that incarnation of poetic harmony we call Ellen Terry—the enchanting, the unapproachable, the imperishable Beloved of the English-speaking stage.

"Since that star danced under which you were born up to this present moment, dear Ellen Terry, each of us could have said, as Portia to Bassanio:

"'One-half of me is yours, the other half yours . . . and so all yours.'"

After the presentation Mr. Percy Mackaye read the following verses, which he had written for the occasion:—

ELLEN TERRY,
On Her Return to America.

How shall we welcome back her image bright,
Who from our hearts has never been away?
They never lived who never loved a play,
Nor ever loved who loved not in delight;
Therefore to her who, in Dull Care's despite,
Long since has taught the world's sad soul to pray
To saints of joy, we bring an homage gay
Of hearts made lighter by her own pure light.
Juliet of love, Miranda of the mind,
Katherine of quips, and beauty's Rosalind,
Truth's Portia, Beatrice, the madcap-merry,
All heroines wrought of the master's heart—
To these we bow, and these bow down to Art,
And Art to Time, and Time—to Ellen Terry.

Then the audience gave vent to its enthusiasm once more, and Miss Terry, made extremely happy by the warmth of her reception, glided across the stage, with her arms filled with flowers, and bowed her thanks repeatedly.

A MUSICAL "CAUSERIE."

At the Little Theatre on Thursday afternoon an audience which included Prince and Princess Bariatinsky, Lady Meyer, the Countess of Gosford, Lady Barnet, Mr. Cosmo Gordon Lennox, Mrs. George Cornwallis-West, and Mrs. Winston Churchill listened, with every appearance of interest, to a lecture delivered in French by the well-known composer and musical critic, M. Reynaldo Hahn, on "L'Education Musicale de la Femme." M. Hahn, whose elocution was excellent, attacked, very wittily, the system of teaching every young lady to play and sing, whether she had natural aptitude for music or not. He contended that music ought to be taken seriously; and, if a girl were taught to play and sing, she should, at all events, receive the best possible musical teaching, and not be encouraged to treat the art frivolously. The artists, M. Hahn added, always took their work seriously.

M. Hahn delivered his lecture in a darkened auditorium, and at intervals pictures were shown on a sheet to illustrate his discourse. He took his hearers through the whole history of woman's musical education. Women of Early Greece and Pompeii, female figures in old tapestries and on classic urns, reproductions of Fragonard, Metzu, and the old masters, all bearing on the subject; the well-known engraving of Mrs. Sheridan (Miss Lindley) teaching her children to play and sing, an Aubrey Beardsley illustration of modern women at a Wagner concert, and many other interesting illustrations were used by the lecturer, who commented cleverly on each. At the close of the "causerie" the "Chœur de Dames" (pupils of Miss Nelly Rowe), assisted by Mme. Beatrice La Palme and Miss Bingham Hall, sang "Chœur d'Esther" (music by Prince Edmond de Polignac) and "O Fons Bandusiæ" (fragment of an ode of Horace).

M. Reynaldo Hahn, who presided at the piano and conducted the choir, contributed a song by the late Mme. Holmes, the Irish poetess, and rendered it with intense sympathy.

THE pantomime at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, will be Dick Whittington, written by Mr. J. Hickory Wood. It is to be produced on the evening of Wednesday, Dec. 7. The cast will be as follows:—Dick Whittington, Miss Lily Morris; Alize Fitzwarren, Miss Maidie Scott; Sarah, the Cook, Mr. Fred Emney; Alderman Fitzwarren, Mr. Harry Webber; Jack Idle, Mr. George French; Emperor of Morocco, Mr. Frank A. Wood; Princess Zoe, Miss Ethel Bryant; Captain and Mate, Burley and Burley; Fairy Bluebell, Miss May Rawlinson; Mouser, the Cat, Mr. George Ali; and Roderick, Miss Beryl Somerset.

BIRMINGHAM will have six pantomimes this Christmas—Aladdin at the Theatre Royal, Jack Horner at the Prince of Wales's, Dick Whittington at the Alexandra Theatre, Mother Goose at Bordesley Palace, Cinderella at the Metropole, and Babes in the Wood at the Aston Royal. The cast at the Theatre Royal includes Harry Tate, Tom Foy, Carrie Moore, Barrett and Knowles, Ray Ford, Olive Moore, and Eric Campbell

THE SAVOY.

MISS MARIE BREMA'S SEASON.

On Monday night Miss Marie Brema opened her second season at the Savoy most successfully with an artistic performance of Handel's Allegro, arranged as a kind of masque in which chorus and soloists are heard but not seen, the stage being used by the dancers and various other characters who, by appropriate action or grouping, illustrate Handel's cantata on Milton's poems, Allegro and Il Penseroso. Thus the eye as well as the ear are charmed by beautiful stage pictures accompanied by Handel's fine music. Each verse or recitation has either a single figure on the stage or a number of dancers. Melancholy, Joys, Nymphs, pensive Nun, Mirth, all appear in turn when the name occurs in the poem, and at times there are quite a crowd of Nymphs and Satyrs, quaintly dressed and playing pan pipes on the stage. One of the finest effects was the group of the nine Muses round Jove's Altar, on which weird red flames were burning, and murmurs of admiration arose from the audience at the graceful picture, which is said to be a faithful reproduction of the nine statues of the Vatican group on the same rock. Very pleasing also were the Morris dances, and the shepherds, ploughmen, milkmaids, and mowers, in old English costumes. Falconers, huntsmen leading hounds, and a number of other quaintly-dressed dancers are also introduced.

Handel's music was admirably sung by Miss Evangeline Florence, Mr. Spencer Thomas, and Mr. Francis Braun. Miss Ruby Ginner, who appeared as Mirth, was warmly applauded for her graceful dancing, and Miss Marie Brema, who had designed the costumes and arranged the various groups, was at the close of Allegro called before the curtain and given an enthusiastic reception.

Handel's cantata was followed by a Fairy Tale, in three acts, by Emile Cammaerts, translated from the French by Tita Brand, entitled

"THE TWO HUNCHBACKS."

The story of M. Cammaerts's little play is simple yet pleasing. Jack, the Hunchback, is in love with Marianne, but on account of his deformity does not declare his passion. Now, Jack is a clever violinist, and passing through a pinewood at night, he meets a number of the Elves, headed by their King and Queen. When he plays to them the Elves are charmed, and as Jack also renders them another service they are full of gratitude, and offer him any reward. Poor Jack does not want riches, but only strength and delivery from his hump, which he thinks beyond their powers. The little folk, however, are quite equal to this task, and Jack finds himself a strong fine man and the hump gone for ever. In the next scene Jack declares his love to Marianne's willing ears. All are surprised at the change in his appearance; but a rich rival to the hand of Marianne hears the strange story of the Elves, and secretly determines to try his luck. Richard, however, does not possess Jack's art of pleasing, and meeting the Elves in the wood at night only irritates the Fairies, who, in revenge, make him a hunchback.

The scene between Jack and the Elves in the pinewood has great charm, and the children who represent the Zits and Pits have been admirably trained by Miss Italia Conti, and enter with spirit into the mystic revels, showing the care and skill of their instructress, who has evidently devoted much care and pains to her work. A charming little lady is Miss Mavis Yorke, who plays the Prince of the Elves, and her graceful action and delightfully clear enunciation were worthy of great praise. Excellent also were the King and Queen of the Elves by Mr. Guy Griffinhoofe and Miss Nonny Lock. Mr. Vernon Steel proved a manly Jack, and Miss Tita Brand made a sympathetic Marianne; while Mr. Michael Sherbrooke was effective as the old father, Mathurin, and Miss Alice Arden showed talent in the humorous part of the mother, Trinette.

Mr. Frank Bridge conducted the orchestra in Allegro, and has composed some clever entr'acte music on Belgian folk melodies for The Two Hunchbacks. The scene of the play is laid in the Belgian Ardennes. Genuine peasant costumes were used, and Mr. Tom Heslewood's two scenes are well painted and picturesque.

Gluck's Orpheus (in English) was revived at the Savoy Theatre on Tuesday afternoon with all the care and attention to detail which Miss Marie Brema lavished on its former production. A chorus of over fifty sang Gluck's refined music with perfect intonation. Miss Marie Brema repeated her artistic and dramatic impersonation of Orpheus, while her singing of "Che Faro" was replete with expression and pathos. Miss Gladys Honey, a graceful Eurydice, sang with much intelligence and purity of tone, and a charming Amor was found in Miss Doris Simpson. The scene of the entrance to the Underworld, with its Fairies, Shades, and winged Harpies, lighted by strange red fires, was capitally presented, and the beautiful Elysian Fields of the third act again aroused admiration. The young ladies who represented the Happy Spirits were graceful in their classic attitudes, and the principal dancers, Miss Ruby Ginner, Miss Una Reynolds, and Mr. Allan Glen greatly distinguished themselves. The orchestra was efficient, and Mr. Frank Bridge conducted with considerable ability.

A Large Order.

"IT happened when I was in the stock business," said Mr. Stanley Cooke in an interview in Madame the other day. "The landladies in a certain small town we visited had all so often been left unpaid by gentlemen of the profession that it was only with the greatest difficulty we could persuade them to take us into their houses, and they positively declined to provide us with food. We were quite in a fix, for the most anyone of us had was about twopence, and even in those days twopence was not enough to keep a man in food for a week—not even an actor. As spokesman for my fellow-players, I went to the manager of the company and asked for a 'sub,' but he hadn't any money. So there we were. When I went to have a look at the place where we were going to play, I found it was a hall with a large co-operative stores underneath, where they sold provisions of every kind. Then I got an idea. Remember, we were very hungry. I managed to draw up an order for about six months' provisioning of the company (we were very hungry), and took it to these stores. They took it to be all right, and soon my room was filled with tins of corned beef, tins of salmon, tins of sardines, tins of fruit, tins of biscuits, tins of tea, and tins of everything else eatable or drinkable that is put up in tins, with a few hams and sides of bacon for a change. During that week practically the whole company fed sumptuously in my room. On Saturday, however, the stores sent in a bill to the manager that made his hair stand on end and absorbed nearly the whole funds of the show. It took the whole male strength of the company to hold him back from me, and my engagement ended very abruptly."

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Miss Marie Doro is appearing at the Lyceum Theatre in a three-act comedy, by William Gillette, entitled Electricity. Miss Doro impersonates Emeline Twimbly, the daughter of a wealthy man. She is given to Socialism, and declares that she will never marry a "pauper," by which she means a man who does not work for his living. Her brother's friend, James Hollenden, has heard of her, and comes to visit the family under a promise not to let her talk to him until she has changed her ideas. Hollenden, however, seizes an opportunity to disguise himself as an electrician and take the place of Bill Brockway, who is repairing wires in the Twimbly residence. Emeline falls in love with the pretended workman, and calls at Brockway's home. Bill's mother knows nothing of the impersonation of her son, and believes the heiress to be in love with him, which upsets her very much, Bill being engaged to a young woman named Jennie Parks, who lives with the Brockways. In the last act Hollenden's identity is disclosed, but, as it is a case of true love on both sides, Emeline forgives him for deceiving her and promises to marry him.

It will be seen that the plot is thinly woven. It goes without saying, however, that the public is keenly interested in anything written by Mr. Gillette, and this means that the play will enjoy a fair measure of success, especially as Miss Doro acts Emeline Twimbly charmingly. The company includes Mr. Oliver Doud Byron, Mr. Edwin Nicander, Mr. Harry Barfoot, Mr. Shelley Hull, Miss Ann Murdoch, and Mrs. Thomas Whiffen.

Mr. Kyrle Bellew's impersonation of Raffles, the "amateur cracksman," is delighting large audiences at the Garrick Theatre. Mr. Bellew's Raffles is an ideal embodiment, and one that enjoys an enduring popularity. Mr. Frank Westerton appears as the quizzical detective, Captain Bedford, and plays the part admirably. Miss Gladys Hanson as Gwendolin Conron, Miss Ffolliott Paget as Lady Melrose, Mr. Frank Connor as "Bunny," and Mr. Frank McCormack as Crawshay, the burglar, deserve much praise for their portrayals.

"The Cub," a farcical satire, in three acts, by Thompson Buchanan, is the current attraction at the Comedy Theatre. Mr. Douglas Fairbanks plays the principal part, appearing as Steve Oldham, a young reporter, who is "new to his job," and is, therefore, in American newspaper jargon, commonly called a "cub." Being called upon to report the exciting incidentals of a Kentucky feud, and being entirely ignorant of the danger he is running into, he invades the territory of the "moonshiners" with all the enthusiasm of youth to fulfil his mission. The adventures in which he becomes involved are depicted in a highly-diverting manner, there being no end of comical situations in the play. The feud springs from a quarrel over a couple of sows, and before it ends twenty-one people are killed. It used to be said that the children in Kentucky cut their teeth on revolvers. However, the feud is finally settled for a dollar and fifty cents. The reporter figures in a love affair, which leads to a fight, and he is condemned to die at sunrise. It is he who settles the feud, however, and he lives to marry the pretty school teacher with whom he has fallen in love. Mr. Fairbanks has an unaffected and hearty manner that is very effective in the title-rôle, and his performance is clever and enjoyable from beginning to end. Miss Millicent Evans is very winning as the school teacher; and the other parts are well played.

THE DAY OF ATONEMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I arrived last night from America, and should feel obliged if you would kindly find space for the following.

I held a contract for a six weeks' consecutive engagement at the Colonial and other theatres in New York, under the management of Mr. Percy Williams, and duly commenced my engagement on Sept. 26, proving a great success.

Being of the Jewish persuasion, I naturally wished, like my co-religionists, to observe "The Day of Atonement," Oct. 13, the most important day of our creed, an occasion always respected by our English managers.

I gave ample notice of my intention to Mr. Williams, and in every way courteously requested to be excused from appearing on that holy day, also offering to indemnify him for my non-appearance, and naturally forfeiting my salary for that time.

I did not appear on the day of the Fast, and on the conclusion of same I received a letter from the above-named gentleman cancelling the whole of my engagement in America, meaning a loss to me of several hundred pounds. One would expect a little consideration from managers in New York, as most of them are Jews, and also in fact that quite 50 per cent. of the audience in the theatre where I was then appearing are of the Jewish persuasion.

The purport of this letter is for the benefit of Jewish artists who may visit America, and who, like myself, prefer to look upon their religion as more than "gold."

I might add that after this occurrence I was immediately engaged by Mr. William Morris, with whom I return next year for a tour of thirteen weeks.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE NEWBURN.

36, Carysfort-road, Clissold Park, Nov. 16.

It is quite refreshing to see lights again in the Grand Theatre, Plymouth, where, under the management of Mr. G. Woodward, an experiment has been tried of performing two dramas per evening. From the houses drawn the experiment bids fair to be a great success.

At the Carlton Theatre, Birmingham, this (Saturday) afternoon, a performance for the purposes of copyright will be given of a new drama, entitled Midnight London, by H. F. Husden. The piece will shortly be produced by Miss Grace Warner and her company, who are presenting The Scarlet Clue at the Carlton Theatre this week.

The patience and long-suffering of the average paying patron of the playhouse could not, says the Westminster Gazette, be more strikingly illustrated than by the manner in which those who wait in long queues on the pavement for places in pit and gallery suffer a number of lads to "keep places" for others, because of a special payment to themselves. The whole idea is not only antagonistic to the principle that the patrons of pit and gallery are those who cannot afford to pay a higher price for their seats, but to the true idea of "first come, first served," which is the basis of fair-play in matters such as these. It is not to be imagined that this is any novel nuisance which has not had to be dealt with by theatre managers in the past. Just over two hundred years, indeed, have elapsed since it was specially advertised at the Queen's Theatre, in the Haymarket, the far-off progenitor of His Majesty's of to-day, that "No Person is to be admitted to keep Places in the Pit." A century later the Times emphatically protested against a revival of the practice of "keeping places" at "our houses of public amusement," which was spreading its baneful influence elsewhere. And it would only need combined action on the part of the managers, coupled with the genial firmness by the attendant police, to ensure that this growing nuisance of the present day was promptly abated.

AMUSEMENTS IN ROTTERDAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 14.—The latest production at the Grand Theatre by Manager Van Eysden has been a revival of Maeterlinck's noteworthy play Monna Vanna. It is some years since the work was originally presented on this stage under the same management, but the title-rôle is interpreted now, as then, by Mrs. Tartaud, and the impersonation may be considered as one of the best of this sterling artist's repertory. Honours are shared by Mr. Van Der Lugt Melsert, who, as Prinzivalle, is deserving of the warmest praise. Mr. Faassen made a strikingly impressive Marco Colonna, whilst Mr. Tartaud, though painstaking, was not up to the mark as Guido. The mounting and accessories were most effective. Monna Vanna is proving a drawing card at the Grand, the theatre being crowded nightly to its utmost capacity.

Impresario De Haan continues favouring our public with first-class attractions. After the series of performances of Mme. Bernhardt, we have had a number of concerts of the incomparable young Russian virtuoso, Mischa Elman, and now the young Canadian violinist, Kathleen Parlow, is here, and is achieving an enormous success. Impresario De Haan has been equally lavish in a dramatic way, for we have had a tour of the celebrated German actress, Agnes Sorma, supported by a division of the company from the Neues Schauspielhaus in Berlin. The performances given by her on "off nights" at the Grand may be recorded as events of the season. The last and farewell bill was Die Zwillingsschwester ("The Twin Sister.")

The Neue Wiener Operette has been ushered in under Mr. De Haan's auspices. This organisation, now on tour through Holland, has made its initial bow here at the Tivoli Theatre in the new comic opera Die Keusche Susanna ("The Chaste Susannah"), and has scored an unequivocal success. The merry music and spicy dialogue please the audience hugely, and the act of the Moulin Rouge goes with a swing and animation that bring down the house. So decided has been the hit that people were turned away on the second night.

"Schakels" ("Links"), the telling and realistic play of Herman Heycrmans, has been revived by Het Tooneel ("The Stage"), under Manager Royaards, and been given repeatedly on "off nights" at the Grand and the Tivoli. It has drawn good houses, and will probably be performed again and again this season. The cast was a very creditable one, special mention being due to Messrs. De Vries and Musch for their vigorous characterisations.

Sheridan's brilliant comedy, The Rivals, in Dutch, is announced by "De Hagespelers" (The Players of the Hague), under Manager Verkade. The initial performance has already taken place in Amsterdam, and been most favourably received by Press and public.

A new and original play, by a till now unknown dramatist, A. H. Van der Feen, has been put on in Amsterdam by the Royal Dramatic Co. The title is Haar Groote Dag ("Her Great Day"), and the leading character is the woman's part. Mrs. Mann, the Sarah Bernhardt of the Dutch stage, and the sister of the great actor, Louis Bouwmeester, enacts the rôle, making an intense and thrillingly powerful impersonation of it. Haar Groote Dag is to be given shortly by the Royal Dramatic Co.

Louis Bouwmeester will soon be in our midst. His tour in the Dutch East Indies was wound up by testimonials and farewells, all of which were bumpers indeed. The celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of his dramatic career is to be held in Amsterdam, and promises to be a grand affair.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Mr. Herbert Dawson's ably-executed organ solo of the Scherzo from Guilmant's Fifth Sonata was the first item in the Students' Concert on Monday. In recit. "I am alone at last" and aria "Far greater in his lowly state" (Gounod) Miss Olga Corrigan was somewhat ambitious, and should defer such an important aria until her voice is more under control. A pianoforte solo of Sterndale Bennett's Toccata was neatly executed by Miss Jenny S. Russell; and another pianist, Miss Beryl Lawrence, gave a graceful rendering of "Le Coucou" (Claude Daquin). Miss Kathleen Lawler, set down for the Valse Song from Romeo and Juliet, was unable to appear; but Mr. Leonard van Mentz sang "Kashmire Song" and "Till I wake," by A. Woodforde-Finden, with excellent expression. To give the poetry of Chopin's Nocturne, Op. 48, No. 2, is, of course, as yet beyond the power of Master Richard Johnson, a clever young student of the College, but he played with an earnestness and care that was very promising. Miss Eva K. Sly in "White Sentinels" (Woodforde-Finden) sang well, and with considerable dramatic effect, and having a voice of ample power, should avoid forcing it. The only violin solo in the concert was that of Mr. William Nustadt, who was much applauded in Bach's "Bourrée." Mr. Robert A. Strong was set down for Mallinson's song "Eldorado," and the concert concluded with the duet "La ci darem," from Mozart's Don Giovanni, sung by Miss Edith Davies, L.T.C.L., and Mr. Eric Catford.

At the Little Theatre on Tuesday next Payment, a play in three acts, by Alice Clayton Guise, will be produced for copyright purposes.

This (Saturday) afternoon, Herr Fritz Kreisler will delight music-lovers at the Crystal Palace with a violin recital, giving selections from Bach, Strauss, Brahms, Padre Martini, Louis Couperin, Paganini, Tartini, and Smetana, as well as two very interesting items of his own composition.

Herr Kreisler was born in Vienna in 1875, his father being an eminent physician in that capital. Music was always in the house, so that it was little wonder that as a very small child the great artist should remember scraping on a fiddle. While still very young he was sent to the Conservatoire under Professor Helmesberger, but as a child he was not in love with the violin, and his tutors found great difficulty in getting him to practise. Happily this obstinate frame of mind passed away, and when a little more than twelve years of age he succeeded in carrying away the gold medal and first prize at the Conservatoire. To win the Prix de Rome was an unprecedented feat for a child of twelve years, and this gave his tutors a glimpse of a great future for young Kreisler. From Paris he went on an extensive tour through America with the celebrated Moritz Rosenthal, and then he returned to Vienna to complete his studies, afterwards playing in many countries, both British and foreign.

A man who had been employed to wait in a theatre queue was fined 2s. 6d. at the Marlborough Street Police Court on Thursday for obstruction. "The public are crying out against this practice," said Mr. Denman, the magistrate. "The streets are for the use of those who wish to pass along them, but the authorities use discretion to give facilities to those who find it necessary to stand about a reasonable time for a reasonable purpose. It is unreasonable for persons to form a long queue on the footway unless they have a bona-fide intention of taking their turn to enter a place of amusement and paying for their seats. This employment of deputies causes a great number of idle persons to collect for casual employment. If small fines do not stop the practice, I shall impose larger ones."

SHAKESPEARE'S LAST PLAY.

"The Tempest was probably Shakespeare's last play—in this sense, at least, that he designed it for his farewell to the stage," writes Mr. Walter Raleigh in his admirable little book on the poet-dramatist. "The thought which occurs at once to almost every reader of the play, that Prospero resembles Shakespeare himself, can hardly have been absent from the mind of the author. By his most potent art he had bedimmed the noontide sun, called forth the mutinous winds, and plucked up the giant trees of the forest. Graves at his command had waked their sleepers, oped, and let them forth. When at last he resolved to break the wand of his incantations and to bury his magic book, he was shaken, as all men in sight of the end are shaken, by the passion of mortality. But there was no bitterness in the leave-taking. He looked into the future, and there was given to him a last vision; not the futile panorama of industrial progress, but a view of the whole world, shifting like a dream, and melting into vapour like a cloud. His own fate and the fate of his book were as nothing against that wide expanse. What was it to him that for a certain term of years men should read what he had written? The old braggart promises of the days of his vanity could not console him now.

"Not marble, nor the gilded monuments
Of princes, shall outlive this powerful rhyme."

So he had written in the Sonnets. When the end drew near, his care was only to forgive his enemies, and to comfort the young, who are awed and disquieted by the show of grief in their elders. Miranda and Ferdinand watch Prospero, as he struggles in the throes of imagination. Then he comes to himself and speaks:

"'You do look, my son, in a mov'd sort
As if you were dismay'd. Be cheerful, sir;
Our revels now are ended. These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
Are melted into air, into thin air;
And like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capt towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve,
And like this insubstantial pageant faded
Leave not a rack behind: we are such stuff
As dreams are made on; and our little life
Is rounded with a sleep."

In all the work of Shakespeare there is nothing more like himself than those quiet words of parting—'Be cheerful, sir; our revels now are ended.'

"Yet they are not ended; and the generations who have come after him, and have read his book, and have loved him with an inalterable personal affection, must each, as they pass the way that he went, pay him their tribute of praise. His living brood have survived him, to be the companions and friends of men and women as yet unborn. His monument is still a feasting presence, full of light. When he was alive he may sometimes have smiled to think that the phantoms dancing in his brain were as real to him as the sights and sounds of the outer world. The population of that delicate shadowland seemed to have but a frail hold on existence. The one was taken, and the other left; this character served for a play, that phrase or sentence fitted a speech; the others died in their cradles, or lived a moment upon the air, and were dissolved. Those that found acceptance were made over to the tender mercies of the players, for a week's entertainment of the populace. But now three centuries have passed since King Lear was written; and we begin to rub our eyes, and wonder. 'Change places, and, handy-dandy, which is the ghost, which is the man?' Is the real man to be sought in that fragmentary story of Stratford and London, which, do what we will to revive it, has long ago grown faint as the memory of a last year's carouse? That short and troubled time of his passage, during which he was hurried onward at an ever-increasing pace, blown upon by hopes and fears, cast down and uplifted, has gone like a dream, and has taken him bodily along with it. But his work remains. He wove upon the roaring loom of Time the garment that we see him by; and the earth at Stratford closed over the broken shuttle."

MY BEGGAR.

By Tom Craven.

There's a beggar I know who craves alms,
Tho' he might well ask, too, for legs,
For the two that he hath are of wood,
So he might go the lot when he begs.
He was born with these legs—so he swears,
And his head's, too, of timber they say—
He'll tell whoppers
To get your coppers.
And you pay!
Pay!
Pay!

On Monday he'll say that his wife
Is the mother of children—a score—
And on Tuesday he'll swear that she's had
A consignment of three or four more.
On Wednesday he'll sob that "his first"
And only sweet babe's passed away.
Yarns he'll vary,
To the unwary,
And you pay!
Pay!
Pay!

On Thursday he'll tell the old lie,
That he lost both his legs when at sea;
And the Friday will hear him declare,
He has worked in a coal mine since three.
On the "Sat." he will stoutly aver,
As a soldier he's lived every day—
Cake!—you give him it,
He is the limit,
And you pay!
Pay!
Pay!

"CHARLES NEVILLE" STILL ALIVE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In printing a copy of a playbill in your last issue giving the cast of As You Like It, at a matinée under the auspices of the late Helen Faucit at the Haymarket Theatre on Dec. 20, 1873, you say that there are only three surviving members of that exceptional cast, viz., Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Howard Russell, and Miss Kate Bishop. In the cast Sylvius was played by a young gentleman, a Mr. "Charles Neville," who, thank goodness, is still alive in the person of—Yours faithfully, CHARLES SUGDEN.

Theatre Royal, Portsmouth.

Mr. Tom Nelson opened on Monday at the Hackney Empire on the Stoll tour as Perkins, in Mr. Fred Karno's G.P.O. company, and scored an enthusiastic success.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

A huge audience assembled at the Queen's Hall on Wednesday afternoon for the students' chamber concert. The programme commenced with a special performance by professors and students of Mr. F. Corder's Elegy for twenty-four violins and organ in memory of Miss Mary Burgess, student, sub-professor, and associate, who died July 25, 1910. In César Franck's Prelude, Chorale, and Fugue, for piano, Miss Evie Dawkin was entirely successful, and Miss Lilian G. Rickard gave a sympathetic rendering of Felix Weingartner's song, "Thou art a child." Two novelties were forthcoming at the concert on Wednesday, the first being the Slow Movement from Quartet (M.S.), for two violins, viola, and 'cello, by Mr. Arthur Alexander, a Sterndale Bennett scholar, which was played by Mr. Edwin Quaife, Mr. Willie Davies, Miss Phyllis Mitchell, and Mr. Benno Pitt, and proved cleverly written but somewhat lacking in breadth. The other work was an effective Suite M.S. for violin and pianoforte in three movements, by Miss Ethel E. Bilsland, a Macfarren scholar. The Andante, with its plaintive theme, greatly pleased the audience. Miss Phyllis Parker and Miss Ethel Bilsland were the executants, and the composer had a very hearty reception. Mr. Gordon Yates sang Stanford's "Prospice" with praiseworthy dramatic feeling, and a very clever young student, Mr. Willie Davies, gave a capital violin solo of "Caprice Viennois" (Kreisler). Miss Frances Klein's delicate touch and facile execution were heard to advantage in Glazounow's Variations in F sharp minor for piano, while in "Rossignols Amoureux" (Rameau) Miss Marjorie Walker sang with considerable beauty of tone and executed some shakes with artistic ease and finish, the flute obbligato being admirably played by Miss Edith Penville. The Allegro Larghetto from Mozart's beautiful Quintet in A, for clarinet, two violins, viola, and 'cello, was ably played by Mr. Edward J. Augarde, Mr. Edgar Hawke, Mr. John Spink, Miss Nellie Fulcher, and Miss Phyllis Boulton. It is an excellent plan of the Royal Academy to give one or two characteristic movements from a famous work instead of the entire composition, for in a long programme other talented students can then be heard. Other interesting numbers in the programme were S. Coleridge-Taylor's "Eleonore," sung by Mr. Harry Milner, and a Petite Suite, piano and strings (Ole Olsen), played by Miss Harriet Cohen.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt appeared at the Studebaker Theatre, Chicago, in Rostand's biblical play, La Samaritaine on Sunday night, the 6th inst. Cards had been distributed, requesting "the tribute of silence to M. Rostand's play," and the audience did as requested when Mme. Bernhardt appeared singing a love song in the spirit of a woman of the world. The meeting with the Saviour, and the changing of the song into a sacred hymn was, according to a local newspaper, "effected by Mme. Bernhardt with consummate art and impressiveness." The theatre was crowded, so many being turned away that the performance is to be repeated.

THE Rev. Canon Masterman last week gave an interesting address to the members of the Leeds Institute in the Albert Hall, Leeds, his subject being "Shakespeare as a Humorist." The speaker said the greatness of the Elizabethan age lay in the fact that men strove to raise the actual up to the level of the ideal, and this striving was reflected in the writing of the time. Shakespeare knew life and looked upon it with a clear, unswerving gaze. He had dramatised his works and had to make the theatre pay, and as he was a man of business he had to make his audience understand him. In that lay the secret of his success as a humorist. Shakespeare's humour lay in the portrayal of this pretentiousness and sentimentality. In his comedies he never pretended to be wholly comic except in The Merry Wives of Windsor; his humour was always on the borderline of tragedy. That was where humorists made a mistake; but in the case of Shakespeare his plays were lifelike, because in real life tragedy and humour were always in close contact, and any attempt to isolate them must fail on account of the impossibility. Shakespeare understood this, and in his tragedies he introduced the comic element, and in his comedies the tragic element, and that was where he rose above his contemporaries.

AT the St. George's Hall, Ealing, on Wednesday evening, Mr. Walter Taylor's "Dotted Crotchets" company appeared in an excellently composed programme of mirth and song. Mr. Taylor, who is so well known as the musical director of the Walpole Rink, has gathered a very capable troupe around him, and in his chief comedian, Mr. Herbert Cranch, has certainly discovered a "prize-packet," and Miss Constance Wentworth, soprano, Miss Julia Squire, contralto, and Mr. Bernard Knowles, baritone, add considerably to the strength of the company.

Miss Moore and the Motors.

"WHEN I was playing at Melbourne two years ago," says Miss Carrie Moore in an interview in the Dublin Evening Telegraph, "I went motoring one morning, allowing myself plenty of time to get back, the distance being only thirty miles. When we got half-way back we discovered that the petrol-tank had been leaking all the way, and found ourselves at a standstill on a lonely road far from our destination. My friends walked a long way to a house they saw in the distance and asked the occupant of the house would he let them have a vehicle of some kind to drive to the next town and get petrol. When this gentleman heard that an actress wanted it, he refused point blank. 'I don't hold with play-actors,' he growled. You may be sure my friends used strong language, but it was no use talking.

"NIGHT came on, the stars came out, and I was in a terrible state of mind, as you may imagine, with visions of the expectant theatre. I had my little sister with me, and she said, 'Wish hard, Carrie, that a motor-car comes along, and I'll do the same.' We wished hard, and put our heads to the ground to listen if we could hear far off the sound of a coming vehicle. Then suddenly in less than ten minutes we heard a motor-car coming along the lonely, deserted road, and of all things it was going to Melbourne.

"MY friends bundled me into the car. It was driven by a boy and had no light. I'll never forget that journey. I arrived at the stage-door only ten minutes before the curtain was to go up, and found the stage-manager in a panic, and my understudy preparing to go on. I had no time for dinner, of course, and it was a very hungry and tired 'Merry Widow' that appeared that night."

SPEAKING about motors, Miss Carrie Moore mentioned an amusing incident which occurred not long ago in the North of England. During a pantomime engagement she consented to give her services at a police benefit concert. On the way to the concert her motor was stopped by a policeman who declared that the speed-limit was being exceeded. When he learned the destination of the motor and the cause of the hurry, however, he decided that they were justified in exceeding the speed-limit, and dismissed them with his blessing

Mr. W. J. Locke's Methods.

MR. WILLIAM J. LOCKE, on being interviewed the other day in New York, made some interesting "confessions," and shattered a few illusions about his method of work. It was suggested that possibly his writing was both work and recreation, but Mr. Locke denied that most emphatically. He said: "Work can never be a recreation. And I think writing, at least as I have to write, is very hard work. I can't imagine anything harder. I work slowly. If I put down 300 words in an hour I am doing well. If I get 350 done I am amazed. Oh, no, it is hard work."

Every Sentence Thought Over.

THE interviewer was under the impression that the novelist wrote quite spontaneously and easily. To use his own words, Mr. Locke's stories read as if the words "simply flowed from him." "Anything but that," Mr. Locke protested. "Anything but that. Every sentence is thought over and balanced and polished in my head before it goes on paper. Often I write it out on a scrap of paper two or three times before I put it in my manuscript. I am glad the machinery does not show, but my books are certainly not easily written. Sometimes I have to drive myself to work. I sit down and perhaps by good luck I see one of my dogs running over a flower bed. I put down my pen and go out and drive him off, profoundly grateful to him for having given me another ten minutes' respite. That's the way I work."

Made-up Characters.

MR. LOCKE declared that not one of his characters was drawn from life. "They are not composites either," he added, "I just make them up." He confessed that he had "an extremely barren invention." He couldn't write two novels a year if he were paid two million pounds for doing it. In fact, one gathered from his remarks that writing novels was literally "hard labour."

In Dark Despair.

MR. LOCKE then told how he suffered: "I have a frightful time trying to think of something to make my next novel about. My friends say the only time I am really sufferable is when I have just finished a novel. For months before I begin one I am on the verge of suicide because I can't think of anything to write. Then I begin and plunge into dark despair for months because I see nothing but failure before me. When the novel is really completed I begin to smile again until in a month or two the agony begins again."

His Best Book.

THE novelist was asked to settle a dispute between two admirers of his stories as to the respective merits of "Septimus" and "The Beloved Vagabond." "I suppose," he said meditatively "that in some ways 'The Beloved Vagabond' is the best thing I've done. The book I had the most pleasure in writing, however, was 'The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne.' It was a break away from the sort of thing I had been doing. I wrote it for myself without considering whether or not any body else would like it, and it was a pleasure.

Mapping His Work.

"YES, I start out with a very clear idea of what I am going to do. Sometimes, of course, a character that did not promise much turns out to be very interesting, and takes more of the stage than I had at first planned, and again somebody who seemed to be important is shoved out by another who proved himself more fascinating. But in general I map out my work very fully before beginning."

Intellectual Audiences.

ANOTHER question brought forth the answer that the only thing that could be called an interesting movement in English literature to-day was the intellectual drama. "That," said Mr. Locke, "is important and new. I mean Galsworthy and the school of which Galsworthy is perhaps the most prominent figure." "Shaw?"—"Oh, Shaw is—Shaw!" Mr. Locke waved his hand in a will-o'-the-wisp way. "We won't tie Shaw down to any school." "Does the drama of Galsworthy and others make a popular appeal in England, or is it limited to the intellectuals?"—"I think it appeals only to the intellectuals. But they are the people who count, aren't they? Progress comes through their efforts in the last analysis."

IN our last issue we stated that at the Grand Theatre, Croydon, the George Edwardes's Dollar Princess company last week broke all the records this season, the receipts for the seven performances being close on three figures. It should have been "four figures."

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR
ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
CHAPTER IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

AGAIN THE CENSORSHIP.

The prohibition by the Lord Chamberlain of Mr. LAURENCE HOUSMAN'S play Pains and Penalties has revived the question of the Censorship very effectually. Mr. HOUSMAN, in self-defence, adopted the expedient of reading his piece aloud to a select audience and subsequently publishing parts of it in a monthly review. We were thus informed that the dramatist had selected the troubles between Queen CAROLINE and GEORGE IV. as the foundation of his play. We had naturally imagined that the reason of the refusal to license the play was that it was calculated to bring Royalty into contempt. All we have to say is that, if the permanency of the monarchy in England can be weakened by the representation of Pains and Penalties the institution must be in a very insecure state—which we do not believe; and we doubt if the Advisory Board which is being reconstituted would prohibit Pains and Penalties on the ground now stated by the Censor that of consideration for the memory of a late "unhappy lady." The Lord Chamberlain, the president of the Board, would, of course, support the courtly prohibition; but we fancy Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT and Sir JOHN HARE, who are also members of the Board, would take a less punctilious and more common-sense view of the play. Professor WALTER RALEIGH, as a literary man, would, of course, be for perfect freedom; but Sir EDWARD CARSON, Mr. S. O. BUCKMASTER, and Col. Sir DOUGLAS DAWSON are "dark horses," and it is difficult to say how they would run.

Mr. HOUSMAN himself has another proposition for the reform of the Censorship. His proposal is this: that instead of the Censor, with his present power of veto before production, there should be an Examiner of Plays, whose functions would be somewhat similar to those of a King's Proctor, and whose duty it would be to consider plays from a strictly legal standpoint. To this official a copy of every play, accompanied by a registration fee, should be submitted a reasonable time—say three weeks—before production; and wherever he saw good reason for doing so he should be empowered to issue a warning to the manager stating that, in his opinion, the play contained matter which would render its production liable to prosecution for an offence against the common law. If the Proctor had no objection to put forward, he would enter the play at once upon the official register as having passed its preliminary examination; he would give it, that is to say, a certificate of character which for all practical purposes would amount to a licence, though subject to reconsideration at any time after the play's production, just as is now the case under the Censorship. After the play had been produced, say, for at least a week in any one place, without offence to public decency, the register should receive endorsement to that effect, and the play's position might thenceforth be regarded as fully assured against official interference.

In case the manager or author was prepared, in a given case, to press the matter forward for legal decision, Mr. HOUSMAN proposes that a "technical public performance shall be given for the sole benefit of the King's Proctor or his representative, who shall see the play and form an opinion as to whether it ought to be prosecuted." The objection on the part of the managers to a King's Proctorship would be that it would merely shift the decision as to the decency or indecency of a play from an official to a British jury. Either we must have absolute licence in the matter of play-production, or we must have some man or body of men who can be called upon to say, "In my opinion the public performance of this piece would be injurious to morals." Now in the case of a competent Censor strongly in sympathy with the public opinion of his day it is possible for a manager to make a good guess at what the Censor will prohibit and what he will not permit to be played. But if a manager had to take his chance with a British jury his position would be uncertain and anxious. A jury is a body of twelve men summoned at random from the population without any selection or choice. They may be highly educated or they may be densely ignorant; and one jury may absolutely contradict the verdict brought in by another. "The manager," says Mr. HOUSMAN, "would have clearly before his eyes the risk he ran if he went on to produce the play in spite of official warning." But the amount of the risk would always be an unknown quantity.

The only question we need ask ourselves is: has the present system inflicted any serious injury on "dramatic talent which demands for its development wider scope and freer outlet"? Apparently not. If all the plays which have been prohibited—thirty out of seven thousand—had been produced would the fame of their authors have been increased or the status of the British drama elevated? In our opinion, neither Waste nor Mrs. Warren's Profession, if played at an ordinary theatre in the ordinary way, would have run for long. Outside the small advanced minority to whom work of this kind appeals, there is no public in England for such works, and their proper place of production is at one of the private performances given by societies. The prohibition of a play is often a much better advertisement for the author than its permitted production would have been. Against any small harm done in this way we have to set a stage which is the cleanest in Europe, which admits of young persons attending the theatre without distinction of playhouses, and can be defended by decent people—which certainly no one could say of that of Paris.

"THE SIREN;
or, THE ACTRESS'S TRIUMPH."

Sketch, by Holman Quin, Produced at the Rehearsal Theatre on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 17.

Madeline de Vigne	MME. DEL SAVINA
Celestine	MISS NINA DOLORES
Philip Harding	MR. ARTHUR HYDE
Edith Harding	MISS PHILLIS SALVADOR
Little Freddy Harding	MASTER R. DEL SAVINA
James	MR. COLIN F. HEATHER

At the little Rehearsal Theatre in Maiden-lane on Thursday afternoon was given an invitation performance of a dramatic sketch, The Siren, by Holman Quin, with musical enumerations by Charles Victor, the music from the opera Carmen being used by the kind permission of the executors of the late Sir Augustus Harris. The Siren is Madeline de Vigne, a celebrated French actress, who has a lover in Philip Harding. After a little comedy scene between James and Celestine, her footman and French maid, Madeline comes in, and it is evident she expects a visitor—her lover. The maid announces a lady, but the "Siren" is evidently not disposed to see anyone but Philip, and refuses to see her visitor. The lady—Mrs. Harding—enters the apartment, however, and pleads with Madeline to give up her lover. The actress is not inclined to do this, and tells Mrs. Harding so, and also remarks that it is her own fault if her husband has ceased to care for her. She should make herself more attractive in his eyes. The distressed wife again pleads, and mentions their little boy Freddy. At the mention of the child Madeline wavers, and finally promises to give up Philip. And when her precious lover enters she poses as a fickle woman who has tired of him, until at length the enraged and disappointed man denounces her as a wanton, and so forth. Then enter the boy and his mother, and Philip, remarking that it was for a worthless woman he would have deserted home, wife, and child, departs, bearing his offspring in his arms, and his wife meekly following. Then the distraught Madeline breaks down, exclaiming, "This is my triumph!" Interspersed throughout the trifle are selections from Carmen, including a duet and the "Torcador" song, pleasingly given by Mme. Del Savina and Mr. Arthur Hyde. Mme. Savina, who frequently forgot her lines, was at her best in the later episodes of the piece. Mr. Arthur Hyde played an unthankful rôle admirably; the sorrowful, subdued Edith Harding was suitably enacted by Miss Phillis Salvador; and the other parts were capably played.

A Transient Condition.

MR. CHARLES KLEIN, the American dramatist, said recently: "The American stage just now is in a transient condition. There is no hard and fast literary point of view to tie to, although contemporary subjects have 'the call.' Our permanent successes are those without great literary value, like The Old Homestead and 'Way Down East. Drama in its best form will combine the appeal to the intellect and the appeal to the emotions. In this, European dramatists surpass us. The French form and method reach the highest mark of neatness and skill, but it is too often vitiated by the unworthy ideas promulgated. For that reason, I am inclined to rate Pinero and Jones as the leading playwrights of the present, and the safest models."

The Author's Ideas.

MR. KLEIN is the president of the Author's Producing Society, whose aim, to quote his own words, "is the exploitation of the author's ideas rather than the manager's. We feel that in the present commercialised condition of the American stage the stress of business absorbs the manager's mind and excludes artistic perfection. We wish to bring the author in closer contact with the public, to promulgate his ideas rather than the producer's experience. While the experience is conventional and imitative, the ideas are prophetic. A separation of art and commerce should work out advantageously to the public. Authorship requires time for introspective placidity, a weighing of inner values. It is to be found as easily in New York as in the remotest corner of the country. The author must internally be insensible to the tide and turmoil outside. He must not be involved in factional disagreements in the commercial world; the less he has to do with business, the better for his work."

MARTIN HARVEY AT BRISTOL.

A lecture was delivered by Mr. Martin Harvey in the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, on Wednesday afternoon, on "The Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre." The Lord Mayor presided, and there was a large attendance.

The LORD MAYOR said if his duties as chairman of that meeting were confined to the formality of introducing to them the lecturer, those duties could be easily discharged by simply calling upon Mr. Martin Harvey for his lecture, for he imagined it would be superfluous for him to introduce to them a man whose gifts had probably long ago been recognised by nearly every person he saw before him that afternoon. He need not tell them that his name stood for all that was good and pure and ennobling in the work of the theatre—(applause)—nurtured and trained as he was in the great traditions of the English stage which were so lovingly and brilliantly fostered in the Irving School.

Mr. MARTIN HARVEY, who had a most cordial reception, said he came before them in a new part—the part of an earnest petitioner and beggar. He was there to plead for their help to rear a noble and monumental institution to Shakespeare, their greatest Englishman. It had taken them 300 years to begin to think of rearing a worthy memorial to their great hero of letters, but he did not now despair of playing his part to heedless ears. (Hear, hear.) It had been decided that the expression of the public enthusiasm should take the form of the Shakespeare National Theatre. £500,000 had to be raised, to be spent thus: £100,000 for a suitable site, £150,000 to build and equip the theatre, and the remaining £250,000 to permanently endow it. This would yield an income of about £10,000 a year, the same sum roughly which the State allowed annually to the famous national theatre of France—the Comédie Français. Donations began to come in at once, and a splendid stimulus was given to the movement by the princely gift of one generous donor of no less a sum that £70,000. Since then the amount had been steadily rising, and they were not far short now of possessing nearly a fifth of the entire amount they needed. The National Memorial must be a noble building, planned by the foremost architect of our time, occupying a noble position in the heart of that London in which Shakespeare for the most part lived, laboured, and achieved his triumphs. The first of its uses must be to keep the plays of Shakespeare in its repertory—not only the half a dozen Shakespearean plays which poor actor-managers found to be the only remunerative ones—for this National Theatre would be above commercial considerations—but all of them. The other objects would be to revive whatever was vital in English classical drama, to prevent recent plays of great merit falling into oblivion, to produce new plays and to further translations of representative work of foreign drama, ancient and modern, and to stimulate the art of acting. People living in the provinces might say, "How are we to benefit by this Memorial Theatre, which is to be situated in London?" In one practical way they would certainly benefit, for it was proposed at certain periods the company to be associated with the National Theatre would pay regular visits to provincial centres, and they would thus reap the advantage of having the great works of our national drama, of the drama of antiquity, and the chosen achievements of living dramatic authors presented in an elaborate and worthy manner by a carefully-chosen company of artists. He earnestly commended the scheme to all, because their neglect of Shakespeare was a reproach throughout Europe, and because it would place our drama upon its rightful pinnacle as the richest in the whole world. The memorial must be an accomplished fact in five years' time.

A collection was made on behalf of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre by the young ladies of Mr. Martin Harvey's company.

Mr. NORRIS MATHEWS spoke briefly in appreciation of Mr. Martin Harvey, and urged that the company assembled would fill up the envelopes handed round in support of his object. He would not say that was "the only way"—(laughter)—but it was one way to further the object which the lecturer had at heart. (Applause.)

The SHERIFF said he had to propose a vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor, to Mr. Martin Harvey, to the management of the Prince's Theatre, and to the ladies of Mr. Martin Harvey's company who assisted in the distribution and collection of the papers. He might say, with respect to Mr. Martin Harvey, that the people of Bristol were not so ignorant as he would have them think, for some years ago, when they thought of giving musically in the city two fine works of Sophocles, he was invited to give the readings, but could not attend. He wished they could give not merely classical dramas, but classical music, so that they could open their concert-rooms and perform fine music without being the losers. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. J. E. KING seconded the resolution, which having been heartily adopted.

The LORD MAYOR responded, and said he was certain the Bristol people wished Mr. Martin Harvey every possible success in the splendid endeavour he was making for a National Theatre.

Mr. MARTIN HARVEY also acknowledged the resolution, and said up to now Hull stood first of the towns which had contributed, the amount being £150. He hoped that Bristol would exceed this.

A Sovereign Remedy.

MR. OSCAR ASCHE tells a story of the Bosworth fight in Richard III., when he was appearing in that play some years ago. One night one of the supers got hurt in the mimic battle, and was given half-a-sovereign as a balm for his woes. "He told his fellows of his luck," says Mr. Asche, "and the next presentation of the fight was a massacre. The supers fought as if determined that none of them should leave the stage alive, and I had some narrow escapes. Warmed up to their work, they did their best to render me hors de combat, and paid no heed to my remonstrances. I received one or two severe cuts, and the curtain had eventually to be rung down to prevent further mischief. No more supers received half-sovereigns for wounded feelings in that theatre again."

Louis Stevenson as Orsino.

"LOUIS STEVENSON was an actor in our private theatrica's in the 'seventies,'" writes Miss Flora Masson in an article on "Louis Stevenson" in the Pall Mall Magazine for this month. "There are people who still remember his Orsino in Twelfth Night—the slender figure in the 'splendid Francis I. clothes, heavy with gold and stage jewellery,' and the satisfied languor of his opening words—

> "If music be the food of love, play on.
> Give me excess of it, that, surfeiting,
> The appetite may sicken, and so die.
> That strain again! it had a dying fall."

In one of his own letters of this date he describes the performance with some humility, and the 'thrill of admiration' produced every night by 'me and the clothes.' There was always a 'Servants' night,' and the Heriot Row cook, it seems, had told Mrs. Stevenson that she and the housemaid were 'just prood to be able to say it was oor young gentleman.' But it was not so much the play that Louis Stevenson enjoyed, nor even the 'thrill of admiration' in successive audiences, as 'to sup afterwards, with those clothes on,' amid all the Shakespearean wit and raillery and badinage that circulated about that happy supper table. 'That,' he wrote, 'is something to live for.'"

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Nov. 17.—This work, we are told, had a tremendous success in Italy. If so, our friends on the other side of the Alps are not difficult to please, although this success may be partly due to the fact that M. Leoncavallo, the composer of I Pagliacci, supplied the music to the operetta. Everybody knows the tune of "Malbrouk s'en va-t'-en guerre," twin brother to "For he is a jolly good fellow." The French melody was sung after the battle of Malplaquet, when the great Marlborough defeated the French. But few people know that this melody really dates from the twelfth century, and refers to a French general of the name of Malbrouk, who is the hero in the work produced at the Apollo Theatre. It is the old, old story of a man called to the war on his wedding day. Malbrouk, a kind of king of Lower Navarre, is married to the fascinating Princess Alba, but as he issues from the church with his bride he is ordered to start at once to fight the Moors. With a longing glance at the pretty Alba, he leaves her in charge of his nephew, Rinaldo. He could not have made a worse selection. Rinaldo, in love with his young aunt, tries to win her by fair means, and when these fail he impersonates his uncle, and, taking advantage of the darkness, gains access to the lady's chamber. Scarcely has he left her when Malbrouk turns up unexpectedly; and as the lady does not seem at all surprised at seeing him, and repels his advances, telling him that "enough is as good as a feast," he suspects that he has been tricked, and that someone else has, so to say, stolen a march upon him. He vainly tries to discover the malefactor. Finally he is defeated by the Moors, dethroned, and his place taken by young Rinaldo, who, according to ancient custom, takes possession of the bride. M. Leoncavallo did not supply the farcical music the plot demanded. He forgot he was writing an operetta and not an opera. The old Malbrouk tune is cleverly introduced in the overture, and now and then there are humoristic touches that enliven the work. On the other hand, the Italian master scored in the charming serenade, in the pretty chorus in the second act, and in other melodies, not quite original, but warm and pleasing. There is a funny man and a funny woman. The funny man is the chamberlain, an idiotic creature who makes love to the funny woman, Alba's mother, a lady "with a temperament," a furnace, whose love duet with her elderly admirer is one of the most amusing numbers in the work. M. Corradetti, who impersonated Malbrouk, and who has sung that rôle innumerable times in Italy, had to learn French, so as to be able to make his bow before a Paris audience, and he certainly must be a good linguist to have mastered the language in the manner he did. The other rôles were well sustained by Mlle. Cebron-Nerbens, a charming Alba; Mlle. Dhervilly, who gave a most amusing sketch of the amorous Conchita; and M. Ardot and M. Coulomb.

M. ABEL TARRIDE, the great actor, and his wife, Mlle. Marthe Regnier, have divorced. Their friends have tried all they could to bring about a reconciliation, but in vain. Already in the course of last season Mme. Regnier said that she intended leaving the Renaissance, of which her husband, M. Tarride, is manager. The couple thereupon started together on a tour through South America, and it was hoped that this tour would bring about a rapprochement. But when they returned last month we were informed that the rupture was definite, and that the matter could only be settled in a court of law. Madame reproached her husband with being too irritable and criticising all her actions, whilst the latter argued that the fact of his wife having left her home, refusing to live with him, constitutes a cause for divorce. In the end, the Court said that M. Tarride was right, although some of Mme. Regnier's statements were also true. The father will have the custody of the children, and the mother will have to contribute her share towards their keep, that share amounting to £20 per month.

VAUTHIER is dead. Vauthier at one time was the star at the Porte-Saint-Martin and the Renaissance, where he appeared nightly with Jeanne Granier, Jane Hading, and other well-known artists. He was Lecocq's favourite. In 1874 he created Girofié-Girofla, with Alfonsine and Jeanne Granier; and with the latter artist he also sang the leading rôles in La Marjolaine (1877), Le Petit Duc (1878), and La Petite Demoiselle (1879). It was in Le Petit Duc that Mlle. Milly Meyer made her début. He created in 1880 Belle Lurette, by Offenbach, Léo Delibes superintending the rehearsals. Cooper and Jane Hading were also in the cast. Mme. Hading soon afterwards left the operetta stage to blossom into the great actress we all admire, but Vauthier, as long as he could, stuck to operetta. One of the proudest days in his life was when he was engaged by Lecocq to appear with Mme. Zulma Buffar in the Japanese operetta Kosoki, brought out at the Renaissance in 1876. In that rôle he used to handle his fan with great skill, and remarked to M. Lecocq that he wished that the scenes of all operettas might be laid in Japan. "Why?" asked Lecocq. "Because I could keep my fan, and it is always so infernally hot in the theatres!" He attained the zenith of his glory when he sang le Saïs at the Renaissance with the then great tenor, Victor Capoul. Vauthier then went over to the Nouveautés and the Filles-Dramatiques, where he created Madame Cartouche; thence to the Gaîté, where he was applauded in Orphée aux enfers, le Bossu, la Fille du Tambour-Major. From there back again to the Nouveautés to play Madame Favart. His last appearance in public was at the Variétés, in 1895, in a revival of Chilpéric. In that year he withdrew from the stage and returned to Auxerre, his native city, where he owned a fine property. For if Vauthier worked hard, he earned a lot of money and carefully saved it. Being neither a "borrower nor a lender," he died comfortably off, which is more than we can say of the majority of artists.

THE new "Comité de lecture" of the Comédie-Française—composed of M. Jules Claretie, M. Silvain, M. Truffier, de Féraudy, Lambert, Paul Mounet, Georges Berr, M. Siblot, and Mmes. Blanche Pierson and Renée du Minil—met in conclave to listen to the report of MM. Edouard Noël and Marcel Ballot, who had been entrusted with the mission of perusing the forty plays handed in to the Comédie-Française for approbation. The reports of these two gentlemen were anything but favourable to the authors. From what I hear only three or four have been retained, the remainder to be handed back to the authors. When I say that three or four have been retained, it does not mean that they have been "accepted." They are deemed worthy of being "read" to the "Comité de lecture," and, for all I know, even that little balance may be rejected in the end. Pity the thirty-six dramatists whose hopes of being played at the first Théâtre Français are dashed to the ground!

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY Nov. 17.—No author is perhaps more popular here than Richard Skrowronnek, and deservedly so. His humour is always fresh and spontaneous, and his characters are as convincing as any farce demands. This time the author has not quite attained the pitch of excellence of some of his former works, but the piece was cordially received, and several of the scenes are capital. There is a spice of irony about the plot, and the troubles of a funny playwright are so graphically depicted that it is evident the author has experienced some of them himself at one portion of his career. Ott-Heinrich Winkler is the unfortunate hero. He is a writer of farces, and has pledged himself to supply his publisher with a new piece within a specified time. The much-plagued man has, however, used up all his ideas; his brain is swept and empty; there is not the shadow of a plot or a "situation," or even a joke, in any crevice. The time is nearly up, and poor Winkler is on the verge of mental and physical bankruptcy. The various phases through which he passes form the main attraction of the play; everything is described with so much humour that the paucity of plot is forgotten. A Prussian lieutenant is the "new partner" of the title. He turns up in the nick of time to save the unhappy Winkler, with one of whose daughters he falls in love. The other daughter loves and is beloved by the dramatic critic who has been the writer of caustic articles over Winkler's plays, so that at first it appears unlikely that the course of the lovers will prove smooth. All ends harmoniously, as is the duty of a farce, and everyone is satisfied, both in the play and in the auditorium. The acting was capital all round, so that the piece should have a successful run. That the author was called before the curtain and warmly applauded is a matter of course.

AT the New Schauspielhaus a novelty for Berlin was produced, with indifferent results—the three-act comedy Sternenhochzeit, by MM. Bisson and Thurner. Notwithstanding the very bright acting, the general opinion was not favourable, the piece being, for one thing, far too long for the patience of the audience. As it has already been removed from the bill a further description is superfluous. A very different reception was accorded to a revival of Grillparzer's ever-delightful comedy Weh dem, der lügt, a play that would be sure of a welcome in any country notwithstanding its respectable age. The rôle of Leon, the cook boy, was one of the best in the repertory of the late Joseph Kainz, and was this time very well given by Herr Heinz Salfner, while the part of Edrika could certainly not have been played better than it was by the clever young artist Fräulein Ida Wuest. All in all, the evening was a most enjoyable one.

"DER DOPPLEMENSCH," a farce, by MM. Jacoby and Lippschitz, was given, for the first time, at the Modernes last week. There is little to be said about it, the chief thing in its favour being that it affords Herr Harry Bender—one of Berlin's best low comedians—an opportunity for his talents. This artist is, in fact, the only attraction.

PROF. MAX REINHARDT, manager and lessee of the Deutsches, who is so famous for his mise-en-scene, has been requested by Dr. Richard Strauss to superintend the mounting of his new opera, Der Rosencavalier, at Dresden. Herr Reinhardt has not yet decided whether he will accept the flattering offer.

LIVING PICTURES AT THE COURT.

One of the rare public appearances of Mrs. Kendal was made on Tuesday evening last, when the famous actress assisted at a series of tableaux vivants, organised, under Royal patronage, by the Spanish Circle of the Lyceum Club, in aid of the Queen of Spain's charities. It is not quite correct perhaps to say that Mrs. Kendal made an appearance, for the distinguished actress was only heard, her share of the performance consisting in standing unseen at the wings in semi-darkness and ushering in various tableaux. Thus the chief scenes of Tennyson's poem "The Victim" were illustrated in six sections, Mrs. Kendal declaiming the verses with all the elocutionary power and fluency for which she is renowned. The pictures were beautiful in design and exquisite in colouring, and aroused loud and continued applause. Mrs. Kendal also lent her vocal aid in a series of scenes from Romeo and Juliet, rendering with impressive effect brief excerpts from the play, introducing the dance and the balcony scene; while the tragedy of the tomb was illustrated in three scenes. The picture of the balcony scene was especially praiseworthy, though the lighting, generally well managed, was a little at fault. Scenic aid was called in in many of the sets, and the dresses were magnificant. Various other tableaux, brief but brilliant, were represented, the figures being sustained by numerous members of the aristocracy. Amongst the subjects were "Columbus Before Ferdinand and Isabella," realisations of famous paintings of famous artists, "The Institution of the Garter" (in which the Earl and Countess of Clancarty figured), and "Ancient and Modern Mexico."

Agreeable variation was provided by several accomplished vocalists and instrumentalists. M. Leon de Sousa, from Covent Garden, sang to the delight of all; and Mrs. Lillian Mackenzie Fairfax aroused enthusiasm by her artistic singing of a melodious "Ave Maria," composed by Miss Janotha, and with a 'cello obbligato by Señor Rubio. Miss Janotha was also heard in several solos at the piano, in the rendering of which her sterling ability was warmly recognised. One selection was a tuneful mazurka composed by herself, and containing the fanfare played on the silver trumpets and a lullaby which includes a melody composed by H.R.H. Princess Henry of Battenberg. A feature of the evening was the song in praise of the object of the entertainment, vivaciously rendered by little Vera Le Fleming and a number of picturesquely-dressed children, pupils of Miss Egerton Welch. Spanish songs, with guitar accompaniment, by Mme. Natalia de Mexia and Señor Obregon respectively also proved very popular. The theatre appeared to be crowded in every part, at greatly enhanced prices, and the most gratifying results for the charities concerned should be the reward of the untiring labour and expense which had obviously been lavished on the production of the pictures.

"LOVE CONQUERS ALL," a comedy in one act, by C. Edgar May, was produced for copyright purposes at St. Luke's Hall, Hornsey, on Nov. 10.

MISS PAULINE CHASE will shortly leave the cast of Our Miss Gibbs in America and come to London to appear in Peter Pan at the Duke of York's Theatre. This engagement and one in the provinces will be Miss Chase's farewell to the stage.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Arrangements are proceeding apace with regard to the benefit matinée in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund, which will be held at the Hippodrome on Tuesday, Dec. 13. Several theatrical favourites have generously promised to appear, in addition to nearly all the variety stars then in town.

Our readers in Liverpool are requested not to forget that Thursday afternoon next is the date of the benefit matinée in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund at the local Empire. In addition to the list of thirty-six star artists who are appearing, Mr. Herbert Lloyd, the "Diamond King," has consented to come down from Manchester. The organisers are working very hard to make this, the first provincial matinée, a gigantic success.

The popularity of the grand ballet Femina at the Alhambra is emphasised by the fact that this evening it will reach its 150th performance. In celebration of this event Mr. Alfred Moul will present each visitor with a handsome souvenir. Saturday night performances are generally witnessed by over 3,000 people.

Neil Kenyon, writing from New Zealand, says he has had an offer to play principal comedian for forty-two weeks in Mr. J. C. Williamson's pantomimes, which he has not been able to accept, owing to his month's engagement in America in in January. In any case, he is due at the London Pavilion during the first week of March next. We are pleased to state that Neil, as far as health is concerned, is quite his old self.

Miss Kitty Colyer visited the old performers in the Music Hall Home during the week, and presented each with a piece of silver and tobacco. She also has promised to give each of the old men some warm underclothing, for which the inmates are extremely thankful. The matron of the Home would be pleased to receive any men's old clothes. A committee meeting will be held on Thursday next at the Three Stags, Kennington-road, at 12 noon.

The Water Rats matinée at the Oxford on Monday is already sure of immense patronage. The pièce de résistance will be a burlesque on The Bad Girl of the Family, in which Mr. Wilkie Bard will appear as the lady with the wink. Miss Violet Englefield should see Wilkie. There will be the Quinsey Quintet, who do not want to sing in opera, a weird combination of howling "dervishes," and the Slipinski Troupe of Russian dancers will do the Siberian fling and other dances from the Steppes. Seymour Hicks and George Graves will represent the theatres, and every variety star in town will be there. Mr. Blyth-Pratt has the business in hand, and there is promise of a great house.

Important new powers, relative to the management of employment agencies, have been conferred upon the London County Council, under the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1910. Hitherto the Council's powers have been limited to the registration of agencies for the employment of governesses, female domestic servants, or other female persons in any similar capacity, and to concert, theatrical, or music hall employment agencies, where preliminary or registration fees were accepted. The Act of 1910, however, requires that, with few exceptions, all employment agencies, including those for males as well as for females, in the County of London, shall be licensed annually by the Council.

The first licensing meeting under the new powers will be held at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, S.W., on Dec. 2, 1910, and on the following day, if necessary, at 10 a.m., when the Public Control Committee of the Council will sit to consider applications for licences. The last day for making applications for consideration at this meeting is Nov. 22.

Objections to the grant of licences may be made by notice in writing to the Clerk of the Council at least ten days before the date of the licensing meeting. Applicants for licences, and persons objecting to the grant of licences, may be heard in person, or by counsel, or by solicitor, and may call witnesses before the Committee.

The meeting will be open to the public, but the Committee may conduct their deliberations and consider evidence in private. It is hoped that the exercise of the Council's new powers in this respect will tend effectually to prevent fraud and other irregularities in connection with employment agencies.

Much interest will attach to the bill at the Coliseum next week from the fact that, in addition to Mr. Seymour Hicks in Richard III. and a strong variety company, Miss Denise Orme, the musical comedy actress, will make her first appearance there. Miss Orme has appeared both at the Alhambra and Palace Theatres, and is therefore not a débutante on the variety stage. Mr. Bransby Williams returns after a short absence.

Mr. Alfred Northway, who, early in the new year, will produce a spectacular dramatic sketch, entitled Disarmed, is an exhibitor at the loan collection of paintings by the Rev. Wm. Peters, R.A. (1742-1814), now being held at Messrs. Graves' Galleries, Pall Mall.

Mr. Northway has an unusually fine collection of pictures, containing, as it does, authenticated examples of J. M. W. Turner, Canaletto, Wouverman, Copley Fielding, Clarkson Stanfield, Sir A. W. Callcott, James Stark, George Vincent, Henry Dawson, two water-colours by Prout (which are of additional interest, in having belonged to the late J. L. Toole), a striking contemporary portrait of David Garrick, and many others.

Mr. Arthur J. Barclay, manager of the Herne Bay Urban Council amusement enterprises, has resigned his position to open with Mr. Oswald Stoll as manager of the Croydon Hippodrome. In spite of a season distinguished mostly by bad weather, the Herne Bay Council have finished up with a satisfactory balance, and Mr. Barclay is leaving the popular seaside town with every good wish from his late employers and several nice presents. He was for years resident-manager at Walthamstow Palace, and previous to that experience he held the reins at the Granville.

Mr. Seymour Hicks is preparing for Miss Ellaline Terriss an abridged version of Schiller's play dealing with the career of Joan of Arc, and in that Miss Ellaline Terriss will appear shortly after Christmas as the Lucelle of Domrémy. The first scene is laid in the country at night, when Joan is seen driving her sheep across the moorland, and the second at the Court of Charles VII., where Joan relates to the nobles the story of the strange voices which have prompted her to leave her village home. Joan of Arc was presented as a monologue at the Oxford in the early nineties, with Miss Harriet Vernon, as the victorious heroine, on horseback, in armour. A prologue was spoken by Mr. Frank Lindo. The late Charles Brighton was responsible for the production.

Will members of the M.H.A.R.A. kindly note that the Liverpool offices will be closed on Thursday next, at two o'clock, in consequence of the benefit matinée to be given that day at the local Empire?

Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds, resident-manager at the Empire, Glasgow, has been engaged by Mr. Oswald Stoll for the control of his enterprises in Leicester, and leaves immediately to enter upon his new duties there.

Still another music hall is to be opened in Glasgow. It is to be called the Savoy. It will be erected within the next six months, in close proximity to one of the best theatres, and it is to run two houses nightly.

Helm and Cozens sailed for England on the Cedric on Saturday last after forty-five weeks' tour of America and Canada, and open on Monday at the Empire, Middlesbrough, where they are booked through Sydney Hyman's agency.

Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, at one time one of the trio of Smith, Lee, and Hargreaves running the old Circus, Rochdale, and until recently proprietor of the Rochdale Empire, is responsible for a scheme for the erection of new halls in various towns, beginning with the Palace, Rochdale.

A new sketch, by Mr. Fred S. Jennings, will be produced on Monday next at Willesden Hippodrome, entitled The Chain of Harmony, in which the well-known pianist Carl Junor will appear, supported by a new 'cello player, Little Iva Lea, whom we hear is a great find.

Mr. Wm. McGaw, who was for a considerable time assistant manager at the Coliseum, Glasgow, and during this summer successfully managed the Pavilion Skating Rink and Variety Theatre at Rothesay, on the Clyde, has now been appointed manager of the new Electric Theatre at Bridgeton Cross, Glasgow, which opened this week.

The Birmingham Gaiety, an old-established hall, which fifty years ago was known as Holder's concert hall, will in the future be called the Birmingham Coliseum. Mr. Albert Bushell resigns the managership to-day (Saturday), and the new manager appointed is Mr. P. D. Elbourne, who a few months ago left the Birmingham Hippodrome to go to the Empire Palace, Leicester, on the Moss-Stoll circuit.

The changes taking place in the headquarters' staff of Moss' Empires, Ltd., have resulted in Mr. Sam Gething, district manager for Glasgow, Edinburgh, and Newcastle, being transferred to a responsible post at Cranbourn Mansions. Mr. Gething has been a great favourite in Glasgow since he came there years ago to manage the Metropole Theatre for Mr. Weldon Watts, and his many friends will miss him in the North.

Mr. Fred Higham, the well-known variety agent, who belongs to a distinguished musical family in Manchester, has just composed a set of waltzes, with the title of "The Empire Waltzes." He has dedicated them to the popular Mr. Frank Allen, of Moss' Empires, Ltd. The orchestral parts have been arranged by Mr. Peter Conroy, and the number is now in the hands of the publishers, Messrs. Chas. Sheard and Co.

Mr. Will Stone, whose name is a household word in the populous district of mid-Rhondda, was successful on Friday, the 11th inst., in obtaining a full licence for his New Hippodrome, Tonypandy. The opposition to the granting of a licence was extremely strong and comprised the local Free Church Council and the local theatre and hall. The pros and cons of this up-to-date and beautiful building were much discussed, the licence being finally granted without any reservation whatever.

Mr. J. L. Sachs, who for some time has been in London and on the Continent in connection with the new Alhambra Theatre and Winter Gardens, Ltd., Johannesburg, returned to South Africa by the Walmer Castle. All arrangements have now been completed, and it is expected that the new hall will be open by Christmas, 1911. Mr. Sachs expects to return to England about the end of March. The booking for this enterprise has been placed in the hands of Messrs. H. B. Marinelli, Ltd.

Mr. Harris Fineberg, sole owner of the Star Theatre, Liverpool, announces that he is prepared to sell that well-known and valuable theatre property as a going concern. If required, a large part of the purchase money can remain on first mortgage at an easy rate.

In the early 'forties the proprietor of the Star was Jem Ward, who established harmonic evenings there. In 1845 Ward left to take the York Hotel at the corner of Williamson-square and Tarleton-street. He was succeeded in 1847 by Mr. Hamilton, who advertised that admission was free to the concert-room, and that he purveyed chops, steaks, and wines in first-class style.

Emmanuel Braham was proprietor of the Star in the early 'sixties. He was succeeded as proprietor by David Lazarus. In 1866 it was advertised that the Star Concert Hall would close on July 2 for the purpose of erecting the New Star Music Hall. The New Star Music Hall was opened by the proprietors, Messrs. Ambrose, Fineberg, and Lazarus, on Dec. 26, 1866. Messrs. Joe Simmons and Dan Saunders were the joint managers.

The New Star was capable of holding between 1,800 and 2,000 persons, and cost about £22,000. The interior of the house was designed after the old Oxford in London. The scenery was by Telbin, and there were seventeen performers in the orchestra. The opening bill included operatic selections with Madame Tonnelier and a full chorus, a grand ballet, gymnastic entertainments, and comic and serio-comic songs by Mr. J. G. Forde and Mrs. J. F. Brian.

The report of the Palace and Derby Castle, Isle of Man, for the year ended Oct. 31 last, is to be presented to the thirteenth annual general meeting to be held at Derby Castle, Douglas, on Friday next. The revenue account shows a gross profit of £13,121 2s. 7d. After allowing for payment of debenture interest and trustees' fees, depreciation, directors' fees, &c., there remains a balance of profit and loss account amounting to £9,705 6s. 5d. It is proposed to pay a dividend of five per cent. on preference shares (£3,000), and five per cent. on ordinary shares (£3,500), £1,200 will be added to the reserve fund, and £1,049 carried forward. The expenditure for the year on ordinary repairs and renewals amounts to £822 7s. 10d.

A new dress circle, commodious and well furnished, has proved a profitable as well as greatly appreciated addition to Derby Castle Opera House. Plans for new entrance gate and for lock-up shops at Derby Castle are being prepared, and additions to electric plant are contemplated. Messrs. Dursley and Smith are the directors retiring by rotation. Both are eligible and offer themselves for re-election. The auditor, Mr. M. M. Bridson, also offers himself for re-election.

Miss Millie Hylton is getting on nicely after her recent operation for appendicitis, and she has been much cheered by messages of sympathy from friends, whom she will soon be greeting personally

We are given to understand that Mr. S. L. Francis Clare has resigned his position as secretary of the Agents' Association, which came into existence in 1905

The committee of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund desire to thank the directors of the Encore newspaper for a donation of £5 5s. in reference to their recent competition at the Victoria Hall.

Mr. Willie Benn presented at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday a brilliant comedy sketch entitled The New King. We are given to understand that this act has been booked for a number of weeks.

When Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's new sketch, Dolly's Little Bills, is produced at the Hippodrome on Monday, Jan. 2, the principal part will be played by Miss Ethel Irving, who will be supported by an excellent company.

Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Stanley Brett will appear at the Hippodrome next week in The Pink of Perfection, an amusing little comedy by Seymour Hicks, with music by Walter Slaughter. Among the newcomers are the marvellous blind pianist, Mendel, and Mr. Duncan with his clever Scotch collies.

Griff has returned this week to the Palace, after a lapse of years, to find that he is not forgotten His humour, always of excellent quality, has lost nothing of its quaintness during a long absence in America, where he perfected what is practically speaking a new act.

He now brings with him his son George, who possesses the saving grace of humour, as is seen by the way he assists his sire in hoop-rolling Griff has blossomed into a ventriloquist, and is quite successful in voicing his automaton and carrying on a conversation with it while balancing three spinning plates in his mouth. Prodigious!

The proprietors of Collins's have generously granted the use of their well-known hall for a grand benefit matinée on Thursday, Dec. 1, on behalf of the widow and children of the late Charles Deane. Offers of assistance will be gladly received by the deceased's brother, Mr. Joe Deane, 91, Navarino-mansions, Dalston-lane, N.

There will be another Scotchman in Canada to eat his New Year haggis—and a good Scotchman at that. Alick Lauder leaves on Dec. 17, with a company of talented artists hailing from north of the Tweed. Although at present appearing at the Oxford and singing a low comedy song, Alick's forte is character acting, and especially impersonations of types from the works of Robbie Burns.

Mr. Bennett Scott was the surprised and happy recipient on Monday last of a handsome present from Miss Edna Latonne in the shape of a gold sovereign purse and vesta case combined. Miss Latonne has sung several of Mr. Scott's compositions with great success. It is these expressions of goodwill that add to the joy of life, and give equal pleasure to the giver and receiver.

There has been a passage of arms between two anglers, Mr. Gus Elen and Mr. E. H. Harris, mine host of the Prince of Wales' Hotel, Willesden-lane. Brother Angler Harris sent the following lines to Mr. Gus Elen with these remarks:—"Dear Sir,—As a brother angler, I thought perhaps you could inform me if the statements in the enclosed lines are true.—Yours truly, E. H. Harris. 'Behold the Fisherman! He riseth up early in the morning and disturbeth the whole household. Mighty are his preparations. He goeth forth full of hope. When the day is far spent he returneth, smelling of strong drink, and the truth is not in him?'"

To this Mr. Elen sent the following rejoinder:—"Dear Sir,—In reply to yours, I am afraid there is a certain amount of truth in the lines you have enclosed; but there are fishermen and fishermen! Don't you think you will have a lot to answer for for supplying such 'orrid beverages to your brother anglers?"

Many of our readers will extend their sympathy to Mr. Tom Fancourt in the loss of his wife, known on the variety stage as Miss Jennie Rubie, who passed away on Thursday, after a long illness most patiently borne. The deceased lady had partnered her husband in sketches, and was a clever burlesque actress, whose experience on the variety stage dated back to her early youth.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A on Wednesday the secretary reported that several members of the committee had ceased to be members of the Association owing to the fact that they had not renewed their cards. In two cases, where the members were abroad and unlikely to return to this country, Messrs. Tom Joy and Damerell (of Damerell and Rutland) were co-opted to fill the vacancies. In the remaining cases the secretary was instructed to write to the members concerned to request their subscriptions or their resignations.

Messrs. Tom Gott, Len Teel, and Harry Rogerson were initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Order on Sunday. The ceremony was performed by Terrier Andie Caine, W.T., assisted by Terrier Fred A. Hooper, V.T., and Organist Terrier Arthur Were. Messrs. Frank Sauteron and Reg Wentworth have successfully passed the ballot. Applications for membership have been received from Messrs. Charles Henry Wilks (Captain Kettle), George Frederick Tee (Leon and Tee), and Will Dale (Will and Roze). Candidates who fail to pass the ballot are hereby notified that the nomination fee will be returned to their permanent address.

The kennel was crowded upon Sunday last. Terrier Bert Marsden was the W.D., and Terrier W. R. Dunkley acted as Y.B. The president (Terrier Griff) received a hearty welcome, his health being toasted with musical honours, and warm greetings were extended to Terriers W. H. Atlas, Dr. Frost (also musical honours), H. Cec Mee, G. H. Smythson, Ernest Powell, Jack Barker, J. Goodin, and Ernest Myers.

Terrier D. M. H. Hoffman was presented with the P.W.T. jewel. A proposal to remove to more commodious premises was considered, and, after a long discussion, it was unanimously resolved that a sub-committee be formed to seek premises suitable for a club and to prepare a scheme for the foundation and maintenance of same.

Mr. Edmond Bosanquet had the misfortune on Wednesday to have a valuable fiddle-bow smashed by some careless person, who trod on it at the wings of the Victoria Theatre, Kettering. In the course of his musical act he breaks a faked bow, and on going to fetch the good one he found it utterly ruined. It was a gold-mounted one, and valued at £15 10s., and was presented by Mr. Joseph Hutchinson to the violinist, who has played with it for fifteen years. Luckily Bosanquet has another bow, a gold-mounted Tubb, presented to him at the Canterbury over twenty years ago by the late Mr. C. S. Crowder.

English artists desirous of booking engagements with the United Booking Offices of America should apply direct to the manager, Mr. E. F. Albee, general-manager, Putnam Buildings, Times-square, New York City.

On the occasion of the benefit matinée in aid of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum at the Alhambra on Thursday, Nov. 24, Mr. E. M. Robson will appear in his sketch Doing a Kindness, supported by Miss Dorothy Paget and Miss Mabel Archdall.

Mrs. Langtry (Lady de Bathe) writes us from Regal Lodge, Kentford, Newmarket, under date Nov. 13:—"I think it worth while correcting a paragraph referring to myself in the current issue of your paper. In the first place I have never been described on any bill during my long theatrical career other than as Mrs. Langtry; secondly, my horses are run in my own legal name of Lady de Bathe; and thirdly, I am not engaged to play the de Frece circuit. I shall be obliged if you will publish this letter."

Mr. H. W. Wieland, of the Zæo Agency writes: 'As sole business representative for Mrs. Langtry (Lady de Bathe), I beg to inform you that she is not booked to open at the Pavilion, Glasgow, followed by Barnsford and De Frece halls, but arrangements have been concluded by me this week whereby she is engaged to open with Moss' Empires for a period of twelve weeks, including the Grand, Birmingham; Empire, Glasgow; Empire, Liverpool; Empire, Newcastle; Empire, Sheffield; Empire, Finsbury; London Hippodrome; and Manchester Hippodrome for Mr. Stoll."

Mr. Harry Lucas has resigned his position as assistant-manager of the Grand Theatre, Birmingham.

Mr. Charles Esdale, who has made such a marked success with Miss Decima Moore in A Black Mark, is continuing to support her on her tour and for the opening weeks of the London Palladium at Christmas.

Messrs. Williams and Warden have been engaged to play the principal parts in next season's pantomime at the Britannia Theatre with Mr. Geo. Conquest through Messrs. Neiman and Benn's Agency.

The Elliott-Savonas are going from triumph to triumph on the Continent. Like other English artists, they are experiencing great trouble with their luggage in travelling. The railway allows them nothing. They have to pay for every pound of baggage they carry, which makes their journeys expensive.

Mr. H. G. Pelissier, who is writing the book and music, and will produce the forthcoming revue at the Alhambra, has taken into collaboration with him, so far as the book and lyrics of the revue are concerned, Mr. Montague Compton-Mackenzie, a son of Mr. Edward Compton.

The annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation will be held on Sunday, Jan. 22, 1911. Nominations of candidates must be received at the head office not later than Jan. 14.

Miss Louie Tracy, the dapper dandy boy, who is a huge success at the Palace, Huddersfield, this week, will (with the exception of one week) continue her pr[illegible] until March 6, 1911, when she is d[illegible] six weeks, including a month at th[illegible]n. Miss Tracy sails for Australia[illegible] contract with Mr. Harry Ricka[illegible]

"The Tatler" of the Islington Daily Gazette says: "It was a smart piece of work on the part of Mr. Bertie Ralland, the manager of the Holloway Empire, to inform one of the audience that his house had been burgled, but I am authorised to contradict the rumours that Mr. Ralland informed another gentleman who was placidly enjoying the pictures that his house was on fire, or that an occupant of the circle was told that his wife had run away with the lodger!

Miss Kittee Rayburn will again be delighting Hammersmith audiences at Christmas in the part of the Prince in Cinderella, the pantomime from the pen of Mr. Fred S. Jennings. The riparian dwellers in the river suburb have a warm place in their hearts for Kittee, who will be sure to bring along some taking numbers. Miss Maude Esmond will be the Dandini, and the production will be under the personal direction of Mr. Wentworth Croke.

Last Friday evening, Nov. 11, forty-five members of the Park Club, Kennington, visited the South London Palace to pay a compliment to their members, Carr and Rose. The lady was presented with a lovely bouquet and chocolates and the gentleman with a massive 18ct. gold chain from the president, Mr. Savory, and other members. Carr and Rose were scoring a great success in their latest singing sketch, After a Night Out.

Mr. Tom McNaughton has been obliged to cancel a full season's tour in America (Orpheum circuit) through the forced dissolution of the partnership formerly existing between him and his brother Fred, who has now joined up with Gus Leclercq, and formed a new partnership under the title of The McNaughtons (Gus and Fred). Tom McNaughton is principal comedian with the Christie MacDonald Opera Co. in the States.

Crippen's place of abode, No. 39, Hilldrop-crescent, has been purchased by Sandy McNab for a London residence. The purchase price was £500, the original cost being £1,000. Sandy journeyed from Leeds last Sunday and slept in the building for the first time, using the cellar as a dark-room to develop some photos that he took of the place. On Monday he returned to Wallsend, where he is playing this week. He will be pleased to show any brother or sister artists over the house if they will write him en route, and he will send photos.

The Casino, Paris, and the Alhambra Theatre, Bordeaux, is to be run by a company, of which the managing-director is Mr. Jack de Frece. In reference to the first house, which will start under the new management on Monday, Dec. 12, arrangements can be made for artists terminating their engagements in London on Saturday evening to open in Paris the following Monday. Special reduced terms have also been arranged with the South-Eastern and Chatham Railway Co. High-class novelty acts can apply to the Vaudeville Agency, 178, Charing Cross-road, W.C., The Alhambra, Bordeaux, will open under the new control on New Year's Day.

The nineteenth Bohemian Smoking Concert at the Vaudeville Club on Sunday was under the genial chairmanship of Mr. Ernest Lepard, manager of the Canterbury. Among those who contributed to the revels were Harry Tate, Charles Austin, Sam Stern, Wilkie Bard, Edward L. F. Lloyd, Dave O'Toole, Humphrey Bishop, David Brazell, Joseph H. Bull, Lawrence Crane, Robert Dennant, Ted Honeyman, Donald Keir, Walt Last, Fred Pardoe, Walter Peach, Harry Robinson, George Ross, Captain Spaulding, Jack Stagg, Clay Thomas, Elliston Webb, Frank Wood, and P. Gorton Young. Past King Rat Mr. W. H. Clemart proposed the health of the chairman, who, in responding, presented the club with a life-size oil-painting of the late lamented Dan Leno.

Miss Annie Hughes achieved a conspicuous success at the Pavilion, Glasgow, last week, as Sans-Gêne, in Napoleon's Washerwoman. This was Miss Hughes' first appearance on the Glasgow variety stage, but it will not be her last, as the Pavilion management have re-booked her.

This week, at the Pavilion, Liverpool, Miss Hughes has produced The Fourth Kiss, by W. Douglas Newton. The Fourth Kiss is essentially a "man's play," the woman being quite a subsidiary character. Mr. Mayne Lynton, who plays "the man," has achieved a great success. Miss Hughes is including Caste in her répertoire. Polly Eccles should suit her to perfection.

Mr. Eli Hudson, the gentleman flautist of the trio Eli, Olga, and Elgar, is making a good recovery from the injuries he received in his recent serious motor accident, and hopes to resume work in the course of a week or two.

A fire of a serious nature occurred at Wellingborough just about midnight on Wednesday, at the Empire Music Hall, which resulted in the stage and dressing-rooms being burnt to the ground. The building has been erected about twelve months, and is insured with the Royal Insurance Co., but the amount of damage is not known, though it will extend into several hundred pounds. Of course, it is impossible for any performance to take place in the building for some weeks.

The manager, Mr. Montague Franklin, has stated to an interviewer that after the last performance on Wednesday evening he had a meeting of directors and left the building about 11.45. From the time the public departed from the hall at 10.45 to the time he left the main switch was on, and the wires leading to the stage switchboard were alive. It is quite possible, he thinks, that during that time a wire fused, and was smouldering at the time he left the hall.

He usually leaves the hall by the front entrance in Gloucester-place, and at the time he left on Wednesday night the hall was in darkness, and the scenes being down he thought everything was all right and quite safe. It was quite feasible that if one of the wires on the stage switchboard fused it would be by this means that the stage front caught fire. The whole of the stage was completely destroyed, as was the scenery, not one piece of it being left.

He was extremely sorry to say that the majority of the artists' "props" were damaged, but by water only. The dancing mat belonging to Harvey and Jesson was completely destroyed. The management, according to their rules, are not liable to the artists for any loss or damage to their property during an engagement unless caused by any neglect, but they would do their best to compensate them. He considered that the Wellingborough Fire Brigade worked exceedingly well, and their prompt tackling of the danger saved the building from being completely gutted.

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., the secretary begs most gratefully to thank the following:—Mr. A. McCallum 2s. 6d., Mr. Scott Alexander 2s. 6d., and Miss Marie Smith 1s. (per Mr. Chas. Coborn), Miss Lottie Albert (collection) 10s., collected by Messrs. Capner and Steele from manager, staff, and artists, Picture Palace, Yeadon, 2s. 6d.; Miss Cora Corina, donation, 1s.

Miss Lottie Albert has become an annual subscriber to the York-road., S.E., Lying-in Hospital, in order to hand all the letters to the Guild—a very thoughtful act, and thanks are due to Miss Irene Rose for ladies' boots; Miss Lottie Albert, useful clothing; Miss Queenie Leighton, basket of gents' clothing; and anonymous, two parcels.

Miss Amelia Trapnell (Trapnell Family) has collected £6 7s. 7d., the largest sum in one year, and won the prize promised, which has been forwarded to her. Will friends kindly remember the Xmas Tree and treat we give to the poor children at Christmas time, and kindly send on gifts and funds for same?

What is practically an all-star programme has been provided for a matinée which takes place at the Alhambra on Thursday next, the entire proceeds of which are to be devoted to the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum. The artists who have kindly offered their services include Messrs. Wilkie Bard, Walter Dowling, Mark Sheridan, Harry Tate in Flying, the Four Harveys, Miss Violet Lloyd and Horace Lane in The Girl in the Hobble Skirt, and Messrs. Fisher White and W. G. Fay in a comedy sketch. Amongst the other turns will be Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's patriotic playlet, Fall in, Rookies.

Mr. Tom Woottwell sails to-day per the Union-Castle s.s. Tintagel Castle, leaving Southampton at mid-day for a twelve-weeks' tour in South Africa. This will be Tom's fourth trip, and he is looking forward to it with a special interest, as he will visit places he has not had the opportunity of seeing, such as Buluwayo, Salisbury, &c., in Rhodesia. He hopes to see the wonderful Victoria Falls. He will be with Mr. Leonard Rayne, perhaps the best-known touring theatrical manager in South Africa, who will visit the best theatres with a variety company—quite a new departure in South African amusements.

About eight years ago, whilst Tom was playing for Messrs. Hyman in Johannesburg, Mr. Rayne matched one of his actors to swim against him. The race came off in Rosherville Lake—a dam attached to one of the mines. Modesty will not permit Tom to state the name of the winner. He merely hints that the prestige of the music hall profession was upheld. Miss Emily Lyndale (Mrs. Tom Woottwell) is specially engaged to play a part in Mr. Rayne's sketch, By Royal Command. A Merry Christmas to all pals is Tom's message at starting, and he hopes that they will be as merry as he will be hot.

Mr. Ernest Wightman, the manager of the recently-opened Finsbury Park Empire, has adopted stringent measures with regard to noisy individuals of the hooligan order who delight in rendering themselves a nuisance to other members of the audience. No longer are the "gods," who pay their twopences for admission into the top gallery, allowed to turn the house into a bear garden. No longer are the stalls subjected to insult from above; no longer is the pleasure of the pittites and the comfort of the circle upset by a few ill-mannered youths. Every night the manager, the assistant-manager (Mr. H. Bibby), and a uniformed attendant who has spent twenty-five years in North London and knows a good deal about the rough element, go along the queue, and if a familiar face is found, there is a touch on the shoulder, a word, and exit the obstreperous individual. There is not often any inclination on the part of the "spotted" man to argue; he is generally glad to slink out of the limelight, but occasionally there is a show of bravado. They try to brazen the affair out, but invariably come off second best. The evicted "gods" have held indignation meetings, but to no effect; the management do not relent. To do so would mean the collapse of the most successful policy for keeping a music hall orderly.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE run on a well-known bank is over, but the run on an equally famous and stable house continues unabated. Pantomime producers, managers, chefs d'orchestre, and artists daily throng to that Bank of Melody known the world over as Messrs. Francis and Day's, and just as the Birkbeck depositors were made happy with gold so are the others being sent satisfied away laden with notes of sterling worth.

THAT chief among catchy and rollicking chorus songs entitled "Come with me down Regent-street" will take a paramount position in all the chief annuals, as did its great predecessor, "Let's all go down the Strand." Miss Daisy James and Miss Winifred Ward's fine renderings of this number have fired numbers of foremost artists to emulate their efforts, and to have the gratification of knowing they are associated with a certain applause-getter. Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers.

OF the myriad and one items from Messrs. Francis and Day's catalogue none are more in favour with artists than are "I've got rings on my fingers," "Top o' the mornin', Bridget McCue," and "Down in Jungletown" for use in pantomime. The legion of knowing ones who believe in the old adage of "playing trumps when in doubt" are, with these three favourite items in their hands, together with the greatest ballad of the time "If I had the world to give you," and that splendid one which double turns in pantomime have not been slow to pounce upon. Miss Ada Reeve's "And just then he fell out of bed" is daily gaining new adherents among lovers of a humorous song. Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers of all these ditties.

AN abnormal rise in the number of applications for certain songs for pantomime mentioned below shows unerringly that the barometer of success will be at "set fair" for the whole of the forthcoming pantomime season when their melodies are employed at Yuletide, because, with few exceptions, they have already stood the test of the great theatres of variety. Such numbers as "Flanagan," "I don't mind leaving the dear homeland," "There are nice girls everywhere," "'Tis a faded picture," "Put on your tat-ta, little girlie," "My Mary," "Hail, smiling morn (will you sing this glee with me?)," and "Why does Mrs. Flanagan want to go to the Isle of Man?" are booked, and are being booked, very largely throughout these islands, one and all having earned in many a splendid hippodrome the "thumbs" up of the populace. All are published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT, "the chocolate-coloured coon," has at the Empire, Huddersfield, been packing the house nightly during the current week, and is here, as elsewhere, a favourite without parallel. His songs "Mister Owl" and "There's a little black cupid in the moon" will grace many a first-class pantomime this approaching season, be Cuthbert Clarke's were correct in their surmises. The accomplished musical director has just published this haunting song with Messrs. Francis and Day. The lyric is by Ralph Roberts.

A WALTZ entitled "Lingmoor," adapted to Charles Coote's "Vivete Danse," by J. Finigan, has just been acquired by Messrs. Francis and Day. The same house have in the press an instrumental piece by John Neat entitled "Will, the Whistler" and a new intermezzo by H. Sullivan Brooke which will be known as "Songe de Nuit."

AMONG other publications of Messrs. Francis and Day just acquired mention may be made of "O'Brien," by C. W. Murphy; "Come back, White Man Jack," by C. W. Murphy and F. W. Leigh; "Tell me, daddy, do dreams come true?" sung by Mr. Arthur Lennard, by E. W. Rogers; "That's nice!" (Charles Lilburn), by Fred Murray and F. W. Leigh; "Hennesey," by T. W. O'Connor and Herman E. Darewski; and "Oh, father! when you married mother!" (Miss Florrie Forde), by Harry Castling and Charles Collins.

HENRY E. PETHER'S new humorous song "Saving twenty pounds a year (Mary Jane! we shan't want her again!)" is in the press, having been secured by Messrs. Francis and Day. It deals with the tribulations of a family who endeavour to "do" for themselves—and very nearly succeed. The verses are by Edgar Bateman.

"SHIP AHOY!"

A Nautical Divertissement, in One Scene, by C. Wilhelm, Music by Cuthbert Clarke, Produced by Fred Farren at the Empire on Tuesday, Nov. 15.

Leontin L'Etoile ..... MLLE. LYDIA KYASHT

If that well-found liner "The Empire" be not "enthroned a queen upon the sunny fields of ocean" it makes a brave show upon the stage of its theatrical namesake in Leicester-square. We have no "grim broadsides with loud prophetic roar," but a taut craft, spick and span from midships to bows, with a crew of merry-hearted sailors, whose feet twinkle in hornpipes and other cheery dances of the main. There are passengers of course. Colonel Currie, a retired Anglo-Indian officer, is returning to England with his wife and two daughters. They are attended by an ayah, who recognises a ring on the finger of her mistress which has some fateful significance. When one of the Miss Curries falls overboard the ayah takes the ring from the finger of the fainting mother and gives it to a native servant. The theft is soon discovered, and attributed to Mlle. Leontin L'Etoile, a French danseuse, who from the commencement of the voyage has attracted the attention of Algy Fanshawe, coming home on leave. By means of a magic crystal the true culprit is discovered, and all is again harmony.

Crew and passengers give themselves up to the delights of a fancy dress ball, and in a brace of shakes the ship's deck looks like a dream palace of the Arabian nights under the glow of lanterns. The attractive and agile representatives of Great Britain, France, Spain, Russia, and America flaunt in the breeze of popular favour the flags of their several countries, and the evolutions are exceedingly pretty. We have, too, a Hungarian dance from the French danseuse, who is finely played by the fascinating Lydia Kyasht. She is joined by M. Zalevsky, a dancer new to the Empire, who is responsible for a classical solo as well as for some excellent work in support of the Russian prima donna. One of the most popular numbers is a waltz in which Lydia is partnered by Mr. Fred Farren, whose inventive power is seen in the continual movement and brightness of the whole spectacle. Mr. Farren also does a hornpipe, a remarkably neat and deft performance, and the crew of charming ballerine, dressed as handymen, after swabbing drill, let their feet go in the typical sailors' dance. Miss Unity Moore, who returns to the Empire, has a characteristic solo; and Phyllis Bedells, who is growing quite a big girl, scores a hit in a characteristic number. Miss Beatrice Collier has none too much opportunity as the ayah, but in miming the part imparts something of the mystery of the East to her rendering. The coloured lantern dance is one of the prettiest effects of the ocean revels, and Mr. C. Wilhelm's artistic hand is seen everywhere in the costumes. The wigs are again from the atelier Clarkson, who has done well. Mr. Cuthbert Clarke's music is for the most part merry and bright, and always appropriate.

Mr. George Robey as the village blacksmith, who swings a heavy sledge—"the last word"—and deals out topical hits, is a pure joy to the gilded youth at the Empire, and his account of Charles the Second is a valuable lesson in English history. For a few further particulars of the Merry Monarch and the ladies of his court George might do worse than read the lively pages of the "Memoirs of the Comte de Grammont."

The Plumbers is being successfully played by Mr. Robert Whyte, jun., Miss Emily Spiller, Mr. Harry Grattan, and Miss Blanche Doris. Valazzi is astonishing everyone with his cannon-ball feats; Mr. Fred Russell's ventriloquial act is ingenious, witty, and interesting; The Fawn is a fantasy that gives delight by its musical qualities, its interpretation by Mr. Fred Farren and Miss Lydia Kyasht, and by its beautiful setting; and other turns in Mr. Harry Hitchins' fine bill are Henry and Tyler and Olga Tcharna.

"AN EPISODE."

Comedietta, by Cyril Twyford, Produced at the Coliseum on Monday, Nov. 14.

Victoria Dalrymple ..... MISS KATE CUTLER
Robert Wargrave ..... MR. FRANK TENNANT

On the stage we are getting quite used to lovers and husbands who disguise themselves as burglars to frighten their fiancées or wives, as the case may be; and another variant of the theme, produced on Monday at the Coliseum, is An Episode, from the pen of Cyril Twyford. Victoria Dalrymple, an actress, has become engaged to Robert Wargrave, who brings her from the theatre to her flat. There he urges her to hasten the wedding, but she is playing in a successful piece, and will give him no hope until the end of the run. He takes her to task for her carelessness as to her jewels, especially a pearl necklace. She lives, too, on a ground-floor flat by herself, and Robert points out the danger she incurs from the enterprising cracksman. She makes light of his apprehensions, and shows him a toy pistol that she assures him she knows how to use. On his leaving Victoria gets into a peignoir and retires to rest. She has scarcely done so when her lover returns in slouch hat and brown coat, carrying a lantern. He at once pockets the toy pistol, and, making a great noise in his clumsiness, alarms Victoria, who returns, and, turning up the lights, soon penetrates Bob's disguise. After fooling him to the top of his bent by a pretence that she has sent for the police, the pair fall into each other's arms. The piece serves its purpose in enabling Miss Kate Cutler to make her rentrée to the London variety stage after her sojourn in America, but she will undoubtedly soon be presenting something more worthy of her abilities. She looks particularly charming in a very pretty dress and also in the daintiest of dressing-gowns. Mr. Frank Tennant did his utmost with the stupid part of the lover-burglar, who does not give much credit for discernment to the smart girl he will one day make his wife.

MARCH-SONG "Take your girlie where the band is playing," in a position to call "Wellington" every time. Messrs. Francis and Day publish all five songs.

"On the silvery sands" will, of its class, be "the only pebble on the beach" this Christmas-tide. Near and far the fame of this tuneful and witty song has been noised abroad, and the verdict of one and all of those best qualified to pronounce judgment is that it is a worthy compeer of that other great song "In the twi-twi-twilight," a song that few pantomimes were without in its year. "On the silvery sands" is being applied for from all points. Messrs. Francis and Day issue it.

THE two pantomime books—No. 1 for principal boy and girl, and No. 2 for comedian and dame—issued by Messrs. Francis and Day, have had, and still are having, a great vogue this season, it being known everywhere that their pages comprise the absolute pick of the pantomime songs for this year. The firm's grand selection of popular melodies, entitled "The best of the bunch," is also known to be up to its title, and the merry budget of melody will form the overture to many annuals on Boxing Night.

KEEN interest is being evinced over that new rollicking song of Percy Edgar and Huntley Trevor's, "Everyone's key fits my street-door," and Henry E. Pether's music, as usual, enhances the merit of a lyric that is being sought after. A like happy fate is befalling Messrs. Rich and Rich's "We don't want a girl," a most laughable item, as is ever the case with their numbers, and it will interest not a few of his multitudinous admirers to learn that both these ditties have been included in the new "Album of G. H. Elliott's Popular Songs" just issued by Messrs. Francis and Day. In addition to "I used to sigh for the silvery moon" and "Mister Owl" the volume also contains "I want to go to Idaho," "Sue, Sue, Sue," "How d'you do, my baby?" "Ma Havana queen," "I'se a-waitin' for yer, Josie," "The lonely bachelor coon," "Baby Lucy," "Good-bye for ever," "Sweetest little pebble on the beach," "'Rastus Brown," "He's my military man," "Maisie, I'm a-waiting," "Caroo," and "Lazy Maisie." The volume contains a critical appreciation and biographical sketch of the artist by Charles Wilmott, and is adorned with a striking portrait of Mr. Elliott in private life.

THE latest additions to Messrs. Francis and Day's series of sixpenny popular editions comprise Mr. Billy Williams' "When father papered the parlour"; the exquisite song, sung by Miss Clara Beck, entitled "You taught me how to love you, now teach me to forget"; Mr. Tom E. Finglass's great number, "My baby"; Mr. George Bastow's "Captain Ginjah, O.T."; "The sylph waltz," a new round dance by H. R. Johnson (composed by Clement Harris); and Mr. Rowland Hill's laughable "Why does Mrs. Flanagan want to go to the Isle of Man?" The catalogue of Messrs. Francis and Day's sixpenny pops. now consists of no fewer than 664 titles.

"SCROOGE."

An Adaptation, by Arabella Allen, of Charles Dickens's "Christmas Carol," produced on Monday, Nov. 14, at the Queen's, Poplar.

Scrooge ..... MISS ARABELLA ALLEN

'Tis Christmas Eve, and the miserly Scrooge is giving vent to his opinion on the wanton waste of time and money common at this time of year. After severely rating his clerk for his impudence in requesting a day's holiday, Scrooge falls asleep and dreams he is visited by the spirit of his late partner, Marley. It tells him it is required of every man that the spirit within him should walk abroad among his fellow-men, the poor and needy, and if that spirit goes not forth in life it is condemned to do so after death; it is doomed to wander through the world witnessing what it cannot share, but might have shared on earth and turned to happiness. It warns Scrooge of the same fate, and the terrible consequences connected therewith. He awakens from his dream in terror a changed man. The lesson it teaches he has learned. Drawing aside the curtains, the light streams in—'tis Christmas morning. He opens his door, calls in all and sundry, bestows presents all round, and gives them all a happy Christmas.

Miss Allen, whose clever impersonation of characters from the novels of Charles Dickens are well known, has surely eclipsed all her previous triumphs in this, her latest. Aided by a clever make-up, and a voice wonderfully disguised, her performance stands as a brilliantly dramatic and effective one. Miss Allen is particularly powerful in the dream scene, her strong character acting drawing forth bursts of applause. The sketch, which is exceptionally well staged, is certain of proving a popular feature in all programmes, and should keep this talented young artist busy for a long time to come.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

In ever-increasing volume, pantomime demands for all the principal vocal gems of the Feldman catalogue keep pouring in at Arthur-street, in a continuous flood. Well might this be; for this go-ahead firm certainly possesses a list of already tried and proven "winners," before which even the records of other successful years fade into insignificance. Last year's great Feldman ballad "Somewhere" literally took the world by storm, and sold in hundreds of thousands of copies; yet, even greater than "Somewhere," a song has arisen on this season's horizon which will eclipse even its wonderful predecessor. We refer to that ubiquitous ballad "Beautiful garden of roses," the song that one hears at every turn, in the homeward 'bus, tram, or tube; the song that every pantomime producer throughout the land is specially featuring. Principal boys are everywhere deciding on it as a pièce de résistance.

One of the most loudly applauded items on the splendid current bill at the Oxford is "Beautiful garden of roses," as exquisitely played on the harp and other musical instruments by the Miles Stavordale Quintette; in fact, something like a furore is the nightly reward meted out to them for this most musicianly and altogether delightful offering. Miss Lily Eyton is singing this number on the Gibbons tour nightly with great success, and another talented exponent in London is Miss Alice Tremayne (of Claff and Tremayne).

"He came, was heard, and conquered" is a paraphrase that may fittingly be applied to Mr. Mark Sheridan, in connection with his last and best "seaside" number, "By the sea." At the Tivoli, on Tuesday last, when he for the first time gave the comedy chorus song that is going to figure in over a hundred pantomimes, its West End début, "for five nights only" (the genial Mark being booked for Walthamstow and Tottenham for next week), enthusiasm ran riot. Artists who then had the felicity of hearing Mr. Sheridan's perfect rendering of this perfect song, instantaneously declared it what Messrs. Feldman have all along claimed it to be—the comedy chorus song of the year, par excellence. Any principal boy who misses this song is losing the biggest potential winner for pantomime yet exploited on the halls of variety. Mr. Sheridan himself is giving the song a special pantomime production at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, in a scene specially written for the song.

Rumour, which has for the past few weeks asserted that Feldman and Co. had an Irish chorus song likely to outrival their last year's big Hibernian hit, "Molly O'Morgan," has certainly not lied in the case of the song in question, "Maggie Ryan from Dublin Town," for no song for many a long day has been received with such vociferous applause at the Granville, Walham Green, as this has, as rendered by Miss Carlotta Levey this week. It "hit the bull's-eye" of popular approval from the very first line and bar, and the chorus was wholeheartedly taken up by every auditor. Miss Levey, at the Oxford on Monday next, will make "Maggie Ryan" her special offering, and both principal boys and girls should certainly embrace this opportunity of hearing the song that is going to be one of the undoubted "hits" of this year's pantomimes.

The Romps at the Holborn Empire this week are going greater than ever in Feldman's brilliant march-time comedy chorus song "Oh, boys, I've seen you there," which elicits a perfect tornado of applause from all their delighted hearers. This is the ideal dashing principal boy's song of the year, and as such has already been decided upon by all the most astute managers and artists. A visit to the Holborn Empire what time the Romps occupy the stage would effectually decide all waverers to at once make "Oh, boys" their very own for pantomime.

The annals of the Richmond Hippodrome can record no greater hit than that made by Miss Maggie Carr this week with Feldman's beautiful song of the sierras, "Silver Bell." Listened to with rapt attention, which is the meed of both the dainty lyric and delightful music, the termination of the number was the signal for an outburst of applause of the heartiest description. Miss Carr is producing this song in the West End shortly, probably at the London Coliseum, and it may be specially recommended to the notice of all pantomime artists who prefer songs of a romantic tendency, with fine scope for spectacular display and effect.

Miss Josie Collins is now including in her dainty and refined entertainment at the Oxford and other West End houses that charming ballad "Everywhere I go I leave my heart with you," which suits the fair singer like the proverbial glove. Miss Collins will also specially feature Feldman's two big successes, "I wonder if it's true" and "By the light of the silvery moon," in pantomime this year. Both these songs are in great demand among principal girls, and are ideal numbers for dainty parts, such as Alice in Whittington, and the like.

The fame of that really fine duet for principal boy and dame or comedian and principal girl, "The barber's ball," is rapidly permeating Pantomimeland, for every post brings the house of Feldman a sheaf of letters asking for permission to introduce this great number in pantomime. If artists have any doubts as to the desirability of this number for pantomime purposes a visit to the London Pavilion, where the Two Bobs are going great guns with this racy item, would show them how a good song, well sung (and danced) goes with an audience keen to appreciate tricky words and excellent music.

That delightful young actress and vocalist Miss Mabel Green, who has done so much with her sweet rendering to popularise Feldman's two splendid songs "I wonder if it's true" and "In the sunny Engadine," will on Monday next produce Feldman's latest acquisition, a most charming number, entitled "In your gown of white and gold." This number is what may be termed a "surprise song," and all who have heard it declare it gives every promise of being one of the hits of the season.

At the Ardwick Empire Mr. George Lashwood is going bigger than ever in that delightful song "Pat O'Hare," which is being eagerly taken up for pantomime all over the country. This number will figure in one of the first pantomimes of the year, and its success as a pantomime medium for principal boys and light comedians playing Dandini and parts of that kind is assured.

At the Walthamstow Palace this week Miss Ella Retford adds triumph to triumph with Feldman's greatest song (next to "Garden of roses"), "By the light of the silvery moon." Many performers must surely have seen Miss Retford in her most finished and artistic interpretation of this song, for the daily number of applicants for pantomime permissions is legion. Every town and city of note booked the song many weeks ago.

Mr. Harry Simms at the Empire, Belfast, this week scores very heavily indeed with Feldman's "goey" chorus song "Lead me towards the girls," and his Hibernian auditors are not slow to appreciate the racy humour contained in the distinctly humorous verses and most effective chorus. Decidedly a hit—a palpable hit!

That dainty number "Little Miss Importance," rendered so popular recently at the Oxford and other West End houses by charming Miss Josie Delaine, will certainly prove of very vital importance to principal girls in a goodly number of this year's pantomimes, for numerous indeed have been the demands for this number at Feldman's during the past few days, and the author and composer of last year's great song hit, "Little girl from nowhere," are to be congratulated on having written so "likely" a successor thereto.

Messrs. C. Sheard and Co. have been inundated with requests for the use of "Aboo Tabah" (the Whistling Sergeant of the Pacha's Guard) for pantomimes with Oriental scenes. This quaint item, probably the only actual Turkish intermezzo at present before the public, will figure in every pantomime of importance having an Eastern setting this Christmas.

That catchy item was featured by the Whitehall Military Band (conductor, Mr. M. Maske) during their lengthy engagement at the Japan-British Exhibition at Shepherd's Bush, creating quite a sensation. So much so that other bandmasters all over the country are awaking to the public requirements in this direction. Messrs. Sheard publish the orchestral and Messrs. Boosey and Co. the military band parts.

"My Lancashire Lass" is another song that the popular Lancashire tenor, Mr. Will Norrie, is popularising on his South African tour. Mr. John Hart has selected it as the song to be featured in his forthcoming pantomime, as well as the "Aboo Tabah" Turkish intermezzo mentioned above.

From every part of the country Messrs. Sheard and Co. continue to receive calls for H. W. Petrie's song, "The roses tell me of you," as well as for St. Quintin's "What would my life be without you?" and Marcus Hope's "Don't break your loving heart for me." No pantomime love-sick hero can afford to miss these delightful songs, each eloquent in the language of Cupid.

Of course, "T.R.O.U.B.L.E." ("Those wedding bells are ringing"), Joe Archer's sure-fire hit, is keeping the Shaftesbury-avenue firm very busy, and humorous pantomime producers are featuring the song with the chorus of "Wedding belles."

Encouraged by the success of "T.R.O.U.B.L.E.," Messrs. Sheard have secured for publication Joe Archer's comedy soldier song, "What would England do without the men like me?" which he reports as "simply storming 'em." Messrs. Harry Castling and Charlie Collins are to be congratulated on finding another big winner for the genial and racy Joe.

Schmid and Dempsey's captivating song "If you must love someone, won't you please love me?" looks certain to get there in pantomime this Christmas. Messrs. Sheard report that Miss Barbara Evangeline, Miss Elsie Forster, and several other charming artists have this week selected it, either as their special pantomime song or to work on the halls. The same writers' other song, "Moonlight in Jungleland," is also being taken up for pantomimes, both on account of its intrinsic merit and the scope it affords for effective staging.

"Asleep in the deep," "When the ebb-tide flows," and those other really great bass ballads "Neptune!" (Lord of the Sea am I) and "The Volcano" are unique in their way, and must not be overlooked by demon kings and others this Christmas. In them, Messrs. Sheard are fortunate to possess the only real bass songs on the market to-day.

"Oh, Miss Malinda" (When evening time comes round) looks like duplicating its huge American success in this country. The coloured couple, Grant and Grant, and Miss Ethel Alberts are this week's recruits to the army of vocalists who are gaining applause and reputation by means of this tuneful number.

"Queen of the Land of Pearl and Gold," J. F. Lambe's and T. W. Thurban's charming and fascinating special pantomime efforts, is going very strong and well. All the principal pantomime managers in the United Kingdom have it under consideration, on account of the £2 2s. requisite permission, but several artists have other already secured it, or are anxious for their various managements to do so for them.

Karl F. Hooper and J. Chas. Moore, of the National Music Publishing Co., 132, Charing Cross-road, W.C., are at present working under exceedingly high pressure, endeavouring to cope with the shoals of letters daily increasing, owing to the increasing popularity of that great ballad, "Why do you wait for to-morrow?" Their morning letter bag has grown to enormous dimensions. A member of the staff was overheard to say the other day "Everybody is going absolutely crazy over the song. I'm worked to death, and if the rush holds on I shall certainly give notice, and look for a situation where the work is lighter and winners less plentiful."

"Why do you wait for to-morrow?" is a ballad par excellence with a chorus once heard never forgotten. We would advise all pantomime artists and managers who have not yet secured this winner, to do so immediately. In the opinion of those who know, the song that will eclipse "Why do you wait for to-morrow" has not been written.

Fred E. Cliffe and J. Chas. Moore have written together an exceedingly funny dame song, entitled "We all want to canoodle with somebody," published by the National Music Publishing Co. Mr. George Robey has already secured it, and intends making it a big feature in his forthcoming pantomime. The patter which Mr. Fred E. Cliffe has specially written for Mr. Robey will be found equally useful to all comedians playing dame who are looking for the real good funny comedy business. This is the same business that made such a hit at the Apollo Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, and was also used by Mr. George Robey in last year's Birmingham pantomime.

George Formby has just produced a most laughable song, entitled "I'm learning the lockstep," another perpetration by Fred E. Cliffe and J. Chas. Moore. The authors claim George Formby's lockstep song to be the original, as far as music halls are concerned, considering the fact that it was written and sold to George Formby when The Man from Mexico was first produced. We think the authors are quite justified in claiming it to be the first in the field.

"Sammy in his tam o'shanter hat," written by Fred D'Albert, Frank H. Fox, and J. Chas. Moore, also published by the National Music Publishing Co., is being quickly snapped up. This catchy chorus bids fair to outdo everything before it.

Mr. Arthur Cockerill, London and provincial representative of the Variety Bookings Agency, has been suffering from a severe attack of influenza, which has confined him to the house for the past three weeks. He is now convalescent and back in harness.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE accumulated evidence of the past month or two points unerringly to the fact that A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's beautiful chorus ballad, "I wonder if you miss me sometimes," will be one of the greatest favourites ever heard in the history of pantomime. Practically every manager and producer in the kingdom have arranged to feature this delightful number in Christmas productions. Principal boys and girls, not forgetting fairy queens, who have decided to sing the song, have a feeling of confidence that only a real "natural hit" can give them. The secret of this great success is that in addition to an ear-haunting melody, the words "ring true"; they are not overdone with sickly sentiment or impossible propositions, yet the passion of the heart is revealed with a master touch. In "I wonder if you miss me sometimes" the Star Music Co. have the greatest winner they have ever yet published.

As among ballads "I wonder if you miss me sometimes" reigns supreme, so in the bright and breezy type of song there is none to compare with A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's sparkling number, "Fall in and follow me." To use the words of one of our principal boys, "There is no competition; it is an easy first favourite, with all rivals miles behind." And from the moment King Pantomime starts his reign at Glasgow in the first week of December this amazing fact will be demonstrated beyond all possibility of doubt. Charles Whittle, who is the privileged singer of this phenomenal song on the halls, declares it "easily the best chorus song he has ever exploited," and for an artist with his record of successes this is wonderful indeed. The Star Music Co. are the publishers.

MISS DOROTHY WARD, whose lightning-like rise to popularity in the halls is a topic of conversation in professional circles, has been featuring as her principal number A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's brilliant march song, "Cheer up, my Highland lassie." On no occasion has Miss Ward been able to retire after singing this number with less than four recalls. This song is a great favourite with pantomime managers and producers. Amongst others, Mr. Francis Laidler, of the Theatre Royal, Leeds, and Prince's, Bradford, will produce this song on a really gorgeous scale in his forthcoming pantomimes. Naturally Miss Ward will feature the number as her extra special contribution in the pantomime at the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle. The Star Music Co. are the publishers.

G. H. ELLIOTT, the original chocolate coon, more than satisfied all expectations when last week he produced at his London engagements A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's eleventh hour stormer, "Here comes the chocolate major." Ringing cheers and applause rewarded his efforts, and the audience took up the sparkling chorus with a spontaneity that surprised even such a successful chorus singer as G. H. Elliott himself. This week at the Hippodrome, Huddersfield, he is duplicating his success, only, if possible, "more so." Pantomime artists and managers in doubt as to the dashing march song to feature in forthcoming productions should secure a copy of the song without delay from the Star Music Co., who are also the publishers of the same authors' and artist's delightful number, "Loo, Sue, Mary, Dinah." This is acknowledged by experts to be the most original coon number written for many years, and is a great relief after the inevitable "moon" song, which has been so overdone.

MISS MAY MARS returned to London on Monday to the scenes of former triumphs, the Tivoli and Metropolitan. Miss Mars, who is a great favourite at both houses, received a warm welcome, and established herself a greater favourite than ever by her artistic rendering of A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's dainty and catchy song, "What d'ye say, Molly Molloy?" This is the kind of number one cannot dismiss from the mind. There is a pretty little trick in the melody that fastens itself on to one's brain cells and will not be expelled, no matter what other melodies one may hear. This is one of the Star Music Co.'s special selections for pantomime.

HAL FORDE, the favourite light comedian, has just returned bronzed and fit from South Africa, where he has made a record success. His biggest hit has been A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's humorous and melodious number, "What's the matter with London?" This song he was compelled to sing at every performance. Hardly less successful was he in that fine comedy number, by J. P. Long, "It's my night out to-night." Mr. Forde is singing both songs with exceptional success on the London halls. The Star Music Co. are the publishers.

MISS EDNA LATONNE, the lady with the voice, who is rapidly ousting all rivals as a male impersonator par excellence, was the recipient of a right royal welcome in the shape of solid applause when her number was put up at the Euston and South London on Monday last. Miss Latonne's two contributions (by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott) were "She was a girl in white," which she has made so exceedingly popular, and the charming descriptive song, "Homeland, goodbye." Miss Latonne dresses in perfect taste, and her phenomenal voice and pleasing manner have made her a warm favourite wherever she has appeared. Both her numbers are published by the Star Music Co.

HARRY CARLTON has just placed two songs with the well-known firm of Keith, Prowse, and Co. One a clever comedy song, entitled "The other pair of shoes," and a beautiful ballad, entitled "My world is a world of sunshine," of which report speaks highly.

MISS LOUIE TRACY, the dapper dandy boy, has secured a fine comedy nautical number from the pen of Harry Carlton (the writer of all her other successes), entitled "There must be something nice about a sailor." Sam Mayo has also secured a new song by the same writer.

A VERY quaint song, being eagerly sought after by pantomime comedians, is "I never, never, never, never saw such a thing before," written and composed by Worton David and Bert Lee. Von Tilzers are receiving applications for the song from all directions, and have already reserved the rights for a number of towns.

MISS GERTIE GITANA has just produced a charming new number entitled "My Indian Maid (Till that moon shall cease from shining"), written by Worton David and composed by R. Penso. The song proved an instantaneous success, and the published rights have been secured by the Von Tilzer Music Co. Miss Gitana's other new song, "When the summer days are o'er, Anna Gray," is earning her much well-deserved applause for her delightful rendering, and provokes repeated encores. We should not be surprised if this ballad eclipses Miss Gitana's two former successes, "In the evening by the moonlight, dear Louise," and "When the harvest moon is shining, sweet Eileen," which have been popular so long.

AMONG the new sixpenny editions shortly to be published by Von Tilzers are to be found a dainty ballad entitled "Someland," which will be specially featured in pantomime in Birmingham by Miss Carrie Moore, and "I shan't go back to Aldershot," one of Miss Ella Shields's recent successes.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE BEDFORD.

A bright and varied entertainment is to be found at this popular hall this week, and Mr. C. J. Scarisbrick, the genial manager, finds business most flourishing. The honours of the evening are divided between Alec Hurley and Will Evans, both excellent in their differing methods. Alec Hurley presents a delightful turn now, working alone and without any of the big company he has had in the past. Three capital songs he brings with him, each very telling; but the favourite perhaps is his last, "I'm nobody in particular," which is sung in a quiet confidential way, and with such point that the singer has to leave his audience clamouring for more.

In a more boisterous fashion, Will Evans, that delicious grotesque, keeps his audience in shrieks of laughter—first by his announcement that he has a chorus but no verse, and asks the audience to supply him with one. This causes endless amusement, and to follow he gives us his screaming burlesque, The Villain of the Piece. A smart turn is that of the Three Torontos, who sing and dance in a pleasing manner; the younger of the two ladies is a capital dancer and a pianist of no small merit. Ardell and O'Dell present their eccentric act, Quarter to Nine, and give a display of clever acrobatic business. Reg. London, the skating comedian, goes well, and Lily Ray contributes a song with a neat dance to finish, and scores well.

A very artistic dancing scena is presented by La Valti and her bevy of girls. Their first effect, The Spirits of the Foam, with the aid of the biograph, which gives a fascinating effect of bathers in a rough sea, is most striking, and the serpentine dances which follow, and conclude with "Father," the second—an exquisitely humorous item—is entitled "If the wind had only blown the other way," and the third, the well-known "Mother is a leader of society." Miss Scott's success is very great, and thoroughly deserved, for she possesses great talent.

Lee and Kingston are responsible for a tabloid musical comedy, entitled A Resourceful Lover, an original and uproariously funny item, and Miss Florence Cooper achieves much success as a vocalist. The Doleful One, sometimes known as Walter King, introduces us to one of his melancholy dames, much to our amusement, and the Saxonia Family, Continental musical experts, provide a splendid turn with their playing on various musical instruments.

Miss Fanny Robina proves herself a fine burlesque actress and vocalist, her methods being of a type that are unfortunately rare on the stage nowadays.

One of the best troupes of trick cyclists that we have seen for some time is the Jackson Family, eight in number, who contribute a turn that rouses the audience to great enthusiasm. The troupe includes Leo Jackson, who claims to be the premier trick cyclist of the world, and we should think his claim is justifiable.

Mr. Harry Randall, ever popular, sings two or three songs of the type always associated with him, and with his usual great success. Mr. Randall is to be seen at the Drury Lane pantomime again this year, a fact which it is good to note. The remaining item (with the exception of the Bioscope) is the famous sketch, The Little Stowaway. It is a little bit late in the day to say much about Mr. Fred Bowyer's little play, except to remark that the company on this occasion is a particularly good one. The title-rôle is played cleverly by Miss Marjorie Armstrong, Captain Worsley by Mr. John K. Walton, Lieut. Burton by Mr. Geo. Wilson, the Eton boy by Mr. Beven Lorimer, and the widow by Miss Maude Osmond. The sketch is well produced by Mr. Bertie Shelton, and excellently staged and dressed. Mr. Lewis Vincent is the always genial acting-manager, and he has a much more than merely capable assistant in Mr. Herbert Mack.

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

An excellent evening's entertainment can always be secured at the above popular hall, for not only are the turns well varied and selected, but the best stars of the variety world can always be found here, brilliantly shining in their own way, and assisting very materially in making the programme what it always is—entertaining and enlivening. Foremost on the bill this week is Mr. George Robey, who, although suffering from a very severe cold, still deals out his humour. His numbers are "Wow, wow" and "Mignon," two extremely funny items. Scholey and Scholey, two male artists, have an amusing skit, in which they appear with conspicuous success.

Miss Alice Yorke and Mr. Tyler score a success in their humorous duologue A Yacht for Sale. The piece is a comedy of errors right through, and has an amusing termination. Both artists enact their parts with considerable skill. It is many a long day since we heard a violin player possessing such wonderful ability as Rinaldo who, very fortunately for music lovers, is on the bill here this week. Olive Dene, a pretty comedienne, sings a cowgirl song in excellent style, and afterwards dances with taste. The Smarte Brothers perform some really clever acrobatic feats with wonderful ease, and Devon and Earle show remarkable ability and much agility in their clever wooden shoe dances.

Bert Byrne and lady have an amusing item in On the Pier. Their patter is extremely smart, and much laughter is the result of their performance. Mr. Pop Dearly, the dandy coon, has a good chorus song in "She's a lump of love and cuddle," which he makes go with a swing. Miss Aimee Robert scores in her number, "T-e-m-p-t-a-t-i-o-n," and her second song, "Picking daisies in the dell," sung in Lancashire dialect, is highly enlivening. She fully deserves the appreciation shown her. Maddison and Webb are clever song and dance artists, who make much out of a little material.

The thrilling dramatic episode, entitled Saved by an Ape, is performed by Mr. Arthur Conquest and company in a manner worthy of warm praise. The sketch contains both pathos and excitement, and the interpretation, staging, and mounting are everything that could be desired. Mr. Arthur Conquest still maintains the great reputation won by his family in his impersonation of the ape.

SOUTH LONDON PALACE.

A varied and amusing entertainment is presented to the patrons of the above house by Mr. W. Payne this week. Miss Flo Cecil is a dainty comedienne, who meet with a good reception; Miss Molly Wynne is a charming soubrette, singing in a very vivacious manner a catchy number, "On the banks of the Seine"; Miss Mildred Bryan, described on the programme as "the charming Irish mezzo-soprano," appears in a very hobbly-hobble skirt, and sings with a good deal of power "There's a land." An excellent series of child studies, both pathetic and humorous, is given by Mr. Wilson Hallett, and the Five Havannas create some amusement in a rough and tumble act.

Mr. Phil Ray causes much merriment with his quaint patter songs, in which his abbreviations are extremely droll, and the Two Bobs quickly establish themselves in the good opinions of the audience with a clever and diverting entertainment, given for the most part at the piano. Colley and Scott do well in a comedy duologue and dancing act, and Barnes and Ascot literally bring down the house with a really marvellous exhibition of buck-dancing. A distinctly clever and artistic turn is that of Miss Edna Latonne, who in immaculate male attire, sings with much success her two numbers, "What's the matter with London?" and "Homeland." Miss Lottie Lennox, an old favourite here, scored in her two songs, "My home, sweet home" and "Put on your old plaid shawl," the choruses of which were quickly taken up by the entire audience. On Monday evening Miss Lennox introduced a new number which she sang for the first time, "Old pals are best of all," a song with a good chorus, which will doubtless catch on. An interesting series of pictures is shown on Ruffell's Bioscope, and the orchestra is heard in some tuneful selections.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

In a well-varied bill this week Malcolm Scott looms largely, and is decidedly popular. Attired in a "Nell Gwynne" costume, which is very provocative of mirth, he keeps the audience in the best of humour with his unctuous quips and cranks and spontaneous sallies. Stratford will eagerly anticipate another visit from Malcolm Scott. The Korries win a favourable reception for their musical act. Each is a skilled pianist, and, in addition, the lady sings and dances well and the gentleman contributes other instrumental music, their act being spiced with a clever blend of comedy. Chris Van Bern in a miscellaneous entertainment combines mystery and merriment to excellent purpose. His numerous conjuring tricks are adroitly performed, and are additionally enjoyable owing to his comedy interludes.

Jack Smiles, the aptly named one when one watches his expansive countenance, is in great form this week. The chorus of his "tongue-twister" "Fish Sauce" is taxing local audiences mightily in their manful (and girlful) endeavours to repeat it, and a new song in "That'll be all to-day" should stand him excellent service judging by its reception. Metaphorically speaking, Jack's big feat is his concluding dance, which completely justifies the repetition of his catch phrase "I wasn't going," for he is recalled time and again. Fasola, the Indian fakir, submits some remarkable illusions, quite bewildering in their frequency. No sooner have the audience got over their first gasp of astonishment, than wonderment is aroused either at a petite lady being produced from an apparently empty box or by the obtention of live birds from a felt hat, or other magical tricks. Perhaps on the night of our visit something extra uncanny was anticipated from him, for Fasola commenced his performance by exhibiting an empty vehicle, then closing the doors and producing therefrom—Jack Smiles! Tom E. Finglass is seen to much advantage in a dramatic coon scena, his singing, dancing, and make-up therein being very meritorious, and the introduction of a young lady assistant adds to its effectiveness. His other number, telling of a new baby which, to the coon's surprise, is black, like its father, is also in high favour, and his turn wins very hearty applause at its conclusion.

Fred Karno's company in The Football Match with a new Stiffy, the goalkeeper, in Mr. Will Poluski, jun., is easily repeating its former success here, the many ludicrously funny incidents which occur being received with unlimited laughter. Iva Voyce sings a ballad very acceptably; and Vincent's acrobatic table exposition evokes keen interest. The Bioscope pictures are, as usual, an enjoyable item of the current programme; and to early comers pleasure is afforded by the orchestral selection, Rossini's "Tancredi," ably performed under the direction of Mr. Albert Whipp, Mus.Bac. Mr. E. J. Macdermott directs affairs here with urbanity, and he has a courteous lieutenant in Mr. A. E. Barnes.

EALING HIPPODROME.

In a programme including the Great Coram, the Lotto, Lilo, and Otto trick cyclists, and three excellent sketches, Mr. J. A. Molloy and his lieutenant, Mr. H. Wentworth, present a budget of novelties that must satisfy the greed of the most voracious of variety-hunters. On Monday evening Mr. Coram's automaton Jerry—who, with his master, has blossomed out into a full-rigged Territorial—was in the best of forms, and his outbursts, insolent or droll, but all humorous, kept the house, from footlights to topmost gallery-rail, in a continuous roar. The bike-footballing of Lotto, Lilo, and Otto is the clou of the entertainment presented by the world's comedy cyclists.

Harold Nuttall's company presents The Ghost of Jerry Bundler, written by W. W. Jacobs and Chas. Rock. In the one and only scene—the Interior of an Old Inn late at night—is assembled a party of gentlemen. Over whiskey and cigars the conversation turns upon ghosts, and a bet is made by a daring spirit that no supernatural visitant shall frighten him. Of course, when the pretended shade of the departed Jerry comes upon the scene there is a frantic sauve qui peut, and the devil take the hindermost. Smartly played, the sketch evoked roars of laughter. Into the comedy scena The Ideal Woman the Violet Shelley Trio manage to pack fifteen minutes of rollicking fun. Unknown to his wife, an author, under the pseudonym of Allen Clare, has written a work of which the lady strongly disapproves. He also receives a request from the office of a daily paper, whose circulation is the largest in the world, asking for an article upon the ideal woman. As he draws the parts his listening wife, thinking these are really his ideals, determines to realize the situations, and in doing so not only manages to mystify her husband, but also to thoroughly amuse the audience.

In the third sketch-episode, Barmaids, written by Harry Lowther, and presented by Messrs. Hodgson and Lowther, there are all the elements of a capital variety interlude, and the producers set a good example in giving the names of all the cast upon the programme. Tadwell Teague (Mr. Chas. James), having dined and wined perhaps too well, has proposed to three barmaids, under the idea that they are all married ladies, but, on the discovery that they are spinsters, matters seem likely to end in the High Court of Justice. A fine character study of the waiter Dixon is given by Mr. Harry Lowther, who is responsible for most of the laughter-making of the comedy.

The Misses Vera Leslie as Cissie Baker and Doris Dale as Flossie Wyndham looked pretty and acted well as the daintily-dressed barmaids; while the comic element in the trio of Hebes was supplied by Miss Rene Howard as Tatter; Miss Hulo Hodgson being the Mrs. Teague. The merry little absurdity ripples with fun. Miss Iris Banfield makes good use of her voice. Jack Lorrimer, with "The wedding-day" and "Wee Scotch Polly"; Maudie Francis, juvenile comedienne; and Sam Poluski, with his coon song "Clo from Ohio" and his dancing à la Russe, are other items in a generous bill.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

A programme of exceptional interest is being presented at this cosy hall by Manager Francis, and is proving to be of great drawing power. Many, of course, are attracted by the beauty competition, which for some time past has been assiduously billed around the district. From the competing candidates three are chosen each evening, and these are to take part in the final. The honour of determining the favoured three is left to the discretion of some half a dozen gentlemen, who constitute a sort of committee.

A prominent place in the legitimate programme is taken by Miss Daisy Dormer, who looks just as charming as ever. For her first number she gives "Why don't you go to Lancashire?" which proves to be a capital vehicle for the display of this comedienne's ability. This is followed by that old and tried favourite "I wish I lived next door to you," the chorus of which, needless to say, is readily taken up by the patrons of the "top shelf." Daisy afterwards dances in her own inimitable manner, and on concluding has to bow her acknowledgments many times. Miss Ruby Zethus, a versatile youngster, plays the cornet in a most finished manner, and gives impersonations of well-known music hall artists.

Harry Claff, who has the assistance of a dainty comedienne in Miss Alice Tremayne, submits a capital turn. Miss Tremayne's song "Beautiful garden of roses" is much to the liking of the house, and all through she gives this popular comedian much assistance. Their duet "Love, love" is also excellently rendered. That popular coster comedian Alec Hurley is happily suited in a couple of numbers, viz., "Come along my little 'Liza" and "I love her as my life." The latter number especially appeals to the house. As an encore he gives "I ain't nobody in particular," the music of which is particularly catchy. The Brothers Bright successfully perform difficult feats in a way that makes them appear facile in the extreme, and Carl Lynn gives some fine imitations of birds, animals, &c. Lulu Camplin is heard to advantage in "Don't talk so loud" and "Should have been mine by rights"; and Miss Burley and partner give a clever acrobatic performance in which both work hard.

A comedian with a unique style is S. W. Wyndham, the lucky possessor of three excellent songs, of which he makes the most. On concluding he is most generously rewarded. Some capital female studies are given by Albert Letine, who sings "You must be up to date" and "How do you like my style?" Clever patter and an extraordinary display of the terpsichorean art are responsible for Naughton and Gold being many times called before the curtain, and the singing and dancing of the Sisters Belmoir is greatly admired. Other contributors towards a pleasant evening are Frank Maura and Carson Hicks.

MUSIC AND DANCING LICENCES.

In continuation of our last week's report of the licensing proceedings of the Theatres Committee at Clerkenwell on Friday, the 11th, the chairman announced that the licences of the London Hippodrome would be recommended to the Council subject to the same condition which they approved last year, viz., that the sale and consumption of liquors should not be consumed in the auditorium.

FULHAM EMPIRE.

Mr. F. E. Smith, K.C., supported the application of Mr. Oswald Stoll for a music and dancing licence for the Fulham Empire, proposed to be erected in Fulham-road, between the Walham Green station of the District Railway and the Stamford Bridge Athletic Ground.

The learned counsel said the site on which it was proposed to erect the building was nearly three acres in extent, which Mr. Stoll had entered into a contract to purchase. This area was more than adequate to the fulfilment of all the ordinary requirements of the committee and of the County Council. He need hardly remind the committee that Mr. Stoll, in this class of business, had an unusual and wide experience. He was managing-director of Moss' Empires, Ltd., who, among other enterprises, owned the London Hippodrome, the New Cross Empire, the Holloway Empire, the Stratford, and the Finsbury Park Empire.

Mr. Stoll was a gentleman to whom the committee had entrusted the conduct of important enterprises of a similar kind. He provided an entertainment of the highest class. Nearly all his halls were run on the two-shows-a-night principle, and they afforded exclusive engagements to the artists who were employed at these places of amusement.

No drink licence was here applied for, and it should be clearly understood that Mr. Stoll was willing to undertake not to ask for any modification of that arrangement. There was a population of 350,000 residents in Fulham and adjacent districts. If the committee resolved that the number of places of entertainment should not be added to, the result would be to give a monopoly to existing places, and he submitted that the policy of the committee had always been in the opposite sense. It was not their duty to afford protection to existing institutions of this kind.

Mr. Oswald Stoll, examined by Mr. Knight, said he was managing-director of the Coliseum, which gave entertainments that satisfied respectable audiences. The same thing applied to similar halls, such as the Hackney Empire and the Finsbury Park Empire. He always endeavoured to cultivate the patronage of the family because they were more numerous than the single individual. Mr. Matcham was his architect, and he was a man of great eminence in theatrical construction. The house would be one of the most up-to-date houses in London, as the experience already gained would be utilised in the building. He considered the structure would be a local improvement of the greatest importance.

Mr. Knight.—Have you any instance of any one of your halls depreciating the value of surrounding property?

Mr. Stoll.—On the contrary; I have found that adjacent property has gone up in price. I know, because I have had occasion to buy it. (Laughter.)

Is it your intention to open this theatre at any time on a Sunday?—No.

Not even for charities?—I do not wish to open it at all on Sundays.

Cross-examined by Mr. George Elliott on behalf of many ratepayers, Mr. Stoll said he had had no request from any body of persons to go to Fulham.

You went there in the interest of Mr. Stoll?—I had no invitation to go there. I am conscious that I have been opposed in every place where I have opened a theatre. I know I am being opposed by some members of the borough council.

Mr. Elliott.—On the ground that it will depreciate property?—I do not think it will.

You are not asking for a drink licence?—No.

He did not believe that the theatre would depreciate property in the neighbourhood. In other places the result had been just the reverse. He simply catered for the public, and where he thought the public required a drink licence he always asked for it.

Was there a difference between the frequenters of the Coliseum and the inhabitants of Fulham?—There are many differences of taste between the people of any large district.

What opportunity have you had of testing the taste of the people of Fulham?—I give my experience generally in running these variety theatres without a drink licence.

Replying to Mr. Duke, K.C., Mr. Stoll said he was at present controlling something like thirty variety theatres, but he was resigning from twenty-one, leaving nine, with the addition of the three now applied for.

He had booked artists for the three new theatres up to 1914, but if the buildings were not completed the contracts with the artists might be postponed.

Have the London music halls increased by 50 per cent. within the last few years?—They have increased. The population has also increased.

Have the expenses of conducting such entertainments largely increased at the same time?—They probably have increased. I do not think the salaries have increased, because the artists are now able to appear twice a night at two different halls.

There are about twenty-five picture palaces in the neighbourhood of this Fulham site?—There may be more.

What are the estimated takings of the proposed Fulham Empire?—Between £500 and £600 a week.

Several witnesses were called in favour of the application.

The application was opposed by Mr. Custance on behalf of the Rev. W. A. Prunell, New King's-road, Fulham, and on behalf of the trustees of the Walham Green Wesleyan Methodist Church, on the following grounds: (1) Depreciation of church property; (2) moral and religious injury; (3) educational; and (4) discomfort; by the Rev. G. H. Vincent, rural dean, St. John's Vicarage, Walham Green, on the grounds that the proposed premises will be adjoining the Walham Green Wesleyan Church and in close proximity to St. James's Church and other places of worship; that the clergy of the Church of England of the borough of Fulham view with grave apprehension the increasing number of places of amusement of the class proposed, as they make the specific objects for which they are working more difficult of attainment; that the clergy of the Church of England of the Borough of Fulham have the greatest possible sympathy with the London County Council in its scheme for continuation classes and technical instruction of young people, and they find from actual experience that there is no greater hindrance in the attainment of the object for which they and the Council are working in common than the counter attraction of such places of amusement as the one proposed, and that there is ample provision in existing places of amusement to meet the demand of that class of the community who desire to be catered for on these lines; and that the clergy of the borough pray that the council will, by refusing the application for a music and dancing licence for the proposed Fulham Empire, prevent there being thrust upon the neighbourhood a place which is unnecessary and in every respect undesirable.

The application was strongly opposed by the Granville Theatre of Varieties, for whom Mr. Duke, K.C., appeared. It was contended that there are already a sufficient number of places of entertainment in the neighbourhood. That the proposed site is about 250 yards from the Granville, and is surrounded by a large number of halls within a short distance, amongst others being the following: Hammersmith Palace, Putney Hippodrome, Chelsea Palace, Battersea Palace, Shepherd's Bush Empire, Grand Theatre, Clapham; Fulham Theatre, King's Theatre, Hammersmith; Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith; and a large number of picture theatres, concert halls, and skating rinks.

Mr. Hale, chairman of the Granville, examined by Mr. Duke, said the building had been opened for twelve years, and cost about £30,000. The prices of admission varied from 3d. to 1s. 6d. The artists who appeared at Mr. Stoll's houses also appeared at the Granville. It was estimated that the new theatre would draw about £40 per week from the Granville takings, and this would wipe off all the shareholders' profits. Last year, when the Hammersmith Variety Theatre was closed for rebuilding, the Granville takings increased, and 10 per cent. dividend was paid; but since the Hammersmith reopened at Christmas last the receipts had diminished. The Hammersmith was a mile and a half away, whereas Mr. Stoll's proposed house was only 230 yards from the Granville.

In cross-examination by Mr. F. E. Smith, the witness said the takings of the Granville were about £250 or £300 a week. His opposition to Mr. Stoll getting his licence was because he thought it would injure the Granville.

Mr. Duke, K.C., apposed the application, on the ground that the proposed theatre was not required, and that the committee should not sanction anything in the nature of a monopoly.

The committee retired at 5.30, and on their return the chairman announced that the committee had decided to recommend the Council to grant the application.

KILBURN COLISEUM.

Mr. Oswald Stoll next applied for a licence for music and dancing for the Kilburn Coliseum, proposed to be erected in High-road, Kilburn.

Mr. Gill, K.C., supported the application, which was originally opposed by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Councillors of Hampstead, on the ground that the needs of the inhabitants of the immediate neighbourhood, and of the general public, were at present amply provided for, but the learned counsel now stated that this opposition had been withdrawn.

It was also objected to by several influential residents on the grounds that the locality was amply provided with music-halls, picture palaces, and other places of amusement, and was within easy, speedy, and cheap communication by railways, electric trams, and omnibuses with the principal West-End halls, and that the multiplication of music halls in the locality was undesirable in the interests of the public and would greatly depreciate property, cause decrease of rateable value, and injuriously effect the welfare, comfort, and quiet of the inhabitants.

Mr. Bodkin, who opposed the application, called witnesses and presented a petition signed by influential residents against the proposed building.

After a long hearing, the committee retired, and on their return the chairman said they would recommend the Council to grant the application.

At the sitting of the Committee on Saturday Mr. H. J. Greenwood, the chairman, again presided.

EUSTON HIPPODROME.

Mr. F. E. Smith, K.C., appeared in support of an application by Mr. Oswald Stoll for a music and dancing licence for a proposed new music-hall, to be called the Euston Hippodrome, to be erected in Euston-road and Chesterfield-street. The application was opposed by by Mr. J. W. Barrett, 313, Gray's Inn-road, on the grounds that the present music-hall known as the Euston meets all the requirements of the locality; that an additional music-hall would most probably have an increased detrimental influence upon young people coming up from provincial centres; and that in view of the fact that the policy of governing authorities tended towards the decrease of licensed premises it was feared that the evil if not checked in time becomes in its uses as great as the existence of too many other licensed premises. It was also opposed by Mr. I. Ibbetson, secretary of and on behalf of the Oxford, Ltd., and the Variety Theatres Consolidated, Ltd., on the ground that the neighbourhood is already well supplied with places of public entertainment, and is within easy access of the West End and other parts of London where numerous other places of public entertainment exist. Mr. J. H. Meurice, Mr. H. F. Willis, and Mr. J. Curry opposed on the ground that the new hall is undesirable in the interests of the inhabitants, and would affect the comfort and welfare of the public, and cause further depreciation of property in the locality. Further objection was offered by several clergymen in the locality, on the ground, among others, that the proposed hall would be opposite a large Wesleyan church in Chesterfield-street.

Mr. F. E. Smith said that after the edification which the proceedings of the previous afternoon had afforded all of them, he proposed that the general evidence given on that occasion should be taken as applying to the present application.

Mr. H. E. Duke, K.C., for the Euston, assented.

The committee retired at 5.30, and on their return the chairman announced that the committee had decided to recommend the Council to grant the application, on the understanding that at the confirmation sessions that evidence should be capable of reference.

The chairman intimated that that would be observed.

Mr. F. E. Smith, describing the locality of the proposed new building, said it would be situate just outside the St. Pancras and King's Cross stations, and would be five doors away from the present Euston Music Hall. It was within the jurisdiction of the St. Pancras Borough Council, who did not oppose. The objections came mainly from private persons. There was no intention to sell intoxicating liquors or to apply for permission to give Sunday entertainments. So far as the clerical opposition was concerned, he would only say that there were others beside Wesleyan clergymen in the district who did not take the same view that they did. The question was whether is was desirable in a matter of this kind to create anything in the nature of a monopoly. The new hall would be an exceptionally fine one, and an ornament to the neighbourhood.

Evidence was then called.

Mr. Goss, a printer, said he got up a meeting of influential tradesmen in support of the application. Their opinion was that 95 per cent. of the tradesmen were in favour of the new hall as being an advantage to the neighbourhood.

Cross-examined by Mr. Elliott (on behalf of the local residents): He lived several miles from the district. (Laughter.)

Mr. Matthews, J.P., late Mayor of St. Pancras, said he was a fruiterer, and he had lived in the neighbourhood for forty years. (Laughter.) The feeling of people of position as to the proposed new hall was that the only hope for Euston-road was to be found in large buildings. (Laughter.) The road was dead as a residential neighbourhood, and the new building would be an advantage in the respect he had indicated.

By Mr. Elliott: Euston-road had been a wreck for years. (Laughter.)

Mr. Elliott: And Mr. Stoll's music-hall will bring it back to life? (Laughter.) Do you suggest that forty more music halls would be a good thing—do you stop at one?—I would consider any application that was made. This is one large building to start with. (Laughter.)

Supposing a large workhouse was erected, would that meet your ideals? (Laughter.)—No, I would prefer a large hotel to that. (Laughter.)

Do you want to see forty music halls or forty Wesleyan chapels?—Neither; I want to see large buildings. Hotels for preference. (Laughter.)

Mr. Smith: Then you are a moderate man. (Laughter.)

Mr. Stoll, called, said the cost of the new building would be from £30,000 to £55,000. It would be designed by a skilful architect, and quite exceptional in style. The Vicar of St. Jude's (the Rev. A. Newns, whose name was among those opposing) had written approving the idea:—"After a visit to the Coliseum, you have taken away my misconception of what I contemplated a music-hall would be." (Laughter.)

Mr. Smith: Since his visit your vicar has found salvation?—Yes. (Laughter.)

Mr. Stoll added that there was no intention to apply for a drink licence.

Cross-examined by Mr. Elliott: Sixpence would be the minimum price charged. The Euston Hall was quite a modern building, and it was only a hundred yards from the proposed site.

Cross-examined by Mr. Duke: It would be a two-show-a-night house. It was proposed to erect the house next to the Euston Palace. He believed it would do the Palace good. (Laughter.)

Mr. Duke: Well, we will not pursue that imaginary advantage. (Laughter.)

Mr. Stoll said the Camden Hall had been closed. It seated 1,900. The seating capacity of his new house would be 2,200.

Mr. Duke: Would you tell the committee what amount of takings you anticipate would make this Hippodrome a paying concern?—I anticipate taking £800 per week, but it would pay at a less figure.

You propose to give the same entertainment as at the Coliseum?—Yes, with a water-power feature. The average of salaries at the Coliseum is about £800 a week.

Mr. Duke was referring to Sunday concerts held at the Euston Hall for charitable purposes under sanction of the County Council, when the chairman said it should be understood that the County Council gave no sanction for Sunday concerts.

Mrs. Jenkens, of Argyll-square, about two minutes from Euston, said she had signed the petition against the hall under a misapprehension. She told the gentleman who called on her that she was in favour of the music-hall. (Laughter.)

Mr. Smith: And you find that your name appears as against it?—Yes. (Laughter.)

And for all you know the other 5,000 signatures against the hall may have been obtained in the same way?—Yes.

Mr. Smith: And the wonder may be that the signatures are not 50,000. (Laughter.)

The Registrar of South St. Pancras also gave evidence. He was present at the laying of the foundation stone of the Euston, and had not been there since.

Mr. Elliott, K.C.: And you are now looking forward, perhaps, to its death, and the birth of the new hall. (Laughter.)

This was the case for the applicant, and evidence was called for the opposition.

Mr. J. W. Barrett, a caterer, of King's Cross-road, said he thought the new hall would interfere with the social work of the district.

Mr. Smith: Do you know the Rev. Mr. Newns?—Yes.

He is a highly conscientious and religious gentleman?—Well, I don't know about that now. (Laughter.) We had to chastise him on one occasion upon the question of public morality after a deputation to the borough council. (Laughter.)

Mr. Smith: Not physically, I hope?—No, by word of mouth. (Laughter.)

Mr. Smith: You have been to the Coliseum, and it has in no way sapped the bulwarks of your morality? (Laughter.)—I am not conscious of the fact. (Laughter.)

The Rev. Thomas Horwood, curate of St. Jude's, Gray's Inn-road, of which the Rev. Mr. Newns is the vicar, said in his judgment there was no demand for this hall. The Euston provided ample accommodation.

Mr. Smith: You have a great respect for the judgment and experience of your vicar?—Yes.

The witness wished to explain that it was arranged that he should represent the vicar at the deputation to the council on this matter, but at the last moment the vicar turned up and spoke himself in an opposite direction. (Laughter.) Since then, however, the vicar admitted that he had been totally duped over the matter. (Loud laughter.)

Mr. Smith: You say that you told the vicar that there was going to be an application for drink to be sold at the Coliseum, and that that changed his views?—Yes. It was a characteristic of human nature——

Mr. Smith: I don't want you to anticipate next Sunday's discourse, if you please. (Laughter.)

The Witness: I don't pretend to interpret my vicar's opinion.

Mr. Smith: If an undertaking were given that no drink shall be sold in the new hall, would that alter your opinion?—No. I think the house is not necessary.

Do you know that the vicar has seen the performance at the Coliseum and has thoroughly enjoyed himself? (Laughter.)—Yes.

Do you think the judgment of the vicar, who has seen the performance, is better than your own?—No, I don't, when I know my vicar. (Loud laughter.)

Mr. Smith: Do you happen to recall what St. Paul said about "the subordination of curates?" (Much laughter.)

Mr. Joseph Curry also gave evidence in opposition to the new hall. There were, he said, eighty-three places of amusement within two miles of the proposed site.

Mr. H. F. Willis said he was of opinion that the new hall was perfectly unnecessary.

Mr. Smith: I never said the place was necessary. That is not my case.

Mr. Elliott, in addressing the committee for the residents, said far be it for him to forecast what the future relationship between the vicar and curate of St. Jude's might be. (Laughter.) He hoped that, under spiritual environment, it would eventually be found that all was well between them. (Laughter.) He submitted that the opinion of the residents was entitled to consideration.

Mr. Henry Tozer, chairman of the Euston Hall, also gave evidence against the necessity of the new theatre. There were, he said, fifteen variety theatres within a mile and a half of the Euston, besides picture palaces, and the competition had become serious. During the last four years the average profits of the Varieties Consolidated Company, which owned the Euston and other houses, had been 4½ per cent. This year they were paying no dividend at all. Since the opening of the Camden their takings had seriously fallen. The share capital of the Consolidated Company was £130,000. They paid in salaries £16,000 a year at the Euston out of about £17,000, the annual takings. The neighbourhood was sufficiently served.

Mr. Smith: Did you consider when you asked for the licence for the Euston whether you would injure the Holborn Hall?—Yes, we consider those matters.

By Mr. Duke: The entire industry was approaching a crisis, and he thought they might contemplate a financial crash within the next twelve months.

The Chairman: You say the Camden is now closed. What difference has that made to your takings?—Well, it has only been closed a fortnight, and it is difficult to say. It has made a difference, however.

Mr. Lucas, manager of the Bedford, said that the opening of the Camden affected their takings about £60 a week. It had converted what was previously a profitable house into a losing one. He denied that he had ruined the Camden. He had not personally opposed on this occasion, because he had spent about £2,000 on these matters, and he was not having any more of it. (Laughter.)

Mr. Duke, in addressing the committee, said the discretion of the committee must be "according to the rules of reason and justice." The question of the character of the Euston-road had nothing to do with the subject; the only consideration was whether there was a public demand for another hall, and he submitted that no such demand was made out. People ought not to be encouraged to be mutually destructive. They had reached the point when they might anticipate something in the nature of a financial crash. Mr. Stoll's scheme must end in a gigantic monopoly. The new hall was to be set up almost at the door of the Euston, and one or other of them must extinguish the other. He asked the committee to consider whether in the interest of free competition and of the public, the time had not arrived when a stop should be put to these gigantic schemes.

The committee, after deliberating in private, decided to grant the licence on the understanding that intoxicating liquors should not be sold on the premises and that no application should be made in future for the holding of Sunday entertainments.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—One of the incredible anomalies of the time is that the modern music hall is governed by the antiquated Disorderly Houses Act of George II., passed in 1751.

Under this Act, no music hall can claim a licence except at the Michaelmas Quarter Sessions, which are being held this week, notwithstanding that theatres, under the Act of 1843, can obtain a licence for any length of time at any period of the year.

In November, 1907, I inaugurated a movement to abolish this injustice, and to give music halls the same rights as theatres, so that variety houses, like theatres, might obtain a licence at any time during the year.

The London County Council took up and continued my work, and at the end of eighteen months introduced a Bill into Parliament to relieve the modern music hall from the absurd conditions of the Act of 1751.

Unfortunately, no progress could be made with the Bill, and it was dropped before its second reading; and so the work is to be done all over again.

I have again taken the first step necessary to revive the agitation by setting down the following notice of motion on the agenda paper of the L.C.C.: "That, in view of the fact that the Music and Dancing Licences (London) Bill, 1910, which was introduced by the Council with the object of obtaining powers to grant music or music and dancing licences at any time during the year, was dropped before its second reading, it be referred to the Theatres and Music Halls Committee to consider and report as to the necessary steps to be taken at once to re-instate the Bill."

—Yours faithfully, WALTER REYNOLDS.

"THE DISPATCH BEARER."

A Dramatic Episode, in Three Scenes, by Miss Florence Reeves, Music by Adolphe Webb, Produced at the Islington Empire on Monday, Nov. 14.

Frederick Ivanoff .....MR. BERT MORLEY
Jack Alderford .....MR. FRANK STONE
Rupert Leticoff .....MR. CHAS. FREEMAN
Jules Lemastria .....MISS FLORRIE ARTHURS
Madeline Lemastria .....MISS ROSABELLE DODD

This little play, by Miss Florence Reeves, which was presented for the first time on Monday last at the Islington Empire, contains most of those features which make for success in vaudeville playlets. It deals with intrigue, both political and moral, and has in addition the necessary human element to assist the progress of the story.

The plot is briefly as follows. General Ivanoff, the Minister of War in a nebulous country in the Near East, is discovered at the rise of the curtain concluding a consultation with his officers regarding some political developments which may lead to war. It is necessary for him to place the whole matter before his sovereign, and to this end he has penned a most important dispatch which he decides to entrust to his step-son to ensure safe delivery. Alderford is betrothed to Madeline Lemastria, the tool of a money-lender named Leticoff, an agent in the secret service of his Government, who is using this love interest as a means whereby he can get hold of the dispatch. The woman herself is a creature of circumstances. She is the cast-off mistress of Ivanoff, by whom she has had an illegitimate child, and after having sunk to utter destitution has been taken out of the gutter by Leticoff, to whom she has to be blindly obedient. Naturally enough her feelings towards the Minister of War are of the bitterest kind, and though she is fond of his step-son, she is quite eager to aid Leticoff, and worms most of the details as to the dispatch out of her infatuated admirer, with the object of ruining Ivanoff. While Ivanoff is walking about his room, considerably worked up by excitement, he notices a small boy hovering near the window. He drags him inside, taking the child for a spy, but discovers that it is in reality his own illegitimate child, whom he cannot publicly acknowledge without scandal.

He determines to send the boy to a sergeant of the guard, so that he may be taken off the streets, and leaves the apartment to write a note. The boy notices figures outside the window, hides, and Madeline and Leticoff enter to secure the dispatch. The latter goes to the safe, and in attempting to open it rings the electric alarm bell. He manages to get off, but Ivanoff intercepts Madeline, and each recognising the other, there is a short scene. She attempts to blackmail him, without success, and getting desperate, attempts to draw her dagger. He closes with her, and Leticoff, entering, stabs him and secures the dispatch. They disappear, thinking that the crime has not been witnessed, being ignorant that the boy was there.

The next scene is A Booking Office at the Railway Station. Here we find Alderford, following them in the hope of again getting possession of the dispatch, and he is being aided by the boy. Madeline and Leticoff appear, and the latter, noticing the boy standing very close, seizes him and half strangles him. Madeline intercedes for him, and after a short scene also recognises the boy as her own.

The final scene is an elaborate affair, showing an express train at full speed, and giving the audience a view of the interiors of the compartments. Alderford is in one, Madeline and Leticoff in another, and the boy is in the goods waggon. Madeline and Leticoff quarrel over the division of the proceeds for the dispatch, and in the ensuing struggle the boy gets hold of the document, which he returns to Alderford. Leticoff is then arrested for the murder of Ivanoff, and in his rage and despair he wrecks the train with a bomb, the explosion killing Madeline.

There is certainly no lack of exciting episodes in the playlet, and the vigorous action of the plot was considerably helped by some excellent acting. Mr. Samuel James, who was at one time the managing-director of this hall, when it was known as the Grand Theatre, is a well-known man locally, and the production has excited interest in the neighbourhood. He has succeeded in securing a well-balanced company to present the trifle.

Mr. Frank Stone, who appears as Alderford, is a popular personality in Islington, having played in the stock companies in the old days. His performance on Monday was vigorous and of that quality that would be expected of him. He is also entitled to congratulations for the efficient manner in which he discharged the duties of producer and stage-manager. As Ivanoff, Mr. Bert Morley submitted a very dignified and eminently satisfactory performance. Mr. Charles Freeman as Leticoff managed to depict the very unpleasant characteristics of that gentleman with complete success. Miss Florrie Arthurs, who is apparently a very young lady, had a very great deal to do as the boy, and is certainly entitled to praise for some excellent work. Miss Rosabelle Dodd as Madeline acted with conviction and force, and possesses in addition an excellent stage appearance. The mounting is exceedingly good, and Mr. Adolphe Webb's incidental music effective. The playlet was listened to with the greatest attention, and received a most cordial greeting from the audience.

EAST HAM PALACE.

An interesting and novel feature of the programme here is the engagement of Ram Bhuj, the necromancer of the Himalayas, whose wonderful presentation of mysticism is quite astounding. Mention must be made of the exquisite scenery of an Oriental description which adds to the weirdness of the performance. Walter Bird's company, in the comedy sketch, Her Husband, is excellent, and the sketch teems with droll and funny situations. Mr. Ernie Lotinga as Jimmy Josser, a cowardly burglar, is intensely humorous. The McNaughtons, styled "the new firm," in all the latest up-to-date funniosities, display all the resource of clever and experienced comedians, and keep the audience in continual laughter by their eccentricities.

A classical musical turn is given by Roma and Romani, including excellent duets on numerous instruments. Their rendering of "The Lost Chord" on the saxophone is delightfully tuneful, and evokes the heartiest applause. Bonnie Goodwin has a clever troupe of piccaninnies, and their singing and dancing are of a high standard. A droll comedian is seen in Harry Nelson, whose patter quite appeals to the feminine element in the audience.

Marshall and Parr are seen to distinct advantage in their vocal and comedy act, in which they introduce some pretty harmonising of popular ballads. Sinclair and Whiteford find great favour in their clever vaudeville comedy act, and Elsie Kerry is a dainty and vivacious comedienne. Jack Elliott the cowboy champion broncho buster elicits loud applause for his daring attempt at the broncho two-step, whilst the splendid lassooing of Joe Lynch, the lasso expert, is an additional feature of this novel performance. Dan Whitley, the eccentric comedian, was an "extra turn," his song, "Take no notice," being decidedly funny. Ruffell's Bioscope still remains a pleasing feature of the programme.

OWING to the success Miss Della Ray has made at Yarmouth and Lowestoft Mr. Geo. Gilbert has secured her services for another return date at a big increase.

MUSIC HALL CELEBRITIES.

MISS JESSIE ALBINI.

Miss Jessie Albini commenced her stage career as a child with Stedman's Choir, at the Gaiety Theatre, London, in Cinderella Up Too Late, the last play the late Fred Leslie appeared in. Subsequently she toured two years as a dancer with Mr Victor Stevens's company in Bonny Boy Blue. During the waits and between the acts Miss Albini used to amuse the artists with impersonations of the principals, and thus gained an idea for the variety theatre. She secured two songs and opened at the London, Shoreditch, then under the management of Mr. Barnes. She sang her two songs with such effect that she obtained an encore, which she was unable to give, and as the audience was so insistent the matter had to be explained to them. Mr. Barnes immediately booked Miss Albini for three years. During the second engagement at the London she was sent to the Tivoli to deputise for Miss Marie Lloyd, as a result of which she secured three years' contracts for the Tivoli, Oxford, and Pavilion. Miss Albini's first provincial engagement was for the Moss, Thornton, and Stoll tours, and she has just finished her tenth tour for that syndicate. Her first pantomime engagement was at the Avenue Theatre, Sunderland, as principal girl in The Forty Thieves. At the conclusion of the successful run Miss Albini opened at the Tivoli again, where Mr. Foredyke of the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, saw her, and was so anxious to secure her for principal girl in his next production that he wanted Miss Albini there and then to sign a contract which he had written out whilst waiting for her to dress. The contract was eventually signed, and she appeared as Alice in Dick Whittington, which ran fifteen weeks. The next year Miss Albini was engaged for principal girl at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow, but unfortunately was unable to fulfil the engagement through illness.

About this time Miss Albini was very well supplied with good songs, sometimes hard to get. Among her earliest successes were the famous "Not there" and "Right side up, with care," both published by Francis and Day. Again Miss Albini had to give up her pantomime engagement at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, through a severe attack of laryngitis, and acting upon her doctor's advice retired from the stage for some time.

When her voice regained its strength Miss Albini commenced again with a most successful song, entitled "I've got it in my diary," which lent itself to all sorts of topics as occasion demanded. Fearing to strain her voice Miss Albani forsook pantomime and devoted all her time to the halls. Happily her voice is now stronger than ever, and on last New Year's Day, in Glasgow, she put in eight performances without feeling any undue exhaustion. Miss Albini has also a song on the Chantecler craze, entitled "Cock-a-doodle-do," which creates a perfect furore wherever she sings it. So successful has she been in low comedy that she intends to keep to this style, which, moreover, allows scope for the display of her versatility.

A HANDY LIST.

We have received from Joseph Williams, Ltd., the well-known music publishers, Part I. and Part II. of their "Thumb-nail Plots" of operas, operettas, cantatas, sketches, musical plays, plays, and duologues. These little books should be invaluable to amateur societies, and to all who are on the look-out for pieces of the above description. The plot of each work is given in condensed form, and in the case of musical pieces, the compass of voice demanded by each rôle is recorded. The fees required for performance are mentioned, also the prices of the vocal scores and the books of the words. Samuel French, Ltd., are the agents for Messrs. Williams.

MR. B. PEARCE LUCAS'S future policy at the Imperial, Canning Town, is to have alternate weeks of variety and drama.

To the Palace Theatre next Monday will come that breezy entertainer at the piano, Mr. Barclay Gammon, who has since his last visit concocted many witty ideas on the affairs of the day. Having no politics, Mr. Gammon is able to poke fun at all parties in a most unsparing manner, and his remarks on conferences, coalitions, and dictators, together with bright topical songs, should be a feature of Mr. Butt's programme.

IN the Shoreditch County Court on Thursday, before Judge Smyly, K.C., a comedian named Palsford, professionally known as Glen Alva, sought to recover £7 from Messrs. West and Eugene, the managers of the "Alfresco Comedians," in respect of breach of an agreement. Plaintiff's case was that, in April last, the defendants, who were then at Swanage, entered into an agreement with him for a twenty weeks' engagement at that place. The terms were to be equal shares, after one-fifth had been deducted from the gross receipts for the fit-up and other expenses. The plaintiff was also to deposit £5 to cover what were termed initial expenses.

AT the conclusion of the season differences arose as to the exact amount received and the expenses. According to the plaintiff, the receipts for the twenty weeks amounted to £212, and the expenditure to £176, but the defendants' version showed that there was a deficit of nearly £5, instead of a profit of £35, of which plaintiff claimed a fifth. A question also arose as to what were "initial expenses." His Honour adjourned the case, saying that it was pre-eminently one for a friendly settlement.

"MOLLY DUVEEN."

Dramatic Sketch, Produced at the Imperial, Canning Town, on Monday, Nov. 14.

Bill Butcher .....MR. ARTHUR PAGE
Eustace Vayne .....MR. F. PAUL
Annette .....MISS NINA WESTLEIGH
Molly Duveen .....MISS GLADYS MAXWELL

For the first time the curtain rose last Monday evening on Miss Gladys Maxwell's new dramatic sketch, entitled Molly Duveen, and if one may judge from the enthusiastic applause which rewarded the efforts of the cast, this cleverly constructed playlet will be acceptable to variety audiences. Eustace Vayne and Bill Butcher, both intent on possessing the jewels of Molly Duveen, an unsuspecting girl, but each ignorant of the other's evil purpose, contrive to gain access to that lady's bedroom, and, as good or bad luck will have it, whichever the point of view, engage in their nefarious business simultaneously. The inevitable quarrel ensues, the upshot being the timely awakening of the owner of the treasures. At the point of a revolver, Molly keeps the unwelcome intruders at bay, compelling one of them to open up communication by telephone with Scotland Yard. At the first opportunity, however, Eustace Vayne seizes a revolver, wounds Molly Duveen, and attempts to make good his escape. But with the noise of the opening window the girl recovers consciousness, and aims at the retreating figure with fatal results.

Such, in brief, is the story of the sketch, and as it is well acted, it commands immediate approval. In the title-part, Miss Gladys Maxwell finds abundant scope for her well-known histrionic talents, and Mr. F. Paul makes an excellent Eustace Vayne. Equally successful is Mr. Arthur Page's impersonation of Bill Butcher. Miss Nina Westleigh, who acts the part of the maid, Annette, is the remaining member of a highly capable cast. Suitable incidental music to the sketch has been arranged by Mr. H. A. Knight, the musical director at this hall.

There are other good turns at the Imperial this week. Mark Melford, the original sketch creator, is there, and is as excruciatingly funny as ever in "My wife won't let me." Miss Grace Lester, supported by a capable company, appears in an intensely thrilling dramatic episode, entitled A Ruined Life. This has to deal mainly with an affaire d'amour, in which the principals are Dick Hastings, private secretary to his fiancée's father, and Kitty Bellingham. The elder Bellingham orders Dick to leave his house within half an hour, and gives his daughter the alternative of either going penniless with her lover or of turning a deaf ear to his entreaties. The girl elects the former course, but in the end the father is forced to consent to the match by the unlooked-for reappearance of his divorced and unhappy wife, who, visiting the house in beggarly attire, only agrees to conceal her identity from the girl on this condition. Miss Grace Lester plays the part of the ruined wife with much depth of feeling. Mr. Jackson Hayes makes the most of the callous John Bellingham; Miss Stella Farmer is winsome as Kitty Bellingham; and Mr. Robert Savory is all that is to be desired as the lover, Dick Hastings.

Another capital feature of this week's programme is the new comedietta called The Sleeping-Car, in which Harold Weston and Maisie Nunn are responsible for a good deal of merriment. The Sisters Florries are vocalists and dancers of no mean ability. Their dancing is particularly neat, and the "turn" generally is among the best received. Charles Merry is a comedian who fully merits the reputation suggested by his name. His contribution "It's not a coon song" goes well. Howe and Ardie show themselves to be clever acrobats in the gymnastic act "Up in a Balloon," and Jack and Willie, who do similar business, are equally interesting. Adams Bros. are comedy trick cyclists of the first order; Luna Ray provides a refined vocal "turn"; and Alexander Mee is an admirable character actor-vocalist. W. H. Downs, the coloured vocalist, is also at the Imperial this week, and some new films on the Bioscope complete a capital programme.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The orchestral concert by the students of the Royal College attracted a large audience on Friday afternoon, Nov. 11. Under the direction of Sir Charles V. Stanford, an excellent performance was given of A. Glazounow's Symphony No. 5 in B flat, Op. 55. The delicate music of the scherzo was ably played, and the young performers gave an attractive rendering of the melodious andante. The somewhat noisy finale of the Russian composer bears little relation to the three preceding movements, and has not equal musical interest. Miss Grace Humphrey, who played the solo instrument in Beethoven's concerto for piano and orchestra, No. 5, in E flat, deserved great praise, and the audience rewarded the talented young pianist with several hearty recalls. In Gounod's song "Far greater in his lowly state" Miss Florence Mellors displayed a fine voice and marked vocal ability, while the orchestra gave intelligent support to the singer. An interesting item on the programme was Purcell's scene for voice and orchestra, "Mad Bess," orchestrated by Sir Charles Stanford, and cleverly sung by Miss Matilda Bodycombe, the fortunate possessor of a rich contralto voice. The concert concluded with Liszt's rhapsody for orchestra, No. 2.

The concert on Wednesday evening opened with Beethoven's Quartet for Strings, in F major Op. 18, No. 1, of which a good account was given by the executants, Mr. Eugene Goossens, Miss Winifred Douglas, Miss Janet Macfie, and Mr. Cedric Sharpe. Miss Helen Beeching, in her 'cello solo of Max Bruch's lovely "Ave Maria," played well, and produced a full rich tone, but the voice gives the fervent devotional spirit of the music better than any stringed instrument. Miss Emmie Gregory and Mr. Philip Levine were associated with excellent results in a performance of Beethoven's Sonata for piano and violin, in G major, and won hearty applause, but the plan adopted at some school's of giving only one or two movements from a classical and well-known work has many advantages in a chamber concert. The chief feature of the programme on Wednesday was the excellence of the vocal items. Miss Lillie D. Chipp, who has a voice of rare beauty, with pure ringing high notes, sang Cesti's fine air "Intorno al idol mio" and the charming "Se tu m'ami" or Pergolesi with marked ability, while Miss Jessie Ross was equally successful in "Mignon's Song" (Goring Thomas). Another clever vocalist, Miss Kathleen Peck, was set down for "Shepherd's cradle song" (A. Somervell) and Brahm's "Vergebliches Ständchen," the last item in the programme being Mr. Harry H. Stubbs's organ solo, "Fantasia and Fugue, in G minor" (Bach). Miss Dorothy Grason and Mr. Herbert Arnold Smith were the accompanists.

MLLE. AMELIE DE L'ENCLOS, a wonderful soprano, opens at the Tivoli on Monday next in a new musical scene entitled The Origin of the Little Whistler and His Dog, specially composed for her by Oscar Strauss. Messrs. Hubert and Freydo, expert equilibrists, also make their first appearance on the same date.

MISS CISSIE THOMPSON is proving quite to the liking of the patrons of the Pier Pavilion, Southport, this week. Speaking of her performance, the Southport Guardian says: "Cissie Thompson admirably sustains the title of refined comedienne. Possessing a good voice, she is immensely popular in her songs."

DEATH OF MR. W. S. BASSETT.

IT is with deep regret that our correspondent announces the death of Mr. W. Bassett, musical-director of the Palace of Varieties, East Ham, which took place at his residence at Camberwell on Sunday morning. The deceased gentleman became unwell whilst conducting the first performance at the Palace on Wednesday of last week, and after a brief illness he succumbed to an acute attack of pneumonia.

MR. BASSETT was a brother of Mr. Leon Bassett, conductor of the Oxford orchestra, and was widely known throughout the variety world. To the management of the East Ham Palace the loss of so able a conductor is irreparable, and not only professionally but socially will his familiar figure and genial disposition be greatly missed. He was so assiduous in his attention to his musical duties that he was very reluctant to abandon his post on the first evening of his indisposition, and, despite the advice of his colleagues, he returned to his place to conduct the juvenile "turn" known as The Crisps in their dancing scena, "The Deputy," a turn in the success of which he was greatly interested.

THE remains of the deceased conductor were interred on Thursday in Forest Hill Cemetery, the cortège leaving his residence in Coldharbour-lane at 11.30. Among those who immediately followed the coffin, which was covered with choice flowers, were—Messrs. Leon and Richard Bassett (brothers) and other relatives, Makin, Jesse Sparrow, C. Moore, Hill, Davis, F. Kohler, Iddison, Benj. Woodger, E. E. Giles, Charles Moore, W. Caley, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Nutt, Mr. and Mrs. A. Plumb, and Mr. and Mrs. Pearce.

THERE was a large number of wreaths. Floral tributes of sympathy came from the Oxford, Granville, Empire, Croydon, Palace and Empire, Camberwell, East Ham Palace, from relatives, and a large number of friends. The deceased gentleman was a great worker for the Music

THE LATE MR. W. S. BASSETT.

Hall Home, and out of respect to his memory the meeting of the committee of that charity was not held on Thursday.

MUSICIANS AT LAW.

A claim for £15 for breach of agreement was made at Lambeth County Court on Thursday by Herr Stanislaus Würms, musical-director, of Camden Town, against Anton Peers, a musician, of Royal-road, Kensington. Plaintiff's case was that the defendant signed an agreement to play the piano last summer in an orchestra at Rhyl, and that a fortnight before commencing the season defendant broke the contract and nominated a substitute, who was not quite satisfactory, to take his place, and another man had to be engaged. Defendant's answer was that his wife was so ill at the time that he could not go away to Rhyl and leave her, as she had no friends in London. Plaintiff alleged that the real reason was that defendant got a more lucrative engagement at the Trocadero Restaurant, but Peers denied that, saying the engagement only lasted a short time. Counsel for Herr Würms said he only asked for £7 9s. 10d., which were the actual extra expenses involved by the defendant's act.

Defendant, in the box, admitted that he was informed an action would be brought against him if he broke the agreement. He added that he was not a business man.

Judge Emden: No musical man is a business man.

Eventually an order was made for £3, at 10s. a month, as defendant's employment was irregular.

MR. W. S. BUCCLEUCH, the resident-manager of the Chester Royalty Theatre, has been the recipient of a handsome solid gold medal and chain, the former being suitably inscribed. It was presented on behalf of Mr. Arthur Sturgess, a well-known and respected citizen of Leicester, and the staff of the Leicester Palace, as a token of their esteem and affectionate regard. Mr. Buccleuch was for two years assistant-manager at the Leicester Palace of Varieties, where he made many friends.

MR. FELIX BERTRAND arranged not only the duel between Richard III. and Richmond in the Coliseum production, but also the general fighting. "At the same time," he adds in a letter to us, "my endeavours would not have been successful without Mr. Frank Parker, who has so admirably arranged the whole mise-en-scène."

THE annual lifeboat matinée was held at the Bradford Empire on Tuesday last, under the patronage of the Lord Mayor and prominent citizens, when artists from the Leeds and Sheffield Empires assisted their Bradford brethren in a record performance, which realised over £100 for the fund.

AT the Kingston Hotel (late Fleece Hotel), Bloom-street, Manchester, on Saturday, an illuminated address and purse of gold were presented to Mr. Harry Garnham, late advertising and Press manager of the Manchester Hippodrome and Ardwick Empire. Mr. Peter Lawton, who occupied the chair, referred to Mr. Garnham's popularity, and Mr. Nelson Barry (manager of the Manchester Hippodrome) expressed his regret at the loss of so able a lieutenant. Mr. R. Roberts, Mr. Strafford, and Mr. Whittle, the secretary of the fund, also spoke.

IN reply, Mr. Garnham said he had not been in Manchester so long without feeling he had made many friends. The purse of gold might vanish, but the illuminated address would always remind him of the happy days he had spent at the Manchester Hippodrome and the Ardwick Empire.

"THE COTTAGE ON THE MOOR."

A Dramatic Sketch, Produced at the Chelsea Palace, on Monday, Nov. 14.

Tom Beaumont .....MR. E. RAYSOM-COUSENS
Alice .....MISS HILDA JACOBSEN
Jim Worthing .....MR. GEO. H. CHILD
Telegraph Messenger .....MR. SAM STEWART

In The Cottage on the Moor Miss Hilda Jacobsen has a very interesting little sketch, the plot of which is simple, but effective. Tom Beaumont, cashier of the Stanley Cotton Mills, returns from work, bringing with him £5,000 belonging to the mill, and which is intended to pay the wages. Such a large sum in the house greatly alarms his wife, who is very nervous, and does not like living alone on the moor. Tom endeavours to allay her fears, telling her they are groundless. The reason he gives for bringing such a large sum home is that he was too late to deposit the money in the bank, and he thought it would be safer with him than at the mill. During the conversation Tom incidentally remarks on the difference the money would make to them if only it were theirs. This idea Alice does her best to discourage, telling him that hundreds of workers would be depending on it. The question now arises as to the safest place to deposit the money, which is eventually placed in a desk. A telegram brings news that Tom's friend is dying, and would like to see him once more. Tom complies with the request, leaving Alice very fearful. In order to gain courage she turns to the Bible and reads Psalm xxiii., which has the effect of calming her. At this juncture there is a knock at the door, and a voice asks for shelter. Alice is very frightened, but, after a deal of pleading by the person outside, she opens the door to admit a tramp, who is apparently in the last stage of exhaustion. When he has revived somewhat Alice shows him where he may sleep, but she herself decides to sit up until Tom's return, not being quite satisfied as to her visitor's honesty. Soon after the tramp has retired, a noise is heard as of somebody trying the window and also of the tramp coming downstairs again. Alice, thinking that it is a confederate of the tramp's breaking in, is almost frantic with fright, but the tramp explains that he, too, has heard the noise and has come down to help her.

She hands the man a revolver, but cautions him not to use it unless absolutely necessary. The light is now turned out, and we await developments. A man is seen to enter by the window and make straight for the desk where the money is. The tramp fires, and the burglar, who turns out to be Tom Beaumont, falls dead. Curtain.

Miss Hilda Jacobsen gives a fine performance of Alice Beaumont; and Mr. Geo. H. Child as the tramp, Jim Worthing, deserves a deal of praise. Mr. E. Raysom-Cousens is very good as Tom Beaumont.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

The bright and particular star at the Putney Hippodrome this week is that really talented actress, Miss Dolly Elsworthy, who is appearing in an unusually good dramatic sketch, written by Messrs. Herbert Darnley and Fred Kitchen, and entitled Meg o' the Alley. In this little play Miss Elsworthy plays the part of a girl of the coster class, with whom the local curate—a young cleric of the athletic, independent, pipe-smoking type—falls in love. The action concerns itself with Meg's doubt as to whether she ought to accept the curate's offer of marriage, and this doubt is increased by the advice of her friends and the attitude of the young fellow's mother; until at last, in a fit of desperation, and in order to bring the affair to an end, she pretends that she is intoxicated. The pretence, however, is quickly explained to the curate by Meg's old neighbour, an Irishman named O'Fee, and the curtain falls on the girl clasped in her lover's arms. Miss Elsworthy plays splendidly as Meg, and whilst not shirking to make her quite a girl of the lower classes, has not the slightest difficulty in making her obviously generous, good-hearted, and, indeed, lovable—a really admirable bit of acting. The rest of the company are excellent, and we were particularly pleased with Mr. Henry Collier's quiet humour and genuine characterisation as O'Fee. Mr. Paul Lovett did well as the Rev. Pohn Power, and others in the company include Miss Johns, Miss Lindsey, and Mr. John Sargeant.

Miss Rosie Gaston contributes an excellent turn with her original character song, "Oranges," and Cribb and Cribb, a couple of cross-talk comedians, cause great amusement. Those well-known comedians on wheels, the Marsumas, are also found thoroughly amusing, and the Brennans appear with much success in a neat and clever dancing act.

Another sketch of a somewhat ambitious type is that presented by Mr. Stuart Alexander, the popular tenor, and entitled Papa's Consent. This is by way of being a comedy and operatic item, and the scenery and effects are elaborate. The plot is very slight, but it serves as a peg on which to hang two or three quite musical numbers and humorous business for a company which includes, in addition to Mr. Alexander, the famous Alma (billed as the English Marie Dressler). The names of the three other members of the cast are not on the programme, which is a pity, for their work was good, and deserves recognition. The sketch found much favour, but we would suggest that the soubrette part be elaborated somewhat, for the lady playing it is obviously vivacious, talented, and attractive.

A good ventriloquial item is that provided by Gulliver, whose doll makes a speciality of laughs; and a charming comedienne with a sentimental song appears in the person of Miss Daisy Hurdle. The programme, of course, includes the Bioscope, and for the overture there is a good two-step by Neil Moret entitled "Mary," played excellently by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. E. Beresford Kent.

THE Hon. Everard Feilding was sued in Lambeth County Court on Thursday, before Judge Emden, by Miss Queenie Warden, a teacher of stage-dancing, for £4 10s., wages earned and in lieu of notice.

MR. P. R. GRAHAM, variety agent, said he engaged Miss Warden to teach children who were to form a dancing troupe, and she did do so for nine weeks. Mr. Everard Feilding was at that time running the Palace Music Hall, Greenwich, where this school of dancing was being conducted.

MR. FEILDING did not want his name known in connection with a music hall, and the witness did all the business with Mr. Feilding's valet, a man named Kerr, whom Mr. Feilding had authorized to deal with the witness. Kerr ran this troupe of children, and eventually Kerr gave Miss Warden notice. He and Kerr were at the time (but not now) acting as joint-managers at the Palace. Mr. Feilding, it was stated, is now in India.

THE valet Kerr, examined, said that when he left Mr. Feilding's service Mr. Feilding gave him £600 as a loan with which to start in the music hall business. Mr. Feilding had absolutely no connection with this music hall or with the engagement of the plaintiff. The witness never discharged the plaintiff.

HAVING heard the evidence of Mr. John McNeil Millar, solicitor, who said that Mr. Feilding's sole intention was to give Kerr a chance to make money, his honour gave judgment for the defendant.

The Saving of Another Fair.

We are glad to give the text of the following official letter to the Guild chaplain from the Home Secretary with reference to Haslemere Fairs:—

"The Home Office, Whitehall.
"Nov. 15, 1910.

"Sir,—With reference to your letter of Sept. 21 last, I am directed by the Secretary of State to say that, after careful consideration of the circumstances of the case, he does not feel justified in making an order under the Fairs Act, 1871, for the abolition of the fair held annually at Haslemere on May 13 and Sept. 26.

"If, however, at any time the fair is again held in the street and leads to disorder and inconvenience of the public, the Secretary of State will be ready to reconsider his decision.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"W. P. Byrne.

Carmarthen.

The great November fair at Carmarthen is being held this week, and, despite the bad weather, is attended by great crowds. In the Corporation Fairground the central position is being taken up, as usual, by Messrs. Hy. Studt and Sons' fine motor-car set. At the top end are Messrs. Wadbrook and Haggar's bioscope shows. In the former Mdlle. Melitia, a most charming and clever dancer, with the equally charming and clever Miss Mary Davis and the Danbys, very smart all-round artists, delight the crowd. Here, too, the veterans Messrs. Glover and Jervis do yeoman service as lecturers. In the latter show the Misses Ida Warne and Katie Poole are still favourites, with Jack Best and another good comedian. The hoop-las, shooters, mollies, and cokernut shies of Messrs. D. Boswell, the Norths, David Evans, W. Odley, James Day, and others are also here.

Rome's £40,000 Zoo

One of the most natural and prettiest zoological gardens in the world is being rapidly completed in Rome from the designs of Herr Carl Hagenbeck, of Hamburg. Already some 1,400 wild beasts and reptiles have taken up their abode in the grounds. By means of ditches, steep rocks, and other cunningly concealed devices, cages and iron bars have been dispensed with, thus enabling the public to gaze at wild beasts with nothing whatever obstructing the view. Lions, tigers, panthers, bears, and hyænas are a few of the creatures now seen in caves and dens and appearing to be at liberty. The zoo is situated in that part of Rome known as the Borghese Villa, a pretty wooded park just outside the old city walls to the north of the town. It comprises twenty-eight acres, and is so designed that fine panoramic views of wild life are obtained from the terraces of the restaurant. Below is the lake for waterfowl, and to the extreme left the enclosure for bears, without cages or bars. Then the sky-line is pierced by hills, on which the ibex, sheep, and goats climb. There is also a series of remarkable dens for the big cats, a cave for lions, another for tigers, a third for panthers and leopards, and a fourth for hyænas. Gulls, seals, and sea lions find a natural home in a pond, while behind them Polar bears spend their time climbing over the imitation ice rocks of their den. The elephant house is built in the old Roman style, and adorned with carvings of animals. The reptiles are in cages lighted from behind, the spectator being in semi-darkness. The zoo is expected to be opened on Jan. 1 next. So far over £40,000 has been spent on it. The value of the animals in the grounds is £10,000.

P. Collins' Manchester Fun City.

We see by our advertisement columns that Mr. Arthur Dashwood, late business agent for Bostock and Wombwell's menageries and Sedgwick's menagerie, has been specially engaged by Mr. P. Collins, the president of the Showmen's Guild, to manage his mammoth fun city fair to be held in Manchester this Christmas season. Mr. Dashwood has had an unlimited experience in the showworld. Born in the business, he has gone through every grade of the profession, and has travelled in almost every country in the world, and is known by ever showman of repute. We confidently anticipate that Mr. Collins will find him a very useful member on his staff, and we wish Mr. Dashwood every success in his new undertaking.

Bostock's Jungle.

"The Jungle," established by Mr. Frank C. Bostock in a spacious building in the centre of Sheffield, is now a firm success, crowds of pleasure and instruction seekers making their way from all parts to the afternoon and night shows. The fine collection of lions, tigers, bears, leopards, elephants, &c., are admired by all, and old and young revel in the innocent gaiety of the Fun City. The genial manager, Mr. Harry Tudor, is "all over the shop" with a ready smile and a joke for all, and, helped by a smart staff, the comfort and general happiness of the countless visitors, big and little, appears to be the one object of his life.

Wakefield Winter Fair.

The principal shows, roundabouts, and other amusements at this fair include Aspland's palace of light, Tuby's coliseum, Chipperfield's menagerie, Collins's haunted house, White's colliery model show, and Griffiths' mystic swing; Aspland's scenic railway, H. Waddington's motor-cars, Redfern's cockerels, Collins's joy wheel and cake-walk machine. Shooting galleries, bazaars, throwing games and stalls by Messrs. G. Cornwell, Jameson, Tuby, jun., Leach, Griffiths, Lewis, Rhodes, Wright, Gledstone, and local caterers.

Showman's Letter-Box.

Letters await the following at The Era office: Messrs. J. W. Chipperfield, James Henry Chipperfield, Mrs. C. Birch, Anderton and Rowland, Alf. Ball, J. Biddall, T. Fossett, R. Fossett, and J. Studt.

London's Holiday Fairs.

The Clerk to the London County Council advertises in our columns that the last day for tenders for sites on the Holiday Fairgrounds, under L.C.C. control, is Jan. 1, 1911, and not later than 11 a.m. on that day. We draw the attention of all Metropolitan showmen to this important matter.

TRAVELLING AUCTIONEERS AND THE SHOP HOURS BILL.

We recorded the fact a fortnight ago that a deputation of the executive council of the Travelling Auctioneers' Trade Defence League waited upon the Home Secretary at the Home Office. The object of the deputation was to ask that an exemption might be given to the travelling auctioneers, so that their trade and business menaced by the Shop Hours Bill might be safeguarded. As negotiations were pending between the auctioneers and the Home Office, it was not advisable to give our readers full details of the interview. In a short official communication made to us by the executive committee of the Travelling Auctioneers' League we were able to announce that a satisfactory result of the League's labour was anticipated. Since then, owing to political events, generally well known, the Bill has been postponed.

In order to allay the various interests in trade and business aroused in opposition to the Shop Hours Bill, the Home Secretary issued an extremely important communication, the material points of which we give (so far as they touch the movement for trade defence originated in The Era, and now being carried forward by the Travelling Auctioneers' Defence League).

"THE HALF-HOLIDAY.

"1. Serious objection had been taken from numerous quarters on the one hand to the compulsory half-holiday for all shops, and on the other hand from other quarters to the ineffectiveness of the machinery for securing the voluntary closing of shops.

"Mr. Churchill announced that he had decided to withdraw the provision requiring all shops to close on one day of the week for a half-holiday, reserving, however, the right of every shop assistant to a half-holiday; but that, on the other hand, he proposed greatly to strengthen the machinery for securing early closing. His plan was that the Home Office should themselves take the initiative in promoting the adoption of closing Orders by sending down to localities where it might be desired a commissioner to investigate the conditions of the locality, to hear all parties concerned, and to frame a draft Order suited to the needs and wishes of the locality. By this means he hoped to secure that in every locality expression would quickly and readily be given to the desires of the shopkeepers themselves for early closing.

"HOURS OF EMPLOYMENT.

"2. Strong exception has been taken by almost every trade to the provisions of the Bill by which members of the shopkeeper's family dwelling on the premises were exempted from the regulations as to hours of employment of assistants.

"Mr. Churchill announced that he only desired to prevent the application of the Bill to the very small shops which are worked by a man and his wife, or by a man or woman with intermittent help from a member or members of the family. It was not his intention that shops doing a considerable business in which members of the family are regularly employed in the same way as shop assistants and which compete on equal terms with shops employing several assistants should be exempted. He proposed therefore to draw a limit of rateable value, to exempt all shops falling below that limit, and above that limit to exempt only shops employing one member of the family. (The limit is not yet settled, though a figure has been inserted provisionally.)

"OVERTIME.

"3. Numerous representations have been received that the overtime provisions in the Bill were not sufficiently elastic. Mr. Churchill announced that instead of allowing two hours' overtime on thirty days of the year, he proposed to allow sixty hours' overtime for the year to be drawn upon by the shopkeeper in such amounts as the exigencies of his business might require, subject to the condition that overtime should be taken in half-hour periods, and that in no case should a boy under the age of sixteen, or a girl under the age of eighteen, be employed for more than fourteen hours in any day. He also proposed to allow an additional amount of overtime for shopkeepers who give their assistants an annual holiday of not less than a week on full pay, and to provide that separate departments of a shop might be treated as separate shops.

"PERIOD OF LEISURE.

"5. A relaxation of the rule requiring the period of employment of shop assistants to end not later than eight o'clock on three nights in the week was to be allowed in the case of certain trades which are needed for the amusement, refreshment, or convenience of the public after their day's work is done, subject to the condition that the assistant receives instead a period of leisure of not less than three hours in the morning or the afternoon. A similar relaxation was to be allowed in the case of any assistant in any trade not employed for more than forty hours in the week.

"THE DEFINITION OF 'SHOP ASSISTANT.'

"6. In compliance with the many requests received the definition of 'shop assistant' has been made more precise, and was now to read:—

"'Any person mainly employed in a shop in connection with the serving of customers, or the receipt of orders, or the despatch of goods, except a manager not mainly employed in serving customers.'

"Persons mainly employed in canvassing for orders or in delivering goods do not come within the definition."

Minor amendments in other provisions were also announced by Mr. Churchill.

Immediately on the publication of the above forecast of what the Home Secretary is prepared to do to meet the views of the aggrieved traders, the president of the Defence League, Mr. T. Harrison, accompanied by the Rev. T. Horne, chaplain to the League, and Miss Harrison, assistant secretary, waited upon Sir Edward Troup, Permanent Under-Secretary of the Home Department, in order to understand if they were included under the fifth paragraph marked "Period of Leisure" given above. In the absence of Sir Edward Troup the deputation was received by his secretary, and the inquiries of the president were promised consideration. It was after this interview and on account of the political situation that the announcement was made that the Shop Hours Bill, in company with other business, was dropped for the time being. We have not quoted Paragraph 4, which deals with Sunday closing and special exemptions for Jewish shops, because they have no relevance whatever to the questions raised by the travelling auctioneers.

We particularly wish to emphasise the wording of Paragraph 5, "Period of Leisure," wherein a relaxation of the rule was granted to "certain trades which are needed for the convenience of the public after their day's work is done," and again it says "a similar relaxation was to be allowed in the case of any assistant in any trade not employed for more than forty hours in a week." We are sanguine that the very phrasing of this paragraph is a hopeful indication that the objects sought by the deputations to the Home Office are already fruitful in good results.

Our confidence is the more strong on account of the significant fact that the Home Secretary has used the very words of the deputation in both instances, where reference is made to trades needed for the convenience of the public after their day's work is done, and to assistants employed not more than forty hours a week.

The work yet to be done with regard to the Bill.

It will be the duty of the executive committee of the League to consider the actual amendments of the Government when their Bill reaches the Committee stage. If the amendments submitted do not adequately cover and protect the travelling auctioneers' business, then it will be necessary to point out to the Government amendments that will be sufficient for that purpose. Failing the acceptance of these suggestions it will then be the duty of the League to obtain from friendly Members of Parliament consideration of the travelling auctioneers' case before the third reading of the Bill in the Commons, and, if necessary, pursue their object when the Bill is before the Lords.

The satisfactory work already done in organising an effective and influential Trade Defence League and the sympathetic reception of the League's amendment to the Bill by the Home Secretary as indicated in the précis of suggested amendments must be of the utmost satisfaction to the leaders in the Trade Defence movement. We congratulate them upon having set their house in order and taken their position as a body of legitimate traders organised and ready at all points to defend their livelihood from mistaken legislation and the possible oppression of rival interests.

PEEPS INTO SHOWLAND.

Travelling menageries were inaugurated in England by George Wombwell. There had been a similar show of a portable character organised by a Mr. Cross, who purchased the Royal collection when the King's menagerie was dispersed. After Wombwell came William Manders, and later on John, William, and George Sanger. Of these George Sanger is still living. He is unique in this respect, that he would have his boots made at Wellingborough, where he formed many interesting friendships. The Bostocks also became famous as showmen, but two descendants went abroad to instruct others how to organise these shows. There were James W. Bostock (America), Frank Charles Bostock (France), and Edward H. Bostock, of the famous Glasgow Zoo and Norwich Hippodrome. Among other well-known names must be mentioned the Purchase and Proctor families.

It was William Sanger who invented the steam roundabout, which stimulated a rapid advancement in the world of shows. There have been numerous inventions in the same direction, and amusing diversifications in contrast to hobby horses, such as racing, jumping, galloping, or kicking horses, Venetian gondolas, ostriches, farmyard sets, racing cockerels, and bicycle and motor tracks. From these mechanical devices it is impossible to separate the vast army of the rank and file of show life. There are in these islands of Great Britain and Ireland at least 70,000 showmen, not to mention the vast army of workers making and handling the goods sold or used upon the fairgrounds of the Empire. Now you understand why the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain exists. It was founded in 1890. Through its agency showmen have vindicated their claim to a place of credit and usefulness in the national life.

The great Western rendezvous known as Barton Fair was in full swing. Sunday was a sort of "lullaby" to showmen, as to myself. In the morning I had listened to the beautiful service at Gloucester Cathedral. At the showmen's service in the afternoon the Mayor and members of the City Corporation had gathered. Mutual congratulations having been exchanged, the "living Word" was spoken by the Chaplain (the Rev. Thomas Horne), who has made a special study of British shows, showmen, and show life. It was not long, as he had seen it stated, that fairs or shows were less popular than they ever were with the people of this country. His information was based on statistics he had tendered in evidence before a Parliamentary Committee. For every fair that had gone down during the past fifty years two or three had sprung into existence, and so long as the population remained in any neighbourhood so long would fairs continue to exist. Fairs and shows provided wholesome open-air amusement for the people. These shows had grown out of theatrical entertainments given in the remotest ages, and the proprietors' names had become embodied in our nation's history and literature. Such men had trod the stage and pronounced the classic lines of Shakespeare. There was the great Richardson, and in that tent that afternoon was a descendant of Johnson, another famous tragedian. From such men had sprung the greatest actors and actresses of our times. These fairs were the training grounds of theatricals; the travelling circus was the school of the great London Hippodrome, whilst the variety shows paved the way for the London Palace and Empire. The need for the travelling show had not diminished, but whilst showmen had carried their show from town to town, the stranger, the rev. gentleman remarked, had built huge pleasure palaces, and appropriated a lot of the showmen's coin. In that respect showmen had missed great opportunities. Recalling some of his earliest recollections, the speaker had wonderful memories of George Wombwell, a gentleman of portly proportions, attired in the garb of a country gentleman, inclined to be horsey. Addressing the public, George would say: "No humbug here; they's all alive." Then the show orator came on the scene. He would say: "It takes fifty horses to convey this menagerie from town to town. We have beasts, birds, and reptiles selected and collected from every part of the habitable globe. The African lion tamer will put the lions through their matchless performance, illustrating the lion hunt, capture, and reconciliation of the mightiest beasts of the forest. They may growl and show their mighty teeth, but they dare not bite, illustrating the power of man over brute creation." That was all changed now. They had the loud-toned organ, and a little dumb show with the hands took the place of the show orator.

Then there followed George Sanger, who in his palmy days could command the people, because his show was as good inside as outside, and he should say that showman alone had done as much as ten other men to help his brother showmen in the struggle for existence and freedom which they had had to carry on during the past ten or twelve years; but he was happy to be able to report that there was nothing now between Parliament and showmen that touched either upon their domestic life, their moral life, or their claim to be regarded as worthy citizens of the Commonwealth. And why should they not claim equal citizenship with all classes in the country? That point had been pressed home in the Amended Moveable Dwellings Bill before a committee of the House of Lords. It was not meant to touch showmen at all, and they would get justice in the future as they had succeeded after hard labour in obtaining it in the past. They had won the banner of freedom and liberty, and it rested with them to keep it flying from the high rock of victory.

This is the fourth year the Rev. T. Horne, organising Chaplain of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain, has given the whole of his time to the important work of direct ministry amongst show-people on the fairgrounds of England, Scotland, and Wales. Although it is but the fourth consecutive year of this special effort, it was twenty years ago that the Chaplain began his ministration amongst the showfolk. Year by year for eighteen years he gave all his spare time, when on holiday or free for a Sunday or two from parish work. It was the ready acceptance of these rare opportunities (never more than four Sundays a year) that brought home to the Chaplain's heart and conscience the duty of surrendering all other work (and all other interests), ultimately to hold himself free to devote himself entirely to a work so manifestly committed to him, and so abundantly blessed of God. It was in 1907 the Chaplain mapped out his first itinerary of British fairs. A great deal of pioneer and necessary organisation work had to be done, for the Chaplain never attempted work in a town without the cordial consent and co-operation of the parochial clergy. It is a gratifying feature of the Guild's enterprise that in no instance has the Chaplain met with either a refusal of permission or with discouragement in the parishes he has visited; but everywhere the most enthusiastic approval and assistance.

LEGISLATIVE ACTION.

When the Moveable Dwellings Bill (1910) was before a Select Committee of the House of Lords the Showmen's Guild was represented by the Rev. T. Horne (chaplain), Mr. F. H. Pedgrift (treasurer), and Mr. G. W. A. Norton. This is what was sought to be done on behalf of the showmen of the United Kingdom by representatives of the Showmen's Guild. The Moveable Dwellings Bill contained clauses which, if passed into law, would hamper the showmen very seriously, and sweep them into the net which was only intended to catch the irresponsible gipsy. It was, therefore, very necessary that the business of the showmen and their interests should be safeguarded by qualifying clauses calculated to strongly define the line of demarcation separating the showman proper from the gipsy. Therefore, it was necessary to secure that travelling showmen or entertainers shall not be hampered in the exercise of the legitimate business of their calling. We extract from the amended Bill this important saving clause for fairs and markets: "(8) Nothing in this Act shall affect the rights or privileges of any person in respect of any lawful fair or market." Mark the result. "The showmen of England (we quote The Era) will recognise and fully acknowledge the splendid work of the Select Committee as shown in the Bill now before us. We have no hesitation in praising it as a fine example of constructive Statesmanship. The provision by County Councils of camping grounds at convenient places will be a great boon to legitimate gipsies, hawkers, and others using moveable dwellings yet not following the fairs. The wise simplification of the sanitary laws by making the county the unit of administration will be a boon to showmen, and save them the constantly recurring irritation of over-inspection and unnecessary official visits. The exemption clause for lawful fairs and markets is a step in the right direction, but it leaves untouched the increasingly important question of private show pitches in the winter and the enterprise of opening up new centres for fairs. These faults in the Bill may be dealt with when it is in Committee of the whole House. It is quite possible that Lord Clifford of Chudleigh may accept amendments on these points when he realises their necessity to make this bill really perfect."—The Wellingborough Post, Nov. 11, 1910.

"BALLADS OF SHOWLAND."

The Rev. Thomas Horne, the widely-popular chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, has realised, as he says on the first page, that

"Life as it's lived in a van
Hath power and pathos to move you
As only true life's stories can."

What Mr. Horne does not know about the show business is not worth knowing. The slang of the road is as familiar to him as the language of the pulpit, and he keenly sympathises with all the joys and sorrows of a showman's life. It would seem as if every phase of the "traveller's" existence was dealt with in this clever and interesting little book, and we really find it impossible to say which of the poems we prefer.

The pathos of "A Crippled Sunbeam," the cheery optimism of "The Pipes and the Drum," the thrilling sensation of the versified anecdote entitled "The Tiger and the Child," and the deep religious feeling of "Faithful unto the End," all have their claims, and perhaps its comparative shortness is what commends "The Showman's Dying Wish" to us for quotation. Thus it runs:

"My Son, when I die, let my body be borne
To its last resting-place by the Tractor,
The end of life's drama, my Son, do not mourn
The play nor the part of the Actor.

"Though I come of the breed of the yeoman, my Son,
Of the men that made England's great fame,
I have lived all my life as a Showman, my Son,
And ne'er brought disgrace on the name.

"The Tractor has taken the show on the Road
Like a giant exulting in power,
Through valleys, o'er mountains, forward it strode,
Forward 'midst sunshine and shower.

"Yes, the Engine, my Son, has taken the Show,
With its message of life, joy, and light:
Into many dark corners the Showman must go
With music with merriment bright.

"In this World, my Son, 'tis the things that we use
That make up the drama of life;
Though often in anger good things we abuse
And turn them to engines of strife.

"Let the Engine take me, at last, to my home,
For I love every throb of the Tractor;
Grieve not, my Son, to this must we come,
When 'the curtain's rung down' on the Actor."

The little volume costs only twopence, and is published at the office of this paper.

BOYNE'S NEW THEATRE.

Boyne, situated on the outskirts of Durham, is one of the most thickly-populated mining districts in the county, and embraces in its area Brandon, Langley Moor, Littleburn, and other important coal centres. Hitherto there has been practically no recognised place of amusement, and the building of a handsome and commodious new threatre, which will be known as the Royal Hippodrome Electric Theatre, will adequately meet a long-felt want. At considerable cost, Messrs. S. Johnson, T. Scott, and W. H. Barnard have, in an enterprising manner, provided an entirely new theatre, with comfortable seating accommodation for over 1,000 persons.

The new building is about 90yds. long by 40yds. wide, and is built of seasoned wood, encased with corrugated iron. The interior is beautifully decorated, and presents quite a bright and attractive character, artistically-designed decorations adding to the effect. It is fitted throughout with electric radiators. The choicely-upholstered seats are of the tip-up type, and the floor, graduating from the entrance to the foot of the stage, admits of a clear and uninterrupted view from all parts of the house. The plant is entirely new and of an up-to-date character. A Crossley's gas engine, 12½ h.p., has been utilised, and the motor was specially built by Messrs. Holmes, of Newcastle-on-Tyne. The building is lighted by electricity. There are four large exits and two emergency exits, and fire-buckets are conveniently placed around the hall in readiness in case of fire.

Mr. J. Bell, E.T.U.S., has been engaged as operator and electrician; and Mr. Herbert Willis, A.V.C.M., is responsible for the orchestral band. In the presence of a large and representative company, the new theatre was opened on Monday night by Mr. S. Johnson, of Whitley Bay.

STATUTES, FAIRS, AND SHOWMEN

Both the Rotherham Press and the Rotherham people are most kindly disposed towards the Showmen's Guild. The extent of this public sympathy is shown in the following extracts, taken from an interview with the Guild chaplain by a representative of the Rotherham Advertiser:—

"I suppose that at rock-bottom everyone loves the showman. His sounding heroics, his actings and his posturings, his gorgeous raiment, his stern clutch on all that is left of the romantic, the glare of footlights, the glitter of spangles, his "prave oorts,' and his redoubtable redoubtedness, all touch hidden springs of sympathy because those hidden springs well up in a far-back childhood. With thousands of us showmen and showwomen woke the first dawnings of the notion that the real may-touch the imaginative, and the fairies of dreams took on their first concreteness at the sight of the earliest-seen pantomimic nymphs. The memory of one's first show or theatre visit is always a vivid memory, and the later recognition of the sometimes sordid reality which lies behind histrionic cloudland is no more welcome than the dawning suspicion which banishes a beautifully-illusive and elusive Santa Claus for prosaic parents or relations. I know an aged lady who still says that she remembers her first visit to the pantomime as giving her her first idea of Heaven! There were angels with wings 'ascending and descending,' as Jacob saw them, but without the commonplace ladders; they swam in the air, or in the 'flies,' which is much the same, supported by invisible wires.

"Men and women correct these early impressions, and are very little better for the correction. But even in more mature years there is, at rock-bottom, as I said, a tender spot for the showfolk, and this is why amongst the most popular figures in literature are those of strolling players. From Alfred Jingle to Codlin, from Mrs. Jarley, with her waxworks, to the plump, fascinating 'Fotheringay,' of Pendennis, from Dr Marigold to Mr. Vincent Crummles, who does not recognise that the creators of them loved plays and playfolk through the simple fact that each one is drawn with humanity's best and richest quality—a good-natured love of their fellows?

"Rotherham 'Statti's' and—its showmen; the waxwork and the fat lady, the haunted castle and the marionettes; plump pink-limbed ladies dancing divinely, so the youngsters think; the real drama, at threepence a time, if you will only 'Walk up at once!' joy-wheels, flip-flaps, Teddy bears, shooting galleries! Shades of the Jarleys, the Crummleses, the Codlins, and the Shorts! What scrap of humanity under fourteen would miss any of them, given opportunity?

"But there is a serious side. Modernism has touched the showman on the shoulder and bade him line up with social progress, or—be swept away. The happy, devil-may-care system of older days has gone by. The showman may not wander where he will, may not draw up his caravan and camp where he likes and when he likes, nor may he evade for his family the restrictions which once only concerned themselves with the house-dweller and left the van-dweller alone. The actor was formerly regarded as a vagabond; he could be set in the stocks by any irate justice of the peace; he had no 'rights'; and even good Mrs. Jarley was threatened not only with the stocks, but with the white sheet of penitence, by the angry Miss Montflathers. There still remains with authoritative persons no small portion of this sentiment, and it were interesting to ask where the van-dwellers stand socially to-day. There is a Showmen's Guild. Perhaps the most enthusiastic member of that Guild is its honorary chaplain, the Rev. Thomas Horne, a gentleman once well known in Rotherham. I would see Mr. Horne.

"Something of him I had known earlier. He was then an explosive sort of man—a man with strong human sympathies, impulsive tendencies, a hatred of injustice and tyranny, a theatrical vein in the heart of him that came out in Quixotic extravagance of speech, and did, as many of us recollect well, greatly shock the mealy-mouthed, gig-respectability of many good gentlemen hereabouts when the gigantic coal fight of 1893 was going on.

"'What about this Guild of yours?' I asked, when we had exchanged one or two reminiscences of the 'Great Strike.'

"'The Guild began,' said he, 'with the alarm of a few showmen on account of the Moveable Dwellings Bill, brought in by Mr. George Smith, of Coalville, in 1888 or 1889, which held them up to opprobrium as a danger to public health and to public morals, on account of their caravan life, and would, further, have practically destroyed and ruined them. I consider the attack on them was a vile one. They were said to be bringing their children up in ignorance and under bad and immoral conditions. I was myself, so I considered, a complete example to the contrary. I was born in a caravan belonging to Mander's Menagerie, in 1849, and I thought my life during the then forty years it had lasted was answer enough to the Smith aspersions. I did my best to vindicate the showman from the charges made against him. I demonstrated from a hundred examples his kindness and care as a father and the righteousness of his claim to be a good, honest citizen.

"'In a short time we found a host of friends behind us, and we have been hammering these facts into the public mind ever since, for the danger foreshadowed by the Smith Bill was not over, nor is it over yet.

"'It was plain that if the caravan-dwellers were to justify their existence in the country and to maintain their rights they must organise themselves as other classes had done, and, from my home in Whiston, I set about urging them to do this, so that Rotherham may claim to be the birthplace of the movement.

"'The formation of the Union began. It was not confined to employers, but the employees joined. I was invited to their annual meeting in Manchester, and attended it for seven consecutive years. When the Union grew, and the London meetings were arranged, I followed there. The Guild invited me to be their president. I felt that it would be better for the president to be one of themselves, and suggested they should make me their honorary chaplain. They did so.

"'For eighteen years I gave all my spare time to their cause—my holidays and any free Sunday I had at my disposal.

"'Now I am giving the whole of my time to this great work. It is something to be able to minister to this large nomadic population, and it is a work which, I am thankful to say, has been eminently blessed of God, as its results show.

"'To return to the legal side.

"'We fought the Moveable Dwellings Act, and we killed it by the year 1893. But that was not the end of the matter, as we had hoped. In 1905 or 1907 a Bill was promoted in the House of Lords by Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, who is simply the mouthpiece of the County Councils Association. The object of this Bill was to corner the gipsy. In order to do this, in the fashion the Bill was drawn up, it was necessary to corner all van-dwellers, so that we were threatened again.

"'We didn't object to the cornering of the gipsy, but we didn't want cornering ourselves, so we opposed the Bill. In many cases we felt sure it would be a dead letter in our own case; still, it gave power to an over-officious authority to interfere seriously with us, and, though we felt sure the go-ahead authorities in the North of England and Midlands would not put the Bill in operation, we were not so sure of the more narrow-minded people of the South, and, as I say, we opposed.

"'The Bill sought to have every van registered—not a serious matter—but also to make every county authority a registration authority. Under this provision any crochety council could have made regulations, and perfectly ridiculous ones, as to air-space, as to right of inspection, and the rest, in such a manner as to have very gravely interfered with us. But the fatal blot on the Bill was a proviso empowering county authorities to prohibit an assembly of vans upon any space within their jurisdiction if they thought such a gathering might be a danger to health or a source of annoyance.

"'The danger to health plea is one that will stand, but the "annoyance" simply meant that the playing of a brass band, if complained of, could rob a hundred people of their legitimate business as showmen.

"'I interviewed the promoters of the Bill. I said to them, "If you like to call this Bill a Gipsy Encampment Bill we will fight it out in the Law Courts as to whether we are gipsies or not, but as it stands it threatens our existence."

"'I laid our people's views before them, and after that I appeared before the Lords' Committee appointed to consider the question. When that committee's report appeared it said this: 'There are two kinds of van-dwellers—gipsies and showmen. As regards showmen, no legislation seems to be required. Further, we are assured by Mr. Horne, their chaplain, that the existing legislation is often used harshly so as to impede and to penalise them in their business. Without going into that part of the question, we are of opinion that showmen are an honest and thriving and obviously well-to-do people.'

"'The Bill as it stood was practically altered beyond recognition. But a new Bill is to be brought forward. We are waiting for it, and if the old obnoxious provisions remain we shall fight it for all it is worth.'

"'You must be an authority on the legal position of showmen by this time, Mr. Horne,' said I.

"'Yes,' he laughed; 'for what I have told you is by no means all the fighting we had, and are having, to do.

"'In '93, when we still had the Moveable Dwellings Bill on our hands, we found out that corporations up and down the country were obtaining prohibitory powers against showmen, both by bylaws and by private Bills.

"'The enemy was marching against us, and I took up the old cudgels. I went up to London and interviewed the Home Office and the Local Government Board. There I was met with this "facer": "Only the ratepayers in the districts where the bylaws or private Bills ran had any locus standi as an opposition."

"'This put us out of court at once, unless—and this was our plan for five years—we could get some of the ratepayers of a given district to appeal on our behalf.

"'But we fought away, and our persistence had its reward at last. We were permitted a locus, and allowed the right to petition against Bills which threatened our lives. We approach the Local Government Board direct and appear by counsel against Bills we regard as injurious.

"'As an example of what I mean, we may take the case of Rotherham. Some years ago they promoted a Parliamentary Bill, one clause of which demanded a monopoly of fair rights.

"'Now our society stands for Free Trade in amusements. We opposed the Bill. We approached the corporation direct, were able to show them that we had beaten three Bills of an exactly similar nature, and we persuaded them to drop the injurious clauses.

"'The rights to hold fairs exist under old statutes, and it is not competent for local authorities to step in and take away those powers without Parliamentary sanction. How strongly we are intrenched from a legal point of view may be seen in the fact that, though we have fought sixty or seventy Corporation Bills since 1895, we have never lost a case, and we have got costs on two occasions—in Oldham and in Acton.

"'Authorities make bylaws against noise. This is quite right. All we do is to ask for the insertion of a clause saying that this section of the bylaws shall not apply during the recognised fairs, wakes, or public holidays. We get that proviso, and are satisfied.'

"'And what of the other work of the Showmen's Guild?'

"'It stands for the uplifting and the improvement of the showman. We look after the educational side, the spiritual side. We have compelled the schools to open their doors to our children, and have insisted on a recognition of the "occasional scholar." Mr. Acland's "New Code," as it was called years ago, provides for them, and instead of our children being a loss to the schools their attendance increases the grants.

"'In the last twenty years a new habit of life has grown up amongst showmen; they have felt something of the new up-lifting life-forces. They have prospered more than ever they did before, and 90 per cent. of them to-day have homes of their own apart from the van-dwellings.

"'Their children are being properly cared for; they attend school as regularly as any children in the land.

"'Then—I speak what I know—the home-life of the showman is quite as moral as that of any other class. Sociologists are insisting that the bonds of domestic life are loosening. This is not so amongst our people. To the showman his home on wheels is a part of his business life, his wife and family are always with him, home ties are closer, the restrictions on both husband and wife are always present; the very fact of their restricted size of abode makes it incumbent upon them to regard the decencies of life with increased care.

"'In regard to young people a rigorous separation of the sexes is insisted upon, and illegitimacy amongst show-people is less, much less, than in many other walks of life.

"'At this moment I do not know of two cases of men and women living together who are not married, and I know hundreds of families of showfolk. I can tell you more There is rough justice for the man who tries to play the "gay Lothario" in showmen's circles. He pays for it pretty sharply.'

"This was all news to me. I set it down here at length because I feel sure it will be news to hundreds of others, and it seems it is time the house-dwellers did generous justice in this respect to their van-dwelling brothers and sisters."—The Rotherham Advertiser, Nov. 12, 1910.

PROBABLY owing to the very inclement weather that prevailed the whole of Wednesday last at Crewe, there was a very small attendance at the sale by auction of roundabouts, &c., conducted by Mr. Tom Norman (showmen's auctioneer), and the slight reserve placed upon the concern not being reached the lots were withdrawn, and can now be treated for privately by applying to Tom Norman, auctioneer, care of The Era Office, London, W.C. Among those present we noticed Messrs. H. Wallis (Seaforth), Harold Hibberd (Stockport), David Taylor (Circus, Worcester), A. Dobson (Birmingham), J. Hewitt (Nottingham), G. Wilkie (New Brighton), Wright and Holmes (Manchester), and other well-known showmen. Great praise and thanks are due to the vendor, Mrs. S. A. Gothiemer, for the splendid lunch, also tea and hospitality which was partaken of and greatly appreciated and enjoyed at the Crown Hotel, where, notwithstanding the hurricane of snow and winter outside, a very enjoyable time was spent.

APPEAL FOR HELP.

TO OUR FELLOW SHOWMEN AND BROTHER ARTISTS IN ENGLAND, SCOTLAND, WALES AND IRELAND.

The several members of the Scott family—sons and daughters of the late Walter Scott, circus proprietor, who was well and favourably known—beg to intimate that we are completely overburdened with trouble at the present time, being in stricken circumstances and in want of money, and can no longer find the necessary funds to defend an action of detinue which has been brought against us by Edward Hanneford, who claims to be entitled to the circus property which was left to us by our late father to enable us to earn a livelihood. The following is a report of the case taken from a local newspaper when it was last before the court on Oct. 27:—

HANNEFORD v. SCOTT AND OTHERS.

This was an appeal by the defendants, Robert Scott and others, from an order of Mr. Justice Ross appointing a receiver over the chattels, business, and effects of the circus of the defendants. There was a cross-appeal by the plaintiff, Edward Hanneford, that the order in question, the subject of defendants' appeal, should be amended so as to constitute Mr. Hugh Boyd, of Belfast, manager as well as receiver over the circus. The defendants contended that the plaintiff had no valid claim against the property, and alleged that he had been overpaid to the extent of £400 in respect of money lent to the defendants, and that the appointment of a receiver would prevent the business from being carried on in the ordinary course, and would be detrimental to the defendants' interests. It appeared that the circus had been carried on under the title of Sir Walter Scott and Sons. The plaintiff resided in Strandtown, Belfast. Following the death of Mr. Walter Scott litigation took place between the parties as to their respective rights, and when the matter came before Mr. Justice Ross a receiver was appointed pending the matter.

For the defendants (appellants)—Mr. Healy, K.C., M.P., and Mr. W. H. Brown (instructed by Mr. J. G. Scott, solicitor, Larne).

For the plaintiff—Mr. J. O'Connor, K.C., and Mr. H. M. Thompson (instructed by Mr. James Alexander, solicitor, Belfast).

The Lord Chancellor, in giving judgment, said they would allow matters to remain as they were, having regard to the lateness of the season, and to the fact that the touring of the circus was finished for the season. They would decline to grant the plaintiff's cross-notice of appeal, which sought to appoint the receiver as manager, and they would put the plaintiff under terms to deliver his statement of claim forthwith, and make costs of both parties costs in the cause.

We wish to keep what our father left to us, and we are therefore resisting the claim made by Hanneford, and we look forward with confidence to receiving adequate financial support from our fellow showmen and brother artists who know us well. Funds are urgently required, and we appeal to all our many British, Scottish, Welsh, and Irish friends to come forward at this critical moment and help us to defend the action and have justice done between the parties. The smallest sums will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged by the undersigned, to whom all contributions are to be sent.

ROBERT SCOTT,
47, Main-street, Larne, co. Antrim, Ireland.

On behalf of himself and his brothers and sisters, children of the late Walter Scott, who are the defendants in the action.

FILM GOSSIP.

"Henry VIII." on the Screen.

THE Barker Motion Photography, Ltd., have been in negotiation with Sir Herbert Tree, who has signed a contract by which the above company becomes the sole owner of the cinematograph right of Sir Herbert Tree's wonderful representation of Henry VIII., which is now being performed at His Majesty's Theatre with such tremendous success.

Sunday Picture Shows.

BARRY District Council on Monday night decided, after a long discussion, not to grant permission for the holding of Sunday picture shows in the town. These had been offered for the benefit of several objects, including the Welsh National Memorial Fund. Councillor W. R. Lee, J.P. (the chairman), presided. The Rev. Ivor Davies, who headed a deputation of representatives of the churches of all denominations, criticised the offers of charity, inasmuch as only the profits were promised to the various objects, and the principal of Sunday entertainments would be gained, which last year had been refused. Councillor S. R. Jones moved the resolution that the applications be not granted. Councillor Levers, in seconding, said he hoped the Free Churches would fight this question of the sanctity of the Sabbath with clean hands. A series of amendments were proposed and successfully defeated. The resolution was carried.

Picture Chats About Biscuits.

"PICTURE Chats About Biscuits" is the subject of twelve interesting lectures, illustrated by the cinematograph, that are attracting crowds of people to the Temperance Hall, Birmingham. The lectures have been arranged by Messrs. Peak, Frean, & Co., the well-known biscuit manufacturers, and they convey an excellent idea of the interesting processes of the manufacture of biscuits.

Electric Coliseum, Harringay.

THIS handsome picture palace, the latest addition to North London's places of amusement, was formally opened on Wednesday afternoon last. Built on an important site along the Green Lanes, immediately opposite the Salisbury Hotel, it has removed an eyesore to both local residents and constant passers-by. The interior is, without doubt, one of the finest in or around London. A sum of £10,000 has been expended on building and finishing the place, the architect being Mr. O. R. Dawes, of Fore-street, and the builders Messrs. Abrahams, J. Trevor, and others. The theatre will seat about 1,500 people comfortably, tip-up chairs being used throughout, the lounge seats being gilt-framed and covered in crimson plush. The handsome decorations are in cream, green, and gold, and, whilst being elaborate, are not in any way gaudy.

House Packed to the Ceiling.

THE picture screen is the largest yet known, and an excellent series of up-to-date films were exhibited to a house packed to the ceiling, for here, unlike all or most other North London picture theatres, there is a fine balcony, from which an excellent view of the pictures can be obtained. A vocal item is also introduced between the "living" pictures, which proved a distinct advantage to the usual continuous show of pictures. The decorations and furnishing have been carried out by the well-known firm of theatrical furnishers and decorators, Messrs. Fred Wilkins and Bros., of Duke-street, Liverpool, and are in excellent taste. The prices are to be "popular," and with the large surrounding neighbourhood all should go well with this new enterprise.

Kilmarnock Picture Palace.

A CAPITAL programme is again submitted at the Kilmarnock Picture Palace. Lion Hunting in Africa shows to what perils an operator is sometimes exposed, for the last lion was killed within a few feet of the camera. This is a splendid film. The varieties are Marie Kay, a dainty soubrette and a clever dancer, her performance on roller skates being very good indeed. Probyn and Bates are a smart comedy pair, and Mlle. Bartenelli an accomplished and popular contortionist and gymnast.

Wisbech Electric Theatre.

WHAT is now the smartest and most up-to-date place of amusement in Wisbech has recently been erected in the Timber Market, known as the Wisbech Electric Theatre. The building has an imposing appearance, and is exceedingly well built. Inside it is elaborately fitted up, there being accommodation for about 450 persons. The operator's room is situated above the main entrance, and is built in accordance with the L.C.C. regulations. The floor slopes gently towards the sheet, those paying the highest prices being accommodated with plush tip-up chairs on a raised platform at the back of the building.

Crowded House for the Opening.

THE opening took place on Saturday night last, when the place was crowded. Mr. Cooper J. Elm is the proprietor, and he has appointed as his manager Mr. G. F. Allen, late of the Folkestone Town Hall. The building contract was in the hands of Mr. Wilkinson J. Elm, and Messrs. Garrod and Hunt, of London, supplied the electrical apparatus. The theatre is being run on the "twice-nightly" system, the programme containing nothing but pictures. It is expected the management will include "varieties" in their programme, which at present they change Mondays and Thuredays. Among the pictures shown on Saturday evening were The Angel of Dawson's Claim, The Other Johnson, Plucky Lad, and Bob's Escapade. This week's programme includes What the Daisy Said, Flag of the Company, The Poacher, and Henry's New Hat.

Empire Electric Palace, Crook.

A NEW electric theatre, to be known as the Empire Electric Palace, has been built in Crook by Mr. William Shepherd, of North Shields, and was opened on Monday night under the patronage of the chairman and members of the Crook Urban District Council, when the building was packed from floor to ceiling with an enthusiastic audience. The building is an imposing and commodious one, being 70ft. long by 45ft. wide, and is capable of holding 1,000 persons. It is well furnished throughout and electrically lighted. The picture screen is a panel 20ft. long by 20ft. high, and everything seems to have been done to render the place comfortable to those who visit it.

B.B. Pictures at Dundee.

THE B.B. pictures continue to win all along the line at Dundee. District-Manager Mr. Tom Lunn has a fine assortment of films on view at the Palace Theatre, including The Great Train Hold-up, a very thrilling representation of an incident on the Southern Pacific Railroad, and At the Mercy of the Tide, which portrays a romance of intense human interest. By the machinations of the villain the hero is tied to a post driven into the sands, and excitement increases as the incoming tide threatens to engulf him. The heroine arrives just in the nick of time, however, and rescues her lover.

An Excursion in a Dirigible.

AT the Gaiety Theatre a very attractive programme includes An Excursion in a Dirigible, in which the beautiful scenery of Switzerland is viewed from the airship. Comrades, The Emperor's Message, and The Death of Lincoln are fine dramatic items. The Mysterious Bouquet is a clever trick picture, while Jones's Lottery and Baby prove very diverting. In addition to the pictures, Acting-Manager Mr. J. P. Hickey has a strong attraction in the Eckersley Sketch Company in the dramatic sketch Molly, the name-part being cleverly undertaken by Miss Dot Robins. At the Empire Theatre Acting-Manager Mr. R. W. Austin has also a brilliant programme, consisting of both grave and gay subjects, which meet with the hearty approval of large audiences, in addition to which "I love a lassie" by the Cinephone goes like hot cakes.

Dundee Cinema Theatre.

MR. P. FEATHERS submits another fine programme at this sumptuous house, a very popular film being The House with Closed Shutters, which tells a tragic story of the American Civil War. Other good pictures are The Good-hearted Neighbour, A Modern Cinderella, The Electric Street Fan, and The Great Medal Competition.

Freemason's Buildings, Richmond.

BY order of the executrix of the late Mr. Henry Dixon, Richmond, Messrs. Breadmore and Webb will sell by auction, at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, on Wednesday, November 23, at 3 o'clock, the highly important property known as Freemason's Buildings, Richmond, situate about 200 yards from the railway station. The premises comprise excellent club accommodation, a fine public hall, another large public room, a prominent corner shop, and set of offices. The building could be admirably adapted for a cinematograph theatre. The shop is let on lease, but the remainder is in hand. Leases about 86 years unexpired; total ground rent £95 per annum. Particulars and conditions may be obtained of the auctioneers, 64, Sheen-road, Richmond; and Railway Station, Kew Gardens.

Lord Haddo and Cinematograph Shows.

LORD HADDO has placed on the agenda paper of the L.C.C. the following motions which he is prepared to move, but when they will be presented is very doubtful, as there are motions on the agenda which were placed there two years ago:—"That in the opinion of the Council the Council should be empowered to require the closing on Sundays of cinematograph halls and other places of entertainment; that the operation of standing order No. 176 be suspended, and that the Theatres and Music Halls Committee do report with a view to application being made to Parliament in the Session of 1911 to secure such power for the Council. That in the opinion of the Council the rapid multiplication of cinematograph halls in London is undesirable; and that it be referred to the Theatres and Music Halls Committee to consider and report as to the steps which should be taken with a view to placing a limit on the number of places of entertainment of this description."

Kensington Picture Theatre.

MANAGER MR. JAMES GRANT is this week screening some capital pictures at this popular and luxurious theatre, including Longlegs the Jumper (Aquila), The Turn of the Balance (Vitagraph), The Electrical Vitaliser (Kineto), Sports in the Indian Army (Pathé), Tilly the Tomboy Buys Linoleum (Hepworth), The Governor's Daughter (Gaumont), Bill and the Missing Key (Lux), and The Gaumont Graphic of all the latest news.

Carnival at Waterford Rink.

THE first fancy-dress carnival at the Waterford Skating Rink was held on Tuesday night, and the event was a decided success, there being a large number of skaters and spectators. The floor was well filled with ladies and gentlemen in all sorts of fancy costumes, many displaying decided originality. The rink band, under the baton of Mr. F. Gleeson, played a number of new and delightful selections. The managing-director, Mr. Kidd, and the secretary, Mr. J. C. Ferguson, and their assistants are all to be complimented on the successful manner in which everything was carried out.

RINKING GOSSIP.

Miss Dollie Mitchell at Bournemouth.

MISS DOLLY MITCHELL, Britain's champion lady roller skater, has recently been a big attraction at the Westover Skating Palace, Bournemouth. There is daintiness and gracefulness in her every movement, while the whole performance is marked by exceptional cleverness. Her heel and toe work is particularly fine, and with her first appearance in Bournemouth she has quite earned the name of the prettiest lady skater in the universe and the idol of the skatorial world.

Advertisement Carnival at Bolton.

THE second annual fancy dress character advertisement carnival in connection with the Olympia Rink, Bolton, was held on Wednesday evening, the 9th, when there was a large crowd of spectators, who derived immense pleasure from the animated scene. A number of skaters took the floor, and their dresses of various hues and descriptions presented a picturesque appearance. Quite a number of local traders and others generously enhanced the event by offering valuable prizes, and for these the competition was decidedly keen. As a consequence the rivals were numerous, and their costumes were delightfully varied. The judging was quite an innovation to Bolton, being accomplished by means of numbers. A pretty sight was afforded by the grand march, the snow dance, and confetti battle. Special music was rendered by the band, under the conductorship of Mr. J. H. Gilberthorpe. The carnival was excellently arranged and carried out, for which warm commendation is due to the manager, Mr. D. J. Robertson, ably seconded by the floor manager, Mr. Hodkinson.

The Awards.

MRS. ROBERTSON and Mrs. Booth distributed the prizes as follows:—Bolton Chronicle, T. Fiske; Sharman's Brewery, Frank Edwards; Answers, Harry Greenwood; Jeyes' Sanitas, Miss L. Richards; Ross's, E. Johnson; Ellis and Sons, H. Williams; Wolfenden's, J. Rigby; Walter Clegg's, E. L. Hope; Spratts', H. Prince; Nathan Bury's, J. Morris; Whitehead's, Miss E. Rigby; Greenwood's, Miss Freda Townley; Townson and Chadwick's, J. Winter; Collinson's, Ltd., Miss Greenwood; Oxo, Ltd., J. Davies; Saddle Hotel (Johnny Walker), H. Curtiss; Greenhalgh and Bleakley, J. Ball; J. T. Howcroft's, F. Jones and T. Leigh; Hulton's, Ltd., Imps, T. Whitelaw. Rink prizes:—Lady's fancy dress, Miss Greenwood; gentleman's handsome fancy dress, G. Sharples; most humorous costume, T. Wilson.

Royal Patronage for Cheltenham Rink.

THIS popular Cheltenham Winter Garden Roller Rink opened recently for the season, and the prospects are the best that have yet obtained. In addition to a number of private society clubs, members of the Portuguese Royal Family, now staying at Wood Norton, patronise the rink. Teague's Military Band performs at every session, and is a great acquisition.

The Mammoth Crystal Palace Rink.

ON Saturday next, the 26th inst., Mr. Geo. O. Starr, the general-manager of the Crystal Palace, will reopen the mammoth Skating Rink there. This popular rink will be again under the able and genial supervision of Mr. F. G. Stumcke, who is a past master in the art of rinking. The Palace Rink has absolutely the finest surface in existence, and is the largest asphalte rink in the world. Its popularity has been increasing every year, and although this rink has only been open for eleven seasons, it might be mentioned that there has been rinking every season at the Palace for thirty-six years in succession.

Charles Phillips's Unrivalled Exhibition.

FOR Saturday next there will be a special attraction in the person of Mr. Chas. D. Phillips, who is the champion free skater of Great Britain. This artist, who is unrivalled in heel and toe work, fancy and lightning speed skating, will give performances during the afternoon and evening. There will be three sessions daily, viz., 10.30 to 12.30, 2.30 to 5, and 7 to 10 p.m. During the afternoon and evening sessions rinkers will be entertained by a full orchestral band. It should also be mentioned that there is here a special annexe reserved for learners, ladies and children only.

Rinking at Chorlton-cum-Hardy.

THE Chorlton-cum-Hardy Skating Rink, a spacious building, has become popular. There are three sessions daily, and the well-chosen selections of a capital band add considerably to the attractiveness of the invigorating pastime. Mr. M. Woodall is the secretary and manager, and Mr. G. E. Morley (late of the Aldwych Rink, London) ably discharges the duties of floor manager.

Carnival at Kilmarnock.

A FANCY dress and masked carnival was held on Friday, Nov. 11, at the Kilmarnock Skating Rink, in aid of local charities. Mr. Mitchell, the manager, had the hall prettily decorated. About twenty prizes were distributed amongst a large number of competitors. Mr. F. Coulson Robertson gave a splendid exhibition of trick and fancy skating, and was very well received.

Hockey Club Sports at Kirkcaldy.

THURSDAY evening drew a record crowd to the Olympia, Kirkcaldy, the occasion being the Hockey Club's sports. Games and sports of a varied character were partaken in by a large entry of competitors, and the spectators were thoroughly satisfied in every way. Mr. James Hunter, the energetic lessee, officiated as starter and referee, and at the close of the proceedings Mrs. James Hunter gracefully handed over the prizes.

Ebrington Rink, Plymouth.

EVERYTHING is now in full swing, and this year promises to equal if not excel its predecessors. The Rink Hockey Club is a fine attraction, and the matches are thoroughly enjoyed by players and spectators alike. A Cinderella is shortly to be held.

Rinking at Eastbourne.

DRAMATIC performances have now ceased at the Pier Pavilion, Eastbourne, until next spring. The maple floor has been relaid, and on Monday next skating will be commenced.

Rinking Popular at Bath.

RINKING at Bath is as popular as ever. On Thursday a grand fancy dress carnival was held at the Central Rink, when prizes for the prettiest, most original, and most humorous costumes were given, besides a two-step competition, a ladies' balloon and hoop race, and a gentlemen's obstacle race, were competed for. The final heat of the one mile race arranged by the management of the County Rink, Bath, was run off last Saturday before a huge crowd, the winner being Mr. W. G. Martin, whose time was 3min. 57sec.

Carnival at Mansfield Rink.

A WELL-PATRONISED fancy-dress carnival was held at the Mansfield Rink last week. The dresses were pretty and original, and much amusement was caused by the absurdity and novelty of some of the designs in the comic class. The prizes were given to—Ladies: 1, Indian Squaw; 1 (original), April Shower. Gentlemen: 1, Organ Grinder; 2, Old Woman on a Donkey; 1 (historical), Lord Nelson. Children: 1, Cupid. Prizes were also given for waltzing, two-stepping, and graceful skating.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

IT has long become a recognised fact to look for an exceptionally strong bill at the London Coliseum, but a programme which includes Harry Lauder, Marie Lloyd, Evie Greene, Tom Clare, the Two Bobs, Violet Lorraine, Phil Ray, José Collins, Harry Claff, The Romps, Dutch Daly, Helen Blain, Fred Hastings, the Hon. Eva O'Connor, Charles Pond, the Meister Glee Singers, Fred Weldon, and several others, making a total of thirty turns, is surely a phenomenal programme for even the Coliseum. Yet this is the programme to be given to-morrow at the Coliseum (kindly lent by Mr. Oswald Stoll) on the occasion of the eighth annual concert in aid of the benevolent funds of the National Association of Theatrical Employees.

THIS concert has now become one of the recognised pleasures of the winter season, and all those amusement seekers who intend indulging in an evening with the "stars," should obtain their tickets at the earliest possible moment to avoid the disappointment many experienced last year. Tickets and full information may be obtained at the Coliseum, or from the hon. secretary, Wm. Johnson, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

THE arrangements for the concert at the Coliseum to-morrow (Sunday) evening, in aid of the Employés' Benevolent Funds, are completed, and, what is more to the point, every ticket for a seat is sold, and all the twenty-nine boxes are taken. There will be plenty of standing room for those who cannot get seats. This year all previous records will be surpassed, and it speaks well for the zeal of the London members of the N.A.T.E. that all tickets have been sold by their own exertions without the aid of an advertisement in the general Press.

THE additions to the list of patrons are as follows:—Miss Eva Moore (two 5s. seats); Mme. Zelie de Lussan (who, finding that she will not be able to appear, sends a donation of £1); Mr. Sydney Valentine (two 5s. seats); Mr. Cecil Raleigh (takes a box); Mr. J. Martin Harvey, £1 1s.; Mr. Thomas Beecham, £1 1s.; Mr. J. Welch (two 5s. seats); Mr. Percy Honri, £1 1s.; Miss Lilian Braithwaite (£1 1s. box); Mr. James Carew (£1 1s. box); Mr. William Greet (four 5s. seats); Miss Compton, £1 1s.; Miss Irene Vanbrugh (four 5s. seats); Mr. Cyril Maude (four 5s. seats); Dr. Robinson, 5s.; Mr. Frank Glenister, Sir H. B. Tree, and Mr. Arthur Chudleigh.

THE following ladies have kindly consented to sell programmes:—Mrs. Rose Phillips, Mrs. C. C. Bartram, Miss C. R. Elkerton, Miss I. Elkerton, Miss Cecilia Macarte, Miss Julia Macarte, Miss Winnie Ashton (of "The Romps"), and the following from the Shaftesbury Theatre:—Miss Louie Lockner, Miss Violet Morine, Miss Violet Walker, Miss Violet Graham, Miss Rosamund Gould, Miss Winnie Wing, Miss Hetty Kelly, Miss Yvonne Fitzroy, Miss Zoe Gordon, Miss Lily Nanton, Miss Cicely Debenham, Miss Queenie Vincent, Miss Nellie Taylor, and Miss Aimee Roberts and Miss Violet Loraine.

AT a meeting of the Cinematograph Operators Committee on Tuesday, Mr. S. B. Blackley, of Chicago, attended, and suggested that the Association should arrange a meeting of operators to witness an exhibition of new appliances introduced by an American firm represented by Mr. Blackley. Mr. Blackley is a member of Branch No. 145 of the American Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés. The committee decided to arrange a meeting for the purpose of the demonstration and an address by Mr. Blackley, who was also elected an hon. member of the N.A.C.O. and presented with a badge of membership.

MR. A. GEORGE, who held the position of master carpenter at the Lyceum Theatre since the opening of the house by Messrs. Smith and Carpenter, has resigned that position to take up a similar one with Mr. Martin Harvey.

MR. H. G. BROOKE, recently stage-manager at the Finsbury Park Empire, and now holding that position with Miss Maud O'Dell, has had the misfortune to lose his wife, who died on Tuesday, after a long and painful illness.

OPENING OF EARL'S COURT RINK.

Revellers on rollers turned up in full force for the opening of the great Earl's Court Rink on Friday evening, the 11th, and the magnificent floor of the vast arena was quickly sampled by a large and enthusiastic crowd of expert skaters, and voted splendid. As we stated in our last issue, the Earl's Court Rink is now under an entirely new administration, and nothing has been left undone to still further enhance the attractions of London's colossal rinking rendezvous.

The new lighting and decorations add considerably to the brightness of the huge building, giving an effective setting to the animated crowd of rinkers, whilst an even temperature is guarded. Special attention has, of course, been given to the skating surface, which is, perhaps, one of the finest in the world, and the large staff of instructors of both sexes will be found exceptionally accomplished and capable of imparting a first knowledge of the fascinating pastime in a very short space of time.

Evidence of their expertness and alertness was frequently forthcoming on Friday evening, when any rinkers who happened to come a cropper were "spotted" and surrounded in marvellously quick time by the instructors, and gently assisted to a haven of safety. The short-skirted instructresses also looked very smart and attractive, and the ease and grace with which they performed various difficult movements were something to marvel at.

The majority of the rinkers, however, seemed in no need of instruction, and the many becomingly-attired damsels and their attendant swains who careered round the spacious building with such evident delight were the envy of the few unskilled or timid who watched them from the other side of the barrier. Among the spectators we noticed Mr. Fred Neiman, pardonably proud of the experiness and speed of his son Adolf—a fine young skater. No inducement would tempt father to put on the rollers; but there is plenty of time yet for him to visit the rink at an early session, and in the comparative safety and seclusion of the learners' annexe—the "blood pit," as he facetiously termed it—attain proficiency in the invigorating pastime.

Mr. Handel V. Phasey's military band is an attraction that must be mentioned, and the stirring Sousa marches, and other melodious selections of this capital combination of musicians were greatly appreciated by rinkers and spectators alike. Then there is the "skatoboggan," on which the more daring of the rinkers may have a particularly exciting time; and other features are rinking for ladies only, men's races, two-step and barn-dancing waltzes.

Mr. Frank C. Bostock, the enterprising director-proprietor of the rink, and Mr. Harold Hilliard have certainly left nothing undone to make Earl's Court Rink an ideal resort for skaters, and it is very evident that the invigorating and delightful pastime has lost none of its popularity. Mr. John S. Harvey is the courteous and astute general manager, and all concerned with the undoubted success of the opening session should be gratified at the appreciation expressed on all sides for this admirably-equipped and managed rink.

KINEMATOGRAPH COPYRIGHT. The Law Affecting the Same. By William Jago, F.I.C., F.C.S., Barrister-at-Law. Price 6d. Address, the Publisher The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, London, W.C.

"THE HEART OF CARMELA."

Sketch, by John G. Brandon, Produced at the Euston on Monday, Nov. 14.

Felippe .....Mr. John G. Brandon
Pedro .....Senor Zanfretta
Loretta .....Miss Julie Dolaro
Anita .....Miss Rae Gordon
Ramon .....Mr. Richard Norton
Laragna .....Senor Enrique Montez
Carmela .....Senorita Genevre Dexel

Mr. John G. Brandon, the author of those well-known and popular playlets, The Leaves of Memory and The Yellow Fang, has written a dramatic little sketch in The Heart of Carmela, which, picturesquely staged, afforded a very pleasant interlude in this week's programme at the Euston. The scene is the wine-pressing yard of the vineyard, Madre Santa Dolorosa, outside Zerez, at the close of a summer's day, and the workers in the vineyard and the old overseer, Felippe, make merry after their labour, one of their number, Loretta, being persuaded to sing a song of a faithless Toreador. Presently there enters the grape-picker, Carmela, who has been spending the day in the mountains. She is warned by Felippe of the jealousy of her lover, Ramon, but gives him to understand that she loves him best in that mood, and eventually obliges her companions with a Spanish dance, in which she is joined by Laragna, a gipsy horse-dealer. Ramon comes on the scene towards the finish, and, maddened at the sight of Carmela in the arms of another man, draws his knife. There is a short and decisive fight, in which Ramon is killed, and Laragna departs, followed by the crowd, intent on his death. Felippe tells Carmela that she is to blame for the death of Ramon, and bidding the old man depart, she falls on the body of her lover, and apparently goes mad. Senorita Genevre Dexel, whose company of Continental and English artists were responsible for the production, played with intensity and abandon as the handsome Carmela, giving an impressive and attractive performance throughout, her seductive and skilful Spanish dance, in which she has an accomplished partner in Senor Enrique Montez, being keenly appreciated. Mr. John G. Brandon as Felippe and Mr. Richard Norton as the jealous Ramon supplied admirable portrayals, and the other parts were all capitally undertaken, Miss Julie Dolaro's Toreador song being a very pleasing contribution. The playlet was charmingly staged and dressed.

Mr. Harry Tate and his "veri 'ot taterplane" are responsible for the loudest laughter heard during the evening, the clever comedian being screamingly funny as the airman who is so perplexed at some of the questions put to him by the interviewer of the Daily Talker. The funny little Scotch secretary, the mechanic who has so little faith in the flying abilities of his master, and the Mayor, who comes with the address of welcome and a distinctly comic brass band, all contribute valuably to the success of this really humorous skit, which is a scream throughout, Mr. Tate's humorous portrayal of the harassed aeronaut being one of his funniest creations—a study that none who appreciate genuine comedy should miss. Mr. Tom Clare, the accomplished entertainer at the piano, amusingly sings of Cynthia, determined to scintillate, and gives a funny "waltz" song, his imitation of the perplexed German at the telephone being a very precious contribution; and early in the evening Miss Edna Latonne, who looks exceptionally well in male attire, sings a capital number, "What's the matter with London?" The clever boy comedian and dancer, Wallace Lupino, proves himself an expert and appreciated exponent of the terpsichorean art; and the O'Gorman Brothers are a couple of neat and skilful dancers, and amuse in cross-talk.

The clever Crisps, in their attractive and smartly-worked little dancing scena The Little Deputy, are back again in town and are repeating at the Euston the decided success they made some two months since at the Oxford. The trio are all talented and enthusiastic young workers, and the Apache dance of Jack and his little sister Winnie is executed with much skill and abandon, and is a splendid finish to a most enjoyable and refreshing turn. The marvellous acrobatic feats of the Athos Troupe must be seen to be appreciated at their true worth, and the novel and amazing manipulation of a number of balls is an attractive item in a varied and cleverly-worked show; and the immensely popular "John Bull Girl," Miss Victoria Monks, with "Judgment Day" and "I don't care if I never go home"; Herbert Rule and Dusty Rhodes, comedians with droll styles and laughable material; and Ruffell's Bioscope are all numbers that count in the alluring bill at the Euston—one of the strongest twice-nightly programmes, in our opinion, ever overseered by the watchful and courteous manager, Mr. Fred M'Evoy.

Miss Maude May Murray, the charming electrical dancer, who was to have left England for America next week, has now postponed her tour. As a special attraction for pantomime Miss Murray made a hit last season at the Grand Theatre, Nottingham.

An application for a licence for Clara Agnes Johnson, twelve years old, to appear in a sketch at the Shoreditch Empire during the coming week was made at the Children's Court at Old-street on the 11th inst. Inspector Relf, on behalf of the Commissioner of Police, had informed the Court that a licence had been granted for the child to perform at Croydon on Monday last, and that on Tuesday Mr. Marsham, at Bow-street, had refused a second application for a licence to enable the child to perform at the London Pavilion on the same evenings. In consequence of this refusal the child had been performing at the Pavilion before nine p.m., not requiring a licence for a performance before that time, and had then been hurried off to Croydon for a further two performances.

The licence was granted for the Shoreditch Empire, subject to an undertaking by Mr. Munro, the manager, that if the child appeared at the London Pavilion he would not allow her to appear at his hall.

Mr. W. H. Westwood, the popular manager and secretary of the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd., will to-day (Nov. 19) celebrate his sixtieth birthday, and also by a singular coincidence, the twenty-fifth year (to the day) of his theatrical management in Walsall. A special benefit matinée has been arranged to take place to-day (Saturday) at Her Majesty's Theatre, to celebrate the occasion, and it is expected there will be a unique gathering of stars from the leading halls in the Midlands, and several will journey specially from London to attend.

Mr. Westwood can rightly claim to be one of the pioneers and promoters of the Walsall Theatres, and under his able guidance the theatregoers of the town have been catered for, both in comfort and amusement, in a manner deserving of the highest confidence of his patrons. Before taking up the duties of promoter and theatre-manager in Walsall twenty-five years ago, Mr. Westwood, it will be remembered, was the popular performer known under the the name of Leonarti, and many of his old friends would hardly credit the energetic and genial manager of the Walsall Theatres with having attained the age of sixty years, his carriage and general bearing being that of a much younger man. We congratulate Mr. Westwood (Leonarti) and wish him a bumper benefit.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring-gardens, Mr. Whitaker Thompson (chairman) presiding.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were presented against the proposed Kilburn Coliseum and a cinematograph theatre at King's-road, Peckham.

PICTURE EMPIRE, CAMBERWELL.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered an application for a certificate submitted by Mr. A. R. Westworth, of the Picture Empire, 55, Camberwell-road. The premises have accommodation for about 800 persons. It is intended to apply for a music licence, and, subject to certain conditions being observed, the premises appear to be suitable for the purpose for which the licence is desired. The committee recommend the Council to grant a certificate.

NEW KING'S HALL.

The Theatres Committee had also considered an application for a certificate submitted by Mr M. Cohen, of a concert hall to be known as the New King's Hall, in course of erection at 133-139, Commercial-road. It is intended to apply for a music and dancing licence for the hall on the ground floor, which will accommodate about 780 persons, and, subject to certain conditions being observed, the hall appears to be suitable for the purpose for which the licence is desired. The committee recommended the Council to grant a certificate.

PROPOSED EUSTON HIPPODROME.

The Theatres Committee had considered an application for a certificate submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co., of a music hall proposed to be erected in Euston-road, Chesterfield-street, and Belgrave-street, and to be known as the Euston Hippodrome. The premises will accommodate about 2,700 persons, and the arrangements appear to be satisfactory. The committee recommended the Council to grant the certificate, on the usual conditions being observed.

HAMPSTEAD SKATING RINK.

The committee had considered an application for a certificate submitted by Mr. F. C Bostock, of the Hampstead Roller Skating Rink, Cressey-road, Hampstead, it being intended to apply for a music and dancing licence. The site of the rink does not comply with the regulations of the Council relating to places of public entertainment, and recommended that a certificate be not granted.

HIGHGATE HILL ELECTRIC PALACE.

The committee had considered an application for a certificate submitted by Mr. G. W. Booth, of the Electric Palace proposed to be erected at 17, Highgate-hill, it being intended to apply for a music licence. The premises will accommodate about 900 persons, and they appear to be suitable for the purpose for which the licence is desired. The committee recommended the Council to grant a certificate, on the usual regulations being complied with.

THEATRE DE LUXE.

The committee recommended that a certificate be not granted in respect of the Theatre de Luxe, 211, High-street, Camden Town, as the site of the premises does not comply with the regulations of the Council relative to places to be used for public entertainments.

CINEMATOGRAPH THEATRE, SHOREDITCH.

The committee recommended that a certificate be not granted in respect of the Palais Eden Cinematograph Theatre, 226 and 227, Shoreditch High-street, as the site of the premises does not comply with the regulations of the Council.

All the above recommendations were agreed to without discussion.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

Being a digest of the Law relating to Theatres and Music Halls, and containing chapters on Theatrical Contracts, Theatrical, Music and Dancing, and Excise Licences, Dramatic and Musical Copyright, &c., with an Appendix containing the Acts of Parliament relating thereto, and the regulations of the London County Council and the Lord Chamberlain, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B. (London), solicitor. Third edition.

The Artist's Legal Handbook.—We welcome a third edition of Mr. Albert A. Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law" (The Era Offices), as it is nine years since the second appeared, and much has happened since then, not least the foundation of the V.A.F. and the resultant Award of 1907. This will be found incorporated in the now greatly improved and extended Appendix of Statutes, ranging from the Disorderly Houses Act of 1751 to last year's L.C.C. Cinematograph regulations. As far as is possible with further developments in daily progress, this invaluable work of legal reference for all interested in the entertainment profession has been brought up to date. Sixty pages have been added, and the whole revised and rendered easier of reference by the re-arrangements that have been made and the numerous marginal headings that have been introduced. Strong on "Dramatic and Musical Law" may be regarded as the layman's complete authority on the subject, whether he be proprietor, manager, or artist, and with a lucid explanation of the law so readily available, the artist will be wise to consult its pages before venturing on new contracts and agreements, whether as employed or—in these days of "combinations," sketches, troupes, and what not—as employer.—The Performer, May 12, 1910.

"Dramatic and Musical Law," by Mr. A. A. Strong, LL.B., has reached a third edition, and gives in simple language such parts of the law as relate to subjects with which the profession is concerned.—The Financier.

Mr. Albert A. Strong's valuable work "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at The Era Offices, Tavistock-street, has reached its third edition. The author has made every effort to bring the book right up to date.—Referee, May 15, 1910.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Price 5s., post free 5s. 4d. Published at The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

The late Mr. Isaac Cohen, formerly managing-director of the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, left £6,000. The executors are Mr. Albert Christian, the well-known baritone, and Mr. Joseph Lyons, the English caterer, his son-in-law.

Miss Lillian French, who has been meeting with much success in the provinces, both with her songs and her mimicry of well-known artists, and who has been compelled, owing to her bookings to refuse a lucrative offer for pantomime, has acquired from Percy Edgar a new character number entitled "The lady recruiting sergeant." The talented little lady is still featuring her own pretty ballad from the same pen, "When the summer sun is dying, Rose Marie," which has been published by a leading firm.

Whitehall Rink, Sunderland.

A grand gymkhana was held here on Wednesday night, when the entries for the various costume and obstacle races were numerous. The contests without exception were spirited, and created great excitement. Mr. Sydney Walton's management of this rink is deserving of all praise.

WILD ANIMAL TRAINERS.

"To secure the right man for the training of wild animals is about the most serious problem that the proprietor of an animal exhibition has to solve; very often the problem remains unsolved," says Mr. Frank C. Bostock, himself a trainer of experience, in his book on "The Training of Wild Animals."

"An animal trainer is a complex and unique person in more ways than one. He is not always superlatively endowed with the characteristics that are attributed to him by most casual observers. Curiously enough, the very element that would seem the most essential is scarcely ever reckoned as his chief virtue. Courage is considered by those who know little about it as one of the first requisites, but a man may have physical and moral courage to an unusual degree and still be quite unfit for a trainer.

"The animal trainer may have, and all do have to some extent, the physical courage which is admired, but it is an unconscious courage, and plays such a minor part in a successful performance, that the possession of it is not noted, either by the trainer himself, or by those who know him. There are faculties far higher and far more difficult of cultivation, as well as more rarely possessed, which the animal trainer must have.

"First of all are good personal habits. The finest lion-trainers are men of the most absolute personal integrity, who smoke and drink very little, if at all, and who possess self-control to an unusual degree. It is a fact very little known and somewhat difficult to realise by those who have not studied the matter, that in some curious, incomprehensible way, wild animals know instinctively whether men are addicted to bad habits. It is one of the many problems which are beyond the human understanding. For those who are the least bit inclined to drink, or live a loose life, the wild animal has neither fear nor respect.

"He despises them with all the contempt of his animal nature, and recognises neither their authority nor superiority. Just as men recognise superior minds and strong personalities in other men, so does the wild animal recognise such qualities, and it is wonderful how extremely susceptible animals are to graceful, refined, and pleasing personalities.

"The personality of an animal trainer is one that counts both with the animals and with the audience, and the more magnetic, polished, and accomplished he is, the greater will be his success and the stronger will be his influence, both with the animals with which he comes in contact and with the public which observes him. But if a man has begun to take just a little, or has deviated somewhat from the straight road, the animals will discover it long before his fellowmen.

"From that moment the trainer's life is in danger every time he enters the cage, and the animals keep a keen look-out for the moment when he will either trip a little—always the signal for animals to spring—lose his nerve, or let his thoughts go wandering off to other matters, even for a moment or two. The least carelessness, the least indifference, even a little unusual movement on his part, is quite enough to make the animals spring upon him and get him down.

"Occasionally a trainer who is beginning to take to drink or other bad habits realises that he will soon lose the respect and control of his animals, and is wise enough to drop the training business before too late. But, as a rule, once a man has taken up this profession he is extremely loth to resign, although he may be perfectly well aware that he endangers his life every moment he trusts himself among the animals. There is a peculiar fascination about the life which keeps him at it; and although I have often warned men, they have rarely been induced to give it up until some severe accident has happened which has either disabled them, or given them such a shock that they lost their nerve entirely.

"One of the finest lion-trainers that America ever had has now voluntarily retired, though still in the prime of life; but he is addicted to drink, realised the danger, and so was sensible enough to give it up before too late. He felt it was absolutely unsafe for him to enter the arena night after night, when no matter how little he drank had a numbing effect upon him.

"The climax came one night when, feeling a little more numb than usual, he suddenly noticed in the midst of the performance that his lions were all looking at him curiously. Instantly he knew that they had lost their respect for him; for all trainers can tell, before anything happens, when the moment has come in which they are likely to lose their dominance, if that loss comes, not through accident, but through the paralysis of their own power. He realised at once the pitiful state he was drifting into, and the danger, and was wise and quick enough to get out before they got him.

"But that was the last time he ever entered the cage. From being tractable and docile, the lions from that time had nothing but hatred and contempt for him, and his approach even near their cages was always the signal for savage snarls and vicious leaps at the bars.

"Another essential in animal training is patience. It must be an ingrained attribute of the character, and dominant at all times—a constant, persistent, unwearying patience. Without it the trainer will never make a complete success. Allied with patience must be good judgment, and one who is patient generally has good judgment. This is one of the reasons that, as a rule, Englishmen and Germans, being more phlegmatic, make excellent animal trainers.

"Trainers whose patience is limited never last long. There comes a day when, through hasty temper or a sudden loss of patience, the trainer says or does some foolish thing, which he always has reason to regret, and bitterly, too.

"In one case, one of the animals would not respond to his cue, in spite of being spoken to several times. The trainer kept his patience for some time, but the fact that the audience was getting restless made him nervous, and in a foolish moment he shouted at the lion. The shout was so unusual and so unexpected that every lion in the cage started, and the next moment there was a scene of the wildest confusion.

"The animals roared, jumped from their pedestals, and soon pinned the man to the floor. By a supreme effort he raised himself, and being near the door, the attendants were able to keep the lions back by firing blank cartridges until he could get out. But he was terribly mauled, and it was a long and tedious illness which followed. To show what a disturbing effect that shout had on the lions, it was hours before they could be quieted, and even when they were fed, two hours afterward, they were still restless and excited, and left their meat every few minutes to roar and growl.

"That was the last time the trainer ever entered the cage. He lost his nerve completely. Unless a man has absolute self-control, he can never be sure of what may happen to him as a lion-trainer. This trainer's sudden loss of patience proved that he was unable to control his feelings, in itself a weakness.

"Among other things, physical agility is a prime requisite. It is better if it is the agility of reserve rather than the agility of aggression, for aggression arouses a like quality in the animal, and develops an appreciation of his brute strength, which sooner or later may be used against the trainer. But the equipoise and power existing only in those of good personal habits and judgment give an animal trainer the needed ability to escape an otherwise unavoidable danger."

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

The Real Pantomime Winner

THERE IS NO ARGUMENT. THIS WILL BE THE HIT OF THE YEAR.

WHY DO YOU WAIT FOR TO-MORROW?

All those other worn-out and worked-to-death Ballads advertised by other Publishers sound like Comic Songs when you hear the one REAL HIT.

WHY DO YOU WAIT FOR TO-MORROW?

And we have a Bundle of other Hits to suit BOY, GIRL, DAME, &c. 'NUFF SAID. Come and Hear them, or write at once.

Professional Copy of the above Song, together with our other Successes, will be sent only to Artistes holding Pantomime Engagements, on receipt of Sixpence for postage. State Theatre and Pantomime.

DAILY TELEGRAPH, Feb. 2, 1910.

Once more "The Era" Annual justifies its claim to a place which is unique in the theatrical literature of the year. It contains a record of all the new plays and important revivals produced at the London theatres and in the provinces during the twelve months ending Nov. 30 last, arranged in two lists, one according to the theatres and the other alphabetically according to titles. Then another carefully compiled section gives the casts concerned in these productions. The principal sketches put on at the London and provincial variety houses are treated in the same thorough-going manner, and lists of the plays produced in Paris, Berlin, and New York complete a remarkably comprehensive survey of the doings of the theatrical year. It will be clearly seen, therefore, that to the "profession," the student, and the theatrical enthusiast "The Era" Annual is indispensable. But the casual reader is also skilfully catered for in the series of articles and stories contributed by many favourites of the stage, including Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Miss Louie Freear, and Miss Vesta Tilley. No conscientious theatre-goer can do without his "Era" Annual.

EVENING NEWS, Feb. 9, 1910.

"The Era" Annual, issued at a shilling, has been complied with care and is replete with interest for all concerned in the personalities and the events of stageland. In addition to the diaries of theatrical productions, there are short stories and reminiscences by well-known actors and actresses. This section is led by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, who raises again the disputed site of the old Globe playhouse. The latter part of the book deals with the deaths of the year, with excellent photographs of the artists who have passed away.

SUNDAY TIMES, Jan. 23, 1910.

"The Era" Annual (1s.) continues to swell in bulk. In addition to the dramatic and musical calendar, are alphabetical lists and full casts of the new plays and important revivals produced in London, New York, Paris, and Berlin, and of new sketches in London and the provinces, there is a series of stories by well-known members of the profession with portraits and autographs of the authors. Sir Herbert Tree answers the question, "Where was the old Globe Playhouse?" and other contributors include Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. John Le Hay, Mr. Arthur Williams, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Mr. J. H. Barnes, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mr. Will Clarkson, Miss Louie Freear, and Miss Vesta Tilley.

YORKSHIRE POST, Feb. 2, 1910.

"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual (The Era Office, 1s.) as usual contains stories and short articles by many well-known people of the stage, in addition to a list of London and provincial productions in 1909, and many other items of interest to the theatrical world.

REFEREE, Jan. 30 1910.

About this time of year players and playgoers alike begin to look for the works of theatrical reference to which they are accustomed. Again we welcome that old-established useful shillingsworth, "The Era" Annual, or "Almanac" as it was wont to be called. As of yore, "The Era" Annual contains articles, anecdotes, and pictures galore, Sir Herbert Tree (with portrait) leading off with that new Shakespearean conundrum, "Where was the Old Globe Playhouse?" Among other well-known people contributing are Messrs. Fred Terry, Willie Clarkson, Rutland Barrington, J. H. Barnes, John Le Hay, Harry Nicholls, John Lawson, Charles Collette, Arthur Williams, Alfred Lester, Dan Rolyat, and Henry Neville. The lady story-tellers include Louie Freear, Vesta Tilley, and Miss Edith Cole. The lists of new plays in London and the provinces, Paris, New York, and Berlin, and the catalogue of new sketches (with casts thereof) are admirably compiled.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatre Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. J. S. Jackson's Amateur Opera Company occupy the boards of His Majesty's Theatre this week, and right worthily maintain the traditions of the place. The opera produced is The Emerald Isle, that composite production which represented the last of Sir Arthur Sullivan's operatic work, and which his premature death left in an unfinished state.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—"George I.," the entertaining and marvellously human-like chimpanzee, is the star attraction at the Palace this week. Frank Fenton is seen to great advantage as David Garrick in a sketch founded on a French original; Frank Seeley is a humorous entertainer; Harry Cotton sings and acts well; Ryan and Hall are skilful acrobats and wrestlers; Alice Blandford sings charmingly; Athas and Collins are highly original entertainers; Phil Percival is a gifted pianist; and Danvers and Rosslyn give a bright display in A Pantomime Boy.

THE TIVOLI.—Proprietors, The Tivoli (Aberdeen), Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Messrs. Jordan and Harvey present a highly entertaining Hebrew character sketch; Lennie and Hast produce a romantic musical idyll; Jack Dewson is a pianist of power and ability; Edgard Forrest and company, in a sketch entitled My Friend the Enemy, command warm appreciation; Little Sophie is an excellent impersonator; Daisy Morell sings well and acts effectively; the Three Kels are gymnasts of ability; Truro and Bruce are versatile in the sketch, The Very Extraordinary Turn; and Miss Meg Mazel proves herself to be a true Australasian comedienne.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Charles Harrington's capital company in Uncle Tom's Cabin is proving a big attraction here this week. Mr. J. H. Boehm played the part of Uncle Tom in a praiseworthy manner; Mr. Charles Harrington as Phineas Fletcher acquits himself creditably; and Mr. Frank Lynn is effective as Mr. St. Clair. Mr. Eric Williams submits a capable impersonation of George Harris; Mr. Tom Bowron gives a powerful portrayal of Legree; and Mr. Reginald Kloof makes a mirth-provoking Marks. Miss Sylvia Harrington submits a charming interpretation of Eliza Harris; Miss Hettie Johnson plays with dramatic force as Cassy; and Miss Ethel Vernon is all that could be desired as Aunt Ophelia. Miss Annie Watson is successful as Topsy; Miss May Turner makes the most of her opportunities as Mrs. St. Clair; and Miss J. Green is commendable as Aunt Chloe. As Little Eva Miss Norah Bretton displays ability and acts with delightful grace and charm. Excellent specialities are introduced in the plantation scene.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Palles and Cussick, knockabout comedians, please immensely in their boxing act; the D'Vorak Family, comedy acrobats and equilibrists, have a gratifying reception; Miss Lilian Lowe contributes two ballads delightfully; the Four Sisters Gilby, in their clever musical act, meet with approbation; Walter Stanley, comedian, scores a big success; and Billy Rhodes proves himself a capital character comedian. The Two Brothers, depicted by the Bioscope, is entertaining.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—A hearty reception has been given to Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Merry Widow, which is splendidly dressed and effectively staged. Miss Mary Ridley is graceful and fascinating in manner as Sonia, and quite captivates her audience; Mr. J. Warren Foster gives a manly conception of Prince Danilo, and is a rare favourite. Mr. Edward D'Arcy's grotesque make-up and comedy as the Baron are provocative of considerable fun; Mr. Ripley Evans, besides a talented enactment of Jolidon, uses a voice of remarkable clearness in many vocal numbers. As Nisch Mr. Fred Fowler is excruciatingly funny, and Miss Katie May is a smart Frou-Frou. Miss May and Mr. Fowler are recipients of hearty applause for their Apache dance. Miss Ada Thomas is excellent as Natalie.

ASHINGTON.—MINERS' THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. C. Moody; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. C. Browne.—Mr. Charles Draycott's Répertoire Company opened on Monday with The Heart of a Hero, which was done full justice to, the mounting and acting being everything that could be desired. Mr. Draycott repeated his fine performance of Jem Resdale; Mrs. Charles Draycott as the erring sister, Nell Resdale, gave a capital impersonation of the part, her excellent elocution adding much to the success of the assumption. They were well supported by a talented company. The Octoroon, Colleen Bawn, A Modern Adventuress, Ticket-of-Leave Man, and The Shadows of a Great City are also in the week's bill.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. Percy Williams is touring the well-known American melodrama The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Hugh Montgomery sustains the rôle of Howard Wilson with ability; Miss Ethel Kay as Mabel Wilson acts with quiet power; Jessie, the little mother, is played by the particularly gifted Little Lussanne; Mr. Royce Milton as Curtis is prominent in the plot; and also Messrs. Sam Springson as a French butler, Mr. Cyril Melton as Shwartz, a janitor, and Mr. J. Newton as the Rev. Dr. Lanceford. Miss Leah Marlborough is a sufficiently bold and unprincipled adventuress; and Miss Marie Harcourt is good as Bridget.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—The leading item of a good variety programme is Hayman and Franklin's players, who appear in a dramatic sketch entitled Toplitsky; or, the End of the World. The others turns of a full programme are Clifford Stuart, Lancashire versatile comedian; the Haytors (Frank, Walter, and Minnie), who frivol in frivolous frivolities; the inimitable humorist, Edwin Garth; the Snow Family, expert and grotesque skaters; the Five M.P.'s, musical experts; the Codys, the world's lariat-throwers; and Mr. Geo. French's troupe of trick cyclists.

BARNSLEY.—EMPIRE.—Proprietors, the Barnsley Empire Palace Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Will Smithson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Kenyon.—An excellent bill is headed by Madge Grey, who is heartily encored; the Two Lees, comedy instrumentalists, are a clever turn; David Fuller quickly makes himself a favourite; Della Ray renders an attractive number; a good tumbling duo are Burley and Green; and two excellent pictures are shown on the Bioscope, entitled From Forest to Fireside, and Redwing's Love Story.

PUBLIC HALL.—Proprietors, the Mayor and Burgesses of the Borough of Barnsley; Lessees, the Royal York Picture Co.; Manager, Mr. G. Johnson.—A capital programme is here this week, interspersed with a good selection of films.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—This week the Barnstaple Picturedrome Company, under the direction of Messrs. Lionel Prichard and Francis A. Osborne, have put on an entirely fresh programme, which includes Frank Stanert in a musical speciality and comedy entertainment, and Miss Elsie Gorton in illustrated songs. The Bioscope introduces several mirth-provoking pictures.

ALBERT HALL.—Proprietors, the Barnstaple Town Council; Manager Mr. O. J. Kicklin.—Joseph Poole's Myriorama was here for the first three nights this week, all the turns receiving generous approval. The programme included Mr. Herbert G. Berry, a gifted cicerone and vocalist; little Francesca, transformation dancer; Johnny O'Rourke, a comical tourist; the Bros. Graham, comedy acrobats and hand balancers; the Misses Eileen and May in a novel musical and dancing speciality; Wun-hi-lung in Mongolian mysteries; Bert Danson, comedian; the Victas, acrobatic barrel jumpers; Miss Fredrica's terriers and cake-walk pony; and the Four Wartanas in a novel and clever juggling speciality. The entertainment was interspersed by popular items on the Bioscope.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Messrs. Forbes Knowles and Harry Masterman's company, in Nick Carter, is here. The former gives a capital performance as the hero, and Miss Helena Walbran shows skill and ability as Madeline. Little Hilda Tokes is a pleasing Cyril, and Mr. Raymond Thomas is a capable Eustace Lee.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—The Face at the Window is here. Mr. F. W. Dunscombe is excellent as Paul Goufett, and Mr. W. Haughton McCauley is very clever as "Le Loup." Miss Constance Glenabyn is a charming Marie Brisson, and Henry Brisson is well enacted by Mr. James Weston, and Miss Frances Day and Mr. John A. Stimson provide much humour.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—The Ovolos are in the premier position, and their remarkably clever tumbling evokes loud approbation; Sidney Brandon gives clever impersonations of the Tramp and Mathias; Harrigan and Holt are much enjoyed; Sterling and Love sing and play agreeably and humorously; Norah Desmond is entertaining in some illustrated vocal numbers; Josie Delaine is very pleasing in songs and dances; and Vernon's Bioscope concludes.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. C. Routledge.—Fred Newman's picture and variety company is drawing good houses.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. Walter Smyley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Frank Dure.—Mr. Robert Macdonald presents The Gay Gordons here this week. Mr. Alec. S. Clunes is seen to advantage as Angus Graeme; Mr. Harry Howe infuses much humour into the part of Nervy Nat; while Mr. W. H. Desmond is quaint as Edmund Siddons; Mr. Chas. Benson makes a typical American millionaire; the dancing of Mr. Alfred J. Gale (McPhrisky) is applauded; Miss May Yates is a piquant Peggy Quainton; a success is scored by Miss Cherry Hamilton in her droll impersonation of Charlotte Siddons; and the singing of Miss Edith Adeson (Victoria Siddons) is appreciated.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Manager, Mr. W. Wm. Minto.—Topping the bill here this week are Dix and Dox, who do well in a clever musical act; Coda and Danton are amusing cross talkers and expert dancers. The pictures are interesting.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—When Knights Were Bold is paying a third visit to Bath. Sir Guy de Vere is now presented by Mr. H. Langdon Bruce with the happiest result; Miss Violet Noel hits off the romantic mood of Lady Rowena capitally; Miss Lena Flowerdew (Mrs. Waldegrave), Miss Elspeth Oliphant (Alice Barker), Miss Lola Norman (Lady Millicent), Miss Mabel Hardinge (Lady Marjorie), Miss Juliet Mattheson (Kate Pottlebury), and Miss Lee Lewis (Miss Isaacson) do effective work; Mr. Chas. F. Lloyd is effective as the scheming Isaac Isaacson; and Mr. Allan Macdonald is light and hearty as the Hon. Chas. Widdicombe. On the evening of our visit Mr. Frank Withers, the acting-manager of the company, successfully enacted the Rev. Peter Pottlebury; Sir Brian Ballymote is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Humphrey Warden; and two capitally played parts are Wittle and Barker by Mr. Lawrence Stephenson and Mr. John Cecil.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—For several weeks past various illusionists have been seen here, but none better than Satani, the mysterious "Raffles," who baffles all by his disappearing tricks. Some excellent comedy juggling is done by Hurman and Arthur; Cromo and Hamilton have the audience with them in their latest burlesque skit, The Hobble-skirt; a delightful vocal interlude is that given by Haidee St. George; Cash and Clair maintain their excellence as simultaneous dancers; Jack Sheridan is a young comedian who evidently models his business upon that of his illustrious sire's; ford Williams essays two well-known bass songs with success; and Flo Warner's voice is displayed to advantage.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter B. Wilson.—During the week Mr. Basil Horsfall has been presenting the comic opera, The Queen of the Fair, which abounds with melody, while the plot is a good one. Señora Mercédès Dalmada as Elsa sings beautifully; Mr. Albert Chapman's pleasant tenor voice is heard to advantage in the various love passages he has as Captain Karl; Miss Carlotta Silvano as Rosalie sings and dances daintily; and Mr. Claude Casey gives a clever impersonation of Pierre. Humour is supplied by Mr. Arthur Reynolds, inimitable as 'Enery; Mr. George as the Burgomaster; Miss Janet Reeve as Ermyntrude Higgins; and Miss Maud Fergusson as Mrs. Jellicoe. Mlle. Rose Maie is the première danseuse.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—The Ulster Literary Theatre Company occupy this theatre this week, and on Monday produced the historical extravaganza entitled Suzanne and the Sovereigns, by Lewis Purcell and Gerald MacNamara.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Mr. Herbert Fuller's company opened here on Monday with A Noble Mother. Mr. Stanley Hoban acquitted himself with distinction as William Lingham; the title-rôle was skilfully portrayed by Miss Agnes Collier; Mr. George Gaisford was well cast as Harry Gilbert; Mr. R. Nelsone Graeswell was all that could be desired as Silas Grindstone; and Mr. Edward Foyer made a powerful Jim Darkley. The humour of the piece was in the hands of Miss Emily Lewis, a vivacious Teresa Hobbs; and Messrs. Herbert Fuller, inimitable as Charlie Kelly, an Irish servant, and Mr. Percy St. Clair as Quimbo, a laughing nigger. Miss Florence Delmar was a charming Clarissa; and Miss Lily Fuller an admirable Reggie.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The top of the bill here is occupied by Jack and Evelyn, whose clever comedy act has been most successful; Mr. Nelson Jackson, an accomplished pianist, sings several songs, which afford much enjoyment; and the capital sketch Ferdie's Main-Law, staged by Mr. Arnold Richardson and company, has created roars of laughter. Ted Curtis and company appear to advantage in their vocal and comedy act; and the O. K. Dians make a hit in their cleverly rendered songs and skilful dancing. Ralph and Nellie Howard in Military Mad are well worthy of praise; and the feats of the Mars Trio, military gymnasts, are extraordinary. Also here are Miss Maudie Ford, comedienne, and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—The place of honour here is filled by the Dayton Family, whose remarkable acrobatic feats have been enthusiastically received; Barrett and Knowles are responsible for much merriment with their comedy act, which has the merit of originality; Mr. Herbert La Martine is a good comedian and is also a fine dancer; and Little Zola's mirthful songs have been appreciated. Miss Sadie Stuart is a charming comedienne and dancer; and also appearing are Ugo Nap, comedian; Miss Jessie Lee, vocalist and dancer, who sang "Beautiful garden of roses" with much éclat on Monday; and the Bioscope, with pictures entitled A Daring Performance and Hard to Poison.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Among many interesting pictures presented here may be mentioned Under Western Skies, The Little Mother of the Baby Show, A Family Feud, &c. The variety element is sustained by Mr. George Reeves, a first-class comedian with good songs, and the Boston Twins, comedians and mimics.

BILSTON.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Edwin C. Jazon; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Tunstall.—A popular item this week is the clever duologue, The Suffragette, by the Menzies. Others who contributed are Miss Maud Beaumont, Mr. George Bernard, and Miss Millie Milton.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King.—The Birkenhead Dramatic Society, an earnest body of amateurs, are here for a week, appearing in Trilby.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—Mitchell and Caine, American comedians of undoubted ability, are a leading attraction, and have a hearty reception nightly; Miss Florrie Gallimore, the popular comedienne, is on a welcome return visit, as also is Mr. Fred Curran, a resourceful comedian of genuine humour. A fine company likewise includes Rose and Challoner, who are heartily received in their comedy sketches; Mr. Harry Russon, a talented actor-comedian; Mr. Charles Prelle's miniature circus, a marvel of animal training; the Lyric Mummers (Frank and Lillian), in a vocal and comedy speciality; Phil Bransby, coster comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—F. Marriott Watson and James Usher's company is

On their garments not a blemish,
But fresher than before.—The Tempest.

ORIGINAL THEATRICAL CLEANERS & DYERS, AND CONTRACTORS TO HIS MAJESTY'S OFFICE OF WORKS.

COPY OF TESTIMONIAL.

From J. A. Harrison Co., Ltd., Theatrical Costumiers, 29, Leicester Square, W.C.
27th October, 1910.

To T. Harris, Esq., Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 6, Argyll Street, W.

Dear Mr. Harris,—

I am very pleased with the cleaning of the Pantomime Wardrobe you have just sent back. It may interest you to know that some of the Costumes were made six years ago. They look almost as good as the first time they were used.

Yours truly, J. A. HARRISON,
Managing Director.

appearing twice nightly in The Black Mask with gratifying success; Miss Florence B. Florence as Nellie and Mr. F. Marriott Watson as Le Noir sustain the leading rôles with great distinction. They are adequately supported by an excellent company, and the piece is liberally staged.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mr. Martin Harvey and his company are making a welcome reappearance here in a capital répertoire. In all of them Mr. Harvey has figured prominently, and has once more demonstrated what a capable actor he is. The Breed of the Treshams was produced on Monday and Tuesday. Richard III., A Cigarette Maker's Romance, and The Only Way are also in the bill.

Prince of Wales's.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Miss Ethel Irving is the leading figure in the delightful play Dame Nature, and she has won the hearts of theatregoers by her excellent performance as Lolette. Mr. Frank Cooper gives an artistic presentation of Robert Bertram, the artist husband, and a faithful study of Princess de Chabran is furnished by Miss Mabelle Hunt. Some of the minor parts are well filled, particularly those of Paul Garford (Mr. W. R. Staveley) and his wife (Miss Florence Nelson), Ridgeway (Mr. Charles Vane), and Isadore Lorenz (Miss V. Kemble Cooper).

Alexandra.—Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—A warm welcome is accorded Mrs. Frank Bateman and company in Where Angels Fear to Tread. Mrs. Bateman performs excellently, and is the backbone of the play. Others who deserve special mention are Mr. F. W. Goddard, Mr. P. Shaw, Mr. G. Butler, Miss H. Carrington, and Miss E. Blenheim. The piece is elaborately staged.

Bordesley Palace.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—The Flag Lieutenant is artistically presented by Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company. Dick Lascelles is played with good effect by Mr. Loring Fernie, who is responsible for continuous ripples of laughter; Miss Dorothy Ripley is excellent as Lady Hermione Wynne; and Mr. George Mallett is prominent as Vice-Admiral Berkeley Wynne. Other capable performers are Miss Clarissa Selwynne, Miss Winifred Vallant, Mr. A. V. Bramble, and Mr. George Percy. The play is admirably staged.

Metropole.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The World, the Flesh, and the Devil is arousing much interest, and good audiences thoroughly enjoy a well-acted drama. A sensational effect is produced by the vision of Satan, which provides an effective tableau after the principal dramatic situations. The company is Mr. Laurence Cowen's, and the piece is very cleverly handled. Mr. Hugh Wildey is excellent in the part of the hero, Robert Hall, and as Beatrice Cuthbert, his sweetheart, Miss Dorothy Routh is responsible for clever acting. Mr. Keith Fraser ably portrays the heavy character of Nicholas Brophy. Other parts are ably represented by Mr. Hubert Pinder, Mr. Edwin Wilson, Mr. Frederick Jacques, Miss Dora Hammersley, &c.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis Chapman.—The Ruin of Her Life is attracting good houses. The performance of Mrs. Charles Sugden, the well-known actress, as the ticket-of-leave woman is the outstanding feature of the piece. The character is a difficult one, but she is equal to every situation. Mr. F. Pennington-Gush is praiseworthy as Dan Devel Macaire, and other capable members of the company are Miss Constance Groves, Mr. Henry C. Ward, Mr. J. E. Stephenson, Mr. Arthur Keand, and Miss Mary Vane.

Carlton.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—A capital attraction has been secured in No Mother to Guide Her, which Mr. Will Glaze's capable company is producing.

The Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—An excellent bill is headed by Caryl Wilbur and his company in the strong farcical sketch 61, Prospect Street, Mr. Wilbur proving himself an exceedingly funny comedian. Cyril Clanoy gives faithful imitations of well-known performers; a thrilling Indian episode, entitled The Half-Caste, is well played by Miss Evelyn Beresford and company; the Paxton Troupe of acrobats perform clever and daring feats; a musical treat is provided by the Saxonia Family; the Soho Trio are pleasing singers and dancers; and Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris are quaint American humorists.

The Grand.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. E. Foster.—George Lashwood, as bright and smart as ever, is the premier attraction here, and is presenting a new scena, entitled The Railway Guard. What Women Do for Men is the title of a highly sensational sketch presented by Miss Ivy Williams and company. Edith Fink is a winsome comedienne; Dion Wade is popular in original business; Tambo and Tambo are expert tambourine spinners; Braatz's Dogs exhibit remarkable training in a canine sketch; Lee and Kingston are amusing in a tabloid comedy; A. H. West is expert at the piano; and A. G. Spry is a popular comedian.

Gaiety.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. A. Badman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Marshall.—A farcical comedy, entitled My Friend the Count, heads a strong bill, and Mr. Ernest Lawson as the bogus Count scores as a comedian of no mean ability. Joe Hayman and Mildred Franklin are big favourites; J. W. Gallagher creates roars of laughter; a pleasing song scena is presented by the Garricks, a quartet of talented dancers and singers; Sidney James and company are pleasing entertainers; Luigo Salvino is a youthful master of musical instruments; Victor and Louis give a humorous skit on golfing; Farr and Farland are bright cross-talk comedians; and Newman and Knight skilful comedy jugglers.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Barrasfords, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Ben De Frece.—The Six Brothers Luck are scoring successfully in H.M.S. Perhaps. The turn is brimful of boisterous fun, and there are many topical features. Little Jack Marks is a clever Hebrew comedian of tender years, and Smann Sing Hpoo is a gymnastic artist of much ability. The female impersonations of Max Waldon create astonishment; and Mlle. Medicis, accompanied by her dog, appears in an effective series of poses. Mr. and Mrs. Alaska are clever dancers in a novel turn, Fred Lyndo and J. H. Ellis are capable comedy artists, and other good contributors are Addie Adell (vocalist) and Cliff Ryland.

Aston Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—Wee Georgie Wood, the versatile child artist, is popular at the head of a good bill. A farcical episode, entitled Poor Beggar, presented by John Le Hay and company, is thoroughly enjoyed; and It is the title of an amusing playlet, produced by Lilian Matthews and Fred Haming, which finds much favour. Leo and Roland are skilful hand balancers; Cosgrove and Burns keep the audience amused in The Singing Academy; Wyndham and Kitty are smart wire performers; Leon and Tee are applauded in a musical speciality; Harold Heath is a popular coon singer and dancer; and Leah Arden is a bright comedienne.

King's Hall.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—An excellent programme of new pictures is provided, and good variety turns are given by Charlie Chand, Annie Casey, and Baba Violet.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—Eden Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. William Maclaren's company is on a return visit with Claudian. Mr. Maclaren gives an artistic portrayal of the title-rôle, and is charmingly assisted by Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Almida. Mr. Douglas Earle handles the part of Agazil with effect; Thariogalus is commandingly brought out by Mr. Frank Owen Chambers; Mr. Chal. T. Chalomer keeps the house amused as Belos, and a similar remark applies to Miss Maud Garth as Edessa; and Mlle Stello Dorin produces the Cymbal Dance delightfully. The scenery is well staged.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, the Hippodrome (Bishop Auckland), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—Capital houses are witnessing an attractive bill. Jack Pleasants is a comedian with talent, and is admirably received; Ella Retford is a clever comedienne and dancer; the Cedrics are effective in their comedy act; and included in the bill are Edie King, Hartley and Melton, Vella, and the Hipposcope.

BLACKBURN.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; Manageress, Mrs. C. Clarkson.—Through the Divorce Court is being presented by Messrs. Henry Chattell and Jack Denton's company. Mr. Riddell Robinson plays well as Lord Robert Penarth, and he is ably supported by Miss Hettie Chattell as Lady Dolores Penarth; Mr. Henry C. Cooper as Guzmardi Mendoza realises the part capitally; and some excellent comedy is provided by Mr. Jack Denton, Miss Lydia Hart, and Mr. Harry Colbeck.

New Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Resident Managing-Director, Mr. Harry Yorke; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reg. Yorke.—The Walls of Jericho is being played here by Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. Hanworth Browning's company, and is well attended. Mr. Ethelbert Edwardes makes a capital Jack Frobisher; Mr. Russell Barry plays well as Hankey Bannister; Mr. Hanworth Browning gives a convincing study as Harry Dallas; Mr. Franc Stoney makes a very good Marquis of Steventon; Miss Gwendolien Hay, as Lady Alethea, plays well; as also does Miss Nora McDonnell in the part of Lady Lucy. The play is well acted throughout.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Miss Florrie Forde is topping the bill and proves as popular as ever; a clever turn is given by Harry Radford and Mdlle. Valentine; the Wellington trio submit a smart acrobatic turn; Hicks and Hunter are clever dancers on ice skates; The Little Colonel is presented by Ernest Montefiore and company, in which Miss Ivy Laurel, a youthful actress, displays much talent; Gladys Mavius (in song and dance), Sam Williams (character comedian), Will Lindsey (a Yorkshire comedian), and the De Breans (clever Japanese jugglers and illusionists) complete the bill.

BLACKPOOL.—Winter Gardens Pavilion.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The attraction here this week is A Child of the Streets, played by Mr. George H. Hazlehurst's company, with Miss Dot Stephens in the title-rôle, and although the part is widely in contrast to Miss Shephens's work in musical comedy, she scores a complete success. The manliness and nobility of Robert Wallace is well brought out by Mr. Claude Gravely; whilst the villainous Lawrence Craigie is capably enacted by Mr. Leonard Clarke. Lieut Ainley is skilfully handled by Mr. Geo. Keene; and other parts are also in experienced hands.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Madge Temple tops here this week, and her songs are warmly appreciated; Julian Mack, the talking comedian, and Frank Lauri, the character comedian, are also favourites; Yamamoto and Koyoshi are excellent equilibrists; Lilly Black is a dainty songstress; Minnie Mace sings nicely; Milner and Storey appear in a smart sketch; the Brothers Lavelle provide an acrobatic turn; and Ray Ford is charming in songs and dances.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Miss Horniman's company opened here on Monday with Bernard Shaw's Candida. Miss Rosaline Ivan in the title-rôle displays rare histrionic ability; Mr. Ian Maclaren contributed an intelligent rendering of the Rev. James Morell; Mr. Edward Landor was conspicuously successful as Mr. Burgess; Mr. Ernest C. Cassel was easy and nautral in the part of the Rev. Alex. Mill; Mr. Leonard Mudie deserved high praise for his clever handling of the part of Eugene Marchbanks; and Miss Muriel Pratt made the most of her character of Prosperine Garnett. The Troth preceded, and is well played by Miss Dorothy West-Symes, Mr. Ernest C. Cassel, Mr. Whitford Kane, and Mr. Joseph Keogh. Cupid and Common Sense has also been staged on alternate nights.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A good all-round variety company here includes Jean Clermont's burlesque circus; the Four Rio Brothers, in their skilful gymnastic novelty; the Brothers Ford, vocalists and dancers; Shenton and Chicks, in The Children's Birthday Party; Fred Barnes, "the black sheep of the family"; the Brothers Webb, novelty eccentrics; Brull and Memsley, in Fun in a Music Shop; the Mysterious Mysticus; F. V. St Clair, author and vocalist; and pictures.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, The Hippodrome (Bolton), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—Kate Carney and company hold the premier position, with their humorous production The Fun of the Fair. Winnie Darrell, comedienne and dancer; Harry Bickley, eccentric comedian; Bi-Bo-Bi, a clever eccentric musician; the Wilton-Heriot Trio, in their comedy sketch Father's Footsteps; Damerell and Rutland, comedians; the Norman and Leonard Trio, in a musical incident; Peggy Pryde, low comedienne; and the Hippodrome pictures are other attractions.

BOOTLE.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Boult.—Mr. Ern. E. Norris and company are here this week with The Education of Elizabeth. Mr. Norris is excellent as Reggie Hankey; Mr. Percy Marmont makes the most of his opportunities as Harry Fairfax; Mr. Hugh Peel is amusing as the Waiter; and Mr. Richard Wagner splendid as Parsons. Miss May Norris makes a charming Elizabeth Black, whilst Mr. Fred Castleman as Mr. Whitby, Miss Helene Forest as Lucy Middleton, Miss Phyllis Dailley as Blanche Macintyre, and Miss Maggie Spencer as Lily Kerr all contribute to the general enjoyment of the piece.

Muncaster Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. Harry Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred D. Adams.—There is an excellent bill of fare for the patrons of the Muncaster Theatre this week. On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Saturday evenings The Factory Lass is being staged, whilst on Thursday and Friday evenings East Lynne will be played. The leading parts are in the capable hands of Mr. Alfred D. Adams, Mr. Stanley S. Gordon, Mr. A. H. Clarke, Mr. Tom Robertson, Mr. Percy Boucher, Miss Nina Vaughton, Miss Louie Heathfield, and Miss Mattie Crawford.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Moutllot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—The return visit of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company in The Arcadians proves highly popular. Mr. Gus Oxley repeats his excellent impersonations of the dual rôles of Smith and Simplicitas, and his wholesome comedy work meets with unbounded favour; Mr. George Hestor, another genuine comedian, causes much laughter with his quiet and pointed witticisms as Peter Doody; Mr. Mervyn Dene gives a sterling performance of Sir George Paddock, and Mr. H. Nelson Hancock makes a manly and sincere lover of Jack Meadows. Miss Madge Haines looks and acts the genial Mrs. Smith to perfection; Miss Mysie Devine is a dainty and captivating Eileen Kavanagh, and scores both in song and dance; the Arcadians are ably sustained by Miss Beryl Craigie, Mr. Douglas Marrs, Mr. W. Dawson, Miss Phyllis Taylor, and Miss Margaret Swallow. The chorus is highly efficient and works with admirable energy and precision under the capable leadership of Mr. Albert Bartlett.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and their clever Shakespearean company gave a fine performance of The Winter's Tale to a crowded and very appreciative audience on Monday. The play was beautifully staged, and Mr. Benson won hearty applause for his vigorous impersonation of Leontes; Mrs. Benson was emotional and tender as the wronged Hermione; their son Mamillius was prettily played by Miss Hetty Kenyon; Mr. A. Brydone gave a well-studied performance of Camillo; Polixenes was a finely restrained effort on the part of Mr. Murray Carrington; Miss Violet Farebrother's Paulina won hearty and well-merited applause; as Autolycus Mr. H. O. Nicholson was very diverting; Mr. J. Moffat Johnston brought out the humour of the part of the rustic Clown capitally; Miss Marjorie Patterson sweetly embodied the gentle Perdita; Mr. Eric Moxon was earnest as Florizel; and the other characters left little to be desired. Julius Cæsar was the play on Tuesday evening, with Mr. Murray Carrington in the title-rôle; Mr. Benson as Marcus Antonius; and Mrs. Benson as Portia. During the engagement the Stratford-Avon prize play The Piper, The Merchant of Venice, As You Like It, and Macbeth are billed.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton are presenting His Indian Wife. The piece was well received and finely staged. Mr. Hinton scored a success as Herbert Ainsworth, the roving young Englishman who marries Wild Rose, an Indian maiden, represented with force and emotional power by Miss Leila Zilwood; White Eagle, the Indian chief, is cleverly played by Mr. Gerald Byrne; Miss Zana St. George is effective as the scheming Lady Grace Kingsley; the Billy Twiggle of Mr. Ted Squires is a capital performance; and the other parts are in excellent hands.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—Lafayette, with his band and illusions, is here. The Violas are again astonishing the audience with their skill in "thought transmission," or mental telegraphy; Franco Piper's banjo tossing and solos are remarkably clever; Maude Edwards is an excellent lady ventriloquist; the comedians, Sanford and Lyons, are very expert as "simultaneous dancers"; Alf Chester's comic football song is amusing; and the bioscope pictures are excellent.

The Palace.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Toch and Tard, on the trapeze, and with comedy wrestling, provide an entertaining turn; Reg. Beauchamp's comedy is acceptable; Flo Burnett is a fine vocalist; in their sketch, The Hotel de Quick, Ted Karno and company are very amusing; and the Wedburns are diverting comedians. Will Rennie is expert in rag-time and roller-skate dancing; Newco and Sullo (the boys in red) are good vocalists and dancers; in a juggling performance Halma displays skill and originality; and in a sketch, Dr. Maud's First Patient, Mr. Martin Adeson (who is ably assisted by Miss Clara Bernard) is most amusing. The Palace Perfection pictures are a feature of the evening.

BRIDLINGTON.—Grand Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. K. Scott-Barrie and his talented company of entertainers, "The Chanticleers," are appearing here before delighted audiences. Miss Maude Phillips is a charming vocalist; Miss Ailsa Moorey and Miss Nellie Somers are capital singers and dancers; Mr. Geo. E. Taylor and Mr. P. F. Homley are smart humorous vocalists; Mr. Harold Franklin as a lady impersonator is remarkably clever; Mr. Will Ambro's songs and dances are encored; Mr. Wilmot Fowler's songs at the piano and amusing stories are thoroughly appreciated; Mr. K. Scott-Barrie is most amusing in his songs and dialect poems; and the concerted items and dances by the company meet with applause.

BRIGHOUSE.—Albert Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Martin Manley, sen.; Manager, Mr. Martin Manley, jun.—Sydney Carter's Pictures are the attraction here this week, and opened to a crowded house on Monday, some excellent films being shown, including Convincing Evidence, When the Cat's Away, Black and White, Percy the Cowboy, The Trail, Bootle's Baby, Football Mad, The Fruits of Vengeance, and The Servant.

BRIGHTON.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Miss Ethel van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company is here this week with The Eyes of the World. Miss Ethel Van Praagh submits a highly finished portrayal of Hélène de L'Orme; Mr. Guy P. Ellis gives an excellent impersonation of Hector de L'Orme; Miss Flora Hastings skilfully undertakes the difficult part of Esme de Carnac; Mr. Edward Ouston's Octave is finely played; Miss Edith Rutland makes a winsome Avice; Miss Nellie Garside is a vivacious Susanne Pomfleure; and much amusement is afforded by Mr. J. Edward Whitty as Achille Fanfarade and Mr. R. Wilton Bedford as Paul Rogueville. The play is splendidly staged and dressed.

Alhambra.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Mr. Frank Stanmore and company are here this week with Chasing Cynthia, and are attracting large audiences. Miss Gurney Delaporte's representation of Cynthia is marked by grace and charm; Mr. Frank Stanmore is dashing and entertaining as the Hon. Billy Bootle; Mr. Arthur Poole is admirable as Colonel Chutnee; Miss Gladys Beech makes a bright and captivating Fifi; Miss Adie Boyne is a capital Miss Pinch; Mr. Mark Lester is highly humorous as Dobson; and the choruses are well sung.

Barrasford's Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—The living art reproductions by the Henriette de Serris combination are warmly appreciated; the Bogannys, "lunatic bakers," provide plenty of acrobatic fun; Montgomery and Moore, American vaudeville entertainers, are well received; C. H. Carlisle and H. M. Wellmon appear with success in a musical act; Florence Esdaile, comedienne, sings charmingly; the Primrose Vocal Quartet acquit themselves admirably in the scena Interrupted; the Wilhuhn Trio are acrobatic eccentrics; the Three Cunards dance themselves into favour; Gerard is a capital juggler; and Nora Stockelie is a pleasing comedienne and juggler.

West Pier.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—The Grotesques commenced a week here on Monday, and were warmly received. Vocal selections were contributed by Miss Doris Lind, Miss Kathleen Severn, Mr. Harry Harmer, Mr. James Watts, Mr. Hugh Bayly, and Mr. T. C. Sterndale Bennett. The company proved delightfully entertaining in "Some Impressions of a Ballad Concert." "A Village Concert" kept the house rippling with laughter, Mr. Cecil Cook as the Vicar being irresistibly humorous.

BRISTOL.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The D'Oyly Carte Opera Company is here for the week. On Monday evening The Yeomen of the Guard was performed to a very large audience, which included the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, and the High Sheriff and Mrs. George Riseley. The performance was in aid of the funds for the relief of the local Jewish poor. Mr. Henry Lytton gave an excellent exposition of Jack Point; Mr. Fred Billington scored his usual success as Wilfred Shadbolt; Miss Marjorie Stone was pleasing as Elsie Maynard; as also was Miss Beatrice Boarer as Phœbe Meryll. Mr. Stafford Moss was well placed as Colonel Fairfax; and all the remaining parts were well taken. The chorus was strong and tuneful, and the augmented orchestra did excellent work under the bâton of Mr. Francois Cellier. The Mikado, Iolanthe, Patience, The Pirates of Penzance, Trial by Jury, and The Gondoliers are also billed.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mrs. Emma Carpenter; Manager, Mr. Henry C. Alty.—Mr. Alexander Marsh and company are here for the week. On Monday David Garrick was performed, Mr. Marsh and Miss Carrie Baillie giving excellent interpretations of David Garrick and Lilian Ingot. Mr. Wilson Gunning was amusing as Squire Chivy; Mr. A. E. Walker did well as Ingot; and the remaining parts were well taken. The Sleigh Bells followed, Mr. Alexander Marsh presenting a fine performance of Matthias; Miss Kathleen Clanchy acted prettily as Annette; Miss Agnes Gagan was natural and effective as Catherine; and Mr. Ernest Digges made a smart and painstaking Christian. Hamlet, Taming of the Shrew, Romeo and Juliet, Merchant of Venice, and Jane Shore are also billed.

Palace. — Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Treasurer and Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Decima Moore and company are attracting a large attendance here, they successfully appearing in a farcical comedy, entitled A Black Mark. The Paolias present a fine act as modern athletes; the Quality Quartette are pleasing vocalists; Fred Keeton, comedian, is successful; Wilfred Burnaud imitates well-known actors, &c.; Rose Elliott is a pleasing vocalist; Madge Morley and company do well with their After the Races episode; Curtis Leo does some smart conjuring; and the Bartholomew Sisters are very pleasing. Animated pictures conclude.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Harry Lauder is packing the house at each performance; he has a very enthusiastic reception, and all his latest successes are warmly applauded. Donaldson Brothers and company amuse with Sports in a Jungle; Nightingale and Stigant have a smart comedy duologue, Two Sides of a Wall; Brizlee is a clever flute and piccolo player; Brothers Durant are amusing acrobatic comedians; the Kathleen O'Hanlon trio present a pleasing speciality act; Nora Emerald, comedienne, excels both in song and dance; Marie Blythe is heard to much advantage in descriptive songs; and interesting animated pictures conclude.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. J. P. Moore and Montague Beaudyn; General-Manager, Mr. Montague Beaudyn; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Collingwood.—The Poor Must Live is well acted by the capable company, and a full house appeared to thoroughly enjoy it on Monday. Mr. Montague Beaudyn does well, as usual, as the hero, Donald; Miss Irene Munroe makes an impression as Olga D'Eyncourt; Miss Cora Patey as Dorothy is a charming heroine; Mr. Charles D. Pitt also does well as Clifton Manville; Mr. Wm. Melvyn (Earl of Marswood), Mr. George Overs (Sal Darling), Mr. E. Benson, Mr. G. E. Dunstan, and Miss Gladys E. Morris give good studies; and the comic business is sustained by Mr. A. A Towlin as Hooker Holdsmith and Miss Phyllis Rae as Moya.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. James Bell's company is presenting The Idol of Paris attractively. Miss Annie Bell plays the part of Flare Flare with great dramatic force, and Mr. Albert Leinber ably fills the difficult rôle of Philipe d'Esterre. To Mr. Chris. A. Olgar is allotted that of Victor Cashelle, and the remaining characters are in capable hands.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The programme here is drawing good houses. The Three Laurels perform extraordinary acrobatic feats, and the Three Stanwoods are accomplished vocalists; Happy Atwood is back again with bright, breezy fun, and Gladys Hooley plays effectively on the violin; Rell and Butt create much amusement with cross-talk, and Little Spencer receives storms of applause for clog-dancing; Ethel Campbell, comedienne, and the Empire Theatrescope complete the entertainment.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Rintoul.—Top place is given to the excellent dramatic episode, The Flood Tide, performed by Mr. Harry P. Selwyn's capital company; the Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of Arabs present a bewildering turn of whirling acrobatics, and Martin Conway is here again with his funny songs and patter; Bruce Green, a talkative "dame," gets plenty of laughs, and the Two Walonells are smart bar performers; Carl and Mary Ohms introduce highly-trained animals, and Mabel and Hester, sisters of Ada Reeve, have very sweet voices. Dona and Dixie, in an artistic musical speciality, and the Society Quartette of vocalists complete the list.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hague Body.—Mr. T. C. Wray and Mr. Austen Hurgon's company is here with The Girls of Gottenberg capitally mounted and dressed. Max Moddelkopf finds a good exponent in Mr. Smith, a capital comedian; Mr. J. N. Carey makes a decided hit as Otto, rendering his songs in good style; Mr. Jack Leyland (Albert), Mr. Eddie Foy (Britti Bottl), Mr. Lionel Yaldwyn (General), and Mr. J. R. Timms (Colonel Finkhausen) are good in their respective parts. Mr. Ralph Forster makes a typical Burgomaster; Mr. Tom Squire is amusing as the Town Clerk; and Mr. Charles Haywood as the German policeman also does well; Miss Grace Desmond (Clementine) proves herself an actress of ability; Katrina is nicely impersonated by Miss Melba Sharrott; and Miss Dora Langham as Mitzi sings sweetly and dances cleverly.

BURY ST. EDMUND'S.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Miss Florence Glossop-Harris; General-Manager, Mr. Max Jerome; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Mason.—Temptation is presented here by Miss Nora Carlton's company. Mr. Chas. Mortimer plays well as Sir Charles Tremaine; the villainy of Hubert Thorne is effectively portrayed by Mr. Norman Overton; Mr. George Wallace and Mr. Clifton Roysteli are satisfactory as Stephen Rowe and Mr. Blight; Mr. Frank Ayrton is a smart Bob Saunders, sustaining the comedy element in conjunction with Miss Madge Seymour; Nora Blight is powerfully delineated by Miss Lilla Wilde; Agnes Rowe and Mrs. Oxen are adequately enacted by Miss Kathleen Cranston and Miss Anna Beaumont, Miss Nora Carlton appearing as Hilda Dundonald.

CAMBRIDGE.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. Harry P. Towers' company, on the opening three nights of this week, presented The Best People, which was excellently acted and staged. Mr. Henry Renouf is a clever actor, and as Lora Emsworth he had a part that suited him to perfection. Miss Irene Lavington was also successful as Lady Emsworth; Miss Evelyn Summers was particularly capable as the Hon. Mrs. Bayle; Mr. Frederic Sargent was thoroughly at home as the Hon. Gerald Bayle; and Mr. Claude Haviland faithfully represented Lord Wynlea.

CARDIFF.—New Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—A large audience on Monday greeted The Geisha, performed by Mr. F. Mouillot's excellent company. Miss Aimee Grey is O Mimosa San, and her powerful and clear voice is heard to great advantage; Miss Adela Crispin is a sprightly and vivacious Molly Seamour, and won a double encore in the parrot song and dainty dances; Mr. Edward Carlton is irresistible as the Chinese proprietor of the tea-house, Wun-Hi; and Mr. Colin Coop invests the Marquis Imari with quaint humour. Mr. Edmund Sherras as Reginald Fairfax acts well throughout and sings agreeably; the song contributed by Mr. Herbert Uzielli as Captain Katana is well rendered; Mr. Harry Reynolds does all that is desired in the small rôle of Takemine; Miss Renée Reel's delineation of O Juliette Diamante gives nothing but satisfaction; and Miss Edith Jefferies is a dignified Lady Constance Wynne. Mr. Murray Stephen (Dick Cuningham) and Miss Florrie Bond (Tommy Stanley) also deserve mention. The chorus adds materially to the success of the opera.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Taylor.—An important engagement here is that of Courtice Pounds and company in Charles, His Friend, the beautiful vocalism of this favourite artist being fully appreciated. Mr. Pounds is supported by a creditable company, and the sketch proves highly entertaining. Severus Schaffer is a wonderful juggler; Ernie Mayne earns fresh laurels by his latest success "The song of a shirt"; Fred Earle is another popular comedian who "goes down" exceptionally well; Mabel Sinclair displays an admirable command of the ventriloquial art; Williams and Warden entertain with their smart and witty dialogue; Ethel Beech is a dainty soubrette; and Chas. Fisher's Vocalesques are an artistic combination of comedy and harmony. The Bioscope concludes.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. Hamilton Barnes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Windsor Stevenson; Secretary, Mr. A. E. Perkins.—Ibsen's plays are presented by Mr. Leigh Lovel, Miss Octavia Kenmore, and company. On Monday The Master Builder was staged, Mr. Lovel as Halvard Solness and Miss Kenmore as Hilda Wangel submitting impersonations which aroused the admiration and enthusiasm of the house. Miss Katherine Maynard as Aline Solness creditably acquitted herself of her responsibilities; Mr. Frederick Meads as Ragnar Brovik displayed histrionic ability; and parts were played by Mr. Claud W. Sykes (Dr. Herdal), Mr. Wm. Podmore (Knut Brovik), and Miss Daisy Race (Kaia Fosli). A Doll's House and Hedda Gabler were also given.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—An interesting playlet, entitled Roguery, is presented by Wilfred H. Benson and company, Mr. Benson acting well as Martin Darney, and Miss Mabel Wynn's impersonation of Lady Valda being a clever piece of work. Fred Russell and Lilian Held provide on entertaining number; the Hulls are highly amusing; the conjuring act of Yettmah and the Japanese lady scores; the Four Sydney Girls, in a singing and dancing turn, are really good; and Arthur Croxon is an entertainer of ability. Jack Hayworth, Scotch comedian, and the Bioscope complete.

CARLISLE.—H. M. Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is on a return visit, and received a warm welcome from a crowded and appreciative house when they opened on Monday night in Oudin's English version of Samson and Delilah. The company is again a strong one, and a most interesting and artistic performance was followed with rapt attention throughout. As Samson Mr. Albert Bowyer made a big hit. His physique and personality fitted the part exactly, and his vocal efforts were particularly effective. Miss Bessie Weir was no less successful as Delilah; her histrionic and vocal abilities met every requirement of a difficult rôle, and she was the recipient of enthusiastic applause at the conclusion of all her numbers. Mr. William Farmer's fine baritone voice was used with skill and was always effective; and Mr. Graham Marr made the most of his opportunities in the bass part. Mr. Harry Brindle, Mr. Cassini, Mr. Blande, and Mr. R. Woodland rendered excellent services; and the chorus and orchestra were altogether admirable. Tannhäuser, Il Trovatore, Faust, Carmen, and The Bohemian Girl are billed for performance during the week.

The Palace.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. D. Askew.—An excellent entertainment is provided here. Chief place is occupied by the Four Maisanos, French musical clowns, who introduce some extraordinary novelties; Gus Harris is a realistic character artist; Syd Crossley keeps his audience vastly amused with a smart burlesque act; as a Lancashire comedienne Lucy Lynd contributes sketches and songs which gain her enthusiastic appreciation; Julia Reeve also does well; and Hugo and Smit give an acrobatic act with unusual ability. The pictures are again a feature.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman, J.P.—This week Mr. G. Carlton Wallace has provided a strong attraction in The Apple of Eden. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland and Miss Janet Alexander are powerful in the principal parts; Mr. Percy Ballard offers a vivid delineation of the brutal Prince Nicola; the vigorous personality of General Pavlos is ably emphasised by Mr. John F. Traynor; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan is callous as the wicked and debauched King of Slavonia; and Mr. Bertie White and Miss Jessie Myers are capital as an amusing couple named Robert and Winifred.

Invaluable for the Complexion.—LAIT-LAROLA is delightfully soothing and refreshing after motoring, golfing, cycling, dancing, &c. The daily use of "Lait-Larola" effectually prevents all Roughness, Redness, Chaps, and Irritation, and preserves the delicacy of the skin in changeable weather. Gentlemen will find it wonderfully soothing if applied after shaving. Bottles 1s. and 2s. 6d each, of all chemists and stores.—M. Bertham and Son, Cheltenham.—[Advt.]

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Castleford Queen's Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson.—Hal Whitby opens the evening with some catchy songs; a popular turn is contributed by Queen, Le Brun, and company, animal impersonators, in a sporting absurdity, The Cockney Huntsmen, and they cause roars of laughter; Elmo and Rego are skilful acrobats; Gerald White and Denis Dorome, in a duologue Proof, act with much power; Kitty Pearce and Fred Ward are an amusing couple; Fred Herbert, in up-to-date topical songs, is appreciated; Kloof and Ramsey display taste and skill in their selections; Rosa Tilly well deserves the applause accorded to her for her songs.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Mr. Herbert Jay's company is here in Captain Kidd. Miss Maie Ash is the Lucy Sheridan, and delights her auditors; Mr. Haddon Cave is a popular Viscount Albany (Captain Kidd); Mr. Harry Benet creates unbounded merriment as the Valet; Miss Marjorie Maxwell is deserving of praise for her interpretation of Señorita Juanita Arguilla, her singing and acting being much appreciated; Miss Helen Holmes makes a lively Aggie Shrubb; Mr. Harold Deacon does well as Dick Hyne; Mr. Alfred Sandoe is suited as Duffy; and the other parts are in good hands. The play is admirably staged.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Geo. Humphries.—Fred Karno's companies are proving most attractive with two sketches, The New Slavey and Wontdetania, in each of which Mr. Shaun Glenville makes a big hit. The variety company includes Bessie Callow (descriptive vocalist), Harry Zetter (comedian), Wee Mona Vivian (a great favourite), the Two le Bruns (in an excellent juggling scena), and the Four Quaint Q's (amusing vocal comedians).

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Dear Little Denmark was introduced on Monday by Mr. Harry P. Tower's company. Mr. Cameron Carr is a fine figure as the hero, Conrad Peterson, with an excellent stage presence and capital voice; Miss Thelma Ray plays Christine with inimitable grace, and her sweet singing is much enjoyed; Mr. Arthur Ballance as Karl uses his excellent baritone voice to advantage; Miss Alice Waldie as 'Xandra is very pleasing; and Mr. Frank Lewis as Simon Jorgenson is really good. Mr. Tom Payne as Hans Hansen is a remarkably good comedian, and he and Miss Winifred Volt as Ophelia sing very agreeably.

ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Lessees, Gillsmiths, Ltd.—This popular picture place continues to draw big houses. Mr. Arthur Perry, tenor vocalist, enjoys favour.

POOLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—Lesses and Managers, Messrs. Poole and Shenton.—Miss Daisy Graham gives a clever show with her performing birds; and the Vivandieres have a humorous musical sketch The Registry Office. The pictures are entertaining.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—The Musical Jees are here with their musical scena, Gretna Green; or, the Runaway Marriage. Winifred Norman is pretty and clever as the quaint little Dutch girl; Percy Johnson is a good comedian with an original style; and Miss Ethel Stephenson a rich contralto vocalist, in vocal tit-bits at the piano, scores a great and well-deserved success; Les Atans are exceedingly smart pot-pourri gymnasts, and the Cumberlands skilful and amusing acrobatic cyclists; Walter Barrett is a capable actor-vocalist of the patriotic type; and Harry Kirk is a comedian of merit. Excellent Bioscopic films conclude.

CHORLTON - CUM - HARDY. — CHORLTON THEATRE. — Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hardy Haigh.—The Major is paying a six nights' visit here. The author, Mr. T. C. McQuire, appears to advantage in the title-rôle, and is ably seconded by Mr. Victor Silvernis as George Goodman; Mr. T. W. Groves as Jeremiah Stoney is ludicrously funny, and Mr. Fred Draper makes a laughable Ezekiah; Miss Ada Wallis as Clara O'Neale is decidedly amusing, and Miss Tiddy Edwardes effectively represents Mrs. Gampney; Miss Duleir Maris sings with marked ability. There is a troupe of competent dancers.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Mitchell.—The usual variety entertainment is changed this week to one of dramatic fare, when Harry Tilbury and company have been drawing large crowds with His Dishonoured Wife. Mr. Harry Tilbury is the predominating figure in the humorous part of Mickey Doolan, and keeps the audience in amusement; Mr. A. George Fry as the village blacksmith speaks and acts well; Mr. Fred Owen as Neil Lockley, the detective, is convincing; Mr. Alex. Alexander is good as Lord Devant; Mr. George Walkley as Tom Redman and rôles of minor importance are capably filled. Miss Belle Tilbury as Florence Lindon gives a sympathetic interpretation of the character; as Alice Harvey Miss A. T. George is highly successful; and Little Violet deserves a word of praise for her performance of Frank Lindon's daughter.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Evelyn A'Dell and company are presenting The Old Home. Mr. A'Dell takes the part of the Rev. Eric Armstrong in good style; Mr. Chas. Franmore undertakes, with great naturalness, the rôle of Daddy Dean; Miss Violet Ingram carefully depicts the old man's daughter Hazel; and the character of Lord Avondale is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Edward Rawlinson.

HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Co-operative Varieties, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Leo King. — The top-line this week is a dramatic sketch entitled The Fight in the Lighthouse, by Mr. B. E. Howard and company—a well acted playlet. Edwin Barwick, in his characteristic studies, is a wonderfully entertaining performer; Webb and Branston, operatic duettists, receive applause for their well-rendered numbers; Dave O'Toole creates amusement in his Spanish song and study; Min Tobin, the versatile girl, is a pleasing artist; Burt Ward, whistler and raconteur, brings back memories of the Belle; Dunn and Reano in a comedy trapeze act show undoubted skill; and the film presented makes a capital finale.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Consul, the human ape, tops the bill here. Other good turns are Mlle. Rosina, musical entertainer; Amandus, facial mimic; and Lillian Levey, a smart comedienne and male impersonator. Animated pictures complete.

DALY'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. John Cottrell; General-Manager, Mr. W. D. Murray.—The Fimans, in comedy scena, The Fire Station, are very funny; Fannie Humber, instrumentalist and dancer, is clever; and two fine pictures are Love and the Law and The Deputy's Duty.

NEW TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, The New Town Hall Co., Ltd.; Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Campbell.—A good programme is provided here, including the Four Watsons, singers, comedians, and musicians; Gulliver, ventriloquist; and T. W.'s Tiny Stars, juvenile dancers, &c. Animated pictures conclude.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Miss Vera Leslie and company, in the delightful comedy Cousin Kate, opened a week's engagement here on Monday. Miss Maud Stoner as Amy Spencer supplied a convincing and pathetic reading as Heath Desmond; Mr. Henry Doughty spoke his lines with force and manliness; Miss Vera Leslie, in the title-rôle, won golden opinions; as the Rev. Jas. Bartlett Mr. Philip Lawton was successful.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Manager, Mr. Thos. F. O'Brien.—Mr. Horace Hunter and his company do well here in the drama Under Suspicion. Mr. Wm. Dever, late of Moody-Manners Opera Company, sings with excellent finish; Miss May Fairclogh is a young dramatic artist whose impersonation of characters from Shakespearean and modern plays are very meritorious; Gilbert Girard is a wonderful mimic of animals; Mastro and Oretta are a clever pair of jugglers; the Three Dixons are a versatile trio; Miss Dorna Morgan and Miss Barry Eldon contribute some pretty songs; and the Palscope pictures are good.

CITY HALL.—Mr. John R. Poole opened a fortnight's engagement here with his 1910 Myriorama and Vaudeville Company. The pictures shown are excellent. The vaudeville side of the entertainment is strong, and includes Mr. L. Rowland, a good comedian; Inez and Pim, clever gymnasts; the Jeromes, comedy jugglers; the Three Ettenas on a revolving sphere; and the Cairo Trio.

COVENTRY. — THE OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The piece selected this week is the musical comedy A Country Girl, by Messrs. H. G. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company. The play is exceedingly well staged. Mr. Coningsby Brierley as Barry is the life and soul of the piece; Mr. Percy Carr takes the part of Geoffrey Challoner in a very pleasing manner; Mr. Percy Everard as Sir Joseph Verity is excellent; Mr. St. John Hamund makes a good Rajah of Bhong; Miss Dorothy Craske a charming Nan; Miss May Rawlinson as Margery Joy is also very successful; the character of Sophie is well represented by Miss Darrell; and Miss Ethel Negretti as Princess Melaneh sustains the part well.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—The premier turn this week is a musical burlesque, entitled Around the Town, for which King and Benson are responsible. The Great Marconis perform wonders with electricity; the Arthur Gallimore Trio are exceedingly good with their quaint antics; Herbert Sleath's company appears in The Deputy Sheriff; Mr. Charles Mildare's whistling performance is clever; and Joyce Barbour (dancer), Lillah Lassah (comedienne and dancer), and Mr. S. W. Wyndham (comedian) are also in the list.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Manageress, Mrs. Davidson.—The Prodigal Parson is being played here by Mr. W. V. Garrod's capable company. In the part of the Rev. Tom Godley Mr. Garrod is exceptionally good; Mr. E. Vaughan does well as Enoch Juggins; as Ben Juggins Mr. Coldcleugh shows at once what a good actor he is; the part of Phil Drive is undertaken by Mr. Owen Remonde, a native of Crook, and a born comedian; Mr. Walter Vincent does well as Ned Kettlepin, as also does Mr. Roland Bridge in the character of Markby the Detective; Miss Bertha Kingston displays ability in the leading part of Fern Godley; and Miss Madge Douglas is a charming Gretchen.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Wood; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—A welcome return visit is paid by The Earl and the Girl, capitally staged by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. Mr. Edward Lewis enacts the rôle of Jim Cheese with refreshing humour; Mr. Herbert St. John is very successful as Dick Wargrave; Mr. Lionel Scott is seen to advantage as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; and genuine work is put in by Messrs. D. Fisher, jun., Harry Courtin, Jos. R. Tate, and J. Hoddy as Downham, A. Bunker Bliss, Mr. Talk, and Hazel. Miss Flora Gordon makes a charming Virginia Bliss; Miss Edith Blande is effective as Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Blanche Astley is a praiseworthy Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Lina Hicks gives a clever character-sketch of 'Liza Shoddam; and Miss Lily Gullick makes a winsome Elphin Haye. The dresses and scenery are grand, and the chorus is handsome.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Harold Nuttall's company, in The Ghost of Jerry Bundler, is winning approval here; the Glenroy troupe dance to perfection; Alice Hollander has a fine contralto voice; Jolly Jimmy Walker is a droll comedian; Mrs. John Lawson and company pay another return visit with Sally in Our Alley; Walker and Lake introduce new patter; Molly Maguire is a neat comedienne; Vincent is a marvellous acrobat; the Narow Brothers are expert cyclists; T. E. Dunville is a popular comedian; Dorothy Watson, at the piano, deserves a word; and the pictures are also shown.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Barclay.—Miss Kate Cutler and Mr. Frank Tennant in An Episode are exhilarating; the Four Vagabonds are first-rate humorous vocalists; Daisy Jerome, comedienne, is a great favourite; Tom Leamore is a droll comedian; the Sisters Storm are skilful dancers; Doroswami is a talented musician; Vandinoff, lightning painter, is applauded; the Tan-Kwai Chinese troupe of acrobats, gymnasts, and equilibrists cause excitement; Crystal and Saville score in comedy duologue, Jack's Jacket; and the American Bioscope pictures conclude.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell. — Messrs. Alban and Limpus's company are here with The Thief, by arrangement with Mr. George Alexander. Miss Diana Cloud in the title-rôle plays admirably; Mr. Bernard Limpus gives a pleasing rendering as Richard Chelford; Mr. F. Morland as Raymond Leyton is good; Mr. Carl W. Lindsey gives a capital representation of Harry Leyton; Mr. W. Somerset is seen to advantage as Mr. Protheroe; and Miss Mary Forrester is a sweet Isabel Leyton. The play is preceded by Box and Cox.

PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Nicholls.—The bill here this week includes G. H. Elliott, the popular chocolate-coloured coon, who is making a big success; Miss Ella Shields, with her attractive coon songs; Hinton and Wooton, clever in their football match on bicycles; and Arthur F. Ward, smart in his juggling and hoops. Other turns are given by Irve Hayman and company in a pretty episode, Xmas Eve; Moon and Morris, dancers; J. C. Inman, comedian; and a series of pictures on the Bioscope.

DARWEN.—ALBERT HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Holden; Manager, Mr. J. Morris. — A capital entertainment is being given here this week. Up-to-date films are shown, and Mitchell and Stott prove favourites as tramp gymnasts; as also does Billy Richardson, M.P., stump orator, etc.; Billy Melia, comedian and dancer, gives a good turn.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Miss Stella Gastelle is appearing here in an excerpt from La Poupee, in which she finds admirable scope for her vivacity and charm; the Ellesmere Troupe are clever trick cyclists; the Millwards, comedy gymnasts, introduce much that is new; the Flying Winskills are expert on the trapeze; Dorothy Sephton is a pleasing vocalist, with tasteful songs; the Kebbles are breezy comediennes and skilful dancers; Walter Wallis is a popular comedian; and Clarke and Mostol, terpsichorean humorists, would be hard to beat. The Bioscope terminates a capital programme.

PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Moyes.—The Heath-Wilson Barrett version of East Lynne is being produced here by Mr. Graham Arthurs and company. The dual rôles of Lady Isobel and Mme. Vine are ably undertaken by Miss Mabel Elliott, whose emotional acting is impressive; Mr. Graham Arthurs is eminently suited in the part of Sir Francis Levison; Miss Mildred Eversleigh gives an excellent portrayal of Barbara Hare; Miss Molly Richardson does well as Cornelia Carlyle; and Mr. Gerard Ord capably accounts for Archibald Carlyle.

VICTORIA ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Proprietors, United Electric Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. T. Studd.—Florina Cody, lady rifle expert, presents a wonderful exhibition of backward shooting; Mr. Cade Burnett, actor vocalist, appears with success; and the Hastings submit a refined musical turn. A fine assortment of pictures is presented.

DEVONPORT.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. G. Prance.—The famous Craggs, with their marvellous acrobatic business, again score heavily, their sketch Territorials being both clever and amusing; Flora Cromer has a trio of songs, which are excellently rendered; Victor Widdicombe has an enjoyable little sketch, entitled Her Devonshire Dad, which is followed with much attention; Cestria again appears in an amusing juggling turn; Tom Gott has a couple of songs, rendered in amusing fashion; and Leick and Keith contribute some first-rate cornet playing. The other turns are provided by Mona Garrick and W. G. Wesley (comedian).

THEATRE METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Large houses have witnessed The Master of the Mill here. The piece is well staged and full of excitement from start to finish. Mr. Algernon Syms plays the title-rôle with great skill, and Miss Nair Jonghmans as Kate Rigby is very successful. Mr. Ernest E. Jameson gives a fine interpretation of the villainous Julian Croft, and the other characters are well sustained by Messrs. Paul Beckett, Euart Drake, Valerie Russell, and Miss E. Edoni.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—The attraction here is Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company in The Power of the King, produced twice nightly. Mr. Clavering Craig in the part of the hero, Capt. Landgrave, is responsible for a good study; the King of Valombrosa is cleverly sustained by Mr. Charles Whitlock; Miss Conyers Radcliffe gives a finished portrayal of Lady Anastasia; Mr. Arthur St. John as the villain, Prince Oscar, is ably assisted in his clever work by Mr. Sprey Palmer as General Stenovic; Miss Florence McInnes is a praiseworthy Lady Florena; Mr. Wilton Drury as Fritz and Miss Maud Stuart as Margot are responsible for good comedy; and Mr. Roy Craig as Alberta and Mr. Fred Newburn as Capella deserve commendation.

Summerfield.—Heading a good all-round programme here are the Original Colombias in a series of artistic poses; Maude Elliston's company present Dobson's Day Off; Ernesto proves himself to be a skilful juggler; Arthur Aiston is a talented comedian; fun is also caused by the comedy acrobatic work of Niagara and Falls; the Mackinnon Family submit an interesting musical, vocal, and dancing act; Rose D'Aulby, vocalist, meets with success; Conan and Doyle go well; and Ethel Dove, comedienne, also appears.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon; Stage-Manager, Mr. P. Hogg.—Some good variety is introduced here by Hylton and Wallace, in humorous patter and singing; S. Mitchell excels as an actor-vocalist; Marie and Nellie are seen to advantage in their singing and dancing act; and the Two Ludoes submit a clever acrobatic act.

DINNINGTON (Yorks).—LYRIC THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. James England. — Miss Plaster of Paris has won favour here, and Miss Winifred Chalmers' company is responsible for a very capable representation of the piece. The title rôle is capably filled by Miss Nelly Harcourt, who has several very catchy songs and executes a clever skipping-rope dance; as Alexander, the waiter, Mr. H. Ed. Ray, is capital; and Numskull Nubbs finds a capital exponent in Mr. John McIlroy; Mr. Herbert Golden as Tom Hubbs sustains an exacting part well; and Mr. Sid Dean scores heavily as Mrs. Nubbs; some clever dancing is done by the Sisters English and the Sisters Florence; Miss Winifred Chalmers fills the part of the Manageress of the Red Lion with dignity. The piece is well staged and well dressed, and there is a very capable chorus.

DONCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Amati's Band, comprising thirty soloists, heads the bill here; Sisters Lowson are smart duettists and capital dancers; George Christian, comedian, is humorous; and a refined and popular turn is presented by the Boolon Trio, capable instrumentalists; and Charles Edwards, in character songs, Mons. W. C. Ugo, conjurer, and Delmar and Demay also entertain.

DUBLIN. — QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—The Village Blacksmith is being played here by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company. John Strong is capitally handled by Mr. Sam Livesey; and Miss Gladys Brittain displays much ability as his son Harry. Mr. Joseph Carter successfully enacts the part of Captain Leo; and Miss Maggie Edwards gives a good account of herself as Kate Strong. Mr. J. H. Langford is well placed as Jeremiah Parkins; and his better-half, Sal, has an able representative in Miss Nellie Graham. Lucas Marler is admirably portrayed by Mr. J. Milne Taylor; and Miss Nellie Sinclair is excellent as Martha Mopps. Mr. J. Hodson is highly diverting as Billy Twigg; and Miss Cissie Le Grande is all that could be desired as Ruth Parkins.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—Arthur Prince, in his clever ventriloquial entertainment, is the big attraction here, and proves highly successful. Terry and Lambert, in their latest character-studies, are much appreciated; Merian's Dogs give an entertaining performance; Beatie and Babs, in their original scena, gain rounds of applause; Kioto and Esa, in their equilibristic and sensational ladder performance, are deservedly encored; the Martineks, in a novel entertainment, entitled The Rag Doll, make a decided hit; Arthur Aldridge is an accomplished vocalist; and the Royal Bioscope completes a well-varied programme.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Don, presented by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's capable company, received a cordial welcome here on Monday. In the rôle of Mrs. Bonnington Miss Hutchison is distinctly successful; Mrs. Sinclair has an admirable impersonator in Miss Celia Gordon; Miss Viola Garland makes a fascinating Ann Sinclair; Miss Violet Harley gives a praiseworthy performance of Elizabeth Thompsett; and Miss Dorothy Gordon sustains the part of Fanny with credit. Mr. Arthur Willoughby is well suited as Canon Bonnington; Mr. Gordon Bailey gives a clever impersonation of Stephen Bonnington; and General Sinclair is well played by Mr. Charles Tyrel; and Mr. Charles Harley is commendable as Albert Thompsett. The curtain-raiser Chalk and Cheese is well received.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—A strong bill here is headed by Mr. Tom Edwards, the "ventriloquial huntsman," who meets with a hearty reception. Gus Blake and Maud Granby, in their comedy duologue The System, create roars of laughter; Leo Stormont finds favour for his well-rendered songs; Miss Madge Beresford is a captivating burlesque artist; Mr. Charles Erard, pianist and mimic, is an acceptable turn; Mr. Harry Simms acquits himself well as a comedian; the Frantz Comedy Five are highly amusing in their sketch Fun in a Schoolroom; the Channings obtain applause for a pleasing vocal and instrumental act; Kail Stern is a capital comedian; and the Empire pictures conclude.

TIVOLI. — General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Charburn's "Young Stars," in their refined vocal scena A Picnic Up the River, top the bill here, and are well appreciated. Charles M. Daly's company, in their comedy sketch Men Were Deceivers Ever, create much amusement; Mme. Adah Payne sings in a well-finished style; the Four Minskys, acrobatic musical eccentrics, submit an excellent turn; and contributions to the programme are also made by the Richards Trio (comedy acrobats), Rosie Bartlett (male impersonator), Sadie and Vone (in music, comedy, and dancing extraordinary), Fred Elton (in his original scena On Board an Ocean Liner), the Vedras (comedy act, Humps and Bumps), and the Bioscope.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietors, Sprengel Brothers.—The company appearing here includes the Welfares, vocal comedy couple; Phyllis Esmond, chorus vocalist; Tom Swift, vocal comedian; Genie Glen, dainty comedienne; Lieut. Uniquem, ventriloquist; Rell and Denny, comedy duettists; and the cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company in The Dairymaids is delighting audiences. Sam Brudenell and Frank Meredith are breezily filled by Messrs. Donald Price-Evans and Algernon W. Lee; Mr. Bernard Vaughan is a humorous Dr. O'Byrne; Mr. Norman Bowyer is a big success as Joe Mivens, A.B.; Miss Nellie Bowman is vivacious and clever as Eliza; Miss Eva Ellis makes a charming and graceful Peggy; Winifred is prettily played by Miss Kathline Sinico; and Miss Margaret Carter gives a dignified rendering of Lady Brudenell. The piece is well put on and the chorus excellent.

EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Colin.—The following artists are appearing here:—Arthur Albert, light comedian and actor vocalist; the Zeenas, in a comedy bar act; Plant Bros., neat hand-to-hand equilibrists; Sisters Barnett, duettists and dancers; J. Toner, comedian and mimic; J. P. Carroll, vocalist and tambourinist; Ada Clare, comedienne; G. Hyatt, society juggler; and Harry Beasley, the new comedian.

DUMFRIES.—ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, George Hunter; Resident-Manager, W. Hunter.—Miss Ella Gold's singing and dancing is first class; Miss Winnie Warner is well received in her bell performance and Scottish dances; and Mr. Dave Abbot's amusing songs and eccentric dancing are very much appreciated. The principal pictures are The Little Star, A Wireless Romance, Frightened Freddy, and Bumper's Patent Bellows.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. Horace Lingard, Miss Beatrice Moreau, and company, had a cordial reception here on Monday in The New Lady Bantock. In the name part Miss Beatrice Moreau is delightfully vivacious; Mr. Horace Lingard is an excellent Martin Bennet; Mr. Sydney Bland plays capitally the part of Lord Bantock; Dr. Freemantle is represented with skill and effect by Mr. Lyon Hastings; Mr. Wilfred Compton, as the theatrical manager (George Newte) plays with the necessary energy and tact; as the Aunts, Miss Miriam Holt and Miss Dorothy Clifton win all hearts; and Miss Marie Saville effectively represents the austere housekeeper, Susannah Bennet. For Friday and this evening Is Marriage a Failure? is billed.

KING'S THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Rinaldo, violinist, is rapturously applauded; Yangar, the West African wonder worker, submits several cleverly-worked illusions; the Derrington family perform the most daring feats on cycles; Annie Schuberth captivates with her charming singing in her song scena; Martin Henderson, the blind musician, is much appreciated; Corcoran Bros. are particularly entertaining; Tom Joy scores in his amusing parodies; and Jury's pictures are excellent.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—The Muir-Bartlett Comedy Company is appearing here this week in a répertoire of high-class miniature comedies, consisting of The Collar Stud, When the Cat's Away, and The Courage of Charlie. The company includes the well-known Scotch comedian, Wal Croft, who meets with great success. The other vaudeville artists, who are all equally successful, are Cissie Vernon, ballad vocalist; Henri, ventriloquist; Maisie Coyne, refined comedienne and coon delineator; Heeley and Crawford, society entertainers; Chas. Champney, actor vocalist; and Mrs. Hugh De Beera, the society actress.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. Harold V. Neilson and his company appeared here the first three evenings of this week in The House Opposite. Miss Amy Sangster gave an earnest and realistic performance of Mrs. Rivers; Miss Elfie Leigh Hunt was an interesting and effective Mrs. Calthorpe; Miss Elizabeth Rosslyn gave entire satisfaction as Lady Wentworth; and Miss Doris Rigby was a quiet and sympathetic Marie. Mr. H. V. Neilson contributed a consistently good performance as Richard Cardyne; Mr. W. Lemmon Warde, easy and polished, did capable duty as Henry Rivers; Mr. Dickson Moffatt gave a clever and amusing character sketch of Sir Edward Harrowby; and Mr. Alfred Hilliard, Mr. A. Stirling, and Mr. A. C. Bute lent capital aid in the smaller parts of Fillerby, Sands, and Parker. Mr. Mark Blow's company is billed to appear in The Little Damozel for the latter part of the week.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. F. Woodward.—The Four Leopolds are skilled and daring acrobats; Jenny and Joe sing and dance to the delight of the audience; Mr. Philip Levard is a capital conjurer, and serves up his tricks in novel style; Mr. Sam T. Poluski is a smart comedian and dancer; Jimmy is a most intelligent and obedient dog; Mr. Carson Hicks sings pleasingly and dances well; the Sisters Du Cane are attractive and tuneful singers; and new pictures are shown.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers. — Mr. John F. Preston is here with his répertoire company, opening on Monday night with Jane Shore. As Richard, Duke of Gloucester, Mr. Preston thoroughly displayed his histrionic ability; Mr. Alfred Ward as King Edward IV. was all that could be desired; Mr. Walter Morton gave a sound performance as Lord Hastings; as did also Mr. Edwin Morton as Sir William Catesby; Mr. Francis Everard made a capital Matthew Shore; Mr. W. Howard Barlow as Anthony Yeast proved himself a clever character actor; Miss Mabelle F. Barlow as Jane Shore acted in a thoroughly satisfactory manner; and was well supported by Miss Lillie Pierce as Elizabeth Woodville and Miss Maud Kynnersley as Alizon Yeast. The play was well mounted. Nell Gwynne, The Three Musketeers, and The Man in the Iron Mask are also in the bill.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company appeared here in The Arcadians on Monday evening. A slight accident which occurred to Mr.

Walter Passmore on preparing to make his first entrance as Simplicitas necessitated Mr. Jack Morrison, his understudy, taking up the part in the early scenes of the piece. Mr. Morrison showed considerable humour. Mr. Passmore afterwards resumed the part, and pluckily went through the other acts, playing with his usual drollery and point. Mr. Oliver J. Round as the melancholy jockey acted with much quaintness and comic force, and his song, "Merry and Bright", was repeatedly encored; Miss Ethel Erskine, charming singer and graceful actress, was seen to advantage in the character of Sombra, and Miss Veronica Brady as Mrs. Smith invested the part with great humour; Mr. Harold E. Pearson as Jack Meadows proved himself an admirable vocalist, and the dancing of Miss Billy Sinclair was brilliantly done.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. Hall Caine's revised version of two of his successful plays have been staged here this week. In The Eternal Question Mr. Creagh Henry gave an excellent interpretation of the scheming Prime Minister, Baron Bonelli; his distinguished opponent, Pius XI., being well portrayed by Mr. E. W. Thomas; the outstanding rôles of David Rossi and Donna Roma Volonna received fitting rendition at the hands of Mr. Derwent Hall Caine and Miss Helena Millais, both of whom successfully sustained their difficult parts; Mr. Julian Cross made a strikingly effective Bruno Rocco, whose wife and son were represented with much feeling by Miss Agnes Knights and Miss Anna Cuka; and in all its details the cast was a thoroughly capable one. The Bishop's Son was also staged during the week, Mr. Derwent Hall Caine, as Daniel Mylrea, bearing the burden of the piece on his shoulders with conspicuous ability, while able support was given by Mr. Creagh Henry, in the part of the Bishop, and by Mr. Julian Cross, who appeared as the Deemster; Miss Millais very admirably filled the rôle of Mona Mylrea, and the remaining characters were in competent hands.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Miss Maud Mortimer, a dashing comedienne with a taking style, is one of the chief attractions at the King's this week, and a strong programme also includes a clever troupe, Seener and Pridkins, Russian singers and dancers; Mr. J. W. Hall, a smart delineator of varied types of character; Mart and Pep, youthful and pleasant performers of hand-balancing feats; Mr. Archie Royer, a daring acrobat, who presents several fresh items; Mr. Dave Carter, the well-known Irish tenor; Mr. Cull Pitt in his sketch, Merely an Entertainer; Mr. Reg Bolton, in a humorous turn entitled Inky's Music Lesson; Mr. Richard Finberg, an excellent and effective actor, in selections from plays; Miss Dorothy Belmore, a pleasing entertainer at the piano; and Miss Marie Dreams, a young vocalist with a powerful voice

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—The attractions this week included a welcome return visit from Mr. Herbert Darnley's company, with that diverting military comedy Private Potts, Mr. Fred Kitchen being as breezy and humorous as ever in the name part, and Mr. Harry Lappo hugely helping on the fun in the rôle of the little bugler. In the farcical sketch Adam the Second, Barton and Ashley produced considerable merriment; Rich and Rich achieved distinct success as patter comedians; the Eisteddfod Prize Vocal Sextette proved themselves pleasing harmonists; and the Elsa Satanella Trio gave an excellent display of acrobatic dancing. Of the single-handed turns, Elsie Robey did well as the Slavey at the Piano; Clown Argo was successful in his well-known mimicry; and Fred Shephard scored as a comedy vocalist with a budget of popular songs. Some interesting animated pictures were shown by the American Bioscope.

ELLESMERE PORT.—HIPPODROME AND PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Corelli and Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Corelli.—George E. Pelham and company during the week present the following plays: The Castlemaine Diamonds, The Power of Evil, and The Judgment. The principal characters in these plays are ably portrayed by Messrs. George E. Pelham, Lawrence Trevelyan, and Miss Vi Dennis. A very interesting programme is made up by the appearance of Violet Dennis as a comedienne and dancer; Williams and Hayes, in a vocal comedy act; and Nellie Nora as a musical entertainer.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Louie Freear provides a powerful attraction, her character sketches being as smart and full of mirth as ever, and with her burlesque imitations, humorous songs, and "narratives," she immensely pleases the houses. The Gay Gondoliers are also popular; Miss Beatrice Rowe possesses a soprano voice of excellent range and power; Miss Nina Lorenza does some artistic mandoline playing; Mr. Geo. Roberts is a smart vocalist and entertaining mimic; and Mr. Alfred Green deserves praise in the same respect. Mr. Alf Wharton is funny with his eyeglass.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Resident and Acting-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—Tom and Marie Motramo, who have pride of place on this week's bill, are a clever pair of musical and comedy artists; Humpsti-Bumsti, presented by Pipifax and Panlo, proves an exceedingly smart acrobatic turn with the right amount of comic relief; Harry Friskey introduces a popular and entertaining juggling item; Will Driscoll, swell comedian, is excellently received; Les Davenports are expert sleight-of-hand artists; Beaty and Blanche have some tuneful songs which they render with good effect; and Fame and Fortune, in a speciality comedy act, cause merriment.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—A return visit is being paid this week by Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and Mr. Frank Cellier in a round of Shakespearean plays. The plays produced include The Taming of the Shrew, Twelfth Night, Romeo and Juliet, Merry Wives of Windsor, Hamlet, and Richard III., in which the principal rôles are assumed by Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and Mr. Frank Cellier, well and ably supported by the company.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is on a welcome visit here with The Little Damozel. In the title-rôle Miss Emilie Polini acted with a pleasant discrimination; Mr. Alick Chumley as Recklaw Poole portrayed the character with great skill; Mr. William Matthews was in every way excellent as Walter Angel; Mr. Guy Newall made an amusing Fitzroy Lock; and Mr. George A. Brandram interpreted the rascally Captain Partington in a manner that reflected credit upon him. Sybil Craven was fittingly sustained by Miss Marion Lockie, and in the minor parts of Papa Batholdy, Franz Pepo, and Abraham, Messrs. Gambier, Ravenscroft, and Frank Roy each displayed ability. An Englishman's Lie form an effective curtain-raiser. The House Opposite is booked for the latter part of the week.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fredk. J. Reece.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company appeared here on Monday for three nights in Little Phil's Mother. The title-rôle and Little Phil, the crippled child, were pathetically played by Miss Maud Russel and Miss Daisy Rochefort; Mr. John E. Tomlinson gave a good character sketch of Bill Brisket, and he was ably supported by Miss Kate Blair as Elspeth; Mr. Herbert Evelyn was a powerful Frank Towers, and the same remark may be applied to Mr. David McFarlyne as Oscar. One of the best played characters was the old musician of Mr. Dunlop Stewart. The comedy element was safe in the hands of Mr. Thorne and Miss Leslie Warner. The rest of the week is occupied by pictures and a variety company.

GRAND THEATRE AND VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John R. Fox.—This week we have a variety company on the two shows a night principle. The principal item is Miss Marcelle Eirl and her quartette of juvenile dancers in a pretty production, "A Moon Dream"; Miss Dulcie Moore and her piano are a pleasing turn; Carta and Mirtziana are clever balancers; and the rest of the company consists of Gene Brant, Dan E. Scott (comedian), Flo Beresford, and Kitty Corrie.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman, Mr Alfred Moul; Local Manager and Licensee, Mr. Sydney B. Stringer.—Mlle. Vera de Astra in a picturesque act, embracing classical posing and superb dancing, heads the list here this week; Rowland Hill is as amusing as ever; Tom Barrasford's Minstrel Boys score with songs and dances; Mr. C. le Gar presents Señor Angel Blanco, the Spanish violinist, in the playlet Music the Conqueror, which is warmly praised; Kenneth and Kane form a comedy duo which really merits the adjective original; the Fordyces are an amusing pair of juveniles; and Little Frankie, boy vocalist, and the Kingscope are other attractive items in a strong bill.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. F. Douthwaite.—Mr. Stanley Carlton's excellent company is appearing here in the drama Night and Morning. Mr. Carlton creditably fills the rôle of Richard Sefton; Mr. Bertram Damer is well fitted for the part of Lionel Mildmay; the part of Lucas Hardshore is effectively rendered by Mr. John Crondall; a most amusing comedian is Mr. Willie H. Vernon, who undertakes the rôle of Bob Barleycorn; the part of Alice Welford has an excellent exponent in Miss Rubie Maud; and the highest praise is due to Miss Marion Holly for her low comedy work in the part of Selina.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and G. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy O. Humphrys.—This week playgoers here have an opportunity of enjoying the highly-amusing comedy Tantalizing Tommy. Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company is headed by Miss Nellie Lonnen (Tommy) and Mr. Hastings Lynn (Jimmy), both of whom work with unfailing spirit in keeping the fun going; Harry Killick is undertaken by Mr. Ambrose Flower with much success; the heavy fathers, Thomas H. Pepper and Eustace Tathem, are played most effectively by Mr. Roy Byford and Mr. Ernest R. Hollway respectively; Miss Eva Brickwell gives character to the part of Bertha; Elsie Tathem by Miss Margaret Stuart and the maid by Miss Kate Emerson are also well-filled parts; as Lord Enderby Mr. Geoffrey Denys looks the part admirably; Mr. Olaf Hylten is good as Jennings; the Colonial Office clerks are ably represented by Messrs. Cyril Percy and Frank Creston; and the servant is capably played by Mr. Hubert Lane. The Second Mrs. Grundy is played as a curtain-raiser.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. G. T. Minshull; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—Les Cloches de Corneville is this week being presented here by Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. John Hart's company. Mr. E. St. Alban supplied a good study of Gaspard, and in the second act distinguished himself by a fine bit of acting; Mr. Cyril Thomson did excellent work as Henri, his vocal efforts calling forth many evidences of appreciation. The part of Germaine finds a graceful exponent in Miss Kitty Dale, and Miss Mabel Ross daintily interprets Serpolette. Mr. Fred Dark's impersonation of the Bailie is very clever, and his business is amusing; Mr. Alfred Selby supplies a humorous study as Gobo; Mr. Arthur Geary made good use of his opportunities as Grenicheux; and Miss Lucy Kipling plays Christophe pleasingly.

GRAND. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—The stock company here are this week presenting the laughable farce called Borrowed Plumes, in which Mr. Alex Keith sustains with great spirit the character of Dick Mizzle, while Mr. Charles Homer acts with energy the part of Captain Flasher; Violet is pleasingly personated by Miss Ann Haughton, and Miss Margaret Zaidia makes a charming Emma; Mr. J. Wingate presents a sedate Mr. Bibbins, and Mr. John Roberts as Ostler Joe completes an effective cast. Miss Norma Russell is the vocalist, and with her telling contralto voice she sings several songs with feeling. Slides showing up-to-date events and several amusing Bioscope films complete the entertainment.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Driving a Girl to Destruction occupies the boards here this week, and is proving its drawing powers with well-filled houses. Miss Marie Robson as Ruth is excellent in all her work, and has little to learn as an exponent of melodrama, a like remark applying to Miss Maud M. Powell, whose every action shows her extreme capability in the part of Ruby; Mr. Cecil Mannering makes a capital Lucas List, a character he portrays with excellent realism, while as Octavius Screwe, his cringing catspaw, Mr. Henry Scratchard does admirably; Miss Kate Froude as Mme. de Meral appears in a rôle to which she is excellently suited, and Mr. J. A. Bentham as Robert Ray, the lover of Ruby, is very strong in his arduous part.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Morton Powell's company, in A Girl's Temptation, comes to the above theatre this week. The leading characters, Miss Zella Stanhope as Kate Stirling, a working girl, and Mr. Frank V. Venn as Guy Warren, son of a millionaire, made an excellent impression, which was shared by Mr. Clifton Earle as Mark Klaw, mill manager; Mr. Charles Herbert as Basile Warren, Guy's father, and Mr. Fred J. Mace as Jim Judd, a ne'er-do-well, acquitted themselves well in minor characters, and the lighter side was well represented by Mr. Albert E. Mann as Sammy Sniggles, a limb of the law, and Miss Amy Corallie as Jennie Jossap, a sprightly working girl. Not the least important characters in the play were Miss Winnie Donovan as Lady Constance and Miss Blanche Lee as Annie Brown, a victim, who acquitted themselves admirably.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. George N. Ballanger this week introduces to the Lyceum patrons his popular and talented American company in King of the Wild West. In the title-rôle Young Buffalo distinguishes himself by an excellent portrayal of the rough and ready but honest Scout; as Wild Nell Miss Caroline May Blaney gets ample opportunities for displaying her sterling capabilities; the Jack Morton of Mr. Edwin J. Collins is admirably interpreted; while as Kate Morton Miss Agnes McCarthy is singularly effective. Mr. Ernest Foster makes a creditable appearance as Randolph Morton, the unforgiving father. The sinister parts are ably sustained by Mr. Antoine Provost and Mr. George W. Cockburn as Yellow Face and John Bluffington respectively, while Mr. William Ashmeade does ample justice to the rôle of Pedro, the fiery Mexican. There are several very humorous situations, in which Mr. Edmund Rich as Judge Gritt and Miss Lucy Murray as Mrs. Miles McCarthy are responsible for much merriment. Mr. Bert Martin as Hatchet Face Abe submits two excellent vocal numbers in approved style.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—Miss Zena Dare, supported by Mr. Frank Wilson and Miss Ivy St. Helier, is outstanding on the bill, and presents Mr. Seymour Hicks' one-act play, The Model and the Man, which is a distinct success. Horace Wheatley, the genial Irish comedian, has still hosts of admirers; the Riogoku Family of unrivalled Japanese acrobats had a hearty reception, and the drolleries of Cruikshank were a treat. The other artists include the Courtiers, vaudeville entertainers; Thora, a "lady" ventriloquist; Geo. Rae, Scotch comedian; and France and Stewart, in The Little Puritan.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest R. Foster.—The star here this week is the Comtesse de Rusae, who as poseuse, classical dancer, conjurer, and protean artist provides an excellent turn. She is assisted by Carl Menitz, who gives burlesque imitations of famous conductors. The Columbia Comedy Trio sing well, and their comedy is much enjoyed; Mooney and Holbein are a smart couple of comedians; G. W. Hunter again shows his skill as a raconteur to the audience; D'Arc's Marionettes are an excellent entertainment in themselves, and their imitations of all the well-known variety artists were life-like; Leroux's Monkeys, in their cycling act, show wonderful training; Hal Forde, light comedian, is a favourite in Glasgow; the Sisters Showell sing several duets in attractive style; Alman Correige, a juggler of much merit, is also worthy of mention.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Mike S. Whallen is as fresh and entertaining as ever, his "Irish Wake," as usual, being loudly called for; Drew and Alders, in their coastguard sketch, are given wide scope for their excellent dancing and tumbling work; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leonard appear in Coming Home, which proves exceedingly funny. Quite an interesting dramatic playlet, A Society Sinner, is presented by the Forestiers; Frank Hartley is a juggler at the top of his profession; Stacey and Williams are a duo of clever comedians; Angus Strong renders both his numbers in pleasing style; while Bertha Evelyn, contralto, is a dainty lady with a good voice. Frances McNulty puts forward a clever dancing turn, which takes well. The Palacescope films are of the same high class, and the orchestra, under the capable leadership of Mr. Arthur Fellowes, is to be complimented on its work.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. John M. Hay.—Herbert Sleath and company produce here a striking and picturesque play in The Horse Thief, and the cleverly-told story interests the large audience from start to finish. Sammy Shields is a strong favourite in Glasgow, and his various songs take well; Helen Trix, the American comedienne, is well received for her eccentric comedy business; Fanny Robina contributes several enjoyable items; and a hearty welcome is extended to Florrie Cooper for her well-rendered songs. Conn and Conrad, Ben Lewin, and Dan Hendy are all responsible for clever items, and the Bioscope brings a bright entertainment to a close.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—The films screened here are most up to date, and include An Excursion in a Dirigible, Light Loves, Countess Chalwut, Agony Column Romance, The Death of Lincoln, Lieutenant Rose and the Chinese Pirates, and the Gazette, describing the latest national and foreign incidents. There is, in addition, a variety programme, which is well sustained by Charles Ousley, vocalist and speciality dancer; and Sydney Verne, ventriloquist.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard; Manager, Mr. W. Sinclair.—W. H. Smart has clever and amusing songs, and he dances well, and the Gascoynes cause plenty of fun with their sketch Fitznoodle's Proposal; the Sisters Sember prove chic comediennes and dancers, and Wallace Muirhead sings descriptive songs in fine style. The Bioscope has an interesting series of pictures, including The Joe Bowker v. Digger Stanley Fight, which is much enjoyed.

STAR, LTD. — Resident-Manager, Mr. George Chandos.—A remarkably realistic film is The Great Train Hold-up, a dramatic American railroad story; A Personal Matter, a very funny picture, keeps the audience in roars of laughter. In the variety line Les Zelovas are heartily applauded for a clever performance of daring acrobatic feats; Miss Sylvia West is successful in her vocal numbers, while as a dancer she gives an accomplished and graceful display. Special mention must be made of Day and Daly, who excel as comedians.

ZOO AND CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock.—An excellent programme is provided at the Zoo this week, no fewer than fifteen turns being given, many of which are surprisingly clever. Messrs. Aerian and Ostara prove a big attraction in a flying trapeze act at a height of 30ft., over a huge net very clever equestrian acts being given by M. Charlerol and Leo Claire; the Torcadors, in an amusing comedy bull fight. Miss Pinder, clever horseback performer; Little Sid, clever clown; Harey and Jabez, the eccentric motor men; and August and September, fun manufacturers, are also worthy of special mention.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. J. C. Lodge-Percy and répertoire company opened on Monday in Mr. Barnes of New York. Mr. J. C. Lodge-Percy gave a clever portrayal of Mr. Barnes; Mr. F. D. Howard was subtle as Count Danello; Mr. A. Money was a bluff and hearty Captain George Arthur; Mr. F. A. Morley a good Lieutenant Antonio Paoli; Tomasso and Matteo were in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest Whitmee and Mr. Eric Boulé; and Marina Paoli was finely rendered by Miss Henrietta Schrier. On Wednesday and Thursday Moths was staged.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company present The Beggar Princess here this week. Mr. J. Rice Cassidy plays the Hon. Algernon Fitzhugh in breezy style; whilst Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy enacts the Princess Henri of Slavonia at times powerfully and always charmingly; Mr. Juan D'Alberti is seen to advantage as Duke Sergius Rubinoff; Duke Michael is capitally played by Mr. Henry Danson; Allen Armstrong in the hands of Mr. F. Norburn is praiseworthy; Mr. E. J. Fay is noticeable as Abraham Bolton; and the remaining characters are all capably cast.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. Stewart.—The Firechief's Daughter is an excellent picture, and Pathe's Gazette is interesting. The varieties include Pharos, a clever magician; the Hudson Duo, in singing and patter act; and Miss Kitty Woodford in illustrated songs.

THEATRE DE LUXE.—Electric Theatres (1908), Ltd.—Tunny fishing in Sicily is an attractive picture; London and its Life, too, interests; but, for an agricultural district, no more appropriate picture could be found than that depicting the old-fashioned way of preserving milk, as compared with the new mechanical process.

GREENOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Messrs. J. E. Watson and C. T. Doe's company is here with the interesting comedy Priscilla Runs Away. Miss Beatrice Lindley played the part of Priscilla in excellent style; Mr. Leslie Owen acted effectively as the Prince of Lucerne; Mr. Clifton Alderson was sufficiently stern and dignified as the Grand Duke; and Mr. J. Edmund Pearce distinguished himself as Herr Fritzing; Miss Annie Stalman admirably sustained the rôle of Mrs. Morrison; Miss Eva Mansell and Mrs. Rose Hardy as the Duchess of Gerstein and Lady Shuttleworth were praiseworthy, and the rest of the cast lent valuable support.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—George A. Street and company are still here, and this week present a thrilling sketch, entitled The Bad Man. The title-rôle is enacted by Mr. Street himself with considerable skill, while the other parts are in capable hands; Ferguson and Mack score in a knockabout absurdity; Stewart and Morris are smart dancers, and other noticeable turns include the Sisters Terry, duettists and dancers, Wee Jock Laird, described as the boy Lauder, and the Six Manchester Lads.

GRIMSBY. — PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North. — The new edition of The Dairymaids is thoroughly pleasing. Miss Ethel Callanan is a winsome Peggy; Miss Marjorie Manners scores special vocal honours as Winifred; Mr. Edwin Dodds brings out the humorous characteristics of Joe Mivens with telling effect; he is ably seconded by Miss Edie Martin, who gives a quaint representation of Eliza; Mr. William Spray contributes an abundance of excellent light comedy as Lieutenant Sam Brudenell; Mr. Harry Clark is excellent as Lieutenant Frank Meredith; and others who may be mentioned are Mr. Harry Scaddan as Dr. O'Byrne, Miss Marie Rignold as Lady Brudenell, and Miss Rose Edouin as Miss Pyechase.

PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford.—George Mozart is meeting with enthusiastic receptions, and his budget of new comedy, especially his political parodies, are hugely enjoyed; Daisy James is as popular as ever; the Three Delaries, in the Demon Grotto, give a clever gymnastic display; Frank Cumminger and Frances Colonna are expert sand dancers; the Raymond Trio have an entertaining musical and dancing act; Daisy Hurdle is a comedienne with a pleasing style; and Sim Maree gives an exhibition of remarkable contortionistic feats.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Louis Meyer's company is here with The Woman in the Case. As Margaret Rolfe Miss Mabel Trevor plays with intensity and feeling; Miss Florence Lloyd's Claire Foster is a splendid portrayal; Mr. Leonard Pagden is a dignified Thompson; Mr. Clayton Greene makes a manly Julian Rolfe, and Mr. Lambert Plummer, in the small part of Walters, is a conspicuous success.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Fred Granville's Productions, Ltd., No. 1 company are playing to good business with Another Man's Wife.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. J. Simpson.—Billy Merson, fun-maker, is having a good reception; Memora, the human encyclopædia, is a popular turn; Miss Louie Tracy, the "Dapper Dandy Boy," is a clever artist; Harry Shirley and May Ransome successfully present Jim's Pal; Sydney Bach, the "Welsh Rare-bit" at the piano, is a good turn; the Tintos are a couple of smart acrobats; Miss Cissie Thompson, comedienne; Tennyson and Wallis, comedians; and Harry Taylor, Lancashire comedian, complete the bill.

VICTORIA HALL, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Frank H. Corbett.—Fenton Cross appears here this week, introducing lightning sketches and his new line-shadowgraphy, in which he tries a new experiment—casting the shadow from the operating box—producing a capital effect. The pictures are good. Convict 796 is a fine dramatic film.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's company in The Cingalee is here this week. Miss Isa Bowman as Nanoya, Mr. Hylton Warde as Chambhuddy Ram, Mr. Frank Barclay as Vereker, Mr. Herbert Franklin as Bobby Warren; Mr. Frank Lennard as Boobhamba, Miss F. Greensmith as Peggie, Miss Ray Anderson as Lady Vane, Miss Winnie Stone as Miss Pinkerton, and Mr. Herbert Le Maistre as Sir Peter are one and all highly commendable.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Splendid houses are attracted by a capital programme headed by Chung Ling Soo, whose feats are wonderful; Lloyd Morgan, comedian, is recalled; Fred Bronte sings successfully; Edward Crosland's melody makers are heartily applauded for their musical act; Lecardo Bros., baker acrobats, are clever; Spry and Monti as duettists are good; Helen Martin, soprano vocalist, sings admirably; Lily Esplin is a charming comedienne. The pictures are always entertaining.

KING'S.—Lessee, Mr. J. P. Moore; Manager, Mr. Colin Hazlewood.—An attractive series of pictures includes Beckwith's Gun, Pathé's Weekly Gazette, In Love with the Cashier, and Paradise Gulch. Alf E. Lindon, comedian, is a favourite.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—The leading attraction here is Rabottini and his Italian Court Band, whose operatic and other selections deserve commendation. Rozel succeeds in startling the audience by his aerial dive, which arouses tremendous applause; the Forsyths are inimitable and droll; Minnie D'Aubyn sings in capital style; Ben Jackson, first-rate banjoist and humorist; Tom Bryce and Miss Maynard give able representations of the smart sketch The Dude's Wooing; and Tom Garland is a humorous ventriloquist.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Maxsted.—Robb Wilton, who heads the bill here, is excruciatingly funny. Alice Gill is a contralto and Tyrolean vocalist of talent; and capital films fill in the remainder of the bill.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt.—Mr. F. R. Benson and his Shakespearean company are appearing here this week in their popular répertoire of Shakespeare's plays. In all the plays Mr. Henry Herbert distinguishes himself in the principal parts. In the delightful tale of woodland life As You Like It, Mr. Herbert as Touchstone may be credited with exceptional ability; Mr. Duncan Yarrow in the part of Orlando bears himself gallantly enough; the banished Duke by Mr. Charles Warburton is a finished piece of acting; Mr. Wicksteed as his brother usurper presents a capital character study; a delightful impersonation of Rosalind is shown by Miss Gladys Vanderzee; Miss Rosalind Grey as Celia plays with much skill; and in the part of Audrey Miss Hope Trant creates amusement.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING. — GAIETY. — Proprietors, Messrs. Ainsley and Hall.—Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company is here in the drama Her Nameless Child. Mr. J. W. Evelyn as Anthony Ford (the blacksmith) gives a realistic performance; Mr. Leonard Aardale is an excellent Lord Woodville; Miss Jean Wigney plays Phylis with conspicuous success; Miss Dora Weber as Lady Woodville and Miss Eileen Davenport as Grayont give capital impersonations; and Miss Beatrice Dover (Sarah) and Miss Rene Belle Douglas (Bessie Brooks) are well received.

HUDDERSFIELD. — HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—At the top of the bill is Harry Lemore, a versatile comedy entertainer. Also included are the Crisps in a smart dancing turn; J. Augustin and Miss Annie Hartley, a pair of clever jumpers; Arthur Slater, the well-known whistling man in white; Lenton and Lane in a musical mixture; Royburn and Dix, comedians; Miss Lily Ray, comedienne; the Two Butterflies, trapeze artists; and the Pictures.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—Crowded houses are attracted by a bill which includes Mlle. Suzanne de Verneuil's posing ladies, who present a series of charming artistic living pictures; Jack Fortescue and company in a dramatic playlet, entitled Hawkshaw; Chas. Diamond and Miss Beatrice, whose playing on the harp and the soprano saxophone is a treat; Miss Dorothy Dacey, comedienne; the Falcons, clever acrobatic comedians; Miss Norman Grant, at the piano; Pete and Minnie Lee in a bright and amusing musical duologue; Belrose and Miss Maude de Velin, duettists; and Miss Florence Smithers and company in a screaming farce, Our Mary Jane. Pictures complete.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—That ever-verdant lady, Charley's Aunt, is paying a visit to Hull. Time has not influenced the hold she has on public affection. The real Dona Lucia is that talented artist Miss Helen Palgrave; Mr. Geo. A. Seager is a complete success as the masquerader; the two undergraduates find excellent representatives in Messrs. Francis Drake and Cecil Kerr, while Mr. Sydney Compton scored well as Stephen Spettigue. The laughter that greeted the efforts of the artists was a constant reminder of the comedy that has its being in this well-known play.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The play this week is far away above the average, and His Real Wife should carry success in its wake where and whenever produced. The plot is closely knit, the dialogue breezy and to the point, the theme has a sense of novelty about it that is commendable. As Rose Avondale Miss Ward gives a most convincing character study, which wins the audience's approval; the Martin Avondale of Mr. J. O. Stewart was an equally effective piece of work; Mr. Chas. Yorke was well cast as Colombe; the Herbert Barton of Mr. Rean was a striking performance; Miss Kate Wilford played Lady Sybil with much force; the remainder of the characters were well sustained.

PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—Excellent audiences are enjoying a bright and varied entertainment here. Miss Marie George and company receive a warm welcome in The Cowboy Girl; Harry Brown, the coloured comic, is responsible for hearty laughter; Tom Parker, with new songs, is repeating former successes; an amusing item is contributed by Roze and Calvert; the Hardini Trio give a clever performance as violinists; in a comedy concoction entitled Astronomy W. Fulbrook and company give a lively turn; as comedy gymnasts the Du Gros Trio submit a novel and clever act; warm applause greets the efforts of Evelyn Bingham, the factory girl vocalist; and Georgina Leno, comedienne, and Bioscope pictures are also popular.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Slingsby.—There are several strong attractions in this week's bill here, the foremost being Ida Kessanly, with her fox terriers, which provide great fun; Rose and Wold gain hearty applause for their smart acrobatic work; novel and refined is the equilibristic act presented by Sylvene and Mdlle. Florence; Gladys and Alber, a quaint pair, and Dan Rodney, comedian, elicit hearty laughter; Clive Watts is deservedly applauded for his smart dancing; and other items include Vera Mayne, chic comedienne; and Miss Bobbie Laurier, a popular chorus comedienne.

THE HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Bentley. — Pride of England, as presented by Nevill Graham and Co., is captivating nightly appreciative audiences; applause loud and long is bestowed upon Ara, Zebra, and Vora for their clever acrobatic tumbling; an amusing skit entitled The Topside Dog is presented by N. Graham and Co.; Ess and Hoey are expert Canadian ski, ice, and roller-skate dancers; Vera Rochdale is a delightful soprano singer and dancer; a popular favourite is Charles Normand, a local comedian; Chas. Grantly, the nondescript, and capital Bioscope films conclude.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Midland Electric Theatres and Cinematograph Co.; Chairman, Mr. J. W. Moore, C.C.; Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—The Smalleys, in a laughter-provoking act on the horizontal bar, are well received; Nelly Duval, comedienne, and the Tymes in an original scena, entitled The Enchanted Clock, complete the variety list, and there is the usual good display of films.

ILKLEY. — KING'S HALL.—Proprietors, the Urban District Council; Manager, Mr. Wardle S. Bellerby. — Messrs. Tyler and Stuart's company appeared on Monday in The Message from Mars to a large and highly appreciative audience; Miss Maud Gill was very effective in the trying part of Minnie Templer; Mr. Percy Tyler as a tramp submitted a fine character study; and Mr. Dudley Stuart essayed the selfish and the benevolent Horace Parker in equally praiseworthy fashion.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Messrs Kelso continue to provide excellent entertainment in this house, the latest set of pictures being unusually interesting. The Pearl Fisher, a beautiful coloured fantasy, is a striking film. A splendid variety entertainment is also provided, the large attendance each evening testifying to the increasing popularity of pictures and vaudeville.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Murray King, Clark, and W. H. Savery.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company in his own play, The Bad Girl of the Family, is here, Miss Violet Crossley admirably playing the difficult part of Bess Moore, and Miss Dulcie O'Mull Coury that of Honour Moore; Miss Daisy Cook is a charming Gladys Erskine; Miss Mona Hungerford is a vivacious Sally Smithers; and Miss Sadie Southern a staid Mrs. Moore; Mr. Richard Lane is a manly Lieut. Richard March; Mr. Alexander Bradley is a skilful exponent of the heavy part of Harry Gordon; Mr. Luke Forster, as Berry Gordon, the wealthy Jew, acts effectively; Mr. James C. Taylor is an aristocratic Lord Erskine; and Mr. Tom May makes the most of the amusing part of Sammy Snozzle. Jerry Holmes is well played by Mr. George Belmore; and Mr. Frank Willing is the Vicar. Elaborate scenery is carried.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Five Petleys, aerial gymnasts, give a marvellous exhibition of skill and daring; Maurice is a clever and amusing manipulator of cards; Lace and Leno are agile dancers; Barry Lupino is very popular with his funny patter songs; Selvidge and Holland have a sketch entitled The Dotted Crotchet, in which both singing and acting are good; Francesca has a popular turn in which she sings to illustrated pictures; the Martiolo Trio introduce some balancing feats, which excite the wonder of the audience; and Rolando Martin has some good patter songs.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Evans.—This week we have a return visit from Leah Kleschna. Miss Marguerite Cellier makes an ideal Leah Kleschna, while Mr. William Clayton gives an excellent study of Kleschna, Mr. Graham Pockett being well placed as Schram; Mr. Cyril Austin Lee gives a manly performance of Paul Sylvaine, and Mr. E. S. Petley makes the most of the part of Raoul Berton; General Berton is in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Wren, and Miss Florence Dulhunty is good as Claire Berton.

THE PALACE.—Lessees, the Jarrow Palace Co.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. C. Padden.—This picture hall continues to show some excellent pictures, and also introduces variety, Tiny Tot, the wonderful child comedienne, and Walker's Six Geldarts in a novel act.

THE KINO.—Lessee, Mr. Dixon Scott; Manager, Mr. John R. Scott.—Some capital pictures are being shown at this hall, and Miss Mi Narom, in her latest comedy creations, is also well received.

KEIGHLEY. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Keighley Hippodrome Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. S. Holmes, Ltd.—Sandy McNab is here on a return visit, and creates much hilarity in his sketch The Egyptian Mummy. Mr. Henry Bedford in his sketch The Bottom Dog meets with well-deserved success; Mr. Rob Gilmore's comic songs hit the popular taste; Mr. Allan Hanbury is here in new and interesting songs and patter; Smith and Gibbs are clever equilibrists; and a good turn is contributed by the Morrisons.

KETTERING.—VICTORIA THEATRE.—Managers, Messrs. Bailey and Co.—Pleasing varieties are contributed by the Wagners in a musical sketch; Harry Bland (comedian); the Roses (comedy); Eva Charry (comedienne); Harris and Tweed (comedians); the Ronnies (jugglers); and Guy Docraw (vocalist).

COLISEUM.—Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackman.—The attractions here are Will Cornish in a musical speciality; George St. Helen (vocalist); and Basma (society gymnast). Up to date films are displayed.

KIDWELLY.—TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, The Borough Council; Secretary, Sergeant James.—The Royal Pierrots, under the direction of Miss Eva Travis and Mr. James Makensie are here this week, Miss Travis and Mr. Makensie working hard and successfully as vocalists, dancers, and sketch artists; they also present a clever living marionette turn; Miss Gertie Coleman is a dainty and clever serio and dancer; Miss Florrie Clairmont is successful as a comedienne, top-boot dancer, and sketch artist; Mr. Eugene Macabe is also a prominent member of the company, which is strengthened by the engagement of M. Mazeppa and Madame Zilla, who appear in a smartly worked and clever second-sight act.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—For three nights excellent variety entertainments have been presented, including Bosanquet, with his wonderful musical turn; the Daimlers, comedy artists; Stuart Paton, character impersonator; Gilbert's remarkably clever troupe of dogs; Sally Daly, vocalist; Arthur Milton, comedian; the Weimars, in a fine military spectacle; and the Whitworth Trio, in a charming display of trick cycling.

KIRKCALDY.—NEW KING'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. J. Bell.—Palette and Potto, comedy musicians, top the bill, and provide much entertainment; the Lawsons do well in their mimicry turn, and Max, the performing dog, is exceptionally clever; the Danas earn plaudits for their comedy act; Le Warren, ventriloquist, is good; and Miss Lillie Dennis is a smart comedienne; M. Grover, illusionist, Coney Barr, female impersonator, and Will Hawthorne, Scotch comedian, are worthy of praise.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—During the earlier part of this week we had a visit from Charley's Aunt, which proved a great draw. Mr. Hugh Wakefield gave a clever impersonation of Lord Fancourt Babberley, whilst Mr. Richard B. Mason was a typical Charley Wykeham. Jack Cheesney, his chum, was ably interpreted by Mr. Robert Burnett, and as Stephen Spettigue Mr. Henry Hare made much of the character. Mr. Theo. McCausland Stewart was excellent as the impecunious Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, and Miss Audrey Stafford was a dignified and graceful Donna Lucia. Spettigue's ward and niece, Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettigue, were charmingly portrayed by Miss Grace Denbigh Russell and Miss Phyllis Back respectively, whilst Miss Janet Gillette's Ela Delaney was an attractive performance. Brassett, the college scout, was well played by Mr. Arthur Dennis. The piece was preceded each evening by a dramatic episode, The Lancashire Sailor. For the latter part of the week The Best People was announced.

LEEDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Francis Laidler; Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and W. Howard's company, in Her Love Against the World, opened here on Monday. All the members in this military drama work admirably together. As Eric, Earl of Strathmere, Mr. Fred Emery is excellent, and Miss Ellen Snow as the Princess Idalia scores a great success. Mr. W. H. Hallatt makes a capital Prince Othmar. Mr. Roy Fortescue, Mr. Arthur Chisholm, and Miss Blanch Steele all supply good renderings of their parts.

GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. John Hart; Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Johann Strauss' comic opera, A Viennese Masquerade, is being presented by the Thomas Beecham Opera Comique Company, under the management of Mr. Thomas Quinlan. A trio of very talented performers are the Misses Caroline Hatchard, Kate Anderson, and Gladys Ancrum; Mr. M. R. Morand is diverting as the Governor of the Prison; Mr. Wilson Pembroke ably represents Von Eisenstein. An augmented orchestra of forty performers, under the leadership of Mr. Howard Carr, is a strong feature, and the opera is admirably staged.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Macleod.—Harry Roxbury and company appear in the ever-welcome Prince of Monte Carlo; Horace Goldin is another big "draw" in his astonishing illusions; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucas depict scenes from "The Old Curiosity Shop" and other works with accurate detail; the Grassis, musical eccentrics, are very smart in a mirror performance; the Belles of the Kitchen, a troupe of clever juvenile performers, are well received; Evelyn Stoll, a piano entertainer, successfully deputises for Esta Stella; Will Johnson and Daisy Martell ably complete.

THE HIPPODROME.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Four capital turns appearing here are Effie White, Marie Santoi and company, Friend and Downing, and Les Trombettas. Jock Whiteford was unable to appear. Rastus and Banks also entertain greatly as dancers; and Albert McKelvin's humour is fully appreciated. Completing are Nobby and Carly's dogs.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—The Lady of Ostend is being presented here with much success. Mr. Laurence Brough is excellent as Dick Whortles; Mr. Alfred Hemming as the father-in-law creates a good impression; and Mr. George R. Mountford is successful as a Frenchman. Miss Rita Trickelle gives a fine impersonation of the title-rôle; Mr. Watkin Wynne as the prize-fighter is a capable actor; and Miss Olga Esme also gives a good account of herself.

LEEK.—GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Leek Theatre Co., Ltd.; Licensee and General-Manager, Mr. Barry Bond.—Variety performances are being given here this week, and the departure has proved popular, judging by the enthusiasm of Monday's audience. La Vie, in a series of living art poses, receives a big reception; Bennie Barrow, light comedian, is the possessor of a good baritone voice; the three Eltons, triple horizontal bar comedians, give a smart display; the three Cummings, singers and dancers, provide an excellent turn; and other items are presented by the Dainty Danes, duettists and dancers, and Charlie Bradford, comedian. The pictures are up to the usual high standard.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Business-Manager, Mr. Trueman Towers.—This week's attraction is provided by Mr. Walter Melville's company in A Girl's Cross Roads, the principal parts of Barbara Wade and Farmer Meadows being interpreted in excellent style by Miss Nell Oliver and Mr. Edward Valentine.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—Mr. Frank Adair's No. 1 company is here on a first visit in the interesting play It's Always the Woman, in which Miss Louie Adair as Lady Margaret Desmond and Mr. Frank Adair as Major Stevington are capably supported by the other members of the company.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. L. Knight.—Topping this week's bill is the droll Lancashire comedian, George Formby, who, as usual, is receiving a most cordial reception. At the other end is Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten, introducing a number of well-trained children, who give an entertaining and popular turn; the Bros. Redmond are acrobatic comedians, who keep the house in continual laughter; Ricardo and Salving are clever acrobats; the Cavallotti Bros. are smart in their instrumental act; the McConnell Trio are very good in the musical comedietta, The Invalid; Bert Weston raises plenty of merriment as "The Madman"; Bert Harrow is a fun-creator of ability; Eily Adair is a capital Irish comedienne and dancer; and the Bioscope completes.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—The chief attraction here is Dorothy Mullord and company in the story Dickey's Mother, which is meeting with an excellent reception, the various parts being capitally interpreted. Other artists who contribute to the bill are Lazern, a capable sleight-of-hand entertainer; the Hargraves Trio, in their original comedy act; De Bessell, the original clay-modeller; Irene May, vocalist; May Terry, comedienne and dancer; and Harry Desmond, character comedian. The Bioscope throws two good pictures in The Way of the Red Man and Tom Thumb in Love.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Craig.—A full and varied programme of pictures here include The Sins of the Fathers and Indian Blood (the star pictures), Betty and the Fireworks, Bradford's Claim, Foolshead as Chauffeur, Courting the Merry Widow, Hidden in a Mattress, The Shepherd's Dog, False Friars, The Fence on Bar "2" Ranch. Excellent variety is supplied by Jack Crew, who is a comedian, a singer, and a dancer.

GRAND ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Midland Electric Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Joseph Eke.—A fine programme here also includes the beautiful Kinemacolor studies In Sorrento and Capri, A Battle of Flowers in Algiers, A Holiday in the Highlands, The Great Secret, The Turn of the Balance, and Views of the Isle of Bornholin in the Baltic.

THE ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Proprietors, The London and Provincial Electric Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. W. Reynolds-Benjamin; Resident-Manager, Mr. Kingstone Trollope.—The Animatophone song "A jovial monk am I" is popular here. Among a capital list of films are A Bull Fight in Chili, The Anarchist, Her Diary, Cowboy Stratagem, Sorrows of the Faithful, &c.

LEIGH. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Gould; General-Manager, Mr. A. F. Beaton.—Mr. Walter Howard and company are this week occupying the boards here with The Boy King, Mr. Walter Howard, who appeared in the rôle of the Ragged Prince, making hosts of friends in every part of the house by his fine portraiture; Mr. F. G. Clifton makes a capital Camillo; Mr. Charles Weir submits a clever and convincing study of the Grand Duke of Severnac; Mr. Robert Noble is well placed as Captain Raymond; Mr. Royce Carleton is a capable Captain Fabion; Miss Annie Saker handles the rôle of Camilla with charm and cleverness; whilst Miss Phillis Grey Logan makes an attractive Elaine. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Woolstencroft.—The local Shakespearean Dramatic Society are this week appearing here in Othello and As You Like It.

LEITH. — NEW GAIETY THEATRE. — Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The Christian is playing here to good houses. Mr. Baliol Holloway and Miss Elizabeth Risden enact with much nervous force the prominent rôles of John Storm and Glory Quayle; Father Lamplugh and Horatio Drake find excellent representatives in Mr. Edwin Ling and Mr. W. Burgess Barratt; Mrs. Callander, Brother Paul, and Polly Love are suitably characterised by Miss Rosa Burgess, Mr. George F. Weir, and Miss Maisie Richardson. Mr. Benson North and Mr. Aylmer Williams give due effect to the parts of Lord Robert Ure and Archdeacon Wealthy.

LIMERICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager and Proprietor, Mr. G. Victor Fogerty.—Mr. Norman V. Norman's clever company produced on Tuesday night that delightful comedy Lord and Lady Algy before a large and appreciative audience. The rôle of the Duke of Droneborough was cleverly enacted by Mr. Campbell Cargill; the Marquis of Quermby was capitally interpreted by Mr. F. Lock Whittaker; Lord Algy was in the hands of that excellent actor Mr. Norman himself; Mr. Norman Leslie played the part of Brabazon Tudway with judgment and ability; Miss Ellen Oliver was an imposing Lady Pamela; and as Attiline Mallinson Miss Maisie Stuart was pretty and effective. Miss Syretta Synett was good as Emily Cardew, and as Mrs. Vokins Miss Madge Trenchard was undoubtedly clever. Miss Agnes Thornton was equally chic and meritorious as Mrs. Tudway. Miss Beatrice Wilson, a delightful Lady Algy, captivated the house.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The Brass Bottle is in Liverpool for the first time, and all who have witnessed the particularly amusing production are not at all surprised at its highly successful run in London. Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., is Horace Ventimore, a part which he carries along with great success; Mr. Holman Clark presents a Fakrash which is remarkably realistic; as Pringle Mr. Rudge Harding shows high histrionic ability; a delightful Mrs. Rapkin comes from Miss Mary Brough; the fussy Professor Anthony is undertaken in a natural manner by Mr. Percy Marshall; Miss Marjorie Chard pleases with her tactful Sylvia Futvoye; and Miss Edith Hunter is to be commended for her Mrs. Futvoye. Miss Irene Wells as Zobeida dances gracefully and earns warm approval. The remainder of the company, which is controlled by Mr. Gaston Mayer, lends capital support.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The Captain of the School is the attraction here this week. Mr. Lionel Mackinder as Tom Brant, the popular head boy, shows considerable skill and resource in the rôle, as well as that of the pseudo uncle; Mr. Charles Macdona plays the Rev. Joseph McIntyre with true naturalness; Miss Dorothy Parry acts with charm as Rhoda McIntyre; Mrs. Mouillot delights with her Mrs. Higgins; and valuable help also comes from Messrs. Eugene Mayeur (Martin Leonard), Charles Connought (Daniel Corbett), J. Evelyn Swinburne (James Thurloe), and Harry Duff (Morley Murray). A Queen's Messenger, in which Mrs. Mouillot and Mr. Arthur Eldred appear, was the curtain-raiser.

ROTUNDA THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Greater Love is being played here this week to appreciative audiences by Mr. H. Armitage's company. That able actor Mr. Campbell Goldsmid repeats his powerful rôle of Paul Penfold; Mr. Algernon J. Hicks makes an admirable Rev. Arthur Warren; Miss Marion Fawcett pleases generally with her Mrs. May; the part of Mary May has a capital exponent in Miss Francesca Strickland; and other supporters are Messrs. Wentworth Lawson (Constable Drayton), Dennis Bryan (Andrew Isted), John B. Murray (Ned Stubbs), and Miss Ethel Russell (Sarah Higgs).

STAR THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Who is She? is being played here by Mr. Hill-Mitchelson's company. In the part of King Vladamir Mr. S. Herbert Humber acts with considerable tact; Mr. Hill-Mitchelson is again seen in the strong rôle of Prince Bora; a capital Captain Arthur Gower is provided by Mr. Stanley W. Healey; Miss Ada Champion as Who is She? acts with much power and discretion; Miss Alice Barber makes an admirable Countess Ladori; Miss Constance Medwyn does excellently as Zeta Noveitch; and Miss Elsie Clarke proves an intelligent little King.

KELLY'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—This week an important engagement has been entered into here with Cavaliere F. Castellano's Italian Grand Opera company. On Monday Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci were put forward, among the principals being Signora Defral (Santuzza), a lady of exceptional accomplishments; Signor Barbato (Turiddu), who was in fine voice; Signor Vail (Alfio), Signora Rocco (Lola), and Signora Surdiceca (Lucia). The other works of the week were Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, Lucia di Lammermoor, Faust, L'Ebrea, and Carmen. The conductors were Signor Wehils and Signor Lietti. It is a pleasure to record that the visit of the fine company was well patronised.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Miss Margaret Cooper, that inimitable artist at the piano, heads the bill here this week, and is delighting audiences with her capital songs; another favourite on a visit is Miss Adrienne Augarde, who, assisted by Mr. Victor G. Huntley, presents a duologue, Dick's Sister, which affords general satisfaction; Les Romanis are again heartily welcomed for their excellent musical act; as a character comedienne Lola Patey shows to much advantage; the Three Emersons have a novel gymnastic turn, The Swimming Pool; King's College Boys please with their pot-pourri entertainment; that funny couple, Verno and Voyce, cause endless amusement with the John Bull's Cash-box scena; and others who contribute are Adam Tomlinson, comedian, and the Sisters Kilner, acrobatic dancers.

LYRIC.—Lessees, Liverpool Lyric Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Mr. Bulmer's capable company are remaining another six nights, the play selected being The Girl who Went Astray. Mr. Richard Ferris as Captain Julian, Mr. Austin Mortimer as Rupert Murdock, Miss Doris Brookes as Madge Harvey, and Mr. Evan Roland as Adolphus Boomer sustain the more important parts, receiving capital assistance from Mr. Henry Sainsbury (Sergeant Harvey), Miss Ada Oakley (Violet Harvey), and Miss Sybil Haughton (Eleanor Merton).

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Miss Beaumont Collins and company are very successful in The House of Terror; La Noedia, Continental artist, renders several songs in French; the always welcome Topsy Sinden has a flattering reception for her songs and dances; Victor Kelly, assisted by Miss Agnes, keeps his audience in roars of laughter with his eccentricities; the Keppels are excellent operatic vocalists, and earn the cordial applause bestowed upon them; Jack Hylton is as amusing as ever; the Tafanos go through a smart and diverting musical show; much fun is caused by the Three Gerlinis, acrobatic eccentrics; and others who appear are the Brothers Obo, comedians, and Revill Hall, humorist and entertainer.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock company here are this week presenting The Love of a Life, from the pens of Eugene Gotere and John B. Shinton. Among the principal artists are Messrs. Cecil Ravenswood, Sydney Grant, Harry Tresham, R. Seath-Innes, Tom H. Solly, Leo Montgomery, E. D. Allen, Miss Lilian Radbourne, and Miss Gertrude Entwistle. Brown's Bioscope shows The Secret.

OLYMPIA.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. M. Slater.—Houdini is foremost here this week with his remarkable handcuff tricks; Jen Latona delights at the piano, her comedy songs being rendered with much taste and judgment; Kitts and Windrum have a merry military scena, The Cuckoo, which causes a deal of laughter; Russell Wallett, "the lady in black," affords as much satisfaction as ever; La Superbe has an artistic Continental dancing act; the Francoli Troupe of acrobats arouse laughter with their novel sketch, The Billposter; Little Vi Davis is a juvenile vocalist of merit; the musical turn submitted by Orpheus is greatly acceptable; and Lawrence Barclay, comedian, pleases.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—Top of the bill this week is the able Carl Hertz, whose well-executed illusions cause general wonder; Jennie Johns comes in for a gratifying reception for her character songs; Pichel and Scale are smart comedy acrobats; the Brothers Ashley and company again create endless laughter with their Next, Please! Lulu Russell, attired in bewitching costumes, renders charming songs; Ariel and Astarte go through an accomplished pot-pourri act; and Archie Glen, comedian, and Ted Waite, comedian, are also in the bill.

REYNOLDS'S EXHIBITION.—Proprietor, Mr. Charles Reynolds.—This old-established institution continues to secure a good measure of public patronage. Recently there has been added a striking tableau of the Crippen trial, and this is drawing money.

LLANELLY.—HAGGAR'S (late ROYALTY) THEATRE. —Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Haggar, Sen.; Manager, Mr. James Haggar.—Some capital new pictures are being shown here this week. The artists appearing are, foremostly, the Countess Beckoffska, the clever lightning flower painter; Sergt. Bertram, who relates his thrilling experiences in the Boer War, illustrated by the Bioscope; the Great Powell, who amuses and mystifies as a conjuror of high merit; and the Hon. St. Vincent Ellesmere, R.A.M., whose high-class singing is greatly admired.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—VINT'S ELECTRIC HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. H. Bowmaker.—De Lilo and Metz (comedy juggler and lady bender) give a good display; Shepherd and Granville (comedy boxers), and the Minins (grotesque musicians) are successful in mirth-provoking turns.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. S. Evanson.—Kitty Kearns (comedienne), in a pleasing turn, and Arthur Harris (vocalist), with some good ballads, are appearing this week. The pictures are a fine selection.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. and Mrs. P. Brown's company is here with Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Mr. W. Coleman gives a powerful portrayal of Felix Beverley; as Jack Stirling Mr. R. Brown achieves a notable success; Mr. C. Grier acts with dignity as Colonel Myles; Mr. W. Annesley represents Arthur Bellairs admirably; Mr. J. Redfern, as Thomas, and Mr. A. G. Raymond, as Charles, are amusing; Miss Kathleen Magee, in the title-rôle is effective; Miss Leile Drummond does full justice to the part of the Hon. Mrs. Sands; and Miss Minnie Goepel is a pleasing Sweet Nancy.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—The second week's répertoire of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company at this theatre opened with an admirable performance of Faust on Monday.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—The latest visit of Mr. George Edwardes's company, in The Merry Widow, to Manchester took place here on Monday, employing a galaxy of old favourites in the cast. Miss Gertrude Lester as Sonia and Mr. Louis Bradfield as Prince Danilo are again at the head of the story, both most excellent, as usual; Mr. W. Talleur Andrews reappears in his vivacious and accomplished style as the Vicomte de Jolidon; and once more we have all the fun of Mr. Eric Thorne as Baron Popoff. Capital work is added by Miss Maggie May as Natalie and Mr. Fred Kaye as General Novakovitch; while, among many others who add to the brilliance of the performance, Mr. Robert Nainby makes a success of the rôle of Nisch. A packed house welcomed the piece on the opening night.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Mr. Oswald Cray and company appear here in a répertoire of effective dramas, a capital performance of When It Was Dark being given on Monday (by arrangement with Mr. T. Morton Powell). To a strong rendering of the Rev. Basil Gortre by Mr. Oswald Cray, Miss Lilian Herries added a striking impersonation of the equally important part of Gertrude Hunt; Mr. C. Wordley Hulse played well as Schwabe, the millionaire; a good idea of Sir Robert Llewellyn was contributed by Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle; Miss Rosalie Notrelle made good use of her chances as Helena Byars; and other notable parts were well rendered by Mr. Frank Venn, Mr. Percy Coningsby, Mr. Vivian Charles, and Miss Madeline Grande. Other plays of the week are The Mystery of Edwin Drood and A Tale of Two Cities.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—Mr. Wilson Benge presents here the picturesque domestic play The Sinner. Mr. Louis Lingard in the part of Monk Stretton does much toward the success; Mr. Arthur E. Pringle as Edgar Thornhill is also a potent factor; Mr. Charles Digby plays Lord Ewen in good style; Miss Nancy Roberts as Vera Ewen is attractive; and a marked success is added by Miss Emilie Mayhew as Nora Stretton; the whole proving highly acceptable to good houses. The Ticket-of-Leave Man is down for one production during the week.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Pearson.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds are here this week in their new play The King's Romance. The parts which are sustained by this accomplished couple—namely, Vera Navairre, the girl who married the King, and Prince Andreas, afterwards the King—are in every way suited and well done; Mr. John Dunbar as Vacquet very capably supplies the evil element; Mr. Arthur Estcourt makes an excellent Baron Cavonia; and Mr. William H. Dowhurst as Paul Navairre gives a convincing rendering. Mr. Ernest C. Edwards as Barto is also conspicuously good; and the play as a whole receives the high appreciation it deserves.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Jones.—An old and well-tried attraction here this week is The Sign of the Cross, played by Mr. Wm. Greet's chief company. Mr. H. Lawson Butt as Marcus Superbus acts finely; and a very appealing impersonation of Mercia is given by Miss Evelyn Hope. These are the head of a very capable cast, in which one is glad to find once more Mr. Frank Wood as the amusing Glabrio. Good houses are the rule.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—The big turns here are supplied by Fred Karno's company of comedians, in The Bailiff, and H. P. Selwyn's sporting episode, A 33 to 1 Chance, both of them elaborate and effective shows; the Smarte Bros., acrobatic eccentrics, adds a capital turn; Carl Muller is much applauded for his long-boot dancing; Walton and Lester, the world's worse wizards, give an amusing burlesque act; and other pleasing items are the Hyde and Cody Trio, in acrobatic eccentrics; Harriet Rose, vocalist; Eileen Northe, the singing fisher lass; and Scott and Whaley, coloured entertainers.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—A fine programme here is topped by no less a star than Herbert Lloyd, "the king of diamonds," in his variety burlesques; the Ten Dixie Girls, in The Silver Coon, give also a prominent act; Marie Jones, in Wanted, the Co-respondent, adds an excellent protean performance; Coverdale's jokes are much enjoyed; and other smart turns are Jim Pullin, comedian; Amy Anderson and Co., in The Banana Queen; the Three Comedy Chanters, in comic interludes; and Starley Bros., cycle experts.

E

Napoleon's Washerwoman; Lillian Barnes, contralto, charms with several well-rendered songs; Beatrice English, Australian soprano, has a beautiful voice, and is well received; Mayne Lyton's character impressions are well done; some excellent dancing is introduced by the Eight Frolics, presented by W. Paskin; whilst other good turns are those of George Shurley, comedian and dancer; Sandy Lawson, Scotch comedian; Gladys Warren, comedienne and dancer; and Queenie West, comedienne and dancer. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope pictures complete.

King's Theatre, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Francini Ollams and Page head the bill here in a variety of entertainment, including acrobatics, accompanied by musical performances on the xylophone and concertina; Cullen and Carthy, the popular patter comedians, are also a principal turn, and as successful as ever; the Three Warringtons give an admirable exhibition of equilibristic grace and strength; and other smart turns are added by L. W. Harris, light comedian; Wallace Whitney, comedian; Beattie Foster, comedienne; Dolly Ross, comedienne and dancer; and Will Sullivan, comedian.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Change; or, The Haunted Castle, is an exceedingly smart protean act, well done by Jas. A. and Herbert B. Jewel and company; H. O. Wills, "the water rat," makes his usual hit; W. E. Gillin scores in a unique ventriloquial act; Marcel and Boris are very clever equilibrists; the Beckett-ow Brothers, as the eccentric butler and the dude, are good; Vera Hind is a pleasing comedienne; and Ryde and Beeman, acrobatic eccentrics, deputise for Stanley and Oakfield, who figure on the programme, with success. The Western Pony Express Rider is an interesting film.

Merthyr Tydfil.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Sandow Perkins.—Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's company is here with The Outcast of the Family. Mr. Jack McGaig is an excellent Harry Thorne; and Miss Elsie Shelton's Ruth is a performance of much merit; Mr. Wybert Clive makes the most of his opportunities as Sir Harry Thorne; and the villainies of Richard Martin are fully exemplified by Mr. Bert Oates. Mr. Tom Roydan presents a powerful rendering of Stephen Barrie; Mr. Edward Cudd is well suited as Abram Wasper; Miss Maud Leslie-Cudd shows ability as Grace Redburn; Joe Bushell is humorously played by Mr. Tom Armitage; and Miss Freda Beckett scores as the milkmaid.

Temperance Hall.—Lessees, Merthyr Entertainments Company; Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Robins and Collier, in an amusing absurdity, Miss Bacon's Easter Egg; the Euzer Trio, jugglers, sword experts, and ju-jitsu business; Neville Laudler, in character studies from Dickens; Bros. Esdale, burlesque comedians; Percy and Horace; Bros. Belmont, whistlers and bird mimics, are entertaining here. The pictures are up to a high standard.

Methil. — Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, The Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinton and Travis Green's company supply the attraction with Her Fatal Marriage. Mr. Jerrold Heather as Zaco Malletto gives a grand portrayal of the part; Mr. Ernest R. Allen as Wilfred Grey acts with great feeling; Mr. George Davies is good as Colonel Crichton; Mr. P. Morton Wright as Paul does full justice to the part; Mr. Wm. Allan gives a good rendering of Detective Smart; as Myra Malletto Miss Hilda Shirley is seen to great advantage, very ably supported by Miss Maude Hastings as Lily (the White Angel); comedy relief, supplied by Mr. F. Shepherd (Peter Pimple) and Miss Else Dene (Dolly Dimple), is much appreciated. A crowded house gave the drama a good reception.

Mexborough.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Goodison.—Messrs. Geo. A. de Gray and Hy. Masterman's company is this week presenting The Forbidden Fruit. Mr. Geo. A. de Gray gives a good exposition of Gaston Beauvis; Mr. G. E. Hall effectively portrays Silvion Guidel; Mr. Wallace Campbell makes the most of the part of M. Beauvis; and a vigorous rendering of Andre Gessoux is given by Mr. Robert Hall; Miss Amy Dalby is a charming Heloise; and droll comedy is provided by Miss Ella Turner and Mr. Mackintosh Clyde.

Middlesbrough.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chabbo.—Under the direction of Mr. Arthur Hardy, a competent company is submitting The Speckled Band. Dr. Grimesby Rylott is admirably portrayed by Mr. C. W. Somerset; Miss Alice Leigh plays the timid Enid gracefully; as the unscrupulous housekeeper, Mrs. Staunton, Miss Adelaide Grace is a success; Rogers, the butler, is in the able hands of Mr. Herbert Vyvyan; Mr. E. H. Paterson does well as the village grocer; and Mr. Julian Royce is an ideal Sherlock Holmes.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Imeson.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's company presents Almost His Bride to appreciative audiences. Mr. Pritt sustains the part of Simon Simson, the butler detective, in praiseworthy fashion; the Earl of Ullswater is well played by Mr. J. O. Stevenson; Mr. Morris Maud makes a capital Philip Rowland; Mr. C. Quinton Fulford does well as Jasper Thorne; and the part of Myra Thorne is done full justice to by Miss Cissie Bellamy.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—Charles R. Whittle keeps the patrons of the Empire in good humour; the Yorkshire comedian, Jack Lane, at the piano, goes well; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon-Wilde, society entertainers; Julius Walther, whose tenor contributions are much enjoyed; Les Frazettis, musical performers; Durazcoe and Ayzelia, speciality artists; Harry Russell and company, in Binks' Blunder; and the Empire pictures complete a pleasing programme.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. S. T. Smurthwaite.—The Seven Wulfrunas, comedy acrobats; the Misses Rubio and Renee, vocalists; Morrisey, balancer and musical entertainer; and a capital picture show draw good houses.

Musselburgh.—Empire.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Ritchie; Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. W. J. Logan; Stage-Manager, Mr. James J. Dale.—Heading the bill here we have Scotch Kriss, burlesque comedian and ventriloquist. Other turns include Marie Rose (comedienne and dancer) and Miss Carlisle (American illustrated songstress); and Mr. Syd James gives able assistance at the piano.

Neath.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice.—The company of Mr. G. W. Bowes, in The Sign of the Cross, opened a week's engagement here on Monday. Miss Pearla Gardner as Mercia is impressive; Marcus has a vigorous exponent in Mr. Leonard Yorke; Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice as Nero gives a traditional reading of the character; and Mr. Donald McAdam is a sufficiently repulsive Glabrio. Berenice is cleverly played by Miss Joan Saville; and as Dacia Miss Marie Vere evidences the possession of ability. Miss Effie Dane as Stephanus is earnest.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Noice.—Hal and Lal, ventriloquists and musicians, provide excellent amusement; Bonnetti and Corrie, comedy juggler and lady speciality, receive an ovation; and pictures are also introduced.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. James Welch and company are here in When Knights Were Bold. Mr. Welch as Sir Guy de Vere excites the hilarity of the audience irresistibly, his amusing sallies and antics being provocative of great merriment; Miss Audrey Ford depicts in capital style the romantic impulses of Lady Rowena Eggington; an artistic embodiment of the Jew, Isaac Isaacson, is contributed by Mr. Arthur Glenville; Mr. George F. TuHy's Wibble is an imperturbable valet; and an effective impersonation of the pompous Dean is contributed by Mr. Guy Lane; as Barker, Mr. Gordon Tomkins is decidedly good; and Mr. George Desmond scores by his crisp performance as the Hon. Charles Widdicombe. Mr. Cecil Kinnaird gives an able representation of Sir Brian Ballymore, infusing considerable energy into the rôle; Mr. Leopold Profeit is an efficient Herald; the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave finds an accomplished exponent in Miss Mabel Yonge; and the Sarah Isaacson of Miss Daisy Cordell is admirable. Miss Annie Chippendale is a pleasing Alice Barker; and the Misses Peggie Kennedy, Macy O'Hea, and Hermione Black also give creditable performances.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—A Royal Divorce is paying another visit to this city. Miss Edith Cole gives her usual refined and pathetic impersonation of the sorely-tried Josephine; and an effective Napoleon is found in Mr. Frank Bradley. Marie Louise is played judiciously by Miss Grace Murielle; and Miss Dorothy Garth is a bright and vivacious Stephanie. The part of Talleyrand is enacted most successfully by Mr. George Traill; whilst the Marquis de Beaumont finds an apt exponent in Mr. Charles Hartopp; and Mr. George Hudson causes mirth by his clever impersonation of Grimaud.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. Edwin B. Clark.—The King and the Unknown Woman is here this week. Mr. Horace Booth gives a powerful impersonation of Prince Loris; and the Prince Menskt of Mr. Walter T. Clifford could not well be improved upon. Mr. W. R. Winning makes the most of his opportunities as General Platz; Zora is played in excellent style by Miss Violet Carlyle; and Miss Adeline Raby is a delightful Countess Melvitch.

Empire.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. Kilgour.—Whit Cunliffe, the popular comedian, is paying a return visit in his latest successes; Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery make a hit in their clever comedy sketch, An Amateur Anarchist; the Villions are trick cyclists and dancers of exceptional ability; Lizzie Glenroy is a smart comedienne and dancer; Winifred Ward, the immaculate boy, is paying a return visit; the Three Belle Belles, in song and dance; Harry Freeman, comedian; Park's Eton Boys, in song-scena; Signor Persichini, mandolinist, and the Pictures conclude.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, The Pavilion Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Frank D. Todd.—Vesta Victoria is paying a welcome visit to this popular hall, and her clever comedy creations are received with enthusiasm; Darracq appears in a sensational stage show, in which a motor-car figures largely; Jay Laurier has a budget of good songs; J. W. Rickaby, comedian, receives a hearty reception; the Vigoranto Trio are clever gymnasts; the Elite Harmony Boys, in vocal act, Hanvarr and Lee, in "The Golfer and the Maid," the Hesseys, in musical speciality act, Frank Land, comedian, and the Animated Pictures, complete.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—Another excellent programme of pictures is provided here. Variety turns are contributed by the Two Lillies, in unique mirror illusion; Harry Campbell, a clever Scotch comedian; and Lytton and De Silva, operatic duettists.

Brinkburn Electric Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. McHarry; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. T. Edminson.—Marie Scott's Eight Wee Fisher Folk provide a capital juvenile scena. The chief film this week is Ex-hamination Day.

New Brighton.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—Mr. Preedy and the Countess is decidedly an entertaining piece of work, and is admirably acted by Mr. Walter Maxwell's company. Mr. A. W. Bascomb as Mr. Preedy is wonderfully good; Miss Nellie Powys is charming as the Countess; Mr. J. Nesbitt and Mr. Shirley-Lea prove themselves actors of experience; and all the other characters are adequately handled.

Newport.—Empire.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Major Gallagher; Assisting-Manager, Mr. Percy Wilde; Musical-Director, Mr. C. Bye.—Miss Hetty King has unfortunately contracted a severe cold, and is unable to fulfil her engagements here, a disappointment which is keenly felt by the patrons. A satisfactory deputy is found in J. C. Piddock's merry little skeich, Cupid's Arms; frequent applause testified to the success of the turn, a hearty curtain being accorded. Campbell and Barber, with their very comical antics, amuse greatly, as also do some fine cycling feats. The Six Lancashire Lasses give a very bright and pleasing performance, sing ing some tuneful numbers and doing several neat dances. Arthur Astill, whistling ploughboy, displays wonderful talent. Another turn which is received with much favour is Fine Feathers, presented by Rouseley and Rene. Popularity is also won by the Five Vernons, xylophone experts; Gwennie Hasto; and Little Keeno. The bioscope, with a capital film entitled Why Nick Winter Went to the Races, concludes a thoroughly enjoyable programme.

Northampton. — Temperance Hall. — Andrews' Pictures, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—A varied selection of pictures is displayed, and in addition Mr. F. Nettleton contributes entertaining songs.

North Shields. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Stuart Lomath's company, with Whom God Hath Joined, has had a cordial reception here. As Captain Jack Merritt Mr. Lomath furnishes a clever character sketch; Mr. George Edwin Clive gives a highly finished rendition of Major Stevens; Mr. Oswald Douglas displays much ability as Digby Trant; Mr. Frank Orchard is seen to advantage as Richard Manley; Mr. Victor H. Crawford makes a hit as Watty Copper; as Marian Miss Mary Ainslie is to be commended for an excellent impersonation; Miss Amber Wyville successfully enacts Beatrice Trant; and Miss Daisy Stone makes the most of her opportunities as Kitty Crumpett.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—Harry Levaine, a clever comedian, holds premier position here, and has made a great hit; Jules Kiaro, one-hand equilibrist and jumper, is smart; McCann's Irish terriers perform some marvellous feats; Norman Selby, double-voiced vocalist, is much appreciated; Mamie Morris is a pleasing comedienne; George Moncrieff, tenor vocalist, with illustrated songs, is a great favourite; Dan Kennedy is a talented comedian; and the pictures conclude.

Norwich.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. F. Cyril Leighton's company is here with the nautical drama, Captain Jack. Mr. Ernest Owttrim in the title-rôle is convincing; Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh is a good Anthony Cleveredge; Mr. Herbert Bentone an excellent Andrew Lee; Mr. R. S. R. Pettiard an amusing Harry Trent; and Miss Nina Blake-Adams charmingly acted the part of Mary.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Harry Barford's company, with Frank Lindo, in a sketch, entitled Cottage or Palace? is much appreciated; Salt Bush Bill, Australian stock-whip expert, gives a clever exhibition; Richard Wally shows some wonderful juggling; Wana Ma's clever dogs are an interesting item; A. McBride and J. Logie, in their eccentric novelty, "The Canadian Lambermen," are clever acrobats; Horace Horner astonishes with speciality dances; Fred Evans is interesting in his sketch, Dreams; and Doris Trevelyan is a pleasing vocalist.

Nottingham.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Our Miss Gibbs is receiving a warm welcome this week. Miss Carrie Moore is a delightful Mary Gibbs; Miss Olive Moore makes a dainty Lady Elizabeth, and Mme. Jeanne is capitally played by Miss Nancy Hervyn; as Timothy Gibbs Mr. George Gregory keeps the whole house in a continuous roar of laughter; Mr. Frank Hector is another source of humour as the Hon. Hughie; Mr. Leslie Gaze is an entertaining Slithers; Mr. Myles Clifton a clever Earl of St. Ives, and Mr. H. V. Cropton sings pleasantly and plays the lover in artistic fashion. Valuable help is also given by Misses Grace Wixon and Kitty Cavendish, and Messrs. George Gordon, Ellis Holland, and Mons. Ernest Mahar.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry J. Crane.—Florodora is being well played here by Mr. Charles Constant's company. Miss Daisy Lake makes a piquant and dainty Dolores; Miss Florence Hersee plays Angela with full appreciation of the part; Miss Kate Leicester sings the songs of Lady Holyrood with the necessary point; Mr. Johnnie Schofield is genuinely funny as Tweedlepunch; Mr. Martin Pitts vocalises with fervour as Frank Abercoed; and Mr. Johnnie Junior works hard as Captain Donegal.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Happy Fanny Fields keeps her audiences here in a constant state of hilarity; the songs of Harry Ford are accorded a large measure of applause; James Stewart's pranks at the piano are provocative of enjoyment; the Daunton-Shaw troupe of cyclists supply a clever turn; the vivacity of Lily Burnand is thoroughly appreciated; Hester's Mystery is well played by Horace Pollock and company; smart dancing by the Farabonis, comic songs by Will Musgrove, and the Gothams complete an excellent programme.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. W. Austin.—The principal attraction here this week is T. Elder Hearn, whose versatility enables him to present a turn of a most interesting character; Arthur Reece, a favourite, always sure of a warm welcome, sings new songs in his usual breezy manner, and Blanche and Powell give a vocal and instrumental interlude which is of a highly entertaining character; the Martelloni family are lady tumblers of merit, and Stewart and Lorraine play popular airs on curious instruments cleverly; the Three Comerfords are expert acrobats, and the singing and dancing of Aggie Nolan and the Sisters Cora are exceptionally good.

Nuneaton.—Prince of Wales's.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brown.—Mr. Arthur Hart and Leslie Moreton's company is providing a delightful attraction in The Arcadians. Mr. Chas. A. Stevenson as James Smith, afterwards Simplicitas, is a fine comedian; Mr. Alfred Beers as the melancholy Peter Doody plays with a rare fund of humour; Mr. Arthur S. Macdonald ably portrays Jack Meadows; Mr. Horace Nye makes an impressive Time; Miss Gertrude Aylward does exceedingly well as Mrs. Smith; Miss Molly McIntyre makes a charming Eileen Cavanagh; Miss Norah Cameron as Chrysea and Miss Sybil Tancredi as Sombra fill their respective parts with much grace and charm.

Empire.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; General-Manager, Mr. J. F. Elston.—The bill this week includes Davis and Gledhill Trio, roller-skate champions; Eva Carter, lady baritone; Sam Redfern, black-faced comedian; Clown Paulo and his performing pony; the Lynches in illustrated songs; and Gosling and Merrall's Australian Bush Boys.

Oldham.—Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. B. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—This week has been set apart for the reproduction of Messrs. Knight and Heywood's light opera, The Isle of Indolence, and it has been greatly improved. Miss Decima Troughton as Amorelle sang and acted in a charming manner; Miss Myra Dixon appears as Knowledge, and uses her rich contralto voice with telling effect; Mme. Clare Boardman again demonstrated her artistic ability as a vocalist in the character of Art; and Misses C. Carr, M. Dill, M. James, M. Parker, and Mrs. Scholes sang well in their respective parts. Mr. John Collett as Pensadorus sang capitally, as did Mr. Fowler Burton as Alegron. Mr. Geo. H. Ditchburn as Tonto sang and acted cleverly; Mr. Ben Singleton as Potencios was forcible; and Mr. O. Kenworthy makes an excellent Franqueso. Miss Gladys Paton danced the solo dances, ably assisted by Misses Renee Rogers, Mabel Mason, and Mercia Manners. The production was well placed in the hands of Mr. Ryder Boys, and Mr. R. Knight, F.R.C.O., L.I.S.M., directed the opera, with an augmented orchestra. The scenery was provided by Mr. R. Flanagan, of the Queen's Theatre, Manchester.

Colosseum Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Her Road to Ruin is staged here by Mr. Fred Melville's company. Miss Doris Gilham acted cleverly as Jess Willoughby; Miss Gertrude Tate as May Willoughby is excellent; and Miss M. McClelland does some smart work as Mary Dawson. Mr. Charles Dickens gives a fine portrayal of Frank Temple; and Mr. H. Dobell Lyle as Philip Hardy is well fitted. Mr. Dane Clark makes a pompous Bishop; and Mr. Albert Grenville does well as Tom Wells. Miss Grace Emery as Jenny Crackling and Mr. Chas. H. Brooks as Billy Boots cause laughter; and Mr. R. Leigh Ellis is good as Charles Cholmondely. Mr. Will Wood is a capital Mr. Derwent; and Mr. Henry Powell as Dicky Gerald is also excellently cast.

Empire Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme. — Mr. Horace Stanley and his company present The Female Detective this week. Miss Florence Trevoir as Myra Mayne acts cleverly; Miss Violet Agnew is a sympathetic Nellie Dancers; Miss Ida Fane is amusing as Anastasia Honeybun; Mr. Ernest J. Fane is a manly Tom Heathcote; Basil Vane being played in capital style by Mr. Chas. Burdon. John Good is well enacted by Mr. Cliffe Astley; Miss Kate Kilpack as Emma Toogood and Mr. Horace Stanley as Tubby Philpotts provide excellent comedy; and Mr. Edwin Clarke does admirably as Reggie Lamb. Mr. Fred Seymour as the Mad Doctor contributes an impressive performance.

Royal Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Leach.—Lieut. Rose and the Chinese Pirates is a striking picture; The Deputy's Duty is a good picture of cowboy life; and The Warwick Weekly Journal is interesting. Oldham v. Rochdale Hornets, in the Lancashire Cup Tie, is much enjoyed; Willes as a Witness, Electric Vitalizer, and Resourceful Robert are amusing, among others. Mr. Leach sings well.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Burt.—Lost in the Soudan is a well-acted military drama; Willie is a capital tale of the West; Pathé's Journal shows some fine scenery; and the football match, Oldham v. Rochdale, is a popular picture. Love Me, Love My Dog, The Statue, and Tontoline and Lea Find Places are laughable. Mr. Barker is the vocalist.

Osborne Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Hughes.—This week Uncle Tom's Cabin is being shown, with special solos and melodies, and good business is the result. Other humorous and sentimental pictures are also screened.

Brown's Assembly.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Brown.—A new series of pictures is provided here, three fine dramatic films being The Wooing O't, An Unselfish Love, and Fruit and Flowers. Pathé's travel pictures are good, and The Herring Harvest is interesting. The New Baby and Jones Absent-minded are among the comedy films. Selections are also given on the Auxeto Grand.

Oxford.—New Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas. — Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here this week with The Naked Truth. Mr. Stanley Logan scores a marked success as Bunny, and is well supported by Mr. T. Whitling as James Darrell; Mr. B. Beltram as Mr. Hayter; Mr. H. Sinclair as Teddy Lestrange; Mr. L. Arthur as Dr. Masters; and Mr. J. Heddon as Prosser. Miss Kathleen Maude makes an attractive and fascinating Nora Creighton; Miss Violet Ley is admirably suited as Mrs. Hayter; while the parts of Mrs. Darrell, Madam Favre, Mrs. Duckett, and Hammond find capable exponents in the Misses Ormond Wynne, Dora Fellowes, Violet Temple, and Lelia Russell.

Hippodrome.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.—Miss Grace Warner and company are here with The Little Widow and The Wages of Sin. In the first named Miss Grace Warner plays the title-rôle, Mrs. Constance Rattlebrain, with ability and charm; she has able supporters in Mr. George Gordon as Dr. Wilkins Potter, and Mr. Roy Rhind as Dr. Arthur Potter; Mr. Louis Manton gives an effective rendering of Auguste Bonsier; Miss L. Price is quite the type of "new woman" as Mrs. Wilkins Potter; Miss L. Palmer is successful as Emily Randell; and Miss M. Spencer is amusing as Sophonisba.

Paisley.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—There is here this week Mr. Harry Foxwell's company in A Broken Heart. Mr. John S. Millward plays manfully the part of John Barnard; as Stephen Rayiton Mr. Denis Hogan gives a capital impersonation; Mr. Vernon Travers contributes an excellent study of Gash Gills; Mr. Newton Pearce is a humorous Tony Tibbets; and Mr. A. J. Blensdale as the Rev. Mr. Staunton and Mr. George Addison as Shrimp are alike good. A well-acted study of Mary Barnard is supplied by Miss Dorothy Haigh; Miss Mamie Thorpe plays in a sweet manner the part of Grace Fanshaw; and Miss Nancy Mitchell scores in the comedy part of Sally Traynor.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack R. Bostock.—Paul Barnes, the droll American, who heads the bill, is very entertaining; the Warsaw Brothers, musical grotesques, are genuinely funny in their comedy speciality; a delightful turn is executed by Barnard's Mannikins; Marie Pera and company contribute a pleasing comedy duologue in Two Doors and a Passage; the Carney Bros., vocal comedians, are capitally received; the smart conjuring exhibition given by Li-Chang-Hi is bewildering; the Victor Bros. as herculean equilibrists contribute a wonderful performance; the Claymore Trio are applauded for their club juggling; and the Bioscope concludes.

Pentre. — Tivoli.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Will Stone; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Mr. John Geraut's company is here with At Duty's Call. Mr. Gerant undertakes the rôle of Harold Alison with marked success; praiseworthy also is Mr. J. Hamilton Page as General Gordon; Mr. Derek Powell as Captain George gives an admirable performance; Mr. Robert Ryder as Hassan, the Egyptian slave, shows skill; Miss Lena Penrose contributes a clever impersonation in Dora Drummond; Miss Hetty Poplin as Nurse Slater is sympathetic; Miss Beryl Fernandez gives a realistic impression of Salema, the slave. Mr. Harry Ives combines the work of stage management with the interpretation of Terry O'Halloran.

Workmen's Hall.—Manager, Mr. H. Salway.—The well-varied programme here attracts crowded houses. The films include The Midnight Cupid, Jake's Daughter, and Bonnie Scotland. The Bohemians, in a clever instrumental and comedy act, provoke applause; eccentric Highland dancing and pleasing harmony are introduced by Scotch and Polly.

Perth.—Perth Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here in Smith. Miss Cicely Stuckey is a sweetly demure Smith, Miss Ethel Hodgkins a sufficiently heartless Mrs. Dallas-Baker, Miss Pauline Straus a charming Emily Chapman, and Miss Ethel Wellesley a vivacious Mrs. Otto Rosenberg. Mr. Robert Minster makes a manly Tom Freeman, Algy Peppercorn is cleverly played by Mr. H. Douglas Greet, Mr. F. G. Thurstans is very amusing as Mr. Dallas-Baker, and Fletcher is nicely sketched by Mr. George Gamble.

Peterborough. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company is drawing good audiences. Il Trovatore was given on Monday, Faust on Tuesday, and Maritana on Wednesday.

Hippodrome. — Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—La Milo, in her répertoire of classical studies, tops the bill. Other good turns are supplied by Dan Daly, comedian; Edith Brooker, in song and dance; the M M's, in "The Maid and the Mandarin"; Ruby Corbett, mimic and comedienne; the Boriskis, comedians; and Albert Letine, female impersonator.

Plymouth. — Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. H. B. Irving in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde is responsible for some wonderful work at Plymouth this week, his conception and delineation of the learned but nerve-distraught physician Dr. Jekyll and the nauseating and repulsive Mr. Hyde being fascinating in the extreme. Tumultuous applause awaited the fall of each curtain. The company supporting Mr. Irving is strong in all departments. Miss Dorothea Baird provides a touching and sympathetic rendering of Dr. Jekyll's blind wife; Miss Grace Croft gives a really clever portrayal of the rôle of the intriguing yet vacillating Lady Carew; Mr. Eille Norwood furnishes a fine, breezy representation of Dr. Lanyon; and Mr. Henry Vibart has a characteristically legal air and style as Mr. Utterson. The play is preceded by A Maid of Honour, the chief characters being undertaken by Mr. Tyars (Oliver Cromwell), Miss Grace Croft (Mary Cave), and Mr. Stanley Howett (Major Humphry Bosville).

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. G. Woodward.—An abridged version of Zola's absorbing work Nana furnishes a fine attraction. Miss Rosie Neville in the title-rôle makes full use of her opportunities; Miss Lole Esmond gives a clever rendering of the part of Rose Mignon, the careless and selfish actress; and Miss Nita Imeson also renders material assistance. Mr. Franklyn Bellamy well sustains the rôle of Philippe; Mr. John Mackinley is a success as Fontaine; and Mr. Edward Neville infuses much merriment into the part of Hector.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. J. Field. — Mr. Raymond Phillips's airship provides a novel and highly interesting star attraction for large audiences at the Palace. Maurin's marvellous fountains supply another strong turn; Harry Leybourne is responsible for a really clever drawing-room entertainment; Will and Alice Vokes have a hearty reception on a return visit; the Flora-Dora Girls are attractive vocalists and dancers; Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers, score with a first-rate turn; and Gladys Re-Vell (comedienne) and George Prince (comedian) complete a good programme.

Pontefract.—Alexandra Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. George Tankard. — Mr. H. C. Lovell and company stay another week in the funny sketch Mademoiselle Pom-Pom; Mr. G. W. Blythe's vocal scena, "The Toilers," is a most attractive feature; the Cyclinis Trio are expert comedy cyclists; Clarance Turner is a favourite as a Lancashire comedian; the Sisters Ely are refined duettists; Jean Kram, an eccentric juggler, performs some difficult feats; Gus Lindon gains favour as a light comedian and dancer; Layne and Valroy appear in a musical comedy, "Married Life," and the Alexscope shows excellent pictures.

Pontypridd.—Royal Clarence.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Chas. Trenchard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Willie Trenchard.—This week Hush Money is being played by the Melodrama Syndicate, Ltd. As Sexton Blake Mr. S. Leigh Courtney is a hit, and Mr. H. Gomer May is a hearty John Shard. Mr. Chas. Kean portrays Lord Mervyn well; Mr. Robert Burton is good as Earl Montressor; Tinker is enacted by Mr. Harry Hartley; and Mr. John Lowther as Nathan Finch and Mr. Fred Hopkins as Jim Tooley are both good.

Perth.—Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Manager, Mr. J. W. Bynorth. — The Midnight Mail is presented by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company. Mr. Geo. Howards as Harry Steyne is most capable; Mr. H. W. Hatchman as Leonard Royle is forcible; Mr. F. G. Ireson is adequate as Billy Brewer; Mary Steyne is capably acted by Miss Trissie Humphreys; and Miss Mildred Carr as Nancy Brewer is distinctly good.

Portsmouth.—Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. A. Horner.—In The Fires of Fate, which is being presented here, Colonel Egerton is impersonated in a commanding manner by Mr. Lewis Fielder, who is well aided by Miss Aimée de Burgh (a charming Sadie Adams). Mr. Gilbert Yorke argues effectively as the Rev. Samuel Roden; Mr. Sidney Carlyle takes the part of Abdulla, a dragoman, with much earnestness; and Mrs. Belmont finds a capital counterpart in Miss Dorothy Maude. Mr. George F. Ide cleverly portrays Dr. James Roden, and Mr. Sam Wilkinson affords genuine amusement as Mr. Cecil Brown, the funny young man of the tourist party.

Prince's.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—Miss Florence Baines presents with marked success the comical musical farce, Miss Lancashire, Ltd. The part of Mary Ellen Thompson, the laughing Lancashire lass, is taken in a capable manner by Miss Francis Farina; Mr. Arthur Gilroy impersonates Moses Goldberg (an American Jew) with considerable ability; as Harry Higgins, Mr. Bert Gordon makes a hit in original song and dance, being well aided by Mme. Constance Bellamy as Bertha Higgins; Mr. Payne Fletcher as John Henry Thompson and Miss Grace Carew as Mrs. Thompson are typical country folk.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. H. Warren-Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Alfredo Marschadl, the Continental juggler and equilibrist, performs some extraordinary feats of strength; Roma and Romani prove themselves talented musicians; Leslie, Lynn, and Willie infuse plenty of fun into their singing act; the Brothers Hannaway score as "argumentative" comedians; Sam Thomson amuses as a Scotch character comedian; Harry Nelson possesses a remarkable stock of humorous patter; and other turns that please include Dainty Doretta (acrobatic dancer), and the Sisters Herbert (juvenile ducttists and dancers).

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—George Graves and company captivate with a flow of irresistible humour in the sketch, Koffo, of Bond-street; Mephisto the Mysterious presents wonderful illusions; and a good knockabout turn is provided by the Alex. Piccad company in The Burglars of New York; the Sylvester Trio are a success in their vocal and dancing act; Harry Conlin creates much mirth with his song, "Rinking"; and Maud Wilton, comedienne; Pick, Tholl, and Taylor, in song and dance; and Evelyn Taylor, chorus comedienne, deserve praise.

King's.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—Miss Serene Nord's display of diving is given here with consummate skill and grace; John Warren, an original Lunionist, presents a clever and mysterious sketch, entitled The Magic Carpet; W. T. Thompson and company cause merriment in Watch the Chalk; some remarkable feats of strength are performed by the Ansonia Trio; and a humorous acrobatic turn is provided by the Four Paulastos. Susie and Protti are graceful dancers; Hazel Glade is a bright comedienne; and Trevor and Ware score in laughable duologue. A. E. Clifford, baritone, and Ada Parker, soubrette, are deservedly applauded.

Preston.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Alban Newton.—Miss Florence Tyrrell's company, in The Hour of Temptation, is awakening keen interest throughout. Miss Florence Tyrrell gives an excellent portrayal of Olive Webb, and Mr. Cecil Newton (the author) gives a clever portrayal of Ernest Allan.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Clarkson.—Mr. Harry

Brandon and Coolsen's company in Naughty Ninette is here this week. Miss Celestine Brandon as Ninette D'Arville scores a distinct success, and Mr. Frank Cleo as Wraggs is decidedly good, whilst Mr. Edouin Lewis as Professor Moggs keeps the house in roars. The remaining characters are well sustained, Mr. Eric Vane and Mr. Herbert Waller being especially noticeable. The music is bright and catchy, and the lady members of the company are charmingly gowned and vocalise delightfully in their musical numbers. Specialities are introduced by the Godfrey Girls (Continental acrobatic dancers), the Sisters Valero (duettists and dancers), and the Carlsens.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—Mr. Fred Melville's own company is here with his sensational drama Married to the Wrong Woman. The play is full of stirring incidents and intense dramatic surprises, and is being enthusiastically received by the patrons of the popular parts of the house. Miss Mary Pemberton's acting as the dumb heroine Ruth is exceedingly good; Miss Clara Milvain is a good representative of Rose O'Connor; Mr. Henry Lonsdale finds great favour with the audience by his excellent impersonation of Jack Gladwin; Mr. George Arthur plays the villain's part commendably; Mr. Leonard Thackeray is effective as Jasper Skinner; Mr. Walter Pemberton as Sergeant Manners and Mr. Basil Lynn as Archie Bird are both excellent, and the comic element is well furnished by Mr. Hyland T. O'Shea as Timothy Clinker and Miss May Day as Dolly Fritter.

THE PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Curline Baldry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Geo. Kedge.—Oswald Williams, assisted by Winifred La Barto and company, present a clever magical entertainment, in which some surprising feats are accomplished; Muriel Harding, the Anglo-French impressionist, gives an artistic performance; John Macaulay is a good character actor and vocalist; Holt's Follies, a company of juvenile performers, including Princess Mite, give a smart turn; Marjorie Lawrence is an attractive comedienne; Gladys Earle gives a clever exhibition of step-dancing; Victoria Dagmar and a comic assistant give an artistic acrobatic display; John E. Conan is an amusing comedian, and the Bioscope concludes.

ROCHDALE.—ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Mr. George Dance's company in Miss Hook of Holland is the attraction here. Mr. Alfred Welleley is irresistible as Mr. Hook; Mr. A. Wood Mansey does well at Capt. Paap; Bandmaster Van Vuyt is ably impersonated by Mr. Mansey Stringer; Mr. Chas. Ross makes a satisfactory Ludwig Schnapps; Mr. Harry Brayne provides an amusing portrayal of Simon Slinks; Gretchen is daintily played by Miss Clara Hardy; Miss Maud Denny admirably sustains the part of Mina; and Miss Hook finds a delightful exponent in Miss Nan Stuart, her vocal efforts being thoroughly appreciated.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Jackson Family; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jas. Jackson.—Harry Weldon is here this week, and keeps his audiences rolling with mirth; Haley's Juveniles provide a pretty and musical scena; the Jackson Family delight everyone with their musical abilities; Zellini is a comedy juggler of exceptional merit; Miss Lillie Langtry, "the lively comedienne," is very popular; Guest and Newlyn are funny in a Hebraic crosstalk act; and the Unites are good comedy acrobats.

EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. J. Pringle.—A good programme is presented, and the vaudeville turns are the Camworths, in a musical act; Conway Reece, baritone vocalist; and Stuart and Evans, comedians.

ROTHERHAM.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Rotherham Hippodrome, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. E. Smith; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur R. Hollands.—Captain Fred Woodward's wonderfully trained sea lions and seals make a return visit to Rotherham in a number of remarkable tricks; the Croisit Trio of French acrobats have a novel sporting scena; Francis and Hefred are a couple of clever jugglers and jesters; Foiay and Francis are quaint patter comedians; the Four Broadway Boys present an accomplished dancing act; Tiny and Mite are two clever juveniles; and Bert Boyne, starlight comedian, and Madge Osmond, the ideal dandy, complete a good all-round entertainment.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, North of England Theatre Corporation, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Picture entertainments, after a fortnight's successful run of drama, are again introduced at this theatre.

RUNCORN.—PUBLIC HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—For this week we are favoured with excellent turns. The St. Johns are aptly described as in the forefront of musical and comedy entertainers; Harry Keeble has a ventriloquial display of a taking nature; Miss Gladys Wells is a pleasing vocalist; and the Three Orros are fine.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—A Life's Revenge is produced by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown and their company, who met with a good reception on Monday from a full house. Mr. Percy Brown represented villainy well as Prince Boris Strogoroff, whose accomplice, Marcia Vittoria, was ably sustained by Miss Amy Ellam; the hero, Paul Starovitch, and the heroine, Princess Vanda, were respectively well played by Mr. Edward E. Louis and Miss Millie Ford; much fun was contributed by Mr. Richard Walsh (Nicholas), Mr. Chas. E. Warne (Colonel Tumbleoff), Mr. Arthur Dudley (Clarence Chesterfield), Miss Nellie Hook (Daphne Dashaway), and Miss Holly Hazlewood (Acculina). The piece was well staged.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. R. H. Lee.—The programme is headed by the musical sketch Paradise Alley, Wash. W. Evans, Vera Crackles, Tom B. Morris, and a troupe of dancing girls providing much amusement; "A Lesson in Physical Culture" is a very clever strong man and acrobatic act by Lieven and Pantzer; Goodfellow and Gregson cause many laughs. The other acceptable turns include Albert Le Fee, comedian; Kahn and Kahn, conjuring and second sight; Harvey's American Boys and Girls, singers and dancers; R. Dunning, ventriloquist; and Tim Carlisle, comedian.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Boyle.—Arthur Roberts is very amusing as Fitzawful Smith in The Importance of Being Another Man's Wife, and received able assistance from Miss Ruby Celeste; McKinnon's Scottish Meisters give a good vocal performance; the Zaid Trio have a very smart acrobatic and contortionist display. The bill also includes the Merrions in their vocal and comedy act; James Davies, dame comedian; S. and G. Auer in novelty business; and Marie Doreen, dainty comedienne and dancer.

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Leon Vint; Resident-Manager, Mr. Aubrey Allen.—Mr. John Gerant and company gave three performances here of At Duty's Call to appreciative audiences. Mr. Gerant gave a powerful representation of Harold Alison, and was well supported by Mr. Derek Powell as Capt. George Alison; Mr. J. Hamilton Paice was very good as General Gordon, his make-up being excellent; Mr. Harry Ives was a comical Terry O'Halloran; Mr. David Phillips undertook the part of Jack Spencer well, and his boxing with Mr. Powell was well done; Mr. F. Scott Kennedy as Abdallah was very good; Miss Lena Penrose as Dora Drummond spoke and acted in a clear and earnest way; as Mary the maid Miss Nora Marion was a general favourite; Miss Beryl Fernandez as Salema was excellent in acting, speaking, and make-up.

SCARBOROUGH.—THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. W. Kitchingman; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Beach.—An excellent programme is provided here, in which the Harlequinaders provide two particularly smart turns. Lynn and Leslie appear in an amusing vaudeville act, The Insurance Agent; Le Hurst is a clever ventriloquist; and George Hirste a good Scotch comedian. Some clever balancing feats are performed by the Prince Milner Trio, and the Devonshaws are responsible for a pleasing nautical duologue, "Squalls."

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—The Coal King is the attraction here. Mr. A. W. Norman excellently represents the title-rôle, Mr. C. H. Woodhouse that of Tom Roberts, Mr. S. C. Kearns Walter Hartford, Mr. F. Coffrey Jim Williams, Mr. F. Dalton Dick Shirley, Miss Emily Levettiez Mad Ann, Miss Laura O'Neill Araminta Green, and Miss Winifred Love Grace Shirley.

SEACOMBE.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Messrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company is here this week with Hop o' My Thumb. Little Georgie Harris in the title-rôle proves himself a veritable star pocket comedian, and the fine appearance of Daisy Wood fits her well for Prince U-no. Rupert is well played by Evelyn Major; Vivian Wakeman scores heavily by his humorous performance of Georgina Thumb, and also by his clever mimicry and musical imitations; Jerry is well played by Stanley Harrison; Tommy Cowley and Alf. E. Rick are a clever comic pair as Silversheen and Goldstein; much amusement is caused by Harold Pyott as Tommy, stated to be the smallest man in the world, twenty-three years old, 23in. high, and 24lbs. weight. Marie Lumberg plays and sings nicely as Fairy Moonshine; Giant Blowhard is smartly depicted by J. Ru Allan; Kitty Rafferty presents a charming Princess Meadowsweet; and the villagers, schoolchildren, &c., are a clever little company of performers.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—There is a double bill here this week, Miss Winifred Maude's company, under the direction of Mr. Victor Du Cane, presenting The Sins of a City on the first three nights, and The Stowaway for the remainder of the visit. In the first-named play Mr. William Vane made an admirable Sandy Macdonald; Mr. Maurice Jones as Joe and Jasper Woodleigh proved his versatility; a powerful reading of Ralph Blackwater was contributed by Mr. Arthur L. Read; as Isaac Levi Mr. Victor Du Cane left nothing to be desired; Donald McIvor found a capable exponent in Mr. Harold Heath; Miss Winifred Maude was seen to much advantage as the exponent of Seaweed; Midgi was amusingly sketched by Miss Annie Megson; Miss Gipsy Alexander as Lesbia was very good; and the remaining parts were adequately filled.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—On Monday Sheffield playgoers had the pleasure of seeing the amusing comedy Brewster's Millions played for the first time on the local stage by Mr. Percy Hutchison's excellent company. Mr. Percy Hutchison has developed into a finished light comedian since he last appeared in Sheffield in Pink Dominos, and his acting as Brewster was in the true vein; Miss Lilias Earle was a handsome and vivacious representative of Mrs. de Mille, and those who specially distinguished themselves in a splendid all-round cast were Mr. Robert Forsyth as Mr. Grant, Mr. A. Andrews as Col. Drew, Mr. Gordon Ash as Charles Harrison, Mr. Henry Hampton as Archie Golding, Mr. Geo. Salver as Capt. Perry, Mr. A. Mathew as McLeod, Mr. A. P. Kaye as M. Barque, Mr. Arthur Bell as Frank Bragden, Miss Marion Ripley as Janice Armstrong, and Miss Dorothy Whittaker as Peggy. The curtain-raiser was Chalk and Cheese.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. W. C. Ramsay.—A change of fare is provided this week by Miss Florence Baines, who is appearing in the successful musical farce Miss Lancashire, Limited. Miss Baines is very successful as Mary Ellen, and she is well supported by Miss Mary Collier, Miss Maud Locker, Mr. David Donaldson, Mr. Eric Vivian, Mr. H. Shine, Mr. Henry Lloyd, Mr. J. Burley, Mr. Burt Burton, Miss Molly Shine, and that old established local favourite, Mr. Payne Fletcher.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The programme is contributed to this week by the following well-known artists:—Mr. Eugene Stratton, in his new coon impersonation; "The Coloured Millionaire"; Messrs. Haig and Novel, comic acrobats; Ferry Corwey, musical clown; Corbin and his well-trained dogs; Mr. J. C. Scatter, comedian and dancer; Miss Stella Stahl, a chic comedienne; Mr. Louis Alvarez, a fine tenor; the Rawsons, society entertainers; the American Bioscope, with Vitagraph films; and Mr. Jack Lorimer, the popular Scotch vocalist and dancer.

THE HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—The pièce de résistance here is Happy Holland, well staged and smartly acted by Mr. Jake Friedman's musical comedy company. Elton and Elma do a clever and funny bar act; Eadie and Ramsden, as the Dude and the Lady, are loudly applauded, and Mr. Michael Madden, Signor Torti, Mr. Alfred Mendis, Miss Mabel Mignor, Mr. Harry Taft, and the talented Spissel Bros. and Mack are all clever in their special lines. The Grand, the Picture Palace, the Surrey, the Central Hall, the Hillsboro' Palace, and the Imperial are all doing well with animated pictures, and Bostock's "Jungle" and Fun City is crowded at every performance.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. J. Baugh.—Mr. J. W. Cordiner's capable company is this week presenting twice nightly the musical novelty Dare-Devil Dorothy. Miss Dorothy Desmonde gives a charming exposition of the title-rôle, her singing being sweet and pleasing; Mr. Walter Ashley gives an excellent delineation of the hero, Captain George Fielding; the unscrupulous Captain Dudley is ably portrayed by Mr. James Morath; Mr. Geoffrey Berwick is responsible for much humour as Featherston Haugh; Mr. Wm. H. Troutbeck is a realistic footman; Mr. Edward Aldworth is very effective as Hawkins; Mr. James Salter is a smart and clever comedian as Silas Crump; Miss Florence Corri is a charming comedienne, and is also the cause of amusement; Miss Margaret S. Forbes performs the part of Ruth Montrose with skill; Miss Madge Delta is deserving of praise as Maud; and the Misses Iris and Lillie Elvido provide a distinctly attractive item in their acrobatic dancing turn.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is on a welcome return visit with The Dollar Princess. Mr. Fred Leslie scores as the multimillionaire; Mr. Alec Worcester (Freddy Fairfax) repeats his previous success; Miss Muriel Allen does well as Olga; Mr. Horace Mills keeps the house rocking with laughter as Bulger; Miss Daisy Ellistone sings and dances to perfection; and Miss Kathleen Courtney sings delightfully as Conder's sister.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—Cinquevalli, the incomparable juggler, with his clever assistant provides the star turn here; Harry Champion creates endless mirth; the Gerlandos excel in a sensational equilibristic performance; the Domas Trio do some smart things on the trapeze; Vera Saunders scores as a Dutch vocalist and dancer; and Hampton and Bauman (dark town entertainers), Little Dollie Bell, and the Sisters Hall also entertain.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—The Fuji Japanese Troupe of jugglers and equilibrists are exceedingly clever; the Tom Davies Trio perform a thrilling cycle act; Compensation is the title of a sketch cleverly acted by Mr. W. H. Perrette and company; the Pigaros are a smart quartette; and Elroy (the armless wonder), Mabel Thorne, Gwen Francis, and Mollie Augarde successfully contribute.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julian Graham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Archibald Pareezer.—Two plays this week were produced here by Mr. Wilson Howard, when his talented company, on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings gave creditable portrayals of Under the Iron Heel. Mr. Wilson Howard and Miss Carlotta Anson both gained hearty appreciation for their powerful representations of Réne de Maupassant and Germaine Mirbeau respectively; Mr. Henry Parr was an able exponent of Otto Marx; Miss Mabie Angus as André was eminently suited; Miss Florence M. Daly made a pleasing rôle of Maman Gouffé; and Messrs. G. Mortimer Hancock, R. Garland, Gerrald Smythe, and Austin H. Longford gave successful characterisations. Under the Czar commenced a three nights' engagement on Thursday, and in this Mr. Wilson Howard and Miss Carlotta Anson again sustain the principal characters.

THE HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Lewis de Burgh.—An entertainment which for refinement and variety it would be difficult to equal is attracting large audiences at the Hippodrome this week. The Eight College Girls dance well, and their concerted items are delightful; Mabel Maris contributes solos on the glassophone and zylophone and at the same time accompanies herself on the piano, while a piece played by means of her elbows is novel and clever; living statues of eminent statesmen and politicians by "The Maker of History" occupy a prominent position in the programme; The Touch of the Child is an interesting story interpreted by Mr. William Mollison and company; some daring evolutions are performed by the Lukushima Troupe; and the other contributors are J. J. Mannex (coon delineator), Marie Wilton (comedienne), and Josh Dixon (comedian and dancer).

LUNA PARK AND PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Hilton; Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—An enjoyable entertainment of animated pictures is given twice nightly this week, except on Wednesday and Saturday, when dancing takes the place of the second performance. Drama, comedy, and travel are clearly and well depicted.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Percy Hutchison; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Clarkson.—The Blue Bird was presented here on Monday by Mr. Herbert Trench's full Haymarket company. The rôles of Tyltyl and Mytyl are admirably and gracefully depicted by Master Stephen Thomas and Miss Bella Terry respectively; Tylo, the dog, was portrayed with keen fidelity and pathos by Mr. Ernest Hendre; scarcely less prominent is Mr. Norman Page as Tyletle, the cat, of which he presents a faithful study; Mr. Edward Rigby enacts the part of Bread with much humour and cleverness; Miss Enid Rose is to be credited with a graceful and clever impersonation of Light; Miss Lizzie Webster deservedly won favour by her fitting representation of the dual rôles of the Fairy Berylune and Neighbour Berlingot; Miss Saba Raleigh is a commendable and effective impersonator of Night; Mr. E. A. Warburton sustains the parts of the Oak and Time effectively; Gaffer Tyl and Granny Tyl had successful delineators in Mr. William Farren and Miss Daisy England; and the same remark applies to Miss Winifred Rae and Mr. Roy Travers as Mummy Tyl and Daddy Tyl; whilst Fire, Water, Milk, and Sugar had able exponents in Mr. Harry A. Gribbon, Miss Margaret Morris, Miss Gladys Burgess, and Mr. H. R. Hignett.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Coulson.—Mr. Fred Granville's No. 1 Company presents a musical comedy, A Hot Night. Mr. H. Val Morgan hits off the bogus professor in good style; the broad humour of the play is well sustained by Mr. Frank Dalemo as William Whiffles, Mr. Jimmie Watson as Mrs. Flutterwig and Miss Mimi Fisher as Lucy. The Granada Girls submit some clever dancing.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen.—Herbert Darnley's burlesque, Brigands of Tarragona, is full of knockabout fun; Bowden and Stol, comedy acrobats, have a good reception; Witty Wally Walton is as funny as ever; Dan Frazer, Scotch comedian, is well liked; Olga Dore, vocalist, sings well; Little Ella, comedienne and impersonator, is clever; and Bill Bert, the boy with the banjo, and the Bioscope complete.

GRAND ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Will Clark.—In addition to the films Renee and Wallis, comedy duo, introduce the devil's dance, and Bert Lytton has a good reception.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, David Collins.—Mr. George Munro and his London company are appearing here with a répertoire of plays. The Sleigh Bells was portrayed on the opening night, Mr. Munro successfully appearing as Matthias. Mr. Ernest Griffin as Christian played well, Mr. T. Heston Fields was excellent as the Judge of the Court, and Mr. George Owen created a favourable impression as Clerk of the Court. Mr. Renton Thompson was capital as Hans the gamekeeper. Miss Doris V. Horrocks as Aimette was seen to great advantage, and Miss Gertrude Littlewood as Catherine played admirably. Other pieces down for production are David Garrick, Tale of Two Cities, Hamlet, and Romeo and Juliet.

TIVOLI.—Lessee, Mr. Arthur Sleep; Manager, Mr. Leslie Talmage.—Graham and Barron are a couple of comedians who entertain successfully in patter and song; Carlos Menard, novelty musician and trick violinist, is well received, and capital subjects appear on the screen.

ARCADIA.—Proprietor, Mr. R. F. Gowland; Manager, Mr. George Castray.—The turn of Little Hackenschmidt, the champion bantam-weight wrestler, is greatly appreciated; the Three Veros are smart in their vocal and speciality attractions; Pullo is good as a juggler; and Miss Lilian Harvey is applauded as a descriptive vocalist; Carl Osmond, a cartoonist, is a success, and interesting films are also shown.

"YOUR EYES HAVE TOLD ME SO"

Town Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. A. J. Vasey and B. W. Dodshon; Manager, Mr. Alf. Burrows.—Massona, comedy juggler; Dolly Brough, champion wooden-shoe dancer; and Wee Doris, vocalist, are all well received with their excellent efforts. Good pictures are shown.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre and Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry E. Johnson.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company is appearing here in Happy-go-Lucky O'Lyn. Mr. Johns Child as Bryan O'Lyn has some very popular numbers, in which he excels. Mme. Marie Alexander's voice, both powerful and sweet, is heard with pleasure in the part of Aunt Charlotte, and Miss Anna Hickisch, whose acting as Kathleen O'Lyn is much admired, sings sweetly and well; Mr. Reginald Adair plays the gallant Frank Fentiman to perfection, and his musical efforts are appreciated; Mr. Walter B. Nugent makes a capital villain as Donald Dunn; and Miss Josephine Ellis is dainty and graceful as Mollie Murch. The play is well staged.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—Charles T. Aldrich is a man of many parts and accomplishes each part exceedingly well; Tom Geoffreys and Nora Benson's is a merry turn; Joseph Belmont's whistling imitations are truly marvellous; Miss Marie Braymen is a favourite here; Allonso Silvano's balancing act is clever, and Edwin Lambert and Enmie Hands are excellent in vocal scenas.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The familiar drama Alone in London, which has been capitally presented here by Mr. Charles Gibbons' company, has not failed to attract the usual large audiences. Mr. Charles Gibbons acts very effectively as Dick Redcliffe; Mr. Wm. Macready presents the character of John Biddlecombe with manly power; Old Jenkinson has an amusing representative in Mr. J. W. McKinson; and Mr. Robert Grey is highly satisfactory as Walter Burnaby. Miss Nellie Clyde acts sympathetically as Nan; as Ruth Clifton Miss Joan Harcourt is charming; whilst Miss Ethel F. Greene infuses much pathos and feeling in her admirable portrayal of Tom Chickweed.

Empire.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.—The Raynor Répertoire Company is again here, presenting Tom Taylor's comedy Still Waters Run Deep twice nightly throughout the week, with the exception of Friday, when A Cigarette Maker's Romance was given. As John Mildmay Mr. Chas. Brandon acts impressively; Mr. Milton C. Curtis impersonates the character of Captain Hawkesbury with ability; Mr. Potter is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Joseph B. Montague; and Miss Frances Waring ably fills the part of Mrs. Mildmay; whilst Miss Cecilia Dare acts with her usual grace and charm as Mrs. Sternhold.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Castle Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford is presenting The Private Secretary here. Mr. W. Hargreaves is entirely natural as Mr. Cattermole; Mr. James Hussey as Rev. Robert Spalding acts with ease and humour; Mr. Kendal Chalmers is very successful as Gibson; Mr. Arthur Claremont as Douglas Cattermole is well suited, as is also Mr. William Carrieden as Mr. Marsland and Mr. Horace George as Harry Marsland; Miss Estelle Despa is an efficient Miss Ashford and Miss Emily Wade is successful as Mrs. Stead; Miss Elsie Blythe as Eva Webster and Miss Mary Mallalieu as Edith Marsland are charming.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stainton.—Lew Lake and his company are presenting Bloomsbury Burglars and My Pal Jerry, and obtain a big reception; Arthur Boyne is a popular comedian; Pete and Juno are clever duettists and dancers; Bollingers score as rag painters; the Krakes cause much merriment in The Electric Tram Conductor; the Buster Browns are very entertaining in an American vaudeville act; Miss Edie Veno is a popular comedienne, and the Bioscope concludes.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Syndon's company is presenting here twice nightly Why Did She Run Away? Good houses rule.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—The Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will A. Jackson.—Mr. W. V. Garrod's company in A Country Girl in London is the attraction. The piece is well mounted, and the company gave a good representation of the various characters, Miss Elsie Marriott Watson being especially pleasing.

Queen's Palace.—Manager, Mr. Harry Trevanion.—Some fine pictures are again presented, and vaudeville is represented by the topical vocalist T. E. Johnstone.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre, Picture Palace and Variety Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—Etta is a transformation dancer of much skill; the Lashmars create much fun; Rénee Vint is a smart comedienne; Maudie Leslie is a capital chorus songstress; the Sisters Vincent are praiseworthy duettists; Roul is a clever lady juggler; Will White gives a clean comedy turn; Peakman and Walsh as comedy jugglers are popular; and Phelps's Electric Pictures complete a capital show.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General Manager, Mr. Lloyd Townrow; Treasurer, Mr. L. Crawford Orr.—Mr. Lewis Waller and company are playing here this week in Bardelys the Magnificent. Mr. Lewis Waller in the title-rôle has a character that is peculiarly fitted to him, and he does it ample justice, playing the dashing blade or the emotional lover at will; Mr. Herbert Jarman is fittingly noble and stately as King Louis; Mr. Wm. Haviland as the intriguing Comte de Castleroux is deserving of the highest eulogy for his excellent erformance; Mr. Stanley W. Ashworth does good work as Lavedan; as also does Mr. Cronin Wilson as De Lesperon. Mr. Reginald Dane is highly diverting as St. Armand; Miss Madge Titheradge is splendid in the arduous rôle of Roxalanne de Lavedan; while for the humorous and finished study of the Vicomtesse de Lavedan Mrs. A. B. Tapping is deserving of the highest compliment. Others who distinguished themselves by their efforts were Messrs. Frank Woolfe, Alec. F. Thompson, and Caton Woodville.

Avenue Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. Bernard Mervyn is presenting the playlet The Devil's Elbow here this week, and is having an appreciable reception. The acting throughout is excellent, and Mr. Mervyn, Miss V. Wray-Holmes, and Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood are all seen to advantage.

Palace Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. A. G. Hamilton.—The Royal Banzai Family of acrobats are giving a daring performance here this week, which keeps their audiences spellbound; Henry Bekker excels in conjuring; and May Stylo does some good juggling.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Dunn.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is playing here this week in Driven from Home. Miss Violet Forbes shows histrionic ability in the dual rôles of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh; Miss Emily Burnley gives a finished study of Barbara Ashwin; Mr. Geo. P. Beresford gives a capital performance as Walter Hatherleigh; Mr. Harry Leyton is good as Willie; as also is Mr. Harry Cornwall as Jabez Thomas. Messrs. Felix Pitt and E. St. Clair Forbes as Anthony Raybrook and Godfrey Waring do justice to the villainy; and Miss Susan Beavan (Margaret Bailey) and Mr. Fred C. Imbert (John Anderson) are entrusted with the humour, which is well done.

Empire Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—E'sie Southgate, the famous violin virtuoso, assisted by James Coward, organist, are delighting audiences here this week by their finished renderings of many difficult works; Mr. Will Murray and company are very successful in their sketch, Bank Holiday in Casey Court; Ando's Happy Little Japs contribute an excellent acrobatic turn; the Sutcliffe Family submit some Scottish dances and acrobatic work; Carl and Carr do some smart work in dancing and also sing well; Bob Winter, comedian, is also extremely popular; Adey Spencer is pleasing in a musical turn; and good work also comes from Kisbey.

SWANSEA.—Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Byrne.—Old Heidelberg occupies the boards. The exacting part of Prince Karl Heinrich is well played by that promising young actor Mr. Owen Naves; Miss Kitty Ricimer as Kathie is fascinating and dainty; the Kellerman of Mr. Ian Ogilvie Will is capitally characterised; Dr. Juttnerr meets with a scholarly interpretation at the hands of Mr. Ernest Bodkin; and Mr. Frank Powell as Von Haugh is effective and natural. The other parts are ably sustained by Messrs. Sydney Hamilton, Alex. Onslow, and Percy Crawford; Miss Hilda Hamilton and Miss J. W. Braithwaite.

Star Theatre.—Mr. James Willard's Paying the Price is meeting with flattering success. The author-actor sustains the part of Colonel Lord Delemere with nerve and spirit; Mr. Fred Wilson as Captain Dick Clinton presents an accurate soldier study; as Nell Fortescue Miss Margaret Tueskie acts with animation; Miss Lily Lloyd unfolds the part of Doris Delemere in a pretty, vivacious way; and strong support is given in the minor parts. The mounting, costumes, and uniforms are excellent.

Empire.—Mme. Fanny Moody and Mr. Charles Manners are giving selections from operas to packed audiences, backed up by those barons of burlesques the Bros. Griffiths, the whimsical Welshman Tom Jones, the Kirbys, and the quaintly funny comedians Johnnie Walker and Hardy Lawson.

SWINDON.—Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Beauty and the Barge is being presented here this week by Mr. Arthur Shelton's company. Mr. Maitland Marler repeats his popular interpretation of Captain James Barley; Mr. A. Russell-Davis is decidedly good as Lieut. Seton Boyne, R.N.; Major Smedley has a capital exponent in Mr. A. E. Jackson; Mr. Gerald Carter makes a satisfactory Herbert Manners; Tom Codd and Augustus are ably taken by Messrs. Hugh Trevor and Ivor Barnard; Mr. Frank Lilliput is funny as Mr. Porter; Miss Vittoria Mainwaring gracefully portrays Mrs. Smedley; Miss Hilda Vaughan is a charming Ethel Smedley; Miss Gwenllyan Cattell admirably suits the part of Lucy Dallas; and Mrs. Baldwin is amusingly played by Mrs. Henry Renouf. The comedy is preceded by the playlet The Last Night.

TODMORDEN.—Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. R. Dewhirst.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company is here in The Love of the Princess. Mr. Frank Harvey as Prince Conrad made an ideal hero, being ably supported by Messrs. Chas. O'Connor and John Worth as Lieut. Orlando and Lieut. Zaroff respectively; Mr. John Burton gave a fine representation of the dissipated King Josef; as Count Danilo Mr. C. H. Matthews acted with power; as Princess Idalia Miss Maisie Hanbury acted charmingly, being well seconded by Miss Maud Steeple as Lady Irene and Miss Josephine Lee as Constantia; and as Duke Scarfe Mr. W. P. Acock supplied the humour, being ably assisted by Mr. C. Morgan as Boris.

TONYPANDY.—Royal.—General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe and company are under engagement here in The King of Crime, The Two Orphans of Paris, and other dramas.

Hippodrome.—Lessees, Tonypandy Hippodrome Co.; General-Manager, Mr. D. Taylor.—Billy Ross and company meet with great success, as do Hume and Palmer; the Dunlops are well received; Jessie Starr, Lillian Sivado, King Leo, and Sam Ello provide highly acceptable items. Excellent films are shown.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. Wm. Mollison's company is here this week in The Chorus Lady. Miss Rita Carlyle creates a favourable impression in the title-rôle; Miss Elsie Vron Neville makes a charming Nora O'Brien, and Miss Josephine Woodward is quite a typical Mrs. O'Brien; Miss Mabel Durrant is well placed as Miss Simpson; Miss Agnese D'Aragon as the wardrobe woman is an amusing character; Mr. John Sims Woolley infuses plenty of the Irish brogue into the part of Dan Mallory; and Mr. Henry Ludlow is admirably suited to the rôle of Dick Crawford; Mr. Thomas Howes does well as Patrick O'Brien and Mr. R. F. Marshall is distinctly humorous as the Shrimp. The play is preceded by The Drums of Doom

TYNEMOUTH.—Palace.—Proprietors, The Palace Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Councillor Harold Arnold.—Mr. Charles Windermere's company is here in Where is William? Mr. Charles Windermere as Sir William Gregory is very humorous; William Jolly, admirably sustained by Mr. Rule Pyott, is responsible for much hilarity; General Rububb is capitally delineated by Mr. Leslie Norman; and Mr. Robert Urquhart does ample justice to the part of Harry. Miss Belle Donaldson as Lady Gregory gives an artistic rendition; Miss Clare Manifield makes a refined Phyllis Patterson; and Mrs. Alfred Davis as Emily and Miss Zoe Davis as Eliza are worthy of praise. Mr. Fred Archer as Joe Budge (burglar) and Mr. Albert Plant as the policeman are well placed.

WAKEFIELD.—Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Sexton Blake is here this week, Mr. Murray Yorke giving a capital representation in the title-rôle. Tinker finds an able exponent in Mr. Millar Wilson; Mr. Paul Barry is successful as the villain, Randolph Lovell; Mr. Stephen Nicholls makes the most of the part of the parson, Rev. Edward Grey; Mr. Victor C. Rolfe is effective as Farmer Blackburn; and Mr. A. J. Harding is satisfactory as Squire Lovell. Miss Lydia Mannington achieves success in a strong rendering as Philadelphia Kate; Miss Elizabeth Watkins is praiseworthy as Marjorie Lovell; Miss Dinah Wright does well as Euphemia; and Miss Ruth Woodhouse as Sally and Miss Poppy H. Asquin as an outcast, merit mention.

New Empire.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—The Brooklyn Comedy Four give a clever and amusing turn; Mlle. Leonie de Lausanne gives a thrilling and wonderful performance in rifle-shooting; the Darntons, harmonising duettists, win applause with fine vocalism; Florence Creagh and Dick Cruikshanks, in a sketch Her Return, display dramatic ability; Mark Merry, comedian, is droll; Miss Flora Macdonald is a pleasing Scotch vocalist and dancer; and Miss May Fayre, soubrette, sings in good style.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The variety turns, in addition to the excellent pictures, comprise Felix and Fisher, in an excellent gymnastic and dancing act; and Hyam Long, comedian, who has an excellent reception.

WALLSEND.—Borough Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hugh Duffy.—The New Macs, comedians, indulge in some amusing repartee, and are given a hearty reception; Otto and Olga are successful in their comedy musical and burlesque opera act; and an excellent turn is provided by Slippere, blind musician. Waul Langtry, comedian, is amusing; Bonair and Tess score in their drawing-room speciality act; Renz Brothers, comedy acrobats, perform some clever feats; Rita Royne is a dainty singer; and a juggler of more than average ability is to be found in Lestree.

Premier Electric Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. F. McDonald.—An exceptionally good picture programme is presented this week, and a variety turn which is well appreciated is that of Chas. Cattanah, international dancer.

Tyne Picture Hall.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. McHarg.—An excellent selection of films is drawing good houses here. The Gilberts, in their tight-wire act, well deserve the applause they receive.

Royal Picture Hall.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. McHarg.—An attractive picture programme is provided this week, comprising films of a dramatic, humorous, and instructive nature, and good houses result.

WALSALL.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Haidane Crichton is this week presenting The Cingalee. The part of the Hon. Harry Vereker is sustained by Mr. Frank Barclay in a pleasing manner; a charming Lady Patricia Vane is Miss Patricia Weldon; Miss Ina Bowman sings and acts ably as Nanoya; as Chambhuddy Ram Mr. Hylton Warde is all that could be desired; Mr. Herbert Franklyn makes the most of his opportunities as Bobby Warren; Peggy Sabine is played by Miss Florence Greensmith in breezy fashion; Mr. Frank Lennard gives a capital portrayal of Boombhamba; Mr. Hellier le Maistre gets all the humour possible out of the part of Sir Peter Loftus; and the dancing of Miss Winifred Stone is quite a feature of the performance.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The Seven Perezoffs in a very fine juggling sketch, entitled An Evening in a Parisian Café, are the "star" turn here; Ray Wallace is always delightful; Willie Gardner, the skate dancer, creates quite a furore; Sybil St. Elmo is a vocalist of merit; Rhoda Paul, a smart male impersonator; Brown and Le Clercq are still playing Black Justice effectively; and Wullie Walker, Scotch comedian, has a good style. Pictures complete.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Warburton.—This theatre is occupied by the members of the Warrington Amateur Dramatic Society, and a first-class portrayal of Captain Marshall's play The Second in Command has drawn large houses. The proceeds are in aid of local charities.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Eric Longdon.—This week The Bad Girl of the Family is here. Mr. R. Marius St. John is manly and earnest as Lieut. Richard Marsh; Mr. Sydney Lynn presents a suave and polished Harry Gordon; Mr. Percy Baverstock lends dignity to the unsympathetic rôle of Lord Erskine; Mr. G. H. Asquin as Sammy Snoozle is very humorous; and he is ably assisted in the lighter element by Miss Nellie James as Sally Smithers. Miss Florrie Kelsey as Bess Moore acts with a vigour and abandon that gives unbounded delight to her audience; Mr. Barnett Lando as Barney Gordon scores heavily as the unscrupulous old moneylender; the unthankful part of Honour Moore has an able representative in Miss Edith Evans; and Miss Alice Esther Belmore submits a refined portrayal of Gladys Erskine.

Royal.—Proprietors, The Central Theatres and Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Manager, Mr. Jack Waters.—Clifford and White have scored a big success; Ronald Brooks has a sweet tenor voice; the Birkenhead Family are a smart troupe of juveniles; and Lumard and Vereker are clever song illustrators. The pictures are attractive.

Grand.—Proprietors, The Palatine Company; Manager, Mr. Spencer.—An interesting programme of pictures is given here.

WASHINGTON.—Alexandra Theatre.—Secretary, Mr. Joe Turnbull; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Johnson.—A Prince's Secret Wedding is being presented here this week by Mr. and Mrs. Silverstone and H. Wright's company. Mr. Silverstone gives a particularly fine rendering of the part of Prince Alexander; Mr. Geo. Mitchell elicits considerable applause by his portrayal of Ivan Nowasky; Mr. Cowell Clarke is responsible for a successful character study of Karl Orloff; Mr. Henry Wright (Bobbie Smart) is a great Washington favourite; Mr. C. Newton Buckland is seen to advantage as Piertree Petoff; Mr. J. Brunille Harvey (Father Gourko) is quite at home in his exacting part; Mr. Morgan Dale submits a good impersonation of Sergeant Markoff; and Mr. S. G. Eugene would be hard to improve upon in the rôle of Adolphus.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Nightingale and Montague Beaudyn.—The drama founded on the well-known story of Leah, the Jewish maiden, is being presented this week by a very capable company of Mr. Beaudyn's, Miss Sidney Crowe appearing with great distinction in the title-rôle. Rudolf is admirably presented by Mr. Herbert Skardon; Mr. Geoff. Sutherland is good as Nathan; and the Abraham of Mr. Wilfred Blair is also an excellent study, the other parts being well sustained. The play is admirably mounted and staged.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Colin; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. Colin, sen.; Secretary, Mr. W. Hebden.—Mr. George Edwardes' company is appearing here in The Merry Widow. As Sonia Miss Dorothy Arliss is very charming; Baron Popoff is well represented by Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter; Mr. Ronald Pomeroy as Vicomte Camile de Jolidon, Miss Nan Ainslie as Prascovia, and all the other parts are excellently sustained, and the play is produced in a style worthy of the company and the piece.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. F. Thompson.—Mr. Harry Burns, the popular variety agent and erstwhile lessee of the Empress Theatre, is presenting his No. 1 vaudeville company, the principal attraction in which is Lieut. Rob-Insen's Band of Legion of Frontiersmen, numbering some thirty performers, who are making a great impression, their clever instrumental selections being heartily encored. Kelly and Gillette, "the tramp with a thirst," appear in a novel and humorous entertainment; the Dankmar-Schiller Troupe of hand balancers and acrobats go through some extraordinary feats; Harry Curwen is an old favourite; Leo Fields keeps his audience in the best of humour; Daisy and Dot are smart dancers; Hans and Lux, patter comedians, are amusing; and Stanley and Vandyke appear in a mirthful sketch.

Palace.—Proprietors, The Brothers Black.—In addition to the "Black Pictures" capital talent is appreciated by good audiences. Ciss and Wall, artistic dancers, are the recipients of unstinted applause; prettily illustrated songs are charmingly rendered by Pattie Burton; and clever and daring feats are neatly performed on the triple bar by the Maro Duo.

WEST STANLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Theatre Royal Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Linden.—Mr. Dickie Clare and his company are paying a return visit with Lucky Liza. In the triple rôle of Silas Slinn, the Judge, and the French Waiter Mr. Clare seems to have these parts especially his own; Mr. T. W. Benson as Peter Pettitoe is very good; and as Paul Petti toe Mr. Leonard Maitland does well. Miss Vesta Brownie essays the title-rôle with genuine ability; and the Jesmond Quartette are a clever troupe of dancers.

Victoria Theatre.—Proprietors, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Lessee, Mr. John Cattrell; General-Manager, Mr. W. D. Murray.—Karl Lynn, a skilful animal mimic, heads an excellent bill, the other turns being Tiny Ashton (boy vocalist) and the Three Askarnos (Risley comedians). A fine collection of animated pictures is shown.

WEYMOUTH.—Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. R. Wallis.—Mr. Murray King's company is here in Our Flat, and Mr. Nathaniel Glover is an instant success in Mr. Murray King's hands; Mr. Charles Stuart is smart as Reginald Sylvester; Miss Florence Radclyffe plays Mrs. Sylvester with effect; Miss Louie West is amusing as Bella; Mr. Ardene Linden cleverly portrays the hard-hearted father; and the remainder of the company are all good. A gala performance is announced for Friday night in honour of the visit of the American Fleet, and six hundred men of the United States and English Fleets are to be present as guests of the Mayor and Corporation.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—The Fighting Chance is being presented here to crowded audiences. A powerful portrayal of Stephen Blanchard is given by Mr. Austin Milroy; Capt. J. Blanchard finds an able exponent in Mr. Sidney Vautier; Mr. Arthur Elwyn excites hatred as Capt. Philip Rivers; the part of Dr. John Vorland is in the capable hands of Mr. Terence O'Brien; Miss Mary Campbell is interesting as Jean; and Miss Annie Barclay does well as Mrs. Macintosh.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company.—The Brothers Pasquali prove themselves clever acrobats; Edna Latonne, a popular male impersonator, is encored for her songs; a pathetic sketch, The Battle of Life, is given by Wright, Aitkin, and company; an amusing ventriloquial entertainment is furnished by Kenny Kay; Natalia and Diana, in a gymnastic act, are loudly applauded; Margit and Lener deserve special mention for their acrobatic sketch, Wet Paint; the Countees cause quite an ovation with their songs; and other interesting items are given by Woods and Walsh, Raby Morgan, and Karr and Kooney, comedians.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. G. Kimberley.—A strong attraction is provided this week by the enterprising lessee in the engagement of Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's company with Sherlock Holmes. Nothing but the highest praise can be accorded to Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart for his masterly assumption of the title-rôle—his portrayal positively thrilled the audience by its dramatic intensity; Mr. Oliver Crombie made an acceptable James Larabee; Dr. Watson had a capital exponent in Mr. Eric Morden; Mr. Charles A. James was particularly good as John Forman; Mr. W. T. Harris presented a striking study of Professor Moriarty; Mr. Seton Bernard was well suited as Sidney Prince; Master Thomas Hill proved an exceptionally smart Billy; and able support was rendered by Messrs. Frank Moar (Sir Edward Leighton), Henry Littleton (Count Von Stahlburg), and Mr. George Staveley (Jim Cragin). Miss Ethel Trevor Lloyd played with effect as Madge Larabee; Miss Edith Sanscroft did well as Therese; whilst Miss May Clare as Alice Faulkner presented a charming picture of maidenly reserve.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Mr. Harry Tate's company, in his funny burlesque Flying, cause plenty of amusement; the Zanonis present an unusually clever juggling scena; the acrobatic act of the Zenary Bros. is well and smartly done; Harry Carsdale's mimicry creates much merriment; Fred Lincoln, comedian, is well received; the Sisters Gerome are entertaining duettists and dancers; and a precocious young comedian is found in Harry Clarke.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Macnamara.—The well-known drama Man to Man has been compressed into a two-hour "show," and is admirably presented by Messrs. Lloyd and Brown's company twice nightly. Mr. Arthur Robinson as the hero George Gordon invests the part with continuous interest; Miss Beatrice Hone as Ethel Maythorne is a sympathetic heroine; Richard Ellerton is capitally portrayed by Mr. Charles Stirling; Mr. Edward Lloyd makes the part of the Rev. Philip Ormond a very distinctive one; Mr. Clifford Brown as Bill Burkley is irresistible; and Mr. Bruce Williams as Samuel Plumtree assists in the humorous element. Other parts are commendably undertaken by Misses Frances May, Eleanor Papern, and Phyllis Oakley, and Messrs. Holland and Hudson.

WORKINGTON.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Kitto.—The first three nights of this week the boards were occupied by Are You a Mason? The characters were well sustained, and created much laughter, the audience being a large one. The following three nights Miss Nannie Goldsmith's No. 1 company played The Step-mother.

Carnegie Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; General-Manager, Mr. Fred Kitto.—Large audiences have visited this hall during the week, the pictures being up to the usual high standard. The variety turns, which included The Two Castles and Bert and Faye, were good.

WORTHING.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Malcolm Spurgin.—Another popular variety programme is being presented here this week, and at the head of the bill are the Lyons Trio, who are paying a popular return visit with their high-class comedy act; Captain Roberts, the King's trumpeter, and his company go through a wonderful performance, the captain demonstrating the fact that he is the possessor of immense strength; Royston and Bradfield present the sketch The Bailiff and the Actress, and this proves an agreeable item; Ascot and Dewey are entertaining with their comedy act Ballooning; and Davies and Dean, comedians and simultaneous dancers, find favour; as also Della and Play, with their songs and patter; Jimmie Grant is acceptable as a Scotch comedian; and Maisie Ray is a singer of popular songs. The programme is completed with animated pictures of the Lord Mayor's Show and the Launch of the Olympic, and the latter is one of the best films ever seen in Worthing.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—This week for the annual fair, the domestic drama, Home, Sweet Home, by Frank Lindo, is presented by Miss Marion Wakeford and company. Mr. Leonard Laurence as Stephen Armitage acted with much power; Mr. Tom E. Lewis was an interesting David; Mr. Sydney Dench, a dignified Duke of Ancaster; Mr. Bert Dench imbued the part of the Hon. Percy with genuine comedy; and as Lucas Lyle Mr. Edward Cameron had full scope for his abilities. Miss Marion Wakeford made Joan a sweetly interesting personage; Miss Lisa Coleman as Sybil Fay was a distinct success; and Little Queenie as Dora was heartily applauded.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—The appearance of Mr. R. A. Roberts is always a popular event, and on Monday night a crowded house greeted him in his wonderful sketch, Cruel Coppinger. Stevens and Brett introduce some smart patter and are clever dancers; Field and Mansell produce some clever oil-paintings; and the songs contributed by Chas. Woodward are deservedly popular. Kitty Kennedy Allen sings a taking song; and the dancing of Tim O'Connor is smart. The Empire Bioscope is appreciated; and the cycle turn contributed by Paulton and Dolly is in its way unique.

"DRAMATIC CRITICISM."

Mr. William Archer delivered an interesting address on "Dramatic Criticism" to the members of the Liverpool Playgoers' Society, in the Yamen Room, Bold-street, last week. There was a large audience, and Prof. Reilly presided.

It was idle to inquire, said Mr. Archer, whether dramatic criticism was of any use, because if it was an evil, it was a necessary evil. They could not help expressing themselves on works of art, and some of them were called upon to make it their business to express themselves as carefully as they could upon them, and that was practically what criticism was. There was a common definition of critics, viz., those who had failed in literature, and whilst there was a great deal in that, he thought that in many cases they had not made the failures that were implied in that remark. They were the people who had wished to become artists, who had been interested in a certain art, and who upon trying it had found they had not the creative gift, but who consequently devoted themselves to studying the principles of it, and to analysing and studying the works of other people. In that sense it was not at all disgraceful to have failed in an art before they had become critics of it. On the other hand, it would be found that artists who had a strong individual gift, were apt to be bad critics, because they always applied their own standards. They were sometimes told there were two sorts of criticism—judicial and scientific criticism—and that scientific criticism was the only right sort; that the critic had no right to attempt judgment, and that his work was classification. He did not say that classification of literature was not of great importance, but judgment must come first. One definition in regard to dramatic criticism was sometimes overlooked, and it was this: When they spoke of a great critic of the drama such as Hazlitt, Leigh Hunt, and Charles Lamb, they were speaking of quite a different art from that which was now practised. Those great critics dealt almost entirely with acting, whereas critics of the present day dealt with drama as distinct from acting. Quoting Hazlitt's criticism on the plays of his time, mentioning that on Edmund Kean's Richard III. Mr. Archer said it was almost impossible to exercise that form of criticism now, as we did not see Shakespearean parts often enough done by different actors. What we now dealt with was whether a play was a faithful representation of life, or whether the ideal it presented was a fine one. As to the question which was often raised, viz., whether the critic ought or ought not to tell the story of a play in writing about it, there was a great deal to be said on both sides. It was often a great injustice to the author to tell his plot, and it was a practice which could only be exercised with great care; but, on the other hand, it was for the author's benefit as well as for the critic's, that the notice should be readable, and a notice which gave some idea of the plot was unquestionably more interesting than the mere evaluation of the play. The fundamental merit of a critic of the drama was keenness of perception, and it was most essential that the critic should know when he was bored. He should also feel, and not conventionally feel, and he should be able to distinguish what was drama from what was not drama. Mr. Archer uttered a warning against what he termed sterilising criticism, of which there was a great deal nowadays. Let the criticism by all means be outspoken, but let it be encouraging rather than deadening and depressing.

Following upon the discussion, Mr. Archer paid a tribute to the Liverpool Playgoers' Society for its work towards bringing about a Repertory Theatre. It would be a discredit to Liverpool if she were left behind in that movement by Manchester and Glasgow. The result of the efforts in those two cities had been that a number of local dramatists of considerable talent had come forward and produced plays which interpreted either Lancashire or Scottish character to the audiences, and that was the most healthy sign in the development of the drama in England. It would be to the credit of this society if it succeeded in establishing a theatre in Liverpool, and if it did not succeed it would show a supiness on the part of the well-to-do and intelligent people of Liverpool which would be greatly to their discredit.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council meeting held at 32, Regent-street, on Tuesday, Nov. 22. Present: Mr. Richard A. Greene, in the chair, Messrs. C. Hayden Coffin, Cecil A. Collins, Chris. Walker, F. J. Arlton, Frederick Annerley, Langford Reed, Murri Moncrieff, Clarence Derwent, Miss Vita Spencer, Miss Beatrice Chester, Miss Mildred Cottell, and Mr. D. Young (secretary).

The Secretary read the minutes of the meeting held on the 15th inst., and the meeting confirmed and the Chairman signed same.

The Chairman read a letter from Mr. Fred Hudson, requesting the Council to take action on his behalf for the recovery of fees, and on the motion of Mr. Coffin, seconded by Mr. Arlton, the matter was referred to Mr. Mote, the hon. solicitor.

With reference to Mr. Milton Rosmer's letter to Messrs. Mote and Sons, it was agreed, on the motion of Mr. Coffin, seconded by Mr. Walker, that as he had already been notified, until Mr. Rosmer becomes a member of the Association, the Council cannot do anything with regard to his claim.

The Secretary read letters from Messrs. T. Craven and Sons, Alan J. Chester, and James Berry, and received instructions as to replies.

With reference to Mr. Cecil Raleigh's letter, it was proposed by Mr. Arlton, seconded by Mr. Annerley, that discussion be deferred upon the subject until the next meeting, and the Secretary was instructed to place the matter on the agenda for that purpose.

In reply to the Rev. Donald Hole's letter, the Secretary was instructed to inform him that the Council had great pleasure in acceding to his request, that the Actors' Church Union Finance Committee might hold their meeting as requested, during the tenure of the office of the present Council, on the motion of Mr. Arlton, seconded by Mr. Coffin.

Mr. Derwent reported progress on behalf of the Dinner Committee, and mentioned that amongst those who had signified their intention of being present were Messrs. Arthur Bourchier, Henry Ainley, J. D. Beveridge, Robert Courtneidge, M. R. Morand, and C. Hayden Coffin.

A letter was read from Mr. Shiel-Porter relative to his own and his wife's election to membership, and the Secretary received instructions as to reply.

The Finance Committee's report was read by Miss Chester, and on the motion of Mr. Arlton, seconded by Mr. M. Moncrieff, adopted.

Elected: Gladys Barnard, Eileen Guilbert, Edith Pitcher, and Ruth Heathcote. Reinstated: Alfred Gordon Craig. Nominated: F. Lock Whittaker.

At the King's Palace, Wellingborough, Jean Seul's mysterious performance is a decided novelty and a successful draw. Sig. Trippells is popular. Will Sergeant is appreciated; and Chummie La Mara's songs have a capital reception.

On Monday at the Theatre Royal, Waterford, Mr. Tom Watts's company opened an engagement with the Bullock version of East Lynne. Miss Ida Heron is excellent as Lady Isobel; Mr. Frank Beresford gives a good reading of the part of Archibald Carlyle; and the comic element is well sustained by Mr. Walter Dale, who as P.C. Bullock keeps the house in roars of laughter.

EMPLOYEES' ANNUAL CONCERT.

The eighth annual concert organised by the National Association of Theatrical Employés was an unprecedented success last Sunday, a large number of persons being unable to obtain admission. The whole of the tickets for seats were sold before the day. It was a fine sight to see Mr. Oswald Stoll's beautiful theatre packed, and seldom has the Coliseum held a more enthusiastic audience. The following ladies and gentlemen kindly gave their patronage, and either sent a donation to the funds or took tickets for the concert:—

Sir Edward Moss	Mr. Percy Honri
Sir H. Beerbohm Tree	Mr. Henry Arthur Jones
Sir A. W. Pinero	Mme. Zelie de Lussan
Miss Lilian Braithwaite	Miss Marie Lloyd
Mr. Thomas Beecham	Miss Eva Moore
Mrs. D'Oyly Carte	Mr. Cyril Maude
Miss Compton	Dr. Robinson
Mr. Frank Curzon	Mr. Henry Tozer
Mr. Arthur Chudleigh	Mr. Cecil Raleigh
Mr. James Carew	Miss Irene Vanbrugh
Mr. Frank Glenister	Mr. Sydney Valentine
Mr. William Greet	Mr. James Welch
Mr. J. Martin Harvey

The crowded house followed with interest and pleasure the long and varied programme. Owing to the inclement weather and consequent bronchial troubles, there were some few disappointments in the promised appearance of artists, among them being Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. Harry Lauder, Mr. Harry Claff, Mr. Dutch Daly, Miss Evie Greene, Miss Esme Culverdale, the Meister Glee Singers, and Mr. Phil Ray. In spite of the great regret felt caused by those absent, one could not complain either of the lack of quality, quantity, or variety. Mr. Bond Sayers—who again kindly gave his services—conducted the orchestra, whose very satisfactory performances left nothing to be desired. Mr. Bernard Gluck was the accompanist at the piano. Miss Aimee Roberts, although suffering from a severe cold, kindly sang the first song, substituting "Picking daisies in the dell" for "Out of darkness," as announced in the programme. Mr. Walter Williams gave a very pleasing rendering of "The trumpeter." The Hon. Eva O'Connor contributed two songs (accompanied by herself) with much spirit and energy. Mr. Gurney Russell was much applauded for his two songs, especially "Poppy was picking pink poppies." Miss Floyd Ariston sang "Because," also a French song and a coón song, with much natural charm.

Mr. Arthur Melrose's clever "Whistling waiter" was highly appreciated, and junior members of the audience will doubtless spend much time in endeavouring to imitate him. The comedy duologue of Osborne and Brooke was very entertaining, and the drunken husband's gymnastic feats were really clever and funny. Mr. John Phillips gave the ever welcome song of the Toreador from Carmen to the manifest pleasure of the audience. Miss Violet Loraine brought down the house with her lively and artistic performance of "All clear out of the park," and as an encore gave a description of a picture show, for which she obtained immense applause. Miss Loraine thoroughly entered into the part, and is evidently a very clever artiste. The Two Bobs were charming in their sketch, and they sang quaintly and distinctively. Miss Helen Blain sang "My dear soul" with her usual refinement and cultivation. Mr. Fred Wildon in "Phonofiddleoddities" was both amusing, and in his rendering of "I'll sing thee songs of Araby" most sympathetic. He almost made his little instrument articulate.

Mr. Fred Hastings's little monologue on "Courtship and marriage" was very entertaining. Mr. Tom Clare with his "Cynthia" and his inimitable imitation of a German at the telephone was altogether most productive of the laughter that is said to add to one's weight.

The Romps gave a very successful little sketch, and the depth of tone shown was quite unusual in the singing of such young girls. Miss José Collins sang "Come, sing to me" and "The sunbeam and the rose," for both of which she secured a flattering reception. Miss Collins had the advantage of being accompanied by Mr. Jack Thompson, the composer.

Mr. Charles Pond in his "Glimpses of life" convulsed the audience with amusement with "The Dogs' Hospital" and "The [illegible] Driver," and was most impressive with his description of the very womanly "Little Missis" and his happy family life.

Miss Florence in "I want to come home to Killarney" exhibited an extremely pleasing and nicely-rounded voice.

The concert was brought to a close with some excellent moving pictures shown by Mr. Bernard Theobald, N.A.C.O., the Coliseum cinematograph operator.

Slides were also shown of Mr. Oswald Stoll and expressing thanks to the supporters of the concert.

The following ladies kindly assisted to sell programmes and sweets, and took evident delight in their task, the result of which was of great advantage to the funds:—

Mrs. Rose Phillips, £1 10s. 7d.; Miss Violet Loraine, 18s. 6d.; Mrs. Knight, £2 10s.; Miss Cecilia Macarte, £1 8s. 5d.; Miss Julia Macarte, 12s.; Mrs. C. C. Bartram, £1 11s.; Miss Winnie Ashton, 19s. 10d.; Miss Elkerton, £1 12s. 1d.; Miss I. Ilkerton, £1 0s. 3d.; Miss Louie Lockner, £2 2s. 6d.; Miss Violet Morene, £1 14s.; Miss Cicely Debenham, £1 17s. 10½d.; Miss Queenie Vincent, £1 11s. 6d.; Miss Nellie Taylor, £1 4s. 9d.; Miss Winnie Wing, £1 16s. 10½d.; Miss Zoe Gordon, £2 3s. 1d.; Miss Lily Nanton, 12s. 9d.; others and stewards, £4 17s. 1d.

The members who acted as stewards were Messrs. R. Astley, E. Stow, W. Hall, G. Dyer, J. Phelps, G. T. Dalgarno, H. Finch, E. F. Gamble, H. McDonnel, J. Tonkins, G. W. Grant, G. W. Butt, W. J. Hindley, A. B. Marris, H. Bowmer, H. J. Kemp, J. N. Hunt, C. Thorogood, P. Thomas, John Hutchins, E. H. Mason, E. J. Sly, K. P. Mack, and A. Holmes. Messrs. Phillip Raphael and James Atterton were in charge of programmes and sweets.

The committee have much pleasure in acknowledging the generosity of Mr. Oswald Stoll, who lent the Coliseum, free of charge, for the purpose of the concert; also the kindness of Mr. Dundas Slater (manager of the Coliseum), Mr. Harry Pryme (assistant business-manager), Mr. Henry Crocker (stage-manager), who kindly gave their assistance, and to Mr. S. Robins (master carpenter), Mr. W. Smith (chief electrician), Mr. C. Holley (property master), and other members of the staff for their services.

The committee desire also to acknowledge the courtesy of Mr. Alfred Butt (of the Palace Theatre), Mr. Henry Tozer (of the Tivoli and Syndicate halls), Mr. Frank Glenister (of the London Pavilion), Mr. Walter Gibbons, Mr. Frank Macnaghten, and the Empire Theatre (Leicester-square) directors, who gave permission for artists under contract with them to appear, and the kindness of the Variety Artists' Federation, who cordially gave permission for their members to appear, and waived the 2½ per cent. usually required in such circumstances.

The committee also cordially thank Messrs. Willing, Messrs. David Allen, Messrs. W. T. Haycock and Co., Ltd., Messrs. Partington and Co., Messrs. J. Miles and Co., Ltd., and Mr. R. Astley for valuable assistance, and Mr. A. Tetlow (of Moss' Empires, Ltd.) for the use of the Coliseum cinematograph apparatus and the films shown.

The committee also thank most heartily Mr. Robert Brown, who kindly designed and presented the cover of the programme, and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, hon. treasurer to the concert committee.

Concert Committee: James Cullen, Chairman (master carpenter, St. James's Theatre), G. H. Dyball, Vice-Chairman (stage-manager, London Pavilion), C. T. Cory (master carpenter, Vaudeville Theatre), W. Pullinger (master carpenter, Garrick Theatre), A. Jones (Royal Opera House), Philip Sheridan (electrician, Strand Theatre), Ed. Stow (Vaudeville Theatre), A. Palmer (master carpenter, Comedy Theatre), A. Malcolm, N.A.C.O., G. Pickering (stage department, Duke of York's Theatre), J. Hunt (Alhambra Theatre), F. B. Fidge (electrician, Lyceum Theatre), Phillip Raphael (advertising manager, Lyceum Theatre), Charles Thorogood, H. Porter (Criterion Theatre), E. J. Sly, T. Lowe, J. Atterton (Vaudeville Theatre), and H. J. Kemp (Vaudeville Theatre).

Hon. Treasurer: Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era.

Hon. Secretary: Mr. William Johnson, 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE stage employees who are members of the N.A.T.E. are to be congratulated upon the result of their annual concert. The Concert Committee met on Tuesday and appointed Messrs. Cory and Atterton to audit the accounts, and they met on Thursday to do this. The following is a summary of the audited accounts:—

Receipts.

From sale of tickets for seats	£210	6	0
Standing room	46	0	0
Programmes and sweets	30	17	7
Cloak-room	0	13	11
Donations	13	12	0
Special item	0	8	0
	£301	17	6

Expenditure.

Orchestra (Coliseum)	£15	0	0
Staff, light, and cleaning	25	19	8
Printing and blocks and Press advertisements	18	11	9
Postage, stationery, billing, refreshments, and other items	25	17	3
Balance	216	8	10
	£301	17	6

The balance has been allocated to the following benevolent funds:—

No. 1 Branch	£105	0	0
Heads of Departments' Branch	50	0	0
Cinematograph Operators' Branch	20	0	0
Carpenters' Branch	15	0	0
Provident Association	10	0	0
Open Fund	13	12	0
New Branch Attendants, and such other amounts as come in	2	16	10
	£216	8	10

The amounts allocated to the Open Fund and the Provident Fund would, probably, have been larger had these two funds not had the whole of the proceeds of the Theatrical Sports, amounting to £65, in equal shares

APPLICATIONS to join the new branch for attendants are coming in, and those who intend joining should send their applications without delay to Mr. W. Johnson so that he may be notified of the meeting to be held shortly. Those who have already applied will be communicated with in due course.

AT a meeting of the Cinematograph Operators' Committee, Mr. S. B. Blakeley attended, and proposed that the committee should arrange a meeting of operators to witness a demonstration of the Power Camergraph projector, and permit him to give an address upon the position of the moving-picture operators in America. As Mr. Blakeley is a member of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees (Branch 145 of the Moving-Picture Operators, Chicago), the committee have made arrangements, and the demonstration will be given in the large hall of the Northampton Institute, Clerkenwell, on Tuesday, Dec. 6, at eleven o'clock a.m. All operators are cordially invited to attend, and will obtain a card on application to Mr. John Hutchins at 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

A POKER PARODY.

Mr. Richard F. Symons, of the Lyceum Theatre, knows his Shakespeare and how to play poker; hence the following parody on Hamlet's soliloquy:

To play or not to play, that is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler in the game to suffer
The slings and arrows of a risky hand
Or to take arms against a sea of troubles
And throw in my cards; to swank, to bluff
Some more, and by that bluff to take
The goodly pool, that better hands
Are heir to—'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. To straddle, to raise
To see, perchance to win. Ay, there's the rub,
For in that game of cards what hands may come
When we have shuffled off the second pack
Without a cut; there's the respect
That makes calamity of a good hand.
For who would bear the flush and straights of others,
The oppressor's three aces, the proud man's full house,
The pangs of fours, the straight flush,
The insolence of others, and the spurns
That five aces (with the joker) makes
When he himself might his quietus take
By throwing in his hand? Who would draw to a pair
To groan and swear under a bad hand
But that the hope of something afterwards—
The jack-pot, from whose bourn
The silvery flood returns, puzzles the will
And makes us rather bear the cards we have
Than draw five others that we know not of.
Thus conscience does make cowards of us all,
And hands of great and strong excitement
With this regard, their cards all turn awry
And lose the name of Poker.

PROVINCIAL MANAGERS.

MR. W. H. WESTWOOD.

The complimentary benefit matinée arranged on behalf of Mr. W. H. Westwood, on the occasion of his sixtieth birthday and twenty-five years as manager and secretary to the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd., which took place on Saturday, Nov. 19, at Her Majesty's Theatre, bore ample testimony to the popularity which Mr. Westwood deservedly enjoys. The house was packed, and the élite of Walsall and its environs were present to show their appreciation of the long and faithful service rendered to the people of Walsall by Mr. Westwood in his present capacity. The Borough Member, R. A. Cooper, Esq., M.P., in a letter of congratulation, expressed great regret that "events in the House" prevented him from being present. The programme was of a varied description, and contained upwards of thirty items, each of which was thoroughly enjoyed by a good-humoured, appreciative audience. The following artists were able to appear:—Whit Cunliffe, the Rawsons, Olga Dore, Harry Roxbury, George Rae, the Daunton-Shaw troupe, Lyle Jeffries (Birmingham Empire), the Farabonis, Bowden and Stol, Ellis Barrieton and Lizzie Glenroy (Grand Theatre, Birmingham), Joe and Hetty Waldron, La Noedia, Eadie and Ramsden (Birmingham Hippodrome), Harry Weldon, Ted and May Hopkins (the Gaiety), Harry Grey, Olive Armidale, the Hesseys (the Empire, Wolverhampton), and the full company of artists at Her Majesty's Theatre also consented to appear.

Mr. Westwood, at one time known all over the world as Leonati, originator of the spiral ascension and descension act on a bicycle, when interviewed by our representative, was very modest as to his early achievements. Asked how he first came to take up trick cycle show business, Mr. Westwood recounting the circumstances, replied: "It was because I liked it. I started when I was about eighteen years old, and afterwards introduced my spiral column act, with which I appeared on the Continent first during the year 1874. It was in the year 1875, through the agency of my dear old friend, H. W. Wieland, that I received my first engagement to appear under the management of Messrs. Poole and Stacy at the Old Surrey Gardens" (long ago built upon). Here Mr. Westwood took an old, well-worn book, showing our representative press cuttings in almost every foreign tongue, and pointing to one, an Era cutting, dated June 6, 1875, headed "Exciting Scene at Surrey Gardens," and giving a descriptive report of his perilous performance. About this time Mr. Westwood accepted a long Continental engagement, in which he toured through Spain, Italy, Belgium, Russia, Austria, Hungary, &c. Coming back to England he played twenty-seven weeks at the Royal Aquarium, London, then under the management of Wylbur Robinson. Another short tour completed on the Continent, Leonati worked all the principal towns in the United Kingdom with the late Charles Hengler's Circus, John Henry Cooke, and Alfred Eugene Cooke. In the years 1882, 1883, and 1884 he toured through the United States with the then famous show known as the Great Forepaugh Show. This tour practically saw the retirement of Leonati from the strenuous and dangerous calling of "spiral ascensionist," for in 1885 he came to Walsall, where he bought the old Alexandra Theatre, then in the hands of Mr. Cooke, rechristened it the Gaiety, which later he demolished and built on the site the present Grand Theatre. His last professional engagements as Leonati took place about the year 1887, when he appeared at Dudley Castle on the Whit Week and in the August of the same year. On the Bank Holiday he made his final appearance at Dartmouth Park, West Bromwich. Since that time Mr. Westwood has concentrated his energies on the betterment of theatrical work in Walsall, and it was the astute manager who was mainly instrumental in the building of Her Majesty's Theatre, Walsall, where, on Saturday last, his birthday celebration and benefit took place with the desired result. Mr. Westwood was the recipient of many presents, including a dressing-case and box of cigars from the committee, a beautiful silver cigar-case from the staff of Her Majesty's Theatre, and a smoker's cabinet from the staff of the Grand Theatre. At a board meeting of the directors on Monday, the 21st, they (the directors) tendered to Mr. W. H. Westwood a very cordial and hearty vote of congratulations, the chairman, in the course of his remarks, stating that his colleagues and himself were fully satisfied that he (Mr. Wedgwood) did all that possibly lay in his power to further the interests of the company. Mr. Westwood, in a few words, expressed his thanks for their confidence, saying if it was required, the words expressed that afternoon would further stimulate him.

THE LATE MISS HENRIETTA HODSON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—My attention has been called to the obituary notice in your paper of a week or two back of the above-named well-known actress, formerly of the old Queen's Theatre, Long Acre. A copy of the programme of As You Like It, as played at the Queen's under that lady's management is also published, with reference to which you stated that "of the company mentioned composing the cast, only three are now living, viz., Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Howard Russell, and Miss Kate Bishop." Permit me to inform you that this statement is not correct, inasmuch as both my old colleague—Mr. Dempsey—and myself, who remained in Miss Hodson's service until her retirement, are still alive to tell the tale; and perhaps, therefore, you will do us the justice to make the necessary correction in your next issue.—Yours faithfully,

EDWIN A. RUSSELL.

Mackay	MR. WALTER ROY
Murdoch	MR. GEORGE TAWDE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The latest production of the Repertory Theatre at Glasgow deals, like a number of recent plays, with the relations between masters and men, and the subject is handled with the utmost fidelity to truth, while at the same time the lighter and more humorous aspects of this and other subjects are kept in view throughout.

William Cotterill is the proprietor of a factory in Midlothian, who is resolved to manage his own business in his own way, despite the advice of his two sons or his old foreman, Hugh Ronald, and in defiance of any statement of grievances by his workers. In the first act, which takes place in the drawing-room of Cotterill's house, the audience is at once put in touch with the state of affairs. His business, though solvent, is sadly hampered by want of capital, and he has appealed to an old friend for assistance. The friend does not directly respond, but sends his sister down on a visit to the Cotterill's, but later we learn that this lady is really there to investigate matters in a quiet way before granting the financial assistance, and, in fact, Lady Baxter proves the good fairy to all the characters. Cotterill's worries are added to by the fact that his younger son, Clement, is openly making love to the governess, Mary Ronald, who, although a ladylike and well-educated girl, is hardly, as the daughter of the foreman, Hugh Ronald, a suitable partner in the eyes of the ambitious manufacturer. His elder son, Robert, is a widower with a young daughter, Jean, and both reside in the house of old Cotterill, the young girl under the care of the governess. Robert is rather in disfavour with the men at the works, his duties consisting of checking the men's work and allocating fines for faults therein, naturally engendering their resentment. Clement is a favourite, he having worked a lot in the factory, and understanding the men's point of view and the actual grievances they labour under. An excessive spell of late work and an exceptional number of fines have made the men restive, and in the second act, the scene of which is laid in the wareroom of the carpet factory, matters reach a crisis. The men ask that a deputation shall be received by their employer, and are anxious to point out that a special shuttle used in the works is responsible for many of the faults for which they are fined. This shuttle being an invention of the employer's own, he naturally resents any complaints which savour of disparagement of his device, and is furious when it leaks out that his younger son and his foreman have actually experimented on one of the looms with an improvement devised by the foreman, which has at once improved the quality of the work. The scene where the deputation of two workmen interviews the employer is excellent comedy. One of the men is a clever workman, somewhat slow of speech in the presence of his master, while the other is a truculent and cantankerous specimen, with a bitter tongue and an overflowing sense of the grievances under which he labours. The suave and dignified old employer, talking quietly to the men, and ushering them out of his presence without having promised them anything definite, and the two men, forgetting at times their mission to loudly debate their own personal animosities and differences of opinion, were all cleverly and faithfully transcribed from real life. The old foreman, Hugh Ronald, does his best to smooth over the differences, but without avail, and, chancing to overhear a disparaging remark by Cotterill regarding Ronald's daughter Mary, the old man puts on his coat and leaves the factory where he has been for forty years. Clement again tries his hand at smoothing matters a bit, but his father fears he has not succeeded and sinks into his chair. At that moment the rattle and clatter of looms starting is heard from the factory beyond, and at the sound the old manufacturer rises from the chair with a fervent "Thank God!" and on this the act-drop falls. Act III. deals principally with the efforts of Lady Baxter to set things to rights again. She induces Cotterill to adopt the improved shuttle devised by the foreman and to offer the latter a partnership, with the two sons, of the firm, under the style of Cotterill, Sons, and Co., the old head retiring to the position of a sleeping partner. In addition, Lady Baxter persuades Cotterill to apologise to Mary Ronald, and sanction the engagement of the governess and Clement. The workmen are pacified, and the only one left in the cold is the elder son Robert. He had expressed the idea that Lady Baxter would be a charming wife to him and a mother to his daughter Jean, but the fates seem bent on preventing this, and the curtain falls on a pretty and pathetic picture. Robert is lamenting the fact that all the characters have paired off, and left him alone. He murmurs "Where is the little woman I have to marry?" when his young daughter, in her night-dress, comes for her good-night kiss, and overhears the remark. She runs to her father's arms and says, "Marry me, daddy—only me!" and the play ends. Mr. Frank Cochrane as Cotterill had a character that he made absolutely live before the audience; and Mr. Norman McKeown was specially well suited as Robert. In the more light-hearted Clement Mr. Perceval Clark was happily placed; and his sweetheart, Mary Ronald, was charmingly played by Miss Jean Cadell. Miss Madge McIntosh as Lady Baxter played artistically and sympathetically; Mr. Campbell Gullan as the old foreman Ronald made a distinct hit; Mr. Walter Roy as the quieter workman on the deputation acted with excellent effect; and the fiery and uncultivated agitator, Murdoch, as acted by Mr. George Tawde, caught the fancy of the audience at once. Miss Kitty Clifford as Jean was another distinct success. Mr. Mark Hannam as a dignified butler and Misses Raynor and Blanche Pearl as two servants completed the cast. The play was staged with much care and attention to detail, and was produced under the direction of Miss Madge McIntosh.

On Tuesday, Nov. 22, the play was preceded, for the first time on any stage, by a comedietta, by Clark Nicholson, entitled Between Dances, the scene of which is laid in a hall at Blythwood-gardens, Kelvinside, Glasgow. The cast was as follows:—

William Marsden	MR. HAROLD CHAPIN
Tommy Forbes	MR. WALTER ROY
Victoria Maclure	MISS MARGARET NYBLOC
Gertrude Brunton	MISS ELAINE SLEDDALL
Miss Betty Grant	MISS WINIFRED GUNN

This proved an enjoyable little play, the fun being caused by the efforts to keep secret an engagement between William Marsden and Gertrude Brunton, known only to Marsden's friend, Tommy Forbes. Marsden makes ardent love to one of the other ladies at the dance, with the result that jealousy arises, and the engagement leaks out. For his misdemeanour Marsden in tried by the ladies and sentenced to various severe punishments, such as to have no kisses from his sweetheart for two weeks, &c., but in the end peace is restored.

"MILES DIXON."

A Play, in Two Acts, by Gilbert Cannan, Produced at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, Nov. 21.

Miles Dixon	MR. MILTON ROSMER
Ellen Baisbrown	MISS IRENE ROOKE
John Baisbrown	MR. HERBERT LOMAS
Janie Baisbrown	MISS HILDA BRUCE POTTER
Jan Baisbrown	MR. FRANK DARCH

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Among the many impressive plays which have been produced by Miss Horniman's company at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, Mr. Gilbert Cannan's Miles Dixon ranks high. It has a quality which shows the author to be a writer of imagination, influenced, it may be, by the work of J. M. Synge, but individual nevertheless. The story has an atmosphere of folklore. It presents the situation of a man, an unfettered son of Nature, Miles Dixon to wit, beseeching a woman, in the darkness of a farmyard, at one o'clock in the morning, to commune with him. Dixon is compounded of the elemental feelings; he lives on the hills, and sleeps out in the wet and cold, impervious to discomforts, and inspired by the sights and sounds of Nature, the coming of the dawn, and other such things, compared with which the ordinary life, from his spiritual altitude, looks like the "maggotty" creeping of little black things, with their heads bent to the earth. Home has no meaning for him, nor have the conventions of ordinary life any weight. The woman is Ellen Baisbrown, and is married to John Baisbrown, the farmer. There is a feeling more complex in the woman. Acknowledging the allegiance of her soul and body to this man, who comes in the night, tormenting her, and himself, by his memory of the scent of her hair and the touch of her body, she struggles hard and bitterly against him, unable to free herself from the obligations to which she is tied, and from her sense of the man's Pagan irresponsibility and lack of conventional pride. Her resentment of his approaches is strong and merciless; she will have no more of him, and so, with scathing scorn, closes her window. The power of love is great, however; he talks to her from beside the casement; and there has been something between them already to account for her shame and her passion; and she comes, after all, to open her door to this weird lover. But just then John Baisbrown comes softly into the farmyard with a lantern. He knows what is between himself and his wife. He is a great strong fellow, and would remove the difference by the vulgar physical process of breaking every bone in Dixon's body. But Dixon will not step down to him for any such purpose. He castigates Baisbrown with his tongue instead; and the woman is listening behind the door. Finally he descends, when the farmer has promised to withhold his arm, and again he uses his tongue upon the strong man to bitter purpose. Then out comes the woman, and urges her angry but patient husband to put his threats of violence into action. Dixon, vowing to go away for ever, and picturing for them the miserable life they must henceforth live in each other's company, curses both in shocking language, and takes his departure.

Twenty years elapse. In the farmer's kitchen we are introduced to the woman, obviously grown older, and two of the grown-up children of the household. Baisbrown is dead. The girl, Janie, is of her father's type; the youth, Jan, is a replica of Miles Dixon. Miles and his exploits have become a tradition; he is no more than a half-believed tale to Jan, who, however, has the same impulse towards the natural life, to leap the rivers, to run a hundred miles in a day, to wrestle with ten men, and do the many other wonderful things that Miles Dixon used to do: a true son of the wanderer who went into the world to make a fortune twenty years ago. His mother, in a sort of despair, yields to his pleading for money to enable him to go forth as Miles Dixon did; he is the only one she deeply loves. But now Miles Dixon returns, a poor and weary pedlar, with a pack of things, from which he invites the mother to buy. The emotion under the surface of the lovers thus in touch again is finely suggested, and is the more profound by reason of its contrast to the quiet and formal nature of the transaction that takes place. Dixon enters into his experiences of the world in response to Jan's inquiries, and finally makes himself known to the latter. He could leap rivers and the rest of it, but could not conquer the world and its commonplace exactions; in twenty years of trying the world has beaten him and brought him to this. Jan takes the lesson, and lays down his mother's money on the table. To the mother Dixon says, "You're the woman who was so beautiful." She answers, "You're the man who came to me out of the night, so fine and strong." And Dixon responds, "Ah, we're queer cattle," and goes forth, weary and sad, and still a wanderer.

Strong and virile in the first act, Mr. Milton Rosmer invested the rôle of Miles Dixon in the second act with a searching and effective pathos that was most admirably and naturally conveyed. Equally good was Miss Irene Rooke in her impersonation of Ellen Baisbrown. Mr. Herbert Lomas played John Baisbrown with quiet vigour; Miss Hilda Bruce Potter gave a clever sketch of Janie; and Mr. Frank Darch added an intelligent embodiment of the contrasting rôle of Jan. The play was well staged and heartily received.

"ANATHEMA."

A Tragedy in a Prologue, Five Acts, and an Epilogue, by Leonid Andreyev, authorised translation by Herman Bernstein. (The Macmillan company, New York, &c. Price 5s.)

The Jewish hand is traceable in the above-named play, which is written in simple but impressive language, and, without having any revolutionary aims, draws a vivid picture of the squalor and misery of lower class life in a crowded Russian city. The work is readable rather than actable, though some stressful scenes of human passion would well bear realisation on the stage.

A variant of the sinister efforts of the Evil One among mortals is furnished, the chief personage being Anathema, who is depicted making one more attempt to pass the portals of Paradise. The prologue is allegorical, and shows Anathema approaching the celestial regions and trying in vain to get past the keeper of the gates. Determining to gain his purpose by human aid, he seeks out an old Jew named David Leizer, the keeper of a store in a city in the South of Russia, who feels he is about to die, and "goes to the seashore to commune in solitude with God about his fate."

Through poverty David has had to lament the loss of several children, while his remaining son is in a delicate state of health. In the drama proper Anathema brings to David the news that a rich brother has died abroad, leaving him heir to millions of roubles. David establishes a home of luxury, but Anathema, who has become his secretary and adviser, convinces him that his duty is to provide for the poor and helpless. Accordingly Leizer announces his intention to divide his wealth among the needy, and is soon overwhelmed with applicants from all parts of the world. David is extolled not only as a benefactor, but as a supernatural being; the sick come to him for cure, and the people even bring their dead to be restored to life. His riches, however, soon give out, and David, who has resisted all the fiend's temptations to proclaim himself a god, is stoned to death by the disappointed mob. Confident that he has thus proved the futility of doing good, Anathema repairs to the Celestial City, only to learn that David's work has found favour in the sight of the Almighty, and that he has entered Heaven, the Evil One being left to pursue his fruitless quest for salvation.

The translation, which is printed in large, clear type, is dedicated to Nathan Straus, "who so generously saved the lives of thousands of children."

LONDON AND SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"OUR MISS GIBBS."

One of the best of the Gaiety series is Our Miss Gibbs, and its continued success is well earned by reason of its story, music, and general smartness. The present visit of Mr. George Dance's company at the King's appears to show no loss of popularity, and the King's is crowded nightly, the audience enthusiastically appreciating the beautiful dresses of the bright and animated crowds at Garrod's Stores and the White City Court of Honour. Mr. Theodore Leonard, an exceedingly clever comedian, is cast for Timothy Gibbs, and he keeps the house in roars of laughter at his comical sayings and doings. A humorous Hughie Pierrepoint is Mr. Eustace Burnaby, his amateur criminal tactics being cleverly depicted; the professional "crook," Slithers, is ably impersonated by Mr. John Leopold, jun.; and Mr. Toplady, the manager at Garrod's, is typically played by Mr. Campbell Browne. Mr. Hugh Weybrance acts well and sings pleasantly as Lord Eynsford, and a decidedly effective Earl of St. Ives is Mr. Ernest Darrell. Mr. Reginald Weighill enacts the family solicitor, Mr. Beavis, with skill; Mr. Albert Cavendish is a capable taxi-cab driver; and Mr. Amalfy, the White City director, is well handled by Mr. Percy Clarbour. The title-rôle, Miss Gibbs, falls to the lot of Miss Jessie Lonnen, who does not fail to make herself as popular with the audience as she is at Garrod's Stores. She sings sweetly and distinctly, and dances with much grace. The Lady Elizabeth Thanet is daintily acted by Miss Lilian Birtles, whose singing is pleasant to the ear; Miss Helen Langton is a dignified and matronly Duchess of Minster; and Mrs. Farquhar, the impecunious woman of fashion, is drolly interpreted by Miss Emily Stevens. An extremely fascinating Madame Jeanne, the Scottish modiste at Garrod's, is Miss Ellaline Thorne, whose taking ways and charming appearance at once capture the audience. The Dudes prove themselves of excellent voice, and the ladies of the chorus sing and act energetically, and do justice to the elegant confections provided for them. Mr. Otto Manns ably conducts the orchestra.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Musical Play, entitled
"THE DOLLAR PRINCESS."

The latest musical production from Daly's Theatre, The Dollar Princess, made its initial bow to Marlburians on Monday night to a packed house. Musical comedy is a sure draw at this theatre, particularly when, as in this instance, it bears the hall-mark of a successful West-End run, and the house was crowded to its fullest capacity. The reception given the play was most enthusiastic, the light and melodious music and the superb mounting and dressing appealing with eloquent force to all those present. Mr. Leonard Mackay is indefatigable in the rôle of Freddy Fairfax, and his easy, natural style at once made him a firm favourite. He sings capitally, all his numbers being received with enthusiasm. Miss Norah Barry shows commendable knowledge of her art, and skilfully treats the many difficult passages with which the part abounds, giving altogether a delightful interpretation of Alice. Mr. Leslie Stiles is eminently suited as Harry P. Conder, and is a huge success in the part. The rôle of Mr. Bulger is undertaken with resource and an adequate conception of all its humorous possibilities by Mr. W. H. Rawlins, whose capital embodiment is marked with many characteristic and mirth-provoking touches. Dick is admirably conceived by Mr. Howard Cridland, and Mr. Paul Plunkett humorously treats the part of Jonn, Earl of Quorn; Mr. Percy Davison as Sir James McGregor and Mr. E. J. Wood as the Duke of Stonehenge perform their rôles with ability; Miss Mabel Russell is a captivating and dainty Daisy, admirably employing an excellent voice and contributing several neat and skilful dances. The character of Olga, the Lion Queen, is cleverly realised by Madeline Seymour, her clear enunciation being an important attribute in her favour. The remaining parts are well cast, and Mr. Fred Seymour is a highly efficient stage-manager. An important element of the production is the consistent energy of the well-chosen chorus, and the Marlborough orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Ernest Irving, also does excellent work.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Play, by Arthur Conan Doyle, entitled
"THE SPECKLED BAND."

Members of Mr. Arthur Hardy's Globe Theatre company are at Dalston this week with the sensationally interesting play, founded by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle on one of the adventures of Sherlock Holmes, and entitled The Speckled Band. The weird character of Dr. Grimesby Rylott, the retired Anglo-Indian surgeon, whose powerful personality dominates the story, is undertaken by Mr. Bassett Roe, who succeeds in thoroughly retaining the interest of his audiences from his first appearance at the inquest with which the play opens until the final tragic scene. Miss Geraldine Le Sage pleasantly enacts the part of Enid Stonor, the wily doctor's step-daughter. Her assumption of depression and dread at the commencement and close of the play is in good contrast with her vivacity and confidence in certain other parts of the story. The doctor's housekeeper, Mrs. Staunton, has a convincing representative in Miss Gwendoline Floyd, the actress well sustaining the sinister character of the woman. A quietly effective conception of the old butler Rodgers stands to the credit of Mr. A. Corney Grain, and Dr. Rylott's Indian valet Ali is represented subtly by Mr. Wilton Ross. A character which serves as one break in the tragic story is that of Mr. Armitage, the village grocer. The quaint humour of this kind-hearted creature is well portrayed by Mr. Harry Ashford. Mr. J. J. Bartlett is a most business-like and legally dignified coroner. Mr. H. Ainger is coroner's officer, Mr. Geoffrey Hill impersonates Inspector Downing, while Mr. Frank Ridley is foreman of the jury. Mr. Arthur Vezim is Mr. Scott Wilson, engaged to Enid's sister, whose untimely end forms the subject of the coroner's inquest. Mr. Claude King has some busy work to do as Dr. Watson, and does it remarkably well. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury's Sherlock Holmes is a careful study of the character—cool, calculating, and withal courageous. Master W. Weymouth causes amusement as Billy, the detective's page-boy. Some good scenes are also provided by the following, who appear as clients of Mr. Sherlock Holmes: Mr. Moult Loaming (represented by Mr. A. C. Craig), Mrs. Soames (Miss Joyce Francis), Mr. James B. Montague (Mr. A. Corney Grain), and Mr. Milverton (Mr. Frank Ridley).

LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Drama, entitled
"THE COASTGUARD'S DAUGHTER."

Mr. J. A. Campbell's latest play is appealing powerfully to audiences at the Hammersmith Lyric, where it is presented by the author's company. Mr. Gerald Jordan as Lieutenant Marchant handles his part with admirable address; Derek Mason, the juvenile lead, falls to Mr. Guy Hastings, who sustains the part with power; Mr. T. Lionel Ellis as John Melrose gives a fine rendering of the devoted father; Mr. Finn Doyle as Jerry Dale affords great amusement; and Miss Babs Stuart as Nanoya, the Cingalee girl, ably abets him. Mr. Douglas Tremayne is convincing and dignified as the President of the Court-martial; and Mr. L. Lawrence as Judge Advocate is excellent. Lieut. Arthur Barclay, in the hands of Mr. Stanley Vine, appeals to the house; and to Mr. W. Webb is suitably allotted the part of Sir Dennis Jermyn. Mr. E. H. Clarke finds the part of Captain Sternroyd, the prosecutor, full of scope, which he rightly appreciates. The old story of confiding womanhood and innocence betrayed is pathetically and realistically told by Miss Gertrude F. Godart as Audrey Melrose, duped into a bigamous marriage by Lieut. Marchant; and a gay and frivolous Parisienne is realistically portrayed by Miss Janice Deane.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Play entitled
"A WHITE MAN."

That thrilling drama of life in Western America A White Man, presented by Mr. Herbert Sleath's company, has scored an immediate success. The play is one which gives opportunity for some effective staging and picturesque dressing, and full advantage was taken of this in the production. The Indian scenes in Acts III. and IV. appealed with especial force to the audience, and at their conclusion enthusiastic curtain calls were given. Mr. Sleath has enlisted the services of an exceedingly strong company, and the various characters are enacted with much ability. Mr. Frank Petlen gives a vivid and powerful sketch of Jim Carston; and Miss Dorothy Edwards enacts Nat-u-rich with much naturalness. Mr. Charles Maunsell is an excellent Earl of Kerhill; and Mr. Harold Richardson is amusing as Sir John Applegate. Mr. Vernon Sansbury contributes a graphic portrait of Cash Hawkins; and Mr. Henry Du Val is very good as the Barkeeper. Miss Enid Gass supplies a sympathetic interpretation of the Countess of Kerhill, acting with much grace and charm. Miss Elsie Buller is bright and lively as Lady Mabel Wynnegate; and Little Hal is neatly played by Miss Nora Nagle. Mr. John M. East makes a capital Big Bill; and picturesque cowboys are Messrs. W. W. Bannister, James McWilliam, and Dan Erlston, who infuse considerable humour into their acting. Mr. Lewis Sealy makes a very good Solicitor; and Mr. Charles Forster is well placed as the Dean. The striking part of the Indian Chief is impressively delineated by Mr. Oswald Lingard; and Mr. James Jolly is quite at home as the Interpreter. Mr. James E. Page is a typical American Sheriff; Miss Gertrude Price creditably undertakes the part of the Dowager Lady Kerhill; Mr. Ernest Heaton, Mr. Thomas Sunday, and Mr. Alfred Jagis deserve mention as Captain Wynnegate's brother officers; and other small parts are ably sustained by Messrs. J. Watts, D. Douglas, J. Williams, D. Walters, J. Rogers, A. Davidge, F. Stone, and Miss Beatrice Martin.

FULHAM THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Play in Four Acts, entitled
"MONTE CRISTO."

Mr. Junius Booth, supported by a competent company, is revisiting Fulham with a new and revised version of this famous romance. Mr. Booth's representation of the hero is as full of spirit and fire as ever, and he "ticks off" his enemies with the same remorseless energy as of yore, nor does he fail to win sympathy for the hero's sufferings. Mr. Millar Anderson gives a most satisfactory rendering of Nortier; he makes the character live, and plays the part with a graceful ease and a nice sense of humour that is very pleasing. Mr. H. Bannister does well as Danglers, and shows his meanness and jealousy effectively. Mr. C. W. Crowe is quite satisfactory as Mondego; and Mr. J. Hawden is the same as Villefort. Mr. Fred Elwin is fresh and bright as the young Morcef; while Mr. F. Martin and Mr. A. E. Henderson do all that is wanted as the Abbe Fara and M. Morel. Mr. J. Sangar plays Caderousse with an effective touch of broad comedy. Miss Alice West shows power in the sinister character of La Coronte; while Miss Lillian Deane is good as Mercedes.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Play, by Wilson Barrett, entitled
"LUCKY DURHAM."

A welcome change in a long series of melodramatic plays dealing with all kinds of "girls," "women," and "daughters," is the late Wilson Barrett's last success, Lucky Durham, ably presented by a capable company, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Leigh. In the name-part of John Durham Mr. Edmund Kennedy is very successful. He adopts a quiet and dignified manner throughout, working up his many strong scenes with an ease and earnestness which is most pleasing to witness. Mr. William Calvert gives a fair representation of Lord Mountfallon, although in appearance his make-up is more like a well-to-do tradesman than a nobleman. Mr. Arthur Leigh is very amusing as the Hon. Reginald Steighton. This "dude" character gives him ample scope to exercise the very keen sense of humour which he possesses. Mr. Chas. Wemyss gives a good impression of the somewhat narrow-minded, yet distinctly straightforward, Mr. Vallerton, and Mr. Frank Elton does well as Arthur Walcombe. Miss Gertrude Robins is a charming lady and also a brilliant actress. Her performance on Monday evening in the character of Helen Vallerton was a natural and effective one, only marred by a slight uncertainty in some of her lines. As the Hon. Margaret Steighton Miss Dorothy Turner was winsome and entertaining, making the most of the few opportunities afforded by the part. Miss Nellie Bonser acted in a sympathetic manner as Mrs. Durham, and Miss Frances Wolviston was quite good as Lady Mountfallon.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Nov. 21, The Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE KING OF CADONIA."

The attraction this week at the Shakespeare Theatre is the great musical success The King of Cadonia, which is admirably presented by Mr. Frank Curzon's No. 1 company. The piece, as is customary with all productions sent out by Mr. Curzon, is as elaborately dressed and mounted as a West End production, and has also the advantage of a high-class company, including Mr. Bertram Wallis in his original part of Alexis, King of Cadonia. Mr. Wallis, who met with a hearty reception on Monday, repeated his former success, and his acting and singing evoked considerable applause. Mr. Arthur Staples was very funny as the Duke of Alasia, his humorous antics causing roars of laughter; Mr. Robert Selby is to be commended for a soldierly portrayal of General Bonski, his brusque manner being well in keeping with the rôle; Mr. Lawrence Robbins was very effective as Captain Laski, and Mr. Francis Howard as Lieut. Jules; Mr. Lewis Russell as Lieut. Saloff and Mr. C. H. Hobson as Corpl. Polski were capable representatives of their respective parts; Mr. Alfred Clarke was a decidedly amusing Bran; Mr. Alec Buchanan an eccentric Panix; and Mr. C. B. Williams as Laborde, leader of the Anti-Royalists, was thoroughly satisfactory. Miss Alice Moffat was a charming and winsome Princess Marie; Miss Jean Penrose a smart and vivacious Militza; Miss Queenie Preston a dignified Duchess of Alasia; and Miss Amy Preston did well as Stephanis.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE MERRY WIDOW."

The melodious and mirthful Merry Widow, as expounded by Mr. George Edwardes's capital company, is still an excellent antidote for a "fit of the blues," whether caused by inclement weather, Form IV., election prospects, or any other of the ills that encompass mankind. The piece is dressed, mounted, and staged with all the sumptuousness to which Mr. George Edwardes has accustomed us, and a very first-rate "show" is the result. Miss Louie Pounds can hold her own with the best of her predecessors as Sonia of the title-rôle, in the matter of charm, witchery of manner, and sweet singing, and is quite au fait in "The Merry Widow" waltz. She wins all hearts by her taking personality, comeliness, and grace. Mr. Basil S. Foster is equally prominent as Prince Danilo, and acts as to the manner born, with verve, virility, and sincerity, while his dancing is quite a tour de force; Mr. Lionel Victor has a quaint and engrossing way as the frivolous-minded Baron Popoff, and his humour is natural and unforced; Mr. Grafton Williams does good work as General Novakovitch; and Mr. Edward McKeown sings remarkably well as the Vicomte Camille de Jolidon. Miss Gwendoline Brogden as Frou-Frou creates quite a sensation by her daring exposition of the calisthenic art in the Apache Dance, and Miss Victoria Sievers as "the dutiful wife" Natalie gains her fair share of the laurels. Mr. Tom Redmond does well in the part of Nisch, and Mr. E. C. St. J. Ronaldson as St. Brioche, and Mr. Bert Edwards as the head waiter at Maxim's are good; whilst a bevy of beauty comprises Misses Ida Stockwell, Phil Smith, Maud Diamond, Claire Latus, Ivy Moore, and Queenie Carlisle.

THE BRITANNIA.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Drama, entitled
"THE BEGGAR GIRL'S WEDDING."

Melville drama is again proving very popular at Hoxton, The Beggar Girl's Wedding playing to crowded houses. As the villain, Gilbert Lindsay, Mr. William T. Riley is responsible for some excellent acting, and is duly hissed and hooted. Maud Villiers, his partner in crime, is well maintained by Miss Ernestine Walter, who meets with a like reception. As Doctor Millbank Mr. Charles Barclay gives a fine representation of the hunchback doctor. Mr. Norman B. Cannon as Jack Cunningham gives a manly and convincing performance; Mr. Frank McClellan as Norman Marsh is excellent in both humour and pathos; Mr. Herbert Goddard as Robert Grimshaw is an ideal family lawyer; and Mr. B. Elton is all that could be desired as his clerk. Mr. Fred Hodson is very commendable as Dicky Storm, and he soon makes himself popular; Miss Daisy Meynard contributes some refreshing humour in the character of Tina Torkington; the doings of Joe Webster and the Dodger are watched with keen interest, and the parts are capitally characterised by Mr. Wilford Bailey and Mr. Ellis D. Carlyle respectively. Miss Muriel Dean, the possessor of much natural grace, gives a charming and sympathetic portrayal of the Beggar Girl; Miss Sybil Hare is very refined and winning as Elsie Cunningham; Mr. George Vernon capably enacts the rôle of P.C. Phillips; and Mr. David Cartwright does well as the Rev. Mr. Melson. Messrs. H. Stone and J. Greene as Frequenters of the Embankment, Mr. C. Brown as Thompson, a Waiter, Miss Linda Riley as Lizzie, and Mrs. Wilson as Old Cloe, all lend valuable assistance. The piece is capitally staged, and the dresses, as usual, are noticeable features. Mr. Frank Howard and Mr. Arthur Rosebery are respectively general-manager and advance-manager for Mr. Walter Melville.

THE FORESTERS'.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Drama, by W. A. Brabner, entitled
"FOR THE COLOURS."

The principals of this cosy establishment in the East End have dispensed with variety items for the present, and are giving drama instead. Excellent business is being done with the stirring military piece For the Colours, with Mr. Wingold Lawrence as Captain Roland Vereker, a character which is portrayed throughout in a perfect manner, specially fine dramatic work being shown in the scene of Van Blumen's Store Shed, and also in the defence of the Drift. Capital acting is furnished by Mr. Douglas Murray as Lieutenant Hansford; the character of the Boer Van Blumen was well cared for by Mr. William Bradford, his many acts of (stage) treachery being carried through in the cool and callous manner demanded; Miss Eugene Magnus as Mrs. Vereker gave a clever study of a rather difficult character; Miss Heba Barlow as Doris was delightful, her easy style and pleasant manner being decidedly entertaining; Mr. A. Howard as Braddon showed to advantage; and Mr. E. Robertson as Sprouts and Miss Ada Tilley as 'Liza are responsible for much hearty laughter. The producer and stage-manager is Mr. H. G. Brandon.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Play entitled
"THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's No. 1 company, with their very successful Lyceum drama, have been doing good business here this week, for the reputation of the play had preceded it, and the large audiences assembled enjoyed and appreciated the strong situations, the pathos, and the great interest of the story to the full. Mr. G. Mayor-Cooke was a soldier-like martinet as Prince Hildred, and gave his lines with much vigour and point, forming a sharp contrast to the melancholy of the crippled Prince Michael, so intelligently acted by Mr. Lionel Gadsden, who did not spare himself in the clever portrayal of the unhappy hunchback. Mr. Ernest Cox as the handsome Prince Olaf was well suited to the part, his frank diction and gallant bearing gaining him the sympathy of all. Mr. Hugh Selwyn had a difficult task to infuse interest into the character of Nathan, the dumb servant, but in this he succeeded admirably. As Monica Princess of Allyria, Miss Miriam Pritchett scored heavily, and charmed her subjects on the stage; and Miss Jessica Black gave a naïve embodiment of the young girl in love, Viola. Miss F. Hale-Daviss as Camiola, the beggar-maid, sang sweetly and acted earnestly. The Captain Hector of Mr. Fred D. Daviss was excellently played, and the actor has so much to do with the story that he is rarely off the stage. He was ably seconded by Mr. Charles V. Sandford as Lieut. Karl Stromberg, whose comedy and sprightliness contributed much to the "go" of the play. Mr. Adam Alexander as the Bishop of Illyria gave a well-considered portrait of the self-seeking prelate; and Mr. J. Chamberlain as Colonel Wellenberg was a bluff old warrior and a type of the jovial veteran. The play was handsomely and appropriately dressed throughout, and formed another attractive engagement in Mr. J. Bannister Howard's season.

IMPERIAL, CANNING TOWN.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Military Drama,
"LIGHTS OUT."

At the elegant Canning Town Palace this week Mr. J. W. Lindsay Ellis's company have been presenting Franz Adam Beyerlein's intense, if somewhat gloomy German military drama, Lights Out, which, it will be remembered, was produced by Mr. H. B. Irving at the Waldorf Theatre, on Oct. 25, 1905. Audiences have been deeply impressed by the court-martial scene in the barracks of the Alsace-Lotraine Frontier, where young Corporal Helbig maintains a rigid silence when questioned as to the reason of his assault on Lieutenant Von Lauffen, and also by the excellence of the acting in the concluding scene where that fine old soldier, Sergeant Volkhardt, determined on fighting a duel with Lieutenant Von Lauffen, who has betrayed his daughter Klara, is prevented because he—Volkhardt—is a non-commissioned officer. Rather than let Klara go freely, as she expresses a wish to, to the arms of her lover, the old man shoots her dead, and it is upon this tragic ending that the curtain falls. Mr. Lindsay Ellis's company is an excellent all-round one, and unstinted praise may be accorded to Mr. L. Tessier for his powerful and convincing representation of the elderly sergeant, his grief when it is disclosed that it is his daughter who was in the young lieutenant's rooms being poignantly expressed, and his performance throughout being a very acute and sound one. Mr. B. Maresfield gave an admirable delineation of young Lieutenant Von Lauffen; Mr. George Barnes as the loyal Corporal Helbig was responsible for a quietly impressive representation; Mr. A. T. Barugh as Corporal Queiss, and Mr. George Austin as Lieutenant Von Howen, both contributed capital portrayals; and the foppish Captain Von B. Bannewitz of Mr. Frank Stuart was a mirth-provoking and agreeable performance. Mr. Charles Western was duly severe as the president of the Court-martial, Major Paschke; and Messrs. William Rose, Robert Sefton, Alfred Turner, A. C. Clark, E. Rolston, and Eric Cunliffe, all gave satisfactory support. Miss Sylvia Morris as Klara Volkhardt was a very pathetic figure in the court-martial scene, where she comes forward and admits she was in the Lieutenant's room and the cause of the quarrel between Von Lauffen and Helbig, and in the last act played with a quiet intensity that was very convincing, clearly suggesting her unselfish love for Von Lauffen, for whom she is willing to risk everything. Altogether a charmingly natural and effective portrayal. The play was ably mounted and dressed in first-class style, and keenly interested the audience on the night of our visit. In the intervals and at the conclusion some amusing pictures were screened.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Drama, by Edward Morris, entitled
"A CRIMINAL'S BRIDE."

Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is here this week with the latest of Mr. Morris's plays, and is playing to record houses. Mr. Frank Robertson is a smart, manly hero, and deserves every ounce of the applause accorded him for his rendering of Sir Harry Felstead. Austin Deepdale is effectively played by Mr. Annesley Hely; Miss Elizabeth Dundas as Lcoender Loseby gives an altogether admirable portrayal; a capital character study is that of Mr. Herbert Belmore as Giuseppe Canova, as is also that given by Mr. J. Templar Ellis as Detective Mitchell. Excellent light comedy impersonations are Sir Harry's sister Kitty and his friend, Archie Ravenscroft, smartly played by Miss Maud Tremaine and Mr. Harry T. Butler. Humour is also infused into the play by Miss Molly Hackett disguised as a "tiger," and P.C. Dumbleby, funnily played by Mr. Geo. Brentwood. The remaining parts are all well enacted, and the drama is excellently mounted and staged.

ROYAL ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"OUR MISS GIBBS."

Mr. Jules Richeux, the enterprising manager here, must be congratulated upon securing Mr. George Dance's principal company in Our Miss Gibbs, and right well do the patrons appreciate his efforts in having secured one of the best shows on the road. Miss Daisie Wallace is a distinct success as our Miss Gibbs, her acting and singing being alike admirable, and she is a huge favourite. Her scenes with Mr. Douglas Phillips as Lord Eynsford are a credit to both artists. Miss Dorothy Harris is a dainty Lady Elizabeth Thanet, and is the possessor of an excellent soprano voice, and uses it to the utmost advantage; the Duchess of Minster is ably played by Miss Madge Lucas; Miss Florence Hylton is capital as the scheming impecunious woman of fashion, Mrs. Farquhar; as the amateur criminal, the Hon. Hughie Pierpoint, Mr. J. Heribert Willis is responsible for a god impersonation, and he is ably backed up by Mr. J. S. Durrant as a professional "crook," Slithers. Mr. A. Gordon Begg is a satisfactory Earl of St. Ives, as also is Miss Louie Beckman as Madame Jeanne, the modiste at Garrod's Stores. Very funny is Mr. Vincent Erne as Mary's Yorkshire cousin, Timothy Gibbs. The remaining characters are all capably filled.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Nov. 21, the Play entitled
"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH."

Those who visited the Royal County Theatre this week were amply repaid, and many of them tendered their congratulations to Mr. Peter Davey, the enterprising managing-director of the theatre, for giving them another opportunity of renewing acquaintance with one of the most lovable women at present on the English stage. Miss Lucy Beaumont filled the part of the heroine of the cabbage patch most admirably, and was en rapport with her hearers from the very beginning of the play till the end. Her impersonation of the part was a triumph of acting, and she was frequently rewarded with well-deserved applause. Equally creditable were the performances of Mr. Fred Forrest as Mr. Stubbins and of Miss Armine Grace as Miss Hazy. The latter, being always impressively ridiculous without being ridiculously impressive, her inanities, though they appealed to the risible faculties, always indicated a strong substratum of human nature. Mr. Forrest was a typical American as Stubbins, and showed a fine appreciation of the part. Miss Winifred Murray gave a touching picture of the runaway, Lovey Mary, and fine character sketches were presented by Miss Sybil Brook as the severe Mrs. Eichorn and by Miss Violet Vivian as the elephantine German lady, Mrs. Schultz. Others in a particularly strong company who may be mentioned are Miss Ethel O'Brien as Miss Lucy, Mr. Robert Nailance as Mr. Bob, and Mr. Ernest Grey as Mr. Wiggs. The mounting and the dressing of the play is all that could be desired.

"THE FULL MOON."

A Comedy in One Act, by Lady Gregory, Produced for the First Time at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, on Thursday, Nov. 10.

Bartley Fallon ..... Mr. Arthur Sinclair
Shawn Early ..... Mr. J. A. O'Rourke
Hyacinth Halvey ..... Mr. Fred O'Donovan
Mrs. Broderick ..... Miss Sara Allgood
Peter Tannion ..... Mr. Sydney J. Morgan
Miss Joyce ..... Miss Eileen O'Doherty
Cracked Mary ..... Miss Maire O'Neill
Davideen ..... Mr. J. M. Kerrigan

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Lady Gregory's cleverness is proved in the above playlet, the scene of which is laid in a shed at an Irish railway station where a number of peasants have assembled. Hyacinth appears as the priest's boy, and endeavours to live up to his reputation. He is waiting to meet the priest at the station, but hearing that there is to be a fair at Caragh on the next day; the desire to be there becomes irresistible. Cracked Mary and Davideen, a crazy pair, are listening to the others talking about a mad dog, and laugh to themselves at the madness of the people who are supposed to be sane. The moon is up, and the peasants are afraid to face it lest it would do them harm; but Cracked Mary and Davideen go out to greet it. Halvey commences then to talk strangely, and the others conclude he is mad, and proceed to tie him up. He hears the whistle of the train, and he commences to bark like a dog. The people are terrified, and fall over each other in their panic, and Halvey dashes off and boards the train for Caragh.

The comedietta is distinguished by some excellent and original humour and clever repartee. Miss Maire O'Neill had an excellent chance to display her clever and versatile abilities in the rôle of Cracked Mary, which she did to perfection. Hyacinth Halvey was admirably played by Mr. Fred O'Donovan. The remaining parts were capably fulfilled.

"FALSE DAWN."

Play in Three Acts, by Morley Roberts and "Henry Seton," Produced by the Play Actors at the Court Theatre on Sunday, Nov. 20.

Hector Durant ..... Mr. Norman Trevor
Dr. Tom Courtney ..... Mr. H. Nye Chart
Matthews ..... Mr. Charles King
Lady Hale ..... Miss Marie Linden
Lady Anne Pulleine ..... Miss Esmé Beringer
Felicia St. John ..... Miss Gillian Scaife
Stent ..... Miss Florence Harcourt

Mr. Morley Roberts and "Henry Seton's" comedy with a serious interest, False Dawn, is certainly one of the best pieces given by the Play Actors. It is admirably written, containing many amusing lines, and there are some delightful little comedy scenes and one very dramatic one. Capitally played by every member of the cast as it was on Sunday evening, it gave evident pleasure to a large and enthusiastic audience, and it should be seen again.

Lady Hale, who has recently been left a widow, and her young companion, Felicia St. John, are at the opening of the play engaged in settling up the affairs of her late husband, Sir George. His executors, Hector Durant and Dr. Tom Courtney, are busy in a like manner in another part of the house. The turning out of the contents of a number of drawers provides some amusement, and incidentally we guess that "dear Sir George" was not entirely faithful to Lady Hale. Lady Hale is anxious that Hector Durant, who was her husband's secretary, shall write his biography, which he ultimately consents to do. Dr. Courtney, a genial, plain-spoken man of the world, is in love with Felicia St. John, but that pert young person will not let him see that she returns his affections, although it is soon evident she is jealous of his acquaintance with any other lady. He has a telegram from Lady Anne Pulleine, which he reads and throws into the waste-paper basket; but the watchful Felicia manages to obtain it unseen and peruse it. Lady Anne, it appears, had some years previously come under the influence of Sir George's remarkable personality, and had, we gather, been his mistress. The doctor knows this; Sir George on his deathbed had confessed "that he loved her best of all," and having in a cabinet some letters from her had sent her the key. She must obtain possession of these, and it is with this object that she comes to Lady Hale's house. Lady Hale, of course, has no idea of the liaison between her husband and Lady Anne, and evidently has a great regard for her. On her arrival, the conversation again turns on the biography, and Lady Hale remarks that perhaps Lady Anne, whom she knew was a great friend and admirer of her husband, might be able to relate some anecdote or experience with regard to Sir George that would add interest to the "life."

Lady Anne hereupon faints—or pretends to; the suspicious Felicia notes all, and her treatment of the distressed woman is markedly cool. Asked to be left alone with Lady Anne, when she has recovered, the doctor advises her as to her plan of action. He is called away to an urgent case; she must appear to be indisposed, stay the night, and manage to get the letters from the cabinet. We must here mention that Hector Durant, who had years previously met her abroad, has fallen deeply in love with Lady Anne, and now proposes to her. His affection is reciprocated; but her one false step makes Lady Anne hesitate about accepting. She loves him dearly, however, and eventually admits as much to Hector, promising to become his wife. The significance of the title is here explained, Lady Anne reminding Hector of a ride they had in the desert, in which they came upon what appeared to be the dawn, but was only a false one, the real being reached later on.

In the next act, when all have retired for the night, Lady Anne comes into the room, opens the cabinet, and abstracts the letters—others besides those written by her. Of course, she is disturbed by Felicia, who calls her a thief, and threatens to expose her. But among the letters are also some from Felicia to Sir George, and the angry and jealous girl is eventually forced to admit that she herself was saved from Sir George by Lady Anne. Lady Anne generously gives Felicia her letters, but the treacherous Felicia is even then not satisfied, and obtains possession of Anne's. There is a powerful scene here, in which finally Anne looks like choking Felicia if she will not drop the compromising letters. Then there is another disturbance, and Hector Durant comes in. The two distraught women explain their presence as best they can, and Felicia is allowed to go to her room. Soon Durant's eyes light on the open cabinet, and he sees the letters of Felicia to Sir George on the floor, and reads them, and tells Anne how good it is of her to get them to save Felicia. But Anne finally allows him to see her own letters, and confesses all. She swears she never loved Sir George, but his influence was too much for her! The only man she has ever really loved is Durant. Durant is horrified at what she tells him, and the girl, realising that all is over between them, leaves him, imploring him to read her letters to Sir George. There is, however a happy ending for all in the last act. Durant cannot help loving Lady Anne, and freely forgives her; Felicia, recognising what a little beast she has been, craves the pardon of Lady Anne—ungrudgingly given; and there is also a delicious little proposal scene between the doctor and Felicia. And when Lady Hale asks what was in the locked cabinet, and is told that it was empty, she is quite satisfied.

As we have remarked, the play was admirably performed throughout, Miss Esmé Beringer as Lady Anne Pulleine enacting a difficult rôle with a quiet intensity that was very effective, skilfully indicating the suffering and anguish of the erring woman. The scene in the second act between her and Felicia, and also when she confesses all to her lover, was admirably handled, and altogether Miss Beringer may be congratulated on a distinctly successful and clever creation. As the jealous and spiteful Felicia Miss Gillian Scaife was also responsible for an excellent all-round portrayal, and acted with charming naturalness in the lighter phases of the character, the incident where she begs Lady Anne's forgiveness for her cruel behaviour being acted with real feeling, and the representation all through being an acute and finished one. Miss Marie Linden again gave one of her unimpeachable creations, her enactment of the talkative and amiable widow being a very diverting and artistic one; and Miss Florence Harcourt was amusing as the servant Stent. Mr. Norman Trevor played Hector Durant with a manliness and sincerity that was very effective, particularly powerful being his acting in the second act with Lady Anne; and Mr. H. Nye Chart as the good-natured, tolerant Doctor Courtney played an agreeable part with ease and much quiet humour; Mr. Charles King fulfilling all requirements as Matthews.

"The Thunderbolt," by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, was performed for the first time in New York at the New Theatre on the 12th inst. Mr. Louis Calvert appeared as James Mortimore (the rôle he originated in London), and the masterful nature of the man was faithfully represented. Mr. A. E. Anson's embodiment of Thaddeus Mortimore was sincere and impressive. Helen Thornhill was sweetly and naturally acted by Miss Olive Wyndham, and the part of Phyllis was well played by Miss Thais Lawton. Messrs. E. M. Holland, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Albert Bruning, Frank Gillmore, and Ben Johnson contributed impersonations that were satisfactory in every respect. Recognised as a powerful and vivid drama, it is thought to be too depressing to become widely popular.

AN ACTRESS ON "EMOTION."

Miss Cicely Hamilton, the authoress of Diana of Dobson's, gave an interesting lecture to the Sheffield Playgoers' Society last week on "Emotion, and its Place on the Modern Stage."

How far is the art of the theatre bound to be emotional? was the question she first set herself to answer Like every other art, it was very hard to define, but Miss Hamilton gave her definition of it as the effective expression of the memory of emotion. That being her dogma, it was obvious she considered emotion absolutely necessary to art of any kind, and more especially to the art of the theatre. It was commonplace to say that the art of the theatre had to make the widest of all appeals. An artist could paint a picture, and a novelist could write a book for a few, but the numbers had to be multiplied very many times over before a playwright could get success in a theatre in any degree at all. If he could not succeed in attracting the many thousands he would very shortly disappear from the theatre altogether.

He therefore had to find a very broad ground of appeal. He had to appeal to the people in the gallery, and to people in the stalls. He had to find out what were the common feelings of those in the stalls and in the gallery, and work upon them. That was where the difficulty of purely intellectual drama came in. Men's brains varied a very great deal more than their hearts. "You can much more easily appeal to instinct, or roughly what they call the feelings or emotions in a large crowd of people, than you can to their various intelligences. It is to this rather original side of human nature that the drama appeals."

They would say, perhaps, that she had a very low opinion of dramatic art, but the original side could be cultivated just as highly as the intellectual. At any rate, it was shared far more in common.

"We understand each other through our feelings much more than through our reasoning powers, and that is why in the theatre you have somehow or other to work upon the emotions. The idea which underlies a play must be one that is susceptible to emotional treatment. You cannot have just an idea itself. You have in some way to make it become emotional." Any mere fact of life that had to go through the crucible of art had first to be taken to the intelligence, and then by some curious process had to become a living reality through the emotions. Until that was done, art was not a living thing. They could not have a successful comedy of manners unless it were built upon an idea that was essentially emotional.

How far, she asked, did the tendencies of modern drama fall in with that idea? Both in rank melodrama, and in what was called the drama of ideas, there was this fault in common—they were both inclined to minimise the human emotions. "The modern drama, it seems to me, aims towards a faithful representation of life, but of ordinary and rather unemotional life." The human element had retreated into the background. The same tendency could be observed in the use of scenery where the spectacular might be so massive and mighty that it would have the effect of reducing little angry souls to little angry mice.

"To hold the mirror up to nature" did not mean to be the thing. "The idea of being natural on the stage is perfectly ridiculous and impossible. You are presenting life through a peculiar and artificial medium. You can look natural after years of training, but to be natural and true—no." It was impossible to take life as it was and put it on the stage. In so far as modern drama tended to be too realistic, to be too natural, to do away with emotion, and to substitute photographic realism or mechanical effects for emotion, it was absolutely on the wrong track. Miss Hamilton spoke with great interest on the necessity for the individual touch of the dramatist, and in illustrating her argument on the subject of realism she graphically related the unexpected meeting of two women, devoted to each other, who had quarrelled. They suffered intense agony while they remained in the room amongst other people, none of whom except Miss Hamilton knew anything at all about the circumstances.

One sat rather quiet; the other chatted quite freely, until under the stress of the situation she had to find an excuse to leave. They were terrible, dramatic moments. It was a real tragedy of love, devotion, and misunderstanding. But if they tried to get the real truth of that upon the stage, they would have to present it in a way that it never happened.

ASAPHIANS AT WORK.

INSTALLATION MEETING.

The highly-prized honour in Freemasonry, the Worshipful Master's chair, was attained by Mr. A. B. Tapping on Tuesday last, when he was promoted by his Asaphian brethren to reign over them for the ensuing Masonic year. Mr. Tapping is a man of many activities. He is a director of the Royal General Theatrical Fund and an experienced actor, and all who know him testify to his high personal worth.

The installation ceremony and investiture of the officers of the Lodge took place at the Connaught Rooms, Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street.

(Asaph Lodge, 1,319).

The duties of installation were most efficiently rendered by Mr. Chris. Hilton, the outgoing Master. The officers who are to assist in carrying out the duties of the lodge during the coming year were appointed and invested by the W.M. They are as follows:—Messrs. Chris. Hilton, I.P.M.; Albert le Fre, S.W.; Frank Lister, J.W.; Charles Cruikshanks, P.A.G. Std. B., P.M., Treasurer; James W. Mathews, P.A.G.D.C., P.M., Secretary; Herbert Chenery, P.M., L.R., Assistant Secretary; Charles B. Powell, P.M., D.C.; E. W. Whitmore, P.M., Assist.D.C.; J. E. Hambleton, P.M., L.R., Organist; Antoine Cloetens, Asst. Organist; Rev. W. P. Besley, Chaplain; E. Wesley Woolhouse, S.D.; Tom Clare, J.D.; W. Edwyn Holloway, I.G.; Edward A. Pickering, First Steward; George H. Dyball, Second Steward; R. Douglas Cox, Third Steward; Oscar Grimaldi, Fourth Steward; J. Gilbert, Tyler.

In addition to the duties of installation and investiture, the other business transacted was the presentation to Mr. James E. Hambleton, Organist to the Lodge, of his London Rank clothing. Mr. Hambleton suitably acknowledged the honour. Mr. William Lestocq, an ideal Master of Ceremonies, made an important communication from Grand Lodge in a telling speech and gave valuable advice to the brethren concerning the same.

Asaph, the sweet singer of Israel, is the saint after whom this Lodge is named. The scroll of the Lodge bears the names of worthy devotees of music and the drama, who have at one time or another occupied the Worshipful Master's chair in the Asaph Lodge. It was a pleasing fact to note that one of the founders, W. Bro. James Weaver, and Bro. J. Gilbert (Tyler), who still holds office, were present on this occasion. Since the foundation of the Lodge the Masters have been:—

E. Stanton Jones (founder)	1870
Charles Coote (founder)	1871
John M. Chamberlain (founder)	1872
James Weaver (founder)	1873
Edward Frewin	1874

E. H. Bull	1906
Herbert Chenery	1907
Ernest H. Paterson	1908
Chris Hilton	1909
Alfred Benedict Tapping	1910

After the business of the Lodge the brethren, including the visitors, adjourned to the beautiful Crown Room of the Freemasons' Hall to partake of a splendid repast. On the menu was printed Macbeth's right royal invitation:—

"At first and last,
A hearty welcome."

The members and visitors who sat down to table were:—

MEMBERS.

Messrs. A. B. Tapping, Chris Hilton, James W. Mathews, Charles C. Cruikshanks, James Weaver, W. Lestocq, James D. Beveridge, J. Edward Hambleton, Charles B. Powell, E. W. Whitmore, Herbert Chenery, Rev. W. P. Besley, W. L. Barrett, Edward Humphrey, Charles J. Taylor, Tom Clare, Frank Lister, Wesley Woolhouse, W. E. Holloway, J. F. Carrodus, F. W. Crellin, Harry R. Mathews, Oscar Grimaldi, James C. Hambleton, H. Burrell Saunders, Nicola Coviello, Antoine Cloetens, George H. Dyball, John J. Birch, R. F. Howgill, Harry Locket, Jacques Van Heuvel, Franz Hachenberger, Desider Gottleib, J. J. Dallas, F. G. Hambleton, John Geary, F. H. Pedgrift, R. P. Black, Algernon Rose, and R. Douglas Cox.

VISITORS.

Messrs. W. J. Waterman, W. H. Warner, W. H. Towns, Bedford McNeill, Allen H. Collings, E. Lockwood, Charles Pond, A. H. Kendall, W. J. Harvey, E. Schulz, C. Aubrey Smith, Lewis Sydney, Walter J. Crumplin, George Lestocq, A. Abram, C. H. Smithyes, J. C. Skinner, and Lawson Lambert.

The usual Masonic toasts were proposed, and replied to in happy fashion, Messrs. Weaver, Hambleton, and Beveridge for "The Past Masters," Messrs. McNeill and Aubrey Smith for "The Visitors"; and the toast of "The Officers" was responded to by Messrs. Mathews, Lester, and Cruikshanks.

The Installing Master, Mr. Chris Hilton, received the handsome Past Master's jewel, as a happy tribute from the Lodge to mark the appreciation of his work during his year of office. For the amusement of the brethren an excellent programme was provided. The Rev. W. P. Besley, an excellent tenor, sang "My Mary" in tasteful fashion. Mr. Tom Clare gave a clever sketch at the piano, Mr. J. E. Hambleton, a master of the 'cello, played a Cantabile by Cæsar Cui. A blind pianist, Mr. H. J. Krumpeln, illustrated at the piano "In a cathedral in a storm," the playing of the organ in the cathedral and the rumblings of a storm outside being realistically given. Mr. Lewis Sydney caused hearty laughter by imitating a reciter with an impediment in his speech who thought he could describe "Kissing Cup's Race." Misses Violet Schultz and Florence Venning, a charming soprano and contralto, added to the harmony of the evening by singing well-chosen songs. Mr. Charles Pond, in his inimitable manner, gave no fewer than four of his clever "Glimpses of Life," and cleverly illustrated the veneration and idolatry of the bar frequenter for the "Fully-licensed Man," and contrasted this by showing the vulgar ostentation of the head of the house of "Greifenstein." Mr. C. J. Taylor sang a lyric in which in rhyme and song he cleverly described each officer of the Lodge.

THE LODGE OF ASAPH BANQUET AT THE CONNAUGHT ROOMS, GREAT QUEEN STREET, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 22ND, 1910.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, OCT. 18.—The return to Sydney of Miss Katharine Grey was signalised by a very fine performance of Paid in Full, by Eugene Walter. Miss Katharine Grey's performance as the wife is a triumph of artistic strength; Mr. Cyril Mackay as Brooks earns the hatred of the house; Mr. George Bryant is duly hard, incisive, and genuinely clever as Williams. As "Jimsy" Smith Mr. William Desmond, just from America, captures J. C. Williamson's patrons completely; Miss Susie Vaughan as Mrs. Harris is very funny; and Miss Florence Gleeson as Beth is quaint, and gives an enjoyable impersonation; and Sato is made picturesquely important by Mr. Leslie Victor. Three capital interiors are painted by Messrs. Gordon, Little, and Board. The play is produced by Mr. David J. Burton, and stage-managed by Mr. T. E. Foster.

"THE NIGHT OF THE PARTY" at the Criterion and Our Miss Gibbs at Her Majesty's are filling both houses' capacity. Why Men Love Women at the Palace is fulfilling Allan Hamilton's most sanguine expectations. Mr. Harry Rickards' fine company at the Tivoli is unchanged in its personnel. West's Pictures, Spencer's Theatrescope, the Victoria, King's, Queen's, and a dozen other picture-shows are doing enormous business.

MME. TERESA CARRENO has given farewell recitals, one in conjunction with the Sydney Symphony Orchestra, and she leaves with one more grateful memory of Sydney.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, NOV. 24.—This play of the talented young author was new to Berlin audiences, although it was given previously at Vienna. Its production at the Lessing had been long anticipated with eagerness, and every seat in the house was disposed of long before the performance. Herr Kirschfeld has drawn his play from an old German magazine serial, and the opening act presents a gruesome spectacle. We are introduced to the dissecting-room of an English anatomist, Dr. Arthur Lyde, to the "resurrection men," and to the beautiful corpse of Anna Gray. The period is the seventeenth century, when we are told the doctors made their researches upon bodies stolen from the graves to which they had just been committed. When the famous surgeon is about to commence his work, the fair subject opens her eyes; she had been in a trance, and was buried alive. Lyde's heart, which had never beaten for a woman before, goes pit-a-pat at the sight of the lovely girl on the dissecting table, who in her former life had been the promised wife of Lord Warwick. The experience she has passed through has robbed her of her memory, which circumstance is used to full advantage by Lyde. Anna Gray returns her lover's affection, and the pair flee to Italy, where, in Florence, they find a home in the house of the renowned physician, Malpighi, a friend of Lyde's. Here, in the course of time, their union is blessed by the birth of a son, but neither Anna nor Lyde is altogether happy. She is troubled by dim recollections of her former life, while his conscience pricks him for stealing another man's bride. Fate wills it that Lord Warwick, with Anna's sister Evelyn, comes to Florence, and cross Anna's path. The melody of an old familiar song does the rest; the girl regains her memory, and a catastrophe appears inevitable. The play at Vienna closed, too, with a tragedy; Lyde commits suicide, and Anna goes into a convent, but Herr Hirschfeld has made a new ending for Berlin. Lord Warwick proves himself a noble-hearted man, and Anna is now at liberty to live her "second life" in peace and happiness. The interpretation was admirable, as was only to be expected at the Lessing. Fräulein Triesch and Herr Sauer in the chief rôles gave splendid renderings, and the mounting was tasteful and correct in every detail.

At the Chamber Plays of the Deutsches Theatre the four-act comedy Der verwundete Vogel, by Alfred Capus, German by Julius Elias, proved a complete frost. It lasted four hours, and the impatience of the audience increased from act to act, until at the close the curtain fell to a storm of hisses seldom heard. That the failure was partly due to the slowness of the tempo is more than likely; there are very few theatres in Germany capable of giving French comedies adequately, no matter how excellent in their way the artists may be.

PROF. REINHARDT had, however, another huge success with the performance of Sophocles' König Eudipus, for which he engaged Busch's Circus in order to give the requisite effect to the mass scenes. The vast building was crowded in every part, and general hopes are expressed that the performance—which was a single one—may soon be repeated.

THE Royal Opera has reopened after something like a million marks has been spent upon its renovation. We would all have preferred that the money should have gone towards a new building worthy of Berlin, but the Kaiser's will is law, and we must possess our souls in patience. His Majesty ordered all the workmen who had been engaged upon the improvements to be summoned to the foyer half an hour before the opening performance of Die Meistersinger commenced. To each and all the Kaiser gave his hand, and expressed his thanks for their share in the work; he also added a medal of the Red Eagle, while the architects and managers received various gifts of jewellery. The Opera House is now patched up again, and will serve for another decade or so; meantime the population is increasing by leaps and bounds, as well as the yearly number of foreign visitors to the city, and tickets for the opera are scarcely to be had for love or money. The building is absurdly small for the demands made upon it, especially when it is remembered that the majority of seats go to persons in the Government and Court service.

"THE PORTRAIT."

A Dance Play, in One Act, Written and Composed by Dora Bright, Produced at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 24.

Claude Duvernoy	MR. GORDON CLEATHER
His Friend	MR. HENRI LAURENT
The Spanish Dancer	MISS MONA HARRISON

A new line in curtain-raisers is exploited in The Portrait, which was put on at a matinée at the Prince of Wales's on Thursday in readiness for the evening bill. The title is scarcely a happy one, for not only has it been used several times before, but it gives little indication of the character of the piece, which is a wordless dance play embellished by song. The story shows how a young Parisian artist falls in love with a picture he has painted, and expresses his devotion in a ballad. The portrait lacks one shoe, and the artist prepares to supply it, but is interrupted by the arrival of a friend, who invites him out to dinner. Lighting a cigarette, the painter falls asleep in his armchair, whereupon the figure emerges from the frame, and, like many another fabled heroine in similar circumstances, conceives an affection for the man who created her. She dances before him, and imprints a kiss on his lips, but is startled by the sound of voices, and returns to her gilt environment. Meanwhile the artist has awakened, and, seeing the shoe on the floor, concludes that the vision was a reality, but the shoe is suddenly transported to the picture, and when the artist's friend returns the former tries in vain to convince him that the incident was not a dream, and is himself left in a state of perplexity.

Acted entirely in pantomime, the playlet is distinguished chiefly by the dancing of Miss Mona Harrison, who made a picturesque figure of the Spanish señorita, and executed the dances characteristic of the country with grace and skill. Mr. Gordon Cleather, who was associated with the old English dances recently at the Coliseum, bore himself well as the young artist, and sang with taste and expression; and Mr. Henri Laurent suitably played the part of the friend. The music, which is continuous throughout, is melodious and appropriate, and was artistically rendered by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. H. Robertson Grimston. The little piece was produced by Mr. Fred Farren, and had a gratifying reception, five "curtains" indicating the measure of its success.

"DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW." By Albert A. Strong, LL.B. (London), Solicitor. Third Edition. Price 5s., post free 5s. 4d. Published by The Era, Limited, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR HERBERT TREE has kindly consented to take the chair at the "coming-of-age" dinner of the Actors' Association, to be held at the Criterion Restaurant on Sunday, Dec. 4, supported by Messrs. Arthur Bourchier, Henry Ainley, C. Hayden Coffin, and other prominent members of the profession. The guests of the evening are the founders of the Association, and amongst those who have accepted the Council's invitation are Mr. Robert Courtneidge, Mr. J. D. Beveridge, and Mr. M. R. Morand.

MR. W. F. FLADGATE, the hon. secretary of the presentation to Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, informs us that Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's state of health having made it impossible for her to sit for her portrait, she has suggested that the sum subscribed should be devoted to charitable purposes. The committee suggest that the fund should be applied for the benefit of the Children's Convalescent Home of the Victoria Hospital. They have ascertained that it will be sufficient to enable them to have a cot named in perpetuity the "Mrs. D'Oyly Carte Presentation Cot," and they propose that the right of nominating children as the successive occupants of the cot be placed at the disposal of the Actors' Benevolent Fund. This course meets Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's cordial approval.

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY, whose spine was severely injured some six weeks ago in a street accident, is still disabled, but is now comparatively free from pain, and, as we are glad to hear, no serious consequences are anticipated. The sympathies of all playgoers will be with Mr. Grundy, who has suffered excruciating agony in the course of his illness.

MISS ELLEN TERRY gave her second discourse on Shakespeare's heroines at the Hudson Theatre, New York, on the 10th inst. On this occasion the subject was "Shakespeare's Heroines—Pathetic," and Miss Terry spoke of Juliet, Cordelia, Desdemona, Ophelia, Lady Macbeth, Cleopatra, Viola, Hermione, Imogen, Ann in Richard III., Katharine of Aragon in Henry VIII., Helena, Julia, and Cressida, whom she characterised as Shakespeare's only useless woman. Helena in All's Well that Ends Well, and Julia in Two Gentlemen of Verona, Miss Terry said, belong to the doormat tribe of heroines, who seem to enjoy being maltreated and scorned. Miss Terry said it was probably due to Mrs. Siddons that the public had come to think of Lady Macbeth as a woman of brawn, who always wore short sleeves in order to display her muscular development. The audience was most enthusiastic.

SIR JOHN HARE has acquired the English and Colonial rights in Pierre Wolff's four-act play, Les Marionettes, which was produced in Paris, at the Comédie Francaise, last month. The English version will be presented in London by Sir John in conjunction with Mr. Charles Frohman.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER gave a dramatic recital, with music, of Mr. Stephen Phillips's Paolo and Francesca, at the St. James's Theatre, on Thursday afternoon, in aid of the Association for the Supply of Spectacles in London Elementary Schools. The society supplies spectacles to all children in the schools who require them, but whose parents are too poor to purchase them. The matinée was under the immediate patronage of Princess Christian. Mr. Percy Pitt's music was admirably performed by an orchestra conducted by Mr. William Robins, and students of the Royal College of Music formed the chorus and sang the Marriage Song at the end of the first act behind the scenes. Mr. Alexander, who had rearranged the play for reading purposes, announced at the conclusion of the recital that he was able to hand over to the society considerably over £250.

AMONGST those who will be present at Sir John Hare's unveiling of the Henry Irving statue, at 11.30, on Monday, Dec. 5, on the site in Charing Cross-road, at the back of the National Portrait Gallery, are the Mayor and Aldermen of Westminster. The statue is at present at the foundry in Mayfield, Sussex, where Mr. Brock, the sculptor, has a country house.

MR. J. A. E. MALONE, of the Adelphi, is hopeful as to the influence of the election on theatrical business. "I don't believe," he says in the Express, "that it will affect a sixpence where you've got good shows. It can't touch us anyway here, for we've sold out for the next three months. My experience in the business—and it is a long one—points only one way. Give the public a good thing and nothing will hurt the box office—not Christmas, nor a war, nor a general election, nor a cyclone. Of course, it will touch up the middling shows and kill the bad ones. By Dec. 3 the autumn tours are all over in the provinces, and the companies are coming back for 'refitting'—that is to say, getting new dresses, cleaning the old ones, refurbishing the scenery, and so on. So far, then, as the provincial tours go, the election this time starts on the very day when most of the tours are coming back home."

AT the dramatic performance to be given tomorrow evening at His Majesty's Theatre, which has been kindly lent for the occasion by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, in aid of the Playgoers' Club Pantomime Fund for Poor Children, Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh will appear in A Marriage has been Arranged; Miss Hilda Trevelyan and Mr. H. Nye Chart in 'Op o' my Thumb; Mr. Aubrey Smith and Miss Rosina Filippi in Colonel and Mrs. Henderson; Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney in The Dog Between; and Mr. Robert Horton and Miss Amy Ravenscroft in The Impertinence of the Creature. Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Sam Walsh, Mr. Hayden Coffin, Miss Florence Wray, Mr. Gwilym Wigley, Mr. Harrison Latimer, Mr. Clifford Morgan, and the Curlos will also contribute to the entertainment.

MR. H. B. IRVING'S return to the Queen's Theatre to produce a new play, has obliged Mr. Vedrenne to end (for the present) the run of Mrs. Skeffington. He will, however, revive the play, when opportunity arrives, at another theatre.

MR. HERBERT TRENCH, not being able to make arrangements for the transference of Countess Arnim's charming comedy, Priscilla Runs Away, from the Haymarket to another theatre, is compelled to withdraw it for the present from the bill there on Dec. 16, although still in the full tide of its success, in order to make room for the return of The Blue Bird, with a new act, on Dec. 19.

MR. R. C. CARTON, the author of Eccentric Lord Comberdene, which was produced at the St. James's on Saturday, writes to disclaim any of the "political partisanship" which some of the lines might suggest. "Eccentric Lord Comberdene," says Mr. Carton, "is a novelette—a phantasy—and in order to avoid the above accusation I purposely made it abundantly clear that a Conservative Government was in office at the period during which the story passes. The Marchioness of Glenmoray is the wife of the Minister for Foreign Affairs, and his attitude towards the Radical M.P. can leave no possible doubt as to the nature of her husband's political principles. I quite agree that a dramatist should avoid political bias—except in private life."

MR. WALTER PASSMORE sustained a severe shaking and was considerably bruised through an accident last Monday evening at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh. Mr. Passmore, as Smith, should have entered by aeroplane in the first act of The Arcadians, but the machine appeared without its passenger, and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull, managing-director of the theatre, came upon the stage and announced that Mr. Passmore had slipped and fallen from the rope attached to the aeroplane. Mr. Passmore's understudy went on in the first act, and the genial comedian, notwithstanding his pain, resumed his part in the other acts, and was warmly cheered by the audience.

A FIRE, which was promptly extinguished, broke out in the Drill Hall, Falmouth, on the night of the 17th inst. The Gipsy Maids Choir were appearing at the hall, and the outbreak occurred in one of the dressing-rooms, in which were stored a number of dresses, the property of the artists. The discovery was made by the caretaker (Mr. Angel), who, with a fireman, saved a number of costumes from destruction. The damage is estimated at about £30.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN'S company, including Mr. G. P. Huntley and the members of the cast of Decorating Clementine, arrived in England on Monday in the Lusitania, and will open in the piece at the Globe Theatre on Monday.

MISS PHYLLIS NEILSON-TERRY has been re-engaged by Mr. Herbert Trench for the piece which is to follow the revival of The Blue Bird at the Haymarket, where Maeterlinck's fairy play will be seen again on Monday, Dec. 19. It will have a run of six weeks, two performances being given daily. The addition, entitled "The Palace of Happiness," will contain three scenes, the characters including Joy, Pleasure, and Self-denial. There will be two ballets, one of them being called the "Ballet of Joys."

MISS MAY PALFREY'S season at the Kingsway Theatre ends this evening, but she has secured a West End theatre, at which she will again present Company for George on Boxing Night, performing it twice on the following Tuesday, and again on Wednesday evening. At Thursday's matinée she will put on a triple bill, including a new one-act play by Mr. R. C. Carton, called In Days to Come. Miss Palfrey herself will appear, with her husband, Mr. Weedon Grossmith, who will then be back from America.

MR. WILLIAM GREET has secured from Miss Margaret Mayo, the authoress of Baby Mine, a three-act farce, which has been one of the successes of the season in New York, the English rights in her play, and it will probably be produced in London in the spring.

MISS GERTRUDE KINGSTON will present at the Little Theatre, this evening, a new one-act piece, called Denton (Lab.). The story told is that of a valet who thinks of becoming an M.P. There are only two parts in the piece, and they will be sustained by Messrs. Thomas Sidney and A. S. Homewood.

MR. GEORGE GROSSMITH, JUN., has written the book of the new piece which will be Mr. George Edwardes's next production at the Gaiety, and Mr. Adrian Ross and Mr. C. H. Bovill have done the lyrics. The music is by Mr. Leslie Stuart.

MR. FRANK MATCHAM, the eminent architect, has been called away to Holland to discuss plans for a new opera house at The Hague.

SPEAKING at a Women's Freedom League "At Home" at the Caxton Hall, Westminster, on Thursday, Miss Cicely Hamilton said that there were many qualities, good and bad, which the suffrage movement had shown women that she possessed. They had got to tell the men that they had ceased to satisfy woman's entire existence and no longer filled her life. They had to tell someone who had been their little tin god that they no longer worshipped him, and they must do it as politely and as courteously as they could.

THEY had to tell him that even his kindness and chivalry was not of so much account to them as it was, and that they infinitely preferred to do some things for themselves. They must realise how entirely false had been the conception of the relation of woman to man. It had been assumed that no woman's life was complete until she married, but it was a colossal piece of impudence to say that a human being that the Almighty had put into this world was not finished until the Almighty had called in a man to assist.

THE company and staff of Drury Lane Theatre, to commemorate the tremendous success of The Whip, will to-night, after the performance, entertain at supper, in the saloon, Mr. Arthur Collins and the authors of the drama, Messrs. Raleigh and Hamilton.

MISS DORA PASS, who is playing lead in A Woman's Past, reaches her 270th performance today. Miss Pass has been engaged by Messrs. Hamilton and Locke to create the title-rôle in the autumn production of Bonnie Mary.

A MEETING will be held on Friday next, Dec. 2, in the Grand Hall of the Criterion Restaurant, at three o'clock, under the auspices of the Actresses' Franchise League. Miss May Whitty will preside, and the speakers will be Lady Grove, Mrs. Louis Fagan, Mrs. Madeleine Lucette Ryley, Mrs. Kineton Parkes, and Lord Robert Cecil, K.C. Hostess, Miss Evelyn D'Alroy.

MR. HARRY NICHOLLS sends us, presumably by means of a passing vessel, a postcard with the following:—"S.S. Amerika, Nov. 11, 1910. Five days out en route for America. All well. Splendid trip. Kindest regards."

MR. ROBERT LORAINE is making preparations for an attempt to win the De Forest prize of £4,000 for the longest aeroplane flight from England into France, made by a British pilot, in an all-British machine, before the end of the year. He will pilot a Howard-Wright biplane.

MR. BASSETT ROE, who has been playing Dr. Rylott in The Speckled Band with marked success in the suburban company, has been transferred to the Globe Theatre company, with Mr. Claude King, Miss Le Sage, and Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, opening last Monday at the Dalston Theatre.

MR. ERNEST H. G. COX, who concludes his engagement as Olaf in The Prince and the Beggar Maid next week, is engaged by Mr. George Dance to play Hubert, Earl of Brancaster, in The Whip.

MISS FLORENCE IMESON, who has been winning golden opinions for her performances in musical comedy in South Africa, made her last appearance in that colony on Oct. 31, when she played the title-rôle in Veronique. Her greatest triumph was secured as the Merry Widow, her impersonation of that delightful personage being irresistible to Johannesburgers, who parted from her with sincere regret. The popular comedienne desires through our columns to wish all her English friends and acquaintances A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

MR. W. W. KELLY'S many friends will learn with regret that the trouble he has lately been having with his eyes last week developed serious symptoms, which became so acute that Mr. Kelly, acting on his doctor's advice, travelled to London and consulted Sir George Anderson Critchett, the famous Harley-street occulist. Unfortunately, the report obtained was not so satisfactory as could have been wished, Mr. Kelly being frankly told that unless he used the utmost care and was persistent in the application of the remedies which Sir George ordered his sight would become impaired. Mr. Kelly has been suffering from an acute form of catarrh of the eyes.

THE subject chosen by Mr. Charles Barnard for his third annual pantomime at the Elephant and Castle Theatre is Aladdin, which will be presented on Boxing Day in conjunction with Mr. Wentworth Croke. The cast includes Miss Gracie Grahame as Aladdin, Miss Maudie Ford as the Princess, the Musical Howards, Nash and Noel, Sisters du Cane, Harry Morgan, W. P. Sheen, and La Belle Troupe of Dancers. Mr. Charles Barnard has had prepared a very amusing illustrated booklet on the pantomime, which will be sent post free on application to all children under the age of fifteen years.

MR. ALEXANDER MARSH'S tour, which started on June 27 last, is proving eminently successful, so much so that the Christmas vacation will be limited to one week only. Mr. Marsh has a wonderfully varied répertoire, thirty-four plays in all, and each play is mounted by beautifully-painted scenery, attention to detail being a prominent feature. Mr. Marsh's present bookings extend until September, 1912—almost two years.

MASTER WALTER NEVILLE, whose charmingly natural performance of Danny in The Bondman (Mr. Wentworth Croke) company may be remembered, after successfully creating the rôle of Dicky in Miss Mullord's dramatic sketch, Dicky's Mother, in London, has been engaged by Mr. Henry Doughty to play Bobbie Spencer in Cousin Kate, now on tour.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE, Barrow-in-Furness, which has made such rapid strides in popularity during the past few years, was last week crowded nightly with brilliant and representative audiences on the occasion of the complimentary benefit to the enterprising managers—Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge—when Mr. Preedy and the Countess was presented by Mr. Walter Maxwell's company. Mr. and Mrs. Routledge, who have made themselves and their pretty playhouse universal favourites in Barrow and the surrounding district, have also just adjudicated the elocution examination at the Barrow Musical Festival for the fourth year in succession. Society plays and comedies are seen to the utmost advantage at His Majesty's, and the management are now booking some recent London productions for next spring and autumn.

MR. FRANK CURZON AND MR. GERALD DU MAURIER have secured for Wyndham's Theatre a new play which has been written by Mr. Haddon Chambers, entitled Passers-by. It is in four acts, and is a drama of London life.

MR. VAUGHAN GREY will start a season of French comedy at the Boudoir Theatre, Kensington, in February, in co-operation with M. Leo Claretie and Prof. Victor Spiers. Three matinées and three evening performances will be given weekly, as well as "Causeries." Mme. Jeanne Granier has been already engaged.

THE attraction at the Kingsway Theatre during the Christmas holidays will be called The Golliwog, and will be presented there on Dec. 17. Mr. Edward Cadman has written the book and the lyrics, and Mr. Jacques Greebe has composed the music.

MME. MAETERLINCK, who will shortly create the title-part in her husband's latest work, Mary Magdalen, in Paris, will deliver at the Little Theatre, on Thursday, a lecture on the subject of "Maeterlinck Intime," and will recite selections from her husband's works.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES has sublet the Gaiety for a short season, and The Captain of the School, by Judge Parry and Mr. Frederick Mouillot, will be played there for the first time in London some time in the Christmas holidays. The piece was fully noticed by us on its production at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on the 14th inst.

THE many friends of that promising young actress, Miss Eva Stuart, will be grieved to hear that she is at present seriously ill, and has had to cancel all engagements for a time.

THE "radium wedding" has been instituted in Paris, and is intended to commemorate the seventieth anniversary of marriage. The first couple to obtain the honour are M. and Mme. Ferdinand Dugué, whose joint ages are 187 years, the husband being over ninety-five and the wife ninety-two. M. Dugué claims the added distinction of being the oldest dramatic author in the world. The best known of his forty-odd plays are The Pirates of the Savannah and Cartouche. The Pirates has been played more than ten thousand times. His last play—a drama at the bottom of the sea—was produced in 1877, and was revived with success in Paris only a few weeks ago.

THE Carlton Theatre, Birmingham, will, on and after Monday next, be known as the Coliseum, and important changes will be made in the conduct of the house. There will be two performances nightly at people's popular prices instead of the one performance nightly as heretofore. Mr. James Alexander, the lessee and manager of the theatre, will present well-acted dramas worked quickly, Mr. Frank Bateman's company in Where Angels Fear to Tread occupying the boards for the opening week. The change is necessitating a considerable outlay in the way of new scenery and appointments.

"POMPEY THE GREAT," a tragedy, in three acts, by John Masefield, will be produced by the Stage Society at the Aldwych Theatre, on Dec. 4. The scenes are laid at Rome, at Dyrrachium, at Pharsalia, and at Pelusium, about fifty years B.C. Mr. E. Harcourt Williams will produce the piece, and the stage-manager will be Mr. Val Cuthbert.

MR. J. HENRY TWYFORD will play during Dec. 5 week at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, the parts of Pasquin in Rostand's The Fantasticks, Dr. Rank in Ibsen's A Doll's House, and the First Messenger of the Queen in Maeterlinck's The Death of Tintagiles. He is busy rehearsing, and appears meanwhile in The House Opposite. Mr. Twyford has arranged to dramatise two books, romantic costume stories, one by Mr. Max Pemberton and the other by Mr. Percy J. Brebner. In these he will have the co-operation of Mr. Alex. Maclean, who has lately been so successfully touring the romantic play, My Lady Bellamy.

THE announcement is now made officially that the Lord Chamberlain has definitely sanctioned the performance of Salome, and that it will be sung shortly by the Thomas Beecham Opera Company, at Covent Garden. Mme. Aino Ackte, the brilliant actress and operatic artist from the Grand Opera, Paris, who is to appear as Salome, has arrived in London. She was selected by Richard Strauss himself for the rôe, studied it with him for many weeks, and has already played it some twenty times in the principal opera houses of the larger Continental cities.

OWING to the great success of The Chocolate Soldier at the Lyric, six matinées of that delightful opera will be given during Boxing week, beginning on Monday, Dec. 26. In the following week there will be four, and thenceforward three matinées weekly. In view of the heavy strain which so many performances would entail on Miss Constance Drever, the management has engaged Miss Evelyn D'Alroy to enact Nadina on the afternoon of Boxing Day and at all subsequent matinées. Miss D'Alroy has made her reputation in dramatic work, and it will come as a surprise to many to learn that she is a singer of fine quality.

MR. OSMAN EDWARDS, lecturing on "Dramatic Chaos" to the Playgoers' Club at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday, likened the stage at the present time to a fashionable "At Home," where the hostess smiled on a mob of pushing strangers, and where the old intimacy and security were gone. Among the causes to which Mr. Edwards attributed the failure of certain dramatists to reach the public were the "tyranny of laughter" and the "tyranny of clothes," the love by audiences of mere fun and of display in dress on the stage. He warmly advocated a national endowed theatre.

MRS. MARIE SPURR, widow of the late Mel. B. Spurr, the well-known society entertainer, fell into the fire at her house in Denbigh-street, S.W., on Saturday night last, and died the next morning. An inquest was held on Tuesday.

AT Sadler's Wells Theatre on Monday a new sensational society drama, by Frederic Baugh and Fred Moule, will be produced. The piece has been specially written to meet the needs of the twice-nightly theatre. A tour follows.

MR. BERNARD MEREFIELD, who has been touring with Mr. J. W. Lindsay-Ellis's Lights Out company, preceding that play with half an hour's entertainment at the piano, recitations, &c., has now been engaged by Mr. Ellis to sustain the rôle of Lieut. von Lauffen, the part created by Mr. H. B. Irving in the London production of Lights Out. Mr. Bernard Merefield was for three years a member of Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company, and has toured the provinces with Miss Dorothy Grimston, Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, Mr. Wentworth Croke, and others. The company is presenting Lights Out twice nightly.

WEBER'S Oberon will be revived at the Guildhall School of Music by the pupils of the opera class on Monday. It is now forty years since Oberon was last heard in London.

MR. A. E. W. MASON will deliver a lecture on "Plots and Plays" to the O.P. Club at the Criterion to-morrow. Mr. Carl Hentschel will preside.

H.H. PRINCESS MARIE LOUISE OF SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN, president of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, will distribute the annual essay and elocution prizes for the Society at the theatre of the Guilhall School of Music on Monday afternoon, Dec. 5. The speakers will include Lord Howard de Walden and Mr. Arthur Bourchier. On the same afternoon A Midsummer Night's Dream will be given as a dramatic reading, under the direction of Mr. Acton Bond, with the strong professional cast already announced. Mendelssohn's music will be played by an orchestra of the Guildhall School of Music, conducted by Mr. Joseph Ivimey.

"THE ETERNAL QUESTION," under the direction of R. Hall Caine, will be the attraction at the Broadway Theatre, New Cross, next week. The company, which travels the entire Garrick Theatre production, includes Mr. Derwent Hall Caine as David Rossi, a part in which he is seen at his best; Mr. Creagh Henry, the producer, as Baron Bonelli; and that clever young actress, Miss Helena Millais, as Donna Roma Volonna, a part in which she has made a great "personal" success, and in which she follows Miss Tittell Brune.

MR. LAURENCE IRVING will, till further notice, give two matinées of The Unwritten Law weekly, on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

WE have to record the death of Mr. Joseph Callaghan, the popular conductor of the orchestra at the New Theatre Royal, Birkenhead. On Wednesday week the curtain had just been rung down on the last act of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, and the band was about to play "God save the King," when he was seen to collapse. Assistance was at once forthcoming. It was found that Mr. Callaghan was suffering from a paralytic stroke, and he was taken home with all speed. Despite the fact that everything was done to ensure his recovery, the deceased never regained consciousness, and he passed away on the following day.

COMPLAINT has often been expressed at the iciness of the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, during the winter months, but Mr. J. Langdon Lee, with characteristic thoughtfulness, has arranged a first-rate distribution of electric radiators, which were used for the first time on Monday with most successful results, for, though it was a very "raw" evening, the theatre was extremely cosy.

MISS DORIS DIGBY, who is now enacting Marie in The House Opposite, has been engaged by Mr. Harold V. Neilson to play the part of Sylvette in The Fantasticks; also Bellangère in Maeterlinck's Death of Tintagiles at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, during the week of Dec. 5.

THE Moseley Pantomime Club is the latest theatregoers' association in Birmingham. There is a membership of over 200. Mr. Fred Barnardo (Alexandra Theatre) has accepted an invitation to act as president, and Mr. F. C. Woolley (Victoria Hotel), is vice-president.

MISS OLGA NETHERSOLE has secured the American rights of Maeterlinck's latest play, Mary Magdalen, which will soon be seen in Paris.

MR. FRED C. WHITNEY is in London, in search of a suitable theatre at which to produce a comic opera called Baron Trenck, the libretto of which is by Dr. Willner and R. Bodansky, and the music by Felix Albini.

GUSTAVE WORMS, for many years one of the leading sociétaires of the Comédie Française, from which he had retired ten years ago, died suddenly in the early hours of Saturday, the 19th inst. He began life as a printer's devil, then entered the Conservatoire, and was engaged at the Français in 1858, at the age of twenty-one. Seven years afterwards he left for Russia, where he made a name in the Theatre Michel at St. Petersburg. In 1876 he returned to the Français, and remained there till his farewell benefit in January, 1901.

WORMS was not only a famous actor in some of Molière's characters—Alceste, of Le Misanthrope, being, for example, one of his triumphs—but he was the ideal interpreter of the modern French comedy of the generation that is going by—what one might call the French comedy of yesterday. He was cut out to act Dumas fils, and the latter once said at a rehearsal of one of his own plays: "Watch Worms working out that passage; you will never hear and see his like in it again." Worms married Mlle. Barretta, also a well-known Comédie Française actress of the generation immediately past, who survives him. His age was seventy-four.

MR. F. R. BENSON, by arrangement with Mr. George Alexander, will produce The Piper at the St. James's Theatre, at a series of matinées during the Christmas season. The Piper, by Miss Josephine Preston Peabody, was, as will be remembered, the winning play in the recent Stratford-on-Avon competition, and secured the prize offered by Mr. Otho Stuart.

"ARE YOU A MASON?" will end its fourteen months' tour on Dec. 5, 1910, and will start on tour again on Jan. 16, 1911, at the Opera House, Harrogate.

MISS DORIS CAMERON, who has been engaged by Mr. Wheeler for the Wheeler-Edwardes' company, to play all the leading singing parts in South Africa, is the daughter of Miss Violet Cameron, and is now appearing in The Chocolate Soldier. She has had experience in grand opera in town, and has understudied Miss Isabel Jay at the Prince of Wales. Miss Cameron sails for South Africa on Dec. 17.

THE clever young actress, Miss Yvonne Orchardson, has been engaged by Mr. Walter Howard to play the leading part in the North company in his new production, The Boy King, opening at Christmas.

A MOVEMENT is on foot to produce in March of next year at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, the four operas comprising Wagner's Ring of the Nibelung, viz., Siegfried, The Valkyrie, The Rhinegold, and The Twilight of the Gods. Herr Ernst Denhof, who was the moving spirit in the production of the Ring at the King's, Edinburgh, this year, is making all arrangements for the Glasgow performances.

THE Repertory Theatre at Glasgow is arranging for a Christmas production this year. It is in the nature of a fantastic fairy play, founded on a story by George Macdonald, the title being Colin in Fairyland. Mr. George J. Hamlen (author of Barbara Grows Up) is writing the book, and Mr. Albert Cazabon is composing appropriate music. Miss Ruby Gray, who toured with the Beecham Opera company, will play the part of Colin.

MR. HUGH FLEMINGS'S engagement as advance manager for the autumn tour of The Whip terminated on Monday.

MISS KATHERINE JONES, the popular contralto, who is to be married on Dec. 21 to Mr. George Wolfe Murray, is the eldest daughter of the late Rev. Thomas Jones and Mrs. Jones, of Llanbedr House, Crickhowell, and Mr. George Wolfe Murray is the elder son of Lieut.-General Sir James Wolfe Murray, K.C.B., of Cringletie, Peeblesshire, and the late Lady Wolfe Murray. Miss Jones first met Mr. Wolfe Murray when she was visiting South Africa on a concert tour with Mme. Albani. Mr. Wolfe Murray was A.D.C. to Sir Arthur Lawley, who at that time was Governor of the Transvaal, and Miss Katherine Jones was Lady Lawley's guest at Pretoria. Last year Miss Katherine Jones spent several months in India with Lord and Lady Minto, and she sang in Calcutta Cathedral on the occasion of the wedding of Lord Minto's daughter, Lady Violet Elliot. On Tuesday Miss Katherine Jones is to give an afternoon concert at the Æolian Hall.

THE final performance this season of Elektra is to be given at Covent Garden this afternoon, when the rôle of Klytemnestra will be sung by Fräulein Marie Goetze, who has made a great reputation in this and other parts in Berlin and elsewhere.

THE Lord Chamberlain would like it to be known that the libretto of the opera Salome that he has licensed to be sung in London by the Thomas Beecham Opera company, has been somewhat modified from the original version. Mr. Thomas Beecham and Mr. Alfred Kalisch have collaborated to make the changes deemed necessary.

MR. A. S. HOMEWOOD, whose recent performances in Strife, The House of Temperley, and The Speckled Band will be remembered, will appear this (Saturday) evening at the Little Theatre as Denton in the new one-act play Denton (Lab.).

MR. J. A. CAMPBELL'S elaborate production, The Coastguard's Daughter, played to immense business at the Elephant and Castle Theatre last week. The Messrs. Barnard were very pleased, and especially complimented Mr. Campbell upon the general excellence of play, company, and staging.

MR. FRANK LASCELLES, whose Pageant of South Africa has played such a prominent part in the success of the Union of that country, arrives in England by the Kenilworth Castle this morning, when he will be welcomed by a deputation from the Festival of Empire, including Sir Melvill Beachcroft, the chairman of the Executive Council, and Sir Godfrey Lagden, the chairman of the Hospitality Committee, who are proceeding to Southampton for the purpose. The Mayor of Southampton will present Mr. Lascelles with an address on behalf of the Corporation of the town.

LORD SALISBURY has joined the Council of the Festival of Empire, and Sir Herbert Tree has consented to become chairman of the Entertainments Committee.

REPERTOIRE is in vogue at the moment. Miss M. Lowe-Dare has been touring with her company since April last in such plays as Still Waters Run Deep, Camille, Trilby, Caste, and other modern comedies.

THE hockey team run by the members of Mr. Norman V. Norman's company have played up to the present five matches, but have lost every one of them. The team is much weaker than it has been for years, but is improving with practice. Mr. Norman, who has been a well-known athlete in his day, is convinced that plenty of fresh air and exercise is the finest thing for the actor.

THE pupils of Stedman's Academy figure picturesquely in a series of excellent illustrations around which an interesting article of ten pages, on the training of a stage-dancer, is written in the "Pall-Mall Magazine." Groups of graceful girls are seen in various positions associated with the training for the art of Terpsichore, and a most comprehensive description of the way a girl is prepared for the footlights is given in the letterpress. The early life of a dancer is pictured in progressive stages, and many examples are given of the artistic evolutions of the more advanced pupils. Object lessons in dramatic gesture and acting are also furnished, and parents who aspire to the pleasure of seeing the talents of their daughter exploited on the stage may learn in a most agreeable way the manner in which she is trained for that auspicious event.

MR. THOMAS JEFFERSON, son of the famous impersonator of Rip Van Winkle, is playing the principal part in a new farce, called The Other Fellow, at the Bijou Theatre, New York. A young doctor and his friend, a broker, who live together, become interested in theosophy and induce an Indian professor of wonderful powers to disembody their souls and cause them to float in the air. Through a mistake, an exchange of souls is made, with the result that the broker loses his identity, repudiates his wife, and makes love to the doctor's fiancée. In the meantime the doctor falls into a state of coma, and the police think he has been murdered. The complications are very amusing. Mr. Jefferson plays the broker.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Frank Harris's Story.

MR. FRANK HARRIS has been giving the Daily News interviewer some good points with regard to Mr. Bernard Shaw. "Fourteen—fifteen years ago," remarks Mr. Harris, "I said to Runciman, 'Shaw is the man we want to do the drama for the Saturday Review. He's written all he has to write on music, but he's got the drama. It's what he's meant for. He's an Irish showman; give him the drama. I saw Shaw about it. I said, 'Give up writing on music—you've said it all. Come on to the Saturday, and write about drama.' How much would I give him? Whatever he thought it was worth. He asked six pounds.

"WELL, he began writing good stuff. But after a few weeks Shakespeare began to pop up in every article, like King Charles's head. 'Why don't you stop Shaw writing this rot about Shakespeare?' a friend of mine asked me. I read a few of the articles through carefully. Then I wrote to Shaw: 'Your drama is great stuff. But why don't you stop writing about Shakespeare?' 'My dear Harris,' replied Shaw, 'what do you mean? I know more about Shakespeare than anybody living.' 'Come out to lunch with me,' I answered; 'I'll give you vegetarian grub; I'll give you anything you like, and I'll convince you you know nothing about him.'

"I took him out. At the end of about four hours' solid talk he said that if I would write about Shakespeare he would leave off writing about him. So began my articles in the Saturday Review, wherein I showed how Hamlet-Macbeth Shakespeare lives behind the masks of the heroes of his plays.

The Fight for Fame.

"THAT was the end of the episode. I drifted off into other things, and Shaw began writing prefaces. But very soon King Charles's head popped up again—this time with very different features. He boldly announced my discovery, and put on his own trade-mark (notably in Man and Superman), and all the acknowledgment he gave me was this casual reference: 'All Shakespeare's genuine critics from Jonson to Frank Harris have kept as far on this side idolatry as I.' Oscar Wilde warned me against the crib. I said it didn't matter. If Shaw was big enough man to take my work and carry it on he was welcome to do so. If he wasn't, then sooner or later the credit would come to me, even if the cash had come to him.' Wilde said, 'No; you have to fight for Fame on the doorstep. If you do not take care, you will find yourself robbed of all your credit, and another man wearing your crown.' I said I would take the risk.

The Man Shakespeare.

"SIX or seven years ago I wrote my play, to show in action the Man Shakespeare that I have recovered from the professors' rubbish-heaps. Beerbohm Tree agreed to produce it. Mrs Patrick Campbell was willing to do anything and give anything to act Mary Fitton. But Tree couldn't stomach Shakespeare. 'He is too weak; he subsides,' he told me; 'make him heroic.' 'By heaven, no!' I said; 'I'll take out anything you like, but put in a line that isn't true Shakespeare I won't.'

"So I withdrew the play. Some time afterwards the Vedrenne-Barker people were to do it. Vedrenne liked the play immensely; Barker didn't like himself in the part of Shakespeare. (But would Shakespeare have liked himself in the part of Barker?) I asked for the play back; Vedrenne insisted he would get it through.

Too Sad a Shakespeare.

"THEN I met Shaw in the street, and he said 'I've read your play, Harris; but you make Shakespeare too sad. He never was sad; he was a rollicking fellow. Though at least you've given his genius, and that's extraordinary. Nobody else ever did that.'

Too "Indecent."

"LAST year I brought out my book, 'The Man Shakespeare,' and Shaw said it was great. Then why didn't he write a criticism of it? He had done so—forty folios long; but nobody would print it. I gasped. Did he mean to tell me nobody would print forty folios by George Bernard Shaw? Let him give it to me, and I would guarantee to publish it. No, it was too indecent, he averred.

Shaw and the Sonnets.

"THIS year I published in the English Review a series of articles on the Women of Shakespeare, ramming home my proof that Mary Fitton was the passion of Shakespeare's whole life. And now Mr. Shaw has written 'The Dark Lady of the Sonnets,' neatly covering himself by confining my lady to the sonnets, but, as appears from the interview in last week's Observer, annexing the whole of the theory I have built up during the past fifteen years, and acknowledging the annexation with a contemptuous pat on my head."

A Tell-tale Beam.

"MY first appearance in Bradford," says Mr. Walter Passmore, in an interview in the Bradford Daily Telegraph, "was at Pullan's old music hall. I was in pantomime there with Charlie Majilton in Round the Clock. I sang two or three songs and also played the clown. They were a fine audience in those days, and although I only got 30s. a week—and that in threepenny bits and sixpences just as it was taken at the doors—I thoroughly enjoyed the experience. Old Pullan, I remember, could always tell how much money there was in the house by a beam, which, when the pressure of weight above became too great, would not allow the door to be closed."

Eric Thorne's Equestrian Experience.

MR. ERIC THORNE tells the following story:—"While touring in America with La Poupée, the manager at Utah came to me one day and asked if I would go for a ride. I said I was no good at riding, but he and a few others persuaded me on the strength that they would get me a quiet nag, and I accompanied them to the stables. I was placed upon the back of a fearful old hack, an unkempt sort of brute, and together we were pushed through the stable doorway. My steed walked bravely along the road, and I did my best to cheer him up. But not appreciating my efforts, he commenced to buck and jump in a manner that did not add to the dignity of my posture. The brute broke into a wild sort of canter, which gradually increased into a gallop. On he went at terrific speed, and made for a paddock. As we were nearing a tree I saw that my only chance of further life was to part company, so with an effort that nearly cost me a fall I sprang towards a branch under which the animal passed—and I remember seeing the brute's shining heels flashing over the turf, for I lost consciousness, and was picked up for dead."

A Varied Repertory.

"You seem to have a wonderfully varied répertoire?" said a representative of the Durham Chronicle to Mr. George Munro, the youngest actor-manager on the stage, who was at the local Assembly Rooms last week. Mr. Munro replied:—"Oh, yes; we have, and that makes it all the more interesting to us. My week's work runs something like this as a rule: On Monday I am an old man—a ghost-haunted Burgomaster; on Tuesday, a young Drury Lane actor; on Wednesday, a Charles Dickens' hero; on Thursday, a drink-sodden robber and venerated citizen of France by turn; on Friday, a Court jester of the 14th century (this is the heaviest rôle I play); and on Saturday my week's impersonations end with Hamlet."

Mr. R. C. Carton's latest play can only be described as "whimsical"; and its failure or its success will depend on the whim and fancy of the public. It cannot accurately be described a satire or a burlesque. There is nothing in it which might not have happened, and stranger things have been reported in the newspapers. It is a comedy of incident and adventure; and we imagine that a large proportion of the audience at the St. James's on Saturday were genuinely concerned for the success of the honest folk and the defeat of the gang of thieves who form such an important part of the dramatis personæ. Nor must this attitude be attributed to any special density on the part of the public. It was the natural result of the uncertain, though witty and clever, treatment of the theme by the author.

The gang in question includes a swell mobsman named Radburn, a rogue who wears the cloth of a clergyman as a disguise, and a certain nautical rascal called Captain Clamp. There are two boxes in the play, and it is important to distinguish between them. One is that which contains some important Foreign Office papers, and the other is a box containing £20,000-worth of jewels, which have been stolen from a London shop by one of the thieves' gang. Three of these thieves are staying at the hotel at the seaside resort of Shingleford; and here also comes the Marchioness. She goes under the name of "Mrs. Adair," as she has the delicate diplomatic mission of restoring to her country the Grand Duchess Ina Drovinski, who has been carried off by Nihilists, and is still in dread of them. So Ina pretends to be "Mrs. Adair's" maid. Now the Marchioness and the thieves both wanted to buy a certain yacht, the Morning Star—the thieves in order to get away with the jewels, and the Marchioness in order to convey the Duchess to an ironclad in the "offing." The yacht, however, has been bought by a very rich young man with a strong taste for romantic adventure, the Earl of Comberdene, who is also staying at the hotel; and the thieves induce him to engage Clamp as his captain. Now comes the complication with regard to the two boxes above-mentioned. One of the gang, Scoyle, brings the jewels in a box to the hotel, and hands them over, in mistake, to the Marchioness, who is expecting the other box with the despatches. In the second act the rogues are coming after nightfall to the Marchioness's room to recover the box; but Comberdene first lowers her and the Duchess down from the balcony with the box, and then, when Radburn and Pilbrow have entered the vacant bedroom, locks them in, leaves a written explanation for the night-watchman, and conveys the two ladies on board his yacht. Of course, Clamp and his crew of mercenary ruffians declare themselves when the yacht is at sea; but the indomitable Marchioness runs up a signal of distress, which brings help from a British battleship, and the malefactors are overpowered and arrested. The box is found to contain the jewels—they happen to be the Marchioness's heirlooms—complications are unravelled, and the satisfaction of the audience is complete.

Mr. George Alexander's part of the Earl of Comberdene is well within his scope; indeed, it does not employ his abilities to the uttermost. It must be quite a holiday task for Mr. Alexander to depict this "touch-and-go" peer, and he does so with all the jaunty assurance, the perfect ease and impudence, and the charming courtesy and polish which combine in the character. Light, vivacious, and ever alert, Mr. Alexander's Lord Comberdene is one of his most agreeable impersonations, complete in every detail, and crisp and clean throughout. Great opportunities are given to Mr. Lyston Lyle, whose rôle of Joseph Radburn is a prominent one. On the surface, Radburn is the bumptious "bounder," the "pushing" hotel bore. But this is only the mask of the leading member of a gang of criminals; and Radburn ever and anon drops his disguise, and appears as the energetic, active, and earnest conspirator. All this is very effective, and Mr. Lyston Lyle, by the aid of an excellent make-up, creates a vivid impression on his audience. It is chiefly Radburn who keeps things going in the progress of the piece, and prevents it from dragging by his brisk and bold performance. A highly finished and judiciously-subdued piece of character acting is Mr. Ashton Pearse's Rev. Alwyn Pilbrow. Mr. Pearse has to indicate the smug rogue underneath the "canting" oiliness of the formalist, and this he does very artistically and cleverly. No better representative of the rough but dishonest Captain Clamp could be imagined than Mr. J. H. Barnes, with his deep voice and robust physique. This rascally mariner, with its surface-cloak of blunt stupidity and sincerity, is admirably embodied by Mr. Barnes, who is always strong and steady, and hits off the quaint humour of the character very adroitly. Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds's Scoyle is a capital study of a craven Cockney, highly finished in detail, and almost picturesque in its queer and droll characterisation. The expression of abject anxiety is excellent, and the whole impersonation is quaint, sharp, and realistic. Mr. Fred Lewis's Brook Farlowe is an imposing and self-important personage, with all the urbane fussiness and impressive suavity necessary for the realisation of the rôle; and Mr. Athol Stewart admirably sketches the inane but well-bred youth Chilvers. Miss Compton's aristocratic calmness and drawling deliberation once more find excellent employment in a part probably written for her; and, as the Marchioness of Glenmoray she is as quietly imperative and coolly sarcastic as ever, and again scores a supreme success. A very charming and original representative of the Grand Duchess Ina Drovinski is Miss Rita Jolivet, who is delightfully impulsive and expressive as the royal Russian; and Miss Ruth Maitland as Madame Pigache presents a sharp and telling portrait of the active and able female conspirator, Miss Marjorie Waterlow giving a very bright and pleasing performance as Daphne Farlowe, the daughter of the pompous M.P. Mr. Arthur Royston's Prince Melikoff could hardly be improved upon; and Mr. Stuart Dennison and Mr. G. Trevor Roller are excellent in every way as the two Lieutenants of H.M.S. Irresistible, Mr. T. Weguelin being decidedly good as Grugger, and Mr. Gerald Ames's Winton being irreproachable. The parts of the waiters at the Imperial Hotel have careful exponents in Messrs. W. Pilling, Frank Rorke, and Frank Arundel; and the representatives of the visitors give the proper impression of movement and animation. The scenery, painted by W. Raphael, is elaborately effective, the sets for the first and last acts being fine examples of clever building-up and artistic painting.

SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL MATINEE.

Two new pieces were produced at the matinée given at the Haymarket Theatre on Friday in aid of the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre. The first of these was based by "George Paston" on Ludwig Huna's Der Kuss, and was entitled

"THE KISS."

Catherine Hervey....MISS ALEXANDRA CARLISLE
Humphrey Wharton.....MR. ERIC LEWIS
The Stranger.....MR. GUY STANDING
Mrs. Budgen.....MISS FLORENCE HARWOOD

The piece is an amusing anecdote. It appears that Bath, in 1777, was much troubled by the larcenous exploits of a certain highwayman named Jake. A lady of fashion called Catherine Hervey has been much annoyed by the persistent attentions of a mysterious gentleman who has followed her everywhere, gazing at her earnestly, and making his infatuation evident and the lady ridiculous. She appeals for protection to a magistrate, Mr. Humphrey Wharton; and while they are in consultation the Stranger who has annoyed her presents himself. He has a long, aquiline nose, and is otherwise ill-favoured. He tells his story with emotion. His unattractiveness—and his nose—have hitherto prevented him from fascinating any woman; and he wagered with a friend that he would kiss any lady who should alight from a coach that was coming into the town. The lady happened to be Miss Hervey; and the Stranger now tells her that his life is to be the forfeit if he lose his bet. When he produces a pistol and threatens to blow his brains out, the lady relents, and lets him press his lips to hers. As he does so he removes her diamond necklace, and, when he has ridden away, leaves a letter thanking her "for what she has given and what he has stolen." The curtain falls on Miss Catherine in hysterics. The piece was very neatly and nicely played. Miss Alexandra Carlisle, looking very bewitching in eighteenth century attire, was daintily feminine as Catherine Hervey; Mr. Eric Lewis gave a highly polished and quaintly humorous performance as Humphrey Wharton; Miss Florence Harwood supplied a characteristic sketch of a sour and sharp middle-aged servant; and Mr. Guy Standing, in the rather difficult part of the Stranger, displayed quite a Cyrano de Bergerac combination of ridiculous appearance and eloquent and expressive demonstration. The little piece was particularly well dressed and mounted.

The other novelty was an interlude in one act, by Bernard Shaw, entitled

"THE DARK LADY OF THE SONNETS."

The Warder.....MR. HUGH B. TABBERER
William Shakespeare..MR. GRANVILLE BARKER
Queen Elizabeth.....MISS SUZANNE SHELDON
Mary Fitton.....MISS MONA LIMERICK

The scene is the Terrace, Whitehall Palace, on a night in midsummer. Shakespeare, who is represented as a cringing personage, and is made up with a chestnut wig, comes to meet Mary Fitton, one of Queen Elizabeth's maids of honour—we need not remind our readers that Mary Fitton is supposed by Mr. Frank Harris to be the "dark lady" of Shakespeare's sonnets. He encounters instead the Queen herself, in all the majesty of attitude and attire which are associated with Elizabeth, who has been walking in her sleep, and suffers remorse for the execution of Mary Queen of Scots. They converse; and Shakespeare, whenever he hears a good phrase spoken, takes it down in his note-book, for use in one of his plays. The dramatist shows himself an adroit courtier, flattering Queen Bess grossly about her beauty; but the Virgin monarch swallows the fulsome praise complacently, and looks on Shakespeare as a dangerously susceptible admirer. Then Mary Fitton, a dark and violent young woman in a red dress, enters and flies into a fury of jealous rage. Elizabeth asserts herself, and talks of "having the heads" of both Mary and Shakespeare; but, in the end, the Queen is appeased by the suave sophistry of the oleaginous bard, who, however, resents angrily the Queen's assertions as to his lowly parentage. The interlude ends with an appeal by him for State support to a theatre for the cultured. He says he has been obliged to write two of his worst plays, As You Like It, and Much Ado About Nothing, against the grain, and to capture the applause of the groundlings; while some of his best pieces are unpopular, and should therefore be produced at an endowed playhouse. The Queen tells him her treasury will not permit of such expenditure, but hopes that a generation yet to come may establish a National Theatre. Mr. Granville Barker was dry, quaint, and comical as the caricature of Shakespeare; Miss Susanne Sheldon made a magnificent Queen Elizabeth, swelling with "pride of port" and the sense of regal power; and Miss Mona Limerick gave forcible and intense expression to the passionate utterances of Mary Fitton; Mr. Hugh B. Tabberer being excellent as the warder. Other items on the programme were George Paston's play, Stuffing, with Mr. Arthur Chesney, Miss Clare Greet, Miss Agnes Thomas, and Miss Sydney Fairbrother in the cast; and Mr. J. M. Barrie's one-act piece, A Slice of Life, the characters in which were allotted to Mr. Gerald du Maurier, Miss Lena Ashwell, Miss Hilda Trevelyan, and Miss Rosina Filippi.

MR. HOUSMAN'S PROPOSAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Your article upon my proposal for the substitution for the Censor of a King's Proctor of Plays entirely ignores the point that under that arrangement managers can—if they wish—be just as safe from interference after production and just as well-informed beforehand of the lines on which objection to a play may be taken as under the present censorship. But my plan leaves them free—if they wish—to adventure further and fare better, or worse, as the case may be. You also make a mistake in supposing that an appeal to the Law Courts necessarily involves trial by jury. I would not preclude such a trial if the defendant asked for it; but our Courts already supply a precedent for trials before Judges alone, even in cases where questions of fact as well as law have to be decided.—Yours faithfully,

LAURENCE HOUSMAN.

Greycott, Swanage, Nov. 20, 1910.

THE lighting of a large building, such as a council chamber or a theatre, says the Pall Mall Gazette, is a task requiring great care. Very considerable illumination is required, with greater intensities of light in certain places. For the stage, footlights, and orchestra, much of the effect is obtained by means of scientific reflection, and it can well be understood what a debt the drama owes to electricity when for a moment one pictures a theatre lit with gas. Leaving aside the heavy death toll that used to be claimed, the effect of gas lighting would now be a most depressing one to a playhouse.

ALL theatre-goers have no doubt been attracted by the brilliant congregation of lights clustered in the centre of the roof. What is needed, and what no doubt will shortly be seen, is an arrangement of a number of high-power metal filament lamps, suspended close to the ceiling. Above these will be reflectors, or distributors, and immediately beneath the lamps a heavy screen, completely obscuring the direct rays of the light. The effect of this screen will be to divert the rays upward on to the reflectors, which in turn will distribute the light vertically downward, thus creating a remarkably diffused illumination, equal in softness to that of the sun, and without the slightest glare.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LEIPZIG, Nov. 21.—The handsome Leipzig Opera House, which seats considerably over 2,000 persons, was filled from floor to ceiling for the first performance of an Englishwoman's opera, composed to the well-known text by Ludwig Fulda. From far and wide critics and managers and agents had come, and the citizens of musical Leipzig were on the qui vive to see what a woman could do on a scale of such dimensions. A few words will suffice as a description of the plot, which is familiar to most of your readers. King Astolf, puffed up by self-conceit and his belief in the divine mission of the throne, comes very near to losing it. Omar, the wanderer from the East, undertakes to open Astolf's eyes with the talisman. He declares he can weave Royal robes for the King which shall remain invisible to all who cherish evil thoughts, and can only be seen by the good and true. Omar is a poetically-conceived figure forming a strong contrast to the ambitious and plotting Berengar, Niccola, and others of the Court entourage, who are endeavouring to overthrow the King and gain the kingdom for themselves. Maddelena, Diomed's daughter, is loved by the King; but she spurns his attempts to make her his mistress, and is compelled with her father to exchange places with the basket-maker, Habukuk, and his young daughter, Rita. Habukuk's elevation to Court life forms the humorous side of the story, and makes the running in the play, while in the opera the rôle is subordinate. After the King agrees to test his courtiers and people by wearing the supposed robes, which he, like all his Court, pretends to see, the great dramatic dénouement is caused by the innocent exclamation of Rita: "But the King has nothing on!" Rita and Omar are cast into prison and threatened with immediate execution, which has no terrors for either of them, as they love each other. In the meantime the revolution breaks out, but Berengar, the crafty leader, is slain by Maddalena, and the King's eyes are opened to the truth of many things. He claims Maddalena for his bride, Omar and Rita are pardoned, and the people shout in joyous acclamation. It will be readily admitted that the libretto is rich in effective scenes suitable for an operatic setting, and Mrs. Maddison has devoted nearly four years to the work, bringing the result of her studies in Paris and Berlin to bear upon it. Although she has endeavoured with success to preserve the German character in the music, the traces of the influence of the modern French school are frequently apparent, and this is not a disadvantage, but rather the contrary. The music as a whole is declamatory and recitative in style, and its chief strength lies in the instrumentation, which contains an abundance of light and shade, of dramatic power and delicate sparkling humour such as few modern operas can show. There are no "tunes," yet the effect of the music in its entirety is exceedingly melodious. The work was magnificently staged, scenery and costumes—the latter of great beauty—being new for the occasion, and the interpretation well-nigh faultless. The orchestra performed its arduous duties in splendid manner under the skilful conductorship of Herr Egon Pollak. In a word, the management had carried out everything from the standpoint of a labour of love. After the third act, which is the most dramatic, the composer was enthusiastically called on to the stage, and some half-dozen big wreaths and several baskets of flowers were handed to her. Time after time Mrs. Maddison was compelled to reappear, and the same thing happened over again at the close of the last act. The German criticisms are wonderfully gracious to this work of a foreigner and a woman to boot, and altogether the composer may be satisfied with her success.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY.

The British Empire Society gave a dramatic reading of A Midsummer Night's Dream at the Passmore Edwards Settlement, Tavistock Place, W.C., on Sunday evening before a large audience. A distinguished company of actors and actresses impersonated the various characters, and the part songs and choruses were sung by students of the Guildhall School of Music. The gentlemen who appeared by permission of Sir Herbert Tree were Messrs. Reginald Owen, Acton Bond, and E. Ross Shore; while Mr. Walter Ringham appeared by permission of Mr. Arthur Hardy. Mr. George Fitzgerald by that of Mr. Oscar Asche; Mr. Cassels Cobb and Mr. J. Woodall-Birde by permission of Mr. Herbert Trench; and Mr. Athol Stewart by that of Mr. George Alexander. Other members of the cast were Mr. E. H. G. Pearson, Mr. Ivan Berlyn, and Mr. Walter Russell. Miss Helen Haye and Miss Laura Cowie appeared by permission of Mr. Herbert Trench and Sir Herbert Tree. The other ladies of the cast were the Misses Mary Webb, Eve Tame, Nora Lancaster, Sybil Ruskin, and Dorothy Lemarchand. Miss Frances Hall, of the Guildhall School, was unable to appear, and Miss Evelyn Harrison took her place. The play had been "cut" to bring it within the limits of a reading, and the performance was arranged and rehearsed under the direction of Mr. Acton Bond.

With such a professional company it may be taken for granted that a fine reading of the immortal work was secured, and although the ladies and gentlemen seated on the platform were only in evening dress and there was no scenery, the audience listened with rapt attention to Shakespeare's beautiful lines. Miss Helen Haye, who played Helena, and Miss Laura Cowie (Titania) were alike excellent; while Miss Eve Tame as Hermia, Miss Lancaster (Oberon), and Miss Lemarchand as Puck greatly distinguished themselves. Mr. Acton Bond, who played Bottom, the Weaver, was really funny, a by no means easy task in simple evening dress; and Mr. Ivan Berlyn made quite a hit with his quaint Quince, the Carpenter, and his absurd stage directions. The audience also were greatly amused by the love quarrels of Lysander and Demetrius, so ably acted by Mr. Stewart and Mr. Owen, and a young student of the Guildhall School. Miss Dorothy Dones spoke her lines clearly as Second Fairy. Mendelssohn's music was played by Mrs. Ambrose Parsons, and the stage directions read by Miss Florence Geere; while the Guildhall students rendered useful assistance in the part songs and choruses. Shakespeare's plays are no doubt familiar as household words to a huge number, but at the same time thousands have never heard of A Midsummer Night's Dream, and for them a condensed plot of the various plays would be a welcome addition to the programme. The B.E.S.S. are doing an excellent work by giving these readings, and thanks must be awarded to the talented artists for their assistance in so good a cause.

MARTIN HARVEY IN BIRMINGHAM

The Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre was the subject of a lecture by Mr. Martin Harvey in the Birmingham Theatre Royal, on Tuesday afternoon. There was a large gathering, and in the absence of the Lord Mayor (Alderman W. H. Bowater), Sir Oliver Lodge presided.

Mr. MARTIN HARVEY said it had taken them 300 years to rear a worthy memorial to our great hero of letters. To-day he did not despair of playing his part to heedless ears, but it was played by one of the greatest men in his walk of life for many years, to ears that were deaf or unresponsive—he meant Sir Henry Irving. He had, at all events, the joy of seeing his hope crystallise in substantial shape before he died, and into a form which was nearest to his heart—a Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre. In 1916 it would be 300 years since there died in this country the most amazing giant in the literature of the world—an Englishman. Yet to honour him we had erected only a little figure above a fountain in Leicester-square, and a bust in the Poet's Corner. All this was going to be changed. The idea had been slowly gaining ground for some years past that this shameful neglect of Shakespeare's memory must be put an end to. Two movements emerged from this conviction. One was to erect a worthy monument in the form of a statue to commemorate the tercentenary of Shakespeare's death in 1916, the other, and by far the more powerful movement, was to erect a building which should fulfil the double purpose of being a noble and dignified memorial to him, and at the same time to serve the best interests of that dramatic art which he himself reared to so exalted a pinnacle during his life. It was quickly realised by all concerned in these movements that the second was incomparably the more fitting expression of public feeling. The two movements quickly merged, and it was decided that the expression of the public enthusiasm should take the form of the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre.

For the scheme it was necessary to raise £500,000 to be spent thus:—£100,000 for a suitable site, £150,000 to build and equip the theatre, and the remaining £250,000 permanently to endow it. He enumerated the uses of the theatre as six-fold. It was to keep the plays of Shakespeare in its repertory, not only the half-dozen Shakespearean plays which poor actor-managers found the only remunerative ones—for this national theatre would be above commercial considerations—but all of them. It was also to revive whatever was vital in English classical drama; to prevent recent plays of great merit from falling into oblivion; to produce new plays and further develop the modern drama; and to produce translations of representative works of foreign drama, ancient and modern. There were many plays of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries which were now seldom or never seen. They probably could not think of them because they did not know them—neither did he. But they would know them when the national theatre took them down from the dusty shelves, and they would be astonished at their wealth, their ignorance.

Then, too, there was a large number of plays which, though unsuited to the requirements of a manager, contained admirable and sterling qualities, which at present found little or no outlet. Then the theatre was to stimulate the art of acting. That touched home! Let them think of the practice a young actor would get in such a theatre! New parts to play every few days, fresh characters, fresh outlook, fresh authors to interpret; a constant change of environment and inspiration. Those were the surroundings that made an actor, giving him flexibility and power of varied expression, and sooner or later the golden opportunity of a part which would show the public what he was made of.

Mr. Harvey proceeded to deal with the objections offered to the scheme. It was said that Shakespeare needed no other monument than his own imperishable works, but in answer to that he said that Shakespeare wrote for the stage, and if his work alone were to be his monument, how should we remember him when there came upon us those periods of vitiated public taste which degraded dramatic representation from time to time, when the true arena of his genius, namely, the stage, was swamped beneath a wave of vulgarity and meretricious triviality? Such periods had come upon us, as every student of the history of our stage well knew. We need only remind them of the worst period of the Restoration Drama, when the noble works of Shakespeare were considered fit vehicles on which to hang an embroidery of light music and trumpery masque. There was another and more recent lapse. He spoke of a period immediately prior to the advent of Sir Henry Irving, when Matthew Arnold, in brilliant and convincing words, called attention to the need for theatrical organisation.

In reply to the objection that such a sum as was proposed would be better devoted to the cause of medical science, he said it was no flourish of rhetoric, but a sober statement of fact, to say that at present there was no surer way of promoting national health and efficiency than by helping to supply this manifest want in our spiritual equipment. The theatre was literally making the minds of our urban populations to-day. It was a huge factory of sentiment, of character, of points of honour, of conceptions of conduct, of everything that finally determined the destiny of nations. A Shakespeare National Theatre would not only be a much-needed monument of England's pride in her past, but an indispensable instrument towards the shaping of her great future. It would do more permanent good than many hospitals. The third objection was that the work which it was proposed should be done by the Shakespeare Memorial National Theatre was already being done by private enterprise. We were fortunate in having lived in a day when it had been done by private enterprise, but it would be most unwise to count upon a continuance of this happy state of things. The individual genius who could by private enterprise maintain the standard upon his own shoulders was a rara avis. He must unite in himself the enthusiasm of the artist, the need of the creator to create, together with that capacity for unconscious self-sacrifice which disdained the consequences of financial difficulty which would almost surely result—in the theatrical calling at least—from the pursuit of the highest aims, irrespective of the means and the support. For they must face this fact, that the highest forms of dramatic representation did not as a rule pay. There had been rare instances when they had, but they must take the rule and not the exception.

People living in the provinces might say, "How are we to benefit by this Memorial Theatre which is to be situated in London?" In one practical way they would certainly benefit, for it was proposed that at certain periods the company associated with the National Theatre should pay regular visits to provincial centres, which would thus reap the advantage of having the great works of our national drama, of the drama of antiquity, and the chosen achievements of living dramatic authors presented in an elaborate and worthy manner by a carefully chosen company of artists. It seemed to him that the promoters of this scheme were doing a greater thing than perhaps they realised. They were doing something which would tell upon the life of the future, and it was an idea which, if it were not actually animated by what they should call the moral purpose, would be moral in its effect and ennobling in its effect upon our people.

It was announced that £127 had been subscribed from Birmingham for the scheme.

THE CHELTENHAM THEATRE CO.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Cheltenham Theatre and Opera House Company was held on the morning of the 11th inst. in the Town Hall. Mr. J. T. Agg-Gardner, J.P. (chairman of the company) presided. In the annual statement of affairs of the company the directors recorded an income of £8,304 14s., an expenditure of £7,939 16s. 7d., a net profit of £364 17s. 5d., and, with last year's balance, a sum of £597 7s. 4d. available for distribution. The directors proposed to pay a dividend of 5 per cent. free of income-tax (absorbing £300), to place £250 to the reserve fund, and to carry forward £47 7s. 4d.

In proposing the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, the chairman congratulated the shareholders upon the fact that the company was again in a position to declare the satisfactory and substantial dividend of 5 per cent. upon the ordinary shares. Further, it was a matter for congratulation that, by the further reduction of the debentures during the past year, the shareholders were one step nearer acquiring the full possession of the theatre. The debentures had been reduced by £250, which would leave the amount of the debenture capital at £2,450; and there was a prospect of reducing this during the present year by an amount approximating £1,000. The result of that would be that the property valued in the last balance-sheet at £11,000, and for which £13,000 was paid originally, would become, with the exception of the remaining £1,450, the entire possession of the ordinary shareholders, whose capital, was £6,000. He thought there were very few theatres which had been able to reduce their debenture debt with so much rapidity and ease. It would have been noticed by those who had compared the figures that there had been a falling-off in the house receipts to the amount of £2,325; but, of course, there was a proportionate reduction in the amount paid to the theatrical companies. The diminution in the takings had been due to various and exceptional circumstances, with most of which they were all familiar. In the first place, the theatre suffered from the lamentable event which cast a gloom over the country in the early part of the summer—the death of his late Majesty King Edward VII. Naturally the theatre had to be closed, and naturally, for a time, the people abstained from ideas of entertainment to a very large degree. It was a loss which, of course, they lamented on all grounds, and it was one which depressed every form of entertainment throughout the country. Then, too, they had the misfortune during the year of suffering from a general election. To many people a general election was a period of interest, and to all it was a period of excitement; but, whether advantageous or not, it was a serious competitor with places of entertainment. There were strange-minded people who thought that greater amusement was to be derived from attending political meetings than from such entertainments as those provided by the manager of the theatre. That was a question of taste on which he would not adjudicate, and on which perhaps he could not speak with absolute impartiality. According to that morning's papers the country was threatened with a recurrence of these events at an early date. The papers were not always right in their prognostications, and he could only hope, from the standpoint of the theatre, that the threat would not take effect during the ensuing December and January. Another thing the theatre had to contend with had been the introduction of the cinematograph in the form of the "picture palace." They had no complaint to make against the cinematograph; the pictures were entertaining, no doubt, every form of entertainment had a right to exist, and those who were associated with theatres would be the last persons to be jealous. It was a fact that the cinematograph had acted somewhat prejudicially upon the takings of the theatre. He thought, however, that they might regard the taste for cinematograph displays as evanescent, and they need not be under the apprehension that it would in the future seriously affect the theatre. The love of the drama was a very ancient instinct in the British people, one which had existed for centuries, and would, he thought, outlive cinematograph displays. Then they had had a formidable competitor in the skating rink close by, which attracted many people. The falling off in the receipts had been due to the causes and counter-attractions he had named, and in no way to defect of management or to declining interest in the drama. With regard to the management, they felt that Mr. Redford continued to merit the complete confidence they had always reposed in him, and gladly acknowledged that the satisfactory results achieved were due very much to his energy and ability.

HENRY NEVILLE'S WILL.

The late Henry Neville, of Crescent House, Queen's Crescent, Haverstock Hill, N.W., and of The Esplanade, Seaford, late of Sandon House, Ash-street, Southport, actor, proprietor of the George Hotel, Reading, a prominent Freemason, who first appeared on the London stage in 1860, was afterwards for some years lessee and manager of the Old Olympic Theatre, and was author of several plays and books on the stage, who died on June 19 last, left estate of the gross value of £18,671, of which the net personalty has been sworn at £7,724.

Probate of his will, dated Nov. 24, 1903, with codicils dated Dec. 3, 1903, to Dec. 21, 1905, and May 23 last, has been granted to his sons, Mr. Albert George Francis Gartside Neville, Mr. Ernest John Gartside Neville, stock dealers, of 11, Copthall-court, E.C., and Mr. Thos. Willoughby Gartside Neville, stock dealer's manager, Josephine-avenue, Brixton, S.W.

He directed that his burial should take place at Denshaw, Saddleworth. He stated that the amount of his estate would depend principally upon what the George Hotel, Reading, realised. The will proceeds:—

"I regret I have never up till now been able to afford (without violation of our Masonic principles) to qualify as president or patron of all our Masonic charities. If my estate realises satisfactorily, I devise sufficient of the funds to be given to any (or all) of the institutions (girls, boys, old men and women) as shall be required to make my son Albert what I desire to be myself, and according to his (Albert's) wish and desire and selection.

"I should like the Garrick Club to have some substantial souvenir of me, if they will, and care to accept it. I suggest the lion tankard presented by my dear friend Charles Reade, or the American tankard presented to me by my friend Eugene Tompkins, with the testimonial album signed by my Boston friends, but I leave the selection to my son Albert, to whom I have bequeathed all my theatrical curios and articles of interest." He left £20 to the Green Room Club to buy a silver bowl or tankard, £25 to Elizabeth Nash, and £12 10s. to Tom Yates, cellarman, both of the George Hotel, Reading, if still in his service, and £10 to each domestic servant of three years' service.

The first concert of the season of the Crystal Palace Orchestral Society will be given to-night. The selections include Stanford's "Battle of the Baltic," Dear's "Songs of the Open Air," for baritone and chorus, German's "Rhapsody on March Themes," Nicolai's Overture, "Merry Wives of Windsor," and Delibes' beautiful ballet "Coppelia." The solo artists are Miss Ivy Angove, solo violin, and Mr. Josip Stano, solo violoncello. Mr. Robert Carr will be the vocal soloist, he being assisted by the popular Crystal Palace Choir. Mr. Fred W. Holloway will preside at the piano, while the whole of the arrangements will be under the able direction of Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock (musical director of the Crystal Palace), who will also conduct.

"THE YOUNGER GENERATION."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, by Stanley Houghton, Produced for the First Time on any Stage at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, Nov. 21.

James Henry Kennion....Mr. Stanley Drewitt
Mrs. Kennion.....Miss Ada King
Maggie.....Miss Edyth Goodall
Reggie Kennion.....Mr. J. Vernon Bryant
Grace Kennion.....Miss Isabel Roland
Thomas Kennion.....Mr. Charles Bibby
Mr. Leadbitter.....Mr. Francis Hope
Mr. Fowle.....Mr. Whitford Kane
Arthur Kennion.....Mr. Esmé Percy
Mrs. Hannah Kennion..Miss Louise Holbrook
Clifford Rawson.....Mr. Milton Rosmer

(from our own correspondent.)

In his latest play Mr. Stanley Houghton sets the tendencies of the younger generation at loggerheads with the rigid discipline of Victorian Nonconformity. One might quarrel with the rather commonplace examples of conduct which form the nucleus of his theme; but then, if they are ordinary, there is a certain value in the fact that they are also quite natural—as natural as the small talk with which the play abounds. The action takes place in a suburb of a large town, at the house of James Henry Kennion, who is a Wesleyan of the most serious type. His wife is somewhat less formidably narrow and well-meaning, but, none the less, an irksome influence upon their children, who, by the way, betray no temperamental signs of the parentage to whose training they are opposed. The father's idea is that he is fulfilling a religious duty by supervising every little doing of his children. Reggie, for example, aged nineteen, arriving home at 10.30 from a hockey match at Liverpool, is closely questioned about where he has had tea. Not wishing to admit that he has dined at an hotel with one of his friends, at a joint cost of about 13s. (inclusive of liqueurs and cigars), he tells a lie about it, under protest; and afterwards his father finds the bill. The consequence is parental shock and verbal castigation in the true, stiff, Nonconformist style. Grace, two-and-twenty years of age, is receiving letters from one Clifford Rawson, and the parents, chiefly the father, must pry [illegible] me of these to discover the mystery of the writer. She also, to begin with, tells a lie on the point; but finally allows her father to open the letter and satisfy his religious curiosity. More Nonconformist shock and indignation! Grace, however, is bold enough to fall in with her father's resolution that Clifford Rawson shall come and be talked to on the matter, her idea being not quite the same as the parental one. Then come Mr. Leadbitter and Mr. Fowle, of the Liberal Association, with a request that Mr. Kennion shall allow himself to be nominated for election to the City Council; a somewhat shrewd incidental light upon the theme.

Meanwhile, Kennion's brother Thomas, a man of the world (who has found a prosperous career in Germany, and who is very wide awake to the faults and virtues of James) introduces a broader and breezier element into the situation, and he adds his voice to the chorus of congratulation when the object of Messrs. Leadbitter and Fowle is made known to the household. But, meanwhile, also, there is uneasy wonder as to the whereabouts of Arthur Kennion, aged twenty-one, who has not yet come home, though it is nearly twelve o'clock. A further shock is in store for Kennion, senior. Arthur comes home drunk, and, in sight of everybody, makes a disgraceful attempt to kiss the maid, Maggie, on the threshold of the room. Here, on a single evening, are troubles enough for the father to contend with, and the rest of the play deals with the attitude of the trio of offenders toward the dilemmas in which they find themselves, and the efforts of the father to mould the evil-doers to the discipline of his tongue. Reggie is somewhat easy-going, but has ideas about going to Canada, to get up in the morning there at five o'clock, and lead "a man's life." Grace has simply made up her mind to have her lover to confront her father, and ask outright for consent to their engagement. Arthur, having had enough of Nonconformity, intends to face it out and get drunk again. Meanwhile, when it comes to the point, he refuses point-blank to go to chapel—a fearful and unheard-of misdemeanour. Subsequently, the episode of the evening before is threshed out. Nothing very satisfactory comes of it. Mr. Houghton makes the mistake of commending the idea of a young man's getting drunk occasionally, by way of a relief from the pressure of high spirits. As it happens, too, Kennion, senior, got drunk once in his youth, and is reminded of the fact by his brother Thomas. It is, therefore, an awkward crisis for the father when Reggie puts a direct question to him on this very point. But the father (though he is touched by his conscience afterwards) gets out of it by a lie; all of which tends to support the author's justification of the conduct of the younger generation. As for Grace, her engagement to young Rawson is, after much argument, allowed, and Uncle Tom undertakes to introduce Arthur to a new sphere of life under his control in Germany.

There are many incidentals to this broad outline of the piece, and one other character who is quite pertinently introduced to give colour to the parental side of affairs. This character is that of the grandmother, Mrs. Hannah Kennion. She is the true mother of James (Thomas seems scarcely of the same blood), and her impersonation by Miss Louise Holbrook was an astonishing piece of realism, yet as a character she is merely objectionable. The really strong feature of the production was the acting of Mr. Stanley Drewitt as Kennion, senior, which was a lifelike and convincing embodiment. As Mrs. Kennion Miss Ada King did all that was possible with her limited opportunities. Miss Edyth Goodall as the maid Maggie (who did not object to being kissed by Arthur, nor by anyone else, and would have no apology for it either) played with her usual distinction. Mr. J. Vernon Bryant as Reggie gave an engaging example of his clean, light style; Miss Isabel Roland was brisk and charming as Grace; and Mr. Esmé Percy answered every requirement as the unrepentant Arthur. Mr. Charles Bibby's depiction of the uncle, Thomas Kennion, was a broadly clever piece of work; Mr. Milton Rosmer played lightly and effectively as Clifford Rawson; and Messrs. Francis Hope and Whitford Kane were good as the Liberal deputation, Leadbitter and Fowle. The play proved enjoyable to an audience who appreciated its surface humour to the full, and the author was accorded a gratifying call.

In Eccentric Lord Comberdene, at the St. James's Theatre, Miss Compton, as the Marchioness of Glenmoray, appears in the first act in a gown of soft satin in a delicate shade of mauve with a strong suggestion of pink. The corsage is composed of chiffon in the same shade, enriched with much heavy embroidery in tarnished gold. The elbow sleeves are finished with cuffs of chiffon, and the long, sweeping skirt is quite plain, with a panel pleat at the back. Over this gown Miss Compton wears a long coat of cinnamon brown satin, with collar and revers of velvet. Miss Compton's evening dress in the second act is a wonderful confection of dark blue chiffon and satin and old gold embroidery. Miss Ruth Maitland has chosen a delicate dove grey poplin for her gown. The corsage is made with a plastron of velvet of a darker shade, and a deep ceinture of orange chiffon veiled with grey. The elbow sleeves of lace and chiffon are finished with orange cuffs, and the skirt is draped in a very novel fashion. Miss Majorie Waterlow as Daphne Farlowe wears a smart costume of Shantung silk with a narrow red stripe. The bodice is in the Magyar style, with a tiny turned-down collar of red.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

"GENOVEVA."

An Opera, in Four Acts, after Tieck and Hebbel, English Version by Louisa Vance, Composed by Robert Schumann (1810-1856), Revived by the Students of the Royal College of Music at His Majesty's Theatre on Friday Afternoon, Nov. 18.

Genoveva.....Miss Clytie Hine, A.R.C.M.
Margaret.....Miss Matilda Bodycombe
Siegfried.....Mr. George Baker
Golo.....Mr. David Ellis
Hidulphus.....Mr. Claud Mackness
Caspar.....Mr. Percy Thomas
Balthasar.....Mr. David Pugh
Drago.....Mr. B. Gregory Evans

On Friday afternoon, Nov. 18, the students of the Royal College of Music gave a performance of Schumann's opera Genoveva at His Majesty's Theatre, by kind permission of Sir Herbert Three. When this opera was first performed by the Royal College at Drury Lane Theatre, in December, 1893, Miss Una H. Bruckshaw was the heroine, Mr. William Green, Golo, and Miss Kirkby Lunn the Witch, Margaret, while Mr. Archdeacon appeared as Siegfried. The libretto relates how Siegfried goes off to fight the Saracens, leaving his faithful wife Genoveva in charge of Golo. In the second act Golo betrays his trust and makes violent love to Genoveva. Being repulsed by her he vows revenge, and induces Drago, the steward, to hide in her ante-room, in order to prove that a love meeting takes place, as Margaret, a witch and Golo's foster-mother, has spread evil reports of Genoveva throughout the castle. In the night a crowd of serving-men, led by Margaret, break into the chamber. Drago is found and killed by Balthasar, a huntsman, and Genoveva is led away to prison. Siegfried lies wounded, after his victory over the Saracens, at Strasburg, when Golo arrives with the news of Genoveva's infidelity. Before ordering her execution Siegfried consults the magic mirror of Margaret, which falsely represents Genoveva and Drago. In a fury Siegfried breaks the mirror and departs, and the third act ends with the ghost of Drago rising and compelling Margaret, under pain of death, to find Siegfried and confess the fraud. The fourth act is short. Genoveva is on the point of being put to death by Balthasar and Caspar, after again refusing Golo's suit, when Seigfried arrives with attendants, and he and Genoveva are united.

The story is badly managed, and the magic mirror episode is almost pantomimic and poor material for an operatic libretto, while the music is undramatic. All admire the great composer's chamber music, songs, and his delightful pianoforte compositions, but it is evident in Genoveva that Schumann's talent does not lie in the direction of dramatic opera, in spite of much refined music in the score.

The performance by the Royal College students on Friday afternoon had many excellent features. Miss Clytie Hine, who has a fine voice, although as yet hardly under complete control, made a sympathetic Genoveva, and Miss Matilda Bodycombe displayed no little dramatic intuition in her reading of the Witch, Margaret. Mr. George Baker sang well, and proved a manly Siegfried; and the chief honours of the afternoon fell to these two clever students. To make Golo an interesting character is almost impossible, for he certainly is the weakest villain on the operatic stage; but Mr. Davis Ellis, in spite of a somewhat small voice, did his utmost to make the part convincing, and delivered his lines clearly. In the matter of diction the Drago of Mr. B. Gregory Evans was not entirely satisfactory, but he acted well. The parts of Hidulphus, Caspar, and Balthasar were intelligently filled by Messrs. Claud Mackness, Percy Thomas, and David Pugh. The choruses were finely sung, and under Sir Charles V. Stanford the orchestral students played admirably. Scenery had been very kindly lent by Sir Herbert Tree, and under Mr. Richard Temple's able stage direction all went smoothly. Costumes were by C. and W. May, and wigs by Clarkson, while Mr. Harold Samuel was chorus master. There was a large audience, and the young performers were warmly applauded.

A SOCIALIST SATIRE.

The New Theatre, Cambridge, which Mr. W. B. Redfern so ably directs the year through, was the scene last week of an excellent production, under the auspices of the Footlights' Dramatic Club, the members of which presented for five performances The Socialist. This is a clever satire in two acts on the propaganda of the Fabian Society and the doctrines of Mr. Robert Blatchford, and is from the pen of Mr. H. Rottenberg, M.A., a clever coach.

The protagonist of the piece is Professor Cyrus R. Hank, who has been ejected from the planet Mars, and arrives on this nether earth with his two daughters. He, of course, advocates in many witty lines "the putting of things upon a base of absolute equality." Hank, indeed, is an all-round genius, who "by methods occult can not only tell the result" of the present political storm, but can turn out personal pars like Hall Caine.

The first performance took place on the 17th inst., and the success was so great that we are to see The Socialist in London when a theatre has been secured. In the Cambridge representation Mr. R. G. Soper, splendidly made up, distinguished himself as Mrs. Berwick; Mr. G. W. Prince looked and acted well as Garvin; Mr. J. B. Hales, in the heavy responsibilities of the part of Cyrus Hank, quite rose to the occasion; Mr. A. K. O. Cochrane sang well; and others who did good work were Messrs. Inglis, Syme Inglis, Douglas-Hamilton, and Gordon-Lennox. There was some capital dancing.

Fortunately, the Footlights' Club had secured the services of Mr. Walter Pearce as stage-producer, and this gentleman, entering upon his duties con amore, secured some excellent stage effects and stage business. The chorus, too, he drilled most admirably. The music of some of the lyrics was composed by Messrs. E. M. Besly and C. F. Smyly, but Mr. J. W. Ivimey, who directed the orchestra and chorus, was chiefly responsible for the score. Some of the lyrics are from the pen of Mr. J. L. Crommelin-Brown.

M. Gemier, director of the Antoine Theatre, Paris, is about to go on tour with a procession of vans drawn by eight road locomotives, weighing eighty tons, and containing properties, scenery, stage, and auditorium. The portable theatre will seat 1,500 spectators, and the prices range from tenpence to three shillings. M. Gémier will take with him a company of twenty actors and actresses, and forty carpenters and stage hands. The portable theatre will carry with it its own lighting and heating machinery, and its own fire-extinguishing plant, consisting of an electric rotary engine and a tank on wheels, which will be filled with water before each performance.

A committee of ladies and gentlemen was formed in October last for the purpose of raising a fund by which expression might be given to the satisfaction felt by musical amateurs in the excellent work done by Mr. P. Tas as conductor and musical director of the Duke of Devonshire's orchestra, from its creation three and a half years ago to its disbandment on the 31st of last month. The total amount subscribed was £65 12s., and after all expenses had been paid, a balance of over £61 remained. Of this £32 was expended on the purchase of a gold lever watch, leaving an amount of £30, which has been handed to Mr. Tas in the form of a cheque. The inscription on the gold watch was: "Presented to Mr. P. Tas by some friends and admirers as a token of their appreciation of his services as conductor of the Duke of Devonshire's Eastbourne Orchestra, 1907-10."

"MOODS."

Musical Ballet, Words, Music, and Dances by Lorna Rothney, Produced at the Stanley Hall, Norwood, on Saturday, Nov. 19.

A Gallant Knight.....Mr. T. E. Hanson
Nurse.....Miss Bedford
Moodie.....Miss Lorna Rothney

Moods.

Tears, Sadness: Miss Kitty Woodbridge and Mr. Jack Aris.
Temper: Miss Lorna Rothney and Mr. J. de la Mare Rowley.
Laughter: Miss Daisy Aris and Mr. S. E. Walmisley.
Pride: Miss Lily Tough and Mr. Leslie Thomas.
Love: Miss Silvia Wilton Ainsley.
Romance: Miss Dorothy Meadows.

This musical and dancing play was produced before a large and enthusiastic audience, and may be noted as a distinct success. The music is charming and melodious, and the dances have been cleverly arranged, the production reflecting much credit upon Miss Lorna Rothney and her hard-working assistants. As showing the cordial reception accorded the ballet, we have only to mention that nearly every item was heartily encored. The synopsis is thus quaintly given. The scene is laid in an old world garden in which is seen the Maid Moodie listening to the songs of the old Bards, of which she quickly tires, for Moodie is a maid of many moods, whom gallant knights have wooed in vain. A knight, just returned from the Holy Wars, also comes to woo the beautiful Moodie, although her old nurse gives him no hope. Nevertheless, he stays, and first meets Moodie in her mood of Sadness, and here Sadness dances for the "Cloak of Sunshine." With mid-morn her mood changes to Hate, and the fiends of her Temper appear and join her in a dance. At noon she laughs, and the elfin spirit of her Laughter dances with the Jester of her merry teasing. The Knight presumes on her fun and compliments her, when her smiles turn to haughty indifference, and the spirit of her Pride dances a courtly minuet. The gallant Knight is penitent, and again her mood changes—this time to Love, and the Knight is happy, while Cupid dances. But, alas! Cupid vanishes, and the sylphs of the air call Moodie to the land of Romance (Terpsichore), and while she is lost in her dreamland the gallant Knight sees that he has wooed in vain, and he, too, rides away, leaving Moodie dancing in Terpsichore, where she meets an Arcadian shepherd, and with him executes a dance à la Moscovie. The curtain falls on Moodie still in aerial flights on Fancy's wings.

Mr. T. E. Hanson gave a finished portrayal of a Gallant Knight, and sang his numbers with excellent effect, his fine baritone voice standing him in good stead. Miss Bedford deserves commendation for her rendering of the Nurse. Miss Lorna Rothney sang sweetly, and had ample opportunities of displaying her graceful and untiring terpsichorean abilities. All the dancers representing the various Moods acquitted themselves well, and may be congratulated upon their work. A dance, "Sylphs of the Air," executed by Misses Kitty Woodbridge, Daisy Aris, and Lorna Rothney, is worthy of mention, and praise is due to the accompanists, Mrs. Sherwood and Miss Ethel de la Mare Rowley. The proceeds, without deductions of any kind, were for the benefit of the Croydon District Boy Scouts.

NEW THEATRE AT RUGBY.

The New Palace Theatre, Rugby, which will be opened to-day, will be substantially built of brick, with stone dressings. It will have a handsome frontage of 61ft. to Railway-terrace, and will be carried back along Market-street to a depth of 98ft. Accommodation will be provided for about 800 people. There will be two boxes, with foyers, orchestra stalls, pit stalls, and pit, above which is a circle and behind that a gallery. Five exits will be provided. The staircases will be constructed of fire-resisting materials, and the auditorium floor will be sloping, so that all patrons may get a good view of the performance.

The stage will be larger than some of those in the London theatres, the measurements being 36ft. by 50ft. The curtain will be fire-resisting, and the fittings will include iron contact doors. The flys and grids are to be constructed on the most modern principles, and there will be seven dressing-rooms.

The pit and gallery entrances will be in Market-street, also the stage entrance, and at the main entrance in Railway-terrace there will be provided a crush hall, in addition to managers' and box offices, stores, &c. Internally, the theatre will be treated with fibrous plaster and suitably decorated. The electric light will be installed, and it will be heated with water on the low-pressure system. When completed, no doubt the theatre will be a creditable addition to the buildings of Rugby.

The architects are Messrs. Franklin and Newman, L.R.I.B.A., of Rugby.

The formation is announced of the Worksop Gaiety Theatre Company, by Jordan and Sons, Ltd., 116-117, Chancery-lane, W.C. The capital is £4,000 (1,500 "A" six per cent. preference, and 2,000 "B" seven per cent. preference shares of £1 each, and 2,000 ordinary shares of 5s. each). The object is to acquire the Gaiety Theatre, Bridge-street, Worksop, Nottingham. The office is at 35, Bridge-street, Worksop.

The "Buckinghamshire Players" gave their first performance at Naphill, Buckinghamshire, on Saturday, producing a little piece by Miss Gertrude Robins, entitled Pot Luck. William Jenkins, a poacher, brings home a brace of pheasants, though his wife is much opposed to his poaching. Two policemen approach, and Jenkins cannot think where to hide the tell-tale birds. His wife says that if he promises to give up poaching she will conceal them safely. The policemen enter the cottage, and search it thoroughly. They find nothing, and after they have left Mrs. Jenkins shows her spouse the birds, which she has dropped into the saucepan which is on the fire. Jenkins is pleased, and promises to reform.

Jacques Kreuger, an elderly actor, of New York, has died in the Harper Hospital there from injuries sustained under singular circumstances. Kreuger was a member of a company which was appearing in a topical revue at the Detroit Opera House. He had to personify Mr. John D. Rockefeller, and his big scene occurred when in the character of the famous oil magnate he was hoisted into the flies, this "ascension act" being intended to represent Mr. Rockefeller on his way to Heaven. When this part of the performance was reached Kreuger fell from the flies to the stage, and was fatally injured.

An American-Indian play will shortly be produced at the New Theatre, New York. It is called The Arrow Maker, and the author is Mrs. Mary Hunter Austin, who has studied and written stories about the red men of the South-west as well as the folk-lore of various nations. The authoress herself will teach the Indian dances that will be introduced in the play and otherwise assist in the presentation of what is expected to be a decided novelty in American theatricals. The production will require the full strength of the New Theatre company, and every character represented will be an Indian. The play is in three acts, but the plot is withheld for the present. All that has been said about the "motive" is that it "demonstrates the unity of human life from beginning to end," and that "the playwright holds that there is no real difference in men, no matter what their lot may be." Mrs. Austin is a native of Illinois and is of French and English descent.

Mrs. Adela Maddison's four-act opera Der Talisman, based on Ludwig Fulda's play of the same name, was produced at Leipzig last Saturday, and had a cordial reception, the composer being called before the curtain at the close of the third act.

The Théâtre de Monsieur, in the Rue des Mathurins, Paris, which is under the direction of Mr. Victor Silvestre, gave its first performance on Tuesday. The new playhouse is like no other in Paris. The delicate scheme of decoration was the admiration of the spectators as soon as they entered. The style of decoration is of the Marie Antoinette period. Lackeys with powdered wigs open the doors. Soubrettes in eighteenth-century costumes present programmes; and the musicians of the orchestra are attired in brown silk coats and flowered waistcoats, with white ruffles and cuffs, knickerbockers, silk stockings, and shoes with silver buckles, and wear brown wigs with pigtails. Three eighteenth-century pieces were performed.

"THE NIGGER."

The above play, in three acts, by Edward Sheldon, has been published in New York by the Macmillan Company.

Mr. Edward Sheldon should be numbered among the coming American dramatists. He has the instinct of the theatre without being theatrical; he can plumb the depths of passion in his scenes; and his characters are of flesh and blood. His play, The Nigger, was produced at the New Theatre, New York, on Dec. 4 last year, and our correspondent, in his notice of the piece, wrote that Mr. Sheldon, a young Harvard graduate, "has wrestled with the negro problem. He has not solved, however, or tried to, but has aimed to present a true picture of the social, political, and economic conditions of the South." Whatever the author started out to do, he has certainly written a striking play. We have not had the advantage of seeing it at the theatre, played by actors and actresses competent to realise its finer shades of character, but without the glamour of the stage, in cold print, the play compels the reader to go on.

We see trouble ahead of Phil Morrow as soon as we hear from Clifton Noyes, his cousin, a shrewd, unscrupulous whiskey trader—out to get dollars by any means—that he has discovered some interesting family history in searching through some old trunks. There is a trace of black blood in Phil. His grandfather had taken his quadroon girl's baby and said it was his wife's. Phil's father, therefore, was an octoroon, and had no claim whatever to the Morrow property. Noyes has some use for Phil, and keeps his knowledge to himself until the latter becomes Governor of the State.

In the second act Morrow has to deal with a race riot, and becomes dead sure that if it weren't for drinking the trouble would never have started. He therefore compulsorily closes every bar saloon in the city, and this order brings him into direct opposition to Cliff Noyes, whose distillery is breaking records. As he says, "people need a heap of whiskey to get them to the stage where they kill every nigger they see." When Noyes realises, however, that Phil's orders for closing bars are not merely temporary, but permanent—when, in short, he learns that the man whom he has helped to make Governor has become a prohibitionist, he threatens to disclose Phil's nigger ancestry.

We may quite appropriately quote Phil's reasons for becoming a prohibitionist :—"I've been givin' the whole thing a good deal o' thought, Clif,' the las' six months, an' I've come to some right definite conclusions. This volcano's helped me along conside'able. We brought the niggahs ovah t' this country, Clif, an' I reckon we're responsible fo' them while theah heah. If we've kept 'em like children, we've got to treat 'em like children. An' we're not in the habit, Clif, o' pourin' liquoh down the throats of our infants. Why, day befo' yeste'day I had a count made an' theah were three thousand four hundred and sixty-seven idle niggahs in the fifty-nine saloons o' the levee district! That was the end, Cliff, an' the long an' the sho't of it is—we're goin' dry! I'm goin' to let that Bill pass. This State'll go dry within a week." One can understand the position of Noyes. As he says, if the Bill goes through he "won't have a cent left in the world."

Phil is engaged to a beautiful girl, Georgina Byrd. When he tells her that, according to the conventions of society in the South he is a nigger, though there is scarcely a drop of black blood in his veins, she shrinks from him. Phil has thought love to be the biggest thing on earth. In a fine burst of passion he says to Georgina :—"You poor, shallow little creature, how dare you say the word! My nigger grandmother—that quadroon slave gal!—could have given you points right and left how to play the game! She passed up her child and her life; and her last words to the man that made her do it were, 'I love you!'" But Georgie has a revulsion of feeling, and understands at last the nobility of her lover's character. They are reconciled, and we leave them together. An interesting character in the play is Senator Long, who puts the case for the black race fairly and squarely.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We do not answer inquiries by post. In all letters the names and addresses of inquirers must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the answers if so desired.]

W. MONTAGUE.—Yes, a licence is required. You should apply to the chief officer of police for the necessary forms of notice.

F. WISE.—The lady is quite young, and is not married to anyone. The gentleman you write of has the same name as her father. This fact has probably caused you to make the error.

LEONARD BRABANT. — We do not know the lady's exact age, and we are certainly not going to inquire. She commenced her career when very young, and is over forty. See notice above.

J. MORDECAI.—You have been grossly misinformed. If you look at the bottom of the first column of the front page of our issue of last week you will discover the lady's name. She has been playing on tour in The Mountaineers.

F. LANGTON (Knaresborough).—We have no official particulars of the dimensions or measurements of the houses named. A letter to the master carpenters of both, with stamped, addressed envelope enclosed, would procure you the information.

W. LEONARD.—The singing rights for theatres, halls, and concert platforms of popular songs are reserved, whether the words and music are published in weekly newspapers or not. Permissions for pantomime and for performance are arranged only by the publishers, to whom application must be made.

HECTOR (Birmingham).—We could not tell you the approximate value of your curio, which is undoubtedly rare. Possibly the secretary of the Garrick or Savage or the Green Room Club could give you some idea of its worth. Write to either, enclosing stamped addressed envelope.

R. B. GARDNER (Cheshire).—You may obtain the recitation The Cry of the Night from French's, 26, Southampton-street, Strand, W.C., who have it in the Stockwell Reciter, which they will be pleased to forward to you post free on receipt of 1s. 2d. We can give you no information concerning the Kipling piece. See notice above.

DANCER.—There was a clog-dancing contest in 1906 at Accrington, when Brannan won, but this contest was not under championship rules of twenty steps and a shuffle off. Frank Leon, who died on Oct. 31, 1909, was third in a contest which took place at Glasgow in 1900, Royal being second. In a contest in 1901 George Macintosh was first. We cannot say, however, who is champion at the present moment. It is a subject of greater interest to the Northern folk than the Londoner.

THE pantomime at the Britannia this year promises to be well up to the standard of excellence always associated with the Christmas attractions at this Hoxton theatre. The Forty Thieves, which is the subject chosen, will include flying ballet and trap scenes, a grand transformation scene, and an old-fashioned harlequinade. Mr. Geo. Conquest will repeat former successes by appearing as Cogia Baba.

MR. AND MRS. CHALMERS MACKEY AND CO. have been at the King's Theatre, Kilmarnock, this week with a répertoire of Irish plays. On Monday they presented The Wearin' o' the Green, a capital play with songs and dances. Mr. Chalmers Mackey as Barney O'Hea was the typical Irish "bhoy," Mr. J. P. McBride made a capital Shamus McDermott, and his singing was very good. Miss May Livesey invested Barney's sweetheart with plenty of "life and go," and her singing and dancing was excellent. Mrs. Chalmers Mackey played Norah well. Miss Jeanette Lyons makes an excellent Mrs. M'Dermott, and Mr. Morley Carroll was an effective villain. The Shaughraun, Arrah-na-Pogue, and Rollicking Rory are also on the bill.

"THE ARCADIANS'" dance, recently held at the Prince's Galleries, eclipsed even the success of the ones which were so well attended last year. Mr. Courtneidge was unable to be present, but was ably represented by Mr. Lionel Monckton. Over 400 guests sat down to supper, the theatres represented including Daly's, Vaudeville, Lyric, Adelphi, Gaiety, &c. During supper daintily perfumed fans were presented to the ladies, and this led to autographs being sought from Miss Florence Smithson, Dan Rolyat, Alfred Lester, Harry Welchman, Akerman May, Nelson Keys, and others. One of the features of the dance programme was a valse, "Firelight Fancies," specially composed for the occasion by Mr. Harry Welchman, which was a much appreciated item, several encores being demanded. Mr. Alfred H. Majilton, a popular member of Mr. Courtneidge's company, acted as chief steward, and the capable manner in which he carried out the arduous duties of making everyone comfortable deserves great praise. Messrs. George Gordon and Boris Belew, the hon. secretaries, are to be congratulated upon having been instrumental in organising such a successful function. Messrs. Akerman May and Arthur Ashdown rendered good service as M.C.'s.

Reading Rink.

THE Vastern-road Skating Rink has been opened for the season under the management of Mrs. Hawthorne.

New Rinkery for Wallsend.

THE vast rink at Wallsend-on-Tyne, which has been under construction for some time past, was opened on the 16th by Alderman Jas. Allen, under the most favourable auspices, and before a large and fashionable gathering. The rink has been entirely built by the owner, Mr. Wm. Ridley, of Consett. The general decorations are on an elaborate scale, and a large and luxurious balcony runs all around the rink. There is a commodious café where both skaters and spectators can partake of refreshments. On the opening night the floor was in good condition, and over 600 patrons used the Winslow skates. The dimensions of the skating surface are 272ft. by 75ft.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes" which is at present required. — St. James's Gazette.

ACTORS' ORGANISATIONS.

It often happens that one is obliged to wait till Time has proved the accuracy of one's expectations in order that they may be acknowledged to be correct; and this has been the case with regard to several "movements" for the benefit of the actor. There were many temptations to us to support and applaud the objects of the defunct Actors' Union. It is easy to win cheap popularity by stirring up strife; and we dare say many of our readers thought us very cold-blooded because we did not advocate a Minimum Wage and admit the practicability of a general strike of actors. We do not deny that many of those who were warmest in their support of the Actors' Union were thoroughly disinterested in their advocacy, though others may have seen in the movement only a means of obtaining notoriety and self-advertisement. In our opinion, it showed more real concern for the interests of the profession to tell them the plain truth than to hold out to them prospects of Utopian allurement, which, in the very nature of things, could never be realised. Enough, however, of the Actors' Union. It was a pathetic waste of misguided energy; and those who read the series of leading articles in which we explained the situation and exposed the unpractical nature of the proposals made by the Union will see that our doubts of its success were well founded.

That excellent institution the Actors' Association, which has now settled down to a state of quiet comfort and practical usefulness, is in a very satisfactory condition, and Mr. DUNCAN YOUNG may be congratulated on the condition of affairs at the convenient and comfortable premises near Piccadilly Circus. The aims of the Association are modest and moderate; but in many ways it is indispensable to the actor and actress, and it wages war perseveringly against the "bogus" manager, and generally supplies a centre to which all grievances may be reported and a means by which, if possible, they may be removed. It promises no revolutionary reforms, nor is it in ardent hostility with the leading London theatrical managers. But what it undertakes to do is done, and done well; and its continued existence proves that it "supplies a want."

Another institution which appears to be permanent is that of Actors' Day. It has been doing its work so quietly that there must be many who have overlooked its existence; but there are many points of interest in connection with it. It was established with the approval and support of the leading London theatrical managers. At a meeting at the St. James's Theatre in the January of 1907, which was presided over by Sir SQUIRE BANCROFT, supported by Sir—then Mr.—BEERBOHM TREE, Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER, Mr. EDWARD TERRY, Mr. LAURENCE IRVING, Mr. A. E. DRINKWATER, and others, Mr. BOURCHIER proposed that a day in the year should be set apart on which all actors and actresses should subscribe one night's salary to the fund; and £1,469 was thus obtained. There were hopes at this time that Actors' Day would realise the late Sir HENRY IRVING'S original idea of one great charity and Sir HERBERT TREE'S desire to do away with the dinners and public appeals for the different theatrical charities.

It is interesting to study the report of the recent annual general meeting of the Actors' Day Fund, and to observe that, while these anticipations have not been realised, nevertheless good has come of them. The Fund has become a means of insurance against unemployment. The contributions up to Sept. 30 this year were over £260, and against these were "grants and loans, less amounts repaid," above £102. The policy of the Fund has been judiciously indulgent. It only asks that a member shall be on the Fund for six months to entitle him to assistance. As Mr. ACTON BOND remarked at the meeting, the elasticity of the Fund was its great charm, because it was administered by actors, and every case could be safely left to the discretion of the committee. A good deal of this discretion has been required; for instance, in the first years of the Fund's existence one or two people contributed 6s. 8d. and then asked for a £2 loan. But, as the able and attentive hon. secretary, Mr. A. E. DRINKWATER, said at the meeting, there was no need to approach this difficulty with unnecessary timidity. If they made it clearly understood that it was the business of every member to contribute every year, and, if out of an engagement, to communicate with the committee, he did not think they would increase the attractions of the Fund by being in the least lax in that respect. If an actor contributed in 1906 and could not in 1907 he had only to say so; but if he said nothing and then suddenly found himself in want of assistance, it would not be fair to other contributors to render it. That so many of the loans have been repaid is decidedly gratifying; and the fact that the Fund helped nearly 25 per cent. of its subscribers last year alone shows that the principle of self-help appeals strongly to a considerable proportion of the profession. We call attention to Actors' Day because, as Mr. CECIL BARTH said in his admirable letter to us on the subject, there are many members of the profession who apparently know very little of the working of this Fund, in spite of the fact that it has now been established over four years. No doubt, as far as touring companies are concerned, this is owing to the constant travelling and changes week by week. With Mr. BARTH'S statement that it is impossible for the touring actor to keep in touch with the progress of events unless he reads his theatrical paper "religiously" we, of course, heartily concur. Of course, the majority of those needing assistance are dealt with by that unrivalled institution the Actors' Benevolent Fund; but the profession is "justified" of all its organisations, and the continued existence of "Actors' Day" is a proof of its usefulness.

A MANAGER-POET.

Mr. Herbert Trench has contributed the following poem to the Fortnightly Review for November:—

REQUIEM OF ARCHANGELS FOR THE WORLD.

Hearts, beat no more! Earth's Sleep has come!
All iron stands her wrinkled Tree,
The streams that sang are stricken dumb,
The snow-flake fades into the sea.

Hearts, throb no more! your time is past!
Thousands of years for this pent field
Ye have done battle. Now at last
The flags may sink, the captains yield.

Sleep, ye great Wars, just or unjust!
Sleep takes the gate and none defends.
Soft on your craters' fire and lust,
Civilisations, Sleep descends!

Time it is, time to cease carouse!
Let the nations and their noise grow dim!
Let the lights wane within the house
And darkness cover, limb by limb!

Across your passes, Alps and plains
A planetary vapour flows,
A last invader, and enchains
The vine, the woman, and the rose.

Sleep, Forests old! Sleep in your beds
Wild-muttering Oceans and dark Wells!
Sleep be upon your shrunken heads,
Blind everlasting Pinnacles!

Sleep now ye great, high-shining Kings,
Your torrent glories snapt in death.
Sleep, simple men—sunk water springs
And all the ground Man laboureth.

Sleep, Heroes, in your mountain walls—
The trumpet shall not sound again;
And ranged on misty pedestals
Sleep now, O sleepless Gods of men,

Nor lift up your unfathomed orbs!
These troubled clans that make and mourn
Some heavy-lidded Cloud absorbs
And the lulling snows of the Unborn.

The Earth lies cold. Thou, stooping Night,
Lay forth the limbs and shroud the scars,
And bid with chanting to the rite
The torches of thy train of stars!

DEATH OF A PROVINCIAL MUSICAL DIRECTOR.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. J. Callaghan, for many years conductor of the Theatre Royal orchestra, Birkenhead. The deceased musician was for sixteen years engaged at the New Theatre Royal, and he held the position of musical director for the last ten years. His death took place with painful suddenness on the 18th inst. as the result of a paralytic seizure on the previous Wednesday night. Mr. Callaghan, who was only thirty-nine years of age, leaves a widow and three children.

The funeral took place at Flaybrick-hill Cemetery on Monday. Father Bewley, of St. Werburgh's R.C. Church, conducted the Requiem at the cemetery chapel and the graveside. Four members of the Theatre Royal orchestra acted as bearers.

There was a large attendance at the graveside. The chief mourners included Mrs. J. Callaghan (widow), Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Callaghan (mother and father), Mr. and Mrs. Charles Callaghan (brother and sister-in-law), Mr. and Mrs. J. Keating (sister and brother-in-law), Mr. J. Callaghan (brother), Miss Agnes Callaghan (sister), Mrs. Saville (mother-in-law), Mr. H. Callaghan (nephew), Mrs. Kelly (sister-in-law), Mr. Kelly (brother-in-law), Mr. W. W. Kelly, T.C.; and among those present were Mr. J. A. Gardner (musical director, Kelly's Theatre).

Wreaths were sent by Mother and Children, Mother and Father, Mr. C. Callaghan and Family, Polly and Jack, Mr. W. W. Kelly, T.C., Mr. D. J. Clarke, T.C., Mr. Harold Smith, The Birkenhead Dramatic Society, Mr. R. Grant (Kelly's Theatre), Staff at New Theatre Royal, Orchestra New Theatre Royal, Mr. and Mrs. Poole (New Brighton), Orchestra at the Argyle Theatre, Orchestra at Kelly's Theatre, Patrons of New Brighton Skating Rink, Staff of New Brighton Skating Rink, Orchestra of New Brighton Skating Rink, and many others.

ACTRESSES' FRANCHISE LEAGUE MATINÉE.

Organised and carried out almost entirely by the fair sex, the unfair being but sparsely represented on each side of the curtain, the matinée given at the Aldwych Theatre on the 18th, arranged by the Joint Committee of the Actresses' Franchise League and the Women Writers' Suffrage League, was a gratifying success for all concerned. The house was packed with a most enthusiastic audience, and the entertainment given a decidedly enjoyable one, two new one-act plays being presented, the first a comedietta by "George Paston," entitled

"STUFFING."

Mr. Pully ..... MR. ARTHUR CHESNEY
Mrs. Pully ..... MISS CLARE GREET
Mrs. Lindus ..... MISS AGNES THOMAS
Johnny ..... MISS SYDNEY FAIRBROTHER

Much diversion was created by this amusing little piece, which concerns a domestic squabble resulting from selfish man giving his wife a birthday "present" in which he can share. Mr. Pully, a cabdriver, arriving home, notices a certain coldness on the part of Mrs. Pully, and in her absence enquires the reason of Mrs. Lindus, his sister-in-law, a melancholy widow. It is Mrs. Pully's birthday, and he has forgotten all about it. What shall he buy her? Mrs. Lindus suggests a new jacket or hat, but we learn from her son Johnny that she is not altogether a disinterested person, as she has been promised the left-off one. Pully, however, pooh-poohs any article of wearing apparel. What about a nice plump Aylesbury duck?—his favourite dish. And off he goes to make his purchase. Mrs. Pully, on her return, soon learns what her present is to be, and on her husband's return is not so surprised or elated as he expects her to be. She evidently doesn't think much of his bargain—and where are the giblets, and the onion for stuffing? And then the trouble really begins. Stuffing doesn't agree with Pully, and he won't have it; duck without stuffing doesn't appeal to Mrs. Pully, who is naturally indignant at not being able to do as she likes with her present. Recriminations result in Mrs. Pully putting on her hat and going out; the whining widow wonders if it is possible she might "do away" with herself. Pully laughs at the idea, but eventually getting anxious, departs to search for her. Then Mrs. Pully returns. She has only been to buy an onion for the stuffing! Pully's prolonged absence causes some anxiety to the wife, the comforting Mrs. Lindus suggesting all sorts of horrible things, and Mrs. Pully departs—accompanied by Johnny, to take care of his aunt—in search of her spouse. Mrs. Lindus remaining behind to finish making the stuffing. Left alone with the duck, Mrs. Limpus strikes a brilliant idea. Dismally wailing "Home, Sweet Home," she packs the duck in her basket, generally disarranges things on the table, and when Pully and his wife return, snivels out that a dog has been in the room and stolen it. When it is discovered in her basket she pretends it was all done for a joke, and husband and wife are reconciled, it being agreed to "have the stuffing on a separate plate." This bright little comedy was capitally acted by Miss Clare Greet and Mr. Arthur Chesney as Mr. and Mrs. Pully, the quarrel incident being admirably done; Miss Agnes Thomas as the melancholy but artful widow, Mrs. Lindus; and Miss Sydney Fairbrother, splendid as the dismal Johnny, who is always uttering unfortunate remarks.

The other novelty of the bill was the one-act play by Cicely Hamilton, entitled

"THE HOME-COMING."

Mrs. Daly ..... MISS MAY WHITTY
Mary Fraser ..... MISS AURIOL LEE
Elizabeth ..... MISS MARIANNE CALDWELL

This pathetic and intense little play tells of the return, after a long absence, of Mary Fraser, to her gentle and patient mother, who, at the opening of the action, is wondering what can have happened, as she has not heard from her daughter—who she believes is earning her livelihood in America—for some time. When that daughter comes home it is a pitiable tale she has to tell. Having a good and trustful husband, she had for some time previous to his death loved another man, whom she had subsequently lived with—she admits she would have gone to Hell for him. But it is the old tale. She is not too old to love, but too old to be loved. There are a few grey hairs, and the contemptible cur had abandoned her and married a younger woman. She makes no complaint, and offers no excuse for her conduct. Such was her fascination for the man that she declares that had her mother gone on her knees and implored her to return home she would have refused. But there is no word of reproach from that mother now, who freely forgives her and takes the poor broken woman to her arms and soothes her to sleep. The play was perfectly acted by Miss May Whitty, as the gentle and lovable mother; Miss Auriol Lee, as the daughter, the actress skilfully depicting the anguish and suffering of the erring woman, and giving altogether a splendid portrayal; and Miss Marianne Caldwell as the maidservant, Elizabeth.

Much enthusiasm was aroused by Miss Cicely Hamilton's beautiful and striking Pageant of Great Women, especially when Prejudice (Man), finely enacted by Mr. Henry Ainley, "slunk away," completely vanquished by Woman, who eventually demonstrated to everyone's satisfaction that women were men's equals in all walks of life. Miss Lillah McCarthy as Woman delivered her lines with fervour and feeling; Miss Lily Brayton as Justice looked magnificent in shimmering gold; and the Learned Women, the Artistic Women, the Saintly Women, the Heroic Women, the Ruling Women, and the Women Warriors and their attendants were represented as under, the more distinguished actresses being loudly acclaimed on their appearance:—Hypatia, Miss Gertrude Kingston; St. Teresa, Miss De Lana; Lady Jane Grey, Miss Ursula Keene; Madame de Staël, Miss Thyrza Norman; Madame Roland, Miss Helen Haye; Madame de Scudéry, Miss Nora Royston; Jane Austin, Miss Mignon Clifford; Georges Sand, Miss Agnes Thomas; Caroline Herschell, Miss Clare Greet; Madame Curie, Miss Sydney Fairbrother; Graduates: Miss Sydney Keith, Miss Sophie d'Esse, Mrs. Enthoven, Miss Violet Bruce, Miss Gladys Erskine, Miss Josephine Harvey, Miss Hilda Honiss, Miss Elizabeth James, Miss Elstob, Mrs. Nevinson, Miss Margaret Marshall, Miss Constance Moxon, Miss Eva Lewis; Sappho, Miss Amy Brandon-Thomas; Vittoria Colonna, Miss Hilda Moore; Angelica Kauffmann, Miss Dorothy Minto; Vigée le Brun, Miss Doris Lytton; Rosa Bonheur, Miss Edith Craig; Margaret Van Eyck, Miss Irene Rose; Mrs. Siddons, Miss Ada Homer; Camargo, Mlle. Dolli; St. Hilda, Mrs. Despard; Elizabeth Fry, Miss Joy Chatwyn; Children, Miss Olive Walter and Miss Naomi Veasey; Elizabeth of Hungary, Miss Mabel Love; Catherine of Siena, Mrs. Nye Chart; Attendants, Miss Eleanor Elder, Miss Margaret Damer; Charlotte Corday, Miss Maude Cressall; Flora Macdonald, Mrs. Anning; Kate Barlass, Miss Gwladys Morris; Grace Darling Miss Evelyn D'Alroy; Queen Elizabeth, Miss Janette Steer; Queen Victoria, Miss Phyllis Embury; Zenobia, Miss Victoria Addison; Attendants, Miss May Taverner, Miss Kitty Marion; Queen Philippa, Miss Agnes Brayton; Attendants, Countess of Salisbury, Miss Daisy Thimm; Fair Maid of Kent, Miss Jane Comfort; Deborah, Miss Edyth Olive; Attendants, Mr. Herbert Grimwood, Mr. Frank Norman; Queen Isabella, Miss Anna Stannard; Attendants, Phillippa Columbus, Miss Dora Barton; Marchioness of Moya, Miss Penelope Wheeler; Maria Theresa, Miss Eva Moore; Attendants, Mrs. Pertwee, Miss Palotta; Catherine of Russia; Miss Suzanne Sheldon; Tzse-Hsi-An (Empress of China), Miss Di Forbes; Attendants, Mr. Leonard Calvert, Mr. Buckley; Joan of Arc, Miss Olive Terry; Boadicea, Miss Elizabeth Kirby; Agnes of Dunbar, Miss Brineta Browne; Emilia Plater, Miss Elsie Chapin; Rance of Jhansi, Miss Adeline Bourne; Maid of Saragossa, Miss Alice Crawford; Christian Davis, Miss Cicely Hamilton; Hannah Snell, Miss Christopher St. John; Mary Anne Talbot, Miss Winifred Mayo; Florence Nightingale, Miss Lena Ashwell. The pageant was admirably produced by Miss Edith Craig.

Miss Gertrude Kingston and Mr. Thomas Sidney (the latter rudely interrupting from a private box) appeared in a scene from Lysistrata—an amusing interlude; Mr. Courtice Pounds delighted with his singing of "Songs of Araby"; Mlle. Dolli was responsible for some dainty dancing; and Miss Lena Ashwell's beautiful recital of some Elizabethan love lyrics compelled an insistent encore.

ECCENTRIC CLUB DINNER.

Perennial youth seems to be possessed by the Eccentric Club, which is approaching its twenty-first birthday fresher and more flourishing than ever. The bons vivants of the club assembled in full force at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday to celebrate the occasion of their twentieth annual dinner, and that a jovial evening was spent goes without saying. The chair was genially filled by Mr. W. H. White, Mr. Thomas Fraser acted as Vice, and numerous gentlemen associated with the theatrical and variety professions lent support. Among those present were Messrs. George Barrett, Richard Warner, Walter De Frece, Willie Clarkson, Wilkie Bard, Alfred Lester, Harry Tate, Harry Randall, John Le Hay, Dan Rolyat, Wilson Hallett, Fred Bishop, Laurie de Frece, George Spencer Edwards, Clarence Sounes, Tom Honey, Alfred F. Robbins, Fred Baugh, Sam Fredericks, Bannister Howard, W. H. Clemart, and J. A. Harrison (hon. secretary), as well as many popular artists who contributed to the entertainment.

Bonhomie was the watchword of the gathering, and the traditions of the club were worthily upheld. The chorus of chimes was honoured with heartiness, personalities were toasted continuously, and when all the guests at one table rose en masse warbled "Oh, oh, oh, oh, oh! you can't sing that top note," and gravely sat down, those at a remote portion of the hall chanted the reply with "Will you love me in December as you do in May?" and just as sedately resumed their seats. The members of the club were out for a jolly time, and the speeches were attuned to the occasion.

The chairman was particularly felicitous in proposing the toast of "The Visitors," to whom he offered the "right hand of fellowship" on behalf of every member of the club. That right hand of fellowship, he added, was extended in New York, where the name of the Eccentric Club was sufficient to gain them such hospitality the impression of which would last them as long as they lived.

The toast was acknowledged by Mr. Alfred F. Robbins and Mr. F. A. Coleman, both of whom paid a tribute to the cordiality which was the distinguishing feature of the club.

The chairman proposed "Long Life and Prosperity to the Eccentric Club." The club, he said, had existed twenty years, and on the morrow it entered upon its majority stronger than ever. He had been a member of the club since its inception, and he felt as young as he did the day he joined. Age had no terrors for members of the Eccentric Club. (Hear, hear.)

The toast was acknowledged by Mr. J. A. Harrison, who said the Eccentric Club was perfectly all right. They had an excellent membership, were going very strong, had money in the bank, and did not care a dash for anybody. With regard to their charities it was exactly fourteen years that night since their benevolent fund started, and they had distributed in one way and another a very large sum of money, which had been expended without anybody knowing anything about it except the responsible persons. Heart-rending cases had been brought before them, which they had done their best to relieve without ostentation. (Cheers.) He asked members to add their names to the list exhibited in the club, all donations to which would be gratefully accepted and judiciously expended.

The chairman said he had just heard from a very dear friend of theirs, Mr. Louis De Reeder, who was unable to be present through illness. They all hoped he would soon be back among them.

A formidable list of favourite artists had been provided, the various contributors to the programme being announced by Mr. Leon Zeitlin, who had the assistance of Mr. John Le Hay and Mr. George Moore in the direction of the entertainment. Conspicuous among them was a "new turn," called "Richard Warner's Glee Party," which was composed of half-a-dozen of the audience, who, led by the popular agent, sang a well-known ballad with concerted effects, which were all the more remarkable from the fact that they were obviously unrehearsed. They were recalled and overwhelmed with bouquets, so enthusiastic being the audience that they divested the tables of their floral decorations and bestowed them on the singers. Humour and harmony were kept going till long into the night. To the earlier part of the entertainment ladies contributed agreeably, particular admiration being aroused by Miss Mabel Green, who sang the fascinating waltz song, "I love you only," from The Chocolate Soldier, with artistic expression. Great interest was taken in Captain Spalding, who demonstrated his absolute imperviousness to heat in several marvellous feats, and the legerdemain of Mr. Laurence Crane, the clever Irish wizard, was watched with the keenest interest; Mr. Percy Honri varied his concertina imitations with merry and much-appreciated jest; the Two Ascots danced with energy and precision; Mr. Arthur Astill did skilful imitations of animals and birds; Mr. Fred Russell exacted many laughs with his ventriloquial performance; and others who contributed were Misses Bessie Bowness, Rosa Dallow, Cora Goffin, Daisy Irving, Rita Leslie, and Violet Lorraine, and Messrs. Rinaldo, Andie Caine, Edgar Favelle, Arthur Helmore, Syd May, Arthur Melrose, Harold Montague, Fred Rome, F. H. Scotland, Sam Stern, Taree, Laurie Wylie, Vivian Foster, and Luigi and Roselli.

"THE WICKED CITY" is presented at the Gaiety Theatre, Ayr, by Messrs. Glenville and Ellison. The cast includes Messrs. George Glenville and John Manners and Misses Muriel Inglis and Edith Wallis, who are supported by a capable company.

"WHEN ALL HAS BEEN SAID," a drama founded on Jackson D. Haag's novel, by Bayard Veiller, was produced at the Royal Alexandria Theatre, Toronto, on the 7th inst. The play treats of politics, romance, and intrigue, and the theme of a young wife with a "past" is said to be handled in a novel way. One of the chief characters is a small boy, who insists that he is grown up. The cast includes Miss Emily Stevens, Messrs. Charles Balsar, Joseph Sparks, and George Woodward.

Clothes and the Opera.

AT one time, says the Bystander, it was always stated that evening dress was indispensable at the opera. It strikes me it would be well if this notice were again stuck up in the foyer of the opera-house, and also printed on the tickets. I am also inclined to think it would not be a bad thing if it were also notified what constitutes "evening dress." A few nights ago a man was seen in the stalls wearing a cloth cap. Close by was another strange individual with a dinner jacket, double collar, black tie, and crimson and black waistcoat. Another was clad in a grey and black brocaded satin waistcoat. An impossible creature near him wore blacked boots with brown uppers.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LE TRAIN DE 8 H. 47."

Military Sketch in Three Acts and Seven Tableaux, by Léon Marchès, Produced at the Ambigu on Nov. 18.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, NOV. 24.—Like many other things in this world, the Théâtre de l'Ambigu is also undergoing a transformation. At one time only blood-curdling dramas were produced there, like in the old Adelphi. There was the hideous villain; there was persecuted innocence; and a little before midnight the villain would be made to pay for his misdeeds, whilst innocence, to the cheers of the gallery, married the man of her heart, who turned out to be a millionaire's son. The plot of these plays never varied much; but this the public did not seem to mind; all they wanted was to see virtue triumphant and crime punished. Within the last few years, however, this house no longer follows the old traditions, and has launched out into another direction. The newest departure is marked by the production of Le Train de 8 H. 47, and it cannot be said that it was a happy inspiration to dramatise and produce a play founded on Courteline's fantastic story. Courteline, one of the wittiest of French writers, is very observant; and although his works are, without exception, intensely funny, they generally leave a somewhat bitter aftertaste. His book from which the plot is taken is most diverting. Life in barracks is apt to become slow; and we share Courteline's sympathy for the young soldiers, who gladly seize every opportunity to indulge in a "spree." But the book which affords such capital reading cannot be dramatised, and the audience did not show the slightest interest in the mishaps that befall the two soldiers, La Guillaumette and Croquebol, sent by their captain to fetch four horses from Saint-Mihiel. As it happens, they miss the express, and have to wait four hours in Bar-de-Duc for another train that is to bring them back to Commercy. What can they do during these four hours? It is late, but they owe it to their comrades to bring back a fine description of a glorious spree; and during seven tableaux we see these two poor devils in a pelting rain trying to convince themselves that their night out is a great success. Finally they are arrested for being drunk and disorderly, and marched back between two gendarmes to Commercy. Some of the tableaux were represented by a cinematograph, an innovation that did not prove to the taste of the public.

"L'AMOUR DE KESA,"

Japanese Dramatic Legend in Two Tableaux, by Robert d'Humières, Produced at the Théâtre de l'Œuvre on Nov. 19.

Késa ..... MME. SUZANNE DESPRES
Usagamo-San ..... MLLE. GRETA-PROZOR
Endo ..... M. DE MAX

Un Prêtre Bouddhiste ..... M. SAVOY

We are told on the highest authority that the legend which M. d'Humières has dramatised for the benefit of the Théâtre de l'Œuvre really hails from Japan. If this be true, it is certain that our friends the Japs also favour that class of "creepy" drama which has found a permanent home in the Grand Guignol. The plot is as simple as it is terrible. Késa is married to Hiroshima; and when the story opens Hiroshima is compelled to go to town on urgent business. Scarcely has he left when Endo makes his appearance. Endo is what the Japanese call a "Ronin," a Bohemian, a man who has seen better days—an outcast. He loves Késa, and tells the terrified woman that unless she follows him he will waylay Hiroshima and murder him. Késa adores her husband. But she is alone in the house; and if she wants to remain faithful to Hiroshima she must have recourse to a ruse. She, therefore, pretends to lend a willing ear to the Ronin's protestations of love, and finally promises to give herself to him the moment he will have murdered her husband. She makes it, however, a condition that the Ronin is to despatch Hiroshima after his return home; and she shows the brigand the exact spot where her husband's bed is placed against the paper wall, so that all he will have to do is to drive his dagger through that wall without being seen. Késa then lies down on her husband's bed, and it is she who is stabbed to death. She dies to save her husband, and the latter, according to Japanese psychology, has not the courage to kill the murderer, because in slaughtering the man who loved Késa he would destroy something of her. And the two men who mourn the same woman follow a Buddhist priest to a monastery, where they will end their days.

IT is with the utmost grief that I have to chronicle the death of Gustave Worms, one of the greatest actors of modern times. Whilst member of the Comédie Française he was one of the glories of the French stage, and when he was appointed professor at the Conservatoire his class was the one which produced more celebrities than all the others combined. Although he had left the house of Molière many years ago his name was constantly before the public, for numberless were those in the profession who sought his advice or came to him for assistance. And nobody asked in vain. Beloved and admired by all, his death comes as a cruel blow to his friends. Born in 1836, he joined the Conservatoire in the class of the well-known Bonvallet, where he secured a second prize in comedy. Engaged at the Comédie Française, he made a brilliant début in Tartuffe, and soon took up such an important position in the house that in 1864 he was recommended to be made sociétaire. But, contrary to expectations, the then Fine Art Minister refused to confirm that nomination, whereupon Worms at once left the Comédie Française and emigrated to Russia, where, during eleven years, he was the idol of the public at the Théâtre Michel. Feeling homesick, he returned to Paris, and was at once engaged by Montigny to appear in La Dame aux Camélias at the Gymnase. But Alexandre Dumas fils wanted Worms to return to the Comédie Française, and, after some hesitation, he accepted the offer made him, and again made his bow to the audience of that house in Le Marquis de Villemer. From that moment his whole life was intimately connected with the fortunes of the Français, and to enumerate the rôles he created would be giving the list of nearly all the new plays produced there. On Jan. 21, 1901, he gave his farewell performance, when he received an ovation that moved him to tears. He was the husband of Mme. Baretta-Worms, the distinguished actress, for many years one of the leading artists at the Comédie Française. His son, Jean Worms, also very talented, promises to walk in his father's footsteps. Gustave Worms was one of the few actors on whom the Cross of the Legion of Honour has been bestowed.

THE "Guide to Selecting Plays," of which we have the latest edition before us, is from the great play-publishing house of Samuel French, Limited, 26, Southampton-street, Strand, W.C. It is not only a guide, but a concise compendium of the drama. The work of editing this wonderful digest has been admirably carried through by Mr. Wentworth Hogg.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Paul Murray, who two months since resigned his position with Mr. William Morris, of the States, to join H. B. Marinelli, Ltd., has now, by an arrangement carried through in the most friendly manner possible, been able to accept a very flattering offer. A few weeks ago Messrs. Alfred Butt and Walter De Frece approached Mr. H. B. Marinelli, and asked him if he had any objection to their making a proposition to Mr. Murray. The reply from the well-known agent was that he had not the slightest desire to stand in the way of Mr. Murray's advancement.

On Thursday afternoon, therefore, Mr. Murray signed an agreement, and on Monday he starts his new duties as general-manager of the Variety Theatres Controlling Company, Ltd. This latest appointment entails the business control and general supervision of practically twenty theatres. Mr. Murray is deeply sensible of the kindness of Mr. Marinelli's action in releasing him from his engagement.

Before his engagement with Marinellis, Mr. Paul Murray was for two years with William Morris, the well-known variety magnate of the States, and his early youth, from 1902-8, was spent in the service of Mr. Oswald Stoll. For the last six months of that engagement he was booking manager of the London Coliseum and London Hippodrome.

The Variety Theatres Controlling Co., Ltd., are opening out in all directions, especially in the provinces. It has therefore been necessary to appoint a provincial manager to look after the company's country interests. This duty will fall upon Mr. W. H. Boardman. His headquarters will be at Brighton.

Miss Ellaline Terriss appeared at the Hippodrome on Monday in a new sketch, entitled The Pink of Perfection, the "book" being by the ever-resourceful Mr. Seymour Hicks, the music by Mr. Frank Tours, and the lyrics by Mr. C. H. Bovill. Miss Terriss is supported by an excellent little company, including Mr. Stanley Brett as the Hon. Herbert Fitzallen. The trifle was originally played a year or two since at the London Pavilion under another title.

The scene of the piece is laid in a Highland kitchen, and the hero mistakes the daughter of the house for the cook, who has left at a moment's notice when visitors are expected. The heroine, the charming Ellaline, looks the "pink of perfection," and, as usual, sings and acts delightfully.

"Chicks in the Wood," which will surely be a more artistic reflection of the charm and humour of Rostand's Chantecler than a recent music-hall production, is to be given at the Hippodrome, and this Christmas novelty will have the advantage of the support of such popular players as Mr. Walter Passmore and Miss Agnes Fraser, who have both been too long absent from London.

At the Coliseum on Monday Miss Denise Orme, the Lady Elizabeth Thanet of Our Miss Gibbs and one of the Little Michus at Daly's, returned to the variety stage, and met with a hearty welcome, after twelve months' absence. She selected for the occasion four songs from her répertoire, accompanying herself on the violin in the case of two, the "Moon Waltz," composed by herself, and Tosti's "Good-bye." The charm of her style made itself felt, not alone in the numbers mentioned, but also in Sterndale Bennett's cycle of "Songs of Childhood."

Mr. Martin Harvey, who is to be the chief attraction of the opening programme at the Palladium, on Monday, settled the details of his programme. For the first fortnight of his engagement the distinguished actor will appear in Messrs. Robert Barr and S. Lewis Ransom's play The Conspiracy, which will be given exactly as it was done at the Adelphi Theatre and with the present members of his company. During the second fortnight Mr. Martin will present Rouget de l'Isle, by Messrs. Freeman Wills and Frederick Langbridge. In this piece Mr. Martin Harvey will be supported by Miss N. de Silva.

Another important engagement at the Palladium is that of Mr. R. G. Knowles, who returns shortly to South Africa under engagement to the Hyman company. Mr. Gibbons will have a call on Mr. Knowles's services at the Palladium during the time of the Coronation.

Among the officials at present engaged at the Co-operative offices, Cranbourn-street, the following will in January next remove to the new Stoll head offices at the London Coliseum:—Messrs. W. S. Gordon Michie (now department superintendent and chief accountant), Bertie Shelton (general stage-director), Llewellyn Johns, Percival Craig, John Christie, Albert Mitchell (now district-manager for South Wales), A. D. Davies, H. Mawby, B. G. Maclachlan, Horace Cox, O. Worth, W. Agnew, R. Walker, and William Ward (publicity department manager).

Remaining with Sir Edward Moss are:—Messrs. Sam Gething (late manager of the Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Newcastle districts), Hatton Wharton (late manager of the Midland district), William Nokes, Thomas Osborne, Albert Mitchell (late of the South Wales district), and Frank Elliott. Mr. Frank Allen and Mr. Dick Thornton are, of course, with Sir Edward.

It is hoped that Mrs. G. H. Smythson's Yuletide appeal will enable the Guild to give a pudding to each of the poor families on the Guild books on Christmas Day. As this lady so sympathetically observes, "it is that pudding which makes it seem a real Christmas to them and those who send will feel they have helped to spread abroad that feeling of good cheer and good will towards those less fortunate than themselves." All gifts will be gratefully acknowledged in The Era. Kindly send gifts to Mrs. Smythson, Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C.

Mr. Walter De Frece, in a statement given in his interview in the Referee on Sunday, observes: "Seeing that a new hall of mine which is to open at Easter is now threatened with a serious opposition, I have just joined up with Mr. Charles Barnard, Mr. W. J. Grimes, Mr. H. V. D'Esterre, and Mr. Clarence Sounes to be prepared to retaliate in a most retaliatory manner. These gentlemen, forming a syndicate of which I am chairman and managing-director, have also under consideration two sites for variety houses which will have a hundred thousand inhabitants from which to draw."

Mr. Charles Barnard is associated with amusement enterprises at Woolwich, Chatham, and Wolverhampton, and belongs to one of the oldest firms in the business. Mr. W. J. (Billy) Grimes has been connected with the fortunes of the Empress, Brixton, since its birth, and Mr. Clarence Sounes has come into the variety arena by his plucky enterprise at Kingston, where he has built a magnificent new Empire. He has been also for some time in control of the destinies of the Theatre Royal, Aldershot. He was also responsible for the erection of the Grand Theatre, Woolwich, and the Prince's, Poplar.

Miss Winifred Ward, the immaculate boy, who is starring at all the Moss and Stoll Empires, has been specially engaged to play the title-rôle this coming Christmas at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol.

Lee and Arden have been appointed by the Ardrossan Town Council as providers of the alfresco concerts on the Castle Hill next summer. This will be the second season here of the oldest established alfresco firm in Scotland, they having inaugurated this pitch two years ago. They will work it in conjunction with their other concerns at Leven and Largo.

Mr. Wm. Howgate, assistant-manager at the Glasgow Empire for some years now, and who has a wide and varied experience of all kinds of theatrical affairs, has been appointed interim manager of this handsome theatre. His many friends will wish him success there, and confidently look to see his appointment made permanent before long.

Miss Gwennie Hasto, the original fancy dancer, finishes her six months' Stoll tour, having made a success all round with her quaint and original song "Miss Robinson Jones." She opens on Monday at the King's Theatre, Southsea, returning to town on Jan. 2 for three months, opening at Brixton and Walham Green.

Members of the variety profession will be interested to learn that Mr. J. W. Winton, who has been associated for some time with Wieland's Agency, is returning to Australia from Charing Cross on Wednesday next by the Continental mail at 9 a.m.

Mr. Winton will embark on the s.s. Osterley (Orient Line) at Marseilles on Dec. 1. The professional career of Mr. Winton is extremely interesting. He migrated to Australia sixteen years ago, and appeared under the management of Mr. Harry Rickards at the Tivoli, Sydney. Subsequently he became booking agent and manager to Mr. Rickards.

In the February of this year (owing to ill-health) Mr. Winton was compelled to cancel his contracts, and became associated with Mr. Wieland. It is now his intention to open an agency between the two continents in conjunction with Wieland's Agency. Mr. Winton's address for the time being will be the Referee offices, Sydney, but he hopes to return in the early summer to this country to complete all arrangements.

Those who are in the habit of paying a visit on occasion to the Empire Palace, Edinburgh, will learn with regret that Mr. Aynsley Cook, who has been three years manager of that house, intends, shortly to sever his connection with Moss's Empires. Mr. Cook has accepted the management of Mr. Alfred Butt's new theatre in Glasgow, the Alhambra, which is in course of construction, and will be opened in December.

The Alhambra, Glasgow, will be run on the lines of the Palace Theatre, London, there being only one house nightly. The entertainments will be of the highest class and when completed the Alhambra should be one of the most beautiful variety theatres in the Kingdom.

Not many managers have had the adventures and experience of Mr. Aynsley Cook in his profession. The eldest son of Mr. Aynsley Cook, St. George's Chapel Royal, Windsor Castle, he first sprang into prominence as a solo boy, and sang in St. Paul's Cathedral and at the wedding of Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne at St. George's Chapel. He also appeared many times before Royalty privately.

Mr. Cook joined the 1st Royal Dragoons as a private, and rose to the rank of troop sergeant-major. When appointed he was the youngest troop sergeant-major in the British cavalry. In Ireland during the years 1881 to 1885 he acted with the escort attached to the carriage of Lord Frederick Cavendish on the day of the murder in Phœnix Park.

Leaving the Army, the theatrical profession next attracted Mr. Cook, and he became acting-manager to the late T. W. Robertson, of Caste fame. After remaining with him for some years he transferred his services to the late Sir Augustus Harris. It is interesting to note also that Mr. Cook played in the Fair Equestrienne with Miss Cora Stuart on the opening night of the Edinburgh Empire, in November, 1892.

More recently Mr. Cook was appointed manager of Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's Theatre Royal in Glasgow, where he remained for three years. Subsequently he became manager under Moss' Empires, Ltd., taking up engagements at the Sheffield and the Liverpool Palaces. He was five years in Liverpool, and then became secretary to the Formby Golf Club. Two years later he was appointed manager to Mr. Seymour Hicks at the Aldwych Theatre, London, and left that position to take over the Edinburgh Empire management—a trust which he has fulfilled with universal acceptance.

Mr. G. R. Askwith, who is trying to settle the dispute between the Welsh strikers and their employers, needs no introduction to our readers, who admit generally his absolute impartiality in the arbitration proceedings following the strike in 1907. He is undoubtedly the greatest mediator in trades disputes that Britain possesses, says a South Wales paper. His appearance is more suggestive of a soldier than of a lawyer. Keen and searching are the right words to apply to his eyes, but there is also in them a decided glint of humour. His hair is now decidedly grey, but any economy of thatch is more than compensated by the luxuriance of a heavy dark moustache. If any man can find a way out of the difficulty Mr. Askwith is that man.

On Thursday the first provincial matinée in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund was held in the Liverpool Empire, the use of which place of amusement was kindly granted by Mr. Oswald Stoll. There was a crowded audience, and the event was a big success, being under the patronage of the Lord Mayor of Liverpool and the Lady Mayoress (who were present), Lord Derby, Sir Edward Moss, Mr. F. E. Smith, K.C., M.P., the Mayor of Blackpool (Mr. W. H. Broadhead), Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, Mr. Walter de Frece, Mr. Leonard Dunning (head constable), and Mr. W. W. Kelly. There were thirty-six turns, lasting about four hours, among the principal artists being Miss Adrienne Augarde, Miss Margaret Cooper, Miss Florrie Gallimore, Mr. Carl Hertz, Topsy Sinden, Mr. Ernest Shand, Houdini, and Mr. F. V. St. Clair.

During an interval Mr. C. Douglas Stuart, one of the honorary secretaries, of the Fund, who organised the matinée, thanked the public for their generous response that afternoon, and also expressed his indebtedness to the many artists who had given their services. Apologies were read from artists who had been unable to be present, but had sent donations, among these being Mr. Arthur Roberts, Bella and Bijou, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucas. Telegrams wishing the matinée every success were received from Mr. Fred Herbert and Mr. Joe Elvin. It is expected that the event will realise £100.

In the rifle shooting contest at Wigan, between F. V. St. Clair and T. Shenton, the latter won by six points. The author-artist made 69 out of a possible 75, the loser scoring 63.

Mr. Alfred Butt will present, at the Palace Theatre, on Monday evening, a dog which sketches at an easel and will write with pen and ink any word suggested to him by the members of the audience.

By the kindly aid of Mr. Deer, of the Palace, Camberwell, no fewer than 220 of Houdini's books were sold at 1s. each. The result will be added to Mrs. Houdini's collecting card for the Music Hall Home.

Mr. W. F. Frame, better known as "The Man u Know," has been unanimously elected Right Worshipful Master of the Dramatic Lodge of Freemasons, 571, Glasgow, in which town Brother Wullie is very popular.

Miss Hettie Lee has been engaged by G. B. Phillips to play principal girl and to understudy principal boy in his forthcoming pantomime, Sinbad, at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham Junction.

Whilst Miss Beattie Bloom was performing at the King's Palace, Wellingborough, last week, an admirer handed her a large Plymouth Rock chicken, weighing over 7lb. Miss Bloom thanked the gentleman, and then asked the laughing audience "to come to dinner to-morrow."

Tom E. O'Neill, the original O'Neill of Maxford and O'Neill, has joined partners with the well-known Scotch comedian Jock West, and produced a new and original patter act which has made a great success in Liverpool this week.

The summons granted against the management of the Coliseum for producing a stage play, Richard III., without a licence, has been withdrawn by Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree pending a meeting of all concerned.

Hawley Harvey Crippen expiated his crime on the scaffold on Wednesday morning at Pentonville. His gruesome murder of Belle Elmore, his wife, and his dramatic arrest will make the trial one of the criminal cause celebres of the century.

Mr. Wilkie Bard having promised to give his services at the Alhambra matinée in aid of the Licensed Victualler's Asylum, determined to keep his word, although he had been unable to fulfil his ordinary engagements for a couple of evenings.

Mr. Mark Sheridan, another ready volunteer for the matinée mentioned, was present, but was unable to go on owing to lack of time. Mark, who leaves London after a most successful and long-extended engagement, to open at the Empire, West Hartlepool, will be seen at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, in the part of Ali Baba, the pantomime being one of Mr. Robert Arthur's numerous productions.

Miss Daisy-Dormer, now delighting her admirers in the suburbs as well as at the Tivoli, has been booked specially to star in America by Mr. Percy Williams; but previous to her voyage to the States she is to charm the Yorkshire folk at the Theatre Royal, Bradford, where she will play principal girl in the pantomime produced there this Yuletide by Mr. John Hart.

Sandy McNab and Co., in that screaming absurdity The Egyptian Mummy, have been drawing record houses everywhere, and have been specially successful in Lancashire. Sandy's London address for the future is 39, Hilldrop-crescent, N.W., the house associated with the Crippen crime. We referred to his purchase of this desirable residence last week.

Miss Mabelle Morgan, of Australia, sails by the Mauretania, Nov. 30, from New York, after a most brilliant and successful tour of the States, to keep her engagement at the Grand Theatre, Hull, as principal boy—Robin Hood—with Mr. J. F. Elliston. She will be accompanied by her husband, William Le Brun, who is also due in the same pantomime as one of the Robbers.

Mr. Lloyd Morgan, the light comedian, has been engaged for a special part at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, in the forthcoming pantomime, and has also been secured by Mr. Oswald Stoll on Monday next, at the Empire, Glasgow. With only one week open in 1911, and the years 1912 and 1913 half-booked, Mr. Lloyd Morgan may be said to have "got right there." Will Oliver is his agent.

Miss Lil Hawthorne had a hearty reception on her return engagement at the Bronx Theatre, New York, the week of Nov. 7. After singing four long songs, appropriately costumed, and set in special scenery, Miss Hawthorne had to sing two more numbers before the audience would let her retire. If she can arrange her English engagements she will remain in America until next spring. Miss Hawthorne speaks in the highest terms of her treatment over the Percy Williams circuit.

Miss Hetty King was prevented from singing at the Empire, Swansea, on Thursday, the 17th, second house, owing to a cold contracted by travelling to and from Cardiff, where she appeared at the King Edward Memorial matinée. Her place was taken at a moment's notice by Miss Ethel Jones, a talented young Swansea soprano, who acquitted herself with honour, and received a very warm reception. It was Miss Jones's first appearance at a music hall.

Following close on the productions of The Faun and Ship Ahoy! comes yet another novelty at the Empire. Its title is Widows' Weeds, and it takes the form of a "real" farcical comedy in one act. It is from the pen of George Arliss, the English actor who has risen to the greatest pre-eminence in America, and who returns there shortly to produce Louis Parker's "Beaconsfield" play. The cast of the play, which will be produced in about ten days' time, includes Miss Millie Legarde, Miss Marjorie Dore, Miss Unity More, Mr. Clarence Blakiston, and Mr. Fred Eastman.

The new act at the London Hippodrome next week includes Edward Abeles and his company in a domestic comedy, by Grant Steward, entitled He Tried to be Nice. This clever sketch is to be presented for the first time in England, and, to effect this Mr. Edward Abeles and Miss Charlotte Lander travelled 12,000 miles from San Francisco, a record in journeys for variety's sake. Mr. Abeles is the creator in the States of Monty Brewster in Brewster's Millions, and returns to reopen his American tour at San Francisco immediately after his three weeks' engagement at the Hippodrome.

At the meeting of the committee of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund on Wednesday, the 16th inst., Mr. Fred Herbert (chairman) presiding, Mr. Albert le Fre (chairman and treasurer of the sports committee) presented an account of the receipts and payments regarding the athletic sports held last July in aid of the Fund at Stamford Bridge. It showed a profit of £94 4s., with another nearly £20 not yet paid in. The committee accepted the account as submitted, and passed a vote of thanks to Mr. le Fre and his co-workers, Mr. Charles Coborn, Mr. Jack Straw, and Mr. T. C. Callaghan, for their hard work and successful endeavours.

Datas, the memory man, is due to arrive in England to-day per R.M.S. Ormuz. He has travelled over 70,000 miles during his tour, visiting over 300 towns and mining centres, and is loud in his praise of the warm welcome he has received everywhere in the Antipodes.

Datas thinks that Australia has marvellous possibilities. There are sufficient industries to keep an enormous population, and land enough for many millions. Some day a great tide of emigration will make Australia its haven, and Australia—too slowly progressive now—will then become the pivot of the world.

During his world's tour Datas has stored in his brain thousands of additional dates. In fact, as one influential paper stated, his knowledge of the new world's history is so startling and weird as to border on the supernatural. Datas may look forward to a hearty welcome from his thousands of admirers when he arrives once more in the land of his birth.

Mr. Colin Carlisle, the light comedian, is just at present running the Theatre Royal, Sacriston, as a variety house on the twice-nightly system. Last week his programme consisted of nine turns. After Monday night every turn, without exception, was immediately booked for several dates by Mr. Allan McAskell, of McAskell's Travelling Variety Agency.

Mr. Will Dalton, of Dalton's Agency, has been offered a position in the variety world of much importance, concerning which a definite statement may be made shortly. The main question for Mr. Dalton to consider is his leaving Manchester, where his home and business connections are. The offer is a flattering recognition of Mr. Will Dalton's ability, and will come as a "surprise" to many if he accepts it. We are sorry to hear that he is still unable to resume business on account of his recent severe illness.

Messrs. Billy Day and Frank Sauteron were initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Order on Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Terrier Andie Caine, W.T., assisted by Terrier Fred A. Hooper, V.T., and Organist Terrier Carl Hamlin. Messrs. Bob Adele, Will Dale, Bert Farland, George Frederick Tee, and Captain Kettle, candidates for membership, have successfully passed the ballot.

Applications for membership of the Association have been received from Messrs. Chris. Baker, Harry Eventio, Arthur Palmer, Herbert Adams Pratt (Cyclamina), George Carney, Harry Howe, and Fred Whittaker. Candidates who fail to pass the ballot will have their nomination fee returned to their permanent address.

Any Terrier who is booked for an engagement in Johannesburg is requested to communicate with the secretary, Arthur Were, 69, Kennington-road, S.E. A committee has been formed to consider the question of starting a club, and Terriers Griff, Andie Caine, Harry Barnard, Fred Neiman, Edward Rose, Tom Packer, W. R. Dunkley, F. W. Fisher, Henry R. Stephens, W. H. Atlas, and C. W. Kloof have been elected to serve on it. Terrier F. J. Bacon will act as honorary secretary.

The Association propose to book a number of 3s. seats at the matinée to be held at the London Hippodrome upon Dec. 13, 1910, in aid of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund. Applications for seats, for Terriers and friends, must be forwarded as soon as possible to Terrier Arthur Were, accompanied with postal order for same.

There was a good attendance at the meeting upon Sunday last, the president, Terrier Griff, being present. A hearty welcome was extended to Terriers Billy Hobbs, Frederick Day, Dan Robans, Harry Luck, Henry Stephens, and George Nyman upon their reappearance in the kennel. Terrier W. R. Dunkley acted as W.D., and Terrier Berry Hope was the Y.B.

Terrier George Ernest Aplin has been appointed musical-director of the ladies' concert to be held at the Three Stags Hotel, Kennington, on Sunday, Dec. 4, at 8.30 p.m.

A banquet of the Terriers' Association will be held on Sunday, Jan. 1, 1911, to celebrate the great success of the Association during the year 1910, the president, Terrier Griff, in the chair. Further particulars will be announced in due course.

Little Effie Grimaldi has been honoured with an audition at the Lyceum Theatre. Mr. Melville was very pleased with the little lady, who gave exhibitions of clever toe dancing and a Salome dance.

That clever troupe of vocalists and expert dancers the Eight Sunrays, which includes the well-known producer of originalities, Miss Kitty Denton, from the Garrick Theatre, have been specially engaged at the Coronet pantomime, Cinderella, for ten weeks, after which they open for a long run on the halls.

An important addition was made to the Palace Theatre programme on Thursday night, when Miss Fifine de la Cote, a young soprano of sixteen years of age, of exceptional musical ability, made her first appearance in London. Miss de la Cote, who has already been heard by some of the keenest musical critics of the day, possesses a most extraordinary range and has a voice of exceptional purity, which was heard to advantage in the "Shadow" song from Dinorah and in the famous song from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet."

Some interesting criticisms on the crisis in the variety theatre business were made by Mr. Henry Tozer, chairman of the directors, at the sixth annual meeting of the Variety Theatres Consolidated (Ltd.), held in the newly-renovated South London Palace on Tuesday.

The chairman regretted that the smallness of the net profit did not permit of the payment of a dividend. Commenting on the severe reduction in the takings, the chairman observed that it must have been evident that the music hall business was in danger of becoming over-developed. The mushroom growth of picture shows had accentuated that danger, and he was told that more than 200 separately constructed cinematograph shows had been licensed this year in the metropolis. Music halls also had increased 50 per cent. in the last ten years, and careful inquiries had led him to the opinion that at least one-half of the existing halls were at the present time being conducted at a loss.

It was only reasonable that some measure of protection from reckless competition, destructive alike to assailant and assailed, should be afforded to the shareholders of concerns which had been brought up to the required standard of safety and comfort. The company had taken steps to oppose the grant of a licence to a new building which it was proposed to erect within a few yards of their Euston Theatre, within one and three-quarter miles of which there were already fifteen competing variety theatres. It was hoped that the London County Council would, on the following Friday, decide not to promote chaos and disaster, but to refrain, in the general interests, from granting additional licences. The report and accounts were adopted.

Mr. Darby Cooper and Miss Mabel Lait sailed for Australia yesterday by the s.s. Osterley, and will add to the comicality of the programmes of Harry Rickards's houses down under.

The Rawsons, Maggie and Jack, the versatile entertainers, after a most successful tour of fourteen weeks (Moss and Stoll), return to town on Monday, opening at the Hackney Empire.

Signor and Madame Borelli, in their humorous and cat-chy imitations, opened this week at the Eden Theatre, St. Etienne, with other towns in France to follow.

Some 250 L.C.C. tramcars were held up between seven and eight o'clock on Tuesday morning through a 15-ton iron girder for strengthening the building being swung across the road in front of the Surrey Theatre in the Blackfriars-road, and for over an hour lines of cars were at a standstill in that thoroughfare and in Borough-road, Lambeth-road, London-road, and also in Westminster Bridge and Waterloo roads.

Miss Madge Temple, who is this week appearing at the Palace, Blackpool, where she is topping the bill, and eclipsing her previous successes, returns to London on Monday to commence an eight weeks' engagement in the West End, including the Tivoli.

Miss Temple has now fully established herself a great favourite, and is one of our leading attractions in vaudeville. She has a style absolutely her own, and always strikes an original way in which she renders her songs, which, by the way, always fit her like the proverbial glove. She is the possessor of a fine voice, and her enunciation is perfect.

Miss Temple, who always appears in outdoor costume (also another of her original ideas), always looks the essence of smartness, and she has justly been called "the Lady's Fashion Plate." Her songs are always of the best, and are with a lilting refrain. Her husband, Mr. Hermann E. Darewski, jun., the composer of "In the twi-twi-twilight," "Sue, Sue, Sue," and "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," has this year excelled himself in his song "On the silvery sands," which he has written for Miss Temple, and it is a number that can safely be predicted as the song of the year. That it will be heard in every patomime in England is a foregone conclusion.

So successful has Miss Temple's popular song become that it was the hit in the ballet at Blackpool Winter Gardens. It has also been selected as the motif of the ballet at the Alhambra, On the Sands. Miss Sybil Arundale, who appeared at the Empire a short while back, had special permission to sing it there, and created a furore. She has taken it out to Australia with her. Mr. Albert Whelan scored a triumph with this song in America on his last visit. A well-known Viennese manager, hearing Miss Temple sing the song at the Oxford, immediately secured it for production in his new opera in Vienna, where it was produced last week, and became an instantaneous hit and the rage of Vienna. It has also been secured for Paris, where an early production is pending. Rarely has a song such universal success as Miss Madge Temple's popular hit "On the silvery sands."

Principal among the newcomers at the Coliseum next week are T. Elder Hearn in his new character, which includes novel quick-change acting; Darracq in whizzing the wheel, a starbling and daring performance; Ray Wallace, the mimic at the piano; Alfred H. West, the English pianist; and Campbell and Barber, comedy cyclists. Mr. Seymour Hicks, in Richard III., and Miss Denise Orme remain on the bill.

"The Chain of Harmony," a musical sketch, from the pen of Mr. Fred S. Jennings, was produced at the Willesden Hippodrome on Monday, and was the means of introducing to the audience a clever girl 'cellist in the person of Little Ivy Lea, seen to much advantage in the part of a daughter who joins her long-separated father and mother. Mr. Carl Junor, a clever pianist, delineated the character of the father.

Mrs. George Smythson has been elected President of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild for the ensuing year. This lady's practical help to the Guild in its administration and her warm sympathy with the woman workers in the profession make the choice an ideal one. Mrs. Smythson appeals for aid in the Christmas dinners and doles which are unhappily needed owing to the very real and widespread distress in the music hall profession. Our readers know it to be an excellent cause, and that every penny will be wisely expended.

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., the secretary begs most gratefully to thank the following:—Musical Hall Artists' Railway Association for their generous gift of £40; Miss Fanny Harris (donation), 5s.; Miss Evelyn Mildred (donation), 2s. 6d.; Mr. Dan Godfrey (per Miss Mabel Mavis) (donation), 2s. 6d.; Mr. Malcolm Scott (per Mrs. Cowper) (donation), 2s. 6d.; Mrs. Franco Piper (donation), 2s. 6d.; Mrs. Herbert Shelley (donation), 5s. 3d.; Miss Eli Deane (Hanley) (donation), 6d.; Mrs. Gintaro (collected), 12s. 6d., as follows, for the Christmas Tree:—Mrs. Wilkie Bard 2s. 6d., Miss Nellie Waring 2s. 6d., Mrs. Kelton 2s. 6d., Mrs. Rinaldo 5s. Miss Irene Rose (collecting), 12s.; Miss Lottie Albert (collecting), 10s.; Mrs. James Horne (collecting for Christmas Tree), £1 4s. 2d.; Mrs. Rita Roma (collecting), 2s. 6d.; Mr. Fred Sinclair (Sinclair and Whiteford) (donation), 5s. 6d.; collected by Capner and Steele at Theatre Royal, Ilkeston, from manager, staff, and artists, 2s. 6d.; Mrs. Ernest Collins, four plum puddings and useful clothing.

Mrs. George Smythson and committee desire to thank Mr. Lionel Carson, of the Stage, for promise of ten Christmas puddings to be given away with beef at Christmas to our poor pensioners. Will all those who know of the Christmas tree and treat we give to all the poor children of the music hall profession at Christmas time kindly send funds and gifts for same? We have received from Miss Lottie Albert gift of new boots; Mrs. James Horne, gift of new undergarments; Mrs. Cowper, gift of shoes; Miss Roma Shanara, new woollen petticoat; Mrs. George de Gracia (Assam Elephants), new woollen lady's wrap; useful clothing from Mme. Li Chang Hi; Mrs. Earle, cushion.

Friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and reception held every Wednesday, four to five o'clock. Funds, boots, and clothing are urgently needed. Will subscribers please make cheques payable to Music Hall Ladies' Guild?

The death of Mr. Henry Coutts, of Ouidanked fame, has led to a curious error in an obituary notice of this popular protean artist and Freemason. He has been credited with being one of the founders of the Asaph Lodge, the great musical lodge of London, which was in existence when the deceased gentleman was a toddler. It was Mr. Charles Coutts, the popular composer of dance music, now a hale and hearty octogenarian, who was one of the chief moving spirits in the foundation of the Asaph. Brother Coutts at one time might have legitimately claimed the title of waltz king of London. His melodies were hummed and danced to in every ballroom.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

BUT another few weeks and pantomime will be with us, and the number of those interested in songs for the Christmas annuals who daily flock to Messrs. Francis and Day's chief establishment show no sign of abatement; and one and all are loud in their praises of the magnificent budget of new and seasonable ditties available for their use. Especial delight has been evinced by musical directors also in finding ready to their hand once again so brilliant and vivacious a selection of popular melodies as Warwick Williams' "Best of the Bunch," which will loom large as a pantomime overture at very many houses.

A BIG rush is being made to secure Messrs. Francis and Day's exhilarating and rollicking song "Come with me down Regent-street," a number that in the safe hands of Miss Daisy James, and also of Miss Winifred Ward, has set audiences assisting in singing the chorus everywhere these popular artists have appeared. Pantomime artists who wanted and were longing to obtain a legitimate success to the firm's great song "Let's all go down the Strand" are now satisfied.

MISS MADGE TEMPLE'S "On the silvery sands," in its class, holds easily the position of first favourite in the estimation of most principal boys, and the sales of this popular number promise to equal, if not exceed, those of its famous forerunner "In the Twi-twi-twilight." It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

THAT splendid ballad "If I had the world to give you," published in no fewer than three keys by Messrs. Francis and Day, is, as the time grows shorter, more and more in request among pantomime people. The absence of sickly bathos in the lyric and the beauty of the flowing melody have been noted by innumerable artists of discernment, and Mr. Dave Carter has been complimented by many on his sagacity in acquiring this beautiful song so long back.

THAT trinity of songs of popularity unparalleled —"Down in Jungle Town," "Top o' the morning, Bridget McCue," and "I've got rings on my fingers"—are in ever-growing request among pantomime folk, and these assured hits are being sent out in increasing numbers by Messrs. Francis and Day, in response to importunate applicants.

THAT superlative march-time song "Take your girlie where the band is playing," that has been evoking thunderous plaudits when sung by dainty Miss Maie Ash in the production of Captain Kidd, will be heard on every hand on Boxing Night, it having been taken up very largely by producers of annuals. A good march song is a rara avis, but Messrs. Francis and Day have yet again risen to the occasion, and to hear it was to endeavour to secure it.

AT Darlington, where Mr. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, has been delighting his admirers during the current week with his new and choice songs, there has been a brisk enquiry for the "Album of G. H. Elliott's popular songs" recently placed on the market by Messrs. Francis and Day. This fine artist's noted songs "There's a little Black Cupid in the moon" and "Mister Owl," both of which appear in the volume, will be heard in first-class pantomimes galore.

MR. TOM COSTELLO, who at the Finsbury Park Empire has been meeting with his customary success with his humorous song "I got married to a widow," was on Monday night the recipient of four calls when he had concluded his second number "I don't mind leaving the dear homeland," which haunting refrain was most heartily joined in by a full house. It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day, and is in much request among pantomime artists, especially with those who are cast for heroes such as Dick Whittington.

OF humorous songs Messrs. Francis and Day have ever a gigantic budget of the very latest, and this year a special raid is being made by artists engaged in pantomime for rights of Messrs. Rich and Rich's laughable chant "We don't want a girl," which is eminently suitable for double turns. Miss Ada Reeve's amusing song "And just then he fell out of bed" has many admirers, and is a fine specimen of the handiwork of H. F. Greenfield.

THAT fine "production number" known as "In cherry blossom time in Japan" has been seized upon by many managements for exploitation in pantomime, this charming item especially lending itself to gorgeous lighting effects. The entrancing melody is in H. E. Pether's best vein, and the words, by Leonard Cooke, will enhance that author's reputation. Messrs. Francis and Day are the publishers.

MESSRS. FRANCIS AND DAY'S pantomime hits in special and general demand comprise, of course, the ubiquitous "Flanagan" of Miss Florrie Forde, and its equally humorous offshoot "Why does Mrs. Flanagan want to go to the Isle of Man?" of Mr. Rowland Hill. "There are nice girls everywhere" and "Put on your tat-ta, little girlie," grow continuously in estimation, as do also "Hail, smiling morn (will you sing this glee with me?)," "My Mary," "'Tis a faded picture," and "Hi! Hi! Mr. McKie."

THE pantomime books issued by Messrs. Francis and Day for the season 1910-11 have been acclaimed by all those who have applied for copies as one of the greatest boons of the time, artists being enabled thereby to select from the fifty songs comprised in the two volumes all the ditties required by them. The full pianoforte accompaniment to each number added greatly to the value of both the book for principal boy and girl and the book for comedian and dame.

THAT delightful artist Miss Gladys Huxley, whose song "Won't you come to Colombo with me?" published by Messrs. Francis and Day, is a notable addition to the firm's catalogue, is singing the same firm's number "Good-bye, everybody's girlie" on the halls, and will feature the item in pantomime.

THAT charming principal boy Miss Dorothy Ward has secured "Good-bye, everybody's girlie" for a production number at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle. In the hands of so dainty an artist as Miss Ward the song is bound to create a great impression, the popular lady being justly considered a prince among principal boys of the time.

MISS MADGE TEMPLE, in addition to singing "On the silvery sands" at the Palace, Blackpool, during the week, has been also working Messrs. Francis and Day's new and delightful ballad, "You taught me how to love you." Miss Clara Beck has been also scoring an immense success with this choice song, as has likewise Miss Dorothy Ward.

MR. TOM E. FINGLASS, at the Shepherd's Bush Empire, has just produced "My pony boy," a song published by Messrs. Francis and Day. The "original cowboy coon" scored an instantaneous success with this dashing item.

MISS CRISSIE LEONARD will feature a number of Messrs. Francis and Day's items in Mr. Robert Arthur's pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, where she will delight all and sundry as principal boy.

HUNTLEY TREVOR and Percy Edgar, who have just entered into partnership as author and composer, have in "Everyone's key fits my street door" a number that pantomime artists in search of an hilarity-raising item are already inquiring after. It has been expedited through the press, and is published by Messrs. Francis and Day. The music in this instance is by Henry E. Pether.

MR. MAURICE SCOTT, the popular composer, has some splendid free songs for pantomime, and those interested would do well to send for a selection at once. Mr. Scott is the composer of the three great hits: "Swing me higher, Obadiah," "Caro-lina Brown," and the present enormous rage, "I've got rings on my fingers."

THOSE prolific and popular writers, Messrs. R. P. Weston, F. J. Barnes, and Maurice Scott, have just placed with Messrs. Francis and Day a really splendid light comedy song, entitled "Where it's shady," the couplets of which are exceptionally clever and humorous. That charming comedienne, Miss Madge Temple, immediately secured same on hearing it, and will put it in her répertoire forthwith.

MISS RENEE GRAHAME, at the American Music Hall, New York, is meeting with wonderful receptions nightly. The Americans say she is a "diminutive bit of humanity," and the smartest-dressed artist in New York.

MRS. MARIE SPURR, widow of the late Mel B. Spurr, the society entertainer, fell into the fire at her house in Denbigh-street, S.W., on Saturday night and died the next morning. It was stated at the inquest on Tuesday She leaves a daughter inconsolable at the tragic loss of a devoted mother.

IT is understood that Miss Edyth Walker, the American prima donna, a gifted impersonator of Wagnerian rôles and the first Electra heard at Covent Garden, has agreed (so we are informed from Berlin) to sing at the Palladium during January next. Miss Walker denies that she has abandoned opera for the variety stage.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

The cheerless weather outside appeared more cheerless by contrast with the brilliancy and warmth which greeted the frequenters of this popular hall, where Mr. E. W. James greets his patrons with a welcoming and ever genial smile, ably assisted by his capable lieutenant, Mr. Will Horsfield. The programme is an excellent one, opening with a selection from Mozart's Don Giovanni. Chanti, the modern Proteus, gave a marvellously clever and highly successful performance. It made a great hit and was warmly applauded.

Walter Wade was very quaint and amusing in his new and original monologue entitled "Sandy Macgregor." Mr. Wade was rewarded with considerable applause. Frederick King and Miss Queenie scored heavily in their clever little sketch entitled The Butler and the Cook, in which both artists greatly distinguished themselves by their versatility. Vicky Delmar was warmly applauded as a drum soloist and novelty dancer, and the applause was well deserved. The Mackweys presented a clever eccentric wire act, and their smartness and skill were greatly admired. Dutch Daly is a huge favourite here, where he and his concertina are greeted as old friends, and his richly humorous stories, told in his inimitable style, cause much amusement. Charles Austin had an enthusiastic reception in Parker, P.C., which is aptly billed as "A problematical production proficiently portrayed, and pronounced a powerful presentment by acknowledged artists." It is full of rollicking fun, which never flagged until the sketch had finished and been loudly applauded. Miss Rosie Fitzgerald made herself a favourite by her well-rendered songs, accompanied by illustrated song sheets. Herbert Dickeson and company appeared with success in a nautical musical comedy entitled A Fair Exchange, in which Mr. Herbert Dickeson distinguished himself as Admiral Blake, R.N., and was ably assisted by Mr. Victor Hunter (a capital Lieutenant Blake), Miss Violet Gwynn Lytton (a charming Molly Marshall), and Miss Lily Lemere (a clever Mrs. Fairfax). American Bioscope pictures concluded a capital bill.

THE GRANVILLE.

Despite the bad weather on the night of our visit here, a very fair house assembled to sample the excellent variety fare provided for their amusement by Mr. R. W. Duce, who clearly seems to know what hits the public taste in Walham Green. Mr. Harry Barford's company tops the bill in a playlet, written by Jose G. Levey, entitled The Irony of Fate, and, although it is perhaps at times slightly too tragical in its intensity, it nevertheless is well written, and should win much favour. The acting of the distracted mother and father, especially the latter, calls for the highest praise.

Miss Maud Esmond, the original singer of "Charlie Brown," has a pleasing manner and an excellent stage presence, which she takes the fullest advantage of. In that popular ballad "I wonder if you care" she was repeatedly encored for her meritorious rendering of it. Miss Clara Reid and Mr. John Power are a vivacious comedy couple, with many quaint gags and wheezes, and their reception was most cordial.

Miss Maidie Scott is a clever comedienne, who finds popularity everywhere, and deservedly so. From the moment she stepped on the stage till the time when the house reluctantly let her go she fascinated everybody. Her first number, "Father's started work," was received with the usual applause, but in "If the managers only thought the same as mother" she has an original song which suits her methods admirably. Even the most timorous débutante might take the stage full of confidence with a ditty like this, so what an artist of the calibre of Maidie Scott does with it conveys a lot. Romanoff, the Russian gipsy violinist, handled his instrument with feeling dexterity; and Woolmer Young is an actor-vocalist of decided promise and ability. The Herald Comedy Four have an effective successful scena, called The Hawkers, which allows this tuneful quartette plenty of scope to prove their worth.

Mr. Frank Couch is a patter comedian with a loud, penetrating voice and plenty of smart gags and stories, which he delivers with pleasing affability and effect. Others appearing were the Five Bombays, a juvenile troupe, with a smart singing and dancing act, and the Michel Brothers, in some wonderful head and hand balancing feats, which were much applauded. During the evening some particularly clear cinematograph films were screened, and the band, under the skilful direction of Mr. Frank Thomas, considerably added to the brightness of the entertainment.

THE GRAND, CLAPHAM.

Amongst the many attractions which are being presented to well-filled houses here this week is Messrs. Joe Peterman and Geo. Ricketts' musical comedy sketch, The Belle of the Orient, which is too well known to need any description. Another prominent feature on the programme is Miss Irma Lorraine, assisted by Marjah, the young premiere danseuse, and Mlle. Leoni Berenzi in an artistic act consisting of living pictures and statuary intermingled with classical dances. Amongst the many tableaux presented are Spring and Winter, Literature, The Bath of Psyche, and the Five Senses, each sense having individual representation, the whole forming an exceedingly beautiful and chaste performance.

Dale and O'Malley, the "somewhat different comedians," create a deal of laughter with their amusing cross-talk, and especially with their ludicrous efforts as simultaneous comedians. An excellent juggling turn is provided by Cole and Rags, in which they display considerable dexterity, their comic business being also very good. Mr. Walter Bird's company are presenting a screamingly funny sketch entitled Her Husband, in the cast of which appears that inimitable comedian Ernie Lotinga, whose antics as the burglar, Jemmy Josser, send the audience into convulsions of merriment.

Other good features on the bill are Miss Bessie Benson, who sings effectively "I'd rather have your room than your company," and also scores well with her sand dancing, and G. S. Melvin, the versatile Scot, in song and dance. Dan Thomas, who appears as a terrible-looking lady, and sings "I've been married before," is very good, and Harry Cooke is a comedian who sings a song composed of a number of popular song titles. On the screen is shown Pathé's animated Graphic, which gives an interesting review of the world's current events.

IN mentioning the names of those present at the funeral of the late Willie Bassett we omitted to include his old friend Richard Cass.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

The imminence of King Pantomime has caused the eyes of performers and producers alike to be directed Glasgow-wards, where the first pantomimes of the year will make their appearance, early in December. A considerable number of Feldman songs will figure in all these productions, the Arthur-street firm this year owning so unprecedentedly a lengthy list of tried and proven successes that there are "enough to go round" and to spare, without any vexatious duplication of number. For principal boys, the specially fine numbers are "Beautiful garden of roses," "By the sea," "Maggie Ryan from Dublin Town," "Oh, boys, I've seen you there," "In the sunny Engadines," "By the light of the silvery moon," "Nobody knows—nobody cares," "Mister Pat O'Hare," "You were coming through the corn, Molly dear," "I wonder who's kissing her now," "Santa Fe," and "Any little girl." For principal girls the favourite numbers are "Marie Louise," "Little Miss Importance," "I wonder if it's true," "Foolish questions," "Everywhere I go I leave my heart with you," "Silver Bell," "U-li-i-a-Tee," &c. Several of the songs mentioned for principal boy would suit principal girl also, notably "Maggie Ryan" and "By the light of the silvery moon."

For comedians engaged in pantomime, Feldman and Co. are in a position to offer George Formby's two great songs, "Playing the game in the West" and "I was standing at the corner of the street." Jack Pleasant's hit, "Liza had hold of my hand," and the two great comedy duets, "The Barber's Ball," sung by the Two Bobs, and "Sing, sing, sing," sung by Damerell and Rutland. From such a list as the above, it should surely not be difficult to choose all the numbers necessary for any pantomime and satisfy the requirements of the most exacting of producers.

The success that Mr. Mark Sheridan made at the Tivoli, Strand, last week, has been more than duplicated during the current one, both at Walthamstow and Tottenham, where his latest and greatest of all songs relative to the seaside, "By the sea," has been received with the nightly acclaim due to a really great song and singer. The new Sheridan song will be a power in pantomime this year. Already the most important managers, keen to grasp its potentialities, have applied for permission to include it in their productions. It is by the author-composer of Mr. Mark Sheridan's last year's great hit, "I do like to be beside the seaside," Mr. Glover-Kind, and was in fact suggested by the second line of the verse of the latter, which runs thusly: "By the side of the silvery sea." Messrs. Feldman and Co. fully anticipate the new song being as great a pantomime triumph as its famous predecessor, if it does not indeed eclipse its record.

The long-expected West-end production of Feldman's great Irish chorus song, "Maggie Ryan from Dublin Town," duly came off on Monday evening last, when Miss Carlotta Levey achieved one of the greatest triumphs of her successful career with this most fascinating of lilts. Her rendering of the number was simply perfection, and the entire audience literally "rose" to both song and singer. It was the second offering of this talented artist, and at its termination a most vociferous and spontaneous burst of applause greeted her efforts, the singer being forced to again and again bow her acknowledgments, ere her delighted audience would allow her to depart. This song will undoubtedly be featured in all this year's most important pantomimes, being head and shoulders above any other Irish song of the season, and we can confidently predict for "Maggie" a most satisfactory reign in the realms of pantomime. All concerned are to be congratulated on a real "winner" of the first water.

That Feldman's gem of ballads, "Beautiful garden of roses," although it has been pretty extensively sung on the halls of variety, has by no means exhausted its power to charm in the music-halls, has been Miss Lulu Russell's experience this week at the Pavilion, Liverpool, where she has been winning the most golden of opinions for her exquisite rendering of this masterpiece of sentiment and melody. Her reception has been a veritable triumph, and Press and Public alike have vied to do her homage.

There is no daintier exponent or sweeter singer of Feldman's big cowboy number, "Santa Fé," than Miss José Collins, and on Monday last she was acclaimed to the echo for her spirited rendering of this fine song of the "wild and woolly West" at the Oxford. On Tuesday evening Miss Collins produced another Feldman number, "Everywhere I go I leave my heart with you," which was an instantaneous and emphatic success; and she is singing yet a third Feldman number, at Willesden, an old favourite of this delightful singer, "I wonder if it's true," a song that will have an exceptional vogue among principal girls in this year's pantomimes. As a matter of fact, Miss Collins has herself arranged to sing this song in pantomime, in addition to "In the sunny Engadine" and "By the light of the silvery moon," all Feldman publications.

The applications from both principal boys and girls for permission to sing "By the light of the silvery moon" (the song suits either) have been overwhelming in number, at the Feldman offices, during the present week, and this delightful number bids fair to run the song of the year, "Beautiful garden of roses," very close indeed for pantomime honours. No cleverer lyric has ever come from America; while the tune is of that arresting quality that lingers tenaciously in the memory when once heard. Miss Ella Retford has undoubtedly made the success of her career with this fine number in the halls.

That "The Barber's Ball," with which the Two Bobs continue to charm all and sundry at the London Pavilion and their other turns in the metropolis will be the favourite pantomime duet throughout these islands is now a sine qua non, the applications for permission for same being legion. No self-respecting pantomime can afford to omit this wonderful success. It is brimful of comedy, and the melody is one of George M. Cohan's irresistible masterpieces. It is the ideal number for comedian and dame, principal boy and dame, or baron and smart principal girl, and for performers who can dance the possibilities of this spirited duet are simply illimitable. Ubiquitous Feldman is the publisher.

A song which several producers and musical directors have wisely decided to include in their pantomimes is Feldman's fascinating and very original number, "Won't there ever be any wedding-bells for me?" This song admits of bell effects, together with novel staging, and should prove a boon to producers in search of a distinct song novelty. Feldman's issue band-parts of this number, as they do of the majority of their this season's plums.

That genial writer and pantomime producer, Mr. George Burton, has just placed with Feldman and Co. a magnificent new number, entitled "My girl's a regular Sheffield blade," which he has already arranged to have featured in a number of productions, up north. By the alteration of the name of the town, the song can easily be localised to suit the particular town, where the pantomime it is included in is being played. Singers engaged in pantomime should lose no time in sending for this number, a certain success in the provinces, and no doubt also in London.

Not only do the Romps continue to win success all along the line, with Feldman's great principal boy number, "Oh, boys, I've seen you there"; but Miss Daisy Mead will specially sing it at the King's, Gateshead, on Monday next, and onwards all round her provincial tour. Mr. Colin Carlisle and Miss May Lillian Levey have also been phenomenally successful with this song in the provinces. It is already booked for many of the principal pantomimes of the year.

Mr. Jack Smiles, at the Empire, Shepherd's Bush, has been highly successful with Feldman's "tongue-twister," "Fish Sauce," which has nightly been received with roars of laughter. This is one of the finest songs in the market for pantomime comedians this year, and as such should command a very great vogue indeed. Mr. Smiles will sing this clever song throughout his forthcoming provincial tour, commencing on Monday next.

That rapidly-rising comedian, Mr. Harry Marlow, at the Hippodrome, Ilford, this week, is making a most pronounced success with Feldman's excellent comedy chorus song, "We're miles away from home," and this song will be a special feature in Mr. Marlow's part when he plays Dandini for Mr. Milton Bode at the Grand Theatre, Wolverhampton, at Christmas.

That well-tried veteran, Egbert Roberts, tells Messrs. Sheard and Co. that it is a long time since he has made such an effect with a song of the "Foli" type as with Stanley Gordon's "Neptune." Vigorous, vocal, and stirring, it is a number that "gets there" at once, and, judging from the tremendous success Miss Iva Voyce has been and is making with it, this song is rapidly becoming a second "Asleep in the deep," and a rival to "When the ebb-tide flows."

A love-song eloquent of feeling exactly describes St. Quentin's haunting and expressive number, "Everywhere," which Miss Ediss Coombs has made so popular. The catchy valse refrain is just the thing for the gallery to "take up," and those looking for a number pretty in its sentiment without being maudlin cannot do better than see and secure Messrs. Chas. Sheard's latest. It is being inquired after—well—"Everywhere."

When that versatile writer of songs showed the words of "The Volcano" to that popular composer, Stanley Gordon, the latter literally "jumped at" them. Messrs. Chas. Sheard lost no time in "jumping at" the song, and bass and baritone vocalists are "jumping at" it everywhere. The dramatic vigour of the words is admirably expressed by the well-marked melody of the music. Though easy to sing, it is a "big" number in its opportunity for effect. It is in great demand for "demons" in the coming panto. season.

"A song that haunts one" was the opinion of a favourite pantomime boy this week, when shown by Messrs. Charles Sheard and Co. Clifton Bingham and Edward St. Quentin's latest "hit," "What would my life be without you?" This is exactly what the number is, "haunting." It is tender, expressive, and though effective is essentially easy to sing. The flowing refrain catches the ear at once. The publishers have decidedly secured a success here.

"Pick me a nice one," a new song just produced by Phil Parsons, is a decided hit, and will make a most attractive principal boy song. All panto. artists seeking a catchy, comedy-chorus song, with a good swinging melody and smart words, can obtain a copy of the song from the Von Tilzer Music Co.

George Robey, again showing his knowledge of the public pulse, is scoring well at the Empire with his "Wow-wow" song, and the continued applause this song gains pronounces it to be another of his big successes. The publishing rights have been secured by Von Tilzers, who will have the song ready in their sixpenny edition in the course of the next few days.

Among Von Tilzer's recent comic song publications are Harry Champion's successful song, "My natty little patch behind" (Chas. Collins and E. A. Sheppard), Fred Earle's "John! John! John! (Time's going on)" (Paul Pelham and J. P. Long), and Harry Ford's "What is a ——?" (Worton David and R. Penso).

The firm of Nightingale and Co. includes in its staff a tame poet whose gifts have been utilised in producing a professional circular, which runs as follows:—

Rhyme and Reason.

The greatest song this century can show
Is certainly "Your eyes have told me so."

An easy "Nap" each manager can go
With this trump-card, "Your eyes have told me so."

We're told "Man wants but little here below,"
But that includes "Your eyes have told me so."

"Boy," "Girls," and Fairy Queens a debt will owe
To this one song, "Your eyes have told me so."

If you've a song that's weak, and fails to "go,"
Exchange it for "Your eyes have told me so."

Or if some scene should drag and seem too slow,
Pop in the "cert." "Your eyes have told me so."

It suits all voices, medium, high, or low,
This wondrous song, "Your eyes have told me so."

Like Jack's famed beanstalk, it will grow and grow,
Till nations chant "Your eyes have told me so."

You'll find your audience full of grief and woe,
If you don't sing "Your eyes have told me so."

Pit, balcony, and stalls with rapture glow
When bands strike up "Your eyes have told me so."

A lucky firm is Nightingale and Co.
To own the gem, "Your eyes have told me so."

Clara Reid and John Power have scored another success with their production entitled Stories.

Mr. John Lawson is producing a new sketch on Monday, Dec. 5, at the Camberwell Palace. It is named The Affinity, and in it he will play a "master of affectation." It is in two scenes, the second of which is placed "in the mountains."

Mr. Walter Schroder last week concluded an inquiry at Marylebone as to the cause of death of Edward Delamott Stuart, a scene-shifter at the Palace, who died on Nov. 7 in the Middlesex Hospital. A doctor from that institution said that the man was paralysed down the whole of one side, and he attributed death to cerebral hæmorrhage, which was in no way due to an injury alleged to have been caused by a blow from a plank. Dr. Spilsbury, pathologist at St. Mary's Hospital, who had made an examination of the body, said that there had been no serious injury to the skull, and any injury Stuart received did not affect the head internally. Death was due to coma from a ruptured artery in the brain, and he did not think that death was due to any injury received. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THE sands are rapidly running out, and in something less than a fortnight King Pantomime will have started his reign. At the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, where is produced the first important pantomime of the year, rehearsals are already in full swing. Many managers and producers will be in evidence on the "first night," and will naturally be influenced by the public verdict so far as songs are concerned. Here there will be a fair field and no favour, and what are said to be the two greatest pantomime songs of the year will be put to the test. These are A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's two fine numbers, "I wonder if you miss me sometimes" and "Fall in and follow me." During the past week the Star Music Co.'s new offices have been literally crowded with pantomime artists and producers in quest of these and other songs published by this enterprising firm.

THE latest recruit to fall under the spell of A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's beautiful chorus ballad "I wonder if you miss me sometimes" is that sweet singer of pretty songs, Miss Lily Eyton. The dainty little artist, who is appearing at the Olympia, Shoreditch, has made one of the greatest of her successes with this charming number. In her rendering of the song Miss Eyton brings to bear a most artistic appreciation of the author and composer's intention. Her success in pantomime with this popular ballad is a foregone conclusion. Applications for pantomime rights should be addressed to the publishers, the Star Music Co.

NEVER before surely were there so many applicants for a particular song than there has been for A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's brilliant light-comedy number "Fall in and follow me." Not only has practically every principal boy in the kingdom hailed it as the one particular song she "must sing" whatever else goes by the board, but innumerable second boys, light comedians, and even principal girls have sought to secure pantomime rights of this big winner. It so happens that this year there is no competition in this particular type of song. "Fall in and follow me" stands alone and unchallenged. The Star Music Co. have made a minute examination of the map of the British Isles, and have failed to find a single town where pantomimes are played for which this great song has not been secured. In many cases two and three pantomimes in large towns will each feature the song.

ONE of the greatest favourites for forthcoming pantomime is A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's fine march number "Cheer up, my Highland lassie." This is undoubtedly the best song of the kind written since the same authors gave us "Hear the pipers calling, Jenny mine." Judging by the number of sets of band-parts that have been applied for by musical directors, this song will be heard up and down the country on Boxing night.

THE eleventh-hour sensation is without doubt A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's tricky little Irish song "What d'ye say, Molly Molley?" Miss May Mars, who is featuring the song at her London engagements, has created a furore with this catchy number, and will make it one of her principal items in pantomime. The song is suitable for girl or boy parts, and the Star Music Co. have printed band-parts.

G. H. ELLIOTT, the chocolate-coloured one, is duplicating in the provinces the great success he made at the London halls with A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's two new songs, "Here comes the chocolate major" and "Loo, Sue, Mary, Dinah." Both are novel items, away from the beaten track, and the former lends itself to fine effects as a production number. The Star Music Co. are granting pantomime rights free.

WHIT CUNLIFFE has seldom been fitted with two finer songs than those he is at present exploiting. As a chorus number "Up she goes," by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, would be hard to beat, and as a genuine comic song Barnes and Weston's "You can't do without each other" is one which no comedian in pantomime should miss. Mr. Cunliffe is featuring both songs on the Moss-Stoll tour, with enormous success. The publishers are the Star Music Co.

GEORGE LASHWOOD is the bright particular star at the Grand, Birmingham, this week, and he is welcomed in his native town in no uncertain manner. His chief contribution is A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott's great chorus song "The moonlight promenade," and, needless to say, the genial "Beau Brummel" gets "right home" with it. This is indisputably one of the biggest winners ever exploited by this favourite artist, and principal boys who want the best waltz chorus of the year, with humorous changing couplets, should secure a copy of "The moonlight promenade" from the Star Music Co.

VARIOUS signs indicate that we are on the eve of another surprise hit from America, the land of tall buildings and big songs. Everywhere one hears the opinion that Phil Parsons' great success "My wife's gone to the country, Hooray!" is likely to sweep this country as it did the U.S.A. A series of extra funny verses, by A. J. Mills, are given with professional copies. The song is issued jointly by the Ted Snyder Co. and the Star Music Co., who have printed band-parts in all keys.

MR. ARTHUR REECE is making an enormous hit with a new and quaint number, entitled "The ghost of Lady Jane," it is written by Alfred Ellerton, and has been set to an ear-haunting melody by Maurice Scott. The Star Music Co. have the number in the press.

Two new songs, entitled "My world is a world of sunshine" and "The other pair of shoes," by Harry Carlton and Max Steiner, are in great demand for the coming pantomimes, being ideal songs for principal boy and fairy queen respectively. Permissions may be had from the publishers, Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co.

LITTLE JACK MARKS has a new song in study, by Harry Carlton, entitled "The Sunday morning parade." Frank H. Fox is scoring a big success in his new number, entitled "I'd rather have the moonshine," also written and composed by Harry Carlton.

MUSIC AND DANCING LICENCES.

THEATRES, MUSIC HALLS, AND CINEMATOGRAPHS.

Yesterday the London County Council sat to hear and determine the recommendations of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee on applications for licences for theatres, stage plays, music and dancing, and music.

Mr. Whitaker Thompson, chairman of the Council, presided.

The Committe submitted the following report:—

"Nov. 11 and 12, 1910.

"In accordance with the resolution of July 26-27, 1910, we attended at the Sessions House, Clerkenwell, on Nov. 11 and 12, 1910, for the purpose of hearing applications for, and oppositions to, the granting of licences for music, music and dancing, and stage-plays within the Administrative County of London.

"The total number of applications for licences was as follows:—Stage-plays, north of the Thames, renewals 10, new 0—10; south of the Thames, renewals 5, new 0—5; total 15. Music and dancing or music only: north of the Thames, renewals 232, new 55—287; south of the Thames, renewals 133, new 33—166; total 453. Grand total, 468.

"The number of applications received last year was 412, of which the Council granted 395. The number received this year is 468, and of these applications nine were withdrawn by the applicants, and nineteen are recommended for refusal.

"The chief inspectors of the various divisions of the Metropolitan and City Police attended in Court, as in former years, and gave evidence, when required, as to the premises in respect of which licences were sought and the character of the applicants.

"In applications for new licences in respect of premises which have not yet been erected or where alterations have to be effected to render them satisfactory, and in certain other cases, we have recommended that provisional licences should be granted, in order that the Council may be satisfied, before the premises are opened for public entertainment, as to the way in which the arrangements with respects to exits, seating, &c., are carried out. A provisional licence has no effect until it has been confirmed by the Council, but such confirmation may take place as soon as the outstanding requirements has been satisfactorily completed.

"The number of new licences applied for is eighty-eight. Of these, fifty-five are for places north of the Thames, and thirty-three for places south of the Thames. The premises in respect of which the applications for new licences are made may be classified as follow: cinematograph halls, 55; skating rinks, 8; public-houses, 8; church halls, 5; music halls, 3; restaurants, 3; concert halls, 2; assembly rooms, 2; public baths, 1; football ground, 1."

On the motion of Mr. Greenwood, the report was adopted.

SUNDAY OPENING OF CINEMATOGRAPH THEATRES.

Mr. Greenwood stated that up to the present time the Council has not taken any action with regard to the Sunday opening of cinematograph theatres, and he ventured to suggest to the Council that all cases coming under that category should not be dealt with until the appeal had been determined.

LONDON COLISEUM.

The Council proceeded to deal with the application by Mr. Oswald Stoll for a renewal of a licence for music and dancing for the London Coliseum, and for the removal of the restriction on the licence that no intoxicating drinks should be sold or consumed on the premises, at the Clerkenwell Sessions. The application for the removal of the restriction was opposed by Mr. C. Pinhorn, secretary of the London United Temperance Council on the ground that the sale of intoxicating drink is not necessary or desirable in a place of public entertainment. The committee recommended that a licence for music and dancing be granted to Mr. Oswald Stoll for the London Coliseum, subject to an undertaking that no intoxicating drinks shall be sold or consumed on the premises.

It was stated that there was now no opposition to the application, and the recommendation was therefore adopted.

LONDON HIPPODROME.

The Council next considered an application by Sir Horace Edward Moss for a renewal of a licence for music and dancing for the London Hippodrome, and for a removal or modification of the restriction attached to the licence that no intoxicating drinks should be sold or consumed on the premises at the Clerkenwell Sessions. The application for the removal of the restriction was opposed by Mr. C. Pinhorn, secretary of the London United Temperance Council, on the ground that the sale of intoxicating drinks is not necessary or desirable in a place of public entertainment. The committee recommended that a licence for music and dancing be granted to Sir Horace Edward Moss for the London Hippodrome, subject to an undertaking that no intoxicating drinks shall be sold or consumed in the auditorium.

Sir Fredk. Low, who appeared on behalf of Mr. Seddon, the licensee of the Crown Hotel, adjoining the Hippodrome, said that the history of this application went back twelve years. In 1898 a provisional licence was granted to the Hippodrome without restrictions, and in November, 1899, the premises not being completed, it became necessary to renew the provisional licence. On this occasion it was renewed on the terms that intoxicating liquors should not be sold or consumed on the premises. This was in accordance with the policy of the Council which was agreed to in 1899. It was obvious that the value of the Crown Hotel depended upon the condition that no intoxicants were allowed to be sold at the Hippodrome, but, notwithstanding this, the application had been from time to time renewed. He asked the Council not to grant to the proprietors of the Hippodrome a drinking licence, which must materially injure the Crown Hotel.

Mr. George Elliott, K.C., who opposed on behalf of Messrs. Lasker and Rutter, the mortgages of the property, said that they feared that if a drink licence was granted the Hippodrome their security would be very sensibly depreciated. These gentlemen never dreamed that an attempt would be made to establish a rival drinking place next door.

Mr. Pinhorn also opposed on behalf of the London United Temperance Council.

Sir Edward Carson, K.C., on behalf of the applicants, pointed out that for four years the Council's own committee had thought fit to recommend that this licence be granted. His clients had a real grievance, because when the application for a licence was first made it was granted unconditionally. In 1899, the building of the Hippodrome having been delayed through a strike, his clients came again to the Council, which had, however, passed a general standing order that no place of amusement should be licensed for the sale of drink on the premises. The application for a renewal was refused by the Council. He asked the Council, was that fair or unfair to his clients after they had spent their money solely on the faith that the drink licence would be renewed? The case of the Coliseum was, he submitted, quite different from that of the Hippodrome, and was, in fact, an outstanding injustice to the men who had put their money into these premises on the faith of what the Council had already granted. In common justice he asked the Council to remove this injustice. His friend Sir Frederick Low had tried to make out a case, but it was only bluff, and he submitted that the opposition was not based upon facts, and the licensee of the Crown had no real grievance. His clients were not asking to open a public-house next door, they were only asking for permission to sell drink at the bars during the hours of performance only. He asked whether it was likely to promote temperance if people who went to the Hippodrome were told that they would have to go next door to get drink? He need not dwell upon the merits of the Hippodrome. No complaint had ever been made against it, and it was one of the most magnificent theatres in the metropolis. Between April and October 5,200 visitors to the Hippodrome from all parts of the world had signed a petition in favour of a drink licence being granted to the Hippodrome, and he submitted that this was a very fair proportion of the visitors to the building.

Sir Frederick Low, K.C., having replied, and Mr. Pinhorn spoken in opposition, questions were put to counsel by Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Reynolds, and other members of the Council.

The Council then went into committee, and after nearly an hour's discussion, the Council resolved that the licence should be granted only on condition that no intoxicating liquors should be sold in the building. This resolution was carried by 39 votes to 28.

FULHAM EMPIRE.

Mr. F. E. Smith, K.C., M.P., applied on behalf of Mr. Oswald Stoll for a licence for the Fulham Empire.

Mr. G. Elliott, K.C., who appeared to oppose on behalf of a number of residents, tradespeople, and others. His clients, he said, had no objection to music halls in principle. Their objection was primarily that the requirements of Fulham were more than adequate at the present time, and that in view of the facilities for transit which now existed in the neighbourhood and the large number of places of entertainment already open, it was idle to say that another hall of the kind Mr. Stoll proposed to construct was in any way needed. There was an old house, the Granville Theatre of Varieties. Those whom he represented also desired to suggest to the Council that the time had now come when the inhabitants of a particular district should have some voice in the important question as to the number of places of entertainment to be planted down in their midst, and in the circumstances under which such places were to be limited in number. The commercial test as to whether the house would or would not pay was not, he submitted, a question on which the Council should not speculate. The people whom he represented argued that instead of the proposed hall contributing to the welfare or prosperity of Fulham, it would bring into the neighbourhood a large number of undesirable people from other districts. Mr. Stoll had stated that he decided upon erecting the Fulham Empire because he found the place desolate. Well, whenever Mr. Stoll found a desolate spot, where houses were to be let and the population gone away, was he to be allowed to select it as a site for a new hall to be put in competition with the places of amusement belonging to his neighbours. Mr. Stoll had stated that if he got the three new houses for which he had asked the Council to give licences, and gave up the management of nine, he would still have fourteen left. It was time, then, that the Council placed some limit upon the ambition of persons like Mr. Stoll, and that other people should be given some opportunity of existence. The Granville Theatre, capable of accommodating something like 1,500 people, should at least be permitted some further existance. The Granville had been brought thoroughly up to date, and was it to be allowed that Mr. Stoll, like some Frankenstein, was to roam about all parts of London, dumping down his halls, to the bankruptcy and ruin of existing halls?

Mr. Duke, K.C., opposed for the Granville Theatre of Varieties. The substantial ground of his opposition was that the area upon which Mr. Stoll desired to set up his hall was already occupied. The Granville was built only twelve years ago at a cost of £30,000, and it had been carried on satisfactorily in all respects ever since. At the Granville the class of entertainment provided was of the same class proposed to be given by Mr. Stoll. The Granville had been able to pay only about 4 per cent. dividends, so that it was obvious that if this application was granted it meant either the destruction of the Granville or the failure of the new hall.

Mr. F. E. Smith, K.C., M.P., appearing for Mr. Oswald Stoll, ridiculed the opposition which had come from the Granville, the Fulham Borough Council, and some religious people living in the neighbourhood. He contended that there was ample room in the neighbourhood for another music hall, and he asked whether those residents who had petitions against the licence were aware that rejection of the licence would involve a loss of £30,000 in expenditure in the Fulham district. In reply to a remark of the learned counsel, who commented on the moral character of the entertainments given by Mr. Stoll, Mr. Elliott, K.C., quoted from last Sunday's performance at the Coliseum, given for a charity, to show that suggestive songs were sung.

Mr. F. E. Smith protested that as an undertaking had been given not to open the Fulham Empire on Sunday, the remarks of the learned counsel could not have any application.

Mr. George Alexander asked whether Mr. Stoll was prepared to give an assurance that he would not produce stage plays at the Fulham Empire.

The recommendation of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee for a licence was not confirmed.

The Council then proceeded to consider other opposed applications.

ROTHERHITHE HIPPODROME.

Topping the bill this week at this popular house is Miss Carlotta De Yonson, who reproduces that powerfully-written detective episode, entitled Sexton Blake in America, the story and sequel of which is told in four scenes. In the opening scene we were shown the interior of the Station House, Shadow Creek, where information is laid as to the whereabouts of a well-known cattle thief, and in this scene Sexton Blake, his able lieutenant Tinker, and his sagacious assistant, the famous pedigree bloodhound Pedro, were introduced to our notice. Here we find Sexton Blake taking up the trail, which ultimately resolves itself into the capture and complete annihilation of the thief and his associates. The remaining scenes depict the interior of Mother Brady's Drinking Saloon, A Mountain Pass, and The Hawk's Nest. It is in Scenes 2 and 4 that this celebrated company of players put forth their greatest efforts, and each members portrays his or her part in a masterly style, which leaves nothing to be desired. The piece is well staged, and the loud applause given at the close was well merited.

Mr. Dan Thomas is ever a favourite at this house. His "Dame of Dames" called forth shrieks of laughter, his song "Married before" being well received. The Millwall Football Club having changed their venue to this district, Mr. Thomas introduced a song entitled "Play up, Millwall," the chorus of which was speedily taken up by "Ye celestials." In conjunction with the management, competitors are invited to take part in a singing competition, together with an impersonation of Mr. Thomas, in this his latest song. These embryonic "turns" caused additional mirth.

Silvo has a number which is most ingenious and entertaining. His rendering of solos on the musical glasses and silver chimes was so much appreciated that thrice he had to come to the front of the house. Miss Jennie Alexander, juvenile comedienne and mimic, has a good song in "What is the use of knocking at the door?" while her impersonation of Miss Gertie Gitana and Miss Victoria Monks were clever. Mr. Lincoln Taylor takes the audience in his confidence in his song "Just a little something," and received loud applause, as does Miss Mina Green in her latest success, the "Cingalee," and "Everybody's key fits my street door." Nash and Noel received enthusiastic plaudits, their song "We don't care a button if it snows" being pleasing to the audience.

Miss Daisy Yates smartly portrays "The coster comedian" in a manner which brought forth loud and prolonged approbation. In good style and a rich contralto voice she rendered "Au Revoir." Miss Daisy Lee has a special harbour scene while rendering "Idaho." The Bioscope pictures are clear and well reproduced. General-manager Mr. Fred T. Murray is ever busy in the front of the house, and Mr. Anderson follows in his footsteps.

IN reference to a case reported in our last issue, Glen Alva desires it to be known that the verdict was given in his favour, with full costs against defendants, West and Eugene.

AT the Workmen's Hall, Ynyshir, Eugene Gaertner and Lilian May present their smart barrel jumping on the spade, and Lapham and Waller are good comedians and speciality dancers.

IT is the pleasant custom of the delegates to the National Union of Conservative Associations to round off their principal day's proceedings with a smoking concert, and the usual course was followed on the night of the 17th. Upon the conclusion of the two momentous meetings addressed by Mr. Balfour and Lord Charles Beresford, a numerous company assembled in the Empire, Nottingham, where a late performance, commencing at 11.15 p.m., had been arranged. The programme was of a special character, the artists appearing being drawn from Mr. Oswald Stoll's Leicester Theatre, the Palace, as well as from the current "bill" at the Empire.

THE building was crowded in every part, and here as elsewhere the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. The appearance of the Duke of Portland, who was accompanied by Sir Alexander Acland-Hood, Sir John McCraith, and Mr. Percival Hughes, the chief Unionist agent, was the signal for a prolonged outburst of cheering, in response to which his Grace spoke briefly, commending to their earnest consideration the message which Mr. Balfour had that night in another place delivered to them. Sir John McCraith and Mr. Hughes followed upon the same lines, and the programme was then proceeded with.

MISS RUTH DAVENPORT, a dainty singer, had a fine reception for her rendering of one of the most melodious numbers from the opera of Dorothy; Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls provided an interlude which was greatly enjoyed; and Ferry Corwey, the clever musical clown, gave his smart performance with great effect. La Superbe danced with charming grace; Drew and Alders, the "valiant coastguards," furnished plenty of amusement; Ernie Mayne's humour was drawn upon with mirth-provoking results; and the climax of drollery was reached when Fred Kitchen, the favourite comedian, appeared in the sketch Private Potts. Mr. Albert C. Duncan, the Empire manager, was highly complimented on the excellent all-round management.

VARIETY THEATRES CONSOLIDATED.

ALLEGED OVER-COMPETITION.

The sixth annual meeting of the Variety Theatres Consolidated, Ltd., was held on Tuesday, at the South London Palace, London-road, S.E., Mr. Henry Tozer (chairman of the company) presiding.

The Secretary (Mr. Ilford Ibbotson, F.C.I.S.) having read the notice convening the meeting and the report of the auditors,

The Chairman said: The report and accounts which we are met to consider to-day show that the net profit earned for the twelve months ended on Sept. 30 last (after providing for interest on the mortgages, mortgage debentures, and all outgoings) amounts to the sum of £1,283 8s. 7d., the smallness of which does not permit the payment of a dividend. Before dealing further with the report, I may explain that we have asked you to meet here at the "South London" to-day, in order that you may see what has recently been done at this the oldest of the four halls owned by the company. Some five years ago we were served with a very long list of requisitions by the London County Council, and various heavy structural alterations and additions were then commenced, and have since been made, costing up to the present time nearly £7,000. In completion of these demands we have had, within the past few months, to replace the whole of the gallery and grand circle floor with oak, and to entirely reseat those parts of the house, as well as carry out other incidental works. These alterations necessitated redecoration which has just been completed, and I think you will agree that it has been most tastefully, although economically, done. Indeed, the "South London" may now be described as one of the best appointed of variety theatres, especially of the class which gives "two shows a night." In addition to making this theatre more attractive, we have, by the seating arrangements, somewhat increased the earning power, and we have already felt the beneficial effects. Your other three properties—the Euston Theatre, the Chelsea Palace, and the Walthamstow Palace—are in excellent condition; but we have under consideration the question of increasing the building and earning capacity of the Chelsea Palace, and you may be assured that if we decide to carry out such improvement we shall proceed with the utmost caution. The year has been one of great anxiety to your board. Death robbed us of our King in May last, and not only did the loss provoke our keenest sorrow, as citizens of the Empire, but our business for many months suffered materially. Then in July we lost our colleague, Mr. Henri Gros, whom you all knew as a strenuous worker, a keen business man, and a man of active brain and feeling heart. The loss has been a grievous one to us all, and it has cast additional work and responsibility upon the remaining members of the board. With a desire to conduct the business, at the present critical time, with as much economy as possible, we have not filled the vacancy. Mr. Davis has given the necessary extra time and attention, especially to the stage administration, and an increase of duties in this and the other details of the business have been undertaken by Mr. Payne and myself. The cost of the management has thus been reduced, and to that extent will, I am glad to say, be of benefit to the company.

CARRIED ON AT A LOSS.

Now as to the principal reason for the severe reduction in our takings, you must all be aware of the excessive competition that has sprung up in many directions. It must have been evident to most people who have observed the progress of the music-hall industry that it was in danger of becoming over-developed. Of late picture shows have been planted in almost every thoroughfare, and this mushroom growth has accentuated the danger. I am told that at present more than 200 separately-constructed cinematograph shows have been licenced this year in the Metropolis. Not only has this been the case, but music halls have increased 50 per cent. in the last ten years, and all those possessing a knowledge of the industry have recognised that the time had long since arrived when the supply had exceeded the public need. In this I venture to say I am voicing the opinion of nine-tenths of those associated with the control of this industry, and careful inquiries have led me to the opinion that at least one-half of the existing halls are at the present time being conducted at a loss. Our group, which is known as "The Syndicate Halls," with a total capitalisation of rather more than £1,000,0000 (fairly proportioned, and not swollen by heavy promoters' profits), has been for some time content to develop and perfect the halls they possessed, and we have adhered to an understanding come to some years ago that no new hall should be erected outside the West-End district within two miles of one existing. That unwritten law we ourselves have honourably observed, because we felt that unhealthy competition would bring disaster to the industry. Abnormal salaries to a few artists (who, with promises of even higher salaries, seem disposed to drop the bone for the shadow) has been a striking result of the ruinous competition, whilst lesser-paid artists and poorer-paid workers have suffered, and will continue to suffer. The facts I have stated echo and emphasise the general opinion that limit should be placed upon the erection of further variety theatres, and it is being urged that the London County Council should, in the exercise of its discretion, not allow the number to be in excess of public requirements, just as magistrates do with liquor licences, Parliament with railways, waterworks, and similar undertakings. At present it is almost as easy to secure a licence for a new variety theatre or a picture palace as for a dog or a motor-car. On the other hand, some members of the Council have, I believe, expressed the opinion that so long as the buildings are satisfactory the various managers should be allowed to "fight it out," and let the fittest survive. Nowadays, however, the wisely-accepted policy is that while not permitting monopoly—Government, municipal, or otherwise—endeavours should be made to avert industrial warfare, and not to promote it.

PROPOSED RESTRICTION OF LICENCES.

It is ridiculous to suppose or to claim that new halls necessarily mean higher grades of entertainment, or that the progress and improvement which modern managers have long since been identified with are or can, under present conditions, be confined to one proprietor. It has been proved by the closing of several music-halls in the past year that the opening of new halls does not mean, in the aggregate, more work. Onerous conditions in building, stringent precautions in working, structural alterations in existing premises, often involving heavy additional outlay of capital, are insisted on by the Council, and I venture to submit, as a logical proposition, that variety theatres having been brought up to the required standard of safety and comfort, you, whose capital is invested, are entitled to some period of recoupment and the thousands of workers employed in the theatres to some reasonable measure of protection from reckless competition, destructive alike to assailant and assailed. We have taken steps to oppose the grant of a licence for a new building which it is proposed to erect within a few yards of our Euston Theatre, not because we possess, or desire to possess, a monopoly. How could this be said when there are already fifteen competing variety theatres within one and a half mile? We welcome the competition that stimulates, but not competition that destroys. Even if jeopardy to millions of capital be cynically disregarded, it would appear rational that consideration for those employed and for the general public good should lead the London County Council to withhold for a while new licences where no actual public need has been shown to exist, and in the meantime the Theatres and Music Halls Committee might well inquire as fully as possible into the general condition of the industry. That the London County Council has the right to withhold licences for superfluous halls on account of their superfluity is undoubted. That power is given them by the Act of 1751, whence comes their jurisdiction. The preamble conclusively shows that the intention was to prevent, in the public interest, the number of halls from becoming excessive. As I have intimated, it is not our policy to advocate restriction of the free and proper development of any person or company, nor unless forced to do so, to enter upon a campaign of destruction of competing interests; in fact, I may state that my colleagues in this and the other variety companies with which we are associated have always been willing to consider any fair proposition to limit that excessive and disastrous competition which the granting of new licences would only serve to accentuate to a most serious extent. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the London County Council will on Friday, when they meet, decide not to promote chaos and disaster, but to refrain, in the general interests, from granting additional licences which the public neither ask for nor want. I have dwelt at some length upon this general aspect of matters, as the shareholders are, I am sure, desirous of knowing the views of their directors and that the board is taking steps to urge these considerations before the London County Council. With regard to any further information in relation to the report and accounts, I shall be very happy to reply to any questions, and I now beg to move: "That the directors' report and accounts for the year ended Sept. 30, 1910, be, and are hereby, adopted."

Mr. Joseph Davis (managing-director) seconded the resolution.

A shareholder asked if the directors intended to continue the afternoon cinematograph shows at the Euston Theatre.

The Chairman stated that these shows had been tried as an experiment, and he could not say that so far they had been successful. Lately, however, the receipts had increased, and it was a question whether it would not be wise to continue and develop them in face of the opposition of the picture shows which had sprung up in almost every thoroughfare.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Mr. J. S. Morrison proposed that a copy of the Chairman's speech on the present crisis in the variety industry should be forwarded to each member of the London County Council. He heartily concurred in the Chairman's suggestion that every effort should be made to avert the rash competition which prevailed.

Miss Nellie Wilson seconded the motion, which was unanimously agreed to.

Messrs. Newson-Smith, Lord, and Mundy were re-appointed auditors, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman and directors concluded the proceedings.

Inanda, who presents "Bute," the canine barrel-jumper, has always kept an understudy—the extreme opposite in colour, one being white and the other nearly black. The understudy has been allowed to sit in the wings and look on. Last week she took the liberty of coming on the stage after each feat performed by "Bute," and was so comical that her "business" has become a feature of the act, which is now known as Inanda and "Bute" and "Little Black Ma."

A CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

In the Westminster County Court on Wednesday, before his Honour, Judge Woodfall, and a jury, a claim was brought against Mr. George Graves, the popular comedian, by Mr. Ernest Pike, an estate agent, of Charing Cross-road, for £90 commission on professional engagements.

The plaintiff's solicitor (Mr. Beyfus) said that Mr. Pike and Mr. Graves were members of the Eccentric Club, Shaftesbury-avenue, and on the evening of Aug. 2 they dined there together. In the course of conversation Mr. Pike asked Mr. Graves if he was working between then and pantomime. He said that he was doing nothing, and Mr. Pike suggested an appearance at the halls, stating that he knew Mr. Butt, the manager at the Palace Theatre, very well. Mr. Pike suggested that he should submit Mr. Graves' name to Mr. Butt, and, as they talked the matter over after dinner, the defendant said that he had a good sketch, which he thought would suit the Palace, and ultimately it was arranged that the plaintiff should submit the defendant's name to Mr. Butt. The defendant agreed to pay the plaintiff commission if he got an engagement. The plaintiff was not a theatrical agent, but an estate agent. He wrote to Mr. Alfred Butt, who replied: "If Mr. George Graves has any definite proposition to make, I shall be delighted to see him, but it must be early next week, as I am probably leaving town for a short holiday on Wednesday." The plaintiff showed that letter to the defendant, and told him to see Mr. Butt. Later, the plaintiff found that the defendant had signed a contract for the Palace, and he wrote him as to his 10 per cent. commission. The defendant wrote in reply: "I have received your impertinent note to-day. Is it meant to be humorous? Mr. Butt, to whom I have shown your letter, equally fails to see the humour of it." He (Mr. Beyfus) quite believed that, and was of opinion that the jury would come to the same conclusion as Mr. Butt. In another letter the defendant wrote: "I regard your attempt to obtain money from me as gross impertinence," and referred the plaintiff to his lawyers. Since this engagement, the defendant had been in the happy position of earning something like £2,400.

Mr. Pike said that from time to time he had made engagements for music-hall artists. At a date prior to the dinner referred to at the club, the defendant called at his office and, referring to a brass plate on the door, said: "You do business with Frank Bostock?" Witness replied: "Yes, and do business with variety halls." When he mentioned commission to the defendant, he replied: "That's all right, old chap. That's all right."

Cross-examined by Mr. G. C. Scott (for the defendant), the plaintiff asserted that he undoubtedly procured the Palace engagement. Mr. Butt said that he was certainly entitled to commission, and advised the defendant to pay him £50 and settle the case. He could not say whether Mr. Butt was to give evidence. He left his case to his solicitor.

Mr. Beyfus (to Mr. Scott): You know you have subpœnaed him.

The plaintiff, in further cross-examination, said that the endorsement on the defendant's contract, "direct," indicated that there was no agent. Mr. Butt said: "Give him £50, George, and cry quits."

His Honour: What was it you did?

Plaintiff: I introduced Mr. George Graves' business to Mr. Butt, and the correspondence supports that.

Further cross-examined, witness said that he did not consider himself a regular theatrical agent, but he had booked turns, and considered this one of the turns he had booked.

Jack Goodson, a variety agent, of Cranbourn-street, W.C., gave evidence that 10 per cent. was the usual commission. There were two awards by Mr. Askwith in disputes. In one between agents and artists the award was made in Feb., 1909.

Mr. Scott: Plaintiff is not a theatrical or variety agent.

Mr. Beyfus: That does not matter.

His Honour: The usual commission is 10 per cent., and if there is an agreement it is sometimes less. Plaintiff is not a theatrical agent, or in the variety business, and it must be left to the jury.

Witness proceeding, stated that he had not a very extensive business. His name did not always appear on contracts he procured. The agent sometimes made out the contract.

His Honour: It has been proved here so many times that I could give evidence myself. Does not the artist sign an agreement to have commission deducted from salary?—Absolutely.

Is it not the invariable practice to have the agent's name on the contract?—The biggest firm in the business, the Moss' Empires, has no space for the name of the agent on the contract.

Mr. Scott: Do you say that is usually the case?—No; as much one way as the other.

His Honour: I think Mr. Goodson is drawing a distinction between writing the name and putting on the agent's stamp.

Witness: Quite so.

His Honour: Then it is immaterial.

Witness stated further that "direct" might not mean direct, but merely that no commission was to be deducted. Sometimes "nett" was put on the contract.

Edward Alfred Pickering, under-manager at the Palace Theatre, said that when the plaintiff called to see Mr. Butt about an engagement, he asked him to call the following Monday.

Cross-examined: He knew nothing about "direct," as it was not in his department.

MR. ALFRED BUTT'S EVIDENCE.

Mr. Alfred Butt, called for the defence, said that he remembered making the contract on Aug. 10, 1910, with the defendant. He gave no instructions to put "direct" on the contract, and imagined that the typist assumed it was a direct contract, as Mr. Graves was present when the matter was arranged. He had known Mr. Graves for some years, and a contract had been arranged with him two years before, but Mr. Graves did not perform. Witness asked the defendant when he was going to keep his promise, and he met him casually at the bank on Aug. 10, when they discussed the matter again. Mr. Graves went back to the office with him, and they fixed up the contract.

Mr. Scott: Did Mr. Pike's intervention cause you to enter into that contract?—It is a very difficult question. If I had not met Mr. Graves at the bank I might not have entered into a contract with him then. It was in my mind that Mr. Pike had written to me about it.

In further evidence witness stated that the plaintiff asked him to deduct 10 per cent. from the salary, and he asked him to arrange that with Mr. Graves. He said that if Mr. Graves had authorised Mr. Pike to come to him (witness), then there was some moral obligation of Mr. Graves to pay Mr. Pike something.

Cross-examined? He also engaged the defendant for Portsmouth and Brighton, but would not say that it was because he liked the sketch so much. He said he did not see any humour about the plaintiff's letter because, in his opinion, it was a plain business letter.

Re-examined: The defendant was not a music-hall artist, but a theatrical artist. He believed that the outcome of his casual meeting at the bank was that Mr. Graves gave him a good Stock Exchange tip. (Laughter.)

His Honour: Was it this letter of Mr. Pike's, of Aug. 4, that led you to engage Mr. Graves?

Mr. Butt: I cannot say. I do not see how I can.

The defendant next went into the box and said he was an actor. He was anxious to explain that he did not break any engagement two years ago.

His Honour: It is not material to this case.

The defendant proceeded to state that he called at the plaintiff's office about a flat, as he was an auctioneer and estate agent. There were many members of the Eccentric Club who wanted to know what one was doing, and he probably told a dozen, the plaintiff included, that he had a good sketch, but he did not employ them as his agents. Various chatting members said: "Why don't you go on the halls?" He did not remember the plaintiff in particular saying it. He was sure he gave the plaintiff no authority to mention him to Mr. Butt. The meeting at the bank was a coincidence, and there was a remark about it being the usual order of things—the manager paying in and the actor drawing out. (Laughter.) Then witness said: "I've got a jolly good little sketch I should like you to read," and they went to Mr. Butt's office, where he read it, and the contract was signed for a date Mr. Butt wanted to fill up. The plaintiff did nothing, so far as witness was concerned, to bring about the engagement.

Cross-examined: He had nothing definite in August until the Drury Lane pantomime, and might have mentioned it to the plaintiff. What the plaintiff said about the brass plate was imagination. Of course, he would not think of going to an auctioneer to take him to Mr. Butt. The plaintiff's boards at his office were all about houses, drains, and things.

His Honour said that the onus of proof was upon the plaintiff, and he had left the calling of Mr. Butt to the defendant. They must consider what effect that had. The plaintiff was not a theatrical agent, and if entitled to succeed it must be decided what was fair remuneration, bearing in mind that the usual commission was 10 per cent., or less by agreement, for regular agents.

The jury found a verdict for the defendant, and judgment was given accordingly, with costs.

MASKELYNE AND DEVANT'S.

An always unique and pleasingly varied entertainment, in cosily comfortable surroundings, Maskelyne and Devant's Mysteries at St. George's Hall is an attraction that appeals to old and young alike, and a visit always results in real enjoyment. Mr. Maskelyne's famous automaton, Psycho, still remains a prominent attraction in a programme in which every turn is good, and this, the most wonderful and scientific android ever constructed, remains as great a mystery as ever. Its inventor spent many years of labour till he got it to its present perfected state, and for thirty-five years it has remained an unsolved problem. In order to prove that the secret has never been discovered, and that the many trick imitations are spurious, Mr. Maskelyne offers £2,000 for a genuine automaton capable of producing Psycho's movements under like conditions. Psycho, we learn, has been recently indisposed, but is now quite his old self again, rejuvenated in fact, and is more alert, and certainly more astute than ever, having just lately won twenty consecutive games of whist. The calm and easy way the dusky Oriental doll smokes a cigarette and deliberates before playing his card is nothing short of marvellous, and on the night of our visit he played a good game, he and his partner proving victorious. It has been suggested that the figure is worked by wireless telegraphy, but Mr. Maskelyne convincingly demonstrates that this is not the case, and he gives the audience every facility for seeing that there is no dwarfish individual concealed inside the figure, which is placed on a glass cone to prove that it is not worked by wires beneath the stage. Certainly, no more mystifying or clever automaton has ever been exhibited, and this item alone is well worth a visit. Psycho, we learn, will in the near future show that he is capable of imitating the human in many other ways. Prodigious!

Then there are the wonderful illusions and genuine surprises of that famous wizard, Mr. David Devant, including the attractive and neatly-worked Belle Brocade, Little Chantecler, and Mascot Moth mysteries. At the word of command Mr. Devant is also able to make a ball roll up an incline, and suddenly remain stationary, go on, and so forth. Not the least attractive part of the entertainment are the "professor's" genial manner and quietly humorous remarks, and on the evening to which we are referring much amusement was created by his conversation with a youth and maiden who were persuaded to go on the Lily, who were persuaded to go on the stage and "assist" him in his marvellous egg trick. So quickly were the eggs forthcoming, apparently from nowhere, that Wilfred was unable to hold them, and the audience shrieked with laughter as they smashed on the floor. Many other novel and interesting tricks are included in Mr. Devant's répertoire.

The magical problems of that clever conjurer, Mr. Owen Clark, who also has a pleasingly jocular style that increases the value of his interlude, introduces his mystifying candelabra mystery and other original, deftly-worked, and amazing tricks, and produces coins with wonderful ease and cleanness. Mr. Harry May Hemsley, in his novel entertainment, "Skits and Sketches," is very amusing in his rapidly-drawn and humorous pictures, "Simon the Cellarer" and "Watching for Pa," and his mimicry of children is particularly realistic and funny. The change from his natural deep bass into the childish treble is admirably shown in the laughable mimicry of a youngster struggling with the twice-times table, and a child's description of a visit to the Zoo is another amusing contribution in a very agreeable "turn."

Humour and music at the piano has an accomplished exponent in Mr. Ernest Hastings, a fine pianist. There is real drollery in his imitation of the proud beginner who has just mastered the scales, and is allowed to torture the "company" with her first tune, and the love songs of a past day and the present ditties are cleverly burlesqued, "Swearing oh so gently" being very quaint. Four different improvisations of "The Vicar of Bray," after the style of a Bach fugue, as Mendelssohn might have written it, as Handel would have composed it in burlesque imitation of "The Hallelujah Chorus," and as the march king, John Philip Sousa, might have given it to an appreciative public, also proved his cleverness and versatility, both as a pianist and humorist. Mr. Hastings was enthusiastically recalled at the conclusion, and his interesting and diverting performance evidently gave keen pleasure to all.

To conclude, there is the mirthful magical farce, The Scarab, noticed previously in these columns, and admirably acted by Messrs. W. Mayne, E. Arnold Mussett, E. Morehen, Charles Glenrose, and A. Booth, and Miss Ida de Varrell, the many mystifying and laughable quick-changes that are brought about by the possessor of the wonderful jewel which will enable its owner to have anything he may wish for "being executed in a remarkably clever and rapid manner." Mr. F. Cremer's admirable little band plays artistically during the evening, and the selection in the interval is always greatly appreciated.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

CHARITY AT THE ALHAMBRA.

To take care of the old people who have fallen by the way, and to give them comfort in pleasant surroundings, is the object of that great charity—the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum. To the large number of gentlemen associated with the Trade the institution is a household word, and year after year its necessities are met by constant loyalty and special effort. The directors of the Alhambra were prevailed upon to lend their magnificent house on Thursday afternoon for a special matinée, and a generous entertainment was forthcoming, the variety profession showing its customary alacrity in coming forward to do something to assist a good cause. The theatrical profession were by no means behindhand.

In the early part of the afternoon Mr. E. M. Robson and company appeared in a lively and droll comedy sketch, Doing a Kindness, in which plot and counterplot are provocative of some droll misunderstandings. The trifle went very merrily; and Mr. E. M. Robson, an admirable comedian, caused hilarity by his whimsical outbursts of fierce jealousy. He was well supported by Mr. Douglas Munro, Miss Dorothy Paget, and Miss Mabel Archdall.

An entirely new sketch, from the pen of Arthur Eckersley, author of A Boy's Proposal, was also presented. It is entitled

"OUR MUTUAL WIFE."

Sir Mervyn Jenkins, Bart. ..... MR. J. FISHER WHITE
Bland ..... MR. FREDERICK JAMES
Mr. Hutton ..... MR. W. G. FAY
Jones ..... MR. PATRICK DIGAN
Flash Sall ..... MISS HELEN HAYE

The clou of the sketch is a specially ingenious form of fraud, arranged by a female thief known as "Flash Sall," in conjunction with one Bland, the butler to Sir Mervyn Jenkins, a mental specialist. The woman has gone the evening before to the shop of Rice and Hutton, diamond merchants, representing herself as Lady Jenkins, and asking that a quantity of gems shall be brought to the doctor's house on the following morning, so that "her husband" may select a present for her. She herself, a few moments before the time appointed, arrives at the house, and being shown by her confederate into the consulting-room, there poses to the doctor as the wife of a gentleman labouring under mental delusions—namely, that he is a diamond merchant. She explains that her poor husband has with him her own jewels in a case, and might sell them at any moment. She, therefore, wishes Sir Mervyn to pretend to buy them and allow her—the soi-disant Mrs. Hutton—to remove the gems while he detains the "patient." The plan apparently works excellently, the Huttons being ignorant of the fact that all the time Sir Mervyn, the doctor, is only playing with them. He has overheard Bland, the lesser villain, imitating his voice over the 'phone, in answer to a request for confirmation by the jewellers. Without betraying his knowledge, he then makes his own plans, these including the presence of a detective, who is waiting for Lady Jenkins, alias Mrs. Hutton, when she makes what she believes to be her triumphant exit with the booty. Then, having fooled the butler to the top of his bent, he suddenly covers him with a revolver, and requests the bewildered jeweller to open an inner door, through which the detective leads in the chief accomplice handcuffed, the curtain coming down upon Sir Mervyn ironically presenting her to the diamond merchant as "Our Mutual Wife."

The little piece was remarkable for the fine acting of Miss Helen Haye as Flash Sal and Mr. Fisher White as Sir Mervyn Jenkins. It was wholly admirable; and a good word should be given to Mr. Frederick James as Bland. The sketch should soon be snapped up as an attraction for the halls.

Fall in, Rookies! had an excellent reception; Mr. Wilkie Bard confided to the special audience his desire to sing in opera; Mr. Phil Ray abbreviated as he only dares; Miss Edres Coombes, Mr. Harry Leslie, and Miss Carrie Lanceley sang well as balladists; Miss Yolande Noble enlarged on the inconvenience of being made love to by a bird-imitator; the Four Harveys were responsible for an interesting wire-walking show; and other turns included Dare Austin, Franklin Dyall, Walter Dowling (a capital jester), Miss Violet Lloyd and Mr. Horace Lane in their original burlesque The Girl in the Hobble Skirt, the Russian Balalaika players and singers, Burton Shepherd (the whip wonder), Arthur Tranton, and others.

During the interval Mr. H. B. Hartnell (chairman of the asylum), the trustees, and committee came upon the stage, and Mr. Hartnell thanked Mr. Moul and the directors for placing that beautiful building at their disposal in aid of a charity the importance of which could not be overstated. There were 240 residents in the asylum, while fifty others received non-resident allowances, the total expenditure for the year being nearly £10,000. He also thanked the artists who had so kindly given their services, many of them at great personal inconvenience. He had always found them willing to assist in any good work.

Mr. Hartnell also tendered his best thanks to Mr. H. Woodford, the genial business-manager and secretary; Mr. G. W. Byng, the musical-director; Mr. Clarence Hunt, the stage-manager; and Mr. A. E. Corrick, the treasurer, and the whole of the staff, for the efficient services they had rendered, and wished them all a happy and prosperous future.

THE TERRIERS.

A special general meeting of the Terriers' Association will be held at the Three Stags Hotel, 69, Kennington-road, S.E., on Sunday, Dec. 11, at 6.30 p.m.

AGENDA.

To amend the following rules on and after Jan. 1, 1911.

RULE XII.

RULE XV.

9. To abolish grants from the benefit fund.

At the Empire, Smethwick, the Dolorosas in their intrepid drapeze act, and also as the La Dor Troupe of acrobats, are clever and entertaining. Messrs. Poole and Poole, the Yorkshire comedy couple, are very good; D. W. Watson, with cornet, post horn, and song is well received; and Master Clifton (juvenile vocalist), Tom Bates (eccentric comedian), Marie Clifford (vocalist), and Will Pena (funny comedian) complete the vaudeville portion of the programme.

"NOT THE GIRL'S FAULT."

A Dramatic Episode, by George Bellamy, Produced at the Bedford on Monday, Nov. 21.

Mr. Hawkins ..... MR. FRED PAUL
Mrs. Hawkins ..... MISS NINA WESTERLEIGH
Matthews ..... MR. ARTHUR PAGE
Guidro ..... MR. GEORGE AUSTIN
Cecile Matthews ..... MISS GLADYS MAXWELL

Miss Maxwell is becoming a most prolific sketch-producer, and her latest, which is from the pen of Mr. George Bellamy, made a successful début on Monday last. The scene is laid in the Hawkins' flat, where Mrs. Hawkins, an actress, has just returned unexpectedly from America, and learns from Matthews, a faithful old servant, that in her absence her husband has brought Cecile, his daughter, to the flat to do the house-keeping, but he suspects other motives. Hawkins, it seems, has ruined the girl, and is now endeavouring, with the aid of Guidro, another scoundrel, to get rid of her. Mrs. Hawkins discovers the truth and the plot, and Cecile bravely takes means to bring Hawkins and Guidro to justice. Guidro attempts to escape, but is caught by the police, and when confronted with Hawkins shoots him. The story is dramatically told, and when the necessary compression has taken place, which is probable before these lines are in print, it should meet with success. Miss Gladys Maxwell plays Cecile in a capital manner, and thoroughly realizes the requirements of the character; Mr. Fred Paul plays Mr. Hawkins in a forcible fashion; while Mrs. Hawkins is ably embodied by Miss Westerleigh. Guidro is safe in the hands of Mr. Geo. Austin; and Mr. Arthur Page is good as Matthews.

DEATH OF MR. HENRY COUTTS.

The news of the death of Mr. Henry Coutts, the clever protean artist, at the early age of forty-two, will be received with general regret by the scores of professionals whom he numbered among his friends, and more especially by his Masonic brothers. He passed away on Monday at the Western Hospital, Fulham, whither he was removed on the Friday. The deceased artist was a prominent Freemason, and was initiated into the Earl's Court Lodge. With several members of that lodge he founded the Chelsea Lodge. Mr. Coutts became the Worshipful Master of this lodge, which is so exceedingly popular with members of the music hall profession. At the time of his death Brother Coutts was the reigning M.E.Z. of the Chelsea Chapter and I.P.M. of the Proscenium Lodge, of which he was also a founder.

His patriotism, too, was well known. It was not of the theoretical sort; and he took a prominent part in the raising of the Legion of Frontiersmen. He had been working up to three weeks ago, his last engagement being at the New Cross Empire. Some sixteen years since, he married Miss Dot Kemp, whose loyal and artistic help was of considerable advantage to his act. This was originally entitled Fun-on-Furlough, when the happily-associated pair were known as Baroni and Kemp. His latest contribution to variety was entitled Outflanked.

He was an Australian by birth, but his travels all over the globe had made of him a cosmopolitan, and a talk with him revealed the fact that he had the healthy freedom of judgment and broad outlook of men who learn their philosophy by constant contact with all sorts and conditions of people. To his bereaved widow and son we offer our sincere condolences.

The funeral will leave 36, Navarino-mansions, Dalston, on Tuesday next at 1.30, arriving at Chingford Mount Cemetery at 2.30.

THE NEW METROPOLE, BOOTLE.

The above theatre, which is to be opened in the early part of the New Year, promises to be one of the handsomest and most comfortable in the provinces, and should fill a long-felt want in the locality. The site which has been selected is in the centre of a large and thickly-populated district, being in the Stanley-road—the main road to Liverpool—and close to the local Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway and the Liverpool, Waterloo, and Southport lines, thus tapping a very large district.

The elevation will be very imposing and ornate, with a frontage of 82ft. The entrances, with the exception of that to the gallery, will be grouped together in front of the building under an ornamental verandah. Two wide arched entrances, with elaborate mahogany vestibule doors, will give access to the main hall, which will have a tasteful tessellated pavement and tiled dados, from which two imposing staircases will lead to the foyer above. The mezzanine floor will contain the circle refreshment buffet, and gentlemen's cloak-room. From the foyer, which is handsomely fitted with wide folding doors, access is gained to the dress circle and the ladies' cloak-rooms will be immediately adjoining.

The safety of patrons has been made a feature, there being two special exits from the circle, the gallery and pit being also provided with two additional exits. The stage, which is 75ft. by 27ft., will be entirely cut off from the rest of the building by strong walls and a fireproof curtain, and all doors communicating with the same will be of iron. The proscenium opening will be 36ft. by 30ft., and the whole building will be fitted up with fire-extinguishing apparatus of the most modern type, with self-adjusting joints. The theatre, the property of the Pennington Estate Company, Ltd., will accommodate about 2,200 people. The contractors are Messrs. J. and G. Chappel, of Walton, and the architects Messrs. Havelock, Sutton, and Son, both Liverpool firms.

"THE ERA" SHILLING FUND FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

In again earnestly appealing for contributions to The Era Shilling Fund for that admirably administered and most deserving charity the Music Hall Home, we have great pleasure in announcing that Miss Vesta Tilley, whose kindness of heart is proverbial, has once more graciously consented to act as its fairy godmother, and has promised to do all in her power to collect an even larger amount than she was responsible for this year. The handsome sum of £100, it will be remembered, was gathered in as a result of her efforts for the last Shilling Fund—a record which she hopes to beat in the coming year; but she distinctly wishes it understood that should she be successful in heading the list she will decline to accept the medal presented by The Era to the collector of the largest amount. That is to be passed on to the one responsible for the next highest collection.

Miss Kitty Colyer, another popular lady who accomplished such splendid results in the last collection—£63 13s. being the result of her efforts—and who has the interests of the Home so much at heart, has likewise expressed her intention of using her best endeavours to collect a larger sum if possible. But, like Miss Tilley, being already the possessor of The Era gold medal for the largest collection, Miss Colyer also refuses to accept one should she head the list, and wishes it to be passed on to the next highest collector. Mrs. Harry Houdini is another kind lady who has promised to interest herself in the good work, and has already sent along £13 odd for the Home; and the generous contribution by Mrs. O'Brien of two pictures by Stanley Berkeley, "Atbara" and "Omdurman," to be disposed of for the benefit of the Home, promises to realise a substantial sum. And there are many others whose kindness in the past has been so invaluable in helping to keep the Home going who may again be relied upon to give generous support.

The outlook for 1910 is, therefore, a very promising one, and in expressing the hope that we may be enabled to beat our last record—£372 14s. 6d.—we earnestly ask the assistance of all our readers and members of the profession. Collecting cards may be obtained of the indefatigable secretary of the Home, Mr. Ben Woodger, 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell. Kindly put a little shilling on a card as often as you can. It may be "hard to part," but it will seldom be missed, and it means such a lot to those who have fallen by the way and are without a home or friends.

The objects of the Home are to afford comfortable shelter to aged deserving members of the variety profession who have been stricken with poverty or illness in their declining years, or who have in other ways fallen on evil times. The Home has for several years been largely supported by those who contribute to The Era Shilling Fund, which is organised and carried on by Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era. Thanks to the generosity of its supporters, the financial position of the Home is a satisfactory one, and it is hoped that through the liberality of donors its good work may be extended.

The Home just at present houses some eight thoroughly deserving cases, and a surprise visit one damp afternoon this week found the majority comfortably seated round a big fire; some enjoying the solace of a pipe, others finding their recreation in reading, an abundance and variety of literature being on hand. Expressions of gratitude were freely forthcoming for all the kindness extended them by the profession in general, and words failed them in speaking of the thoughtfulness and generosity of Miss Kitty Colyer, who had just recently paid a visit to the Home and given each of the old performers a piece of silver and some tobacco, and had since sent twelve sets of warm woollen underclothing, with a promise of more if needed. Parcels of clothing, books, fruit, tobacco, and other gifts are frequently being sent along by other gifts are frequently being sent by the generously inclined, and are always acceptable.

The secretary conducted us all over the well-ordered and spotlessly clean house, which is certainly a credit to the hard-working and kind matron, Mrs. Fruin. The restrictions are not at all severe; the men are each allotted light tasks daily, and are then free to do as they please. A small sum is allowed them weekly for pocket money, and the dissipation of a visit to a music hall is occasionally indulged in, many managers gladly passing them in "for old times' sake." And there is a large garden, all sorts of "games" and other recreations in this haven of rest for those who have fallen out of the ranks.

Mr. Walter De Frece, the popular president; Mr. Harry Barnard, who has rendered such valuable assistance as chairman and treasurer; and the hard-working and alert committee, who give their valuable time and assistance in looking after the affairs of the Home, exercise the utmost economy in distributing the funds entrusted to their care, and to them the present satisfactory state of affairs is largely due.

Aided by the generosity of a profession that is always ready to alleviate the distress of the poor in any walk of life, they hope to accomplish greater things in the future. And all can help in the good work in some way or another.

All sums contributed to The Era Shilling Fund will be gratefully received and duly acknowledged in the columns of The Era. They should be sent to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, hon. treasurer, at The Era office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

THE WATER RATS' MATINEE.

The fund that is set apart by the Grand Order of Water Rats for cases of distress among brother and sister artists receives a very sensible addition from the annual matinée, which this year was given at the Oxford. Many members of the distinguished order offer their services gratuitously for all sorts of appeals to the benevolent, and when, therefore, they ask the public to help them with their own charity they are certainly well within their rights. That the public think so was evidenced on Monday by the immense crowd that packed every corner of the Oxford. There were many special features. Among the most popular were the features—subtly disguised—of some of the stars in the characters assigned them in a droll skit on

It was a distinctly precious thing to see Mr. Wilkie Bard, in a wonderful make-up as a bride, make his entrance, munching an apple. He was for the nonce the pride of Aldwych, the girl with a blush—a shilling the small stick—and a smile and a wink. Mr. Charles Austin, who had disguised himself as a frock-coated villain, never to be thwarted, had an aide-de-camp in his nefarious doings in Mr. Harry Tate, as the Bad Lord Helpuss, the heavy father. The special mission of Will Poluski, the naval-military hero, seemed to be to console the good heroine (bobble-skirted) by continued embraces; and Percy Honri, on burglarious intent, had his path made easy by the disposition of the treasure in the baronial hall. Mr. Seymour Hicks, having possibly a lively recollection of a sketch prosecution, played a silent butler, who walked on and displayed cards bearing the words Act I. and Act II. Mr. Deane Tribune was decidedly funny as the good heroine, and was the chief scorer in another amusing item of the special bill, the Quinsey Quintet. The performance by this impromptu lot, cleverly made up, was introduced by the comedian named, who stated that the "singers" had come all the way from Australia. "What, as frozen meat?" interrupted Mr. Harry Blake, from the stalls. There was a show of gentle indignation on the part of Tribune when Mr. Blake suggested the word "quisby" as the proper word for the quintet, and the "spoof" business was well sustained until the whole thing was spoilt by the introduction of the supposed wives of the quintet with dummy babies.

The Slipinsky Troupe of Russian Dancers from Shoreditch had been well trained by Mr. Gus Garrick, who figured as Paulina Paulovsky, the peach of Peckham, a lady with a well-defined past, who footed it in right merry fashion, "her" companion being a bearded gentleman who could not conceal the fact that he was a good dancer. The fun of this genuine burlesque was much assisted by the working of dummies by the stage hands.

The entertainment opened with a specially compiled selection from the pen of Mr. Leon Bassett, the popular orchestral chief, entitled "The Rats' Parade." Mr. Dusty Rhodes, a capital ballad singer, in his serious moments, rang Daisy McKeogh's "Two eyes of grey" with feeling and taste; Mr. Sydney James, without his company of strollers, may be unreservedly complimented, not only on his enthusiasm in a good cause, but on his burlesque impersonations. Mr. Marriott Edgar, the man in red, did well in two songs; and the Maples made things lively in their burlesque and in their dancing.

It is the unexpected that happens at a Water Rats' Matinée, and Miss Violet Englefield, from the Aldwych Theatre, found a place in a droll piece of burlesque concocted by Arthur Godfrey and Charles Austin. This piece of fun might have been called The Wrong House. It immensely tickled the house. Chirgwin, one of the boys of the old brigade, looked in to give of his best and to keep the house amused with his impromptus and his parody of "As'eep on the deep." Mr. Burton Shephard presented his clever act with the stock-whip; O'Malley and Brown once more gave us a riot of burlesque by their favourite skit on The Corsican Brothers; Miss Mabel Green and Miss Bessie Slaughter were among the successful ballad singers; Miss Gwen Lindon gave her sister's well-known and successful number, "The angel of my dreams"; Jack Collinson and a lady were responsible for a domestic interlude; Millie Payne roused the house to laughter when she sang of her little tiddler; Victoria Monks gave "Judgment Day"; Sam Stern, a clever comedian from the other side, did some capital character studies; the Two Bobs again demonstrated their well-deserved popularity; Percy Honri played some accordion selections; Mr. Frank Fort also entertained with a lecture on love and its victims.

Miss Marie Loftus, in the stalls, was looking particularly well after her long illness; Miss Marie Lloyd and party occupied a box; Sir Edward Moss and Mr. Frank Allen were the guests of Mr. Tom Shaw in another box; and other boxes were occupied by Mr. Harry Tate and party, Mr. Percy Honri and party, and Mr. Wilkie Bard and party. The Sisters Macarte, of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, sold programmes, for which there was a great demand, and other fair workers in the cause of charity sold chocolates and buttonholes. The untiring energy and tact of Mr. C. Blyth-Pratt, who had the business-management of the whole affair, were rewarded with a splendid house; and the loyal help of the assistant-manager, Mr. F. C. Upton, must not be overlooked. The services of Mr. George Womack, the stage-manager, and of Mr. Parry, in the box office, must also have their meed of praise.

The Moveable Dwellings Bill, 1910.

The present political deadlock between the two Houses of Parliament affects a number of Bills that must be either lost or carried over to the next Sessions. We do not know in which category the much-debated and much-amended Moveable Dwellings Bill will be found. It is hardly likely that after spending so much time and labour upon it that the House of Lords will permit it to drop out of existence.

The Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild, through its Parliamentary agent, has been duly notified that in the event of there being no dissolution on Monday next, that the Bill as amended by the Select Committee will come on for further consideration.

The Guild's Amendments.

The Bill as it left the Select Committee and was duly reported to the House of Lords before the adjournment of Parliament, had the following title and preamble:—

"A Bill (as amended by the Select Committee) intituled an Act to provide for the regulation of Moveable Dwellings.

"Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—"

The Guild would thus amend and extend it:—"An Act to provide for the regulation of (insanitary) moveable dwellings, and for County Council camping-grounds for gipsies and other campers and squatters on common and waste lands."

Whereas, a Select Committee of the House of Lords having reported that with regard to gipsies and squatters on common and waste lands "real public grievances" (dangerous to public health) "arise, and that a case for further legislation regulating moveable dwellings" (used by this class), "has been made out." Further, the Committee having reported with reference to other users of moveable dwellings: "As regards the showman class no legislation appears to be required," and that "no grievances arise against them":

"Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

Amendment to Clause 1.

"1. Where it appears to any County Council that the presence of moveable dwellings on any specified place or places within the county would be dangerous to the public health, the Council may by bye-law prohibit any moveable dwelling from being on such specified place or places."

To add the following words:—"All such proposed bye-laws to be duly notified in the London Gazette before confirmation by the Secretary of State."

Amendment to Clause 7.

As this clause now stands it reads as follows:—

"7. Nothing in this Act shall apply to any moveable dwelling used by any portion of his Majesty's naval or military forces, or to any encampment which may be certified as under proper supervision by the Territorial Force Association of a county."

The Guild Executive Council propose to add the following:—"Nor to the assembling for the purposes of their trade and business of moveable dwellings used by showpeople on any place or places for the holding of a Fair, Feast, Wake, Fête, Holiday Festival, or Carnival."

The Importance of Clear Definitions.

In the report of the Select Committee, commenting on the case for the travelling showman as against the original Bill, it is said that "apart from a small number of persons who use moveable dwellings as a pastime, van-dwellers are divided into two classes—the showman class and the gipsy class. As regards the showman class no legislation appears to be required. Mr. Horne, the Chaplain of their Guild, told the Committee that there were some 4,000 showmen's vans travelling the country, and carrying a population of something like 12,000 souls. The trade is perfectly honest and respectable and its members are well-to-do, and in some cases even thriving. No grievances arise against them, and it was represented to us that not only is no legislation necessary, but that existing legal restrictions occasionally involve a grievance upon their side. In certain cases it is said local bodies avail themselves of these restrictions, not with a view to prevent breaches of the law, but in order within the area of their jurisdiction altogether to put an end to the Fairs where the showmen gain their living. Any further powers to make regulations, it is contended, would intensify this grievance. Without pronouncing as to whether there may not be a reasonable answer to these allegations, the Committee are certainly of opinion that so far as the showmen are concerned no legislation on the lines of this Bill is called for."

The Justice of the Showmen's Claim.

The italics are our own, and used to point out the justice of the showmen's demand for clear definition in legislation giving local authorities further powers to deal with van-dwellers. The Showmen's Guild came into existence for the very purpose of defending showpeople and their avocation in life from the mistaken energies of fanatics, faddists, and local busybodies (in office or out), anxious and ready to persecute showpeople and to deprive the common people of innocent and popular amusement. The record of the Guild's work is the continual story of struggle in the work of trade defence and the vindication of the showman's character. Prior to 1893, when the Guild first gave its serious attention to local bye-laws penalising the show business, and later on in 1898, when the Parliamentary work began, Corporations led by the fanatic and the puritanical zealot did seek powers to kill the people's Fairs, Feasts, and Wakes. Since the Guild, taught by sad experience, has set to work to oppose all such mistaken legislation, a great change has come over the country at large and Parliament in particular with regard to the showman's claim for full citizenship. He is no longer regarded as a fit subject for repressive class legislation.

The reason why is not far to seek. The showman, through his trade society, has met his enemies fairly and squarely in the open, in Parliament and in public debate, and has proved his manhood and his rightful claim for equal treatment with all other classes of workers and traders in the country, under the same laws and the same moral safeguards and sanctions as all the other subjects of the Crown.

Parliamentary Defence Work, 1910.

At the opening of the sessions of Parliament there were but two Bills promoted by public bodies seeking additional powers to restrict and to prohibit the show business. Despite the fact that in the previous sessions of Parliament, 1909, the Borough of Oldham had been refused prohibitory powers, the important suburb of Handsworth, Birmingham, attempted to obtain the same powers Parliament had refused to Oldham and other towns.

These extraordinary powers were set out in Clauses 125 and 126.

"THE HANDSWORTH URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL ADDITIONAL POWERS BILL.

"Bye-laws as to Shows, Roundabouts, Steam-organs, &c.

"125. The Council may make bye-laws for all or any of the following purposes (that is to say):

"For prescribing the hours within which during any fair or at any other time any show, booth, caravan, circus, or menagerie may be kept open, and for preserving order therein.

"For preventing the use of whirligigs, roundabouts, steam-organs, or other similar contrivances, so as to be a source of danger or annoyance to residents or the public.

"Prohibitions as to Vans, Tents, &c.

"126. (1) The Council may by resolution, passed at a meeting of the Council, prohibit any vans tents, sheds, or similar structures being erected or placed on any lands in the district where their use for human habitation is, in the opinion of the Council, likely to cause the pollution or fouling of any streams or ditches, and any person who shall be guilty of any act or omission in contravention of any such resolution, and the owner or occupier of any lands on which any such van, tent, or other similar structure shall be so erected or placed in contravention of any such resolution, and who may have knowingly permitted the same, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £5, and to a daily penalty not exceeding 20s.

"(2) Nothing in this section shall apply to any tent, van, shed, or structure erected or used by any portion of His Majesty's naval or military forces.

"(3) The Council shall cause notice of any resolution under this section to be published once in some newspaper circulating in the district, and to be served on the owners and occupiers of any lands affected thereby."

The Successful Work of the Guild.

Negotiations were at once opened with the Handsworth District Council, and every effort was made by the officials of the Guild to prevent if possible the costly proceedings of appeal against the Bill by petition. Not receiving satisfactory replies, a petition was duly lodged, signed by the president, secretary, and the chaplain, setting out that it had been the settled practice of Parliament ever since the Guild took up its trade defence work, to reject the extraordinary powers sought in the Handsworth Bill.

Having thus safeguarded the interests of showmen, negotiations were again opened between the Corporation and the Guild. Here it must be noted that not until it had been clearly demonstrated that the showmen were in earnest and had behind them a powerful trade organisation did the District Council give any evidence of being amenable to argument. The result of the labours of the Guild officials was a triumphantly successful conclusion of the dispute between the Corporation and the Guild, as the following official communication from the Handsworth District Council's Parliamentary Agent to the Showmen's Guild Parliamentary Agent evidences:—

"Referring to the petition which you have deposited against the Bill promoted by the Handsworth District Council, we now write to inform you that the promoters will not proceed with Clauses 125 and 126 of the Bill. You may take this letter as our undertaking to delete these clauses in Committee of the House of Lords.

"Please withdraw the petition of the Showmen and Van-dwellers' Association.

"Yours faithfully,

"(Signed) Sherwood and Co.,

"Parliamentary Agents."

The Guild and Public Opinion.

The close of the Parliamentary session, 1910, marks a great forward advance in the active propaganda work of the Guild and the support accorded to the organised showmen both by the Press and the public. Evidence of this growth of popular appreciation of the showman and his work and life was immediately seen when the report of the Select Committee of the House of Lords on the Moveable Dwellings Bill was issued. With complete unanimity the British Press identified itself with the exoneration of show life contained in that Report and set out in full above.

Great municipalities accorded the Guild cordial civic recognition. This was notably so at King's Lynn, Gloucester, Hull, and Rotherham. In these great centres, either directly at the Guild's public meetings, or by consultation with the Guild, in matters affecting the show business, the co-operation of the showmen with the local authorities was a marked evidence of the upward trend of showlife and the recognition of the status of the showman.

There were other gratifying and most satisfactory indications of popular appreciation. For example, at Mitcham two candidates specially pledged to the defence of the people's Fair rights were returned to the Parish Council. At Ayr, in Scotland, the opening night of the fair, when the entire proceeds of all the concerns were given to the Guild funds, the people of Ayr came out to Newton Park, where the fair is held, and patronised the shows and other amusements in order to support the benefit organised by the showpeople themselves. A similar result was seen at Rotherham, when the annual benefit performances were given the last night of the fair.

The point we wish to emphasise is that the show-loving public recognises that the work of the Guild is of national importance, and where benefits are organised most heartily supports the showmen's endeavour to help themselves. These are signs of the times that must be of the utmost encouragement to the president, the executive officials, the committee, and the general members of the society.

The Middleton Corporation Bill.

The extraordinary powers sought by Corporations when promoting Improvement Bills was seen in the demand of the Middleton Corporation for a cinematograph act of their own. They proposed in Clause 117 of their Bill that they should have power to make bye-laws for the purpose of controlling and regulating cinematograph entertainments within their borough, and that they might by such bye-laws prescribe the precautions against fire and other safeguards and conditions to be adopted and observed by persons holding such entertainments, and might prohibit the holding of such entertainments on any premises except such as were licensed by the Corporation for the purpose, and might provide for the granting of such licences.

This claim in Private Bill legislation to cover the same ground as an Act already in existence was bound to be rejected. This, of course, was the only result that could be expected. It is almost incredible that a public authority should be so ignorant of an existing Act of Parliament giving them all reasonable control over cinematograph exhibitions. Yet so it was, and this daring attempt of the Middleton Corporation to override the powers of the Home Secretary met with the fate it so richly deserved.

York's Historic Fair.

The capital of the Northern Province maintains its ancient fair at Martinmas with great gusto. Two market squares are fully occupied by the shows and other amusements. Prominent amongst these were Mander's menagerie, Ben Howden and Son's picture palace and motor-car set, Tuby and Son's coliseum and galloping horses, J. Collins's joy-wheel, haunted castle, cake-walk, and yachts; juvenile roundabouts and swings by A. Smith, C. Relph's tiny people, Casey's freak show, Testo's mystic swings, Cornwell's shooting saloons, and games and stalls by Messrs. Stewart, Bliss, Duck, Mitchell, Wright, Samuel, Lees, and other caterers.

Midland Show News.

Our Midland correspondent writes:—At Lowsomford and Tamworth we have had Herbert's roundabout, park swings, shooting saloons, houp la, &c. Jennings's portable theatre is now at Bromsgrove. No circus has visited Astwood Bank for some time.

Notes from Wales.

Stones thrown by colliery strikers on Wednesday evening at a train between Mountain Ash and Aberaman seriously injured a well-known showman named John Scarrott. He was struck on the head by a large stone, and had to be taken to a surgery to have some glass extracted from his left eye.

Mr. John Studt's electric motor-cars and zoological roundabouts are doing roaring business at the Pavilion Fairgrounds, Mountain Ash, this week. He is accompanied by Mr. Scarrot's assault-at-arms exhibition, Mrs. Scott's houp-las, Wayman's shoting galleries, and last, but not least, Studt's magnificent cinematograph exhibition, which is a fair by itself.

Haverford West Town Council have been refused a bye-law by the Local Government Board to prohibit shows passing through the town on Sundays.

Death of Showman's Daughter at Mountain Ash.

Jane Scott (thirteen), the daughter of a well known showman, was found dead in bed in a caravan at the fair ground, Mountain Ash. She retired about 10 p.m., and was found dead by her sister two hours later. Police-Constable Henebery and a doctor were summoned. It is stated that the deceased ate a somewhat hearty meal during the evening, and the only theory advanced is that she partook of something of a poisonous nature.

Showman's Letter-Box.

Letters await the following at The Era office: Messrs. J. W. Chipperfield, James Henry Chipperfield, Mrs. C. Birth, Anderton and Rowland, Alf. Ball, T. Fossett, and R. Fossett.

SHOWMEN'S GUILD OF GREAT BRITAIN.

PRESIDENT: PATRICK COLLINS.

OBJECTS OF THE GUILD.

1. To conserve the business interests of all open-air amusement caterers and entertainers, whether menaced by faddist legislation or by public bodies.

2. To vindicate the character and the avocation in life of the showman whenever unjustly maligned or attacked.

3. To defend the fairs and holidays of the people wherever threatened, and to encourage all wise efforts to improve the entertainments of the people.

APPEAL FOR HELP.

TO OUR FELLOW SHOWMEN AND BROTHER ARTISTS IN ENGLAND, SCOTLAND, WALES AND IRELAND.

The several members of the Scott family—sons and daughters of the late Walter Scott, circus proprietor, who was well and favourably known—beg to intimate that we are completely overburdened with trouble at the present time, being in stricken circumstances and in want of money, and can no longer find the necessary funds to defend an action of detinue which has been brought against us by Edward Hanneford, who claims to be entitled to the circus property which was left to us by our late father to enable us to earn a livelihood. The following is a report of the case taken from a local newspaper when it was last before the court on Oct. 27:—

HANNEFORD v. SCOTT AND OTHERS.

This was an appeal by the defendants, Robert Scott and others, from an order of Mr. Justice Ross appointing a receiver over the chattels, business, and effects of the circus of the defendants. There was a cross-appeal by the plaintiff, Edward Hanneford, that the order in question, the subject of defendants' appeal, should be amended so as to constitute Mr. Hugh Boyd, of Belfast, manager as well as receiver over the circus. The defendants contended that the plaintiff had no valid claim against the property, and alleged that he had been overpaid to the extent of £400 in respect of money lent to the defendants, and that the appointment of a receiver would prevent the business from being carried on in the ordinary course, and would be detrimental to the defendants' interests. It appeared that the circus had been carried on under the title of Sir Walter Scott and Sons. The plaintiff resided in Strandtown, Belfast. Following the death of Mr. Walter Scott litigation took place between the parties as to their respective rights, and when the matter came before Mr. Justice Ross a receiver was appointed pending the matter.

For the defendants (appellants)—Mr. Healy, K.C., M.P., and Mr. W. H. Brown (instructed by Mr. J. G. Scott, solicitor, Larne).

For the plaintiff—Mr. J. O'Connor, K.C., and Mr. H. M. Thompson (instructed by Mr. James Alexander, solicitor, Belfast).

The Lord Chancellor, in giving judgment, said they would allow matters to remain as they were, having regard to the lateness of the season, and to the fact that the touring of the circus was finished for the season. They would decline to grant the plaintiff's cross-notice of appeal, which sought to appoint the receiver as manager, and they would put the plaintiff under terms to deliver his statement of claim forthwith, and make costs of both parties costs in the cause.

We wish to keep what our father left to us, and we are therefore resisting the claim made by Hanneford, and we look forward with confidence to receiving adequate financial support from our fellow showmen and brother artists who know us well. Funds are urgently required, and we appeal to all our many British, Scottish, Welsh, and Irish friends to come forward at this critical moment and help us to defend the action and have justice done between the parties. The smallest sums will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged by the undersigned, to whom all contributions are to be sent.

ROBERT SCOTT,

47, Main-street, Larne, co. Antrim, Ireland.

On behalf of himself and his brothers and sisters, children of the late Walter Scott, who are the defendants in the action.

THE TRAVELLING AUCTIONEER AND THE HOME OFFICE.

Immediately on receipt of the amended Shop Hours Bill the London officials of the Auctioneers' Trade Defence League held a meeting at The Era office. The Bill was thoroughly studied, and the amendments, so far as they embody concessions to the trade, were warmly welcomed. It was resolved that the executive officials seek another interview with the Home Office in order to reaffirm the claim for an exemption, and to clear up some doubtful points in the interpretation of the machinery of appeal against closing orders, so far as they touch traders in a possible minority. When these questions have been dealt with, the committee of the League will summon a general meeting of members at Manchester and decide upon future action.

No useful purpose will be served by any public agitation until the new Parliament is elected and has the Bill before it.

Mr. Frank Bostock's great success in Sheffield is now an accepted fact, testified to with enthusiasm by the big crowds that flock to the mammoth building every day to see and enjoy the lions, tigers, bears, monkeys, camels, &c., the all-nation troupe of famous trainers, performers, and clowns, and the screaming fun of the American fair. The Jungle is a familiar topic in every household in town and district, and the most popular gag in local pantomime this season will undoubtedly be, "Have you been to the Jungle?" A great factor in the general success is the genial bonhomie of Mr. Harry Tudor, who varies his duties as the typical hustling American manager, and the cute advertiser, by acting as a kind of clean-shaven Santa Claus to the children, and seeing that a'l the children at his happy gathering have a "real good time." "There is only one fault to find with the establishment," remarked a notable citizen the other evening, "and that is the name. It should be called Bostock's Palace of Delight!"

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

FILM GOSSIP.

The Status of the Cinematograph Theatre.

MR. MONTAGUE A. PYKE, the pioneer of the high-class cinematograph theatre, in an interesting article in the Pall Mall Magazine says: "The evolution of the general principles of cinematography as applied to the production of animated pictures in places of entertainment has taken place mainly during the last decade. Like many other scientific discoveries, it suffered somewhat in the past by being exploited by showmen in a vulgar, unscientific, inartistic, and inadequate manner, but owing to its intrinsic merits and far-reaching possibilities it has emerged triumphant from its former surroundings, and is now taking its legitimate place as an institution potent for good in many and varied directions.

Picture Houses of Palatial Splendour.

"WE are a conservative people with whom prejudice dies hard, and it is only now that the living picture is housed in homes of palatial splendour that modern cinematography has become dissociated from the gaff and penny peep-show. Now that its achievements and amenities have secured recognition society has begun to realise that the high-class picture theatre is one of the most delightful adjuncts of daily life. It enlightens, instructs, and amuses. It is so readily susceptible to change that one is never bored by it. Apart from its lighter aspects, presenting fiction in the form of farce, comedy, or drama, it brings the realities and actualities of the world's happenings before our eyes.

Cinematograph Camera Carried on all Important Expeditions.

"PRESENT facilities for cinematograph film production enable us to have visual conception of events, acts, and matters which have taken place in distant quarters of the globe practically inaccessible to the average man, woman, and child. The cinematograph camera now accompanies all important expeditions, and millions of feet of film are being exposed in the production of pictures, which will have a vital interest not only to ourselves but to posterity.

Highly Beneficial and Deeply Interesting.

"THE merely theatrical side of the cinematographic industry does not by any means exhaust the possibilities of the class of picture theatres in which I desire to interest my readers. I would even agree that too much of such might prove demoralising, but when the events of the day are illustrated, the stories of men and women, dynasties and nations depicted, and the flora, fauna, geography, and history of many lands brought before our eyes, I submit the traffic of the picture theatre, where such obtains, is highly beneficial and deeply interesting."

Election Cartoons at the Alhambra.

THE two most striking cartoons published in the papers of the day will be reproduced and shown on the screen during the evening performances at the Alhambra. This addition to the programme will be continued until the General Election is over.

Glasgow's New Electric Theatre.

THE new electric theatre which has been built at Bridgeton Cross was opened on the 18th. Large audiences packed the house, and the management may congratulate themselves upon the heartiness and spontaneity of the welcome extended to their enterprise. In the course of the afternoon a number of invited guests were privileged to inspect the theatre and witness a typical performance. The building, which has been designed by Mr. George A. Boswell, architect, Glasgow, is a neat little affair. It is seated for about 700 persons, and so cleverly are the seats arranged that everybody is ensured an uninterrupted view of the stage-screen. The latter has been specially constructed by Mr. Boswell, and the result is very happy indeed, the pictures being viewed as if they were set in a frame.

Splendid Picture Outfit.

REGARDING the cinematograph outfit, it is apparent that no expense has been spared, and such excellent and interesting films as the one shown of the building of the Olympic, the world's largest vessel—from the laying of the keel-blocks to the triumph of her launch—are well-nigh perfect. The lighting of the theatre is electric, and this, combined with electrically-driven fans, ensures a pure atmosphere, a desideratum that adds considerably to the comforts of this admirably constructed house. A waiting-room and lounge for ladies and gentlemen also constitutes an agreeable feature in the arrangements for the comfort of the audience.

Living Pictures of Royalty.

AN interesting series of royal cinematograph pictures will be shown at a ball to be given at Prince's Restaurant, Piccadilly, on Friday next in connection with the visit of about 120 of the principal Austrian hotel proprietors and managers. The pictures, which are being brought specially from Vienna, where they were on view at the recent Sports Exhibition, show the King and the late King Edward pheasant shooting at Sandringham, the Kaiser hunting in Germany, and the Emperor Francis Joseph hunting chamois at Ischl, Austria.

Goldston-street Picture Palace.

THE Goldston-street Variety and Picture Palace, Aldgate, E.C., a large building, has recently been opened by Mr. Frank Stebbings, with Mr. Walter Mappin as acting manager. In addition to a splendid picture programme, variety turns are given which evidently please the large audiences. Two matinées are given on Friday and Saturday.

Theatre de Luxe, Norwich.

THE business is still good here, and the pictures are entertaining. This week they include The New Teacher, A Mohawk's Way, A Big Scoop, Hunting the Hippototamus, The Imperial Parks of Potsdam, &c.

B.B. Pictures at Dundee.

DISTRICT MANAGER MR. TOM LUNN has another fine assortment of films on view at the Palace Theatre, the star picture being The Anarchist, a powerful dramatic item. Dumb Comrades is another capital picture which appeals to all lovers of dumb animals. His Indian Bride proves a film of absorbing interest, and the programme further includes You Stole My Purse, The New Baby, Bunker's Patent Spyopticon, The Turn of the Balance, and The Pathé Gazette. At the Gaiety Theatre Acting-Manager Mr. J. Hickey has also an attractive programme, which includes dramatic films such as In Friendship's Name, The Fox Burrow, and The Homeless Boy, while the humorous items are The House Party and Beware of the Bomb. An additional attraction is found in the Eckersley Sketch Company in a smartly worked sketch entitled Turning the Tables, which meets with much appreciation. At the Empire Theatre bumper houses continue to gladden the managerial heart of Mr. R. W. Austin, whose star pictures are Under the Old Apple Tree and Turn of the Balance, while an extra popular item is "Flanagan" on the cinephone.

Dundee Cinema Theatre.

GOOD business continues to be done at Mr. P. Feathers' comfortable house, the programme this week including the following excellent films: A Summer Idyll, A Wireless Romance, Rock Climbing in the Black Forest, Love Me, Love My Dog, The Enthusiastic Handball Player, and Longlegs, Jumper.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, Mr. Whitaker Thompson (chairman) presiding.

PETITIONS.

Mr. A. Taylor presented a petition signed by 3952 tradesmen and residents against a music and dancing licence for the Fulham Empire. Mr. Easton presented a similar petition, containing 10,000 signatures. Mr. Dickson Pender presented a petition, signed by 6,000 persons, against the licensing of the proposed Euston Hippodrome. Mr. E. Smallwood presented a petition against the granting of a music and dancing licence for the proposed Electric Theatre, 2, Highbury-place, Islington. This was signed on behalf of thirty Evangelistic churches in East Islington.

FOREST HILL PICTURE PLAYHOUSE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported with reference to the Forest Hill Picture Playhouse, Dartmouth-road, Forest Hill. Drawings have also been submitted showing certain alterations proposed to be made to the hall at the rear of the premises. The cinematograph theatre has already been dealt with under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, but the certificate is required with a view to a music licence being obtained. The committee considered that the hall at the rear of the premises was unsuitable for public entertainments, and recommended that a certificate be sealed, subject to a condition that the hall at the rear of the premises shall not be used while the cinematograph theatre is open to the public, and that the certificate be issued as soon as the premises shall have been satisfactorily completed.

QUEEN'S HALL, DULWICH.

The committee reported that they had considered an application for a certificate, accompanied by drawings, submitted by Mr. G. P. Pratt, of a cinematograph hall proposed to be erected at Grove-vale, East Dulwich, and to be known as the Queen's Hall. It is intended to apply for a music licence for the hall. The premises will accommodate about 360 persons, and, subject to certain conditions being observed, they appear to be suitable for the purpose for which the licence is desired.

The committee accordingly recommended the Council to grant a certificate.

PICTURE PALACE, LISSON GROVE.

The committee had considered an application for a certificate, accompanied by drawings, submitted by Mr. E. J. Rawkins, showing certain alterations proposed to be made at the Great Central Picture Palace, 44, Lisson-grove, Marylebone. The premises have been dealt with under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, but the certificate is required with a view to obtaining a licence for music and dancing. Subject to certain conditions being complied with, the premises appear to be suitable for the purpose for which the licence is desired.

The committee recommended that a certificate be granted.

BAYSWATER CINEMATOGRAPH THEATRE.

The committee had considered an application for a certificate, accompanied by drawings, submitted by Mr. H. F. Phillips, of the Bayswater Cinematograph Theatre and Tea Rooms, Queen's-road, Bayswater, it being intended to apply for a music licence. The premises consist of a hall on the ground flood and tea rooms on the first floor. The tea rooms are provided with only one exit, viz., a staircase 3ft. 4in. wide, and the committee did not consider them suitable to be licensed for public music. The cinematograph hall on the ground floor will accommodate about 350 persons, and, subject to certain conditions being observed, the arrangements of this hall appear to be satisfactory.

The committee recommended that a certificate be granted.

The Council, on Nov. 8, decided not to grant a certificate in respect of the Streatham Empire Picture Palace, Streatham High-road. The Theatres Committee reported that a drawing has now been submitted by Messrs. Taperell and Haase, showing the provision of an additional exit from the northern end of the hall by means of a passageway leading to Streatham High-road. The premises have already been approved under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, but the certificate is desired with a view to obtaining a music licence for the premises. The additional exit will render the premises suitable for the purpose for which the licence is desired, and the committee recommended that a certificate be sealed and issued as soon as the premises shall have been satisfactorily completed.

All the above recommendations were agreed to without discussion.

Curzon Hall, Birmingham.

THE picture season at the Curzon Hall, Birmingham, has been suspended until Monday, Dec. 5, owing to the hall being engaged for other purposes.

Cinematograph Musicales at Eastbourne.

A NEW departure has been made by the management at the Devonshire Park, Eastbourne, who have arranged the Pavilion for holding cinematograph musicales. All the latest interesting and entertaining pictures are shown twice daily (except Saturday), a tea matinée being held from 4 to 6 p.m.

Johnson v. Jeffries Fight at Dundee.

A NEW and commodious picture theatre, the title of which is the People's Picture House, was auspiciously opened last Saturday. The new theatre, which is situated in Logie-street, Lochee, is seated for about 1,200 persons, and is exceedingly comfortable. The theatre is run on the two houses a night principle. The star pictures this week are The Boxer, which is full of amusing incidents, including a unique boxing match on roller skates, the sorry figure they cut at the twentieth round appealing with irresistible force to the audience, and The Story of the Siege, which portrays scenes of great historic and dramatic interest. Many other excellent films are included in the programme, and the cinephone provides an agreeable variation. On Wednesday and Thursday the much-discussed fight film, Johnson v. Jeffries, was exhibited, and drew enormous houses, the various incidents, which are very clearly depicted, being followed with much interest.

Kilmarnock Picture Palace.

THE feature of the programme this week at the Picture Palace, Kilmarnock, is a magnificent film by the Edison Co. illustrating a big scoop in a newspaper office. There are other good films, including The Virgin of Babylon, and an interesting society drama, The Turn of the Balance. The varieties include Rossini, a clever performer on the high trapeze; Williams and Parker, a Welsh couple with pleasing voices and good music; and J. K. Macfarlane, a popular Scotch comedian.

The Cinema Theatre, Newcastle-under-Lynne.

THIS, one of the coziest and most attractive of the ring of Cinema Theatres in this district, is becoming daily more popular and better patronised under the astute management of Mr. H. Goddard. It fills a much-needed gap in the amusement line in this town. Prominent in the programme of films depicted is a fine domestic film, The Examination Day. The Count of Montraver is an excellent dramatic picture. The Cinema Theatres will soon form a ring around the district, Palaces having been opened at Tunstall, Burslem, and one in Longton will shortly be completed.

RINKING GOSSIP.

The Great Monohan in Bristol.

THE Great Monohan delighted large audiences at the Coliseum, Bristol, last week, with his wonderful exhibitions of skating. The charm of the exhibitions lies in the novelty of the tricks he performs and in his versatility. Monohan claims that he is the originator of all the tricks he performs, his figure-skating including complicated brackets, double turns, &c., executed rapidly, but always with grace and apparent ease. Rolling the barrel is probably one of the hardest tricks that he performs, and the fairy maze, in which Monohan threads his way in and out in all conceivable directions, between rows of lighted candles, is a feat originated by him that became so popular that many other exhibition skaters have adopted it.

Monohan's Mode of Adjusting His Skates.

MONOHAN mystifies many people by the way he puts on his skates, which he changes several times on the rink. He simply places the skates—the ordinary pattern Richardson—on the floor, steps on to them, and commences to skate. Hundreds of people have inquired as to how this is done, but Monohan keeps the secret to himself.

Mr. Fred Wardle's New Appointment.

MR. FRED WARDLE has resigned his position with the Stratford-on-Avon Rink, and has been engaged by the Victoria Piers Syndicate, Ltd., of Folkestone, as floor manager in charge of the Pier Rink, Dover. Business here is very good, and the directors are arranging several grand carnivals for Christmas. A Roller Skating Club has been formed, and a large number have already joined. Music is supplied at each session by a newly-engaged band, under the leadership of Mr. Swingler, of long experience. The floor is the smoothest and best in the district, and the rink is to be entirely redecorated and several additions made.

Dainty Dolly Mitchell at Reading.

MANY are the attractions provided by the management at the Central Rink, Reading, and by securing the return of Dainty Dolly Mitchell they have excelled any previous engagement. Miss Mitchell, who excels in fancy and figure skating, presents an act of the highest character, executing many difficult gyrations in perfect fashion. Her popularity is surely sustained, as this is her third engagement at the above rink, and she was recently the recipient of a handsome bouquet from a few admirers.

Olympia Skating Club.

THE Olympia Skating Club, of which Viscount Crichton, M.V.O., D.S.O., is again president, will commence its season on Dec. 4. The subscriptions this year will include the use of the rink on weekdays, and special provision is being made for members and their friends desiring to lunch and dine at Olympia.

Rinking Popular in Bath.

BOTH rinks at Bath are going strong at present, and the managements vie with each other in the way of arranging attractions and competitions of every conceivable sort, the public supporting the fixtures with the utmost enthusiasm.

Carnival at Central Rink, Bath.

No greater rinking success than the carnival held at the Central Rink, Bath, last Thursday week, can be imagined, and Manager Mr. E. C. Mansel deserves all the praise possible for the admirable way the whole arrangements were carried through. The prize for the most original lady's costume was won by Miss May Fortune, who had designed a dress illustrating Form IV. This rink is now engaged on Monday afternoons for a ladies' rinking club. At the head of the committee is the name of Lady de Blaquiere, who has associated with her several ladies of county houses around Bath.

Rinking at the Crystal Palace.

THE Crystal Palace mammoth skating rink will reopen for the season to-day (Saturday). This rink is the most popular in the neighbourhood, and it has absolutely the finest and largest asphalte surface in the world, it being a special preparation which renders it peculiarly suitable for all branches of rinking both for amateurs and professionals. The rink will open to-day at 3 p.m., when skating will be ad lib until 5 p.m. At 5.15 there will be a special session lasting until 6.45, the last session for the day being from 7 to 10 p.m..

Champion Free Skater of Great Britain.

DURING the afternoon Mr. Chas. D. Phillips, who is the champion free skater of Great Britain, will entertain all by some exhibitions of his skill on skates. For the rest of the season the sessions will be 10.30 to 12.30, 2.30 to 5, and 7 to 10 p.m., with an extra session on Wednesdays and Saturdays from 5.15 to 6.45. There will be an efficient staff of instructors in attendance; and—this for the learners—a special annexe is reserved solely for the ladies and children who are desirous of becoming proficient in the art before venturing on the great rink in the Northern Transept of the Palace. In the afternoon and evening a full orchestral band will play, thus adding to the enjoyment of rinkers and audience alike. Mr. F. G. Stumcke is again appointed rink manager.

Sports Night at Croydon Rink.

ANOTHER of Mr. Telford's Popular Sports nights was well patronised on Thursday, the entries for the various events being numerous. Excitement was caused by the obstacle race and barrel race for gentlemen, and the backward race and hoop race for ladies. A ball and spoon race for ladies and gentlemen partners was also a novel feature. There were no entrance fees for the events, but handsome prizes were awarded. Competitors were handicapped, and this was well and fairly done.

Little Yorks at Derby.

THE Little Yorks, charming exponents of a graceful art, are delighting audiences at the Alexandra Rink, Derby, this week. Their programme includes various difficult movements, all cleverly performed. The accomplished youngsters are a big success.

Roller Skating on Eastbourne Pier.

THE Pavilion Rink, Eastbourne, with its excellent rock maple floor, was opened on Saturday, when a large number of skaters assembled at the afternoon and evening sessions. The admirable arrangements of last year have again been made for the comfort of patrons. The stage forms a cosy lounge for skaters and spectators, and here teas and light refreshments are served, while the balconies are also open to the public, the admission to this part of the house being free at all ordinary sessions. Professor and Miss Percy (Mr. and Mrs. Swann) are again in charge of the floor, and these expert instructors are available for the teaching of all kinds of fancy skating and to help beginners. The Pier Orchestra provides the music at each session.

The Leicester Empress Rink.

THE first grand fancy and evening dress carnival of the season took place on Thursday, the 17th inst., when there was an exceptionally large attendance. The rink presented a most brilliant spectacle, for the costumes were of every colour and description. There were about 130 competitors, and the judges, Mr. J. B. Healey, Mr. E. J. Jackett, and Mr. F. H. Ross, had an exceedingly difficult task to decide to whom they should award prizes. However, twenty ladies and gentlemen received rewards for their tasteful costumes, and very expensive and valuable prizes they were, too. Skating commenced at 7.30, and continued, with intervals, of course, for judging and competitions, until midnight. Mr. E. A. Knight, who has succeeded Mr. A. E. Court as manager, has done exceedingly well in his first venture.

The Noble Shield at Leicester.

THERE was an immense assemblage at the Boulevard Rink, Leicester, last Saturday evening, when the final race for the Noble Shield, which is open to amateur skaters of all England, took place. Five competitors went to the starting point—T. A. Dunn, P. Robinson, and C. Burdett, of the Leicester Boulevard Rink, D. M. Swain (the holder), of the Lava Club, and E. W. Bussey (fastest loser), of Brixton. The race is a scratch mile, of fourteen laps, and from the firing of the pistol, Swain, the holder, dashed to the fore, closely followed by Bussey and the Leicester men.

Fine Skating by Swain.

THIS order was, generally speaking, maintained until the finish. Burdett soon retired, and Robinson, after making one or two plucky efforts to pass Bussey, also withdrew. Only three were, therefore, left in the race. Swain skated with great strength and freedom, and, gradually increasing his lead, he gained the shield for the second time, and a gold medal. He broke the tape twelve yards in front of Bussey, in the excellent time of 3min. 22sec. Bussey also received a gold medal, his time being 3min. 23 2-5sec. Dunn, who was a yard behind, seemed to leave his final effort too late, although he could never have caught the winner. He received a silver medal, his time being 3min. 24sec. The officials were: Judges, Mr. Frank Snow and Mr. E. Preston; starter, Mr. W. Jesson; handicapper, Mr. Charles Knight.

Fancy Dress Carnival at Kirkcaldy.

AN enthusiastic crowd of skaters gathered together on Wednesday night at the Olympia, Kirkcaldy, to partake in the above, and the elite of the town were present in large numbers witnessing the gorgeous display. A grand hockey match and speed race punctuated the evening's proceedings, and at the close Mr. Hunter was publicly congratulated on achieving such a gratifying revival of the rinking craze.

Carnival at Limerick.

THE rink carnival at Limerick came off on Tuesday night in the presence of a very attractive bevy of spectators. The Countess of Limerick set the "wheels" going at eight o'clock precisely, and Mr. Jemmie Delmege was "out and about" in circumlocution, assisted by Messrs. Kidd and Ledger, making the visitors comfortable and happy. The march past at 9.45 p.m. was a spectacle worthy of the management and the carnivalists, and the costumes were pretty and becoming. Simplicity was much in evidence on this occasion, and the fair women and brave men looked not only themselves, but set an excellent example to those "yonkers" who would, if they could, undo a pretty and a pleasant pastime. The tea-tables were well patronised, and the support given to the masquerade by the county gentlewomen was as brilliant as it was delightful. Photographs were taken especially by Limerick's own artist, Mr. Dick Gibson, and the music was supplied by the splendid bands of the Black Watch and Fusiliers.

The Rinkeries, Rose-lane, Norwich.

AN interesting competition took place on Thursday, the 17th inst., between Messrs. Nicholls and Emms for the one mile amateur championship of Norfolk. There was a capital attendance of spectators, who evinced the keenest interest in the event. In the course of the race Emms, who was the favourite, fell twice, the last time just at the last lap, when it seemed he inevitably must win. However, his last fall put him out of the race, and Nicholls came in for easy honours. Time, 3min. 15½sec. Much sympathy was expressed for Emms in his mishaps. Mr. Hubbard, the courteous floor-manager, admirably carried out the duties of starter, &c. The management have made alterations in their prices of admission much to the advantage of the ladies. They have also reduced the price for the use of skates.

Sporting Night at Olympia, Pentre.

A GRAND sporting night was held at Olympia, Pentre, Rhondda, on Monday last, the chief event of the evening being the final heat for the half mile championship of the Rhondda Valleys, which was won after a close finish by Mr. H. A. Baker, who defended his title from last year. Valuable prizes were given for waltzing, two-step, tug-of-war, obstacle, musical chairs, and ladies' hoop race. During the evening an exhibition of trick and fancy skating was given by Prof. Tom Butterworth and the Boy Wonder (Master Eric), with high jumping as a special feature. The performance may truthfully be described as wonderful, and so gracefully and neatly were all the tricks executed that they appeared from a spectator's point of view to be less difficult than they really were.

Ebringdon Rink, Plymouth, Attracts Amateurs.

AMATEURS seem to be greatly attracted to the Ebringdon Rink, Plymouth, doubtless owing to the excellent condition of the floor and the easy running rollers provided. Their efforts appear to be a source of great amusement to skaters and spectators alike, though they soon become expert.

Juvenile Carnival at Ramsgate.

COMTESSE D'ABONOIR distributed the prizes won in a juvenile skating carnival at the Ramsgate County Rink on Saturday afternoon. There was keen competition, and the youngsters were prettily dressed. The Countess made a happy little speech.

Grand Carnival at Sheffield.

THE first grand fancy dress carnival of the season took place at the magnificently redecorated Olympia Rink, Sheffield, last week. There was a crowded attendance of spectators, and over five hundred skaters took part. The building was artistically festooned with banners, flowers, and Chinese lanterns, and the gay scene viewed from the balcony was a feast of sartorial splendour as the richly-attired skaters glided past to the strains of very popular dance music played by the augmented orchestra. It was generally agreed that the Olympia management had surpassed all their former triumphs, and had, indeed, "done themselves proud."

Marcus Superbus Flirts with Mary Stuart.

ALL periods and nationalities were represented, and many persons adopted costumes of distinctly original design. Marcus Superbus flirted gaily with Mary Stuart, and the gulf of the centuries was easily bridged by Joan of Arc, who waltzed divinely with a gentleman fearfully and wonderfully disguised as Poster Advertisements. Prizes were awarded to Mr. H. Ryves for his novel attire; Miss Haywood, a pretty and vivacious lady, who appeared as the Malapropos Girl; Miss Hilda Hawksley, who successfully represented the Rinking Coquette; Mr. Schoefield; Mrs. Harold Gill, a bewitching Spanish Gipsy Queen, and others.

Sports at Sunderland Rink.

THE last sports night at this rink was such a great success that Mr. Walton has been induced to repeat this form of amusement on Friday night. Entries for the various races are coming in very satisfactorily, and a successful and enjoyable evening is being eagerly anticipated. The rink is at present in full swing, and Mr. Walton is ever to the front with novel diversions for his patrons.

THE EAST LONDON PALACE.

The enterprising and energetic Mr. Jack Woolf, of Wonderland, Whitechapel, who caters so admirably for the entertainment generally of East Enders, has earned the gratitude of the large number of Hebrew dwellers in the neighbourhood by the establishment of a Jewish variety house—the only Yiddish music hall in London. That his undertaking is keenly appreciated is evidenced by the large number of patrons who pay a weekly visit, the hall being packed nearly every night. And very enthusiastic and well-ordered audiences they are, and also very discriminating.

An immensely enjoyed item in this week's programme is the dramatic sketch given by Mr. Scherman, the well-known Jewish actor, and his company, entitled, we were informed, The Wild Hannah. The programme is printed in Hebrew, and not having the slightest knowledge of the Yiddish language, the kindly services of an interpreter were placed at our disposal. From him we gathered that the quarrel between Mariana and Nicolai, the children of Hannah and Count Marinesen, which occurred soon after the rising of the curtain, was the outcome of each defending the religion of father and mother—one of the Jewish and the other of the Christian faith. The entry of Hannah soon stops all argument, and she evidently thinks fit to chastise her son. There is a pathetic scene where Hannah's aged father, Israel Wilner, from whom she has been estranged for years, visits the house and tells her of the death of her mother. The Count Marinesen, her husband, does little to support the family, and Hannah has to work to help keep the home going, having apparently, however, a good friend and adviser in her cousin, Yolke, who certainly has all the funny lines in the sketch, judging by the hearty laughter his remarks frequently evoked. Marinesen brings home a friend, the Count Stura, as a suitor for his daughter's hand, and another visitor is the Countess Marinesen, the wealthy mother of the Count, who implores her son to leave home and children and be true to the Christian faith. If he will do this he may share her money. Marinesen apparently wavers, but in a pathetic and intense scene, in which Hannah is stricken blind, finally declines to desert the wife who has been his helpmate for nineteen years. In the last scene, some considerable time having elapsed, we see the lonely and blind Hannah comforted by the good-natured Yolke, who proposes to read to her. Then enters her son, who is nearly starving, and soon after her daughter, Mariana, who has also evidently been absent from home for some time. She has been ruined by Count Stura, and eventually poisons herself. The sightless Hannah at first thinks she is only sleeping, but discovering that she is dead, the frenzied mother plunges a knife into the breast of her daughter's betrayer, and afterwards kills herself. To appreciate or describe the sketch at all adequately, one must, of course, understand the language, but The Wild Hannah evidently greatly impressed the audience, its reception being very enthusiastic. In its representation Mr. Scherman as the humorous and kind-hearted Yolke, Mr. Goldsmith as Israel Wilner, the aged father of Hannah, a quietly impressive portrayal, and Miss Jenny Kayner as the distraught wife, Hannah, all did effective work, Mr. Hamburger, Miss Blacker, Master Berngarten, Miss Zelnicker, and Mr. Berngarten giving able support.

Mr. Woolf, who has a keen eye for discovering talent, has unearthed a juvenile violinist of much promise in Master Morris Becker, a little genius of whom great things may be expected in the future. Master Becker played a couple of difficult selections with much skill and feeling on the night of our visit, and was loudly acclaimed by the audience. An engagement of an alluring nature is also that of Mme. Czernovskava, Mr. Klodnizky, and Mr. Czigancig, accomplished Russian singers and dancers, the lady first delighting with a tuneful selection, and afterwards joining in what was evidently a love duet with a male partner, judging by the coy glances of the lady and the caressing attitude of the man. The third contribution was an exhilarating and clever dance by another male member of the troupe, his wonderful pirouetting and other adroit and attractive movements calling forth loud plaudits, the trio being rapturously recalled, and contributing another skilful dance. A comic sketch and other varied numbers figure on a programme that none can cavil at, and there is a hard-working and capable little band, directed by Ferdinand Staub.

The casual visitor is struck by the way all the ladies in the audience at once remove their hats, an example which might be followed with advantage at halls further West. On a crowded night the place looks like a huge milliner's shop, all sorts and sizes of befeathered and flowered feminine head adornment being pinned on to walls, seats, or wherever available. But none disturb the line of vision, an admirable tribute to Mr. Woolf's managerial diplomacy.

Studying the tastes for every class of the community he caters for, enthusiasts of the "noble art" may see some of the finest boxing contests ever held at Wonderland; and at other times the huge hall is used for cinematograph shows, for which it is splendidly adapted. Two very interesting films, The Heart of an Outlaw and The Fire Chief's Daughter, were screened in a brief visit we paid the hall the other evening. The East London Palace adjoins Wonderland, and when tired of the pictures, or the boxing is over, many make their way to the Yiddish music hall, where they may always be certain to find entertainment.

P. Collins's Christmas Enterprises.

THE Napoleon of British showland—Mr. P. Collins—is providing great equestrian attractions at his two circuses—the Anglo-American combination at the Curzon Hall, Birmingham, and his No. 2 circus at the Exhibition Hall, Manchester. These well-equipped circuses will doubtless draw the people of both great cities. Some of the best known stars of the arena are engaged. Mr. Collins deserves all success for his ceaseless enterprise.

Payne's Theatre at Wigston.

MR. FRANK PAYNE'S portable theatre, which has just received a renewed licence, which of itself is a testimonial to the excellent manner in which it is conducted, is now situated on the Leicester-road, Wigston. Mr. Payne has left no stone unturned to look after the comfort of his patrons this winter, radiators having been installed, and the entire building having been made as cosy as possible. This theatre is unquestionably the best of its kind that has toured Leicestershire. This week's programme includes The Maid of the Mill; The Lost Ship, or, Nailed to the Mast; The Little Stowaway, or, Cast Adrift; Brought to Justice; The Derby Winner, or, the Way of the World; The Boots at the Swan; The Steeplechase; or, Lytton in the Pigskin; and Robinson Crusoe and His Man Friday. Mr. Payne has an excellent company, and the "show" deserves the patronage that is bestowed.

South Wigston Rink.

MR. TOM MOODY, the energetic manager of this rink, is untiring in his efforts to secure variety for his patrons. A big event is announced to take place on Thursday, Dec. 1, in the shape of a White Carnival, for which handsome prizes are to be offered. To-day (Saturday) Miss Elsie Coleman (of the Rothley Rink), the girl marvel, aged ten, is making her appearance in a trick skating programme of twenty items. In the evening she races Miss Hackett (girl champion speed skater of Leicester) a half-mile race.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith came back to us last week after an absence of eight years. On Oct. 6, 1902, he opened the new Princess Theatre (since demolished), on Broadway, near Twenty-ninth-street, with The Night of the Party, and scored an unmistakable success. It is safe to say that many theatre-goers remembered him after that as one of the most naturally funny comedians they had ever seen, and that a goodly contingent of these same theatre-goers was present at Nazimova's Thirty-ninth-street Theatre on the 7th inst. to give Mr. Grossmith a cordial welcome on his return to New York. Thanks to his new offering, Mr. Preedy and the Countess, his old friends laughed quite as much as they expected, and the new ones he made as the performance proceeded "joined in" most heartily. In other words, the audience enjoyed the play and Mr. Grossmith's impersonation of Hamilton Preedy immensely. The demonstrations of approval at the end of the second act were so pronounced that Mr. Grossmith was obliged to express his appreciation in a capital little speech. Miss Charlotte Granville was splendid as the Countess, her fine presence and easy manner affording an effective contrast to the awkward bashfulness of little Preedy. Mr. John Clulow as Preedy's pompous partner, John Bounsall; Mr. Herbert Maule as Mr. Sidgrave; Mr. E. Bonfield as the Hon. Robert Jennerway; and Mr. Cyril Ashford as Reginald Saunders were all very good in their respective rôles. Miss Sheila Heseltine played Emma Sidgrave charmingly; Miss Lydia Rachel did very well indeed as Mrs. Sidgrave; Miss Lynn Fontanne as Harriet Budgeon made a small part stand out well; and Miss Constance Kirkham was capital as a pretty little French milliner.

"THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR," with which the regular company of the New Theatre opened its season there on the 7th inst., had not been performed in this city since 1898. In that year it was revived at Daly's Theatre with George Clarke as Falstaff, Miss Ada Rehan as Mistress Ford, and Mrs. Gilbert as Dame Quickly. In the Shakespearean productions of the late Augustin Daly the scenes were often transposed and the dialogue was "edited." The present revival at the New Theatre adheres as closely as possible to the original, the outspoken language of the play necessitating some omissions. It was announced that the piece would be performed purely as a farce, and one remembered that when The Taming of the Shrew was performed at one of our leading theatres a few years ago the action was much too boisterous. But with such excellent players as Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, Miss Rose Coghland, and Mr. Theodore Roberts in the cast as Mistress Ford, Mistress Page, and Sir John Falstaff respectively, there was little danger that the farcical scenes showing the fat knight's discomfiture would be 'overdone." These, in fact, were played in the right key, and in the other passages of the play the best of light comedy methods prevailed. The company as a whole gave the piece an excellent interpretation, and the mise-en-scène aroused no little admiration, the final picture of Windsor Park being particularly effective.

Mr. Louis Calvert appeared for a few nights as Falstaff, but was forced to relinquish the part through illness, and his place was filled by Mr. Theodore Roberts. It is not on record that Mr. Roberts had played Falstaff before, but despite the drawback of a hasty rehearsal he gave a remarkably fine performance. Miss Edith Wynne Matthison's Mistress Ford was a most engaging portrayal, and as Mistress Page that experienced artist, Miss Rose Coghlan, was certainly at her best. Mr. A. E. Anson was conspicuously good as Mr. Ford; Mr. Lee Baker did well as Mr. Page; Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk contributed an excellent embodiment of Slender; and Miss Helen Reimer's impersonation of Mistress Quickly was particularly praiseworthy. Other representations that deserve honourable mention were Miss Leah Bateman-Hunter's Anne Page, Mr. Frank Gillmore's Fenton, Mr. Ben Johnson's Shallow, Mr. Albert Bruning's Sir Hugh Evans, Mr. E. W. Morrison's Dr. Caius, Mr. William McVay's Host of the Garter Inn, and Mr. Pedro de Cordoba's Pistol.

MISS ADELINE GENEE made her reappearance in New York at the Globe Theatre on the 7th inst., and received an enthusiastic welcome from a large and fashionable audience. Her dances were the principal feature of Harry B. Smith and Raymond Hubbell's musical comedy The Bachelor Belles, which has already been described. How much pleasure the audience derived from watching her graceful movements may be judged from the fact that she was literally deluged with flowers, and had to respond to so many encores that one lost count of them. Miss Genée was assisted in her dances by Mr. Sherer Bekefi, a clever performer, who well deserved the applause he received. Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger have produced the piece in a gorgeous manner, and there is plenty of fun, thanks to Mr. Frank Lawlor and Miss Josie Sadler.

MISS MAY IRWIN, an unrivalled entertainer in her own particular line, and one of the best singers of "coon" songs that America has produced, has made a success at Wallack's Theatre, in Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson's farcical comedy, Getting a Polish. Yellow Dog, Montana, is the opening scene of the play, and the fun starts when gold is discovered in a mine owned by Mrs. Jim (Miss Irwin), who "runs" a boarding-house, and John Blake. Mrs. Jim, with a nephew and niece, starts at once for Paris to "get a polish," but she is victimised by an Italian prince and a pair of designing Americans. The result of her experiences is that she is glad to return with John Blake to Montana. There are no end of amusing situations, and Miss Irwin may always be trusted not to miss a single opportunity for making the audience laugh. Incidentally, she revives a funny old song, with a swinging chorus, called "Learning McFadden to waltz," and it proves quite as enjoyable as if it had never been sung by every Irish comedian in the land twenty years ago. Mr. George Fawcett is always at his best as a rugged Westerner, and his John Blake is a capital portrayal. Miss Rosalind Coghlan appears as Mrs. Jim's niece, Georgiana, and plays the part attractively.

MISS GRACE GEORGE is appearing in a new comedy, called Sauce for the Goose, by Geraldine Bonner. The scenes are laid in New York, and the story deals with the efforts of a resourceful wife to revive the waning interest of her husband, first by arousing his jealousy and then by making his own actions seem absurd to him. The theme of the play is the much-discussed question of whether the wife has the same privilege as the husband to violate the conventions. Miss George impersonates the wife, Kitty Constable, and is said to have added a delightful comedy rôle to her répertoire. Mr. Frank Worthing appears as John Constable, the husband.

MR. PERCY FRENCH and Dr. Houston Collisson gave an excellent entertainment at Mendelssohn Hall on the 8th inst. "Humours of Art and Music" it was called, and it was original and amusing. Mr. French drew crayon pictures and told stories, while Dr. Collisson played the piano and sang some capital songs. His imitation of a music-hall vocalist singing "A sailor was saying good-bye to his mother" was extremely funny. The programme was full of good things, and a large audience enjoyed them immensely. Britishers in New York know Mendelssohn Hall pretty well, as Mr. George Grossmith, sen., used to fulfil his New York engagements there. The building will soon be demolished.

"THE SCARECROW AND THE STAR."

Comedy Scena, by George Gibson, Produced at the Putney Hippodrome on Monday, Nov. 21.
The Scarecrow .....MR. MAURICE RUSSELL
The Star .....MISS MAUDIE HILLMAN

Of legitimate story there is but little in this charming little scena, the object of the author being evidently to employ the vocal abilities of Miss Maudie Hillman and at the same time to provide an entertainment full of genuine humour. This has certainly been accomplished.

The Scarecrow, in weary mood, sings to himself. The Star comes out to listen, and, in response to the Scarecrow's invitation, vacates the heavens and visits terra firma. Everything is strange to the Star, and in most amusing fashion the Scarecrow proceeds to explain matters in as lucid a manner as possible. The Star sings to him and he to the Star in turn, for they have become fast friends. The dialogue is bright and crisp, and contains many capital lines. As the Star Miss Maudie Hillman scores an artistic success, and finds ample scope for her powerful and cultivated voice. On the evening of our visit Miss Hillman was the recipient of a handsome bouquet. She is ably supported by Mr. Maurice Russell. Judging from the manner in which it was received, the sketch should last these talented artists for some time to come.

AT the Smethwick Theatre Royal, The Merry Territorials, produced by the Brothers Renad, of Swiss Express fame, received a cordial welcome on its initial appearance here on Monday. It is staged in unimpeachable style. Mr. Edward Vere as Old Gaybird is responsible for much of the merriment; Mr. Syd Claydon is droll as Mr. Brown; Mr. Haydyn Scott acts and sings well as Captain Carlton; Mr. W. S. Stevenson as Sergeant-Major Mustard and Mr. Victor T. Raymond as Corporal Jones are also amusing; Miss Lily Beverley is seen to advantage as Polly; and Miss Ethel Royale acts well as Angelina. Miss Evelyn Robson as Mrs. Gaybird, and Miss Irene Atkinson as Bella Brown are also good. The musical comedy is preceded each evening by a dramatic episode in one scene, A Plucky Woman.

THE White Rats of America and the Actors' National Union have consolidated, and the combined organisations have become affiliated with the American Federation of Labour. The new organisation formed by this consolidation will be known as the White Rats Actors' Union of America.

"WILLOW GROVE GIVES WELCOME TO FINE MUSICAL ORGANISATION."—It was after the second number had been rendered, however, that it became apparent that the organisation was composed of well-trained musicians who responded to every move of the leader's baton. This number was the overture, Wallace's "Maritana," and the intonation was perfect, the music at times seeming to be played by one huge brass instrument. Philadelphia.—The Ledger.

PLEASE NOTE.—NO DEPUTIES WILL BE ACCEPTED AT REHEARSALS.

Special provision has been made at each theatre for the exhibition of loose photographs. Artistes are requested to supply these to the Manager on reaching the theatre, and they will be returned in good condition at the end of the week.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our Districts Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.
LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. PERCIVAL CRAIG, Empire Theatre, Bradford.
BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.
LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.
SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.
LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre. Shepherd's Bush, W.
TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.
